Mrs. E. Cunningham, W. C. Wightman, Jas. Miller, Henry Boekenauer and Miss Effie Buffington were a party of ladies to the Jabour circus at Sioux City yesterday. The condemnation of the show by the Sioux City clergy made a whole lot of people anxious to see how really bad it was.

The "angel" of the DEMOCRAT went down Wednesday to see it and reports that the preachers are all wrong, that the show is more than half fake, for all there is to it was a few elephants showing their naked trunks.

Richard Davies is Dead

A telegram to M. S. Davies yesterday from Lead City, S. D., said "come at once, your brother very ill." Prof. Davies was in Omaha but a telephone message found him in time for him to get home last evening, expecting to go to Lead tonight. At 8:30 last evening another telegram from Mrs. Davies stated that Richard was dead. No particulars have been received as to cause of his death. M. S. and John Davies will go to Lead tonight. Deceased made his home in Wayne for a number of years, being in the bakery business. He will be remembered by our people who knew him as a whole-souled, generous young fellow. Richard was a playmate of the DEMOCRAT man at the old home in Iowa a quarter of a century ago. The past two years he has been agent for the New York Life Ins. Co. and doing finely. It is probable that his remains will be brought to Wayne for burial.

Later—a telegram received today states that the remains will be sent to Wayne Saturday, likely arriving here Sunday afternoon at which time the funeral will be held.

Charley Chace was up from Stanton yesterday, and in discussing the case of abduction down there by Welch Lowry said the young fellow had escaped, it being supposed that he caught an east-bound train out of Winside. Mr. Chace said there was a reward of $600 offered for him, Stanton county putting up $200 and the rest popular subscription.

Winside Tribune: The extreme and delicate care of the brute Niegensing is disgusting. One would think by the sheriff's actions, that the prisoner was to good for ordinary people to look at and to be honored like a saint. The chmax thought came when he was taken away, and to see the murderous dog handled like a delicate flower and his face veiled so that no one could embarrass him by looking at him even, as he lay on a cot and was carefully moved around. It made everyone wish that the Pierce fellows had just a little sand the night before and by hanging the big ignorant brute ended all such sentimental doings.

The grand old party picked up Mc Carthy and started him out with a yell; but Geo. Brooks and Young when his praises are sung, remain as silent as—well. Now this is not right, nor by a dum sight; they ought to get out and shout! Mac needs them very bad and it makes him feel sad to think they're inclined to pout.—Winside Tribune.

Collins' New Slide Show

Norfolk News: With the Collins carnival company are a man and his wife. They are paid to give exhibitions for the big show. Last night they gave a little side performance at the corner of Second and Main streets on their own hook.

There was, it seems another woman in the case. She had made goo-goo eyes at Mr. actor and he had taken a fancy to the stranger. But his wife jealous, exacting and of quick perception, saw what was doing and got into the game. Just for luck she took a slap at the facial features of her hubby-dubby. Then she followed with several jabs at his jaw, and a hook at his cheek and finished him with a body blow over the heart. He had a cane, which he artfully kept out of the hands of his beater. After it was all over, the pair made up and got chummy again. A good sized gallery watched the mill.

CRAVEN BROTHERS

ON VERGE OF AN UPRISING.

Chinese Boxer Situation Becoming Almost as Serious as Before.

Prince Ching Sends Copy of Imperial Edict to American Minister and Promises to Quell Uprising.

Washington, D. C.—(Special.)—China is on the verge of another Boxer uprising which may equal that of 1900, according to mail advices received at the state department from Minister Conger.

The troubles appear to arise principally from extortionate taxation, combined with resentment against the presence of missionaries, thus justifying the judgment of the department of state, which pointed out to the powers that the demand for excessive indemnities would result in serious internal troubles in China.

Mr. Conger reports serious anti-foreign riots near Chentu, in the province of Chechuan, in which a number of native Christians had been massacred and chapels destroyed. Mr. Conger appears to have acted with energy upon telegraphic complaints from Dr. Carlight, an American medical missionary at Chentu, not only addressing the Chinese foreign office by letter, but calling there in person to impress upon the officials the importance of an immediate and effective action, and finally succeeding in causing the removal of the local Chinese officials who had failed to repress the riots and preserve life and property.

Mr. Conger telegraphed Dr. Carlight to demand adequate protection for missionaries and the native Christians from the local officials. He also addressed a note to Prince Ching at the foreign office, stating that there were several American missionaries and many chapels and converts in Chechuan and that it was necessary that immediate provision be made to stamp out these troubles at their very inception.

In his answer Prince Ching incloses a copy of the following imperial edict: "Some time ago a number of local outlaws were banded together in the district of Tze Yang and made trouble, whereupon I dispatched troops to disperse them. The leading criminal, Li Kang Chung, and others were arrested and executed, but now the magistrate of the place, Ma Cheng Chi, reports that at the T'ch'ku-Chiao in his district outlaws over 1,000 strong suddenly made a night attack and destroyed a church which the British or American saint had built. The preacher, Chu-Lu-Engwei, and four church members were also killed. They also burned some houses and killed two Christians. I sent troops in all haste and deputed besides an official, with rank of taotai, to proceed with braves to attend to this.

"Such fierce and lawless outbreaks should certainly be quickly put down. They must on no account be allowed to spread. We command Kwei Chuen to strictly order the troops to disperse the rebels and their followers, to seize the ringleaders and to punish them according to the rigor of the law, and so nip the rebellion in the bud.

"We feel a great pity for the missionaries or preacher and others, who, through no fault of theirs, have lost their lives, and command that adequate relief may be at once given.

"As for Ma Cheng Chi, the magistrate of Tze Chang, it is said, has not been long in the office, because he was remiss in taking precautionary measures we demand that he be removed from office and that he be given a limited time within which to capture the criminals.

"As there may be outlaws in other places, who rouse the suspicion of people, spread rumors and make trouble, the local authorities should be sternly instructed to make careful search and put to stop to all such things and to take special precautions so as to get rid of bad Chinese and to encourage the law-abiding people. They must give protection to the chapels and missionaries without the least remissness.

"Besides sending a telegram to the viceroy of Szechuan that he should at once carry out the imperial will as in duty bound, we have reverently copied the edict and sent it for your excellency's information. With compliments of the season, cards of Trust Sells Decayed Meat.

St. Louis, Mo.—(Special.)—Partly decayed meat, which had been treated chemically to hide its condition, as well as sausages, potatoes, flour, unhealthy kidneys ground up and other adulterations were sold in St. Louis and other large cities of the country between August 30, 1899, and May 1, 1902, by the members of the packers' trust, according to testimony given today by Thomas O'Sullivan, meat and live stock inspector of St. Louis. More Delay in Carter Case.

Chicago, Ill.—(Special.)—Another delay in the hearing of the Oberlin M. Carter case in the United States circuit court was made necessary today by an order of Judge Kohlsaat extending the time for closing testimony until January 23. Before the proofs are completed it is expected that Captain Carter himself will be temporarily released from Fort Leavenworth prison long enough to present his sworn testimony. This is the case in which the federal government is seeking to recover a large amount of funds.

COURT HOLDS FOR THE RAILROADS.

Lincoln, Neb.—(Special.)—In a sixty-page opinion the supreme court denies the application for a mandamus asked by the Bee Building company against the state board of equalization. The court holds that as the board is legally constituted a special tribunal for the purpose of assessing railroad and telegraph property it is clothed with quasi judicial powers, and when it has once acted on sufficient information and expressed an honest judgment as to valuation its judgment cannot be controlled by the writ of mandamus, which is a writ to compel action and not to correct action.

The court holds that in the case at bar under the evidence the inference is not warranted that the respondents acted with improper motives and fraudulently in making the assessment complained of, with the wrongful intention of discriminating in favor of the railroad and telegraph companies whose property was assessed. An assessment may be treated as fraudulent when well known rates of valuation are disregarded, where reliable and pertinent information is declined and an arbitrary assessment at grossly inadequate figures made.

The court holds, however, that the board of equalization must include and assess the value of franchises with the tangible property, but that where it assesses the property of a railroad as a unit and considers the purposes for which it is used, the fact that it is earning an income and exercising the rights of such corporation, such assessment would include the intangible property also and be an assessment of its franchise. In this case the franchises were assessed. It is held, too, that the market value of a railroad's stocks and bonds are an important factor to determine cash value of the property represented by those stocks and bonds, and that the earnings are evidence of a most important character in determining the true value of the property. It is one of the chief elements that give it value and should be considered in making the final assessment.

IOWA RAILWAY MERGER IS LEGAL.

Des Moines, Ia.—(Special.)—The opinions of the attorney general and the governor on the recent consolidation of the Rock Island properties in this state have been made public.

The attorney general holds that the consolidation is entirely legal, and that there is nothing in the state laws to prevent the issue of stock beyond the face value of the property purchased. He also holds that there is nothing to prevent the purchase of the stock of one railroad by another, provided they are not parallel and competing.

The governor files his concurrence with this opinion, but adds that the consolidation is plainly a new mode of watering stock, and states that the next assembly must decide if it is wise to allow such inflations to go unnoticed by the state laws.

NOW IT IS A BIG CANDY TRUST.

St. Louis, Mo.—(Special.)—Frank P. Hayes, bond officer of the Mississippi Valley Trust company, which has announced the plan of organization of the National Candy company, recently incorporated in New Jersey.

The National Candy company has a capital stock of $3,000,000, $1,000,000 of which will be 7 per cent cumulative first preferred stock, $2,000,000 7 per cent cumulative second preferred stock and $500,000 common stock. The entire issue of second preferred stock and common stock is to be taken by the vendors, but approximately $300,000 of the preferred stock and approximately $300,000 of the common stock will be held in trust for the company, to be used when sold for the purchase of additional plants, or other corporate purposes.

MORGAN ENGULFS THE STEAMSHIPS.

London.—(Special.)—A news agency says that a Norfolk and North American Steamship company, owning nine large steamers trading between England and the United States in connection with the Lehigh Valley and Reading railroads, has been taken over by the Morgan shipping combine. The agency's announcement adds that this report has created a sensation in local shipping circles.

New York.—The fleet of the Norfolk and North American Shipping company, of which Messrs. Simpson, Spence & Young are managing owners, plies between Philadelphia and London and the service is known as the Philadelphia Transatlantic Line.

THE BOERS WISH FOR NO FIREWORKS.

Brussels.—(Special.)—The Boer reception committee has received the following telegram from General Botha: "We shall be glad if you inform the population of Brussels that we desire no anti-English demonstration to occur upon the occasion of our visit to Brussels, our mission being non-political and purely charitable." Dr. Leyds, the Boer representative in Europe, has issued a denial of the report that the Boer generals—Botha, Delarey and Dewet—would abandon their tour. He declares the generals to be in complete agreement with himself and the other European Boer delegates.

She Takes Up Engineering.

Ithaca, N. Y.—(Special.)—It was announced today at Cornell university that next year, for the first time in the history of the university, a woman student would enter the engineering department. The woman is Miss Nora Stewart Blatch of London, England, about 20 years of age and granddaughter of Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Miss Blatch was last year entered as a freshman in the art course of Cornell, but decided to change her course and was successful in passing the engineering examinations.

Fournier Makes Confession.

Seattle, Wash.—(Special.)—A special to the Times from Dawson says: Peter Fournier has made a full and detailed confession of four murders. He admits that he abetted Ed Labelle in the killing of Constable Beaudouin and Boulliette, but says Labelle did all the shooting. In July, about thirty miles above Circle City, they shot Gilbert Duffer, robbed him of $700, weighted his body with stones and threw it in the river. The last murder was never known or suspected until he confessed.

