GREETING,

To our Old Friends and Neighbors: The First Annual Reunion and Picnic of the Pioneers' and Old Settlers' Association of Wayne county, Nebraska, will be held at Brenner's grove one mile north of Wayne, Nebraska, on Thursday, August 15, 1901.

The Old Settlers of Wayne county send greeting to you and request your attendance with them on that occasion. We will be pleased to meet you and your friends, whether old or new settlers, and will endeavor to make the day one long to be remembered. Come and greet your young friends to whom the doings of pioneer times. It will be your last opportunity to meet some of us.

Mr. Stoutenburg, who has been visiting at the home of his brother in law, Leon Lewis, returned to his home in Nebraska Friday.

Mrs. C. H. Lambert of Newman Grove was an arrival in the city Thursday to visit her parents, David Cunningham and wife.

I'll not to induce you to become acquainted with prices that we can, your attention to the unclosed fact that your whistles are among the very ones for the market. HERMAN MILDNER.

D. M. Sullivan came down from Dixon Wednesday afternoon and spent a few hours with friends that said the next day. Dennis says he and Mrs. Sullivan expected to start west during the early part of the present week.

Harry Fisher's mother evening was the other day improved. John Kate, that the only perfectly safe horse is one that adent dumb, blind and paralyzed, then he thinks is the horse of an expert opinion, the animal would not be dangerous.

Down at toward the other day two men were arrested, charged with selling liquor were bound over to the district court. That shows the way we deal with them up here, we put as much of their spare cash as they will enough up voluntarily, pay fines and turn out loose.

The little son of A. Waterbury, Dixon county, family slightly in going to church and fell under the bed to avoid going. The mother discovered the lad and in order to save him from the evils of a churchless life jerked his shoulder out of joint trying to pull him from under the bed. Waterbury christianity is pretty vigorous.

Miss Bullington's entertainment at the opera house on Thursday evening was very well attended and a very neat sum realized for the Epworth League, and everyone present immensely pleased by the lady's rendition. The lady was always a favorite before Wayne audiences, but since completing her studies is much more proficient in her line of work than ever before.

A crew of workmen are putting in a telephone line between this place and Concord so that connections with towns in Cedar and Dixon counties will be more direct than heretofore. They will also put up additional wires on the line between this place and Sioux City so be used exclusively for through business, thus avoiding the vexatious delays to which patrons have been subjected in the past because of local work.

It is said that considerable the slumbers of the Gohl family to such a degree that Phil got up and went after the letter. Soon from the kitchen came a piteous appeal for help and when Mrs. Gohl got out there she found a wheel of sticky fly paper had been knocked on the floor by the irate husband who in his mad race after the cat had succeeded in planting both his bare feet on the paper at about the same time when locomotive sparks and Phil rolled over on his back with his feet in the air calling to his good wife to come and take the blessed stuff off.

At the church season approaches the old spectators begin to limber up their jaws and tell of deeds of the past. In a crowd of this kind the other day Chauncy Chase told of he and Ed Smith going one time off southeast of town on a hunting expedition and finally getting onto the Gray farm, where they saw into a covey of chickens and they began to fire their guns and after they had shot seldom continually for two hours Mr. Gray, thinking they were killing all the chickens in the country, came rushing out to where they were and ordered them to quit and get off the farm. Then Ed Smith thought it would be well to pick up the chickens they had killed and diligent search brought forth just two chickens which he offered to Mr. Gray as a peppination, but that gentleman in terms not fulsome, swore he wanted no chickens, yes, one hour and more with your great guns.

Mrs. Dixon returned from her visit to Chicago Saturday.

A fine girl baby was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Olmsted Friday.

Mrs. N. A. Phillips returned Friday from a visit in Dodge county.

Ben Selbs, the Carroll disciple of Blackstone was in town Sunday.

Daniel Isaacs and son of the Walsh settlement were in town Saturday.

W. M. Cox, P. S. Tracy and B. E. Cross were Winside people in the city Monday.

Maude Brooker gave a tea to a number of her young lady friends Friday afternoon.

The City council has reason to pay a grader with Norfolk on the grounds of this latter next Saturday.

S. M. Theobald returned Thursday evening from his vacation which was spent in the mountains of Colorado.

It will pay you to see or write W. L. Robinson of Carroll about that farm loan, or O. J. Lion or Mutual Insurance.

