Save dollars in fuel

You cannot afford to say to yourself "My old stove will have to do this winter." The old stove is eating up the price of a new stove every year. Not only that, but on top of the cost is the unsatisfactory result it gives.

Cole's Hot Blast is the Modern Heater

It produces an even temperature because it is airtight and burns all the gases in the fuel with the patented Hot Blast Draft. Soft coal is half gas. This is the great fuel saver. Fire keeps over night. No extremes of heat and cold. The smokeproof feed door is a great feature.

If you want to keep your plants from freezing and enjoy the luxury of getting up in warm rooms every morning without kindling new fires, investigate Cole's Hot Blast to-day. With every stove goes this

GUARANTEE

We guarantee every stove to remain absolutely airtight as long as used.

We guarantee a uniform heat day and night, with soft coal, slack, siftings or hard coal.

We guarantee that the rooms can be heated from one to two hours each morning with the soft coal put in the stove the evening before.

We guarantee the feed door to be smoke-proof, and that the stove will hold fire with soft coal thirty-six hours without attention.

We guarantee a saving of one-third in fuel over any lower draft stove of the same size.

The above guarantee is made with the understanding that the stove be operated according to directions and set up with a good flue.

Bert Brown for Postmaster.
The DEMOCRAT understands that Bert Brown's scheme in selling at Carroll and moving to Wayne is to be an active candidate for the Wayne post-office. W. H. McNeal is also a candidate for reappointment, and as he is in and Bert is out, there will no doubt be an interesting scramble for the job. Postmaster McNeal's present term does not expire until March 20, 1906, so there is plenty of time to prepare for the fracas.

The "Beggars Prince" comic opera Tuesday night was a peach of a play and delighted a large audience. G. Byron Frost, as "Fm Diavolo," was immense in more ways than one. The company is made up of good people all the way through. What tickled the "gallery gods" was the disrobing act of Zerlina, the innkeeper's pretty and buxom daughter; but it fairly shocked people like the well, DEMOCRAT man for instance. Wednesday, Sunday night engagement, is the place for Zerlina. She can take 'em all off.

'Rah! For the Rosebud.

I herewith wish to express myself as to the famous and much advertised Rosebud country, which doubtless will be of much interest to my many friends and acquaintances in and around Wayne, Neb. My brother, Wm. was quite lucky in the drawing that that came off last summer, it being 182, thus enabling him to file on No. 151. He located on a fine quarter two miles south of the new town of Gregory, which is the third town out on the reservation, 35 miles northwest of Bonesteel, the other towns intervening being Herrick and Burke. Those towns at the present time are growing very fast.

I also registered but drew too high a number. The 13th of Dec. I went to the Rosebud country and bought a relinquishment for $525. Besides this amount I am to pay the government $4 per acre. William and myself have our quarters joining, thus making the north half of section 26, T. 97, R. 78, and a fine half section it is.

The country surrounding the new town of Gregory is of the very best, laying almost perfectly level, with the exception of a township northwest of town which is hilly. The soil is a deep rich black loam, not a particle of sand, and a good clay subsoil. Good water can be had, as a general rule, at a depth of from 90 to 60 feet and oftentimes at 20 feet. My honest and candid opinion is that the future prospects of the Rosebud country is very promising and bright. During the year 1904 buildings and improvements to the enormous amount of almost a quarter of a million dollars were expended in the town of Bonesteel. The year 1905 will see still greater improvements at that place. All this certainly speaks well for the Rosebud country. Just now there is considerable talk of an electric railroad running through the country. Land at present is selling on an average of from $35 to $40 per acre around Bonesteel, which is on the border of the reservation, and that is in the face of the fact that the quality of soil around Gregory is even better than at Bonesteel.

There are a number of relinquishments for sale at from $500 to $600 representing the best quarters and close to town. Now is the chance for the poor renter as well as the man of wealth for investment. Will you, reader, find yourself among the number, who a few years hence will feel inclined to kick yourself for not taking advantage of the opportunity that presented itself at this time? Let us hope that such will not be the case; also let us not forget we have the proverbial kicker of today, as always is the case in instances of this kind, who are instrumental in circulating ill and erroneous reports, as to the possibilities, resources and future prospects of the country.

