Mrs. Frank Fuller's Father Dies

Washington, (D. C.) Star, Feb. 2: Mr. Constant S. Trevitt, who died at Laurel, Md., this morning of paralysis, was born in New York state in 1823. He became a resident of Washington in 1850, and has resided here ever since. At the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted in the 37th New York Volunteers as first lieutenant, and was discharged by reason of disability incurred in line of duty. He was in the battle of the Wilderness and other conflicts in the peninsular campaign. After his discharge he was assigned to duty in the paymaster general's office.

In 1869 he was appointed chief clerk of the pension bureau under Commissioner Henry Van Aernam, which position he held two years. In 1871 he entered the Treasury Department, holding the position as assistant chief clerk of the revenue marine service. In 1883 he was chosen chief of the appointment division of the Treasury Department.

For ten years he was connected with the United States pension agency under the late Sidney L. Wilson, from which position he retired two years ago on account of ill health.

Mr. Trevitt was popular with his associates and has been the recipient of numerous testimonials from his subordinates and department associates.

He was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic post at Lincoln, Neb., and had been married fifty-seven years. His widow and four children survive him. The latter are Mrs. Hortense Fuller, Miss Clara Gertrude Trevitt, Mrs. Lillie M. Johnson and Mr. C. L. Trevitt.

Great Half Price Clothing Sale.

This sale will open in the building 1st door south of J. S. Lewis' harness shop on the west side of Main street, Wayne, Neb., Saturday, February 14, 1903.

Now is the time for the citizens of Wayne and vicinity to buy fine up-to-date clothing for 50 cents on the dollar. Do not imagine that this is an old shelf worn stock that has laid around the shelves for five or ten years. This is a brand new stock of clothing, which has been made within the past three months by the best New York tailors. You are invited to call and thoroughly examine these goods and satisfy yourself as to quality and price.

This stock must be sold within the next 15 days.

Remember the big sale opens in the above building, Saturday, February 14, 1903.

Nothing in a Name

The day is past when everybody wants one kind of steel range. This store has sold in the last four months over 30 steel ranges, of three or four different makes. If you don't feel like putting $55 or $60 in a range, we have a fine one for $40, and a good one for $35.

A few years ago it was hard work for this store to sell a steel range because people thought there was only one kind made and we didn't have that kind. Now they have found out that we have some of the very best ranges manufactured.

Think of it! 30 ranges in four months! Why did we sell them? Because our Ranges and Prices are Right!

R. H. JAMES.

Will Baird sold some good, fat black cows on the Omaha market Wednesday at $3.10. The cattle market has simply gone to—Texas, but the Wayne butchers do not apparently know it.

Sheriff Mears left yesterday morning for Lincoln, having A. J. Ecklund and John Carlson in tow, billed for the asylum. Ecklund, who is better known as "Doc Baker" is apparently all right in his mind—but wants to shuff off this mortal coil. Carlson appears to be an ideal harmless fool, with long populiatic hair and a full growth of whiskers.

Horace Gregory on Wednesday sold his property on 1st street, shop and residence, to Straban & Warnock, price $1100 and three head of good horses. The Democrat man asked Mr. Warnock if it was the intention of the firm to move the old Grimsley barn to the site and make a livery barn out of it, and Bob said he didn't know as yet, but it would make a dandy and that's no dream.

The Coagrove musicians gave one of the very best musical programs ever heard in Wayne, and to a big house.

Frank Griffith is feeding 200 steers but unlike his neighbors who are selling at a loss, Mr. Griffith doesn't finish his until next September. Mr. Griffith says there is plenty of money feeding cattle and hogs if you do it right, and since he cleaned up over $1000 last year in the business he probably knows how it is done, right.

"Cattle at this time of the year," says Mr. Griffith, "are always low, and the reason is because so many feeders clog the market with warmed up stuff instead of holding them until they are in proper shape." The rub probably comes in "holding them." Mr. Griffith sold his fat stock in the home yards last year at $7.40, and he'll get the "best going" next fall because he's a genuine cattle man.

When a business man wants and needs a $15 per week clerk he doesn't usually hire one worth three or four dollars, and the principle is as applicable to the post office as a bank or store. The patrons of the Wayne office will probably discover when that institution is properly conducted without any bouquets thrown in from the postmaster's paper. As an instance of how smoothly the mails are handled, the Democrat man stood in the building for about five minutes—we didn't wait for the papers, this time—and two different ladies carried letters back to the window, addressed to other parties, while the postmaster editor was fixing up some deal with a Herald subscriber who had not received the "extras" given away with that sheet. All the Democrat wants is decent service; the government pays for good service and the patrons do not get it nor anything like it, although there may have been some improvement since the Democrat mentioned the rottenness of it.