Bodweiser is the best beer put up in bottles. It is always pure, healthy and invigorating. Order a case of it of C. H. Pieske.

The Security Mutual Insurance company of Omaha has been shut off from doing business by order of the state insurance department.

The Wayne correspondence of the Carroll Index is afraid the stench from the Herald-Republican scrap will do great damage to his sensitive nerves.

W. L. Robinson of Carroll is county agent for school furniture, books and supplies. Goods, prices, terms right. Write him or see County Supt. about your needs.

The hazy haze in the world for hot weather is the Anheuser-Busch Bud wieser bottled beer. You can get it in cases delivered to your house by sending your order to C. H. Pieske.

John Shipp's out with the price-reduction story. He says that whistlings at Gus Hansen's a few days ago he saw one of a party that killed six teen rattlesnakes in less than a minute.

Tired nature frequently needs what little aids it in anticipation of this very condition that we have put in the very best line of wine and wines ever brought to the city.

Dixon is advertising that Governor Savage will deliver an address at the celebration at that place August 6 and we notice by the daily papers that the Governor is also being advertised to speak at Old Settlers gathering at Fairbury on the same date.

The Methodists seem to be pretty well pleased with their present pastor. Thos. Hillas. At their fourth quarterly meeting held Friday evening the gentleman was officially invited in session with and be pastor of the church for next year. The gentleman has already prevailed over the church for four years and this mark of esteem and evident appreciation of his pastorate must be highly pleasing to Mr. Hillas.

Jim Britton and Judge Moses were in quite a squabby Saturday in regard to the exact chase of the vale. The Judge wanted to know of Jim, which he thought it was, his papers for the future swearing that brought the dampour and was assured by Jim that he did certain, but between some the heavens were disturbed and the water fall, and that as far as he was concerned he was willing to call "those even."

The cool weather has determined to put in a cement sidewalk running from the south west corner of the park diagonally to the court house and then around two south and east sides to the entrance. This is a part of wisdom, as it insures a good permanent walk and one that in the long run is infinitely better and cheaper than the clapboarding and at times dangerous board walk. The new walk will add to the beauty of the ground and be much more in keeping with the surroundings than any other kind and the commissioners are to be commended for their action.

Careful personal inspection and the opinions of men who have made corn growing a life study convince us that much of the "doom talk" recently indulged in will not be borne out in the special reports of the brokers at closing time. The corn crop is injured, and will not be a full crop, but it will not be an entire failure as to yield a bumper. Wayne county on her 100,000 acres planted in corn will produce enough corn to feed her domestic animals and have a few bushels to spare. The very early planted and that on ground not properly cultivated has suffered most from the extreme hot dry weather. The early planted, put out the ears and tassels at a time when the heat was so extreme that the potato was burnt and the ear roots of proper fertilization, yet in many of the early fields ears can be found that are well filled and as sweet and nutritious as any other kind and the crop will be more nearly out of the danger of the rust, and better holding and will depend under proper conditions from this forward season and make pretty fair corn. The late planting, where proper cultivation has been given, is quite promising and under ordinary conditions, may make from fifty to seventy bushels per acre. Corn doesn't need "sweat" during the month of August, it needs and will have much more than the average rainfall during the balance of the season, and we believe it will come out all right.

Louise Sullivan came home from Iowa Monday.

Wayne Roller Mills are ready to store dry new wheat.

On a recent Saturday evening a man, by most lofty one of our hardware stores to buy a fish hook. The dealer being of a speculative turn of mind, while supplying the wants to the last thought to indirectly give a little advice said: "Now that are supposed hooks out if used on Sunday will break." The boy showed one hooks back to him with the reply: "It doesn't work that way. Bruce Roosa sells some that won't break any matter on Sunday than any other day."

Recently a Wayne county lawyer was making a personal tour of the county buildings to see what in was paying out his good money for, and when he got to the jail the jailer asked him if he wished to go inside and inspect it? "Oh no. I've been in jail before, I know all about jails." The jailer was somewhat astonished, because his guest was one of the best citizens of the county and said: "You never been in a jail?" "Yes, I am from Missouri and a man has to get in jail down there before they will let him vote."

At a special meeting of the Shipparsburg school board, held last Thursday evening Prof. W. C. McClelland of Iowa was elected superintendent of the schools to take the place made vacant by the resignation of Prof. App. There were thirty applicants, but Prof. McClelland was elected on the first ballot. Prof. McClelland is an educator of successful experience and is no stranger to the position he is to fill, as he was principal of the schools here eleven years ago. Later he taught in Nebraska and of late has been engaged in other business. Shippenburg (Pa.) Chronicle.