WILL NOT HANDLE COAL.

Train Crews Refuse to Haul the Mined Coal.

Rumors of the Settlement of the Great Pennsylvania Coal Strike are Rife.

Shenandoah, Pa., Sept. 22.—Train crews refused to handle a loading train from the Philadelphia & Potomac company's North Mahanoy assembly. Several hundred strikers were gathered near the colliery when the train arrived to take away the coal to the railroad men to refuse to haul the coal. The trainmen held the train in the station and decided to grant engines steamed away without the crew and the strikers' cheers. The men refused to about the colliery soon in many officials several thousand and the coal deal forals appealed to Sheriff Blain for assistance. The sheriff ordered troops in, in command of the 21st regiment, and the general in command. By the time the soldiers reached the scene two other engines and crews had arrived from Gordon. The company of the regiment was ordered to guard the cars and the other to haul the coal. The train consisted of twenty-three cars loaded with coal and it is the first since the strike began that the members of the crew had refused to haul the coal down the track.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 22.—The following information reached the city through a private source late afternoon that the end of the coal strike was in sight.

"The report was to the effect that one of the largest firms, whose representatives in New York have been discussing the situation for some time, had decided upon a settlement and an official announcement would be made either tomorrow or early next week. The information seemed to have considerable foundation and came as an answer to inquiries sent to New York parties regarding the filing of large orders for coal in this city, intimating that the orders would probably be filled sooner than was expected because of the encouraging prospects of an early settlement."

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 23.—In order to set all rumors about a settlement of the miners' strike at rest, President Mitchell stated this evening that if any overtures were received from the operators they would first be submitted to a convention of the miners, and the acceptance or rejection of any proposition made by the coal companies would rest with the men themselves.

A dam on Solomon's creek, near here, from which the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company obtained water to operate its Maffat washery, was blown up by dynamite today. Striking miners are accused of blowing up the dam.

WORKING MAN GETS A HEAVY FINE.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 23.—The largest fine ever imposed upon a union workman for refusing to obey a strike order has just been assessed James McCarrick, former president of the bollemakers' union of Kansas City, Kan. He has been fined $1,500 because he remained at work when the bollemakers in the Union Pacific railroad shops went on a strike. McCarrick has been in the employ of the Union Pacific for thirty years. He is well thought of by his employers, and as president of the bollemakers' union McCarrick was regarded as one of the leading figures in organized labor circles. McCarrick says he will not pay the fine in the event of a settlement between the bollemakers and the railroad company. "If it ever becomes necessary for me to go elsewhere for work," says McCarrick, "I'll look outside of union shops for employment. My family comes before any union on earth."

PROGRAM FOR THE G. A. R. REUNION.

Washington, D. C.—(Special.)—The official program for the week of the Grand Army of the Republic was announced from headquarters today. Beginning Sunday, October 5, with patriotic services in the city churches, all the following days up to and including Thursday are taken up with various features incidental to the meeting, with a display of fireworks nightly during the entire week on the Washington monument lot. Monday, October 6, there is to be a floral automobile parade, a parade of the Improved Order of Red Men, the dedication of Camp Roosevelt on the White house lot in the afternoon, at which Secretary Hay is to deliver the oration, a regatta on the Potomac river and a campfire in Convention hall. During the morning of Tuesday will occur the naval parade and in the evening a public meeting of welcome in Convention hall. Wednesday will be the big day of the encampment, when the review of the Grand Army by President Roosevelt will take place. On Wednesday night there is to be a reception to the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army and his staff and to the women's patriotic organizations. On Thursday will begin the business sessions of the national encampment and various auxiliary organizations. The dedication of the cornerstone of the proposed memorial bridge will also take place Thursday.

Packers Give a Promise.

Chicago, Ill.—(Special.)—Union labor won another victory in the packing house district today when Swift & Co. agreed not to discriminate against members of the organizations in the future in the employment of men. On the wage scale of the wool workers, the company asked for further time. A conference has been arranged for tomorrow between a committee representing the men and the officers of the company, when a new scale of wages will be made.

Gold Is Coming This Way.

New York.—(Special.)—J. & W. Seligman & Co. announce that they will receive $1,250,000 in gold from Australia. The gold will reach San Francisco on October 2. Fully $1,000,000 of the gold obtained by the National City bank from South African sources will leave London Monday for this port. The balance will follow shortly. Officials of the bank decline to make any explanation of the mechanism by which this gold was diverted from its original destination.

SPEAKER HENDERSON WITHDRAWS.

Dubuque, Ia.—(Special.)—Speaker Henderson, finding that his views in respect to the treatment of trusts by reducing the tariff, in whole or in part, are not in accord with the views of many of his party in Iowa, has declined to accept the nomination for congress and has withdrawn from the race.

Speaker Henderson addressed the following letter to Hon. C. E. Albright of Eldora, Ia., chairman of the notification committee:

My Dear Sir—I have never answered the kind notice communicated by you and your associates advising me of my nomination for the eleventh time by acclamation as republican candidate for congress of the Third district of Iowa.

Reported conditions in the public mind in my district upon public policies induced me to make this delay. Since my return to the district I have made a careful study as to the sentiment in the district and state, and I believe that there is no little sentiment among republicans that I do not truly represent their views on the tariff question. Believing this condition to exist and knowing that I do not agree with many of my people that the trusts, to which I am and have been opposed, can be curbed or the people benefited by free trade in whole or in part, I must decline to accept the nomination so generously and enthusiastically made. I have devoted twenty of the best years of my life to the service of my people and my country and have fought for what I believed to be best for the farmer, the laborer and the business interests of this district and state. I am grateful for the devotion that has ever been accorded me and to the hour of my death will hold in a grateful heart the memory of it.

I will later on give in some detail my views and convictions on our conditions and on public questions and state my reasons why the republican party and its policies should continue in the confidence of the voters of the United States, and why the doctrines of the democracy should find no lodgment in the faith and teachings of the republican party. Very truly yours,

B. B. HENDERSON.

HENDERSON WILL NOT RECONSIDER.

Dubuque, Ia.—(Special.)—Speaker Henderson has been flooded with telegrams and letters urging him to reconsider his declaration of non-run for congress in the Third district. To every one of them he has answered that he will not reconsider. Among the telegrams received were these:

Oyster Bay.—Most earnestly ask that you reconsider your determination not to run. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

New York.—Am in receipt of telegram signed by you saying that you have this day declined nomination for congress. We cannot believe the telegram is genuine. Hepburn and Hull are here and all enter our earnest protest against action of this kind by you. The republican party, that you have served so long and faithfully, cannot part with your services now.

J. M. BABCOCK.

Mr. Babcock is chairman of the national congressional committee.

The congressional committee of this district met to decide whether the successor shall be chosen by the delegates to the former convention or by new ones.

The most prominent candidate is Charles E. Pickett of Waterloo. Others are W. F. Harriman of Hampton, C. E. Ransler of Independence, O. B. Courtwright of Waterloo and W. H. Norris of Manchester.

WILL NOT HANDLE COAL.

Train Crews Refuse to Haul the Mined Coal.

Rumors of the Settlement of the Great Pennsylvania Coal Strike are Rife.

Shenandoah, Pa., Sept. 22.—Train crews refused to handle a loading train from the Philadelphia & Potomac company's North Mahanoy assembly. Several hundred strikers were gathered near the colliery when the train arrived to take away the coal to the railroad men to refuse to haul the coal. The trainmen held the train in the station and decided to grant engines steamed away without the crew and the strikers' cheers. The men refused to about the colliery soon in many officials several thousand and the coal deal forals appealed to Sheriff Blain for assistance. The sheriff ordered troops in, in command of the 21st regiment, and the general in command. By the time the soldiers reached the scene two other engines and crews had arrived from Gordon. The company of the regiment was ordered to guard the cars and the other to haul the coal. The train consisted of twenty-three cars loaded with coal and it is the first since the strike began that the members of the crew had refused to haul the coal down the track.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 22.—The following information reached the city through a private source late afternoon that the end of the coal strike was in sight.

"The report was to the effect that one of the largest firms, whose representatives in New York have been discussing the situation for some time, had decided upon a settlement and an official announcement would be made either tomorrow or early next week. The information seemed to have considerable foundation and came as an answer to inquiries sent to New York parties regarding the filing of large orders for coal in this city, intimating that the orders would probably be filled sooner than was expected because of the encouraging prospects of an early settlement."

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 23.—In order to set all rumors about a settlement of the miners' strike at rest, President Mitchell stated this evening that if any overtures were received from the operators they would first be submitted to a convention of the miners, and the acceptance or rejection of any proposition made by the coal companies would rest with the men themselves.

A dam on Solomon's creek, near here, from which the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company obtained water to operate its Maffat washery, was blown up by dynamite today. Striking miners are accused of blowing up the dam.

WORKING MAN GETS A HEAVY FINE.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 23.—The largest fine ever imposed upon a union workman for refusing to obey a strike order has just been assessed James McCarrick, former president of the bollemakers' union of Kansas City, Kan. He has been fined $1,500 because he remained at work when the bollemakers in the Union Pacific railroad shops went on a strike. McCarrick has been in the employ of the Union Pacific for thirty years. He is well thought of by his employers, and as president of the bollemakers' union McCarrick was regarded as one of the leading figures in organized labor circles. McCarrick says he will not pay the fine in the event of a settlement between the bollemakers and the railroad company. "If it ever becomes necessary for me to go elsewhere for work," says McCarrick, "I'll look outside of union shops for employment. My family comes before any union on earth."

IN MEMORY OF LOUIS KOSSUTH.

Buda Pest, Hungary, Sept. 24.—The centenary of the birth of Louis Kossuth is being celebrated throughout Hungary. Here flags are flying and homes are decorated. A commemorative service in the Protestant church was attended by two sons of the Hungarian patriot, the principal local authorities' deputations from all parts of the country and the Hapover veterans of 1848. At the conclusion of the service immense crowds proceeded to the cemetery to attend the laying of the foundation stone of a mausoleum to be erected to the memory of the national hero. General Tuerr, a companion of the Hungarian exile, was present at the laying of the foundation stone. The fund for the national memorial to Kossuth now amounts to over $250,000.

Sloumb Statue is Unveiled.

Gettysburg, Pa.—(Special.)—The fine equestrian statue of Major General Henry Warner Sloumb, a tribute to his memory from the state of New York, was unveiled today on Culp's hill, where his line was located during the historical battle. The governors of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the Seventh regiment of the New York national guard, which acted as escort, and veteran infantrymen and artillerymen who served under General Sloumb attended the ceremonies of dedication.

Queen is With Her Father.

Copenhagen, Sept. 24.—Queen Alexandra arrived here today from England and on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which was met outside the harbor by King Christian, her father, and other members of the royal family, and was escorted to the roadstead by a squadron of Danish warships. All the cabinet ministers and members of the royal party at the landing place and they all drove to Bernstorff castle through cheering crowds.

COLORED PEOPLE CRUSHED IN PANIC.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 22.—Seventy-eight people, known to be dead and slightly injured, some perhaps fatally, is the result of a panic which occurred in Shiloh negro Baptist church here during the session of the national Baptist convention. Fifteen hundred delegates were crowded into the church, which had a seating capacity of only 400, when the audience was thrown into a stampede by a conflict between two of the delegates in the rear of the church. The cries of "fight" the audience mistook for an alarm of "fire," and in the wild rush seventy-eight persons were crushed to death and eighty more received injuries some of which may prove fatal. The list of dead and injured included only negroes in attendance. In the case of the visiting delegates the identification has been difficult.