Yours truly for the future prosperity of the Rosebud,
ANDREW ELIASON
Wakefield, Neb., R. F. D. No. 2.

Farmers Telephone Company line 199, held their annual meeting at Abbott's Schoolhouse Jan, the 7th. 22 out of 23 members were present and instructed the directors to incorporate this company under the laws of the state, as the Wayne and Dixon county Telephone Co., and also adopted constitutions and by-laws.

The Shares of this Co., are fixed at $43.00 each. The Secretary's report showed a cash balance in treasury of $185.80, the officers were re-elected and instructed to put on another wire to divide the phones. A year ago 9 farmers met at Wayne and decided to build a line of almost 9 miles to get their 9 men, and now we have 23 members and will get several more. I think in a year from now, every farmer will have telephone connection in your county as it does him more good, than any other machine he's got on the farm.

Great Sieges of History

Nothing More Clearly Shows the Evolution of the Art of Warfare Than the Siege of Port Arthur.

In nothing, perhaps, is the gradual evolution of the art of war more indicated than in operations against fortified places. The relative preponderance of defense over offense, the efficiency of arms or of fortifications as been increased from age to age, and the progress of the most interesting studies in history. The further we recede from the present, the longer the time that it takes to have been. The art of war, however, has not been invented, and the explosive bombs were the most potent weapons for the most part stronger than the attack, with some few exceptions in favor of the more advanced nations, like the Romans, when opposed to barbarians.

Herodotus tells that the siege of Azotus, one of the five royal cities of Phoenicia, by Ptolemy, king of Egypt, lasted twenty-nine years. The siege of Troy, about twelve centuries before Christ, the Greeks, who had vowed to recover Helen, the wife of Menelaus, and to avenge her abduction, endured nine years. While the accounts must be regarded as very largely fabulous, it yet may be accepted as illustrating the progress of the art of warfare. The walls of Troy were not designed to repel attack by any really modern power. The Greeks, however, to-hand combat, the chief episodes of the great Greek epic. The place where the walls of Troy were built, by a childlike piece of strategy, by Nebuchadnezzar, 538 B. C., besieged Troy thirteen years before it fell. Caesar, after the capture of the city by Babylon by diverting the water of the Proprius and marching his army through the land, and then by a walk and into the city, where Belshazzar was feasting and carousing. Famous Defense of Syracuse. The Romans under Archimedes, 214 B. C., besieged the Sicilian city of Syracuse. His defense is chiefly due to the wonderful engineering and mathematical genius of Archimedes, the Sicilian. For eight months he successfully defended the city against the Roman army. He invented the "helioscope," or "city-burner," a wooden tower 150 feet high, which projected a beam of light on the Roman ships. Richelieu Coops Up the Huguenots. Richelieu, the stronghold of the French Calvinists, withstood several years of siege by the army of Louis XIII. Richelieu, the cardinal statesman, who solved to prove that he also was a high strategist. The siege of Richelieu was begun in July 1627. The Huguenots in the town were supported by the English fleet and army. Louis XIII, the English forces withdrew. Richelieu, who was besieged by the Huguenots, the next year, undertook a work intended at once to buffet foreign enemies and to crush the Huguenots. A vast wall was constructed along the whole front of the town, with a bastion at each end. The wall was commanded by batteries.

Conquest of Jerusalem. Seventy years after the birth of Christ the Jews were driven from the conquests of Jerusalem took place. In consequence of the "Great Revolt," Titus afterward, in 70 A. D., razed the city to the ground. The material means employed by him were those familiar to the Jews of that time, but added to these were the catapults, which were used to bombard the city. The Jews were crucified before the walls in full view of their countrymen. These stubbornly refused to submit to the Roman ruler to a yet more horrible death. Whole families perished of hunger, and the bodies of the dead were thrown into the streets. The siege lasted about three months. Metz and Paris. In the Franco-German war of 1870-1 the siege of Metz and that of Paris were two great tactical spectacles, and they had a certain dependence upon each other. Metz was the key to the frontier, and Paris was the key to the interior. Metz was the key to the frontier, and Paris was the key to the interior. Parma's Great Feast. During the struggle of the Venetians to free themselves from the yoke of Austria, the city of Parma was the most famous of all sieges. The Venetians, under the command of the Duke of Modena, laid siege to Parma in 1734. The city was defended by the French, under the command of the Duke of Parma. The siege lasted for several months, and the city was finally captured by the French. The Duke of Parma was executed, and the city was incorporated into the French Empire.

