ESTABLISHED 1884 — WAYNE, WAYNE COUNTY, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1921 — $1.50 PER YEAR

ANNUAL RED CROSS ROLL CALL NOW ON

W. H. Morris, under whose direction the annual Red Cross roll call for Wayne and Wayne county is now being made, tells us that the county organization is complete, and that as the work is all volunteer work. It may help the cause if you see the one in charge in your precinct, rather than have him call on you.

He says that the only objection reported to him as to the work is the fact that the Red Cross organization in this county has funds. That should be no objection to keeping the county organized so that it may be a part of the great work, and have a part in the work thru the national organization. The annual membership of one dollar is divided fifty-fifty between the county and head organizations. The county fund remains here to be used in any emergency that may arise, as directed by the local organization—should dire calamity come to us, the claim on the national organization would be stronger because of the local organizaton.

That the local has funds is our good fortune, for we are assured by the officers that no applicant for Red Cross aid in this county has been refused when proven worthy.

Here is a list of the men and women of the county, outside of Wayne, who are looking after the work in their respective precincts. In wayne there are about twenty-five men and women making a canvas of the city. No reports are likely to be given out for two weeks yet, and we hope that it will be a good report when it comes. Here are the names:

Leslie, David Herner.
Plum Creek, Mrs. A. Dolph.
Hunter, Clarence Corbit and Mrs. A. C. Thompson.
Brenna, Mrs. Irving Moses.
Strahan, August Wittler and Milo Kremke.
Wilbur, Oscar Jonson.
Hancock, Otto Miller and S. H. Rew
Chapin, Mrs. J. H. Brugger.
Deer Creek, George Yaryan and Henry Rethwisch.
Hoskins precinct, R. G. Rohrke.
Garfield, Mark Swihart.
Sherman C. H. Morris and W. H. Root.
Winside village, Mrs. D. M. McIntyre.
Hoskins village, Wm. Anderson.
Sholes, Mrs. Freman Clark.

Now is the time to do your little part toward sustaining this great world movement. We know of no organization so carefully planned to make ready to do a great work as occasion may arise, or that has done so much to relieve suffering where immediate help is needed. Time is such an item at a time of calamity. This organization can do the needed work without stopping to collect funds—if you do your duty.

WAYNE 6, PERU 0

The game was evenly fought thruout. Wayne was suffering from a serious slump and did not pull the game out of the fire until the last few minutes of play when taking the ball on her own 20 yard line she carried the ball up the field by four sucessful passes, Rennick to Meyers, Rennick to Armour, Rennick to F. Petersen and Rennick to Jones, Jones going over for the touchdown.

The most sensational play of the game came in the first quarter when Rennick intercepted a Peru pass on the Wayne goal line and ran 85 yards before being downed. Wayne carried the ball to Peru one-yard line and then lost it on a fumble. The rest of the game was a see-saw affair with neither team endangering the other's goal until the last quarter when Wayne opened up the aerial offensive that resultedin victory.

This is the first time the Peru goal line has been crossed since the first game of the season. Wayne and Wesleyan are still in a tie for the leadership of the State Athletic conference, each having won three and lost none. Wayne now holds the undisputed championship of the State Teachers Colleges as Peru had previously beaten Kearney 3 to 0 and Wayne had trounced Chadron 33 to 12.

AMERICAN LEGION CONTINUES TO ASK FOR BONUS

According to the Northwestern Appeal, the organ of the Legion for Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas of which Jerome R. Forbes is publisher, the Legion under their new officers will continue to stand for the things ther think right and best for our countrr. The Appeal says:

The American Legion will renew with vigor, its fight for adjusted compensation for former service men. That is the outstanding result of the national convention in Kansas City a short time ago, when a resolution demanding immediate passage by congress of the fivefold plan of adjusted compensation was passed.

Hanford A. MacNider of Mason City, Iowa, Northwest veteran of the world war is the new commander. MacNider was named unanimously after three other candidates had withdrawn in his favor. MacNider succeeds John Emery, named on the death of F. W. Galbraith.

They ask five year vacation on immigration. They want the schools all over the land to teach English language. They ask that slackers be punished. And they oppose clemency for Debs.

National Officers Re-elected

Four national officers were re-elected as follows:

Lemuel Bolles, Indianapolis, adjutant Robert Tyndal, Indianapolis, treasurer Robert Adams, Indianapolis, judge advocate; Eben Putnam, Wellesly, Mass., historian.

Other officers re-elected by the new national executive committe are:

Russel G. Creviston, Indianapolis, Ind., assistant national adjutant Robert H. Kyndall, Indianapolis, natonal treasurer, Robert A. Adams Indianapolis, national judge advocate, and Eben Putnam: Wellesley Hills, Mass., national histoian.

The new committe decided to send a representative of the American Legion to the international meeting of the inter-allied Veteran's association in London next December. The American Legion is member of the association.

MacNider to "Carry on"

In a statement Mr. MacNider said the convention had outlined four great issues for which the Legion must fight and pledge his administration to uphold them in spite of al oposition.

His statement follows:

"The American Legion must build itself so big and fine and strong, and keep itself so clean and straight and American that when it asks for certain things—legislation for former service men and women and policies in their behalf—our communities will feel that if the Legion is for a thing it must be right. With that responsibilty to our country and to everyman and woman who wore our country's uniform in the World war we start a new Legion year with pride in the Legion's past achievements, ambitious to serve and keep serving to us.

"This convention has outlined four great issues to fight for—law and order, immediate relief for the disabled, Americaninm and adjusted compensation—and we shall fight for them."

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICES

Next Thursday morning at 10:30 at the Presbyterian church, there will be a union thanksgiving service, to which all are welcome. The sermon will be by Rev. Wm. Kilburn of the Methodist church.

We all have much to be thankful for, tho often we look at the dark side and grumble, or at least feel like fault finding, but if we stop to think how much worse it might have been we will perhaps be ashamed of ourselves. Often things do not move to our liking—perhaps because we did not push right. But go to church, and not take this for a sermon.

ANOTHER SPECIAL FOR THE WAYNE LADIES

Friday and Saturday I will have another fine line of coats, dresses and other fancy garments for the consideration of the ladies of Wayne and vicinity. I am finding that it pleases the ladies well to come to make selections from these special offerings. It is the same as tho I carried a much larger stock, and enables me to sell on a less margin. That's your gain. Remember the dates, and that Mrs. Jeffries store for women is the place.—Adv.

A WARLESS WORLD—CAN WE HAVE IT?

Beginning next Sunday at 10:00 o'clock the class of men at the Methodist Sunday school are going to inaugurte something new and interesting. For four Sunday at that hour different phases of the question now claiming world attention—the ending of war. There is no difference of wish on the part of 99 per cent of the people that war might be eliminated—but there is that one per cent entrenched in position to cause trouble all of the time. This movement is simply intended to be educational and the topics and leaders for the different Sundays as outlined follow:

The first lesson, "The Staggering Burdens of a Warring World," with D. E. Brainard as leader will try to impress the loss that war brings to the world in lives and treasure. Comparative statements may bring the matter so that it will seem to be closer to home. When we think of the loss of life, the suffering and the immense debt made by this war just now closed it makes one feel that the future is mortgaged—and eternally—unless war shall be outlawed.

November 27th, the second subject will be lead by O. R. Bowen, and "The Conference on Limitation of Armaments" will be the part of the question discussed. Justice and liberties of nations is the basis of this phase of the question.

Sunday December 3d, "Principles Essential to a Warless World" will be lead by J. G. W. Lewis, and from the outline given we judge that some presentday economic questions will have place in this discussion. It opens the door to discussing many questions vital to the "masses as well as the "classes.'

The fourth of the series will be lead by Fred S. Berry, and it will consider the possible "Achievement of a Warless World." It is enough to say that the average person may learn of possibilities that may be attained by ending war of which they never dreamed. Think what could be accomplished by saving the waste made by the last war. Think what a calamity might have been averted. This lesson will take up and consider many questions as to the responsibility of society for war. What of the church, of congress of legislatures, of the people? We cannot avert an earthquake or a flood, but it should be possible to so control men and nations as to avert this greater and more destructive evil.

All interested will be welcome to join or visit this class of men at any or all of their sessions. In fact, it seems as if all of the adults of the Sunday school should be asked to listen to and participate in these four lessons.

CAN YOU HELP THE NEEDY?

The Christian Home at Council Bluffs, Iowa, has an average of 250 orphan children and old people there, and depend entirely upon the offering of the public for their living. This year their needs are urgent, and if from the surplus you may have, you can give it will be most happily received. They will take money, food or clothing, for the need is for all of these. Anything addressed to the Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa, will reach them.

