Clothes for the Occasion

IF YOU really want something to give thanks for get inside of some of our Hart Schaffner & Marx good clothes. For any sort of occasion, whatever you do, wherever you go--business, the social function, winter sports--for any place where clothes count, we'll show you the right thing.

When you say Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes it amounts to saying that wherever you wear them nobody you meet will be better dressed than you in style, fit or quality.

You'll see lots of clothes made with "mercerized cotton;" they're a fraud, for the most part, but they look good when new. Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes are strictly all-wool.

The Overcoat Selling Is On

Have you seen our line? Not in the Twenty Years of our Clothing Business in Wayne have we had such sales. All we ask is an opportunity to show them. The garments are so beautifully tailored that they speak for themselves.

The label is a sign of quality, a small thing to look for, a big thing to find.

BY DAD

Count Bond must feel real badly. I know from experience, by dad, that it's tough to be bonny when they don't count.

An Iowa exchange wants President Roosevelt to go get the pole, just to show Peary how 'tis done. If Hearst could establish a paper there Teddy would be heard from.

Here's hoping Mrs. Russell Sage will learn there are some "deserving poor" in Nebraska when she begins giving away Russell's millions. The printers should be at the head of her visiting list, as the most deserving.

Katie Burke of Philadelphia is having a hard time explaining how she was so careless as to have a natpin in her bosom in position to stab her lover in the heart. Kate should not be troubled over a little thing like that. Fellows right here in Nebraska get stabbed, when they go hugging by things a durn'd sight worse.

After all William Jennings Bryan is not so "common" as he might be. At a shrine in Japan, where everybody took their shoes off, Mr. Bryan was horrified to find one of his toes sticking through his sock. "Never have I felt the lack of dignity so much as on that occasion," said Mr. Bryan. That proves, by dad, that Bryan thinks he is better than the common country editor.

There was another Graves on the ticket up in the Third district to which fact some of the fusion papers attribute the defeat of the judge of that name who was running for congress. If the democrats could all read--but if they could, there would be fewer democrats. So there you are--Bixby.

Yes, indeed, dear belly-ache Bixby, but it was some 3,000 republicans trying to vote for Judge Graves who became befuddled when their tardy knowledge of right and wrong awoke them from rank partisanship.

"If you want a recommendation for your paper, do it justice by giving this couple a good old 'roasting,' concludes a communication received from a Carroll young lady the past week, with reference to a newly wed couple of that little burg. "Anyone does not expect the door closed in their face when they make a call," is another pertinent paragraph in the epistle. And "the only reason for this action that we can find he wished to retire early his wedding evening." The writer also admonishes me not to mention any names, which is important enough, also, as he might want to face the fair writer, or "lick an editor." It looks, by dad, as though this was a matter for the Index to take up, and not the DEMOCRAT, although we are always glad to get letters from people who know how to express themselves in a manner perfectly understandable.

A Brooklyn preacher advocates brass bands for churches, to catch the wanderers. By dad, the brass bands may be all right, but when I was young and in my prime silk bands didn't go to waste, if they were thereabouts.

Now that the buckwheat season is here the republicans can continue their scratching.

The Sioux City Tribune thinks because Judge Graves was defeated for congress by prohibitionist Graves being on the ticket that it was a very grave affair. Anyway the whole affair is buried now.

There must be an awful lot of suckers left in this country, else how could all of those mining stock advertisements in the big papers be paid for, says the Cherokee Democrat.

Dickey Croker says Hearst's defeat was the work of God Almighty. Funny what strange partners God Almighty takes into his business.

dyspepsia of Women

Caused by Female Disorders and Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A great many women suffer with a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not seem to yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms seem to be similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines universally prescribed do not seem to restore the patient's normal condition.

Mrs. Pinkham claims that there is a kind of dyspepsia that is caused by a derangement of the female organism, and which, while it causes a constipation similar to ordinary indigestion, cannot be relieved without a medicine which not only acts as a stomach tonic, but has a peculiar tonic effect on the female organism.