THE DEMOCRAT

WAYNE, NEB.
W. G. GOLDIE, Editor and Publisher.
Subscription, $1.50 PER YEAR; IF PAID IN ADVANCE $1.00.

The weather reports said "snow for Nebraska" on Tuesday. It was about 87% in the shade.

And just about the time those Christmas bills have ceased to give us a bad taste in the mouth, along comes the Easter bonnet racket.

Miss Maude Gonne, the Irish Joan of Arc, will be gone soon. She is going to wed Major John McBride, who led a Boer brigade in the South African war.

Bixby says he wants revenue legislation or death. Of course he'll get revenue legislation. That is what republican politicians seek offices for—revenue.

When poor, old Cole Younger gets back to Missouri he'll find he's not so much Younger as he used to be, but there is no doubt about Missouri being proud of the ex-bandit.

Charles Woods, the 19-year-old son of Mrs. Lloyd of Columbus looked into a pistol Friday night to see if it was loaded and the gun was discharged, killing the young man instantly. The only proper manner of finding out when a pistol is loaded is to throw the dangd thing in an old well.

That is another grand spectacular play of President Roosevelt's; that anti-trust extra session. It is amusing how quickly all the little g. o. p. jewsharks out here in Nebraska applaud the president in these bluffs at the trusts, and just as quickly subside when the president accedes to the demands of the corporations. Any half witted fool ought to know that Roosevelt will not do any "knocking" on the trusts, so long as corporation council Knox, the grand right hand bower of trust-dom, holds the key to the president's attorney-general's office.

It was supposed that when the county seat of Knox county was removed from Niobrara to Center the troubles of the county along that line were about over, but now Bloomfield bobs with a county seat bee buzzing in her bonnet and in order to attain her desires she proposes that the county shall be chopped in two, Bloomfield to be the county seat of the new county. It is likely that if all the towns in the county wanting county seats are accommodated it will be divided up into rather small pieces, with just enough for a door yard to each county seat town.—Norfolk News.

It seems from looking up the matter that Nebraska is not alone in wrestling with the problem of how to discourage the use of tobacco among school boys. Boys under eighteen in Oregon are prohibited by law from using tobacco in any form, and Minnesota and Illinois are awake on the same subject. It may be a sensible move to pass house roll 224, but we still think parents have a responsibility in this matter more serious than that of the law maker.—Lincoln Journal.

Yes, indeed. It might be well to inquire how much tobacco "the old man" eats up before going after the boy.

Here's two items from the Lincoln Journal from which you can easily deduce proper conclusions. If we had anything else than a united republican majority down at Lincoln one could imagine what a difference there would be in—the Journal. The legislators want to do what is right but they are slow of movement and not of one mind.

The Omaha Examiner has also fallen into the notion that John N. Baldwin of Iowa is having something to do in shaping the destinies of Nebraska. There are people in Omaha who seem to think it is a crime for Mr. Baldwin to paddle across to this side of the Missouri river. And this is a free country.

An Irish woman in Iowa has applied for a divorce because she couldn't "stand Pat," any longer. The very idea.

Over in Iowa the women are taking advantage of the dipsonia law to get their husbands in the asylum and then a divorce from them. Intemperance is likely to be largely on the increase in the Hawkeye state.

The Sioux City Journal says it cannot at this late day think of the possible calamity that would have befallen the country had Bryan been elected president in 1896, without a shudder over it. That no doubt accounts for the fact that the editor of the Journal never allows himself to do any thinking at all.

An Omaha man has invented a substitute for hard coal which he claims is much cheaper and better than anthracite. Most anybody could make something that would be cheaper, but the other part of the proposition is different. But the present situation may possibly lead to the discovery of something to take the place of coal that no man can control.

Among all the young and growing exchanges that come to the DEMOCRAT table none show a better weekly improvement than the Allen News, by C. A. Hubbard. The DEMOCRAT isn't given much to flattery and never looks for any bouquets—except the dollar per—itsself, but likes to see a fellow get there with both feet when we know he has—sand to travel in.

