Letter From Ed. Stephens.

Salinas, California, Febr., 6, 1905.
Dear Friend Walt:
I will write you a few lines and give you a brief description of Cal. We have located in Salinas city in Monterey Co. Salinas valley is one of the greatest small grain countries in California. Wheat, oats and barley being raised in abundance, they don't raise but a very little corn here and that is in the mountains. They can't raise corn in this valley, it is all nutkins. Everything sells by the pound here, no bushels. Wheat is $2.50 per hundred pounds, oats is $1.73 per hundred, barley is $1.85 per hundred, corn when you can get it is $1.85 per hundred, potatoes are $1.85 per hundred. The potatoes here are called the Salinas Burbank, they took the premium at the St. Louis World's Fair. They raise all kinds of fruit here and the best is shipped east. Fruit is higher here than there. They have a fruit here called logan berry they are a graft between a Blackberry and a Raspberry, and are larger than a Blackberry and are more delicious than either. Strawberries are on the market now and are 20cts per basket. We have an orange tree in our yard and when we pick oranges we think of our eastern friends. We have all kinds of garden vegetables in the market now and vegetable wagons that come to the houses three times a week. The farmers are all through seeding here and small grain is up fine. The Speckles sugar factory is located here and it is the largest sugar factory in the world and all the eastern people when touring in California visit this factory. The sugar is made from sugar beets. They raise thousands of acres of sugar beets here every year. The pulp is sold to the stock men by the car load to fatten their cattle with.

Salinas is a pretty little town of four thousand inhabitants, has four schools one high school, 8 churches, 48 lodges, 4 hotels and several first class dry goods and grocery stores and four saloons. All stores are closed at 6 o'clock sharp excepting Saturday night. Unfurnished houses are about as cheap here as back there. The houses are more modern here, the yards are beautiful, the roses, Fuchsia and lilacs are in bloom all winter. They publish two dailies and one weekly paper here. There is a clinic composed of several hundred people and they are now celebrating their New Year. There is a lot of Japanese here and they are employed mostly by the farmer because they are steady and work better. They are employed all together in the best fields and on fruit ranches. Living is much higher here than there. Butter is 45c a pound which is 1 pound and 8 ounces, eggs are 35c per dozen have been 40c. We like it here fine and would in fact rather live here among the roses that back there in blizzards and cyclones. My wife gets a little home sick but she will get over that after a while. Wm. Worthington are well and doing fine. Give my regards to all the boys.
ED. STEPHENS.

This Looks Like 30 Cents.

Again the Fairmont Creamery Co. leads with 30 cents for butter fat and others follow because they have to. Our coupon checks are payable every week at our station with P. L. Miller & Son at Wayne. Don't let our competitors scare you into taking less for your cream or giving poor service. We are the Oldest Creamery Co. in the state and refer you to your banker who has Bradstreet or Dun's commercial report for our financial rating. Compare our prices, of 27c first half of January, 28c last half; 28c for first 10 days of February, 30c since Feb. 10th, and if you have not been getting these prices you have been selling too cheap. Bring your cream to P. L. Miller & Son and get the top prices all the time and pay every week and when we give you the price all the time in advance. Yours for buttering the dairy business in Nebraska,
THE FAIRMONT CREAMERY CO.

Henry B. Kenhauser and wife came home from W. Point last Friday, the former some better then, but has been quite ill again during the past week.

The highest priced hog ever brought into this country - one Jas. Hurst bought at the Blair sale recently, a Duroc-Jersey sow, called Glendale Nell, that was knocked down for $150. M. S. Moats also got some high priced ones at $82.50 and $60 each.

Norfolk Press: The betrothal of Miss Emma Zikowski, of this city, and Mr. Max North from near St. Anthony, Idaho, is announced. Mr. Maroth formerly lived near Hoskins, but went west with the colony which, under the leadership of George and Chris Harrigfield, settled in the Fall River valley, in Idaho. The boys on Fall River will probably meet Max with a band when he returns.

W. O. Gamble is very enthusiastic over Texas and claims it is the best place there is for a young man to get a start. Mr. Gamble has some fine views of places down south that look good to a fellow when the thermometer sinks to 30 below.

F. J. Haas, brother of Mrs. A. A. Waller, was up from Council Bluffs the past week, visiting relatives and looking after the family estate.

The city clerk was order to draw a warrant for balance due the Triumph Electric Co. on dynamo. One thousand dollars was transferred from Street and Alley to General fund. The suit of Mrs. Pat Dixie against the city for alleged injuries due to bad sidewalks was discussed and decided to fight it out through district court. Clerk Witter says that if the lady wins the suit, which is for one thousand dollars he will sue the city for five thousand because of that "bead" put in his leg last spring.