As proof of this theory we call attention to the case of Mrs. Maggie Wright, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was completely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after every other thing else had failed. She writes:

"For two years I suffered with dyspepsia which degenerated the entire system. I was unable to attend to my daily duties. I felt weak and nervous, and nothing I ate tasted good, and I caused a disturbance in my stomach. I tried different dyspepsia cures, but nothing seemed to help me. I was advised to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and was happily surprised to find that it acted like a charm, and in a few days I began to enjoy and profit from my food. My recovery was rapid, and in two weeks I was well again. I am now completely cured of my dyspepsia, and feel strong and healthy. I am now able to do my usual work, and I feel like a new woman."

No other medicine in the world has received such a professional and unqualified endorsement as has this vegetable compound of female troubles, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MOODY'S UPWARD CLIMB.

New Supreme Court Justice Has Outstripped Even His Own Ambition.

From Harper's Weekly:

When William Brewster was district attorney of Essex county, in Massachusetts, it was his proud and proper boast that his knowledge of criminal law was so great, and his act of producing it so excellent, that new judges were sent to his district to preside over the criminal sessions in order that they might learn of him. Then he thought of the attorney generalship of the commonwealth as the object at which he had the right to aim. Afterwards he parted company with his profession for a time and entered the stormy walks of politics. He went to congress, and reached at last the committee room of the committee on appropriations, and eventually sat next to Joseph Cannon. Here he imbibed the notion that he might succeed to the chair from which Mr. Cannon was to be lifted into the chair of the speaker. Perhaps—and this was but a dream of which he spoke with hesitancy and only to his intimates—this might eventually be speaker. Then Beveridge would be proud of him, the ancient wisdom of his mind, the force of his smile upon him, and he would be satisfied. But the president called him to the navy department, and he accepted it reluctantly for his Boston home. He was then fitted into the chair of the speaker of the house of representatives, where he was Mr. Cannon's successor. He was then elected by Senator Hale and some others to succeed his father, which was his true ambition. He was then elected to the office of attorney general of the United States, and he accepted it partly for the sake of his father, and partly because he had the right to aim. He was then elected to the office of senator from his home state, and he accepted it for the sake of his father, and partly because he had the right to aim. He was then elected to the office of senator from his home state, and he accepted it for the sake of his father, and partly because he had the right to aim.

I lay awake only a short time and the next night I rested well. From that time I sleep well every night, and soon got well and strong. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at many times, and my niece has taken them for weak nerves and poor blood and found them very beneficial."

THE BOARDING HOUSE THANKSGIVING TURKEY.

"That turkey doesn't look very tender." "Oh, did you want a tender one?" "I thought you said you kept a boarding house."

The Turkeys That Got Lost

By C. B. Lewis.

The Veteran Housewife.

It was to be their first Thanksgiving dinner after wedded bliss—young Mr. and Mrs. Hartley—and they determined to celebrate the event in a befitting manner. They were seated in a cozy little parlor, and Mrs. Hartley was just trying to play hostess. The husband, on his part, felt that he could assume all the suavity and dignity of host at the head of his own table, and so the affair was talked over and planned out with all the enthusiasm that found some one to sit upon every leg of the dining table.

The first thing was to invite a party of guests to sit down to the dinner, making sixteen in all. This had been settled for several days when the husband returned home one evening to find the wife in tears. She had been quarreling with her mother-in-law, and she was so angry that she had written her mother-in-law a letter, and she had sent it by mail postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

CHRISTMAS NOTES.

It is none too early to begin to have a thought for the gifts you intend to make in the holiday season.

Practical suggestions have sought every woman what a joy it is to have every little present that she will give on Christmas morning tied in dainty tissue paper packages at least a week before that time arrives.

This habit of putting off all thought of Christmas until the rush of Christmas shoppers crowds the stores and makes it impossible to remember just what you are looking for, or to be sure to buy if you do know should be discouraged.

This can all be avoided by a little forethought. A notebook should be provided early in the fall in which all suggestions and good ideas that you run across can be jotted down. When you hear Mary say, "Oh, dear, I wish I had a decent looking shopping bag," or another expresses a desire to read a certain new book, make a note of it. Perhaps it will come in handy about Christmas time or if by that time many other things have come up to be put down in the little book you will at least have a number to select from. Many people are careless not to make their wants known, when the season is right at hand, for fear some might think they were suggesting them, improperly.