November eleventh was the seventy-sixth anniversary of Miss Charlotte M. Whites birthday and ladies of the Bible study numbering about twenty-five gave her a royal surprise It has long been conceded by Wayne folk that we had a royal person in our midst in this lady beloved, but to have all schools, banks postoffice and stores closed on ones birthday is a most unusual compliment. A sumptuous repast was served, a remembrance presented, and the favored one was laden with kind wishes and loving compliments from the departing friends.

OPIE READ, HUMOREST, PHILOSOPHER, WRITER

It was a real pleasure to listen to the words of wisdom which fell from the lips of Opie Read at the Normal auditorium Monday evening, for they appeared to come from an inexhaustible source of knowledge of what he told, and what he might have told. The humor seemed natural, the sarcasm cutting, yet so keen that like the incision of a very sharp blade left no pain and might heal without a scar. He lays much of his education, or at least the foundation upon which it was built to his experience as a printer, working at the case in those good old days of hand composition—when a hundred men were needed every night to put the daily paper in type for the morning. He graduated from the composing room into the editorial part of the building newspapers, often acting as special correspondent for different metropolitan papers. He has written a number of novels which have made many people feel like they knew the writer.

The auditorium was filled almost to capacity, and most of them were sorry when the speaker stopped, for he was entertaining and instructing them at one and the same time.

MINERVA CLUB 25 YEARS OLD

The Minerva Club celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization on Tuesday night with a banquet at the Boyd Hotel. The husbands of the members and President and Mrs. U. S. Conn were guests of the evening. The guests met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ley.

The table appointments were in the club colors, lavender and yellow. A large birthday cake with 25 candles graced the center of the table. At either end of the banquet board a beautiful vase of yellow and lavender Chrysanthemums nodded greetings from Mrs. C. H. Bright of Chadron, a former member of the club. Hand-painted menu and place cards, the work of Mrs. Henry Ley, marked each place. Mrs. Ley is the only charter member in the club at present.

Mrs. E. J. Huntemer, president of the club, acted as toastmistress. Her witty introductions kept the company in high glee all through the program. Letters from the following former members were read during the evening:

Mrs. L. B. Burdick, Seattle, Washington by Mrs. Grothe.

Mrs. J. J. Coleman, Pomona, Cal., by Mrs. Ben McEachen.

Mrs. Bert Brown, Porterville, Cal., by Mrs. H. J. Miner.

Mrs. J. D. King, San Diego, Mrs. Wm. Gorst, Norland, Wyoming, by Mrs. Lambert Roe.

Mrs. E. B. Erskine, Lyons Neb., by Mrs. W. R. Ellis.

Mrs. H. H. Hickman, Los Angeles, by Mrs. E E. Lackey.

Mrs. Forrest Hughes, Harold, So. Dakota, by Mrs. W. E. Beaman.

Mrs. C. H. Bright, Chadron, Neb., and Mrs. Cynthia Dean by Mrs. J. T. House.

At the close of the program one bouquet was sent to Mrs. Dean and the other was presented to Mrs. Henry Ley.

The toast program which follows was taken from the old song Blest be the Tie that Binds. The toasts were given entirely by women, while the men knew they could talk a lot, they never before realized they could talk so well.

Toasts

Mrs. Huntemer (Toastmistress) "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

Mrs. Ley (Charter Member) "The Fellowship of Kindred Minds."

Mrs. Owen, "Our Mutual Burdens Bear."

Mrs. Fortner, "When We Asunder Part."

Mrs. Beaman, Mrs. Brittain, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Gulliver, Mrs. Grothe, Mrs. House, Mrs. Lackey, Mrs. Miner, Mrs. McEachen, Mrs. Rennick and Mrs. Roe," We Shall Still Be Joined in Hearts."

Mrs. Lewis, "Our Fears.'
Mrs. Huse, "Our Hopes."
Mrs. Edholm, "Our Aims."
Mrs. Berry, "Our Comforts."
Mrs. Lutgen, "Our Cares.'
Mrs. Crabtree, "Amen."

WAYNE NORMAL FOOTBALL TEAM TOP NOTCHER

The Wayne Normal—or Teachers College, as it is now christened is being put on the map this season by Coach Dale and the team he has devolped from the students—not a big team in weight, but they have the pep and the football tactics that is carrying them thru the equal of the best, and a winner over every contestant they have met.

Immediately following the game at Peru, which Wayne won 6 to 0, the Peru to the daily press:

following dispatch was sent from

With six minutes remaining and the ball on its own 20-yard line, Wayne college opened up an aerial attack here today in a game with Peru college which netted the only counter of the game. The final score was Wayne 6; Peru 0.

Peru, during the first two quarters, had menaced Wayne's chalk line several times, twice carrying the ball to the latter's 15-yard line. The third quarter brought a see-saw performance in the middle of the field.

"Wayne completed four passes on its trip to a touchdown in the last quarter."

The State Journal for Sunday gave the following as to the standing of the teams, and the Wayne. In fact Wayne has a better chance than Wesleyan, for they yet have two games to play, and Wayne has but one game, and the two teams are the only ones now in the 1,000 percentage class:

"The three-cornered tie in the state football conference was broken Friday when the Cotner Bulldogs were swamped by Hastings college, the score being 17 to 0. At the same time Wesleyan retained her percentage of 1000 by defeating Grand Island college by the same score, while Wayne, the other member of the leading trio, took a 6 to 0 victory from Peru normal.

"Doane exchange places with York by winning a 10 to 6 game, and Midland won the second victory of the season, which was also the second in less than a week, swamping Kearney normal by a score of 13 to 0. By this victory Midland jumped out of the cellar, moving up four places and leaving Chadron normal and Nebraska Central in undisputed possession of the cellar. Chadron entered the conference late and has played but two games, losing both.

"With but two more games to go, the race between Wesleyan and Wayne is tightened. Wayne has no game scheduled for this week, while Wesleyan is to play York at University Place. Kearney normal journeys to Bethany, and victory at this time would put Cotner up with Hastings, which does not play. Midland is to meet Nebraska Central on Saturday and will endeavor to climb into the 500 class. Doane and Chadron have non-conference games, the former going to Sioux City to play Trinity college while Chadron entertains the miners from Rapid City, South Dakota.

"Doane and Wayne are favored in the dope for Thanksgiving, the former meeting Midland at Crete and Wayne playing Grand Island at Wayne, Peru will come to Bethany to play Cotner and Wesleyan will journey to Hastings. The slate for Turkey day shows plenty of opportunity for upsetting the present standing of the teams, which follows:

	W	L	T	Pct.
Nebraska Wesleyan	3	0	0	1,000
Wayne Normal	3	0	0	1,000
Hastings college	3	1	2	.750
Cotner university	2	1	1	.667
Doane college	3	2	1	.600
Peru normal	3	3	0	.550
York college	3	3	0	.500
Midland college	2	3	0	.400
Kearney normal	1	2	2	.333
Grand Island	1	3	1	.250
Chadron normal	0	4	0	.000

U PROGRESS IN ISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

g in the history of the world ca are in importance with that of at conference now in session shington for the reduction of ar aments of the world if it shall succeed—and the people of the world are demanding that it succeed.

All true Americans are gratified at the position taken by Secretary Hughes, when at the opening of the conference he showed the hand and the demand of America for a vacation of battleship building and the destruction of many battle ships. Here is an outline of what is asked:

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12—More drastic and far reaching than the most ardent advocate of disarmament dared hope. America's proposals were suddenly laid before the arms conference today at its first session by Secretary Hughes.

A 10-year naval holiday is the proposal and the United States, Great Britain and Japan shall scrap 66 capital ships aggregating 1,878,043 tons.

Within three months after the conclusion of an agreement the United States would have 18 capital ships, Great Britain 22 and Japan 10. Tonnage of the three nations, respectively, would be 500,650; 604,450 and 299,700.

Ships 20 years old might be replaced and the replacement scheme is 500,00 tons for the United States, 500,000 tons for Great Britain, and 300,000 tons for Japan. No replacement ship could exceed 35,000 tons.

Would Scrap 66 Ships

The United States would scrap 30 capital ships aggregating 843,740 ton. Great Britain 19 aggregating 583,875 tons and Japan 17 aggregating 445,928 tons.

The figures include old ships to be scrapped, ships building or for which material has been assembled.

Characterized by Baron Kato, chief Japanese delegate as "very far reaching," but probably suitable as a basis for discussion and by Mr. Balfour, head of the British delegation, as "a statesmanlike utterance, pregnant with infinite possibilities and most hopeful of satisfactory results," the American proposal, concrete and detailed, fell on the opening moments of the great conference like a bombshell. Foreign delegates were stunned.

Scope of Proposal

The principal features of the American plan propose:

"That for not less than 10 years competitive naval building cease as between Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

That all capital ships building or planning be scrapped and a few recently placed in the water be destroyed within three months of ratification of the agree-ment. That the older ships also be destroyed, reducing the British force to 22 battle ships, the American to 18 and the Japanese to 10, each ship to be retained being named.