On account of the weather Dr. Clark postponed his visit to Wayne until Monday Febr., 27.

In renewing his subscription to the DEMOCRAT Simon Feltz writes from Butte, Neb., that they like it well in their new home, had good crops, raised 3000 bushels of oats and as much corn and did well generally.

The ladies of the Catholic church will hold a bazaar and supper on Monday April 24 at the Opera House.

Speaking about telephone jokes, Everett Sherman says that one day a German out on their rural life was having an awful time to get central, and after numerous trials he heard a voice that sounded familiar to his ears, and excitedly hollered: "Be dis de middle?" "No," answered the lass, "this is central." Martin Muth probably knows just how the error of speech was made.

Randolph Reporter: A. G. Hanssen and N. Hansen, two young men from Wayne, have purchased the meat market, formerly operated by H. Goplard. Both are enterprising young men and will undoubtedly put a vim into the business that will make it a success.

Carl Baker and fiancee had a difficult time getting to town last Tuesday to get married, but of course love found a way through the snow drifts. Quite a little party assembled at St. Mary's church to witness the ceremony and later, all those who could urave the elements, attended a reception at the home of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Westerloose. There isn't a handsomer couple in the state than Mr. and Mrs. Carl Baker, and they have the health, habits, physical and financial requisites to enjoy a happy married life.

The Carroll checker players came to Wayne last Friday and defeated the local team by a small margin. Sam Hillbert of Carroll carried off the honors, winning eleven games and losing two.

Banker Rollie Ley made a business visit to Sioux City last Saturday and came near having to locate in the Corn Palace city for keeps.

The Nebraska state legislature got down to its level this week and passed a bill prohibiting monkeys working overtime. The measure should go into active service at once; the Nebraska public is getting awfully tired of the work the monkeys at Lincoln have been doing.

The Presbyterians will have a bully good time of it before they get their pipe organ. A. B. Clark has donated them the proceeds of the sale of one of his bulls, to be sold at the big sale on March 4th, to go towards buying the pipe organ. The animal will no doubt bring a fancy price, being a Presbyterian.

Mr. Walden has bought a saloon at Meadow Grove and will move there, his family, however remaining in Wayne until May 1st. Mr. Walden is an exceptionally good man, of good habits, pleasant disposition and business integrity. He is really too good for the business he follows, but perhaps it is possible for him to elevate, his following, rather than let it precipitate him, from a moral and social standpoint.

C. A. Grothe informs the DEMOCRAT that Mrs. Grothe is recovering her health in California and she and her mother are having a fine time, being now at Ponona.

G. P. Pitchcock, the tree man, is home for a few days visit. He tells the DEMOCRAT his son, Frank, is now keeping books for an Omaha house and getting along nicely.

J. W. Martin, a real estate of Council Bluffs, was snow bound here several days the past week and put in his time visiting his brother-in-law, Dan Logan, and talking hotel business. Mr. Martin says he has a party in sight who will put up a $40,000 hotel if the city of Wayne gives him a site for it. The Commercial club may cite Mr. Martin to appear at a letter date for his site if the club sees anything in sight to rectify to him. Other towns have put up a dammie more than Martin asks as a bonus, and if we, who want a real fine hotel, can get the acid out of our eye-sight we'll put up the hotel site.

Prof. Gregg got off, what the student term the joke of the season, the other day in making an address before the whole school. The professor was telling them about the habits of the prehistoric brutes that roamed over these plains before the Nebraska Normal College went into business. One particular animal, 60 feet long and 15 feet high, ate entirely of vegetable life, and, continued the professor, "it must have kept him hustling just like a college student to get enough to keep him alive," or words to that effect. The students roared their appreciation of the joke on college fare, while President Pile stroked his chin in thoughtful silence.

Speaking about Tom Steele's original and forceful manner of doing things C. A. Chace says that one day Tom sold a snow shovel to somebody, forgetting who it was when he went to charge it. Rather than get beat out of the price of the tool, Tom charged it to fifteen of his best customers and said he'd find out the 1st of the month who owed him for it. But the joke was on Tom for every one of the patrons paid the bill without the semblance of a kick, and rather than acknowledge what he had done Tom, very reluctantly of course, pocketed the whole cheese.