The catastrophe occurred at 9 o'clock, just as Booker T. Washington had concluded his address to the national convention of Baptists, and for three hours the scenes around the church were indescribable. Dead bodies were strewn in every direction and the ambulance service of the city was utterly incapacitated to move them until after 10 o'clock. Dozens of dead bodies were arranged in rows on the grounds outside of the house of worship, awaiting removal to the various undertaking establishments, while more than a score were laid out on the benches inside.

QUEEN OF THE BELGIANS IS DEAD.

Spa, Belgium, Sept. 22.—Marie Henriette, queen of Belgium, died here suddenly. Neither her husband, members of her family, nor her majesty's doctors were present at the time of her death. She was seated at a table eating a light dinner, when she was seized with an attack of syncope. Dr. Guillaume, who, in the course of the day, had remarked upon certain disquieting symptoms in the queen's condition, was summoned immediately, but her majesty was dead before he arrived. Two members of her suite were with the queen during her last moments.

The queen and mother, Marie Henriette, had been cruelly tried. In 1885 the death of her son, the duke of Brabant, at the age of 10 years, caused her grief beyond measure. Later fresh her grief and keen sorrows wrung her alarms another when tragic events shattered the happiness of the Princess Stephanie, her daughter-in-law (son of the daughter of Napoleon, brother of the count of Flanders) and her only King Leopold) was another. Laeken to her majesty, and the fire destroyed a castle, in which a number of her relics were destroyed, brought her not further trial. The queen sought, to forget, at least to lessen her sorrows by devoting all her energies to works of charity. Her attitude in the face of misfortune was always calm and resolute.

The demonstrations which had been arranged in honor of the visit to this city of the Boer generals, Botha, Dewet and Delarey, have been postponed and all the festivities planned for the occasion have been abandoned because of the death of the queen.

TOM REED DOESN'T SEE WHY.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—Ex-Speaker Thomas Reed, in an interview on the withdrawal from congress of Speaker Henderson of Iowa, said that he saw no reason why General Henderson's statement of the reasons for his withdrawal should not be accepted as correct without searching for any ulterior reasons.

The ex-speaker said: "I do not see why, when a man in the political world assigns a good reason for such an action on his part, if it be precipitate, he cannot be believed."

Mr. Reed said he was opposed to the revolution, adding: "I believe in the sentiment of the people of this country is deeply opposed to taxation, and if it is not, it certainly should be the last thing to be done."

When asked what his opinion would be the effect of Speaker Henderson's attitude on the republican party, he said:

"Well, you know, I am out of politics and I look to others for political forecasts, but I might say that sometimes a great configuration may be started by a very little match."

THE PACKERS MERGER IS ALL FIXED.

Milwaukee.—(Special.)—The Journal says: Milwaukee packing house employees are in receipt of information which seems to indicate either that the proposed new combination of packers' houses rumored for some time past is formed, or that the combination anticipated during the recent federal investigation has been fact all along.

The Journal's information is to the effect that in Chicago an agreement was reached a few days ago under which one branch of the trade, said to be the sausage makers, was given an advance of 25 per cent, was given throughout the country.

This agreement was announced which has yet been made public was made between committees representing the employees and a superintendent of the Armour Packing company.

Salsbury Reports Differ.

London, Sept. 23.—Private advices received in London indicate that Lord Salsbury is worse than admitted in the Lucerne sanatorium. The symptoms, it is said, by his friends are not yet cured, exceptionally grave. Dr. West, who was summoned to Lucerne, attended Lady Salsbury during her last illness. Lord Salsbury has been reported here that his disposition is so suddenly serious, to warrant the members of his family going to Lucerne.

Notes From Mr. Bryan's Commoner.

An Entirely Safe Boast. In one of his speeches Mr. Roosevelt said: "I say to you here from this platform nothing that I have not already said at a private table with any of the biggest corporation managers of the land."

Not Everyone Who Says. President Mitchell of the miners' union made a pointed reference in his Labor day speech to the complacent philosophy of Railroad Magnate Baer, who recently declared that the Lord had wisely entrusted the rights and interests of the laboring men to the property owners of the country.

"Settling" the Strike. Senator Platt of New York announces that the coal strike will be ended perhaps within two weeks, and in such a way that the democratic party will not obtain any advantage.

Judge Day's Rash Threat. In a newspaper interview referring to the proposed combination of all the packing houses into one great trust, Judge Day, the special attorney for the government, said: "If a combination is formed that in any way tends to show collusion on the part of the packers in restraint of trade or for monopoly, or in the way of fixing prices, I shall take steps to have the parties cited for contempt."

Abusing the Flag. The Dominion, a bi-monthly publication issued at Brooklyn, N. Y., is authority for the statement that a poor Italian rag picker of Boston was recently fined $20 for "contemptuous use" of the flag.

Stories of Cruelty. In spite of the fact that the republicans insist that our retention of the Philippine Islands is purely benevolent, the returning soldiers continue to tell the returning soldiers of the cruelties that would shock anyone of the doctrine of non-resistance.

Domestic Development and Conquest. When Congress has voted for "do the democratic party" opposed to domestic development and conquest, he Philippine expansionist, those who may have provided a hint to the effect that it re-quired the greatest effort to pass the republican measure, no effort was necessary to pass the millions of congress to carry on the policy of conquest in distant lands.

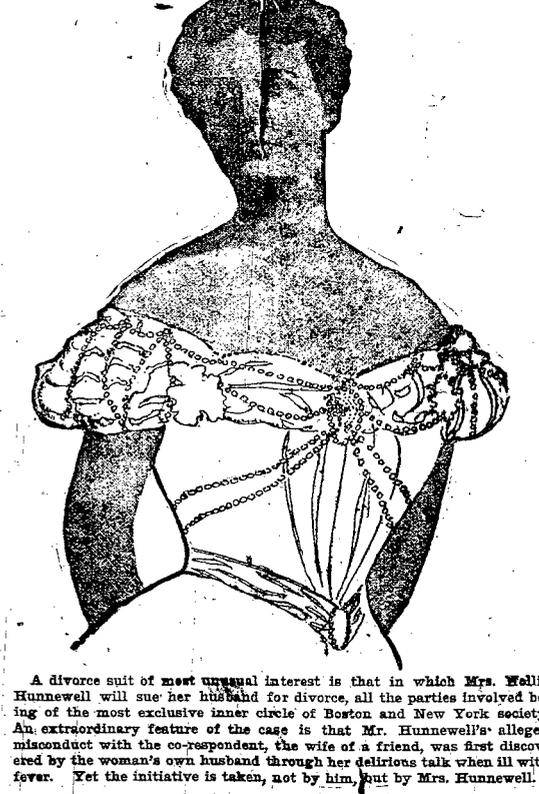

Strike Crane. Mrs. Crane, formerly Miss Jeanne Burchard, has sued her husband for absolute divorce, and claims the cause of her marital troubles to be her own daughter by her first marriage to another artist named Brainerd.

Some Fashion Notes. The new stocks for fall wear are of white silk, with a border of plaid silk a quarter of an inch in width about the edge, tied in long, loose, ends in front. Then come the stocks of shaded ribbons; this, by the way, is a fine way of disposing of all odds and ends of ribbons.

At a convention of Russian electrical engineers held recently resolutions were adopted recommending the establishment of a life-saving department at all large electrical plants. This is to consist of a room where there shall be readily accessible all devices known to be valuable in the treatment of persons shocked by the current, as well as those for the purpose of protecting persons rendering aid to others in case of accident.

Somehow Sarcastic. An Austrian paper waxes sarcastic over the fact that Mr. Morgan without his checkbook would never have been the emperor William's guest. But even taking this for granted, the emperor had as much reason to honor Mr. Morgan for the accident of his checkbook as Mr. Morgan had to honor the emperor for the accident of his imperial birth; so honors are about easy.

HEROINE OF GREAT DIVORCE CASE.

A divorce suit of most unusual interest is that in which Mrs. Wellb. Hunnewell will sue her husband for divorce, all the parties involved being of the most exclusive inner circle of Boston and New York society.

Nebraska Politics.

Excerpts From The Nebraska Independent, Lincoln, Nebraska, Made by Direction of the Populist State Central Committee

A SHAMEFUL RECORD

The World-Herald recounts a few chapters of what has been done "Under Authority of the Railroads of Nebraska." "Under authority of the railroads of Nebraska" is a phrase that has become quite familiar to the people of this state.

In one of its publications this bureau paid its respects to the World-Herald, charging this newspaper with being guilty of deliberate falsehood, and of manifesting a disposition to plain spokenness, even to the extent of invective and epithet.

This is not the first time that questionable acts have been committed "under authority of the railroads of Nebraska." Referring to corporations Sir Edward Coke said: "They cannot commit treason, nor be outlawed, nor excommunicated, for they have no souls."

At a time when the Eugene Moores of the Bentons and the people imagined they had reached the limit, it is a matter of record that even those old time corporation administrators did not have the temerity to go one-half as far as the men who now hold office and the men who now seek office by the grace of "under authority of the railroads of Nebraska."

But the problem is solved and the mystery is explained when it is understood that the men who made the assessment of 1902 are creatures of the corporations. However much they scorn their action as an affront to the intelligence of the people of this state, it must be remembered that it was done "under authority of the railroads of Nebraska."

There is one girl of our acquaintance who may have her mother a cross word on her lips. The mother died when the child was less than a month old.

When the republican state convention met at Lincoln, on June 18, a number of the delegates to that convention favored the nomination for governor of a man who would be free from corporation domination.

At the legislative session of 1891 a deal was committed "under authority of the railroads of Nebraska" which deal was so impudent and so bold that the people of this state have not yet learned to place a proper estimate upon it.

At a time when the fight on the railroad bill was at its height, John M. Moan was invited to join the Republicans. He had no sooner received his room after indulging in this bit of sociability than he was taken violently ill. An emetic was administered, and although seriously ill, Moan dragged himself to the state house the next day and took up the fight for the railroad freight rates.

At a recent concert given by Patti in aid of the Breckton Hospital the diva appeared with Stanley in duet by Donizetti and was encircled. They had just begun to sing the duet when Stanley burst out laughing and left the platform. Patti immediately followed, although she tried to continue singing. Then, in response to loud applause, Patti retired and said: "The cause of all this merriment is that a wasp has been flying about in my mouth and we could not see it."

CHAMMS AGAINST WOUNDS

Survival of the Ancient Belief in the Potency of Spells.

New York Evening Post: During the South African war a number of incidents have developed up showing that the idea of charms and spells against wounds and death. Not long ago a paragraph appeared in some of the papers to the effect that a soldier's watch, with a charm attached to it had been found on one of the battlefields and was being held for a ritual claimant. Barlier in the war a private letter told how a comrade had come in safely through a hot engagement by virtue, as he thought, of an amulet he wore, to be mortally wounded in a subsequent skirmish, when, by the mere chance, was wearing his charm.

Those who happened to be in the fatherland during and immediately after the war of 1870-71 must have been struck by the amount of superstition that, hidden under ordinary circumstances, in the then excited state of the public mind made its way to the surface much as the many stagnant pool floats to the top when the water is agitated.