"That during the agreement no capital craft will be laid down except under a detailed replacement scheme included in the proposal which would provide for ultimate equality of the British and American fleets and for a Japanese force at 60 per cent of the strength of either of the other two. That all other naval craft be similarly provided for in the same ratio; specific figures for aggregate tonnage in each class being laid down.

"That naval aircraft be disregarded in the scaling down process as a problem incapable of solution owing to the convertibility of commercial aircrft for war purposes.

FARM BUILDINGS BURN

Wednesday, early in the afternoon fire was discovered on the J. T. Johnson place in Leslie precint. The cause of the blaze is not known, but the loss consisted of a cow shed, chicken house, garage and a Ford car nearly new, chest of carpenter tools, and farm implements that had been stored in the different places, and a stack of alfalfa hay.

The total loss we have not learned nor whether or not there was any insurance.

It was November 8th that this corner of Nebraska had its first snow in fall of 1921. But little fell here, and it was soon gone. Friday the 11th there was another slight flurry, and it dissappeared almost immediately. But the wind veered to the northeast, and Saturday morning the 12th was the coldest morning of the fall.

The democratic editors in Lincoln Monday were quick to endorse the action of Secretary of State Hughes and also President Harding on the stand they propose to take in relation to disarament. It was good and progressive, and perhaps as broad as can carry at this time, for we are but one of the nations interested. No move of the present administration has been received with so much general approval as the call for a ten year vacation of preparing for war. In ten years there will be people enough in their right mind to forbid ever again squandering money on navy and army.

E. H. Gearhart of Meadow Grove, a prominent banker of Madison county is being groomed as a candidate for state treasurer, but the little story about Mr. G. in one of the county papers does not say whether he is a democrat, a republican or a new party man—or possibly has the backing of the N. P. L. Oh well, his politics is a secondary consideration—if he can qualify with a scoop shovel, for that is the way the state treasurer is supposed to hand the cash out these days, judging by the sums they are calling for from the dear people.

The Blair Pilot tells that Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Underwood of that place were called from their bed at three o'clock the other morning to say good bye to their daughter, Mrs. W. B. Anderson. The daughter was in San Francisco, and was about to sail for Samoa to join her husband there and used long distance to talk to her parents. This will probably be the last time they will hear her voice for three years, the time she expects to be across the water, unless it shall happen that the wireless phone develops greater carrying power than it has yet developed.

The name Democrat must still have some significance. Last week the mayor of New York City, Mr. Haylan, was re-elected by a great majority. His election and great majority is also apparently a discredit to the influence of a lot of the leading papers of the metropolis, for the Tribune, the World, the Herald, the Sun the Times the Globe, the Mail and the Post and the Brooklyn Eagle all failed to support his candidacy. Well, Altgeld was once elected mayor of Chicago with practically all of the city press out in opposition to him. This shows that the people do not always follow the newspapers in the choice of candidates.

From reports of the way the hungry of the Near East take to corn and in its different forms like a duck to water. Of course, they were hungry and that helped—but the prospects are now reported good for those who gave corn to be able to realize on their investment, for it seems to be proving an advertisement of the real food value of corn. It is likely to prove an investment for advertising purposes. It will be a joke on the railroads if they find after having hauled this corn to market as a donation, it is an advertisement for the farmers. But then, if it increases the corn shipment, no need to worry but that the railroads will make some as well as the corn grower.

Our Great November Reduction Sale

Goes Merrily On

A WEEK AGO we inaugurated a novel plan for selling the surplus which had been becoming more and more in evidence as the warm weather continued and the prices paid for farm products did not advance. Starting November 10th we offered choice of anything in our stock of dry goods, underwear or footwear—in fact everything in our immense stock, whether on the ground floor or up stairs, except groceries, at 10 per cent discount for that day, 11 per cent discount for the next day and one per cent each day until the 30th when everything remaining in stock will be sold at a DISCOUNT OF 30 PER CENT.

Not all are waiting for the 30th, for they well know that when that time comes the cream of the merchandise will have been taken.

TODAY 83 cents will pay for a dollar's worth of these goods; tomorrow 82c. the 30th 70c.

You take your own chances if you wait, for goods are going fast.

This includes blankets, comforts, underwear, dry goods, cotton batts, hose, socks, shoes, arctics, work clothing, sweaters, caps, cotton piece goods, wool piece goods.

This stock was bought for our regular trade, and no stock gathered up for any special sale. If you come you get a benefit, and the earlier you come the greater the chance for a benefit.

This is our method of meeting the present situation, and giving our patrons a benefit. Will you come and get your share?

The Madison Community club held their annual banquet at that city last week, and it was the largest in attendance in the history of the organization. A number of farmers participated in the festivities.

Mrs. Geo. Foster from Randolph spent Tuesday forenoon at Wayne, while on her way to visit her mother, Mrs. Bertha Wiedenfeld at Norfolk. Mrs. Foster spent a number of years of her life at Wayne.

Mrs. Sarah M. Perkins, widow of the late Henry Perkins, founder of the Sioux City Journal, died at Los Angeles Sunday at the age of 81 years. Her maiden name was Ambler, and she was born in Michigan. Her father Jacob Ambler was a printer and a newspaper man, and founded the Baraboo Republic, at Baraboo, Wisconsin. She and Mr. Perkins were married in 1857.

The Madison Star-Mail tells that business is so unusually light over the Northwestern in that part that two passenger trains have been taken off, and the freight business is very light. But little grain moving, and the incoming coal shipments are very small.

Ensign Young, who has been for the past month in charge of the singing at Omaha with the Gypsie Smith revival forces, came Tuesday morning to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Young. Himself and wife came to Sioux City first where her folks live, from here they go to Chicago, and thence next week to Norfolk, Virginia, where they begin a campaign again with the Gypsie Smith party. Mr Young won much praise for his excellent work in the conduct of the music at Omaha, as he does where ever he appears as musical conductor. He has much music of his own composition that pleases. It is so popular in some instances that those who are the more classic have tried to compare it to jazz, but his productions have won favor in spite of such criticism, and many critics who admit that it is peculiar, perhaps, admit that it is a wonderful melody.

Steps are being taken to acquire title and possession of land on which the recent Aero congress flights were made. In the event the Aero club gets the property, it will be converted into a pernament flying field.

Lloyd George, according to the papers is about to resign as prime minister of the British empire, within a few weeks unless the Irish question can be settled shortly. He is becoming weary trying to make peace between the two factions of that island.

Some people are finding out that it pays to have at least a little orchard in Nebraska, if it is peoperly attended to. Perhaps not so much in this part of the state as in the southern part, except that you grow only the hardier varieties. A Seward county farmer sold $440 worth of apples this year, and he had but 70 trees.

A great land sales company made an attempt last week to put on a big land sale—an auction sale, if you please. The effort failed to get a bid, tho as low as a $25 dollar bid was asked. The people came to hear the band and partook of the lunch the ladies had; but no one wanted land. About this time an 80-acre farm near Alexandria sold for $9,000 at private sale.

If one may believe all he reads in the newspapers an off year like this, there is a great demand and much hope for a new political party in Nebraska in the near future. That it will be progressive when organized there is little doubt—but whether or not it can so regulate its progressiveness as to hold the comparatively conservative progressive and also the more radical progresives, is a question to be answered at Grand Island. It might be well to remember that a half loaf is better than none, and that there will have to be some of the give and take spirit in evidence if the move prove successful, except, perhaps in the same way that the populists won. The old parties took some of their best measures and enacted them into law. They took just enought to steal the populist thunder.

TO KEEP FINE COMPLEXION

Here is what is said to be a real solution for those who want perfect complection, a perfectly smooth skin, both white and soft.

Make cheese-cloth bags and as needed fill with about one-half pint of a mixture made as follows: Pound scraps of toilet soap to a powedr. Mix four tablespoonsful borax with four ounces of the powdered soap, stirring into this four quarts of bran. Store mixture in glass jars. As each bag is filled, tie with string and use when desired as wash cloth. This will both whiten and soften the skin.

PERFECT sanitation is one of the most important factors in the making of good wholesome bread. Combined with the scrupulous cleanliness you will find in this establishment a scientific knowledge of baking that makes possible the high grade bread and pastry marketed by us.

ELMER CLOSSON TALKS

Elmer Closson from Sioux City was at Wayne Monday for a tine, while on his way to look after busines matters and visit friends at Carroll, Sholes and Randolph. Mr. Closson has been a resident of northeast Nebraska most of the time for more than a quarter of a century, and he has, and expresses it on all occasions, unbounded faith in the future of this rich part of the state. He says that, better management is needed. That this country should be farmed, and the product marketed without paying tribute to so many of the fellows who are in line taking a slice from everything grown and manufactured between producer and consumer.