Just as a suggestion the DEMOCRAT might say that those who are interested in "Embryonic Wayne" might find it convenient to preserve the copies of the paper containing the story, or better still cut out the columns of it and paste them neatly in a scrap book. The story will be of considerable length as near as the DEMOCRAT can now size it up, probably run for several months. We also hope those who are asked to assist in its development in the way of photographs, etc., will do so, and not allow any neglect nor ill will towards the editor hereof prevent them from so doing. The DEMOCRAT may have reason to believe that this story will be a "good thing" for all the people, and claims no credit whatever for making it a valuable historical relic.

The rural mail carriers had the time of their tours the past week or two, and from what the DEMOCRAT has learned the farmers have not taken much interest in opening roads for the mail men. The people along these mail routes are supposed to keep the roads in condition for travel or the carriers are not presumed to go out with the mails.

Last week the DEMOCRAT forgot to insert a "found" local. It is either a lady's belt or garter, I don't know which, but a lady who saw me pick it up says "if it's a garter the owner must have an awful big"—and then she cut it out. Well, it's pretty small for a belt—for some people—but the party who can wear it for either its right in style, built according to Parisian fashions.

THOS. J. STEELE & CO. LIVE STOCK BROKERS. Sioux City, Iowa, Febr., 16th 1905. DEAN GOLDIE: I received an issue of the "Democrat" which contained a photo of one Tom Steele and a write up of his life at Wayne, Neb., written only as one Goldie could write it. But what pains me is that I received it through the Justice of the Peace's office and occupied by an old enemy of mine, with markings at the margin as follows: "Oh ha! ha! ha!"

I felt quite sure that you desired all the historical events of the early days of Wayne. You can publish the enclosed letter and mail the original to the party addressed. The old residents will remember the event but you young kids can not as you were not born at that time. Yours Religiously, THOMAS JEFFERSON STEELE. Sioux City, Iowa, Febr. 16th 1905. Mr. Benjamin F. Feather—Wayne, Neb.,

Old Kind Friend and Kindly Neighbor. I see you are up to your old tricks again. I received a copy of the "Wayne Democrat" wrapped in a letter envelop emanating from your office. I thought I had entirely broken you of practical jokes by milking your cow and helping you catch turkeys almost a quarter of a century ago, but it seems not.

It may be necessary for me to get the fellows' photograph that sat over that board a few minutes before it was placed under the turkey box, prior to your attempted theft of a poor man's Thanksgiving turkey, and have it made in a wax cut and published in the "Democrat" as a remembrance of the character and habits of the present and esteemed Justice of the Peace. I am almost compelled to do this to save my honor to my posterity. Yours in sadness, T. J. Steele.

"Man wants but little here below!" In that I take no stock. If half of what they say is true. Of that hoggist Johann Hooh—Cherokee Democrat.

But Hooh is up against a "hoop" A bunch of them, at best; He only wants a little now Since he got in at rest.

By dad, I always figured Wayne was up to date in everything that goes to making a "live" town, but the following dispatch from Schuyler, in last Saturday's World-Herald, puts Wayne off the map: "Last Friday one of the leading business men left town on account of a young woman's threat to bring pro-

Of Interest to Mothers

Thousands of little ones die every year of croup. Most of them could have been saved by a few doses of Foley's Honey and Tar, and every family with children should keep it in the house. It contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Mrs. George H. Pickett, San Francisco, Cal., writes: "My baby had a dangerous attack of croup and we thought she would choke to death, but one dose of Foley's Honey and Tar relieved her at once after other remedies had failed. We are never a minute without it in the house."

The Late ARTHUR P. CHILDS, Founder of the WAYNE DEMOCRAT.

whereof he speaks has told me that in the darkest days of storms and "hoppers" they literally "lived off the county," as practically everything that came in was from taxes collected from non-residents. There were to be sure nearly, but not quite enough offices to go around, but they made the most of what there were, and when the cold was most severe and the fuel of course most scarce, they would all adjourn to the Court House and soak up county heat. They have paid it back many times. They have built a county with no one on it. John Bressler delights in telling how he and "Doc" Crawford dug a well, "for the county," of course, and again how, with a somewhat meagre elementary training, "book-taught" himself and qualified himself to, to become County Surveyor. Oh, High school boys, ambitious to overcome obstacles! Think of it! You can appreciate what an obstacle that was. It is worth remembering.

But these people entered into each others lives; into each others joys and sorrows, hopes and fears, to an extent but little known to us and but little understood by our larger world. To many of them no doubt LaPorte is still the "loveliest village of the plain" Some years ago I heard a Wayne man say that she could remember kindnesses received from each and every one of the people who lived there. Pleasant to recall, isn't it?