One little skunk not as large as a rabbit can stink up a thousand sheep and then trot off with its tail over its back. One long-tongued lying gossip can stir up a whole town and besmirch the fairest character in it and trot off unharmed. Of the two I would rather be the skunk, for the gossip is sure to go to hell and all the skunk has to do is to die.

Railroad Taxes

The railroads of Omaha have terminal properties in the city, whose real value is $26,000,000, on which the city taxes should be $260,000.

They have the audacity to say that these should only be valued for tax purposes at $130,000, and that they should only pay a tax amounting to $1,302.

They do this on the pretense that they are paying city, town and village taxes on this property to other cities, towns and villages in the state.

The Omaha tax committee is securing and has already secured evidence to prove the falsity of this Baldwin pretense. The city, town and village taxes paid by the railroads in various parts of Nebraska are ridiculously insufficient. All their city, town and village taxes combined, now being paid, only amounts to a few thousand dollars, whereas in Omaha alone they should pay $260,000. Railroads should not only pay $260,000 in Omaha, but they should pay largely increased city, town and village taxes in many parts of the state.

Twenty years ago the railroads paid in city taxes in Omaha $11,000. Last year they paid $1,300. Meanwhile their terminal properties have vastly increased in value, and taxes on other property have largely increased in amount. Will some railroad man please explain this change?—World-Herald.

The Love that Abides

Poetry is mostly love and love is mostly poetry. That is to say, "the love of a man for a maid," and contrawise is of that kind. The poets seldom sing the sort of love that is best—the love of a man for his wife and the love of a wife for her husband.

But the latter, the love of man and wife who have been married ten, twenty, thirty, forty years, the love that abides—that is real love for you. Real conjugal love may sometimes burn to embers, but it is always ready to flame up again.

In Los Angeles, Cal., Hiram W. Sherman was dying. For forty years he and his wife had lived together. After awhile the drink habit got a bad hold on the old man, and his wife was forced to secure a divorce. He reserved nothing but his pension which kept his head above water.

But there came a day when he was fatally stricken. He thought himself alone and helpless. The old love in the woman's heart then showed itself. She took him to her own clean rooms, bathed him with her tears, looked dainties for him and nursed him as if he were a boy again.

As he lay on his bed, into the ears of the dying man came the echoes of the boom of the cannon and the shouts of his comrades at Gettysburg and Antietam. And then trooped in review memories of the girl he left behind him. Lifting his head he said: "Annie, my dear, I should like to die your husband. I love you."

And that was his second wedding.

A marriage license was sent for and a minister. But under the laws a third party could not get a license. The old wife must needs go herself.

She ran a race with death, and her love won it.

A few minutes after the marriage the battered husband with the sweet, old love light in his eyes passed through the wilderness into the Richmond beyond.

Death gave them but a laconic honeymoon.

And as the tears streamed from the eyes of the wife upon the dead face of her girlhood lover, all the marks of desipation faded from it. And the tears were not bitter tears.—Omaha News.

A Woman and a Mouse

Mrs. Davis, contraalto in the choir of a Chicago church, is before the world with a reputation of bravery that clips all past records. A mouse made its home in the network of the organ and the player of the instrument noticed it dart from its hiding place and skip across the floor. The organist grabbed her skirts and twisted them tightly about her ankles. Mrs. Davis noticed her peculiar movements and at the same time felt something moving about in her pants. She didn't scream or faint or run. She clasped her hand in the vicinity of the trouble and whispered the facts of the case in the ear of the bass singer. He fumbled about Mrs. Davis' leg until he located the mouse's head and with thumb and finger a murder took place. Mrs. Davis remained quiet until services were over and going into a side room she shook the mouse from her clothing.

That's the kind of a wife for your whiskers. There's a million in her. Think of giving a vaudeville entertainment with Mrs. Davis and a hundred little mice on the stage alone at the same time. Every baldheaded man within a hundred miles would buy a two-dollar ticket. The front row of seats would be filled in the afternoon for the evening performance. Mrs. Davis is certainly the hero of the hour.

WORN TO A SHADOW

When there is a falling off in flesh in woman or man, there is "something wrong." And that something wrong is generally a loss of nutrition due to disease of the stomach and the other organs of digestion and nutrition. Sometimes this loss of flesh is accompanied by variable appetite, but in many cases the appetite does not fail and there may be a "constant desire to eat. Languor, nervousness, irritability, sleeplessness, and symptoms of other associated diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food so that lost flesh is regained and the physical health re-established.