He cited flour in his own town of Sioux City, costing the consumers $2.50 per sack of 49 pounds. He says that at the present price of wheat, $2.00 per 100 pounds will pay the cost of flour. He made no mention of the by-products of bran and shorts, of which the flour is robbed until it is not as good as it should be for human food. He said that the farmer and the cow and the hen made a good team at all times in keeping the wolf from the door. Of course, if one makes good from the cow, they will need to be round home at milking time. In his opinion, it is not wise for the farmer to pay freight on the potatoes he eats—he should have a surplus to ship out—if either way. He said we have a soil and climate that will produce alfalfa, the best feed for dairy of any of the hay if it will pay the dairyman in Holland or Denmark to buy it in America when it is ground into alfalfa meal and pay freight on it to those lands and then sell the butter in this country, we are certainly missing an opportunity when we let it go to waste here, for want of building mills to grind it and raising good dairy cows to convert it into milk and butter.

If we simply saved the freight on the products it would make us rich. It now takes two bushels of corn to pay freight on three bushels to market; but the freight on three bushels of corn made into butter and cheese is but a small percentage of the price of good butter. By condensing the corn and alfalaf crop into butter, cheese, beef, pork and mutton you save fully 80 percent of the freight cost of getting it to market.

There is much sense in these remarks, and Mr. Closson said that he saw such times as these about thirty years ago, and saw one community near here with cows and dairying developed to considerable extent, and shape than an other part of the county where they were selling their crops in bulk.

Then he had a word to say about taxes. He has land in North Dakota as well as in Nebraska. He said that while taxes there had increased they had not made much of a start as compared with Nebraska increase in taxes. He was pleased with the result of the recall election. He thinks the North Dakota farmers have a great and good program for the people, but he was not in love with the leaders. He thinks the change of officials under the same laws will prove beneficial to the interests of the state. In this he felt that Nebraska might find some good features to follow.

FROM THE AIR.

Ten thousand people sat in a San Francisco auditorium and heard, more clearly perhaps, than the crowds which stood about the grave, President Harding's Arlington address over the body of the "unknown dead." This was modern wire telephony, made accessible to crowds by means of devices to maguify and distribute the sounds coming in thru the receiver.

On the same day an opera company in Chicago was broadcasting to all wireless telephones which cared to "listen in" an orchestral selection from a Wagnerian opera and a vocal piece from Madame Butterfly. This was preliminary to the wireless transmission beginning next week of the full operas which this company will render. Owners of wireless telephone receivers anywhere within a thousand miles of Chicago will be able to hear grand opera out of the air. Whether or not this will be better than the grand opera we get thru the mediation of a phonograph record remains to be seen. At lest it is startingly different.

In Washington the past week R. B. Howell of Omaha has been reporting upon his European study of the wireless telphone as applied to the broadcasting by the government of general informtion, including market reports and weather forecasts.

Evidently we are on the eve of great changes in our methods of communication. By the arrival of another presidential campaign the candidates will apparently be able to sit at home and speak directly into the ears of as many voters as will listen, they, too, staying at home. The "long winter evenings" in the loneliest farmhouse or most remote village bid fair to be enlivened thru the new means of transmitting sound, by much the same interests as stir the nerves of the cities. The inventors have not yet given up the idea of being able finally to furnish at the telephone receiver a sight of the speaker and his movements as well as the sound he makes.

What is to come of this in practical ways is a mere matter of speculation. The telegraph, the railroad, rural mail delivery, the daily paper have a celebrated human activity and increased the speed of thought. It isn't certain as yet that this has meant greater wisdom and increased happromise merely to add to these previous accelerations of motion. By increasing the influence of the men and minds at the center of things, whence the big messages come, while making most of us passive receivers of ideas and impulses instead of positive, independent thinkers for ourselves, the new devices which science has given us may be paving the way to our destruction. But for good or ill they are here.—State Journal.

SEPTIC TANKS SATISFACTORY

There is nothing magical about the operation of the septic tank, according to engineering specialists of the Agricultural College, neither is there anything very difficult about its contruction. The building of modren farm homes with complete bathroom fixtures calls for some safe means of sewage disposal. The septic tank seems to offer the solution. It consists of a concrete chamber situated under ground in which myriads of anerbolc bacteria digest the sewage and transform it into a colorless liquid which can be easily disposed of in lines of tile drain or other form of disposal field. This colorless liquid is not free from germs, as is generally supposed, and therefore must be handled carefully.

A recent investigation made by the Nebraska College of Argiculture shows the following interting results. Average cost each of 28 septic tanks including disposal field, $136.00 (Cost of material alone $51.20).

ADVERTISING PRICES

It the advertisement with a price named that seems to carry conviction —even tho the price may not be the the lowest. Last week we saw advertising in exchange quoting a price on a certain meat market staple. We saw on the counter of a local market that which was evidently the same item with a tag thereon pricing it 20 percent lower than dvertised in the exchange. Yet we venture the prediction that the adverliser is selling more of that particular line of meat than the other man, who does not let the public generally know what he has at a low price until they happen to enter the market with their mind made up to get some other meat—and then they seldom change their contemplated order. We believe that it pays to take the public into your confidence before they arrive at your place of business—otherwise many never come—because they don't know.

Keeps Motors Lively But Quiet

Polarine is more than a name. It is the guarantee of the world's largest and most experienced oil refiners. It means: "Here is the most perfect lubricating oil for motors that our big staff of oil chemists and automotive engineers know of. It has our unqualified guarantee."

Under all conditions it maintains a wear-preventing oil cushion between moving parts and in bearings, and a fuel-tight and gas-tight seal in cylinders.

That's why Polarine keeps motors lively but quiet. That's why Polarine will keep your repair costs down.

Polarine is made in four grades—light, medium heavy, heavy and extra heavy—but only one quality. Get the proper grade for your car next time by referring to Polarine chart at our Service Stations or dealers—and you will start cutting down motoring costs.

THE CREAMERY PAID

Eight years ago the farmers in the vicinity of Wolback formed a stock company and established a creamery, subscribing $6,000 worth of stock. Then they evidently had the sense to stay with the venture and see that it was properly managed. As a result we read that they have a plant now valued at $10,000 in buildings and equipment—have paid $50,000 in dividends, paid the dairying farmers of the community $100,000 annually for milk or butterfat. They make a quality butter, and now have regular standing orders for more than 1,000 pounds daily. As the paper put it—the creamery has proven a meal ticket for those of the community since its start. The writer having seen what wealth the cow properly cared for has brought to the old home community in the last forty years, seldom misses a chance to urge this community to get into the game stronger. In times like these, the dairy farmer is reaping the best rewards of any.

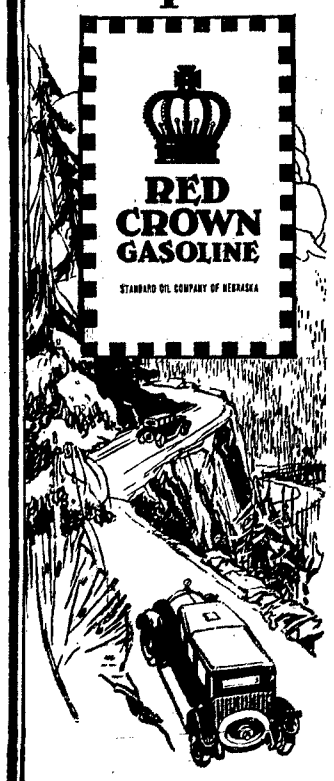
Importance of a Complete Chain of Boiling Point Fractions



You can't light coal with a match. Kindling is necessary. For the same reason, the heavier fractions of gasoline can't give you instant ignition, snappy pick-ups and full power and mileage unless there is an ample supply of low-boiling point fractions to act as kindling.

Straight-distilled gasoline possesses these boiling point fractions in correct proportions. That is why Red Crown Gasoline is uniformly satisfactory. It is straight-distilled gasoline that meets every requirement of the U. S. Government specifications for motor gasoline. There is no better gasoline for cold weather use.

The new political party born at Lincoln, October 28, is going to have a chrisening at Grand Island, December 8th, and the question of what to name the child is one that is now open for consideration. Some names have already been suggested. One is "Liberal" but that is objected to by one who claims that the old parties have been too liberal with the money of the people. Nebraska party is another proposed name. Independent and progressive are two other suggestions. Any who have a real good name to suggest might offer it for consideration.

The life insurance companies are beginning to take into consideration the automobile and other motor vehicles as a menace to human life. They are learning that they are called upon to pay more losses from the automobile than from consumption. This is to a great extent a preventable loss. Our legislature should see to it that pratical laws are made and enforced. In Massachusetts no one is given license to drive motor cars until they can pass an examination; and for reckless driving, whether accident result or not, the license is revoked. Enforcement of the qualification condition has reduced the number of auto drivers 14 percent and reduced accidents one half. That is the proper protection of the people.