At the time of my first visit there were two general stores at LaPorte, the one of Britton, Hardinburgh & Johnson shortly moving to Wayne, the other, Hunter & Son, to Wakefield. Britton & Bressler had previously run a general store on the automatic plan. It was successful, I believe, but their method, I think, has not been extensively adopted. This was their somewhat unique plan. Each partner carried a key to the store, and as one of both could of course be found at all times in the Court House during card season, or in the Court House yard during croquet and horseshoe pitching time, the customer had simply to call and get a key, get what he required at the store, and return the key. He would also "charge it" on a scrap of wrapping paper, and drop it in a soap box handily disposed. When he wanted to pay his bill he would rummage around in the soap box, find the bill, take it over to the bank, pay it, and tear it up. This simplified book-keeping. Tom Berry did the buying, he also brought over the freight and carried a key. I have always intended, but neglected to ask what was the use of the key. When the traveling man came along Tom turned him into the store and told him to find out what was needed and the goods were sent. The scheme was simplicity itself; it showed an abiding faith in human nature, was conducive to leisure, which was the great point gained, and no harm done. Even the traveling man, I am told, acted fairly well, although Dan Harrington exhibits "among his treasured possessions" a "Derby" hat of Dutch extraction, vintage 1782; a heritage of the Britton & Bressler store, which might reflect a little on the absolute disinterestedness of aforesaid traveling man, as this style of hat was introduced to Great Britain by Beau Brummell during reign of George III, and designated the "Boston Dip," probably having some reference to the tea episode. Many of the old settlers still recall the time when they adjusted dates as so many years before Britton & Bressler swept out. This memorable event took place some years before the application of dynamite to housecleaning purposes, so they were obliged to resort to the every day pickaxe, hoe and scowp. Jim relates with the enthusiasm of an archeologist how when they were excavating somewhere about the third strata, his pickaxe plucked a can of sardines which some careless customer had evidently dropped. The sardines were dead, of course, but otherwise just as good as new.

I would not "count the day lost," which I spent in LaPorte, if it had served only to introduce me to a man, whom I shall have frequent occasion to refer to, Arthur P. Childs, though my real acquaintance with him began later. "A. P.," as he was known to everyone, was a real character; while somewhat he himself was lacking in that very essential, I don't mean by that, that he lacked principle; far from it. He was actuated by kindness, unselfish, as optimistic as Willittor's store. He used to conduct the business from an easy chair in the front office of the Logan Valley Bank (where the Racket now is) and would call down the wrath of heaven upon any unwary customer who would dare go in his door, and thus disturb his restful occupation. Plumb disturbs up quite often; now lives in Sioux City. Long may he bob!

Early on the following (Saturday) morning, "Trustworthy" and I started out to "look at land." We made an early start with a view of returning in time for dinner and being in town Saturday afternoon. Being much impressed by what Mr. Agler had told me, that the "garden spot" of Wayne county lay between LaPorte and the new town of Wakefield, I requested that we drive in that direction. While Mr. Agler may have been prejudiced in favor of the latter town as regards Wayne, my impression at the time, which has been confirmed later, was that Mr. Agler was perfectly correct. Without disparagement of other parts of Wayne county, I may say that there is no more beautiful stretch of farmland on earth than we drove over that bright, crisp morning. This was the "old settled" part of the county and here and there could be seen groves and young orchards, some of considerable extent and growth. Not far out of LaPorte, on the way east, we drove into a farm yard, in the midst of a nice grove, to look a-vest. If, as a tender-foot, I had come west with the idea of finding the pioneer agriculturist rough, uncouth and illiterate, I was disillusioned; about ten seconds after shaking hands with J. Hamilton Mitchell, "Ham" was a bachelor in those days, one of the best kind of fellows; full of native humor, with an original and at times decidedly vigorous method of expression, and a Democrat, just think of it, and named Hamilton!

When some years later "Ham" married Miss Harrison, a neighbor's daughter, a mild sensation was started in local political circles by the report that "Ham Mitchell had promised to support Harrison." I met Mr. Mitchell again in LaPorte that afternoon and have enjoyed many a chat with him since. We will, I trust, meet him later in this little sketch.

Resuming our way we drove within sight of Wakefield where we could see the depot and a few other buildings completed and many in course of construction, their unpainted sides flashing in the sunlight. Turning towards Wayne we passed the at that time well known farms of Will Sechler and Chris Jensen, and finally reached the farm of our handsome prototype of Fitz Hugh Lee, County Judge Enoch Hunter. "Ene" was living in LaPorte at the time but happened to be there that morning swapping yarns with Oliver H. Burson, who lived on the farm at the time and wore whiskers; so it chanced that I met these two old cronies together for the first time. I have met them many times since, in my glad to say.