Other Notable Sieges. The siege of Bunker's Hill, 1776, was a tactical masterpiece. The siege was finally lifted on September 18, 1805. The British, under the command of General Mifflin, were defeated by the Continental Army, under the command of General Mifflin. The siege of Fort Mifflin, 1777, was a tactical masterpiece.

Grant Takes Vicksburg. In the Civil War of 1861-5 this city there were two remarkable sieges. The first was the siege of Vicksburg, which was captured by General Grant on July 4, 1863. The second was the siege of Fort Mifflin, which was captured by General Mifflin on September 18, 1805.

Petersburg and Richmond. The siege of Petersburg was one of the largest military operations known in the history of the world. It lasted for seven months, from June 1862 to February 1865. The Union forces, under the command of General Grant, were defeated by the Confederate forces, under the command of General Lee. "No, no more than you," answered Pietro with a slight smile, and a look of the most terrible fighting of modern times took place on its steep slopes. "Do you think of me when you don't see me?" "Sometimes." "And when you do see me?" "I think of you as much as I can." "I ask you no more questions." "What matters it to me, and I'll ask you no more at present." "You do?" "Yes, she replied, touched by his earnestness. "I care for you very much."

"You do?" he cried out as if this admission caused him the greatest surprise, for by that strange contradiction which governs all true lovers, he would deprecate himself in his own eyes in proportion to the force with which he loved her. Miss Rose Hennessy, well known as a poetess and elocutionist, of Lexington, Ky., tells how she was cured of uterine inflammation and ovaritis by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have been so blessedly helped through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel I had but to acknowledge it, hoping that it may help some other woman suffering as I did. For years I enjoyed the best of health and thought that I would always do so. I attended parties and receptions until I suddenly and suddenly I discovered that I was troubled with uterine inflammation and ovaritis. I suffered excruciating pains and kept getting worse. My attention was called to your Vegetable Compound and the wonderful cures it had performed, and I made up my mind to try it. After a few days and see what it would do for me. Within one month I felt much better, and at the close of the second I was entirely well. I have advised a number of my lady friends to use it, and all express themselves as well satisfied with the results as I was."—Miss Rose Noma Hennessy, 410 S. Broadway, Lexington, Ky.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove beyond a question that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble and at once, by removing the cause, and restoring the organs to a normal and healthy condition.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—About two years ago I consulted a physician about my health which had become so wretched that I was no longer able to be about. I had severe backache, bearing-down pains, pains across the abdomen, was very nervous and irritable, and this trouble grew each month. The physician prescribed for me, but I soon discovered that he was unable to cure me, and I then decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and soon found that it was doing me good. My appetite was returning, the pains disappearing, and the general benefits were well marked. You cannot realize how pleased I was, and after taking the medicine for only three months, I found that I was completely cured of my trouble, and have been well and hearty ever since, and no more fear the monthly period, as it now passes without pain to me. My very truly, Miss Pearl Ackens, 927 North Sumner St., Nashville, Tenn."

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health more than a million women, you cannot afford to do without it. If you are ill, do not hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and write Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Her advice is free and helpful. Write to-day. Delay may be fatal.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove the absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

The New Walk. Washington Times: A new walk is coming in with the new year. It is at ready hand, but it will take until the dawn of 1905 to become perfect in it. It is different from any other walk that has been seen, though in certain ways it resembles the Grecian feud, which was the ambition of our mothers and grandmothers in 1870.

The new walk requires three things: Wide shoulders and a little waist; thick-lined shoes with wide soles; and a certain carriage which is known as the military cut. The girl who is getting the 1905 walk would do well to visit some nearby millinery store and study the subject. If she can get a West Point cadet to teach her so much the better. The new walk will be the result of certain improvements and changes in the dress of the new year.