Miss Hollie Brooklings, as her share in the Boe vacation contest, secures a trip to Buffalo and the Exposition. From Herder comes the news of a fatal disease among cattle in that vicinity. A number of cattle dying suddenly after a brief illness caused no apparent cause which discovered several cases of anthrax, sometimes called splenic apoplexy, or malignant pustule. The state veterinarian was called and verified the diagnosis of the local veterinarian. The disease is said to be somewhat of the nature of Texas fever but more destructive and fatal.—Pokanoke Journal.

Reports reach us of a spirited contest, the starting point being one of our Wayne houses and the spirited two young men from Pender and the personal band of the Wayne household. The hour was long past midnight, when the noise of the young man and girl disturbed the sleep of the old man who suddenly appeared on the scene of action, lightly clad and his locks cleared for action. Without waiting for any prearranged signal the room started, coats, vases and other useless encumbrances were left behind by the young man in their determination to win out and they won out by an almost superhuman effort. Time was given.

The Democrats is pleased to announce that A. P. Childs has consented to stand for the nomination of county judge provided the democratic county convention so nominate him. A. P. made one of the best police judges that Wayne ever had. No politics, prejudice, friendship or religion cut any figure with him in court. His court docket was a clean record and the Democrats decide if there is need an attorney in the county who is much better posted on practical common sense jam calculations than he Childs. He will give Judge Hunter the hottest race the Judge ever had for the money and will win out by seventeen laughs.—Democrat. In an article published elsewhere from the same author, in the same issue, we are informed that "the democrats want Judge Hunter's job."

Talking of county politics reminds us that two years ago the democrats and populists of the county had quite a time getting together on their county ticket. Every effort in that direction seemed doomed to failure, because each wanted more than the other was willing to concede. The committee met on Saturday and the entire afternoon had been spent in fruitless attempts to get together and each effort seemed to widen the breach. As night drew nigh the temper of the representatives didn't seemed to have a tendency to cool down, but rather indicated that a long fight, or a break was bound to be the result. At length the hour of six o'clock was reached when the old still wheels sounded the time, and as sure as Jesse Ind spoke, Pat Coughlan rose from his seat and in a mild, though emphatic tone, indicated the disagreeableness of the task, and said: "Gentlemen, this hour has arrived when all citizens must retire to their homes. I therefore move that this convention do now adjourn until 8 o'clock a. m. Monday to meet here in this hall, and that the county committee be instructed to call the convention at the same time." The adjournment of the convention was hailed with a hearty and a long drawn out sigh of relief.

Great bargains in buggies for the past thirty days. J. W. ROBERTS.

W. C. Lowry of Winside was in town Friday and made this office a very pleasant call.

E. F. Crane of Wakefield was the only Wayne county man who drew a homestead in the Oklahoma lands recently disposed of.

C. E. Otis and wife left late Thursday for Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo and other Colorado points for an outing of several weeks.

Wayne Roller Mills will give old wheat flour in exchange for new wheat.

D. Predmentsky buys old iron, stove plate, dry bones, rags, rubber, copper, brass and bottles. Good prices paid. Call at Owen's feed yard.

Rev. Leach of Chicago is authority for the assertion that men will be saved in heaven. The Rev. gentleman said sometime or other during his residence on earth must have published a country paper and been thrown in contact with the fellows in a way that has shaken his faith in the belief of the elect.

Three men are being talked of for nomination of commissioner in the 3rd district. They are E. C. Brooks and F. E. Francis of Garfield and John Epiott of Winside. With any of these as the nominee the county would be assured of a good man in the office in case the people of the district see fit to elect him to the place.

It is said that Great Moses, Geo. L. Cook and Charley Jeffrey are aspirants for the republican nomination for sheriff. They are three pretty good fellows and anyone of them would make a good officer and we candidly believe could beat the nominee of the opposition, for they are all professional undertakers so the treasurership though the union of A. H. Carter of Winside and J. A. Jones are frequently mentioned in connection with the office and the ability of either of the gentlemen for the place cannot be questioned. Either of them would make Fred Volpp get up and go some and we are of the opinion could beat him to the wire.