"In fire, in lightning and in rain; When shall we three meet again?" Mr. Feather was very insistent in his advocacy of the superior advantages of Wayne and its vicinity, both as to future prospects and present desirability and I am free to confess that he was entirely correct. A few moments later we reached the top of a little knoll and now from "Mountain Abarim," I was gazing on the "Promised Land." In justice to Judge Moses I trust you will not infer that he is writing these sketches. There was indeed much of promise, then and the promise has been fulfilled. But the town—that was not so promising. We could quite clearly make out a few buildings and many others indistinctly. Mr. Feather, in his enthusiasm, remarked: "That town has practically sprung up in a night." The statement would have been more accurate had he said in a day, for I found later that most of the houses dimly seen were haystacks, with which Wayne was literally surrounded. When as now, I "view the passing years," I am inclined to think that at that moment I was looking at the scene, the stage setting of my life; could I with prophetic sense have seen what this retrospect discloses, Keats' immortal lines should have occurred to me:

"Then felt I like some watcher of the skies,
When a new planet swims into his ken;
Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes
He stared at the Pacific—and all his men
Looked at each other with wild surmises—
"Silent upon a peak in Darien."

A Valentine Party
Tuesday evening, Feb. 14, was the scene of a very novel and quaint entertainment at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ley. The invitations were worded: "Chieftain Ley and Squaw, Chieftain Matheny and Squaw request the pleasure of your company at a party, Feb. 14, 1905."

A Little boy Indian attended the door, while host and hostess, attired in full Indian dress, received the guests in the front hall. Up stairs they were met by two squaws who decorated the gentlemen with an Indian head dress containing 8 feathers, representing the number of games to be played. The ladies receiving a string of beads and a number. Each chieftain went to the postoffice, which had been arranged in a corner of the dining room and received a valentine, which had been numbered—in this way partners were found for whist. The score was kept by the losing couple giving a bead and a feather to the winners of each game. Great city was felt for chieftain Welch as he lost all but one feather. Chieftain Kohl winning 19 and Miss Hattie Weber the ladies prize each winner receiving a hand painted plate. The house was decorated throughout in red the "fire water" was served in tin cups from a large kettle hanging from a tripod, bows and arrows being the decoration of this unique corner. After the game was finished the squaws were requested to form in line, step in time, and get a valentine, in this way they found their partners for refreshments, served on wooden plates and consisted of corn bread and weenies, spice cake, coffee and popcorn.

About one half the ladies were in costumes some being very pretty as well as ancient. Only a few of the Chieftains were costumed. Walt Weber having the nicest and best, got up suit of the evening.
Music was enjoyed throughout the evening, discoursed by Messrs. Weber, Fritz and Craven, accompanied by Miss Hattie Weber.

DYNAMIC DISASTER

Ten Thousand Pounds of It Stowed in Mine Exploded, Killing Three and Injuring Many.

Calumet, Mich., Feb. 10.—Ten thousand pounds of dynamite stored under ground in a magazine at the eighth level of No. 3 shaft of the North Kensington mine exploded.

As soon as the explosion occurred the mining officials organized a rescue party, which penetrated the scene of the catastrophe by descending into No. 1 shaft and crossing over through the drift on one of the lower levels.

The relief party succeeded in rescuing the miner who was taken to the surface as soon as possible, where they were revived.

It is feared that four or five other miners are still in the mine. If so they are being searched for.

WAS CURED RAPIDLY

REUMATISM IN TWO WEEKS CURED MASTERED IN FEW WEEKS.

The history of my case is as follows: I was afflicted with rheumatism in the winter of 1902-3. My symptoms were confined to my back by a severe attack of rheumatism.

"After five or six weeks of helplessness and pain," said he, "during which I was receiving regular visits from the doctor, I felt as bad as ever. Just then my mother, a woman eighty years of age, paid me a visit."

"And were you cured as the result of taking her advice?"

"Absolutely none. For a year and three months there has never been the slightest return of the old trouble. For this happy result I am fully indebted to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Women in Our Hospitals

Appalling Increase in the Number of Operations Performed Each Year—How Women May Avoid Them.

Going through the hospitals in our large cities one is surprised to find such a large proportion of the patients lying on those now-white beds women and girls, who are either awaiting or recovering from serious operations.

