You can get a good lunch at Clark's on the park and if you want to buy some of the best cows and horses to be found in this state or this section this spring you will be your opportunity.

The person that went in such a hurry to get out a few weeks ago could have had work and their speak was smaller to that of the fellow that donned his spring suit because he heard the ground-hog to be a liar.

Today is Ash Wednesday or the beginning of the Lenten season which is commemorative of the forty days fast of Christ and is observed by certain sects for the full forty days intervening between Easter, excepting Sundays when the fast is not observed.

A clever explanation why the Republicans in democracy by saying that it is [illegible] It has friends in the republican party to [illegible] Times. That is a joke—Democratic Representatives are decidedly foolish.

The democrat has assumed the role of saviour to the remonstrance party of Wayne county and thinks the party ought to get rid of the editors of both the Herald and REPUBLICAN. Advice from a democrat like it might to be received is about the same way that a good christian would receive an address from Satan in one of darkness.

Commissioner Holcomb has commenced the prosecution of Frank Mynie, conducted from Wayne county, who was sentenced a year and a half years for burglary. The prisoner officers certified that Mynie was at end of consumption and that the sentence of charity had agreed in case he should be released. Stanton Journal. This is the young man that was sent from Wayne county for burglarizing the store of H. H. Hood.

It is said the commercial hotel at Broking which cannot be bought in Stanton for $20 per head. Down in Texas they are flooding that this year for less a dollar year; when good times will be worth as much as [illegible] sheep. This [illegible] well fed Nelson [illegible] make the foundation of good [illegible] herds. The year old are now worth $18 and sales are not urged at that. They they the big western [illegible] in anticipation of [illegible] prices, said [illegible] about that. It is the [illegible] buyer, the man who buys a hundred head or so to place on a farm or feed. The country is full of that kind of buyers, and where herds were [illegible] and shipped to other purchasers [illegible] years ago. They are being sold to [illegible] buyers, and there are making the prices. Where [illegible] farm and raises hay [illegible] of land, he can afford to pay more for his cattle, but for the range [illegible] to rush his stock cattle on grass and sell again to the farmer to finish up more, there is too close a margin [illegible] make the business safe or profitable. The small buyers seem to have the lodge on us, and about all there is left for the range man is to feed his own cattle."—Sioux City Journal.

The editorials in the REPUBLICAN from week to week may not always be just as bright and logical as our readers might desire but of one thing they can rest assured that no pains or time grows on the proper credit is given. The man who has to depend on some foreign concern to get up his editorials and letter must other just turns in a dilettante fashion.

The commissioners met yesterday and bid on the following bids were opened and bids were received for the ensuing year. Mr. Clark was the successful bidder, since he edits the official paper. The angel of death hovers over the newspaper fraternity of Wayne for the [illegible] and their readers are breathing sighs freely as the visitors of awards and parole for two varlets from Dakotas [illegible]. THE REPUBLICAN is not sure to promise the [illegible] prior to [illegible] that it will be double under carbonic conditions, but it is here to assure them that it has abandoned the idea of trying to create harmony by following the friends on the political cemetery and not telling etc. is responsible for their death.

There is one thing that Omaha has to do if she expects to make a success of the Trans Mississippi Exposition and that is to stop quarreling among themselves. The country at large has no interest in Omaha's local scraps and it expects them to rise above petty quarrels when the reputation of a great region like that supposed to be represented by the exposition is at stake. It doesn't cost a cent to be a Better Hennier, Blechnock, Waitlet or who is at the head of the show, but it does expect them to stop their foolishness and get down to business.

Tomorrow at high noon at Omaha, occurs the marriage of Fred C. Shields and Mary E. Brown. In the groom will be recognized by many of the readers the efficient foreman of The Republican and a young man of good standing in our community and one who we predict in any prospect the confidence of all his friends and acquaintances. The bride is the daughter of John Brown the present sheriff of Cedar county and is well known in our city having made her home here for several months a few years ago and has a young lady of exceptional culture. The newly married couple will make their home in our city and will meet a cordially recognition at the hands of the people. Wayne is the only out The Republican has [illegible] congratulations to [illegible] vacation for don't [illegible] have weddings in the family every week.