To get ready to walk stand erect and throw back the shoulders. Now expand the chest, and take care to hold the body down to your sides, not out. Now draw in the abdomen, and the feet light and walk. The first time you try this you will feel like a trussed chicken. The second time it will not be quite so bad. After while you will get the hang of it, just as you get the hang of the bicycle, and you will be able to walk it all right.

SENSITIVE ANIMALS. Washington Star: A noted trainer of thoroughbreds, who is always in Washington the other day to pick out stable room for his string at the Benning track for the forthcoming fall meeting, was talking of the sulking propensities of a certain race horse. He now runs out of a metropolitan track. "If the people behind that horse could only see what is ailing him," said the trainer, "it would be worth tens of thousands of dollars to them. He could easily remedy whatever little matter it might be that is causing the horse to curdle up in his midriff, and then, with his wrong dressed, he'd go right ahead with good races until the end of the season." "You often hear the remark that the thoroughbred horses are sensitive animals, but I don't think that they're as whimsical as children. Their likes and dislikes are formed all of a sudden. These children, and as often as not a thoroughbred horse has the same sort of distinctive guidance. A sudden illness of a child, or a child's play, for example, a naturally snaky, treacherous man has no more change of mind than a horse. A good bred race horse has to gain the confidence of a child.

"There is something in both the horse and the child that tells them that the bad hearted man isn't right." That something, I suppose, is the instinctive ever wider range of whims. That's why every good trainer studies the likes and dislikes of his horses in a change. "About ten years ago I trained a colt of my own, who was a calm and self-contained as a priest, except for one thing. He would tolerate the slightest touch with a beard.

"I was pure nervousness, of course, but you can't tell just what it was. I heard about children being marked with some trait or characteristic that would last all their lives, and I thought that if a horse had any such trait, it would be his beard. I had a horse named 'Beard' that had a habit of putting his mouth into a man's beard, and I thought that if I had a horse with a habit of putting his mouth into a man's beard, it would be his beard. THE ANNUAL FEEDING PROBLEM. While every farmer who keeps a stock of animals, or more particularly of horses, knows that it is necessary to keep the stock in proper condition through the winter months, many farmers at this time are at a loss as to how to do it. There are two methods of depending upon one, or at most two, crops for feeding purposes, and the partial or total failure of either of these crops is frequently the result of some unseasonable change in the weather. The farmer who is not prepared to meet such a contingency is in a very bad position. There is a very large proportion of the ensilage fed to stock because of the certainty of its production. Echo of the Sunday Sun.

Old timers will well remember Jim Lewis, of Sunday Sun fame, and who was formerly editor of the Wayne Gazette. The following concerning Jim's troubles in Chicago, in last Sunday's Sioux City Journal, will interest the people who used to be both amused and alarmed at Jim's antics: Long haired J. L. Lewis, of Sunday Sun fame, who was a notorious character in Sioux City for some years, and who since his departure from this place has managed to keep in the limelight a good part of the time, is in more troubles in Chicago.

Paula Hermes, who may be either Mrs. Lewis or Mrs. George Watson, is the cause of Lewis's most recent trouble—and by the way, the former Sunday Sun man now effects the more poetical sobriquet of Leon Lewis and claims to be a detective for the Citizens' Alliance, a reform organization of the Windy City.

Justice Caverly was expected to decide on Thursday whether Miss Hermes was Mrs. Lewis or Mrs. Watson, or whether she is married at all, but the case was postponed to next Thursday.

Lewis said he had learned that "this girl had been foolish enough to go through the marriage service with Watson," and that he would take the matter up to a higher court.

Watson, who lives at 51 Bryan park, then became angry and declared he would cause Lewis' arrest for false imprisonment.

Lewis told the story of his alleged marriage. He said that on January 29, 1903, he secured the license and wanted a ceremony performed, but the young woman refused and desired a contract marriage. Lewis contends the contract is "on file," and will be produced in court.