"I had suffered from indigestion and only those who have suffered from it know what it is," writes Mrs. M. J. Fagan, of 103 East Genesee St., Syracuse, N. Y. "I had had severe attacks of headache and dizziness, with cold hands and feet, everything I ate distressed me, bowels were constipated and I was growing very thin. I cannot half express the bad feelings I had when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took nine bottles of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, commenced feeling better with the first bottle and kept on improving. Now I am so greatly improved in health my friends often speak of it. I most heartily recommend these medicines to all suffering as I was."

Tendency of the Times

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases that medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of influenza (grip), and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when no danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted. It always cures. For sale by Raymond.

A Most Liberal Offer

All our former readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes this paper The Iowa Homestead, its Special Farmer's Institute Editions and the Poultry Farmer. These three publications are the best of their class and should be in every farm home. To them we add, for local, county and general news, our own paper, and make the four one year only $1.25. Never before was so much superior reading matter offered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known throughout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Iowa Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the west; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while the Special Farmer's Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only. Samples of these papers may be examined by calling at this office.

...Delicious Old Wines...

I have just received a shipment of what I believe to be the best wine ever sold in Wayne, or at least, the choicest grade I have handled in twenty years at the liquor business. It is the "pure quill" and just what you want at home for a good spring tonic. The price is easy for the poor and rich.

A Good Spring Medicine

Lies in a case of "the stuff that made Milwaukee famous." I can sell you any brew of bottled beer you desire. Pabst, Schlitz, Budweizer, Blue Ribbon, etc. In whiskies what did you ever sample that was better than "Old Oscar Pepper," (the DEMOCRAT MAN's favorite.) Come and see us.

Robt. Mellor and Hans Hanson had an exciting time of it Tuesday near Carroll. They were just starting down a steep long hill when the neckyoke of the buggy broke and the team started to run away. Hans told Bob to jump and the latter did so, sustaining severe injuries to his neck and sitting down apparatus. Hans finally got the team under control.

Auctioneer Cunningham reports the Charley Schultzeis sale a big success—it was well advertised in the DEMOCRAT. A very big crowd attended the sale and prices were good. One cow and calf sold for $201. Grades from $40 to $65, a team of colts $204, and a team, 11 and 12 years old that sold at a sale last year for $140, brought $171. The sale netted Mr. Schultzeis about $4,700.

The lecture by Mattison Wilbur Chase at the M. E. church Tuesday evening was one of the very best of the winter course.

F. W. Ramsey requests the use of the DEMOCRAT to sincerely thank the mail patrons on Route 2, for their generous response to his solicitation for grain and hay for the mail carrier.

Mr. Ramsey only found two parties on the whole line who did not wish to "loosen" up. Something like 200 bushels of grain and a plenty of hay was subscribed.

Farmers and breeders of fine stock will not fail to see the large "ad" of the Floral Hill Stock Farm, Loyd W. Prouty, proprietor, in this issue. This is a genuine closing out sale and it is close to Wayne and no question as to the merits of Mr. Prouty's stock.

This will be the biggest stock sale ever held in Northeast Nebraska and will include the top grade of registered Short-horn cattle and Poland China hogs.

RHEUMATISM CURED AT LAST

Good News For All Who Suffer With Rheumatism, Free.

To all who suffer with Rheumatism I will gladly send free the wonderful story of how my mother was cured after years of suffering, together with the most elaborate treatise on Rheumatism ever published.

No matter what your form of Rheumatism is, whether acute, chronic, muscular, inflammatory, deforming, sciatic, neuralgia, gout, lumbago, etc.—no matter how many doctors have failed in your case—no matter how many so-called "sure cures" you have tried I want you to write to me and let me tell you how my mother was cured.

I am neither doctor nor a professor—simply a plain man of business—but I have a CURE for Rheumatism, and I want to tell everyone who suffers with Rheumatism all about it. I wish to be clearly understood and trust that all who are suffering with this terrible disease however apparently beyond the reach of cure, will write to me this day and I will send you by return mail this work of mine. I appeal especially to the "chronically ill" who are wearied and discouraged with "doctoring" and to those who have been cast aside as "incurable." All you have thought about Rheumatism may be wrong. Let me tell you our experience. Surely if you have Rheumatism, or have a suffering friend, it will pay you to investigate my offer, anyway, and prove for yourself these claims I make.