The rule of the railroad companies in giving passenger free [illegible] on the cards to show their tickets to the [illegible] is probably all right, but it caused a great deal of trouble and at times an amount of law was that forcibly reminds the bystanders of the total depravity of mankind. We were observed the enforcement of the rule somewhat strained. And it is quite [illegible] to observe in the case of [illegible] having tickets in their arms or pockets in such hands that makes it almost impossible to get at their tickets and so many instances were no tickets in pocket, on the pockets or turn their cover to a friend while they go down and find the passenger that [illegible] and they said fell low for a dollar and the rule. The rule is not straight, and so many traveling men and others who are accustomed to the ways of the railroad companies and who pay the fares to the conductor a hundred times where a lady or farmer would never think of so doing. It is not the enforcement of the rule however that so much fault could be found with, it is the partial manner and often the brutality exercised in enforcing it. One of the instances on the line between Sioux City and Norfolk is a striking example of what a fool a little authority endowed in some men can do of Diamond his language to the [illegible] of ladies and children at the Wayne station one evening last week certainly did not raise him any in the estimation of decent people.

Don't worry Rev. McKeon about Tom Berry, he is "Sledging friends and foes right." It never belonged a friend or for the sake of a paltry dollar, or for a little patronage turned traitor to his party and is but no use for the man or paper that does. It may worry some of the people at page fellows by its condemnation of the miserable policy of doing everything to kill your own party and aiding the enemy at every opportunity, but by all who love fair play and square men the course is commended.

Several of our neighboring exchanges bring tidings of the grocery peddler doing a successful business in their vicinity. It has not yet come to our doing anything in this section we are very rather about it and we are inclined to believe they have never found this peddlers field satisfactory owing to the disposition of our grocers to keep their wares and prices continually before the people by the aid of the advertising columns of the home newspapers—in fact it is the sure cure for an ache of that kind.

On Friday evening R. Phillips helped the families of Judge Norris, W. J. Ryan and Fred Phillips drop into his comfortable home one after the other of course their coming didn't particularly surprise the gentlemen, but he was somewhat puzzled to know how they all happened to on that particular evening when someone reminded him that it was the 50th anniversary of his birth and that his children had come to add him to properly observing the occasion and in order that he might remember their coming they presented him with an elegant easy chair and it is unnecessary to say that he was glad they surprised him.

CHAPTER XIX.

Three days after Lord Arlington's most bizarre double marriage, the Duchess of Hinks-Lord gave a ball. Coming events cast their shadows before. Thus there days had changed for the worse. Her face had lost its bloom, the light had died from her dark eyes, there were deep lines of pain and care upon her. She sat with her head resting on her hand, her eyes, full of dreamy vision, fixed upon the morning full sun of the south. Poor, unlucky Lady Peters entered with an open letter in her hand.

"Phil Jones, my dear!" she said, "I am very, very sorry for poor Lord Arlington. This poor girl returns to her husband."

"Why, they say he is married!"

"Married! Nick Lilly Bloom strange revelations are shortly expected in this unfortunate affair. A few days ago, a nobleman, burning one of the most ancient titles in England, was married. The marriage took place under circumstances of great mystery, the mystery has been increased by the negotiation of bride and bridegroom on the wedding day. What can lead to a separation so at present a secret, but it is expected that in a few days all circumstances will be known. At present the affair is causing a great sensation."

A fashionable paper which indulged strongly in personalities, had had a long article on Lord Arlington's marriage. No names were mentioned, but the references were unmistakable. A mysterious marriage, followed by a separation on the same day, was a most delicate and dark mystery, remarked. This also Lady Peters read, and the Duchess listened while she, turn-filling life.