Why should this be the case? Simply because they have neglected themselves. Ovarian and womb troubles are certainly on the increase among the women of this country—they creep upon them unawares, but every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at left or right of the womb, nervous exhaustion, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the womb or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the ovaries or womb, and if not heeded the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation. When these symptoms manifest themselves, do not depend on a doctor being obliged to go to the hospital and submit to an operation—but remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best remedy for women from surgical operations.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or alteration of the womb, the bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

IN THE SHADOW OF SHAME

Copyright 1901 by T. Fitzgerald. Author of "The Die of Destiny," "An Excellent Name," etc.

Mackworth on leaving the hospital drove directly to the flat in which Valerius Galbraith lived. Grining this, the inspector was at once admitted and shown into the handsomely furnished sitting room where he waited with the impatience of one who has impugnant business to communicate; taking off his gloves, stretching, and placing the tip of his tongue in his mouth, he sat, glancing at himself in the glass, and smoothing down his hair meaningly.

It was 7 o'clock when he entered the room, but half an hour had elapsed before Valerius appeared at the door. He came in with a stern, set face on one arm, his gloves in his right hand, his fair, handsome face flushed, an angry, scornful expression on his features, and the movements of his slight, well-made figure.

"Excuse me for having kept you so long," he said, "but I was dressing for dinner, to which I am going out, you see, but I have something very serious to say." He looked at the man who sat before him, and he was surprised to find that the man who sat before him was not the same as the man who sat before him.

"Not exactly a discovery—indeed the man I suspect is not the man who sat before me," Valerius demanded sharply. "Who is he?" "The man you spoke of a couple of days ago."

"Oh, Mr. Bostock, of course! Is he dead?" Galbraith asked, as he flung his hat and cloak upon the table. "Not yet."

"Then what about him?" "A confession!" "Of the murder of David Dumbarton?" Valerius seized the chair nearest him, and then remained motionless and motionless, the questioning, penetrating look in his eyes, the strained, intense expression on his face showing the interest he felt.

"Early in the afternoon," continued the inspector, "the house surgeon said to me, 'Bostock had not long to live, and he had said he wanted to make an atonement for his sins, and he had taken down in a formal manner in the presence of a magistrate.'"

"What was the confession?" "That he had killed David Dumbarton!" said Valerius, the concern he felt apparent in his face, and he continued to stare at the man who sat before him.

"They met that night in the Hixton road when a quarrel arose which ended in a fight, and he was the victor." "That was how it happened?" "As I suspected."

"For all that, he may be dead at this moment." "He cannot recover." "And Mrs. Dumbarton's presence is proved?" "Yes."

"What of the confession?" "I was on my track; I had suspected him some time, and I must have found the confession some time ago." "An unexpected turning, sir."

"Ah! but a welcome one," Valerius said, and he continued to stare at the man who sat before him. "Welcome!" queried the inspector, raising his brows.

"I will say that I had not spoken you might never have been able to find your man, never." "You were?" "Yes."

"I was on my track; I had suspected him some time, and I must have found the confession some time ago." "An unexpected turning, sir."

"Ah! but a welcome one," Valerius said, and he continued to stare at the man who sat before him. "Welcome!" queried the inspector, raising his brows.

will dine here the dishes can be brought back." "Thank you," he answered. "I didn't come to dine, but—but to tell you something. And he glanced at the servant."

The dusky noticed the restraint he sought to exercise over his excitement, and her thoughts reverted to the dread tragedy upon which they were suddenly, pale from fear of that unknown event of which he had come to tell.

"I suppose you have not heard of Bostock lately?" "I have not seen or heard from him for some days," he replied, somewhat surprised by his question.

"I was not likely to have seen him, he has made an accident of it. Which I didn't like to tell you before, lest it might add to your worries." "Oh, not serious, I hope?" she said quickly.

"I noticed the sudden anxiety which came into her face, and her hands trembled and resented this betrayal of the concern he had caused roughly." "I was not likely to have seen him, he has made an accident of it. Which I didn't like to tell you before, lest it might add to your worries."

"Oh, not serious, I hope?" she said quickly. "I noticed the sudden anxiety which came into her face, and her hands trembled and resented this betrayal of the concern he had caused roughly."

But her suffering made the man who witnessed it only more exasperated, and losing all control of a mind which was now raging with jealous fury and vindictive hate he set out to kill him. "Aye, and your love for him hating him to take the life that stood between them."

She could bear no more. With a cry on her lips she fell senseless into a chair, and she lay there for some time. In a second more Veronica was beside her, calling on her pitiously, moistening her face with aching, the nervous hands.