The Question of Heredity. Prof. Carl H. Eigenmann of Indiana university, in a recent issue of the Populist, has written an article in his opinion that mental peculiarities are transmissible. Sometimes one mental trait of the parents is transmitted to one child, while others are transmitted to another. However, allowance is made for the effect of environment, especially in the case of education, overcoming hereditary tendencies.

Much in Little. Frisco shop girls have organized. Vancouver has Chinese milk dealers. Massachusetts has 4,500 registered physicians. Methodism has gained in New York City nearly 47 per cent since 1875.

Pointed Paragraphs. Instructions as to eggs and colts-break before using. The price of liberty often depends upon the humor of the judge.

Easy Explained. A man in public life noted for his brusqueness of speech was under indictment in his cabinet circles. "There's one thing," said Secretary Wilson, "and that is, he never importunes the department to get promotions or positions for his friends."

All the noted freaks are coming to grief. The high diver Collins got slapped by his wife. The snake eater was arrested at Hartington for burglarizing a jewelry store. It is estimated that the coal strike has cost $1,000,000,000, but don't think for a minute that the mine owners lost anything. The statement that the operators are responsible for the strike is quite probable. A strike among the miners means the same thing to the coal trust that the shutting down of the Nebraska City and Sioux City starch works means to the starch corporation—gives them a chance to rob the people at a more extravagant pace.

An old lady at Humphrey went to the long distant telephone office and sent in a call for her daughter who was in Omaha after securing the party the telephone girl was fairly stunned to hear the old lady say as she peered anxiously into the transmitter that she couldn't "see" her girl at all and that she didn't care to "talk" to her. The people of Humphrey are decidedly ignorant and don't appear to catch on very swift although our old friend and townsman Fred Pratt is doing all he can to educate them.

Speaking of differences that exist between the democratic party and the republican party the Chicago Chronicle says: "The republican party is a party of admirable discipline. In this respect it presents the strongest possible contrast to the democratic party, which has the least discipline consistent with an organized existence. If the republican party were like the democratic party in this respect the Henderson episode would hardly cause more than a ripple of excitement. When a conspicuous democratic mule breaks out of the traces and lets fly his heels to the disastrous wreckage of the democratic wagon nobody gets much excited because it is just what everybody is looking for and is rather disappointed if he does not see. If it is not down on the bills it is understood to be part of the show as much as the clown in the circus or the end man in the old-style minstrel troupe. With the republican party it is different. If anyone in the working traces begins to grow fractious the team is driven to a retired spot where the noise will not be heard and the rebellious animal is subjected to discipline of one kind or another until he is ready to reappear in public pulling along as submissively as though nothing had happened." This is probably why the republican party is represented by a humble looking elephant, and the democratic party caricatured as a jackass. The republican party is the country's "elephant" and the democracy brays

"I notice that the dress-makers convention now in session in this city, is greatly exercised upon the question of the female form. Great anxiety is exhibited as to the proper corset, especially what is called the "strait front," which compresses the waist and destroys the natural contour of the body, leaving no "bowels of compassion."

What produced this modern idea that the female form should be like a sausage, tied up in the middle? Cannot some method be devised which will dispel the illusion among even civilized and cultivated women that straps and whalebones add to the beauty of their natural figures?

The ancient Greeks conceived that the human form was the perfection of beauty and the female figure the highest conception of art. It is positively shocking to a healthy minded man to witness the deformed woman of all ages and stations in life who throng our streets exhibiting this cruel deformity."

Poet "Doc" Bixby of the Lincoln Journal is out with a musical quartet of Lincoln young ladies and will, the DEMOCRAT hopes, not overlook Wayne. The editor of the Central City Democrat thus writes of "Doc's" early experience on the lecture platform; "Our old friend Doc Bixby is to lecture here on the evening of September 30th. Doc has made quite a reputation as a platform speaker and should be greeted with a splendid audience when he comes. How well does the writer remember Doc's first attempt. He gave a lecture at Fullerton on the "Country Editor," and his embarrassment became so pronounced that he fell down after he had "stood up" for about fifteen minutes. Chauncey Wiltsie, the president of the First National bank, and an old friend acted in the capacity of chairman. After a very flattering introduction, Doc waded in. His hands shook so he could hardly hold his notes, and when at the expiration of fifteen minutes he sat down, a most bewildering look spread over the countenance of Mr. Wiltsie. He leaned over, and asked Doc if he was through. "Yep," said Doc. Mr. Wiltsie slowly arose and addressing the audience said: "The doctor informs me he is through, but if here is any of you who haven't got your money's worth you needn't blame me, for I haven't a thing to do with it." The audience was loth to leave—the time was so short. In fact several who had bought tickets had not yet arrived, and the reader can imagine about how they felt when told Doc had shot his wad. But that was a long time ago."

The Norfolk News says the Nebraska City starch factory closed down because of the high price of corn and the low price of starch. When the Nebraska City factory went into the trust it, like the Sioux City factory and many others, were closed up to make the price of starch go up and make more dollars for a thieving corporation. The Norfolk News is one of the most complacent liars in the country. How is it corn got so high and starch so cheap just as soon as the trust had taken in all the independent starch factories?

THE CORPORATION HAND.

The corporations have never shown their hand in any Nebraska campaign, or in the campaign of any other state, so clearly as they are showing their hands in Nebraska today.

Several days prior to the republican state convention the corporation lawyers held a conference and they all agreed on Mickey as their man.

The republican state convention ratified this agreement and then the corporations employed skilled mathematicians and established a literary bureau.

Then they purchased advertising space in the newspapers of the state.

The efforts of this literary bureau were directed towards persuading the people that the present republican state administration has made a good record, and all the genius of that literary bureau has been employed to induce the people of Nebraska to cast their vote in favor of the republican state ticket.

In the good old corporation days of Tom Benton the railroads pretended that they were not anxious for the election of republican candidates but since Nebraska was "redeemed" in the year of 1900 the mask has been thrown aside and the corporation magnates have observed the ease with which republican politicians have hoodwinked the voters and they have adopted the plan of bluntly calling upon the people to cast and how did they revise it? giving it a 10 cent horizontal reduction.

All of which is plain history. Why did Secretary Shaw represent it? Why did he think it necessary to fool an intelligent audience? It is because he thought the protected interests so far of the republican party that latter cannot respond to the prevailing sentiment, and therefore the popular sentiment will have to be changed to save the party.

While the country has enjoyed no other period of revenue tax except the one mentioned at Secretary Shaw never hesitated to speak of the Wilson-Gorman tariff as belonging to that class. Yet in his Chicago speech he got himself for a moment and confessed:

There was in fact so much protection in the Wilson-Gorman bill that the man who sincerely believed in the platform on which he was elected, and who was, however, tously opposed to any protection, refused to sign the bill. If it were language correctly he denunciated in this I do "full of perjury and dishonesty." My high personal regard for Grover Cleveland to princely admiration for his platform of 1892 he allowed the bill to become a law without his signature.

Now, in the face of history and truth, when did our industries go to pieces under a revenue tariff? The answer is that they never did. If Secretary Shaw cannot tell the truth when discussing this subject, is not it a confession that the people are right today in demanding reduction of the tariff, particularly on the products of monopoly? If the people were wrong they could be met with the truth and led from their error, but the man who tries to meet an economic argument with deceit and perversion of history throws his case away.

If Shaw thought the republican party would be able to master the protected monopolies instead of being mastered by them, he would not talk so much like a demagogue.—Sioux City Tribune

DANGER SIGNALS.

No engineer would be mad enough to run by the flag which signaled danger. What the danger was he might not know, but he would take no chances. It is different with the average man or woman. They attempt constantly to run by the danger signals of Nature and that is why a thousand of lives are lost every year. When the appetite becomes irregular or entirely gives out, when sleep is troubled and broken, when there is a loss of flesh, when there is a constant feeling of dullness and languor, Nature is hoisting the danger signal. The stomach and its allied organs are failing in their work and the body is losing the nutrition on which its strength depends.

Such a condition calls for the prompt use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and all other organs of digestion and nutrition, purifies and enriches the blood and builds up the body with sound, solid flesh.

"Your kindness to me I can never forget," writes Mrs. Josie H. Clark of St. Joseph, Mo. "I cannot express full my feelings of gratitude to you. I had suffered of ever since I was a child with backache for twelve years. Had aches all through me, numb hands, cold feet, and everything I ate distressed me; bowels constipated, was very nervous, depressed and despondent. In fact I can't express half my bad feelings to you. When I first wrote to you I thought I never would be cured. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and my health is now good. You have my most sincere recommendation to all sufferers. I think there is no medicine in the world as good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If constipated use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They cure constipation, biliousness and sick headache. They do not produce the "pill habit."

A young lady happened to meet a newly married Wayne couple the other day just in front of a store where there were a crowd of men. After giving them her heartiest congratulations she remarked, as they turned to move on, "it's awfully nice, ain't it?" Several audible smiles from the bystanders and she hastily corrected her extravagance of speech with "oh, I mean the weather!"

Some people think the fellow who runs a newspaper has a snap. Makes his money easy, goes to all the shows free and has a pass on the railroads. I wish some of you farmers who have nothing to do but slop hogs, dig taters and shuck corn, could just take one week's grief that comes in a print shop. About the first thing that would hit you would be "whatthehell-is-itto you where I am going!" when you inquisitively ask some fellow where he is off to. Then there would be the smart merchant who will tell you every time you present a bill to him for 39 cents that it "don't pay to advertise; just throwing away money."

Make a slight, immaterial mistake in his "ad" once and he'll tear his hair and kick up as big a fuss as though he had lost a couple of hundred dollars. You try to run a nice Sunday school paper and the church people will tell you "there's nothing in it." Make it a bit spicy and they'll throw it back in your face; the chances are you'll get the expression of your phiz reset. Any of you good people who would like to swap a farm for a printing office just call in and we'll make a trade.

A fellow may lose his wad in a poker game, an arm in a threshing machine, have another man steal the affections of his wife, get run over by the ice wagon or a freight train, but, by dad, he doesn't know what real trouble and worry is until he has to have a hired girl and gets out to look one up.

Say, I've had a somewhat promiscuous career in my 38 winters with a short sprinkling of springs and autumns, but in all the years of succulent childhood, conceived epoch of calfhood and latter season of doubt, conjecture and grief I've never run up against a harder proposition than hunting for a hired girl.

It may sound a bit personal, but the lady who does the talking at our house got off a pretty good joke on me last week. I hadn't been in a barber shop for two or three weeks and feeling a slight tickling sensation on the upper lid of my eye box I asked her if she didn't think whiskers were becoming to people of marked rotundity. "No, I don't think so," she replied, "but then you better let 'em grow (sarcasm) for they'll keep you from catching cold in your mouth!"

George Cook tells me there is a vacancy in the Presbyterian church roster, that of chorister, he having resigned. The position, Mr. Cook tells me, pays $2.50 per Sunday, or enough to furnish a fellow beer money through the week. The job would suit to a nicety but for one inconvenience. The choir leader who patronizes the front door of a saloon would not be acceptable the Presbyterian congregation.

Here's a new one on Sam Davies. He met an old friend the other day and the friend after a few remarks as to the good old times of other days said "Say Sam, lend me a dollar 'till after dinner?" "What dyp say?" asked Sam with his hand to his ear. "I just wanted to know if you could stake me with a couple of dollars till tomorrow?" said the friend. "Yes, yes," replied Sam, "but I don't see why in h— I didn't hear you the first time."

This has been a great year to make things grow. Why even Schmelly's hogs have grown until they actually stink up the whole neighborhood.