"I don't refer to Lord Arlington and Lady Peters."

"Of course!" was the reply. "She was far too dowdy to look well in a bridal dress!"

"The wretch!" cried Lady Peters. "Do you think she ever thought of that, when she married him?"

"Well, I don't know, I don't think she ever thought of him, but I do think she thought of the coronet." Lady Peters, who had been a beauty in her day, was very dowdy. She was a good woman, and had married a poor nobleman, who had married her for her money. The Duchess, who was a beauty, and had married a rich man, who had married her for her coronet, looked at her friend with a smile of pity. Lady Peters was a good woman, but she was a dowdy, and the Duchess was a beauty.

"Do you think, Nancy, that Lady Peters ever thought of that?"

"Of what?"

"Of the coronet."

"Of the coronet! Why, Phil, what do you mean?"

"Nothing, Nancy, nothing. Do you think she married for the coronet?"

"Why, Phil, what do you mean?

Never Too Sure.

Against the probability or possibility of mischances or accidents we can never be too sure. But if we should stop to consider how great is the chance of sudden death, we would be made too timid and unhappy. Caution is necessary, but to be foolhardy, and presumptuous to know what is how to do when we know that helpless. One day two friends were walking and one said: "Where we should be [illegible] others. I tread firmly and never think about them, and so escape a fall." "Never is too sure," said the other; "it is that that throws you off and makes the fall the harder. Just then the speaker slipped and came down with the foot turned and badly sprained the ankle. He was a stalwart man, and he had to stay there for [illegible] hours before he could get help. The other was obliged to go for help, and it was [illegible] before he was able to walk and then [illegible] slowly with the assistance of having [illegible] on his shoulder.

The sale of the Cuban Pacific in Kansas on Wednesday for $1,000,000 cash to Winslow S. Pierce and Alvin W. Krech closes out the government interest in the Union Pacific. Democrats who are not expected to point to big orders that "the administration expected to realize $100,000 more than the Cleveland administration offered to take for the property."—Omaha Bee.

If the findings of the court now investigating the over-traction of the cruiser Maria Teresa of Havana are such as to fix responsibility for the terrible disaster on Spain or Spanish officials, the dove of peace may as well spread her wings and seek other lands to rest more to have over. The dogs of war will be turned loose and the great guns of our new navy will be pointed toward Castle Moro in the city of Havana in a very short time. Spain may be able to violate and starve the women and kill the old men and noncombatants of the island of Cuba, but when it comes to blow up the capital of the island it will be another story.

The Republican party has been fighting into eternity almost three hundred of as brave boys as ever hearts beat within and when those boys were under the stars and stripes clothed in the glorious blue of American uniform it does seem a crime when a half well the called and a reckoning demanded that we must not revert back to driving the Spaniard from Cuba and our new world but entirely obliterating them as a nation.

Last week we commend Republican elected Pettigrew, Gallinger, Shelby Hale, Hoar, Feb. 7th, each contained editorials that were the same word for word, and begin and end as a chip of another of them. Never any indication of being clipped from any other paper and as the same had to be confined with being the editor of both papers. It looks as though it be to pay some other fellow to do the work and have them credit their work as the only paper in Nebraska using other people's brains in their editorial pages.

Spain is in a very bad fix. In fact, she is in the position of the plow in the man's way, and she is. They are not doing a Dan Lamont affair, or a Cuban affair with American citizens in the world. Spain ignores the United States. They are going to treat the Yankees as they treat the Cubans. Spain is overcrowding the growth power of the United States. The United States is the only power in the world that can do the thing and the United States will do it. Spain is doing the glorious thing, and the United States will do it.

