WAYNE REPUBLICAN.

Published by the Republican Publishing Co., at the office of the Republican Publishing Co., 100 North 10th St., Wayne, Nebraska, every Wednesday.

A daily paper has been started at Ft. Collins, Nebraska, by Ross Dorr. It has been christened the "Daily Democrat." Another instance of progress.

The great wolf debate is on in a pamphlet and by the very dignified body is able to witness a very, that genuine cartoon in Washington.

Bank President John A. Johnson who wrecked the State National Bank of Loganport, Illinois, in 1890, has been reported to have died. He is said to have been 70 years of age.

It is estimated that about $250,000 worth of things have been sold during the past year at Ft. Collins, Colorado, who has reported that he had secured the business of the bank, but after having some time that it had failed to do so.

The Fort Randall Military Reservation will be given to the state by the state of Colorado. It is said that the state of Colorado will be given to the state of Colorado.

One of the most interesting of the many articles in the "Wayne Republican" is the one on the "Wayne Republican" which is a very timely and well written.

This being the day for opening the bids for building and repairing county bridges for the year ending June 1, 1902, and bids having been filed by Andrew Falk, E. B. Beary, A. J. Johnson, W. M. Gise, G. F. Fox, and John E. Agler, the board after having examined the bids, considered that the bid of John E. Agler was the lowest and best bid filed. The contract was therefore awarded to said John E. Agler at 6 cents per linear foot and $200 cash for driving pile, to be in advance.

On motion the Treasurer was ordered to transfer $2000 from County Dodge to County General Fund.

On motion approved to June 15, 1902.

Declaration Day was observed in this city on Monday, Jan. 13, in good style. Morning prayers were held by A. L. Heston, Assistant pastor of the First M. E. Church, and J. L. Child, the pastor of the Methodist church, both of which churches were invited to perform that part. The Methodist church came in with some very beautiful flowers. After the prayers the services of the church were held in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. H. Heston, the pastor of the church, where the services were held by the pastor of the church. The services were very successful and a large number of people attended.
