The HIDDEN TERROR

Many minutes elapsed by before Lucille summoned up courage to raise the silver bell to the ivory lips. At last it rang—a tiny tinkle, such as one imagines of being the sign of a fairy's entrance into the room. One perceives that nothing shook Dick.

The sound of approaching footsteps gave power. Dick managed to look as if he knew it was Lucille coming. But even in such a moment as this the "prima donna" instinct asserted itself.

"Is she fair, or dark?" he thought, as he heard the door open. "Dark, I hope, for I've had enough of golden hair to last me a lifetime."

It was not a moment for considering the appearance of any one but herself, for Dick was in a terrible fever.

"Whatever is the matter?" were the first words he heard. Lucille's voice was low and sweet, but it had a ring of anxiety in it that was unmistakable.

"Oh, I'm so glad you've come!" Dick answered, with a sob in his throat. "I thought I should die before you came. I've been in such pain!"

"Poor boy!" Lucille said, with a pitying tone in her voice. "I'll send for a doctor at once."

"Don't go!" Dick cried, as she turned to leave the room. "I'm afraid to be left alone. Please don't go!"

"I will not go," Lucille answered, in a soothing tone. "I'll only send a message to the doctor, and then I'll come back to you."

She was as good as her word. In a few minutes she was back again, and Dick was conscious of a delicious perfume, as she sank into a chair by his bedside. Lucille was a connoisseur in perfumes, and she had chosen one that was very delicate, and yet quite distinctive. Dick sniffed it with delight.

"Now, what is the matter?" Lucille asked, in a voice of sympathy that was very sweet.

Did you ever See a Snow Storm in Summer?

We never did; but we have seen the closing in this month of the year so covered with dandruff that it looked as if it had been out in a regular snow-storm.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 60,687]

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Two years ago I began having such pain every dragging pains in my back around my hips, profuse and painful, and was troubled with leucorrhœa. I took patent medicine and doctored, but kept growing worse, and was failing fast in flesh. You answered my letter promptly and I followed your instructions faithfully, and now feel as though I was entirely made over. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is enough. I now feel myself as a woman and have proven the truth of your statement. I cannot praise it enough."—MRS. CORA GILSON, YATES, MARIETTA, MICH.

"Four Medicines Worked Wonders."

"I had been sick ever since my marriage, seven years ago, have given birth to four children, and had two miscarriages. I had fallen of womb, leucorrhœa, pains in back and legs, dyspepsia and a nervous trembling of the stomach. Now I have none of these troubles and can enjoy my life. Your medicine has worked wonders for me."—MRS. O. SAUNDERS, NEW CASTLE, PA.

Gave Baby the Wrong Name.

A young girl, Lizzie Ashdale, called at the office of a physician in Jersey City yesterday afternoon. She was accompanied by a middle-aged woman, who, from her appearance, was evidently a poor but hard-working woman. It was apparent that the girl was highly nervous.

"What is your trouble?" demanded the physician, producing his note-book.

"Why, sir, she replied, in a voice that was scarcely more than a whisper, "my baby was taken very sick and I was afraid it would die before I could get it baptized. The doctor said one ordered me to get it baptized. The doctor said one ordered me to get it baptized. The doctor said one ordered me to Entered at the Postoffice at Wayne, Nebraska, second-class matter, March 1st, 1881.

The Omaha Bee, which has expressed a number of times that it elevated Governor Holcomb to the governor's chair, is now very shocked and grieved over the house reed decision. "It is simply amazing," said the creator of Silas, "that any man occupying the high position of chief executive should ever so much as whisper in this manner when he must have known that nomer in any way involving transaction would come before the plagiarism."—Sioux Falls Argus.

The socialistic street sweepers of Chicago have been shut off from making speeches on street corners. Th s step has been taken by the authorities because the agitators have become very violent in many of their utterances, going so far as to threaten violence against residence of advocating armed resistance to the duly constituted government authorities. It is feared that to allow these orators free rein will result in another outbreak similar to the May outbreak five years ago.

Ex-Governor Holcomb has written a letter to the senate investigating committee denying all knowledge as to the frauds of or under stealing to commit to the amendment by the recount commission. The testimony flung this knowledge on the ex-governor was sworn to while the ex-governor refuses to come before the committee and give his denial under oath, but expects that his unsupported statement as to the untruthfulness of the testimony shall be accepted without hesitation as against the sworn statements of the other witness. If the shirts of Silas are free from taint he need have no fear of making his statements under oath, while his present course but convinces the average person of the truth of the charges.

Hon. Geo. H. Hastings is said to be a prospective candidate for governor—with a capital G—and if he is a very able man and has a very able staff of assistants he will have a very able time of it until the new year.

STRIKE RIOTS WORSE

SITUATION IN CLEVELAND IS BECOMES ALARMING

The Police and Strikers Come Together in Many Instances. A Car Blown Up. Wire Cut Off by a Stray Bullet--Many Others Hurt.

Cleveland Strike Situation.

The rioting was renewed in Cleveland, O., Saturday and Sunday. Both days marked fatalities and there were several cases of gunshot wounds. Some were fatal, but many others will follow in consequence. Some effort is said to have been made to get the police and militia withdrawn, but Governor McKinley has declined to do so. Mayor Farley has issued a proclamation ordering the closing of saloons during the time the militia are on duty. In spite of this and warning that the militia would be used, the rioting was more violent than ever. Many persons were injured, and it is believed that several deaths will result. The strike is now practically a boycott, as the Cleveland Electric railway company has succeeded in getting a number of cars in operation, and the strikers are using every effort to prevent the men from working. Many cars were stoned and the motormen and conductors assaulted. Some of the cars were fired into, and the motormen and conductors were shot at from ambush