The Nebraska Farmer is to be Most Democratic Hope—in the bailiwick. Democrats and Populists of the state are now and the people are now in a state of the strongest measures and can expect to find no mercy. The state now is ready to take up the work of every difficulty in the organization. Democrats and Populists are now meeting and each party is trying to get the Farmer to be the organ of the party. Democrats and Populists are now meeting and each party is trying to get the Farmer to be the organ of the party. Democrats and Populists are now meeting and each party is trying to get the Farmer to be the organ of the party.

The report that the members of this district were in pursuit of Thomas Reynolds, the Kansas swindler, of Omaha, and finding him in Omaha, brought him home and a journey to Wayne, and then and there on the spot, Reynolds was found to be the man. The Sheriff of Wayne county, Nebraska, and the Sheriff of Dakota county, Nebraska, met at Omaha and brought the man home. Neither of the sheriffs knew the man, but the information was sufficient to identify

Two Feet of Snow on the Level in Iowa and Michigan in the Sphere of the Storm—Twelve Fishermen Missing at Marinette, Wis.

Worst of the Season.

Milwaukee, Feb. 28. The blizzard still continues. Twenty-two inches of snow is reported by the weather bureau. The storm is said to be confined to the middle part of this state. Snow to the depth of twelve inches is reported along the different lines of steam railway. Trains on roads entering Milwaukee are all the way from twelve to five minutes.

Menominee, Wis. The severest storm of the year has been raging since yesterday afternoon and continues. But one train has arrived since yesterday afternoon.

Ishpeming, Mich. The worst storm of the season in Marquette County. Street cars are suspended, and all trains delayed.

Ashland, Wis. By far the worst storm of the season began last night and has continued all day. Northwestern trains have been abandoned, and on the Central line the trains are five hours late.

Racine, Wis. On account of the storm street cars were taken off today. Services in the churches were given up. North Cross was run on the St. Paul branch to Western Union junction.

Marinette, Wis. Nothing has been heard from the twelve fishermen who started from Green Island for this city Saturday. Friends of the missing fishermen believe they must have frozen stalling to some of the fish shanties on the bay. The Sturgeon Bay mail which left here yesterday for the east shore has not been heard from. It is thought have reached the dreamstick last night. There were ten passengers and a driver.

Marinette, Mich. Snow has fallen to the depth of one foot in the last twenty-four hours, the heaviest fall of the season. The storm prevails throughout the upper peninsula.

Escanaba, Mich. A blizzard has raged here today, blockading street cars and stopping all traffic.

Detroit, Mich. Jackson, Mich., is having the worst northern Michigan storm of the season. The snow storm which has prevailed since last night. Marquette City reports all trains on the Marquette division of the Michigan Central cancelled and train blocks at no other roads.

WRECK IN A SNOWSTORM

Engineer Killed and Twenty-Five Passengers Hurt.

Two passenger trains collided head on in the blinding snowstorm at a point south of Rockford, Ill., about 9 evening at the crossing of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and Burlington roads. Both the engineers and firemen of both trains were killed. Twenty-five passengers.

The train hit in a deep cut and the place bound demolished. The Burlington and C. Fire Sun was by no means the switch at New Milford before the regular passenger from Rockford. Nothing.

None of the passengers were seriously hurt, though nearly all were cut or bruised. The blame for the accident is yet to be fixed.

THE MAIN HORROR.

Mystery Still Surrounds the Cause of the Terrible Disaster.

A newspaper correspondent in New York has been assured by a reliable person that Capt. Sigsbee is under the impression that the warship Maine was blown up by a floating torpedo, and that he has communicated his impression to Washington, adding at the same time that the press, in justice to both naval officers and mechanics, to investigate the explosion. The steamer Olivette has returned to New York from Havana bringing the survivors of the Maine disaster. One of her passengers in his statement says: "We have heard some talk of the battleship's bottom. Lieutenant Jenkins, permission to quote one of the officers. Adm. Sampson, Capt. Sigsbee, Capt. Wainwright, Capt. Chadwick, Capt. Cook, Capt. Cook, Capt. Cook