Lewis got into trouble in Sioux City over association with a girl whom he claimed by a "common law marriage," and the case, the testimony in which was not of the most pleasing character, was fought out in U. S. Whitney's justice court.

Up To Date. (State Journal)

"We farmers sell our hogs at four cents a pound and buy them back at pork at fourteen," said a disgusted farmer the other day. A little inquiry will reveal the fact that the assertion is altogether too true. That is just what many farmers are doing.

The complainant may have intended his remarks as a thrust at the packers and retailers of meat. It may serve that purpose, but it is also no gentle thrust at the farmers themselves. The farmer has little enough to say about what he sells for his live stock. When he ships his hogs to Chicago or Omaha however, the packers butcher them—and ship them back to the retailer in his nearest town, and then buys them as pork with the freight to market and back, the packers profit, the commission man's profit, the stock buyer's profit, and the retailer's profit, all added to what he received for his hog. It looks as if he wanted to be robbed. Nothing more westerly could possibly be imagined, especially in view of the fact that nearly every farmer knows how to butcher a hog and preserve the meat. If he does not know how he could easily learn. It is conceivable that if two or three million farmers in the middle west were to kill their own meat the effect on the hog market might be to their liking.

The Smoot investigation, in which the Utah senatorship is the bone of contention, brings up an interesting question, though the points involved are rather abstruse for any body who is not a lawyer. Nearly every day's papers call attention to the immigration question in one way or another, and this subject is being discussed with a great deal of seriousness in city clubs. The question divides itself into two parts, the question of immigration restriction, and that of naturalization. The recent indictment by a grand jury of Senator Mitchell of Oregon, coupled with the fact that this is the third member of the senate who has been indicted during the present term of congress, brings up the question of whether the popular election of senators ought not to be hurried on, and nearly every newspaper contains in its news or editorial columns evidence bearing on the question. As a question for debate this is hardly satisfactory, however, as it is extremely difficult to make a good showing for the negative side.

The question of a parcels post is one that will attract a good two sided discussion. There are country merchants who fear to enlarge their business because they feel the menace of a parcels post, and there are farmers a plenty who would like to make use of the rural delivery of mail to do a part of their shopping. These different views will produce a warm exchange of opinions. Other disputed questions in great number and variety can easily be drawn from the newspapers.

The question of free commercial alcohol, which has been discussed in this column is a good one to look into. A committee of manufacturers in New York is urging the measure, and are glad to furnish their side of the argument to anyone who is interested. The old question of the railroad subsidies is coming up in the Philippines, and some interesting American history could be brought out in a discussion of the advisability of such expenditures. The practice of congress in sending out annually several hundred thousand dollars worth of seeds to their constituents might be taken in hand, in case anybody could be found with sufficient ingenuity to devise a defense of the practice. The woman's suffrage question is more insistent than ever before, and the growing participation of woman in public and commercial affairs gives a broader basis for a discussion of the question than has could be found a few years ago.

Behold how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. Albion has two of the best weekly newspapers in Nebraska, the Argus and the News. One paper is populist in faith, the other republican. The common conception of newspaper practice would keep editors Ladd and Poynter in a state of constant hostilities. How little this applies to the Albion editors is indicated by the following announcement in one of the papers last week: "Commencing with next week the News will be issued on Wednesday of each week. As we shall go to press on Tuesday evening, all adver-

A RAGE FOR LIFE.

Spurring his jaded horse to renewed efforts when the animal should be refreshed with proper food and rest, is about as sensible as prescribing nerve tonics, alcoholic compounds, coca mixtures and cocktails which only sap the already weakened nervous system. Neither does it do to put the nerves to sleep with narcotics. When you feel worn-out, broken down, jaded, and feel the effects of brain tire as well as nerve weakness, sleeplessness and fatigue, take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a tonic which will do you lasting good, build you up, increase your appetite and strength and improve the condition of the blood. When the blood is impoverished the nerves feel the effect. Nervousness in nine cases out of ten is the "cry of the starved nerves for food."

It has been seven months since using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I only used three bottles of the medicine when it made me feel like a new man," writes S. A. Miller, D.D. (former of Mr. Amos Rice, R. D. 10, Dayton, Ohio. "I had doctored with two local physicians without benefit. I felt all worn out, and had an awful misery in my back for two years but noticed a change for the better when I began using your Golden Medical Discovery."