Send me your address today—a postal card will do—and I will mail you this wonderful story. If you have any friends suffering with Rheumatism no matter where located send me their address, and I will mail them a copy. My address is VICTOR RAINBOLT, Bloomfield, Indiana.

The Advance Man.
The talk fell on men connected with the show business, and finally came around to the editor, Charles J. Davis, who can call more newspapers than any other man in America.

"Press work" was Mr. Davis' life occupation, and he was always "ahead" of something good, until his health failed and he had to seek Arizona, where he is slowly dying from consumption.

"When I first met Mr. Davis I was editor of the Boston Traveler," said Mr. Davis' business agent, Klaw & Erlanger. "One day when I was about my health failed and he had to seek Arizona, where he is slowly dying from consumption."

"I'm ahead of this double-blinded infidel, Bob Ingersoll. He's going to show down at the Academy of Music Sunday night, and I want to get the wickedest and ugliest thing I can say."

"This was delivered in the sectional style of speech Mr. Davis made so familiar to the city editors of the United States. It wasn't very long, but Ingersoll had set the country afire by his speech nominating James G. Blaine at Cincinnati, and he had about him was good-friend in those days. I wanted it, and asked Davis what he had. He pulled out a bunch of manuscript and said:

"Here it is. It's d—d bad, but it's the best I can do. I'll lengthen it up in the box and send it up. Davis looked surprised.

"Ain't you going to read it?" he asked.
"No," I answered.
"Say, you're a man of sense. I wouldn't either. Let's go and get a drink."

Was Coming There.
James W. Alexander, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, cannot match laughter by telling a story about President Harper of the University of Chicago at a dinner up town the other night. After explaining that John B. Rockefeller had given Dr. Harper nearly all the money the latter wanted, he said:

"Why, one day a friend of mine was walking down a Chicago street, and he noticed that every house in the block was deserted. The citizens had fled from their homes. My friend made inquiry as to the cause of the flight, and a man said to him:

"President Harper has got to raise half a million dollars before sundown and he's on the way to this part of the city."

The two men leered at each other across Villon, hoping that their prattles of each other might have due effect upon the great lord who seemed so condescending to them. Villon smiled.

"You are the Castor and Pollux of purity? Do you remember the night of last Shrove Tuesday and the girl you carried off in 'Pat Margot's' and held to ransom?"

"The effect of his words upon the two men was startling. The ugly episode loomed up in their memories, and they shivered to find it known. In a second the simulated friendship of bandit for bandit vanished, and the two men glared at each other with the ferocity of fighting dogs as they hurled accusation and denial at each other."

man's heart ran like wax in the fire. He never made woman happy yet, and till he had the woman over made him happy. If you gave him the moon, he would want the stars for a garnish. He believes nothing, he laughs at everything, he is a fat, fat man, and yet, I wish I had borne such a child."

"There was a sudden pain at Villon's heart, as if the fingers had seized him, and he squeezed it, but he replied lightly:

"Let us speak no more of this rascal. He believes more in the law than I do. He is so glad to be alive that his forehead scrapes the sky and the stars fall at his feet in gold dust. Paris is well rid of such a lackluster."

"You are a merry gentleman." "I would be more gentle than merry with you. Will you give me a ring for my sake? Fancy that it comes from Master Francois Villon, who will always think kindly of your wild eyes."

"You are a comely girl," Noel affirmed roundly. Huguette laughed.

"Where do you lodge?" "I am a woman of business in an inn, as I have said. The ring the grand constable had given her as she answered:

"As for these gentlemen," he said to Noel, "let them go where they will, but bring them food and drink and a pocketful of money."

"The effect of his words was almost paralyzing upon the rogues as it was upon Messire Noel. It pleased the one as much as it displeased the other."

"Long live the grand constable!" "A most rare constable!" Villon waved them away.

"You may dismiss your soldiers," he said. "I intend me within call, and as Noel obeyed him, he advanced to where Huguette was standing, with a smile of scornful indifference still on his fair face."

"Why, in God's name, does the world appear so different today? Is it the time of the great heretic, or is it merely this purple and fine line?"

"What he said when he came to the girl was, 'You mistress, you have a comely face and you make it very plain that you have a comely figure. Why do you go thus?'"

"The girl shrugged her green shoulders and shifted the balance of her body from one green leg to the other, as she answered impudently:

"For a constable, my lord, to please myself, and to show my fine shape to please others."

"The words sounded duly enough on Villon, but he showed no interest in the contemplation of his queen, but at length he served to convince him of the truth of her own words."