They, a half dozen fellows, were talking about a noted foot ball player, a quarter back, when John Kate stopped to "listen." After a few moments he caught the name and spoke up with "That's all right, but I wouldn't trust him for a pair of german socks; why, he'll never pay you the quarter back."

By dad, I don't know but the ministers of Hastings are all wrong in stirring up such a stench about their constituents being found in the red-light district. Where there is no red-light there appears to be something worse. Why, they tell me that right here in this town of Wayne it has cost one lightning change artist $6,000 for getting too friendly with another man's wife. There has always been and always will be a certain amount of rottenness in every community and you don't always find it amongst the "unsaved." The latter class has not so good an opportunity to cover up their nastiness as the one who is continually shouting "Jesus saves me!"

You little chump! Spose you want the girl to go to Allen, and justify and lock up your forms. But if Grace does that she'll find so much that is mere "pie" that you'd likely land in the "hell-box."

A Dakota county school-marm who moved recently to another locality wrote the postmaster to forward her "mail." The postmaster hunted the fellow up, but could not get him to go—Allen News.

He probably needed "licking" and stamping.

"Here's something that will tickle A. J. Ferguson," said Sam Davies, as he pointed to a display heading in the Tribune the other evening which stated that an Indiana doctor had discovered a process to bring dead people back to life. Asked what he meant Sam replied: "Why, Ferguson is always looking for something to keep him alive forever."

It is a sad task that confronts the pen of the DEMOCRAT this week in the demise of our old partner, and best of friends, Arthur P. Childs. No more shall we hear his hasty step on the threshold nor his cheery "hello!" as he enters the printers' den. What a cluster of memories surrounds those two initials "A. P.," and where can we find a human character, amongst all our acquaintances, just like A. P. Childs? Perhaps the writer, while not a pioneer resident of Wayne county, knew A. P. as well as anyone.

Know his frailties, his better qualities, and probably received more benefit from the dead man, through association, than others. No incident of that association comes to us more strongly today, nor better exemplifies the character of whom we write than the fact (Continued to last page)

It is estimated that the coal strike has cost $1,000,000.00, but don't think for a minute that the mine owners lost anything. The statement that the operators are responsible for the strike is quite probable. A strike among the miners means the same thing to the coal trust that the shutting down of the Nebraska City and Sioux City starch works means to the starch corporation—gives them a chance to rob the people at a more extravagant pace.

An old lady at Humphrey went to the long distant telephone office and sent in a call for her daughter who was in Omaha after securing the party the telephone girl was fairly stunned to hear the old lady say as she peered anxiously into the transmitter that she couldn't "see" her girl at all and that she didn't care to "talk" to her. The people of Humphrey are decidedly ignorant and don't appear to catch on very swift although our old friend and townsman Fred Pratt is doing all he can to educate them.

Speaking of differences that exist between the democratic party and the republican party the Chicago Chronicle says: "The republican party is a party of admirable discipline. In this respect it presents the strongest possible contrast to the democratic party, which has the least discipline consistent with an organized existence. If the republican party were like the democratic in this respect the Henderson episode would hardly cause more than a ripple of excitement. When a conspicuous democratic mule breaks out of the traces and lets fly his heels to the disastrous wreckage of the democratic wagon nobody gets much excited because it is just what every body is looking for and is rather disappointed if he does not see. If it is not down on the bills it is understood to be part of the show as much as the clown in the circus or the end man in the old-style minstrel troupe. With the republican party it is different. If anyone in the working traces begins to grow fractious the team is driven to a retired spot where the noise will not be heard and the rebellious animal is subjected to discipline, of one kind or another until he is ready to reappear in public pulling along as submissively as though nothing had happened." This is probably why the republican party is represented by a humbly looking elephant, and the democratic party caricatured as a jackass. The republican party is the country's "elephant," and the democracy brays.

Rev. VanDyke Wight, a former pastor of the Wayne Presbyterian church, has raised a sensation at his new home in Hastings by personally visiting houses of prostitution where it is said he found members of his flock, and also by prosecuting gambling houses, etc. Van is a hummer no matter whether he is whight or wrong.

An imbecile at Kearney is running a religious show which he calls the "Central Star of Empire." The thing should be justly for Mickey for governor because Mickey is a prohibitionist. It is unnecessary to say that the "Central Star" looks like a—ll. It is printed from a—ll out of a print—the melancholy day—and the same when coal ascends editor plunks a ton.

Northeast Nebraska appears to have her full share of thugs and murderers but there are not so many of them on earth as there were a couple of weeks ago.

A gentleman writing to the Chicago Chronicle gets off the following timely "?" "I notice that the dress-makers convention now in session in this city, is greatly exercised upon the question of the female form. Great anxiety is exhibited as to the proper corset, especially what is called the "strait front," which compresses the waist and destroys the natural contour of the body, leaving no "bowels of compassion."

What produced this modern idea that the female form should be like a sausage, tied up in the middle? Cannot some method be devised which will dispel the illusion among even civilized and cultivated women that straps and whalebones add to the beauty of their natural figures?

The ancient Greeks conceived that the human form was the perfection of beauty and the female figure the highest conception of art. It is positively shocking to a healthy minded man to witness the deformed woman of all ages and stations in life who throng our streets exhibiting this cruel deformity.

Poet "Doc" Bixby of the Lincoln young ladies and all will, the DEMOCRAT hopes, not overlook Wayne. The editor of the Central City Democrat thus writes of "Doc's" early experience on the lecture platform: "Our old friend Doc Bixby is to lecture here on the evening of September 30th. Doc has made quite a reputation as a platform speaker and should be greeted with a splendid audience when he comes. How well does the writer remember Doc's first attempt. He gave a lecture at Fullerton on the "Country Editor," and his embarrassment became so pronounced that he fell down after he had "stood up" for about fifteen minutes. Chauncey Wiltsie, the president of the First National bank, and an old friend acted in the capacity of chairman. After a very flattering introduction, Doc waded in. His hands shook so he could hardly hold his notes, and when at the expiration of fifteen minutes he sat down, a most bewildering look spread over the countenance of Mr. Wiltsie. He leaned over and asked Doc if he was through. "Yep," said Doc. Mr. Wiltsie slowly arose and addressing the audience said: "The doctor informs me he is through, but if here is any of you who haven't got your money's worth you needn't blame me, for I haven't a thing to do with it." The audience was loth to leave—the time was so short. In fact several who had bought tickets had not yet arrived, and the reader can imagine about how they felt when told Doc had shot his wad. But that was a long time ago."

Why Try To Deceive? When an intelligent officer of the administration gets up before an intelligent audience and declares—

For nearly a century we have struggled for commercial independence. We have built advanced, improved during every period when we have had a tariff for protection, and our industries have gone to pieces every time and always, when we have had a tariff for revenue only.

It is safe to conclude that he considers his party unequal to the task of meeting the demands of the country along tariff revision lines. And why? Simply because there is not a word of truth in the quotation from Secretary Shaw's Chicago speech, so far as it relates to revenue tariff effects.

As The Tribune has pointed out several times, the only revenue tariff this country ever had was enacted in 1856. It was in force for two years, during which time the country was very prosperous. James G. Blaine admitted this prosperity and spoke of it as something remarkable. During the year 1858 the rep-licans revised this revenue tariff and how did they revise it? By giving it a 10 cent horizontal reduction.

All of which is plain history. Why did Secretary Shaw represent it? Why did he attempt to fool an intelligent audience? It is because he thought the protected interests so far as the republican party that the latter cannot respond to the prevailing sentiment, and therefore the popular sentiment will have to be changed to save the party.

While the country has enjoyed no other period of revenue tariff except the one mentioned above Secretary Shaw never hesitates to speak of the Wilson-Gorman tariff as belonging to that class. Yet in his Chicago speech he forgot himself for a moment and confessed:

There was in fact so much protection in the Wilson-Gorman bill that the president, who sincerely believed in the platform on which he was elected, and who was conscientiously opposed to any protection whatever, refused to sign the bill. If I remember his language correctly he denounced it as being "full of perjury and dishonor."

Now, in the face of history and truth, when did our industries go to pieces under a revenue tariff? The answer is that they never did. If Secretary Shaw cannot tell the truth when discussing this subject, is not it a confession that the people are right today in demanding reduction of the tariff, particularly on the products of monopoly? If the people were wrong they could be met with the truth and led from their error, but the man who tries to meet an economic argument with deceit and perversion of history throws his case away.

If Shaw thought the republican party would be able to master the protected monopolies instead of being mastered by them, he would not talk so much like a demagogue.—Sioux City Tribune

The Norfolk News says the Nebraska City starch factory closed down because of the high price of corn and the low price of starch. When the Nebraska City factory went into the trust it, like the Sioux City factory and many others, were closed up to make the price of starch go up and make more dollars for a thieving corporation. The Norfolk News is one of the most complacent liars in the country. How is it corn got so high and starch so cheap just as soon as the trust had taken in all the independent starch factories?

THE CORPORATION HAND.

The corporations have never shown their hand in any Nebraska campaign, or in any Nebraska of any other state, so clearly as they are showing their hands in Nebraska today.

Several days prior to the republican state convention the corporation lawyers held a conference and they all agreed on Mickey as their man.

The republican state convention ratified this agreement and then the corporations employed skilled mathematicians and established a literary bureau.

Then they purchased advertising space in the newspapers of the state. The efforts of this literary bureau were directed towards persuading the people that the present republican state administration has made a good record, and all the genius of that literary bureau has been employed to induce the people of Nebraska to cast their vote in favor of the republican state ticket.

In the good old corporation days of Tom Benton the railroads pretended that they were not anxious for the election of republican candidates but since Nebraska was "redeemed" in the year of 1900 the mask has been thrown aside and the corporation magnates have observed the ease with which republican politicians have hoodwinked the voters and they have adopted the plan of bluntly calling upon the people to cast

DANGER SIGNALS.

No engineer would be mad enough to run by the flag which signaled danger. What the danger was he might not understand, but he would take no chances. It is different with the average man or woman. They attempt constantly to run by the signals of Nature and that attempt costs thousands of lives every year. When the appetite becomes irregular or entirely gives out when sleep is troubled and broken, when there is a loss of flesh, when there is a constant feeling of dullness and languor, Nature is hoisting the danger signal. The stomach and allied organs are failing in their work and the body is losing the nutrition on which its strength depends. Such a condition calls for the prompt use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and enriches the blood and builds up the body with sound, solid flesh. "Your kindness to me I can never forget," writes Mrs. Josie E. Clark of Enterprise, Shelby Co., Mo. "I cannot express half my feelings of gratefulness to you for having helped me getting well. I had been in bad health for twelve years. Had aches all through me, numb hands, cold feet, and everything I ate distressed me; bowels constipated, was very nervous, and half my life had been in pain. When I first wrote to you I thought I could never be cured. I have had my health restored by the use of your Discovery, and my health is now good. I have my honest recommendation to all sufferers that there is no medicine in the world as good as Dr. Pierce's."

If constipated use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They cure constipation, biliousness and sick headache. They do not produce the "pill habit."

their vote in support of corporation impositions. Will the people do it? There are some politicians who say they will. The World-Herald does not believe it.—World-Herald.

BY DAD.
A young lady happened to meet a newly married Wayne couple the other day just in front of a store where there were a crowd of men. After giving them her heartiest congratulations she remarked, as they turned to move on, "it's awfully nice, ain't it?" Several audible smiles from the bystanders and she hastily corrected her extravagance of speech with "oh, I mean the weather!"