To gain knowledge of your own body—in sickness and health—send for the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser. A book of 1000 pages. Send 25 cents in stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address, Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

HOPE

By William Jennings Bryan. Hope presides over the year's birth, and bids us to be of good cheer. "Old things are passing away; behold all things are become new"—is a greeting which contains infinite encouragement. The page is clean; we can write what we will upon it. Memory whispers, Make it a brighter page than the last one, and Hope answers, I will. Hope is the beginning of reform; and who has passed beyond its need? None so good that they may not improve; none so bad that they might not be worse; none so young but that some false steps have already been taken; none so old but that the remnant of life is worth still further refining.

To-day illustrates both the turning over of a new leaf and growth in righteousness. He was 48 years old when he exchanged the rewards of literature for the delights of moral philosophy, and for twenty-nine years his voice, more and more distinct above the hum of business, the discord of politics, and the clash of arms, has been repeating to the uttermost parts of the earth: "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart and thy neighbor as thyself."

Hope stands next to love in the influence which it exerts. With it man's possible helplessness ceases fixed limitations; without it, his power for evil is almost boundless. Vice tor Hugo has defined the mob as "the human race of misery," and misery might be defined as hopeless suffering. Hope enables us to bear our trials with patience. Might is but the beginning of the way to one who awaits the dawn of the day itself is dark to one to whom the sun is hidden.

We owe it to others as well as to ourselves to make the most of our opportunities, for "no one liveth unto himself." Our lives are so interwoven with the lives about us that no one can fall without hurting his comrades and no one can resist temptation without strengthening his fellows. Through hope we fix our eyes upon the ideal and then we endeavor to make our lives one long ascent toward the realization of that ideal.

No conception of life is a worthy one that is not broad enough to include both the mortal and the immortal and no ideal is a noble one that does not lead to the harmonious development of body, head and heart. The body can not be neglected for it is the earthly jernement of the mind and the soul. It must be strung to do its master's work. The food, the drink, the apparel, the exercise and the recreation that fit the body for the maximum of usefulness are desirable—this is the test.

Any less is insufficient, any more would be harmful. All habits of body or mind that contribute to one's usefulness—and all habits either help or hinder—are good habits, any habit which impedes one's progress is indefensible and should be abandoned.

If to "a sound mind in a sound body" we add a sound heart we have a basis upon which to build the highest type of manhood and womanhood. Every consideration of self, of family, of nation and of church impels us to dedicate each new year to greater endeavor and to larger service.

The most practical article on the subject of farm drainage we have ever read was published in this week's Homestead. It is entitled, "Location of Tile Drains," and is from the pen of Prof. W. H. Stevenson, soil specialist of the Iowa Agricultural College. Professor Stevenson points out the errors that men fall into in locating tile drains and gives directions for the location of drains so that water is removed with the least possible outlay for labor and for tile. Special attention is given to adequate outlets and to the location of drains in draws and gull-ways. The Homestead, which prints a number of such special articles by experts in its issues, is making itself indispensable to the up-to-date farmer. We are glad to see circulation increasing in Wayne county, for it is the best and most practical farm paper in the United States, especially for farmers in the corn belt. We are glad to help along the cause of good farming by receiving Homestead subscriptions at this office. Subscribe today.

Am I Right? For fifteen years I have catered to the public, a dispenser of the best wines, whiskies, brandies and beers that can be bought in the markets. Have tried to please every patron, and respected every man who has been too good for the saloon but has gotten his liquors elsewhere. Now we have put up every tribute exacted—and they have been excessive—by town and state, and feel like asking the people who use intoxicants to patronize the place that deserve your trade so long as we give you only the best goods at the lowest prices. Ten or fifteen per cent of every dollar you spend at my place goes to educate your children and to pay for public improvements. From a moral standpoint this may seem like a peculiar condition of affairs, but it is what the people voted for—don't blame the saloon-keeper for it. Well, this is a long speech for me to make, so come-in and take something—a tin roof.
