MINE UNDER THE MAINS

Destruction Said to Be Beyond the Power of a Torpedo.

DISASTER DUE TO DESIGNS

American Experts Believe the Spanish Armada Was Guilty

The Naval Reserve Admits, Repeating Official Reports, as to the Effect of the Torpedo, and That It Was Not the Cause of the Disaster.

After the terrible destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor, the United States has been facing the gravest crisis in her history since the day of the attack on the city of Washington. The people have been struck by the disaster as they have never been before. The news has been spreading from the South, from the North, and from the West. It has caused a magnificent outpouring of sympathy and aid from all quarters of the United States.

The Maine was one of the greatest battleships ever built. She was the pride of the United States Navy. Her destruction was a blow to the hearts of the people of the United States. The cause of the disaster is still a mystery. Some believe it was a mine, some believe it was a torpedo, and some believe it was a combination of both. The American people are waiting for the truth to be told.

THE WRECK OF THE MAINE—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH TAKEN THE MORNING AFTER THE EXPLOSION.

The wreck of the Maine in Havana harbor. The ship is seen in a state of complete ruin, with only the masts and rigging remaining above water. The water is dark and still, reflecting the somber scene.

The photograph captures the aftermath of the explosion. The ship's remains are scattered across the harbor floor. The water is calm, and the sky is overcast, adding to the tragic atmosphere of the scene.

The investigation into the disaster is ongoing. Naval experts are working to determine the exact cause of the explosion. The possibility of a mine or a torpedo remains a strong possibility.

The American people are united in their grief and their demand for justice. They want to know who is responsible for the destruction of the Maine and what steps will be taken to prevent such a disaster from happening again.

There are many who believe that the United States is being provoked by Spain. They believe that a conflict is inevitable. They see the destruction of the Maine as a declaration of war.

The Spanish government is accused of being responsible for the disaster. They are said to have planted a mine in Havana harbor. The American people are demanding that Spain be held accountable for the death of the Maine.

The United States Navy is being criticized for its handling of the disaster. Some believe that the Maine was not properly maintained. They believe that the disaster could have been prevented.

The American people are calling for a full investigation into the disaster. They want to know what happened and what was done to prevent it. They want to see the truth.

The investigation is expected to take a long time. It will involve a thorough examination of the wreck of the Maine and a review of all the evidence. The American people are patient but they want answers.

The American people are determined to see justice done. They will not let the disaster of the Maine go unavenged. They will continue to demand that Spain be held responsible.

The American people are united in their support for the Navy and the military. They believe that the United States has the strength and the resources to defend itself against any aggression.

The American people are proud of their country and their government. They believe that the United States is a land of freedom and justice. They will stand by their country in times of crisis.

The American people are confident that the United States will emerge from this crisis stronger and more united. They believe that the disaster of the Maine will be a turning point in the nation's history.

The American people are determined to see the truth about the disaster of the Maine. They will not let anyone cover up the truth. They will continue to demand justice.

THE NATION MOURNS FOR ITS DEAD MARINES

New York Journal.

The nation is in a state of mourning for the brave men who died in the disaster of the Maine. Their families are being supported by the government and the people.

The American people are holding a series of services and rallies to honor the fallen Marines. They are expressing their grief and their respect for the brave men who gave their lives for their country.

The American people are proud of the sacrifices that were made. They believe that the fallen Marines are heroes. They will never forget their names.

The American people are determined to see that the fallen Marines are given a proper burial. They want to see their remains returned to their families.