"I may be a fool, but I did not clap you into prison. Heaven forbid!" "A curious look came into the girl's eyes."

"Your voice sounds familiar, Monsieur. Had I ever the honor to serve you?" "Villon drew away from her. He felt suddenly body-sick and soul-sick; sorry for the woman and sorry for himself."

"Who knows?" he answered. The girl laughed and turned aside. "Who cares? What are you going to do with me?"

"Set you free, my delicate bird of prey. Those wild wings were never meant for clipping under a cage. Is there anything I can do to please you?"

CRUP OF FIGS

Acts Gently. Acts Pleasantly. Acts Beneficially. Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially.

ANECDOTES FROM EVERYWHERE

Shortly after the adoption of the code in South Dakota and before local counsel understood its working, reports the New York Times, a young lawyer of New York City went there and began to practice.

Sharp as a briar and being well versed in the nicety of code pleading, he made both bench and bar look like the proverbial 99 cents. Opposed counsel didn't mind being beaten so much as they did having to take his impudence. They finally planned their fight to the well known ability of Justice Brewer of the United States supreme court to repress the ardor of feckless counsel.

The little missionary, Doan's Kidney Pills, "free trial," carries ease, rest, comfort. Most people need kidney help; they who choose Doan's get it—help that lasts.

DEERFIELD, IND.—"When I sent for the trial box of Doan's Kidney Pills I had been afflicted for two months with pain in my back so bad that I could not get from the house to the barn. It was called rheumatism. I could get no relief from the doctor. I began to improve on taking the sample and got two boxes at one druggist's, and although 68 years of age, I am almost a new man. I was troubled a good deal with my water—had to get up four and five times a night. That trouble is over with and once more I can rest the night through. My backache is all gone, and I thank you ever so much for the wonderful medicine, Doan's Kidney Pills."

REIDING, MICH., Jan. 14, 1903.—"I received trial box of Doan's Kidney Pills. They did me lots of good. I can now go to bed and lie on my right side. The pain there is all gone, also the stomach distress and belching of gas is all stopped, with the use of two boxes."—Mrs. E. S. BEMM, R. F. D. No. 2, Reiding, Mich.

CHAPTER VI.
GARDEN LOUIE.
On the terrace the girl leaned and looked over at the garden and its golden occupant. To the eyes of Villon her beauty had never seemed rarer, and the wild passion which had prompted him to spin his very soul into a net for her, had become a delicious strength of hope. He stared at her as a worshiper might stare at some sudden vision of a long dreamed of goddess. He felt as if he were standing at the steps, soft-footed, and came and stood before him.

"My lord, there is a lady there who does not appear to be a woman, but a goddess. Villon turned his gaze unwillingly from the gracious apparition above him to the rooster below."

"Remember, my lord," he said, very softly, "that you are Francois of Courtenay, and that you are a noble and constant of France, newly come to Paris from the court of his majesty of Provence. Remember this as if it were written in letters of gold upon the wall of iron. Forget all else. The king commands it."

The words sounded duly enough on Villon, but he showed no interest in the contemplation of his queen, but at length he served to convince him of the truth of her own words.

"I may be a fool, but I did not clap you into prison. Heaven forbid!" "A curious look came into the girl's eyes."

"Your voice sounds familiar, Monsieur. Had I ever the honor to serve you?" "Villon drew away from her. He felt suddenly body-sick and soul-sick; sorry for the woman and sorry for himself."

"Who knows?" he answered. The girl laughed and turned aside. "Who cares? What are you going to do with me?"

"Set you free, my delicate bird of prey. Those wild wings were never meant for clipping under a cage. Is there anything I can do to please you?"

"What has come to Master Francois Villon?" "Why do I hear when we were snared last night. But he did not share our prison and he is not with us now. Do you live?"

"Villon hesitated for a moment before speaking. "He lives. He is banished from Paris, but he lives."

Huguette clasped her hands in gratitude. "The sweet saints be thanked!" she said; and there was that in her voice which made the simple words sound very sincere to Villon's ears.

"What do you care for the fate of this fellow?" "I am a fool, I believe I love him." "I cannot tell you, Messire. A look in his eyes, a trick of his voice—the something—the nothing that makes a wo-

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS.

Mistress (to new servant): "There are two things, Mary, about which I am very particular. They are truthfulness and obedience."

Mary: "Yes'm, and when you tell me to say you're not in when a person calls that you're not in, I will say you're not in."
