The Heroine of Alcock's

BY JOHN R. MCKICK

CHAPTER VIII

The day after the capture of the ship, the crew of the Alcock were busy with the work of the day. The ship was in a state of confusion, and the crew were in a state of excitement. The capture of the ship was a great triumph for the crew, and they were all proud of their achievement. The ship was a fine vessel, and the crew were all well-trained and experienced. The capture of the ship was a great triumph for the crew, and they were all proud of their achievement.