But what's the use of worrying, say now! Laugh and the world laughs with you. Worry and you grant alone. Might just as well take things cooly—if you are bound to take them. Worry won't take a single crease out of the corduroy road of life, nor will it make the license give you a bit bigger chunk. It won't add an ounce to the larder or soften the heart of any creditor that ever put its tentacles into your pocket. Worry never paid a debt nor earned a dollar. Worry never made anything but wrinkles. It never caused a smile since Eve got fidgety over the lowest wrinkle in fig leaves. Let the other fellow worry.—Ex.

The Presbyterian brethren and sisters thought they had everything fixed when they found a call to Rev. McClusky of Mitchell to come and take charge of the church at this point. But alas, like many a fair laid calculation, was doomed to disappointment. The gentleman in question writes that he cannot accept and that he feels it his duty to stay with his present congregation. While the salary here is more larger than where he is and the congregation a strong one and the social conditions much preferable, yet the man of God prefers to feels duty bound to remain in his present humble station and do the work where he believes there is greater need of his services.

Having traveled during the past week from central New York to Phoenix, we can state that we saw no crops on the entire route that equalled those of Wayne county. Farmers in Nebraska, who are dissatisfied with their condition, ought to look upon some of the farms that are to be seen in the east, where the soil is thin and yellow, and crops corresponding; short and the ground as rough and stony that the farmers have to hold their sheep up for the bind legs in order that they may get their noses down between the stones and get an occasional mouthful of grass. Of course conditions are not like this everywhere, for there are some very good farms, but the general average falls far short of the Nebraska standard. If we were to speak our feelings to our Nebraska friends we would say: Don't be simply satisfied with your present condition, but be jubilant and glad that your lot is cast in such pleasant places. Reports of damage to the corn crop in this county on account of drouth have been greatly exaggerated. Since the rains the prospects is taking on a very encouraging aspect. Reports that are coming in from all over the county are laid to the fact that the corn will be nearly, or quite an average one. In some places the corn is damaged considerably, while in others there is no damage damage at all. A World-Herald bulletin from this county means that there will not be more than one-third of a corn crop. The truth may have been true in Dixon, but it is not true in Wayne county. The rains have done the corn a world of good. The corn never looked better at this season of the year than it does now. The crop will be a good one, and we believe it will be a very large one, and we believe it will be a very large one, and we believe it will be a very large one.

"The first thing I saw when I turned around was Lincoln, looking at me. The Lincoln seem more than twenty feet away the whole time. He came over to where I was and said:

"'That was a pretty brave thing to do, young man. What is your regiment?'

"I did that, and he pulled out a memorandum book and wrote it down. Then he said:

"'When the war is over, you look me up and tell me what we can do for you.'

"There wasn't any more said, for things got a little livelier. I had to go to the gun, and then the Rebels brought up a battery and commenced to shell the regiment so fast we had to move away with their field guns. Before I could say anything more an order came that I had to go on duty.

"But very early July 13, 1861, Major Smith received his brevet commission. The date of his letters joins the Ninth Virginia in close adjacency on the rosterday of enlistment and in the order that followed he was also [illegible] the head by a rifle bullet. It passed through not near the top of the skull, just skimming the brain, and while he lay on the ground in plaster of Paris, Lincoln sent him a letter of appreciation. Look at the skull. He was [illegible] unconscious and about three months in the hospital recovering. Time to go into the Wilderness and spring the rigging. Lincoln said to me, 'Tell Smith to come to me.' I was one of the men to go to the Shenandoah along with one who served as a regiment in the Third Iowa and took Sheridan's own battle-flag in the Philippines.

"Lincoln shook Major Young fellows hand in sight, he says, 'I was [illegible] to hear any of you to say there. Lincoln said to me, 'Tell Major Smith he is a brave man.' [illegible]

Stonewall Jackson's Wounds.