Politics, political policies and probable candidates are begining to be discussed and election is almost a year ahead—and the primary will not be held for several moons yet. This is a good sign, and may mean that the people rather than the professional politician will have a voice in the coming contest. No one thinks that the republicans of this state will dare to invite certain defeat by nominating the present governor for another term, and probably not for the senate, much as McKelvie would like to be padded to fill one of the seats in the chamber where these men do the bidding of Wall street, and the great corporations of which the great financiers are the hub. In their More or less Personal column, the State Journal says of a Randolph man. In northaestern Nebraska considerable talk has been heard of late about drafting Senator C. H. Randall of Randalph as a candidate for governor. It is pointed out that Mr. Randall's qualifications for the place are unusually good. He grew up as a farmer, devoted many years to banking and is now giving his attention to farming once more. He is called a wizard at getting votes in his senatorial district, not because he has brilliant oratorical gifts but because people have confidence in his integrity."

SOCIAL NOTES

A Happy Birthday Surprise

Last Friday was Miss Charlotte Whites birthday, and while we did not ask which anniversary it was, we will say that the small boy was misinformed who said his grandfather told him that Miss White is 112 years old. Nor will it be as near the true figure to take off an hundred years, as Mark Twain did in one of his stories when they questioned the correctness of his figures in saying that the woman they saw at the western camp was 160 years old. He would not take more than the 100 years.

But about this surprise. It was planned by members of the Bible study circle of which Miss White is an enthusiastic member, always helping in any good work they may have in hand. First her old friend, Mrs. Perrin was brought to the Mrs. Stella Chichester home where Miss White lives when at Wayne, so that the young lady would be sure to be home when the others same a little later. Then another and younger friend dropped in, and the host thot this intrusion might spoil the visit she had anticipated with the pioneer neighbor—then others came, and after a dozen of the thirty-odd who finally came had arrived Miss White began to suspect that it was not accidental. And she was surprised, too, for her birthday had been observed the day before at the home of Mrs. A. A. Welch where she was present at the meeting of the missionary society. Here she had been made the guest of honor and prevailed on to make a speech, which she reluctantly did.

Well, the gathering of the circle was a surprise and a happy event. Miss White was asked to make another speech, and we all know that she can talk and to the point, and when she talks you may well know what she thinks for she speaks right out in "meeting." In addition to making the speech she received numerous tokens of esteem and good will.

Refreshments were served, and she was surprised to learn that they had been prepard at the home—but so quietly that she had no suspicions arcused. Miss White's many friends hope that she may tarry happily here the 36 years yet necessary to make her 112 years of age.

Giving High Griggs a Sendoff

Monday evening, the regular meeting night of the I. O. O. F. was the time when the members of that order and of the sister organization, their appreciation of the long years of faithful service to the order rendered by Hi Griggs, who is about to depart for California, for the winter at least, and perhaps for a longer time. The gathering was a surprise to Mr. G. and as the ladies, who came after the lodge work was over, brought plenty of lunch they were most welcome. A social hour was spent with games and dancing and social chat.

Mr. Griggs has long been a member of the order here, but said that he had been an Odd fellow much longer than his connection with the organization might indicate. He has filled all of the chairs, and served as delegate to the grand lodge, so the members naturally wanted to make it so pleasant for him here that he would want to come back—if he don't like California.

A number of girls were entertained at the Henry Korff home Tuesday evening. The event being Miss Clara's birthday. The evening was spent with music and dancing, after which a two course luncheon was served. The guests departed at a late hour, all wishing Clara many more such happy birthdays. She received many gifts. Those present were: Alyce Wright, Joy Ley, Dorothy Felber, Dorothy Roberts, Maude Pierson, Christine Weber, Irma Rennick, Celia Rennick, Bessie Hiscox, Ruth Robinson, Phillys Lewis, Frances Surber, Helen Hinkel, and Lula Henegar.

The Coterie met at the home of Mrs. Leslie Ellis Monday. Roll call was responded to by telling an Irish joke. Mrs. Leslie Ellis favored the club by singing two Irish songs, "A Little Bit of Heaven," and "Mother McCree." A paper on Irish Traditional Literature was given by Mrs. A. R. Davis. Mrs. John Ahern was a guest of the club. The hostess served refreshments. The club will have a covered dish luncheon at the home of Mrs. Horace Theobald Monday the 21st.

The Womans club will hold their Saturday afternoon meeting at the home of Mrs. M. A. Pryor at 2:30. Work will be provided for those who come without work. A number of matters pertaining to the business of the club will be considered at the business session. The work of reconstructioning the interior of the opera house is going forward well, and those who have been looking after that part of the work feel that a great improvement is being made—one that all will appreciate when they have opportunity to inspect it.

Wednesday evening at the parlors of the Methodist church, Rev. and Mrs. William Kilburn entertained the members of the official board of that church, their wives or husbands, as the case might be, at a six o'clock dinner. Following the repast a few toasts were responded to by those present, and then a social hour followed which was greatly enjoyed by the thirty or forty people attending.

The Sorosis met Monday at the home of Mrs. E. L. Noakes. All members and one guest were present. Roll call was responded to by giving Thanksgiving poems or quotations. Mrs. Mae Young and Mrs. Ann Gildersleeve played several piano solos. A delicious luncheon was served by the hostess. The next meeting will be November 28th, at the home of Mrs. Grace Keyser.

Alpha Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. Wm. Beckenhauer Tuesday evening, November 15. Members responded to Roll Call by Thanksgiving quotations. A Thanksgiving paper was given by Mrs. Claude Wright. A Thanksgiving reading, Mrs. Lynn McClure, Duet, Mrs. Marcy and Miss Frances Beckenhauer. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The Monday club held their regular meeting Monday at the home of Mrs. D. C. Main. Roll call was answered by naming an "Indian Chief" of America. Mrs. Brainard read a paper on the first family of America. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. Club will meet Monday at home of Mrs. Rollie Ley.

The Presbyterian Aid society will hold their annual Bazaar on Saturday November 19, in the basement of the Library. Sale to begin a 1 o'clock. A good place to buy Christmas presents, all are invited to come.—Adv.

HARVEY'S MOUTH AGAIN

Every red-blooded American will "amen" to the American Legion resolution condemning George Harvey for his London declaration that America entered the war to "save her skin."

If there ever was a war in which Americans were sincerely fired by high ideals, the world war was that one. It is true that we did not rush into the conflict at the beginning with the reckless abandon of habitual militarists. But when we did get in, we were in no more danger of losing our skin than we were in 1914. When the righteousness of our participation became a matter that lay upon the popular conscience then we got in with both feet and both fists.

As ambassador to Great Britain, Harvey has sought to create the impression that, as cringing recalcitrants, we were flagged into the conflict through a mercenary fear of loss, which is a stinging insult to every service man and to every citizen as well.

Ambassadors have been recalled for less than that.—Omaha News.

Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Beyerly came from Franklin the first of the week to make an extended visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Bowen, their daughter. It is possible that they will remain here for the winter.

You will not be disappointed in the showing of coats, wraps and suits and dresses at the Mrs. Jeffries store Friday and Saturday. If in need of any wearing apparel for women or children, do not miss this place on the days mentioned above—Adv.

Clifford Dean went to Sioux City Wednesday afternoon to attend services there that evening and listen to the words of the cowboy evangelists. It seems that Sunday must have left some work undone at Sioux City.

Tuesday the horseshoe throwers of Madison and vicinity were to make a day of it, and see who is the champion. Grounds are staked out for as many as sixty players, and prizes totaling $50 are to be given for the best pitchers.

Wednesday, Messrs Mitchell & Christensen received a check which had been lost with a looted mail sack since some time last June. Of course, they had sent a duplicate check long ago—but this one was found over in central Iowa, near what had been the scene of a mail robbery.

Mrs. Claude Mitchell and Miss Leila drove to Niobrara the last of the week to visit a few days at the home of Mrs. Mitchell's mother, Mrs. Cash. They returned Wednesday afternoon, accompanied by Miss Ada Cash, who had been spending several weeks at the home of mother and brother at that place.

H. A. Banks of Wausa was thru here Wednesday evening, returning from Omaha, where he had been with a car of lambs from his farm that were good enough to top the market for the day, bringing $8.75. He says that just at present the cattle and hogs appear to be falling off in price a little while the sheep are strong and advancing. But he did not say that he thot it was due to the emergency tariff on wool.

Special coat, suit and skirt sale, now on. S. R. Theobald & Co.

Rats—yes rats—lots of them are said to be invading Wayne, and also many of the farms in this vicinity. Places that have for long years been free from these pests now seem to overrun with them. So, knowing these facts, our neighbor Claude Ferrel, thot it was rats that were making a disturbance on his cellar, and went in to see what could be done to eject the invaders and keep them out, for there was too much noise. Well, it was not rats, and Claude had to bury his clothes for a time, and the family went to spend a day with friends, and they feel confident that the rats will give their cellar a wide berth for a time at least..