Some people think the fellow who runs a newspaper has a snapp. Makes his money easy, goes to all the shows free and has a pass on the railroads. I wish some of you farmers who have nothing to do but slop hogs, dig taters and shuck corn, could just take one week's grief that comes in a print shop. About the first thing that would hit you would be "whatthehell-is-itto you where I am going!" when you inquisitively ask some fellow where he is off to. Then there would be the smart merchant who will tell you every time you present a bill to him for 39 cents that "don't pay to advertise; just throwing away money." Make a slight, immaterial mistake in his "ad" once and he'll tear his hair and kick up as big a fuss as though he had lost a couple of hundred dollars. You try to run a nice Sunday school paper and the church people will tell you "there's nothing in it." Make it a bit spicy and they'll throw it back in your face; the chances are you'll get the expression of your phiz reset. Any of you good people who would like to swap a farm for a printing office just call in and we'll make a trade. I'd like to be happy gollyucky again and carry the feed to the boar in the pen.

I'd like to shuck corn and eat four pounds of pork

A fellow may lose his wad in a poker game, an arm in a threshing machine, have another man steal the affections of his wife, get run over by the ice wagon or a freight train, but, by dad, he doesn't know what real trouble and worry is until he has to have a hired girl and gets out to look one up. Say, I've had a somewhat promiscuous career in my 38 winters with a short sprinkling of springs and autumns, but in all the years of succulent childhood, concited epoch of calfohd and latter season of doubt, conjecture and grief I've never run up against a harder proposition than hunting for a hired girl.

It may sound a bit personal, but the lady who does the talking at our house got off a pretty good joke on me last week. I hadn't been in a barber shop for two or three weeks and feeling a slight tickling sensation on the upper lid of my feed box I asked her if she didn't think whiskers were becoming to people of marked rotundity. "No, I don't think so," she replied, "but then you better let 'em grow (sartabum) for they'll keep you from catching cold in your mouth!"

George Cook tells me there is a vacancy in the Presbyterian church roster, that of chorister, he having resigned. The position, Mr. Cook tells me, pays $2.50 per Sunday, or enough to furnish a fellow beer money through the week. The job would suit to a nicety but for one inconvenience. The choir leader who patronizes the front door of a saloon would not be acceptable the Presbyterian congregation.

Here's a new one on Sam Davies. He met an old friend the other day and the friend after a few remarks said, "Say Sam, lend me a dollar 'till after dinner?" "What fye say?" asked Sam with his hand to his ear. "I just wanted to know if you could stake me with a couple of dollars. till tomorrow?" said the friend. "Yes, yes," replied Sam, "but I don't see why in h—I I didn't hear you the first time."

This has been a great year to make things grow. Why even Schmel's hogs have grown until they actually stink up the whole neighborhood.

They, a half dozen fellows, were talking about a noted foot ball player, a quarter back, when John Kate stopped to "listen." After a few moments he caught the name and spoke up with: "That's all right, but I wouldn't trust him for a pair of german socks; why, he'll never pay you the quarter back."

By dad, I don't know but the ministers of Hastings are all wrong in stirring up such a stench about their constituents being found in the red-light district. Where there is no red-light there appears to be something worse. Why they tell me that right here in this town of Wayne it has cost one lightning chance artist $6,000 for getting too friendly with another man's wife. There has always been and always will be a certain amount of rottenness in every community and you don't always find it amongst the "unsaved." The latter class has not so good an opportunity to cover up their nastiness as the one who is continually shouting "Jesus saves me!"

You little chump! Spose you want the girl to go to Allen and justify and lock up your forms. But if Grace does that she'll find so much that is mere "pie" that you'd likely land in the "hell-box."

A Dakota county school-marm who moved recently to another locality wrote the postmaster to forward her "male." The postmaster hunted the fellow up, but could not get him to go—Allen News.

He probably needed "licking" and stamping.

"Here's something that will tickle A. J. Ferguson," said Sam Davies, as he pointed to a display heading in the Tribune the other evening which stated that an Indiana doctor had discovered a process to bring dead people back to life. Asked what he meant Sam replied: "Why, Ferguson is always looking for something to keep him alive forever."

It is a sad task that confronts the pen of the DEMOCRAT this week in the demise of our old partner, and best of friends, Arthur P. Childs. No more shall we hear his hasty step on the threshold nor his cheery "yellow!" as he enters the printers' den. What a cluster of memories surrounds those two initials "A. P." and where can we find a human character, amongst all our acquaintances, just like A. P. Childs? Perhaps the writer, while not a pioneer resident of Wayne county, knew A. P. as well as anyone. Knew his frailties, his better qualities, and probably received more benefit from the dead man, through association, than others. No incident of that association comes to us more strongly today, nor better exemplifies the character of whom we write than the fact

Take two cups of hot water half an hour before each meal and just before going to bed, also a drink of water, hot or cold, about two hours after each meal. Take lots of out-door exercise—walk, ride, drive. Make a regular habit of this and in many cases chronic constipation may be cured without the use of any medicine. When a purgative is required take something mild and gentle like Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For sale by Raymond.

A Communication.
Mr. Editor—Allow me to speak a few words in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years, with the bronchitis and could not sleep at nights. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines, but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me.—W. S. BROCKMAN, Bagdad, Mo. This remedy is for sale by Raymond.

A Certain Cure for Dysentery and Diarrhoea
"Some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip," says F. L. Taylor, of New Albany, Bradford county, Pa. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea, and was sag about to give up the trip, when Editor Ward, of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I purchased a bottle and took two doses, one before starting and one on the route. I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effect. Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me." Sold by Raymond.

Fancies and Sequences

BY MYRTLE CONGER.

(Copyright, 1901, by Authors' Syndicate.)

190 little girls, sat on a huge bank of sand along the beach. One was watching the tiny sails far off across the water; the other was industriously putting the finishing touches to a sea-weed doll.

When you grow up, Georgia," asked the maker of the doll, holding it up at arm's length and surveying her handiwork with loving admiration.

Georgia seemed not to hear. "I know what I'm going to be," volunteered the inquirer, not in the least disturbed by her companion's lack of interest.

Years ago, the knowledge that such a child might be hers had filled her with awe. When the day came with the beat she had had herself and her mind's little life had indeed begun to beat she had let her heart and her only secret from the eyes of the world to prepare herself for the responsibility of parenthood.

Countless nights of sleeplessness and anxiety had left their impress upon her temples and about her mouth. They had touched her hair with their moonlit rays and shadowed her eyes with their darkness.

The door opened and a dark-eyed little woman with tear-stained face and trembling lips burst into the room.

"The intruder sank into the nearest chair, and covering her face with her hands broke into a storm of tears.

"Yes, yes, my boy, my only child. Sending him away off there without a thought of me, his mother. What does honor and all that fuss over him amount to, if they're going to send him away? And they'll not go to him, the and he'll catch some awful disease, and those terr-ible sav-a-ge-s--"

"There's a letter from Mirandy at college. She says she's in love with ping-pong."

PLANTATION BOOKKEEPING.

One of the Most Troublesome Things in the Life of the Planter.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: "One of the most troublesome things in the life of the average planter in the South, said a man who has spent his life in Mississippi, and who owns several large plantations, is the system of keeping accounts with negroes.

Up to this time the ticket system, as we call it, has been the most satisfactory plan yet devised. Various schemes have been hit upon at different times in the past, and a better system is less suspicious. Finding that his own books correspond with the books of the merchant or the planter he rents from, he is convinced that he is getting a square deal.

LARGEST HAT IN NEW YORK.

In these days of mammoth hats with exaggerated brims, it is something of a distinction to own absolutely the largest hat in New York.

There can be no doubt as to which of the many designs of head coverings in the city really is the biggest. The largest hat is owned by a man who lives on the west side of First avenue, a few doors below Thirty-fourth street. He is evidently very proud of his possession, for he keeps it constantly displayed on the outside of his house, where everyone may see and marvel at it.

The biggest hat, it is safe to say, has never been worn by anyone. No head in New York is large enough for such an enterprise. Instead, it hangs over the doorway as though its owner had hung it up on going into the house, perhaps because he could not possibly get through the door, and had left it hanging there ever since.

English naturalists have just brought from the interior of Central America the finest specimen of the famous long-tailed quetzal ever obtained.

AN OLD-FASHIONED WOMAN.

No clever, brilliant thinker, she; With college record and degree; She has not known the ways of fame, The world has never heard her name; The valleys of the yesterdays.

Horns is her kingdom, love is her dower; She seeks no other word or power; To make home sweet, bring heaven near; To win a smile and wipe a tear; And do her duty day by day; In her own quiet place and way.

Around her childish hearts are twined, As round some reverend saint's crown; And following her the childish feet; Are led to (deeds true and sweet; And find a purity and good In her divinest motherhood.

She keeps her faith unshaken still; God rules the world in good and ill; Men in her creed are brave and true; And women in her faith are few; And life for her is high and grand; By work and glad endeavor spanned.

This old earth's a brighter place All for the sunshine of her face; Her very smile a blessing throws; And hearts are happier where she goes. A gentle, good, and unassuming; To whisper love--thank God for her!-- L. M. Montgomery in Congregationalist.

Teeth for Teeth.

BY D. H. TALMADGE.

(Copyright, 1901, by Authors' Syndicate.) AMES MURCHISON was a plain farmer, young and good to look upon; but he lived to the age of 40 years without marrying, which was a shame, as by one of several buxom lasses in the Singing river district admitted readily when the subject was broached in confidence.

"There he is," said they, pointing the sentence of their elders, "living alone on a fine farm, with a big barn, a good account, a figure like that of the strong man at the circus, a face handsome as the lover's at the theater, going to waste! Dear, dear! What can the man mean?"

The answers to this question were two in number. One, he was bashful--so bashful that the mere thought of crossing to those quarters with a girl filled him with horror; the other, he cherished in secret an affection for the daughter of a grain-buyer in the town of Riverton, at whose home he had visited on a number of occasions when corn was coveted by the grain-buyer and the growers of the country were both to sell.

He knew she was not for him, because even had he possessed the courage necessary to an avowal of his passion, he could not have hoped to compete with her other suitors, who were men of polish and education. It was not until the winter of 1890, when he was 35 years of age, that he was surprised that there were not more. He could not understand why the whole world of men, who were not so unfortunate as to have contracted alliances prior to seeing her, as he would gladly have done had he dared.

Every week he scanned the list of marriage licenses published in the Riverton News, his heart pounding like a runaway trip-hammer until the fact was established that she was still unmarried. Then he sighed from the very bottom of his mighty lungs and would have thought how long his happiness would last. Think of that! The sturdy consciousness that she was married to no one else was happiness to him.

No, there is a story held by many people of intelligence that matches are made in heaven. It does not look altogether reasonable in the light of this story, yet it may be admitted that the holders of the theory have not good ground, in the way of isolated instances, to stand upon. Love making is not always necessary; a meeting of the souls upon the street or at a dinner table is sometimes sufficient to accomplish everything necessary to the signing of the contract.

As a matter of fact, the grain-buyer's daughter had fallen in love with James Murchison the first time she saw him--he was so big and handsome and rich and dependable and altogether different from other men. But when James Murchison had known it, he had known it the chances are that he would have sold out and run away as fast as he could to end his days in misery and the great north woods, where he owned a nice bit of land. Such a blessed thing is ignorance!

HERE'S A QUEER FISH.

Each one of us has at some time eaten too much, but we have not gone to such excess as this fish has. It is called the "black swallower" and is a swallower takes first place for its stomach is much larger than its body.