In view of the recent discussion whether Frank, a corporal of Company Q, Ninth Virginia Cavalry, "Stonewall Jackson's Tiger," is the man who fired the shot which resulted in the death of Stonewall Jackson, a review of the facts in this case may prove interesting. Gen. Clement A. Evans, who was a colonel in Gen. Jackson's command at the time, and who later was promoted to the command of the famous Stonewall brigade, [illegible] Gen. Rosenthal's [illegible] that he was the particular man who fired the fatal shot, said the idea of any one man claiming he was responsible for Jackson's death was ridiculous. "There were three distinct records," said Gen. Evans, "that on the left of my brigade on the three days we spent in South Carolina troops." Gen. Evans referred to "Memoirs of Stonewall Jackson" by his widow, Mary Anna Jackson, and "Stonewall Jackson's Way," by Capt. John Esten Cooke. This gives a complete account of the celebrated wounded while, both from the Southern far as there were brilliant leader. Gen. Jackson's [illegible] under [illegible] Ninth North Carolina regiments on the [illegible] adjacent to the spot where Gen. Jackson was shot and the field to [illegible] the fatal shots. Mr. [illegible] in part, of the [illegible] in his book on the life of his husband, he as follows: "Gen. Jackson accompanied by a part of his staff and several courier, advanced on the [illegible] to the direction of the enemy about 100 yards when he was fired upon by a volley of musketry from his right front. The bullets whistled among the party, and many several horses. This fire was evidently from the enemy, and one of his men caught the bridle rein and said to him, 'Gen. Jackson, you should not expose yourself so much.' 'There is no danger,' he replied, 'the enemy is routed. Go back and tell them to press on.' But in order to escape himself from the flying bullets he rode from the road to the left and rear. The wood was very and brushwood being very dense, it was difficult to effect a passage so somewhat. While riding as rapidly as possible to the rear, he came in front of his own men, who, mistaking him for an [illegible] or any one but the enemy, was in their front, and, thinking the party for a body of rebel cavalry, opened a sharp fire upon them. From this volley Gen. Jackson received his mortal wounds. His right arm was pierced by a bullet, his left arm was shattered by two balls, and two balls were lodged in his right side, [illegible] the bones and severing the main artery. His horse, Little Sorrel, terrified by the scattering and wildness of the fire, dashed off in the direction of the enemy's line, and it was only with difficulty that he could control him. His bridle hand being helpless, and the single breastwood, through which he was borne, almost denying him from the rear, he was [illegible] by the slight hand, and, securing the slight of the horse, brought him back into his own lines, whence, without hesitating, he was [illegible] by Capt. Wilkinson, his signal officer."

It is not our desire to do it in but justice compels us to call the attention of our Democratic friends to the fact that Poisty of the Sioux City Tribune in the last issue of his paper, in the account of J. N. Gallup, late president and one spector of Nebraska, has just been brought to light and the gentleman has been requested to "pick up." Of course Poisty is not expected to endorse Gallup for the attempt perpetration of this against but will at once fly to his defense, with no explanation of course.

Just put the dose. The far ter from every point of view seem against in the distribution of federal and state patronage is not over ar who helped carry the state for McKinley than to reward faithful republicans who did their best to beat those own party candidates and keep Nebraska in the republican column. Omaha Bee.

Fair enough, but where is the justice in rewarding either. There are plenty of loyal republicans deserving of reward and to whom it would be just.

Poisty of the Sioux City Journal need not despair himself, the republicans hap not been so low as to ask the leaders of the opposition party for anything else for that matter. It is no sign, since said leaders are continually or occasionally obliged to depart from their party affiliations and this present instance of a sage from a popular point of view that it only things we must have a closer connection with the founder of the Democratic parting. Bartley has admirable trading of the Union Pacific under the present officers is so much better. Open books, indeed! Bosh professors that there are no secrets in corporate affairs. Poisty should not attempt to impose either upon by the weakness that prompts him in adopting the policy of the Negative.

The circumstances surrounding the election of Ezra P. Savage to the governorship of Nebraska demonstrate that politics always is a game of chance entirely too uncertain in the direction of men for secondary place. Of the three citizens who made unknown even outside of their immediate circle to the nomination for governor, one was a Democrat, one a Populist and one a Republican. Because the Nebraska republicans were unable to agree among themselves as to the choice of their candidate for governor, they were compelled to go outside of the state for a man who was not even known in the state

KRUGER'S REPLY TO BOTHA'S SURRENDER PROPOSAL

Boer President Says When Liberty is Granted They Will Lay Down Their Arms, but Will Not Accept a Protectorate.

A dispatch from Machadodorp, Transvaal, dated July 5, which had been stopped by the censor, was received on Sunday, September 16. It reads:

"Walter Kitchener and Louis Botha, public secretary, Pretoria, by appointment agree that Sunday, two days ago. They handed Kruger's reply to Botha's peace proposal. It was:

"Botha, Delwet, Delarey, Steyn. Gentlemen: Fighting. Alternatives will be accepted. Kruger, President."