The new party which is to meet at Grand Island next month may endorse candidates for the state and congressional places—they cannot nominate, for that is the work of the primary for a while yet in Nebraska. So their endorsement will simply be the opinion of those who may attend the convention as to who is best fitted for the offices. They may make a first and second choice—or they may leave the question open for the voters to settle at the primary without any fatherly advice. If there be none to file for office, the primary ballot may be left blank, and the voter who calls for that ballot could write in the name of his choice, and make a sawbuck in the square at the end of the line. All signs point to the fact that there is to be a real campaign during the next eleven months.

MAKE DISARMAMENT COMPLETE

The world is watching the great gathering at Washington, and the people want to know that they are to have diarmament in reality. The United states made a good lead in asking that battle ships cease to be built, and that those now in use be destroyed. That is good. Then England comes in and says to include submarines—and if in ernest in this program that will be provided for. Then come the air ships. They too must be eliminated so far as fighting machines are concerned, if the nations mean business.

Another thing does not seem quite fair, and for the best interests of all, and that is the omission of Russian and German place in the conference. True, Russia has no realy stable government—but the people of that great land should be heard. So, too should Germany be represented, tho just at present she can do no harm, perhaps—but all nations should be a part of this great conference and feel bound by its decisions.

FOR SALE

Short Horn bulls at price to suit buyer. John S. Lewis, Jr.—adv.-3teow

Ben Franklin Said:

"The money money makes, makes more money."

He was talking about interest, friend. Think it over.

Interest works twenty-four hours a day—every day in the year. It observes no holidays and never takes a vacation.

Money kept at home or in your pocket earns no interest and is in constant danger of being lost or stolen.

WAYNE TEACHERS TAKE PART IN STATE TEACHERS MEETING

(From The Goldenrod)

Several members of the faculty of the Wayne State Teachers College took part in the various sectional programs of the Nebraska State Teachers Association which met in Omaha November 9, 10 and 11.

President U. S. Conn addressed the college section on the subject, "What Does the Freshman Bring from the High School?" In the history section, Prof. J. G. W. Lewis spoke on "History in the Seventh and Eighth Grades", Dean H. H. Hahn, president of the Teachers of Education section, addressed the child study group on "The Use of Mental Tests in Primary Grades". Prof. J. M. Martin took part in the discusion work before the commercial section. Miss Elsie Ford Piper, secretary of the Latin section, conducted the round table conference for instructors of Latin. Professors W. C. Hunter and E. E. Lackey also attended the meeting. Professor Lackey took part in an auxiliary organization of the geography section.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK

(From the Goldenrod)

Though the Normal School Library does not come into close contact with all of the children and their reading, yet to say nothing of the importance of the latter, would be doing the former an injustice. The week of November 13-19, is Children's Book Week. In large public libraries many and interesting devices will be used whereby parents' attention will be drawn to this important feature in their children's training; and children will be encouraged to "Read a book this week". Book departments of city stories will advertise lists of children's book, which have been chosen, as approved by specialists in that phase of library work. Schools, too, throughout the land, will conduct plays and tableaux, based on book characters; talks about authors will be given by the teachers, and story hours will be held,—all to emphasize and stimulate the subject of reading.

The first day of the Week this year falls on the birthday of one beloved by children—Robert Louis Stevenson.

The books in the following short list, besides many others, are obtainable from the juvenile section of the Normal Library:

The "Dashing" Blonde

By DOROTHY WHITCOMB.

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

Sylvia Blaine was happier than she had ever been in all her life before. But when one is nineteen happiness comes easily, especially when one is in love.

Tom Darragh was generally considered the most promising young lawyer in Stapleton. And he loved Sylvia Blaine.

Sylvia could not believe that it was right for any girl to be as happy as she was. And why should Tom have chosen her when there were so many sweet girls of his acquaintance? If he had ever known her cousin Agatha, for example, she was sure that Tom would never have looked twice at her.

Agatha Blaine was five years older than Sylvia. Although she had been born in Stapleton, she had not lived there much during her checkered existence. She had made an unhappy marriage and was suing the man for a divorce. Agatha was a handsome blonde—"dashing," people called her—with any number of moths fluttering round her. And the worst of it was that Agatha, who could never resist making conquests, was coming to stay with Sylvia's mother.

When Agatha did arrive, a resplendent being in a picture hat, with four trunks and a pedigreed dachshund, she was more than ever convinced that her days of happiness were numbered.

Agatha was so kind that the girl half minded to confess her trouble to her. But Agatha seemed also a little heartless.

"Why, my dear auntie," she said to Sylvia's mother, "what funny, old-fashioned ideas you have about men. Any woman can twist any man round her little finger, if she chooses."

"I wonder if she will choose to twist Tom round her little finger," sighed Sylvia to herself, when Agatha congratulated her warmly.

On the day after her arrival Tom was introduced to her. Sylvia, watching them closely, although she assumed an indifferent manner, felt that her worst fears were confirmed. Within a few minutes after the introduction they were chatting together like old friends.

"Well, I've seen this wonderful Cousin Agatha," said Tom, as they parted, "and she can't hold a candle to you, sweetheart."

The next day Cousin Agatha pleaded a headache when Sylvia broached the proposition of a walk. Sylvia had some shopping to do, and, after a stroll through the woods alone, returned through the village. Suddenly she stopped dead; she felt as though an icy hand had been laid upon her heart, for at a window on the second story of some business offices she saw Agatha's hat.

And the irony of the situation lay in the fact that the hat was nodding at the window of Tom's office.

And a moment or two later she saw Agatha's filmy lace handkerchief pressed to her eyes, saw Agatha's head bowed upon her hands, and saw Tom's hand patting her cousin's shoulder consolingly.

She wrote a little note to Tom that evening.

"I find that I made a mistake," she said. "I thought I loved you, Tom, but I was wrong. Please, do not call or write to me, and never ask me to explain."

She knew Tom was too proud not to take her at her word. And the next two weeks were miserable ones, for she herself was too proud to let Agatha know how she was suffering.

"Well, I must say I don't think much of that sweetheart of yours, Sylvia," said Agatha. "If I were engaged to a young man I should expect him to come to see me every evening. And here it must be a couple of weeks since he has put in an appearance."

Sylvia did not make the retort that was upon the tip of her tongue: That on four separate occasions she had seen Agatha in Tom's office.

But everything draws to a close, and the time has come for Agatha to leave. Agatha was waiting for the carriage to come to convey her to the station.

"Sylvia, dear," she said, "there isn't anything wrong between Tom and yourself, is there?"

"N-no," stammered Sylvia brazenly.

"You know," said Agatha, "I didn't like my lawyer, Wagstaff, who, between ourselves, hadn't been quite straight with me. So I thought: Here's $500 worth of law business going begging, and why shouldn't Tom Darragh have it and be able to start housekeeping with a nest egg in the bank? Why, Sylvia!"

For Sylvia was crying, and when the cab arrived she had only just begun to explain.

"I can't go in, Agatha. I dare not. I'll write to Tom—"

"Well, now, you just sit still and I'll bring Tom out to you," said Agatha sternly. And when, a minute later, the door opened and Tom came in, Sylvia clung to him, sobbing and repentant.

"O, Tom, what a goose I was. Can you ever forgive me?" she asked.

"On one condition," he answered.

"That you marry me next month."

"On one condition," said Sylvia docilely.

"Which is—?"

"That Cousin Agatha shall be bridesmaid."

STATE MASS CONVENTION CALL

Pursuant to the action of the Independent Progressive Conference held at Lincoln, October 28, 1921, notice is hereby given, that a state mass convention of the independent progressive voters of the state is called to meet at Grand Island, Nebraska, on Thursday, December 8, 1921, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of organizing and naming a new political party for Nebraska. Every progressive voter in the state is entitled to a seat in this convention and every voter present is entitled to one vote.

To insure an adequate number of delegates from each county, notice is further given, that a county mass convention is hereby called to meet in the court room at the county seat of each county in the state on Saturday, December 3, 1921, at one o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of selecting not less than one delegate for each 400 votes or fraction thereof of the total vote cast for Governor in that county at the last election, and such delegation shall consist as nearly as possible of an equal number of men and women, and in addition to the number requested, each county may send as many more delegates as possible.

Any progressive voter in the state who does not attend the county mass convention or who may not be selected by such convention as a delegate, may come directly to the state mass convention on his own initiative.

ALUMNI

(From the Goldenrod)

Last summer at the annual alumni banquet it was proposed by Miss Dorothy Huse, '18, that the first Sunday in November of each year be considered Wayne Day, when all alumni of the school should write to President Conn giving their address and something about their work. A few remembered this proposition. The Alumni Register will again be printed this year and the plan is to have it appear at the January number of the quarterly issue of the school bulletin. It is hoped that others will find time to send communications so that the Register may be complete.