It will seize by the tail a fish eight times its own size and work its way over it by repeatedly sliding forward one jaw and then the other.

Before taking a meal the swallower is a very respectable looking fish, except for a voracious chest of countenance, but afterward he certainly has the appearance of having eaten too much. Then the walls of his stomach are so stretched as to be transparent.

Later digestion begins and the swallower is turned belly upward by the imprisoned gas, and his stomach becomes a balloon, which lifts him from the depths of the ocean to the surface, and in this helpless condition he is thrown about the waves, perhaps cast ashore and left high and dry by the receding tide, in which case he does not swallow any more for the returning tide finds him a dead fish.

He Was Handicapped.

Kind Lady--Here's a hickie for you, poor man. I suppose you would work it given a chance.

Tramp--Dat I would ma'am, but fer only one thing.

Kind Lady--And what is that?

Tramp--Me pore mother made me promiss dat I wouldn't take no chances.

One portion of the German ordnances preserved with boric acid will not go into operation until April 1, 1902, and the other portion not till Oct. 1, 1904. This will afford ample time for American packers to prepare their meats so as to escape the prohibition.

Perhaps no missionary ever preached in more parts of the world than the late Bishop William Taylor, of the Methodist church, whose death has been noted recently. He went to California as a missionary along with the "forty-niners," then he preached in Canada. Thence he went to England and the holy land, holding evangelistic services wherever it was possible. Later he worked in Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, India, South Africa; the Congo region, the West Indies and in various countries in South and Central America, thus covering every continent.

Russian newspapers are displaying keen interest in the projected Alaska, Behring Strait and Irkutsk railway. They report it to be backed by American millionaires, but do not mention the names of the promoters. A special government commission has recommended the construction of a railroad from Alexandropol in Transcaucasia to the Persian frontier with a view to its being a branch of the Erivan line when that is built. The construction of another railroad from St. Petersburg to Petrozavodsk, on Lake Onega, and a short line in the Baltic district has been recommended.

HYPHOID FROM THE SOIL.

Universally Admitted to be a Water-Born Disease.

Philadelphia Press: That typhoid is a water-borne disease is now universally admitted, and is the chief justification for the enormous expenditure now in progress to secure this city water from which the typhoid germs have been removed.

As a matter of fact, the grain-buyer's daughter had fallen in love with James Murchison the first time she saw him--he was so big and handsome and rich and dependable and altogether different from other men. But when James Murchison had known it, he had known it the chances are that he would have sold out and run away as fast as he could to end his days in misery and the great north woods, where he owned a nice bit of land. Such a blessed thing is ignorance!

It was his custom during the game season to carry with him, when he went to his work in the fields, a shotgun--an old-fashioned, muzzle-loading piece which he had owned as a boy; and one afternoon he discovered that his supply of shot was exhausted. Therefore he went down the road to borrow a handful. Nothing warned him of his fate; nothing caused him to change his course; on he strode, straight to the end of his agony--for love, especially unspoken love, is that and nothing else.

He had just stepped upon the bank when from up the stream he heard the sound of women in distress. His instinct told him that they were in distress; otherwise he would not have known, for the language of women is never understood in any case. He went down the road to borrow a handful. Nothing warned him of his fate; nothing caused him to change his course; on he strode, straight to the end of his agony--for love, especially unspoken love, is that and nothing else.

The girl saw James, and involuntarily she extended her arms towards him. The gesture banished from the map of self-consciousness in the last vestige of her mind everything except that she, the idol of his dreams, was in danger. But he did not move. Other girls would have dashed to meet him in an abortive attempt at rescue. They would have cried out, but he was silent.

Quickly he dropped the stock of his gun to the bridge, and rammed in a double charge of shot. He was a precious-merciful heaven, how precious it was! He had no shot. There were no pebbles in the dusty road, and leap by leap the dog was gaining upon the girl whose strength was nearly spent. What could he do?

A certain writer, accepted as an authority by a major portion of the civilized world, has stated that only when a crisis confronts him does a man bring forth the best qualities which are within him; a crisis is the only real test of character. And in this crisis the character of James Murchison was proven good.

Let it be understood that not even his nearest friend was aware that James Murchison's upper teeth were false. He had guarded the truth as carefully as he could guard his love. It was made plain to all that his teeth were not in place. But he did not hesitate now to wrench the set from his mouth and

It wouldn't interfere. Congressmen at Singing, chatting with their friends at the Union League, regarding the effectiveness of the civil service examination, confessed that some absurd questions often crept into the questions asked applicants. One young man who wanted a clerkship in the treasury was asked, among other things, "What is the distance of Saturn from the earth?"

In reply, he said that, as the position he sought pertained to the earth and not to the extraneous system, he had neglected to postulate on astronomic matters, and that while he was unable to tell the exact number of billions of miles, he felt sure the said planet was sufficiently far away not to interfere with his duties as a clerk on the Treasury. The broker told me it was a perfect bargain, made down from $500,000 to $499,999. --Washington Star.

"Yes," said Miss Billions, "father encourages me in taking an interest in business men you invest in any money?"

put his foot upon it, breaking the ivories from their settings. He poured them into the gun. He shot. The girl's gown when he fired. The dog fell, rolling over. An insect had entered the eye, penetrating the crazed brain.

When, a moment later, the other girls of the picnic party approached, they found the girl, her hands clasped, without upper teeth, holding a girl's head upon his knee and gently bathing it with a bandanna handkerchief wet with the water of Singing river. Her eyes were open, and the expression of them was such that even he could understand, although he was far from a full appreciation of the happiness that had come to him.

He arose presently and assisted her to her feet. "May I get my horse and take you home?" he asked. "Yes," she replied; "I will wait here for you."

For an instant he stood, scarcely believing that the masses were so rapidly towards the road. At the carcass of the dog he paused, looking back. The girl smiled. He leaned over, patting the poor, mangy thing upon the head, and went on again.

Chicago Record-Herald: It is now nearly 40 years since the close of the civil war, but the whole period has been one of slow recovery and readjustment in the Southern states, so that even today the farm value of Mississippi is less than it was in 1860.

The figures on this subject, which are furnished in a recent bulletin of the census bureau, are astonishing. The person who has not given attention hitherto. In the decade between 1850 and 1860 there was a remarkable growth of agricultural industries, which seemed to presage a still further increase. The total value of farm property went from $73,905,223 to $241,478,571, a little more than tripled.

As was to be expected the ravages of war caused a tremendous falling off in the next decade. The total value reported in 1870 was $116,113,447, and as this estimate was in depreciated currency it is just necessary to diminish it by about 10 per cent. The result was $104,502,102. Even after the war, however, the restoration process was very gradual. For the three years named in the following the values were:

1900 204,227,000

It will be seen, therefore, that the total for 1900 is $37,000,000 less than for 1860, and the fact is most eloquent testimony to the abnormal conditions that have prevailed. In Ohio, which is going more and more to manufacturing, farm property is worth half as much again in 1900 as it was in 1860. In Wisconsin, the increase is still greater, being more than fivefold. On the social and industrial revolution which followed the rebellion in the South can explain the difference.

It appears, however, that there has been an advance in some of the items of the census. The value of the real estate, the value of land, improvements and buildings is much less than it was, the statistics on implements and machinery are: 1860, $8,826,512; 1900, $9,556,805; on live stock, 1860, $41,891,692; 1900, $42,657,222. The earlier figures were passed for the first time as a result of the census, and it is noticeable also that the number of farms has increased much more rapidly than the acreage, which is significant of the changed social environment, and the present rate of progress is satisfactory. Apparently the present period of a new era is pretty well accomplished.

"A Book that will be read." "A Book that will endure."
"THE BLUE BADGE OF COURAGE."

THE BOOK
The Blue Badge of Courage stands stock with thrilling scenes, exciting adventures, that are not imaginary, but actual experiences. The sale success is striking and are handled with a knowledge that comes from contact. No pretension. Don't let it slip by. A "goody-goody" now looks like a story for the masses, told in a charmingly naive, and its hotel is obvious.

THE AUTHOR
Col. H. H. Hadley is famous throughout the country as its most successful rescue mission worker. He has come in contact with over 68,000 drunkards, established sixty rescue missions, and is still in the harness as General of the United States Church Army.

NEW YORK. AKRON, OHIO. CHICAGO.

Chicago Tribune: "He comes to see you about once a month, does he?" said the homely cousin. "He must be a mighty poor excuse for a lover." "A poor excuse is better than none," retorted the girl in the pink shirtwaist, glancing at the other, who hadn't any lovers at all.

Chicago Post: "What did he do during his vacation?" "He sat out on the back porch in the sun and accumulated a tan that made his fishing lies seem plausible."

Baltimore American: "Have you any articles of value with you?" asked the customs inspector. "Nothing," answered the returning traveler, "except a wealthy grass widow whom I expect to marry as soon as I land." "Well," mused the inspector, rubbing his chin thoughtfully. "I guess you can take her through. Seems to me she will come under the classification of baled hay, and that is free."

New York Times: "I am told that Jones is a regular leech. Is that true?" "No! I wouldn't hardly say that. A leech, you know, never gets stuck on himself."

Chicago Post: "Alas, alas," he cried. "I only my three girls had been boys." In reply, he was in sore trouble, with three young men thrumming three banjos and singing three different love songs under three windows. "I love and the same time. I might as well be a victim of insomnia," he wailed.

Philadelphia Press: "These shoes," she said, with unusual candor for a woman, "are awfully tight." "No wonder," he replied gallantly. "If I were in their place I'd be intoxicated, too."

Some interesting experiments for the artificial production of rain by means of electricity have been carried out in Japan. The probability of greater success being obtained by this means, in lieu of the system of detonating explosive clouds, which has been often advocated by scientists, has been attempted by the Japanese, however, is the first practical effort to prove the truth of this theory, and it was attended with conspicuous success.

What do you mean?"
Job told him of his meeting with the constable and how he had sent that worthy off on the trail of the fugitive.

"Well, you are a wonder," replied Dick, at the same time puzzled that the stranger had twice that day put him under obligations. "Still the poor man might as well have taken me now as later."

"I wanted you to have all the time possible for your talk. It may be that you will not have to chance again so soon."

"You think, then, it will go hard with me for taking leave as I did?"
"No doubt of it. But why go back? You might remain in hiding until your name is cleared of the charge."

But the other shook his head. "No, no; that would look as if I were guilty. Come, I think I can slip back to the improvised cell, restore the bars and pretend that I have never been away from my prison."

Mr. Bilvins was so delighted to see that he will not care to make the matter public."
"If you trusted to me, you might never need to go back," said Job.

"You are kind, but I think I shall be acting for the best in going back. It will appear on my record should it become known that I could have freed myself and yet remained a prisoner." Then before Hendricks could reply, Barnett turned and made off in the direction of his temporary prison.

"Good stuff in that young chap," muttered Job as he watched the slight figure disappear in the dark. "Justice will be blind, indeed, if she errs in dealing with such an honest and right-minded man as that."

As he turned away a light appeared in the upper window of the house and for a moment the figure of a woman was outlined on the opaque curtain. He stood there with clasped hands watching the silhouette, motionless, for an hour or more, and then turned with a sigh to seek his bed at the Bluebell.

CHAPTER X.
Job Hendricks passed an uneasy night, for he constantly was haunted by the belief that there was some one in the corridor moving back and forth, and occasionally pausing to take a look at him as he lay there in the moonlight.