The Delft Papers published a long interview Saturday with Mr. Kruger. After discussing the situation, Mr. Kruger said: "Some [illegible] Mr. Kruger's report, Mr. Kruger declared that the President of the constitutional unions are [illegible] than had been stated by Mr. Hofmeyer in Great Britain, and that nothing really stands in the way of the world to [illegible] the Boers, and [illegible] the country. LETTER FROM MANILA, P. I.

MANILA, P. I., June 28, 1901.

I noticed in one of my latest Republican's a short article from the Lincoln Journal referring to the action of government of three island toward the Friars. The question of what to do with the religious orders is a very important one. Not to many reports has been exaggerated in the United States as well as in the Philippines. There seems to exist a popular impression that the Friars own, or seem to own a very large portion of the real estate of the Archipelago, the entire acreage of the islands is some eighty million acres of which are a little over one and a half million acres this does not include the city property. The principle real estate owners are the Dominicans, Augustinians and the Recollites, the two former being the oldest land owners, each possessing about the same area. The Franciscans, Capuchins and Jesuits possess no lands outside of their city property. If the haciendas or breeding lands of the Friars were confiscated and divided into small holdings, the amount so parcelized would be 452,000 acres. The distribution of the Friars would be an extreme political measure which will in all probability never be carried to and for which measure there will be no necessity, either as a measure of necessity, or political expediency. It is altogether probable that their lands can be secured by the government by purchase without resorting to any such procedure of confiscation. A large amount of the land has been transferred to foreign corporations, but such transfers are previously colorable, made about the time of the American occupation through fear that the United States government would confiscate such ecclesiastical property. Such transfer was nullified as a special provision of the Treaty of Paris assumes church property from confiscation, which provision was simply alternative of the law as long before decided by the U. S. Supreme Court and which decision was alternative of the prevailing law of nations as stated by Vattel, author Marshall at the time of his condition. I have frequently met several of the Friars in a social way and found them well acquainted with three or four of them. Father Nicolas, Superior of the Franciscans is a frequent caller on the family with whom I have lived nearly a year, he is a very pleasant man, with prepossessing face. The Father Superior is accompanied by one of the brotherhood, a plain, homely appearing man, good natured and pleasing in manner. In fact all of the four Friars with whom I am acquainted are agreeable men to meet, men who impress you as being practical in the true sense of the word. The prejudice or hostile sentiment against the Friars is so strong that whatever is charged against them is taken as true without challenge or investigation. Americans residents of Manila, who dislike the natives in everything else, accept as unquestioned truth, all accusations they bring against the Friars. In illustration, in the Province of Cavite one of the orders hold largely of land, the natives claim that to a portion of this land the Friars have no just claim, they say that once on a time the padres constructed an irrigating ditch which was used by adjacent land owners, they saying such for the act, that from this circumstance that the Friars finally laid claim to such lands and on such unwarranted claim their present title is founded. This statement is accepted and believed by Americans who have heard it, these Americans may regard the Filipino as a knave and all around liar, believe nothing that he tells, except only accusations he may bring against the Friars, which accusation, no matter improbable or unfounded by a multitude of evidence is accepted without question. In the most civilized community and under roaring upon conditions is perhaps of no evidence the least satisfactory. The claim of title to land in a half civilized country based upon such testimony is hardly worth serious consideration, yet upon statements of this immaterial character rests the entire claim to a portion of the Friars estates, as well as the oft repeated charges that the priests have acquired their lands by force and fraud. On one occasion I to a case before the board of War claims, sitting at Manila, natives of Calamba interposed in a matter pending, insisting that the Dominicans never had title to certain real estate, their attorney was given time to file a petition setting forth their claim, the petition was never filed, no showing being made by the complainants. When the question of the Friars lands is adjusted it is doubtful whether any of the charges of obtaining property by wrongful means will be substantiated by legal evidence.

The 4th, will be an eventful day in Philippines, the first day the natives have been under civil government in 300 years, in fact the first day of civil government for this people, during their entire history.

Up to date it has been the Governor General, or the Military Governor. On July 4th, it will be Governor Taft.

MANILA, P. I., June 30, 1901.