As one dazed and bewildered Valerius looked on, his face checked by the effect of his words, compassion overcoming his vindictiveness, until he was able to utter a few words to her beside the unconscious woman, and taking the hand nearest to him he kissed it again and again, calling out: "Olive! Olive, forgive me, I didn't know what I was saying. I was mad; forgive me."

Before she could add more, Veronica, with a dignity and self-command scarcely to be expected in one so young, touched him on the shoulder and pointed to the door.

"Go," she said. "Veronica," he began penitently. "She walked across the room and touched the bell, then without another word he rose and left the presence of her he had so cruelly wronged."

"I was mad," he said, more in despair than in hope, and he turned to her, and it is regarding that I have come here to consult you."

"Has anything been thrown on the subject?" Mackworth asked, his interest increasing. "I have scarcely sufficient basis to have occurred to me, filling me with fear and uneasiness."

"Pray sit down, sir, and let me hear what you have to say," said the inspector, as he drew a chair up to the table, and he looked at the man who sat before him.

"You must first know, Headwick, that I am not a man who is easily deceived, and I have been brought into daily intercourse for years. I am not a man who is easily deceived, and I have been brought into daily intercourse for years."

"Indeed," said Mackworth drily. "And my own experience has shown me that a man of deep feelings and of such a susceptible nature as you have exercised strong control. I have gradually come to understand, to respect, and to value you, and I have a high opinion concerning his honor being slowly formed, is, therefore, I trust, in a measure, justified."

"Human nature, sir, is a riddle-in-a-spaghetti, puzzling riddle," answered the inspector with an air of self-complacency. "I have known you for some time, and I have known who for years were regarded as models of all the domestic virtues, as showing the lights of the chaplains they attended."

"That is not quite my point," Headwick murmured. "No? Then what is it?" "The young man said with a touch of hesitation that he had never seen you, and I have been greatly interested in you, and I have been greatly interested in you."

"I have been greatly interested in you, and I have been greatly interested in you." "I have been greatly interested in you, and I have been greatly interested in you."

DANGERS TO BE AVOIDED IN FEBRUARY.

Intense Cold Breeds Catarrh. Sudden Changes Breed Catarrh. WINTER SCENE IN THE SOUTH.

February is a month of severe storms and intense cold. In the South, where the prevailing temperature is much above winter latitudes, February brings sudden changes of temperature, and the mercury sometimes drops 20 degrees in a single night.

Therefore, the following health hints are applicable to the whole of North America: Ventilation. The sleeping rooms should be well ventilated, not so as to avoid direct currents of air.

Bathing. Those in vigorous health should take a cold water towel bath every morning before breakfast. Those in feeble health should take a brisk dry-towel-rub every morning.

Diet. The diet should be a generous one, including meat, and occasionally fresh vegetables. The nights being long and the days short, as much sunshine as possible should be let into the house during the day.

Clothing. The head should be kept cool at all times. The feet should be kept warm and dry day and night. Peruna. When unavoidably exposed to cold or wet, a few doses of Peruna will avert the onset of any untoward consequences.

Precaution. When seized with a chill, or even slight chilliness, a dose of Peruna should be taken at once. Sale Ten Million Boxes a Year. THE FAMILY'S FAVORITE MEDICINE. COLOWAY CANDY CATHARTIC. THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP. BEST FOR THE BOWELS.

A CONFIDENTIAL CHEAT.

"It's perfect nonsense, Bessie, for you to talk of being laid on the shelf. Why, it all depends on yourself. Forget your worries, your aches and ailments; do as I did, take plenty of out-of-door air, cultivate happiness by not allowing your mind to dwell on the trifles and the worries of life. I sent thirty-one cents in stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., for his Common Sense Medical Advice, and found it contained much useful information about the cure of my health, about physiology, about my diet, and everything a woman should know. I then decided to write Dr. Pierce and tell him all about my ailments. I received such a nice, carefully considered and confidential letter, in reply, giving me advice about my diet, exercise and all. This advice is free to everyone and I wonder you don't write him at once. It didn't take me many months to regain my good looks. Ever since I was fifteen I have suffered untold agonies periodically but now I am free from pain, worry and bad temper. Occasionally I took Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets—for the complexion, and to stimulate the liver. Then I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and in three days for those womanly weaknesses I told you about. That's my secret of beauty. It's the easiest thing in the world to be happy and keep one's good looks. Look at the thousands of women who have been made well by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Look how they keep their good looks. Dr. Pierce offers $500 reward for any case of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Protrusion, or Falling of Womb which we cannot cure. All he asks is a fair and reasonable trial of his means of cure."