Once or twice he had risen and gone to the door to peer out, but found no one, and then stumbled back to bed, blaming himself for an old fool for being in such a constant state of fear over nothing.

Finally he fell asleep from sheer exhaustion, and the sun was high when he awoke and reviewed the events of the day before.

It seemed that he was not altogether safe himself, and he felt that he could not trust Ellison.

"Once he was free," referring to the school teacher, "and the young people are united and I have settled matters with that other rascal, I shall go back to my home with a smiling face," he said to himself as he made his scanty toilet. Thinking over plans for the future made him alternately merry and sad, but the controlling feeling seemed to be one of satisfaction.

After a hasty breakfast he made up his mind that he would try and send out by the mail the smiling face. He had had a good view of the place where young Barnett was confined, and noticed that the window was now protected with new iron bars, instead of the flimsy ones that had been there formerly.

As Job watched, an utter stranger to him appeared at the window and peered out. Though he stood there for an hour or more he did not see the young school teacher, and at last turned away, believing that he must have been removed to some safer seclusion.

"That frank of his may cost him dear," he had shivered in the night, he enjoyed before, feeling disappointed in his visit. "Well, I guess he thinks it

Orientation.
"Yes," said the woman with sharp eyes, "those people who moved in next door are inclined to make an ostentatious display of their wealth."

"In what way?" They go into the corner grocery and order beefsteak in a loud tone of voice.—Washington Star.

Put Your Money on the Horse.
There are now 27 automobiles in daily use in Des Moines, and a local dealer said yesterday that before the summer is over the number will be doubled. In the meantime, the market for good horses was never better, and horses were never in such demand. The automobile is all right, but the horse is better.—Des Moines Journal.

The government of New Jersey is preparing to declare war on mosquitoes. The festive warbler of summer lives should organize a trust, incorporate at home and save its hide.

The Commodore Surrendered.
When William E. Chandler was secretary of the navy he issued an order that officers should not permit their wives to reside at the foreign stations to which their husbands were attached. The order was promptly rescinded upon the receipt by the secretary of the following from Commodore Pyffe in command of the Asiatic squadron:

"It becomes my painful duty to report that my wife, Eliza Pyffe, has, in disobedience to my orders, and in the face of regulations of the department, taken up her residence on the station and persistently refuses to leave."

FLY FROM THE ISTHMUS

Residents of Colon and Panama Alarmed by Rebels Approach.

Their Plan is Thought to Contemplate Attack on Government Forces Without Molesting Traffic.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 24.—Rear Admiral Coghlan has raised his flag on the Olympia and awaits orders to proceed to the Isthmus of Panama and assume charge of affairs there. The Olympia is provisioned and coaled for three months.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 24.—The British steamer La Plata arrived here from Colon, bringing a large number of refugees from the isthmus. It is reported that, owing to the fear of rebel attack, a great many people are leaving Colon and Panama. The Colombian government is sending reinforcements to the isthmus and the La Plata carried 1,000 government soldiers from Savannah to Colon.

The Colombian revolutionists are said to be massing in the neighborhood of the railroad over the isthmus. The refugees describe the situation at Panama and Colon to be extremely critical. Officers of the La Plata say they were informed while at Colon that several liberal sympathizers had been imprisoned at Panama because they had vetoed the order recently issued by the government and appeared on the streets of that city.

Business in Colon is entirely suspended. The intention of the revolutionists would seem to be to attack the government forces without interfering with railroad traffic over the isthmus.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Sept. 24.—Five schooners bearing about 1,500 government soldiers under the command of General Castillo left Maracaibo, Venezuela, in the tow of the gunboat Zumbador. This expedition will attempt to recapture Veia la Decoradora.

News has been received here from Venezuela that the revolutionary general, Mendoza, continues to retreat with his forces to the interior of the country in the hope of drawing President Castro from Valencia.

A press correspondent had an interview with Alta Garcia, in the state of Zulia, Venezuela, with General Manuel A. Matos, leader of the revolution against President Castro on the report that General Matos intends in case of his success to turn over the control of Venezuelan finances to certain foreign powers.

Flour Millers May Strike.
Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 24.—Unless an eight-hour work day is granted in the flour mills of this section a strike will go into effect September 29.

The mills of Minneapolis produce 13,000,000 barrels of flour annually, nearly four-fifths of the output of the country. The local union officials declare their action has the support not only of the National Federation of Labor, but the active co-operation of the other flour mill unions of America. They claim, therefore, that if a strike is declared here the action will be followed elsewhere by a sympathetic movement. Six hundred members of the union have voted on the proposal to strike.

It was decided by a 75 per cent vote to select a committee to submit an ultimatum to the mill owners Tuesday, the understanding being that if an eight-hour day is not granted meanwhile the strike is to go into effect a week from tomorrow. If the strike is declared the demands will embrace a stipulation that none but union men shall be employed in the mills. The Flour Leaders and Packers and Nailers unions expressed sympathy with the demand. If the strike is declared 3,000 men will walk out.

Kills Father to Save Mother.
Woonsocket, R. I., Sept. 24.—Because he desired to protect his mother from violent treatment at the hands of her husband, and fearing also that his own life was in danger, William C. Bonin, aged 20 years, shot and killed his father, John B. Bonin, aged 42 years. The tragedy occurred at the Factory boarding house, of which his father was proprietor, at Slatersville, North Smithfield. There were present at the time also five small children of the family. After the shooting young Bonin went to his room, put on his best clothes and waited until the officer who had been called by his mother came for him. He said it was better for his father to be dead than to be guilty of the crime of killing his wife and then himself, as he had often threatened to do.

A Philadelphia chauffeur recently wrecked his automobile to avoid killing a boy. All papers please copy.

Colonies to Pay for War.
London, Sept. 24.—The government has decided that the new South African colonies are to be required to pay $500,000,000 toward the cost of the war. The colonies are, however, to be allowed ample time to make this payment. It will not be collected until the extension of trade and expansion of revenue permit. Consequently the loan will not be floated for two or three years. Mining profits will probably be taxed 10 per cent more than before the war.

Yellow Devils Still Busy.
London, Sept. 24.—A dispatch from Shanghai declares that Boxerism in Szechuen has not been subdued. The premises of the China Inland mission and Mr. Yau have been destroyed, but no lives lost. The Boxers are threatening three cities—Tau Lien, Hung Yen and Kai Ting Fu.

LITERARY NOTES.
"Temporal Power," written by Marie Corelli in her fascinating manner gives a noble and dignified treatment to the subject in a most beautiful form. If it were possible to exist in this manner we would all be socialists. The hero, who is a king, is not in love with his queen, but with a most beautiful queen, but with some other woman that he falls in love with late in life and finally dies with her. Published by the Doubleday, De Mores & Co., New York.

"The Climax" by Charles Felton Pidgin, author of "The Duke of Adams Street" is a delightfully interesting novel. The hero, Aaron Burr, whose bravery won for him the title of the "American Napoleon," is a character whose noble nature is the hero's bitter enemy and he attempts to overpower him by means of Maria Reynolds, who has sworn allegiance to him, but after she discovers Elizabeth's deceit and evil designs toward so good and honest a man as Aaron Burr she becomes an honorable woman, leaving him to die burdened with the thought of his sin. Parties who are not familiar with this line will consult their best interests by giving us a trial when contemplating the purchase of a Cloak, Cape, Jacket, a Tailor-made Suit, Skirt or fine Furs.

that at one time the deceased and the writer were the most bitter of enemies and that in later years A. P. quite forgot all the little, petty, bickerings of the past and wrote us to come back to Wayne, that there was a splendid opportunity for us to regain this paper and make some money out of it. Who among your bitter business opponents would have done as much. It was characteristic of A. P. that in his heart there was no room for harboring evil. He might scrap with you today, and put up a good fight at that, but tomorrow he was your friend and if need be your benefactor. His death brings a profound sorrow to a great many people of Northeastern Nebraska. Of a strong personality and a genial, generous disposition, he made all acquaintances his friends. Perhaps to himself he was not all that man should be, neither perfect and divine, but he was a good husband, a kind father, an honest neighbor and a man broad enough to overlook the small inaccuracies of the race.

According to the latest fashion notes it will hereafter be popular for the hips to look small. Let nature take its course. This fashion note says: "The hips of the fashionable woman must look small whether they do or not, and the smaller they look the better." Ha! ha! I was just thinking what a struggle some Wayne women would have in order to keep in style. And then there are others who will not have a bit of trouble. Hip, hip, hurrah!

The other day, a teacher in a school near Winside while hearing a class was interrupted by a pupil who complained that he had lost his slate sponge. "Never mind," said the teacher, "just use the little girls, behind."

Over in Iowa the real warm sports are wearing shirt studs made out of hard coal. Some of the Wayne boys who attended the Sioux City carnival this week say they saw a lot of "black diamonds" down there but they cost more than hard coal at $18 per ton at nine days.

Agent the hired girl proposition Geo. Damon tells a pretty good one. A year ago he engaged a girl just over from the old country and in a very short time, about as soon as she caught on to the American idea, she got married and wanted to hire a girl herself. A few months ago another new girl came over and when engaging her Mrs. Damon provided that she was not to get married. In a short time she told her employer that she was already engaged but was not going to be married until next spring. A week later she was decidedly non-committal for a couple of days then told Mrs. Damon she would have to leave her right off. "But I thought you were not going to be married until next spring?" queried Mrs. Damon. "Yes, I knew that," replied the girl, "but Willam can't wait." Mr. Damon says people who are likely to need hired girls will have to quit getting married. He is contemplating closing his house here and sending his wife and baby home to her folks.

Mr. Wendt says Henry Carstens, the man whom Niengenfnd stopped with the night of the murder, is not under arrest, as stated in last week's DEMOCRAT, but a brother of the fiend, Henry Niengenfnd is in jail at Pierce for talking too much. Herman Niengenfnd, another brother was in Hoskins Monday on his way towards Pierce.

Death of A. P. Childs

The news of the sudden death of Arthur Palen Childs, last Saturday night, brought a profound sorrow to his legions of friends. Mr. Childs was at work in his office when taken with a stroke of paralysis about 4:30 o'clock. Shortly after nine he expired although everyting possible was done to restore him. The funeral services were held in Wayne Monday afternoon from the M. E. church, Rev. Carter of Carroll preaching a sermon that was appreciated by the friends of the deceased. The remains were laid away to rest beside his daughter, Mrs. Craven, who died some seven years ago.

A. P. was born in the state of New York, Oct. 1 1843. He was a volunteer in Company K of the 56th New York regiment. After the war he taught school and was married to Elizabeth Wheeler, to which union four children were born, those now living being Mrs. Lathrop of Parker, S. D., Miss Lois and Chauncey.

Mr. Childs and family came to Wayne county a quarter of a century ago. Being a man of much general knowledge he found a grand opening here for his talents, being in the newspaper business, surveying, etc. He published the Herald at Laporte and after later moved to Wayne, the paper passing into the hands of R. M. Goshorn and W. H. McNeal. A. P. then commenced the publication of the Gazette in which he was assisted by a brother long since deceased. The career of our old friend from then on is well known to most of our readers.

He was in Parker, S. D., a short time then returned to Wayne and again became editor of the DEMOCRAT which publication succeeded the Gazette. Then postmaster under Cleveland, publisher of the Madison Reporter, Norfolk Times-Tribune and at his death of the Carroll Index. A. P. might well be called the William E. Curtis of Northeast Nebraska. He was a regular encyclopaedia of general events and the writer never remembers the time when he couldn't give information desired on any subject.
