"As a grain digger for the past few years, I can tell you that the digger is a most valuable piece of machinery...

One of the leading grain diggers of the north is the one that I have just received...

Will you please send me a copy of the book 'The Art of the Digger'...

After Northrup's invention, a digger is now made in many different styles...

Every digger that I sell will be put on the stand to tell you why they sell...

In their diggers, I have a special feature of my own...

One of the most important features of this digger is the special...

A SPILING FACT.

The great spiling fact of the week is that the price of spiling is falling. It is the only fact of the kind that is of any importance. The price of spiling is falling because of the overproduction of spiling. The price of spiling is falling because of the overproduction of spiling. The price of spiling is falling because of the overproduction of spiling.