The Bancroft News, at the head of 1st page says: "Blessed be they that advertise, for they shall find trade." Judging from the advertising patronage of the News not many merchants of Bancroft find their trade in the above manner. Perhaps a cursing-from the News would get them some.

The two local papers at Vermillion, S. D., last week had to reprint their regular issues because the postmaster refused to allow them to go through the mails, the objectionable matter being: "Sewing Machine Given Away—Every lady registering at our store next week will give free a chance in a $30 sewing machine, no matter if you buy or not. The drawing will take place on Saturday afternoon, February 18." There is some question in the minds of the publishers and advertisers as to the intent of the law, but they cheerfully complied with the postmaster's demand. Several years ago Thos. H. Ayres, then publisher of Plain Talk, was arrested for the similar offense upon complaint of Postmaster S. W. Kidder, and he was compelled to pay a fine of something like $125. Herein Nebraska, with the exception of the Wayne papers, there has been lots of the above advertising done and some still doing it, even the postmaster editors.

"Well, I did one charitable act today," said a business man to his wife the other evening. "What was it?" she asked, a kindly light in her face. "Oh, said he, "one of the clerks asked for a raise in his salary, saying he wanted to get married, and I refused."

Any child is better off without liquor until he is 21 years of age, but Congress is insuring lots of grief for Oklahoma by starting the kid out with that restriction upon it.

One of the leading secret orders of the country is about to prohibit all horseplay during initiations. If it does the goat market will be glutted.

Lemons are cheaper than eggs, and lemons are better for the grip. Some consolation in that, but darned little eggogog.

E. W. Settle, owner of a bank at Marengo, Ill., is missing. So is $15,000 of deposits. Now let the paragraphs do their worst with that name.

Lee Spangler, the noted York prophet, says the sun spots are ominous of a year of woe for the world and for Russia in particular, where the disturbances will continue until 1908, when, he says, the world will come to an end. Spangler is off his nut. The world can't come to an end until Congress gets through with the Smoot investigation.

After seeing some of the pictures of the women Hoch married there is ground for the suspicion that he is insane.

Beautiful eyes and handsome face are eloquent commendations. Bright eyes are windows to a woman's heart. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea makes bright eyes. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Raymonds Drug Store

Fraud Exposed. A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit, through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing disease for over 35 years. A sure protection, to you, is our name on the wrapper. Look for it on all Dr. King's or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are imitations. H. E. BUCKLEN & Co., Chicago, Ill., and Windsor, Canada.

The Pender Republic, a paper that last fall hooted at the mere intimation that the railroads of Nebraska had any pull on the republican party, now says a pass is a bribe and that every member of the Nebraska legislature has one. Stick to your text "Hub" make the disciples of your party walk the straight and narrow path of honesty and honor to their constituents. If all the republican papers of the state did likewise—even after elections—there wouldn't be much chance for the bribe-takers, you speak of, working such a graft on the people.

Even Senator Allison admits that mistakes have been made. He is now talking of "tariff correction."

Mrs. Rejane says she didn't dance a can-can at the Hyde ball, but says she can can and would have done it had she been asked. This ought to settle the momentous dispute.

Altona. These items were snow bound last week. Mrs. Geo. Thies returned from Hooper Saturday after visiting a week with relatives. Dick Seelmeyer went to Hooper last week for a few days visit. Albert Bastian shelled corn Tuesday.

People in and around Altona are having the La Grippe. The fellow who has not had it can feel pretty lucky. Geo. Thies had the misfortune of losing one of his ponies Tuesday. Altona is to have another dance Saturday evening under the management of Riley Ruth.

Altona was treated to a play Sunday evening, "The Innocent Convict" was played by a company of ten people. The play was a very good one. The attendance was small owing to the extreme cold and snow. Although the company rode over land from Beemer here.

Paul Siegert returned from Wisner last week after a few days visit. There is no reason why Altona shouldn't have a few entertainments if the people would but patronize them. Mr. Edgar received word that his daughter at Magnet was not expected live and left for the same place at once.

Examinations will be held on the 18th Saturday and Friday preceding in January, February and March, 1905. No examinations in December, 1904. C. H. Bright, County Superintendent.

Grave Trouble Foreseen. It needs but little foresight to tell that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead, unless you take the proper medicine for your disease, as Mrs. John A. Young, of Clay, N. Y., did. She says: "I had neuralgia of the stomach and liver, my heart was weakened, and I could not eat. I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters I found just what I needed, for they quickly relieved and cured me." Best medicine for weak women. Sold under guarantee by Raymond, druggist, at 50c a bottle.