John R. Muhm and Mrs. Muhm (Agnes Graham), both of the class of 1920, are teaching in Ewing, Nebraska. Mr. Muhm is superintendent and teaches physics, manual training, and athletics, and Mrs. Muhm has the normal training.

Wilma Gildersleeve, '20, is attending school at Grinnell, Iowa.

Fern Crowley, '17, is teaching in Red Lodge, Montana.

Eva Glimsdal, '18, is specializing in home economics at the University of Nebraska, this being her second year there.

Onar Muhm, '21, is this year staying at home with her parent in Randolph.

Elsie Deuel, '18, because of illness was not able to teach this year and is at home in Norfolk. She plans to teach the second semester.

Winifred Angel, '20, is county superintendent of Stanley County, South Dakota with headquarters at Fort Pierre. She writes thus interestingly of her work:

"Last year I taught at Hayes, a little inland town about thirty miles from the railroad. There was a daily stage line through there so we got mail every day and I was used to the country so liked it very much. It was a sort of experiment. We tried having two teachers in the rural school and dividing grades. It worked very well and they are trying it again this year but have this year built another room on so each teacher has her own room. The board is also furnishing a teacher's cottage and running three school busses.

My school closed June 3d and I began duties as county superintendent on June 6. I like the work very well so far. I have 46 rural schools and one town school under my supervision. The population is not very great, schools are far and few and small and I have no regular office deputy but have had an office clerk part of the time. I have been on the roads visiting schools two weeks but was driven in by rain and haven't been able to travel any this week. I have about four weeks of road work yet. I got myself a Ford roadster with self starter and demountable rims and do my own driving. Some schools are 50 miles from town and perhaps two houses on the road out but I like to go and am not afraid of getting lonesome.

I did so want to be there last June for Home Coming but had to go to Aberdeen just at that time. Will be in Huron Thanksgiving week for S. D. E. A."

The following item about Emil Hauge, '21, is copied from the Newman Grove Reporter: J. Emil Hauge hax resigned his position in the Reporter office and accepted the principalship of the Long Pine school. He left last Friday for that place. Emil is a young man of ability and is a graduate of the Wayne State Normal. The Reporter predicts that he will make a successful instructor. He autoed to Long Pine in his car.

Julius D. Young, '19, writes from Craig that he is "enjoying health and as much wealth as the other farmers are in this year of plenty and 'splendid isolation'".

CLUBS

(From The Goldenrod)

About sixty students were present at the last meeting of the Forum. The entire society sang "Old Black Joe". This was followed by a vocal solo by Marjorie Milner. Professor Lackey conducted a parliamentary law drill which was the first of the series of lessons from the new manuals.

Miss Velma Burnham sang a solo composed by Mr. Farrens, a member of the society. Part of the program, because of lack of time, was carried over until the next meeting. Several new members were taken into the Forum.

The Rural Club met Monday, November 7. A short program was rendered. Several songs were sung and four readings given. A short business meeting was held and the remainder of the evening was spent in games.

No other boon that the gods have bestowed upon mankind can compare with the gift of vision, a power almost solely dependent upon the creative imagination; a power that has marked all work of high order, since time began, be it that of poet, painter, actor, musician or dancer. So rare is the gift that the world ever delights to honor those who, in the arts, have given embodiment to their visions while dramatists and poets have vied with each other in making clearer to the world the artist's priceless contribution to his age.

In "The Rhyme of True Thomas" and "The Story of Ung" Kipling clarifies for us the divine spark, and William Butler Yeats based "The King's Threshold" on the same theme.

The Fine Arts Society of the school was organized on Monday evening, November 7, having for its object to stimulate and recognize creative painting, drawing, music, dramatics, expression, dancing work in the student body; such recognition to be based on inherent ability. The Society is a working one and will from time to time give programs for its friends. Students of the Art Department, of Music, of Expression and of Dancing are eligible and they will give proof by presentations of work touched with vision, fire, originality and sincerity-qualities that mark "Those whom the gods have whispered in the ear."

There was a good attendance at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening. Cards were signed by those who wished to become members and a pledge to help support the society financially was given by each one.

Professor Bowen gave an interesting and instructive address on "Things That Bother Young Folks". He said there was nothing wrong in sincerely doubting, but that it was an indication of an active mind. He stated that no one need be afraid of the truth and that evolution was in perfect harmony with religion. He emphasized the danger of the doctrine of fatalism. Mr. Bowen denounced the idea of frightening people into being good by threatening them with punishment. We should not be too self-righteous, but should spend more time in doing good for others.

STATE HOLIDAYS AND OTHER DAYS RECOMMENDED FOR "FLAG DAY" OBSERVANCE

(From the Nebraska School Laws)

The followng days, viz:

1. The first day of January known as New Year's day.
2. The twenty-second day of February, known as Washington's birthday.
3. The twenty-second day of April, known as "Arbor Day."
4. The thirtieth day of May, known as Decoration or Memoral Day.
5. The fourth day of July, known as Independence Day.
6. The first Monday in September, known as Labor Day.
7. The twelfth day of October, known as "Columbus Day."
8. The twenty-fifth day of December, known as Christmas Day.
9. Any day appointed and recommended by the governor of this state or the president of the United States as a day of fast or thanksgiving.
10. Any day which may hereafter be made a legal holiday, shall for the purpose of this act, be holidays; but if said days herein be the first day of the week, known as Sunday, the next succeeding secular or business day shall be a holiday.
11. Th state superintendent of public instruction also recommends the following days as "Flag Days." February 12, Lincoln's birthday; March 1, Nebraska's admission to the Union as a state; April 15, Death of Lincoln (half mast;) April 19, Inauguration of the first president of the United States; October 19, Surrender of Cornwallis; and December 20, the landing of the Pilgrims.

As far as practible we trust the above named days will be observed in the respective schools of the state by appropriate exercises and instruction of the character especially suitable for the respective occasions.

So far as schools are concerned the statutes of Nebraska make no provisions for legal holidays. A teacher, in the absence of any provisions upon the matter in his contract, would have no authority to close school upon the so-called holidays, without being legally required to make up the time so lost to the district. However, a district board has authority to make provisions for closing school upon such days and in case the board directs that school be closed upon any specified day, the teacher would legally draw pay for such time.

OF INTEREST TO SCHOOL OFFICERS

(From the Wayne County Teacher)

In some of the district the water closets are not in good condition and not properly located. The school law says that it shall be the duty of school district boards to provide on every school house site, and keep in good repair and in clean and healthful condition, at least two separate water closets or privies located on those portions of the site farthest from main entrance to the school house, and as far from each other as the surrounding conditions will permit. (They should be at least fifty feet apart.)

In one school where the socialized recitation plan was being used we saw one lad put his fingers in his ears so he would not hear the corrections on his recitation.

TEACHER'S SAYINGS

The following remarks were actually made by the teachers in school but of course the teachers might have been "fussed" when they said them

How much is this here one?
What did she all eat?
Don't mark no sounds.
Now Tommy, don't make no capitals in the middle of your sentences.
How many has the same?
You ain't got no little sister to take care of.
You would say that plants is what?
Take to bottom of page "hunderd" and three.
We will leave Willie read first.
You did good.

BOOKKEEPING FOR THE EIGHTH GRADE

The following outline in the work in bookkeeping was received from the state department last year.

1. Bookkeeping should be carried on with arithmetic during the second half of the eighth year, correlating with interest, taxes, insurance, discount, etc.

2. All work should be simple, neat, plainly written and accurate.

3. What the pupil should know:

1. How to write a good business letter—parts, punctuation, folding of letter. Make it clear and to the point.

2. How to keep a simple account—debts, credits, gains, losses. etc. Accounts with persons, fields, etc. Have accounts showing incomes; cash accounts showing money received and money paid out.

3. How to write a receipt—Date, place, for what purpose, persons concerned.

4. How to fill out and endorse a blank check, draft or note.

5. How to make out lists of farm animals, grain, and machinery, giving value of each animal, grain or implement.

6. Bring to class blank forms for study. Show pupils how to fill out such blanks. Study deeds, tax receipts, insurance policies, etc.

7. How to keep records—Weather, fields, cows, eggs etc.

8. A good elementary text in the hands of the teacher is sufficient.

I think it a good plan to do this work during December, January and February.

Hamilton's Essentials of Arithmetic, by American Book Co., Chicago, Second book, gives most of this work.

Pages you will find helpful: 82-91, 155-159, 163-167, 180-187, 260-263, 269-278. F. H. Jones has some of the arithmetics on hand.

