COAL MINERS' STRIKE IS FAR FROM SETTLEMENT.

Pittsburgh District Miners March to Their Deaths. Negotiations in the Coal Districts Show No Abatement.

Coal to be mined. The coal miners' strike in the Pittsburgh district is far from settlement. The miners are demanding a 10% increase in wages and a 40-hour work week. The coal companies are refusing to meet these demands.

The strike has caused a severe shortage of coal in the Pittsburgh district. This has led to a sharp increase in the price of coal, which is causing a great deal of hardship for the people of the district.

A REAL THREAT AND A MENACE HOME IN THE PANHANDLE DISTRICT.

Local coal miners are being threatened by a new and dangerous method of mining.

The new method of mining is called "undermining." It involves the use of dynamite to blast a tunnel through the coal seam from below. This method is very dangerous and has caused a great deal of damage to the coal mines in the Panhandle district.

The coal companies are using this method of mining to gain an unfair advantage over the coal miners. They are trying to drive the coal miners out of business and to control the coal industry.