It is reported that the Insurgent General Cailles is about to surrender. I presume there is no doubt of it being true, which will be of great political importance to the adjustment of affairs in the islands. General Cailles is the most conspicuous of the Insurgent leaders just now against the government and I think one of the ablest of the war. In conversation with an officer today, I was informed that Cailles has always treated his American prisoners with great humanity. On one occasion when several soldiers were killed, nothing was taken from the bodies of the men, excepting guns, cartridge belts and what would be made military use of. This was the more notable for the reason that it was shortly after pay day and the men had considerable sums of money on their person, at the time of the fight. One Sergeant in particular had $600 in money beside other valuables, but not any was taken and the bodies were, I think untouched in our hands by Cailles under a flag of truce. It is said that Cailles had the most thorough control of his men of any of the Insurgent leaders, in fact his men dared police enough to make his orders somewhat unpopular. It is asserted that he had several shot on suspicion of their being American spies.

General Bates, who has recently left for the United States, return the commendation of the nation for his services in the Philippines. He is much respected by those who know him and the officer Corps in infantry the greatest the regard for the man. In the estimation of his friends, General Bates is the ideal and most deserving of the American generals of the Philippine war. They respect him for his accomplished integrity, his judicial mind and his fearless exposure and prosecution of incompetency in high places as well as low. The poorest native was treated in his presence, as well as the general officer and the most humble was certain to obtain an impartial decision from General Bates. He has not been recognized in the same degree as others, but of all the general officers none are more worthy of the national recognition. We might say Chaffee is worthy and many who would not only have filled the place of Military Governor of the Archipelago, the marked feature of Chaffee's character was his absolute intolerance of official dishonesty. In those times, and in these islands no immaterial quality is a surround no general when public dishonesty, diversity and corruption reeks like magpie. Strong, intelligent men, men of absolutely incorruptible integrity, are needed at the helm, men who like Grant, will not be goaded into a war on Cabs, contracts, post, and corn. General Bates is eminently fitted at this critical time, the transition period, to hold the office commanded in these islands, as he has been eminently qualified to do honor to the American name in that position, as also in occupation of the Philippines.

Referring again to Cailles surrender which takes place in twenty three days, it is said that the government has sent $50,000 to pay rifles turned over, the agreement being to pay $20 for each one. A great display is expected on the occasion of the surrender. It is believed the number of rifles given up will not be the number of men. There is likely to be marched just to impressive pageant thousands of men, and it is understood that 1500 rifles are to be given up. The last given evidence of the real nature of the occurrence to the United States any number of men can be gathered together from the surrounding country to make a display and after the pageant is over return again to their homes the real significance is in the number of rifles turned in.

The insurgents have their own ways of providing munitions of war, they make an explosive of a certain grain mixed with some material the country produces, they make cartridges out of the cases, making the base from brass buttons, they used to cast as explosive out of friction matches and may do so yet.

Two generals are still out, one of whom, Lacuna is quite noted among the insurgent leaders and I am inclined to think will hold out as to have the honor of being the last to surrender.

A man was just received before the Board of Claims in which the exchange of prisoners, General Malvar, Trias and others, thousand dollars conquistrated by the government be returned to him in conformity with a promise made him by the United States authority previous to his surrender, so we will probably have General Trias before us as a witness next week.

America's Greatest Show.

If you have no girl borrow some one else's girl and go to the big show on August 14th. It is the biggest show that has exhibited here.

Everything New and Original.

The eastern press is unanimous in their praise of the Great Eastern show, which will exhibit at Wayne, August 14. The show is composed of the cream of acrobatic and gymnastic talent from all parts of the globe. The menagerie is a monster, having a large collection of rare wild animals, six funny Hottentot men. Jenkins will please to laugh and grow fat.

Kennedy's Vendable Capsules

were the first headache capsules put on the market. Their immediate success resulted in a host of imitations, containing antipyrine, chloral, morphine and other injurious drugs, purporting to be "just as good." Avoid these imitations and insist on having Kennedy's which speedily cures the most severe cases and leaves no bad after effects. Price, 25c. Sold by R. J. Hagenseck.

Teachers Institute Aug. 26.

The Wayne county teachers institute will open Aug. 26 and continue for the week. Prof. Pile, Miss Cleaves, Miss Williams of Norfolk and Mrs. Richardson of Omaha will be among the able instructors who direct the work of the session. It is expected that the institute will be very interesting and that teachers will derive much profit from an attendance but it is hoped they will show their appreciation by attending in the morning.