For the work in letter writing think you will find it all in the Composition part in the last half of the book, The New Reed nd Kellok—Lessons in English, book two, by Charles E. Merrill Company, Chicago.

NOTICE OF FINAL SETTLEMENT

Notice is hereby given that in the County Court of Wayne County, Nebraska, at the Court House in Wayne, on the 25th day of November, 1921, at two o'clock p. m., will be heard the petition of Lloyd Albert Jones, executor of the estate of Lena Jones, deceased, for allowance of his final account and for decree of distribution.

Dated this 4th day of November, 1921.

A SILVER THIEF

By DOROTHY KNIGHT.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

John Stanley was in love! The realization swept over him like the rush of a mighty wave. But no, it was not possible. It could not be. How could a practical man, nay, a hardened cynic, as he was, in affairs of the heart, be in love with a girl he had never seen?

And yet, the allure of that picture—the calm, sweet expression of the wide-set eyes, with just a vague suggestion of roguishness, the smiling mouth, the—But what was the use? He did not even know who or what she was, and how could he find out? A stray picture torn from an old newspaper! What was her plea to fame—the season's most popular debutante, a footlight favorite, perchance, a bride? But no, not that. Her brown eyes (surely they must be brown; they were very dark, anyway) haunted him. He could not sleep.

He lay awake and reviewed the events of the day. That morning on arriving in Boston he had met his old friend, Norton, who, with his wife was going away on a trip. Norton had given him the keys and offered him the use of the Norton apartment for the week he was to be in town. So, instead of being in a dreary hotel, he was sleeping—or trying to sleep—in a luxurious bed in a daintily furnished apartment.

He dozed off, still with the fair face before his eyes.

A faint sound reached his ears as if someone were moving around the apartment.

A girl was moving quietly across the room in her stockinged feet. Her back was toward the door. She went directly to the sideboard and opened the top drawer. An almost imperceptible exclamation came from her as she took out piece after piece of silver, examining it carefully. She seemed entirely engrossed by it—fascinated.

"What are you doing here?" John demanded in a stern tone.

She turned like a startled doe, at the same time grasping the silver more firmly. The color fled from her face. But almost immediately she gained at least a semblance of self-control as she said, in a voice that only trembled slightly: "What are you doing here?"

But alas for John! In proportion as the girl had gained her equanimity he had lost his. It was the girl of his dreams, walking and, alas, sleeping, too, he feared. He knew her the moment she turned around.

"What are you doing here?" she repeated. She seemed entirely master of the situation, while poor John writhed in the knowledge that the girl he loved was a thief.

"I live here, of course, and you?" with a rising inflection.

For the fraction of a second she looked around helplessly, as if seeking a way out of her difficulty, and then, as if accepting the inevitable, she said, banteringly, as if trying to gain time: "These do not look like bachelor apartments."

"How do you know I am a bachelor?"

"Oh," sweetly, "a girl can generally tell." As she spoke she edged toward the door.

Anticipating her, John placed himself in the doorway.

"Do you know, if that were my silver, I should be almost tempted to give it to you? But since it belongs to my friends, Mr. and Mrs. Norton, whose apartment I am occupying for a few days, I will have to ask you to return it."

"Oh," she gasped, and the swift color dyed her face. "Then you are not—a—a—" Embarrassed she paused.

"Another thief," finished John. "No, I'm not, but perhaps if I loved antique silver as passionately as you seem to, and if it were my sole desire to possess it—"

"How do you spell that 'soul?'" she interrupted.

Before he could frame a reply her expression changed from flippancy to seriousness, as she begged: "But you will not have me arrested, will you? You will let me go? I will never, never do such a thing again."

Quickly she replaced the silver, stepped deftly into her tiny pumps, and before the astonished John knew what was happening she was gone.

Gone, too, was his peace of mind. Gone was his heart. His thoughts were in a riot.

He picked up a book carelessly, but what he saw made him gasp and rub his eyes to see if he were really awake. It was the girl, and her name was signed. Of all the unexpected things! It was Norton's sister. What must she think of him, taking her for a thief?

* * * * * * *

Two days later an animated couple were enjoying tea, and, incidentally, each other, in a deserted corner of an out-of-the-way tea room.

"I think I understand everything now, except what you were doing with the silver."

"Why, that's perfectly simple. You see, Mary's grand-aunt had just given them some antique silver, which I had never seen, and, as I love antique silver, even though it is not my sole desire—" Swiftly he interrupted: "Speaking of 'soul desires,' and you spell it any way you please, I know what mine is, now, and I am going to get it, too, if I have to overturn heaven and earth to do it."

Did he? Well, her name is now Mrs. John.

The Honeymoon Stateroom

By DOROTHY WHITCOMB.

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

Their wedding had been a very quiet one, just as their courtship had been quiet. Cynthia Mears and John Roberts had been engaged for more than two years before he could afford to marry, and something of the sedateness of married life had already settled down on them. Then a sudden promotion, with a considerable increase in salary, had changed all John's prospects. The future looked rosy.

"We must have no fuss, no wedding party, and, above all, no foolish pranks or rice throwing," John said on that evening when he brought Cynthia the wonderful news that they could now be married. Cynthia had agreed cordially. There was no one to give her away. John was assisted by Charlie Murtaugh, his best man. The marriage was performed at noon in a little uptown church, and immediately afterward the couple left for the station, en route for Florida, where they were to spend their honeymoon. Charlie accompanied them in the carriage to see them off, and there was no rice throwing on the part of anyone.

"Do you know, dearest, Charlie seems more flustrated than you do!" said Cynthia, smiling, as the carriage rolled away. He was fidgeting nervously with his watch.

"Well, we'll make the 1:14 with ten minutes to spare," he said.

"The 1:14!" exclaimed Cynthia in horror. "Why, it is the 1:04, Charlie!"

John bawled to the driver to whip up his horses, and the vehicle dashed into the station with two minutes to spare.

Charlie was fumbling nervously in his pockets, and his face was the color of chalk.

"I can't find the tickets," he stammered.

"Then I'll get some more, you chump," yelled John, and made a dash for the ticket office. At the door of the waiting room he encountered Charlie, wandering aimlessly about and looking for him. Outside he saw Cynthia's brown hat and veil. John brushed Charlie aside and ran toward Cynthia, who was just getting aboard the train. He swept past the porter and followed her into the drawing-room section, turned round, and slammed the door.

"Well, thank God, we pulled that off, dearest!" he exclaimed, and a scream awakened him to reality. The woman in the section was not Cynthia at all. The train was moving, too.

"What are you doing here?" she cried in terror, which John's flushed face and dishevelled appearance certainly warranted. "Help! Help!"

The door was burst open and a man came in. He strode between John and the girl.

"Who is this fellow? Has he been molesting you, dear?" he demanded.

"He called me 'dearest,'" said the girl, beginning to look tearful.

The man turned to John.

"Unless you can explain your presence here satisfactorily within one minute," he said, "I shall first give you the thrashing of your life and then hand you over to the conductor."

"I'm perfectly willing to explain my presence here, sir," answered John hotly, "but first I must find my wife. She is aboard this train. God help us if she isn't." A happy thought struck him. "Help me to find her," he said, "and then we'll have the explanations."

"I'm willing to give you every opportunity," answered the other.

He flung the door open and called the porter. "Is there a lady in E 7?" he asked.

"No, sah," answered the man grinning. "E 7 is vacant, sah."

"It was G 11 or 12," said John. I'm not sure which."

They passed through the section and the next one was G. Then suddenly his eyes lit upon two figures that had entered the car. "There she is!" he shouted exultantly.

Two women in brown hats and veils were coming down the aisle. One was John's wife, the other the strange woman, and both were radiant with smiles.

"Oh, I haven't told you, Cynthia. What do you think! This lady is Julia Devoe, an old school chum whom I haven't seen for goodness knows how long."

"Julia Sayles since this afternoon," said the double, blushing charmingly. "Harry and I were married at twelve o'clock at the—"

"Harry!" exclaimed Cynthia, and she took the tall man by the shoulders and swung him round so hard that he faced her "Harry! Harry Ross!" she exclaimed.

"Just think, John," she continued to her husband, "if that silly old Charlie Murtaugh didn't put the tickets in my traveling bag, after all."

"Charlie Murtaugh!" exclaimed Julia. "A stout young man with a pink face and a whitish-brown mustache, blue eyes, high forehead, and wears striped ties to match his socks?"

"Why, Julia, do you know him?"

"Know him!" cried Julia. "Why, he is to marry my sister Annie, two weeks from Wednesday!"

"I guess," said Harry Ross, "that we'll convert that prize-battle into a couple of cigars while the ladies adjust their relationship. What do you say, Mr.—"

"Roberts," said John. "I think, all things considered, that your solution will afford peace with honor to all concerned."

"My, but I'll have something to say to Charlie when we get back from Tampa!" meditated Cynthia.