That our American forests should be planted with the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests should be planted with the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the ancient Indians had discovered the medicinal value of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, however, is mostly to be found in the latter part of the investigations made to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal woods.

Not less numerous in the unparaltered forest are the most valuable medicinal woods, many peculiar affections, weakness and distressing derangements, in Dr. Pierce's Female and Family Pills, and other medicinal preparations, are abundantly attested by the most eminent medical writers and teachers. ## THE BEST COUGH CURE

Cough syrups are all cheap enough, but if you should get a gallon of cough syrup that does not cure for the price of a small bottle of Kemp's Balsam.

Kemp's Balsam

the best cough cure, you would have made about half a dozen small bottles of Kemp's Balsam may stop the worst cough and save a life, whereas the cough "cure" that does not cure is worse than useless.

How's This?

Who offered one hundred dollars reward for any cure of cancer? The cure of cancer is a great mystery. It is a disease that has baffled the skill of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the ancient Indians had discovered the medicinal value of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, however, is mostly to be found in the latter part of the investigations made to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal woods.

One of the oldest, safest and most formidable known remedies in the world to-day is Dr. Brand's Pills—a blood purifier and laxative. Being purely vegetable they can be used by old or young with perfect safety, and while other remedies require a long and tedious course, these pills, taken together with Brand's Pills, the same dose always has the same effect. No matter how long they are taken, they will not injure the system, and they are the best thing known for any one troubled with constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia or any other ailment arising from an impure state of the blood.

Brand's Pills have been in use for over a century and are sold in every drug and medicine store, plain or sugar coated.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies: those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently, naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is the most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine.

THE PRIZE CORN WINNERS

At The Miller and Ahern Corn Exhibition and Husking Contest.

The corn exhibit and husking contest held by Miller & Ahern closed last Saturday. Fifty exhibitors competed for the prize and the exhibition was a great credit to the county. The judges, Wm. Gilder, F. VonSoggen and Henry Kellogg, awarded the $10 prize for the six ears of corn to E. K. Kluge. The $5 prize for the second best six ears was awarded to Roy Kloppling. Herb Worth won the $5 prize for big corn. Jim Selders picked and cribbed 136 bush of corn in one hour and paid was awarded the $10 prize. Frank Simontin was second with 131 bushels and Otto Black was third with 122 bushels. The corn was judged by the standards used at the State. Corn eared of the best results, and the exhibitors ranked very high others lacked some of the most essential qualities required in a No. 1 corn.

A good many of our progressive farmers were of hand during the afternoon comparing the exhibitions with their own products. Noting where any improvements could be made in the quality of their own grain and discussing the methods that would be productive of the best results, Miller & Ahern are to be commended for their enterprise in conducting these contests as they are bound to stimulate an interest in the improvement of our most valuable industry.

The firm informs us that they were greatly pleased with the interest shown in the Harvest Sale and will conduct another Harvest Sale and Corn Exhibition next fall on a much larger scale.

Pick your seed corn this fall and plant prize winners. There is a new hat waiting at the big store for the first man who beats 150 bushels in a 10 hour day. Procure blanks at the store.

John B. Neely Badly Hurt.

A telegram from Don Cunningham, Ames, Iowa, to his father yesterday morning apprised W. A. K. Neely of a bad accident that befell his son, John B. who is also attending college at Ames. Later another message was received stating that the young man suffered a broken jaw and two fractures of the nose, and for his father to go and see him. Young Neely had been on a railroad bridge, and the presumption is that he fell from a bridge. The first report was that his eyes had also been injured, but W. A. K. Neely was so heart broken yesterday that his eyesight was unimpaired.

All for Welch.

Norfolk News: Before any other candidate for the district judgeship to succeed congressman-elect, F. B. Brown on the bench in the Ninth judicial district had been announced. The News endorsed the candidacy of Hon. A. A. Welch of Wayne for the appointment. Since the campaign for this position has got under way, there has been no incident to convince this paper that it should change its course and it still stands for Mr. Welch as the logical candidate. Besides being personally fitted for the place, Mr. Welch comes from a county which is more entitled to the appointment than is Madison county at the present time. During past years Madison county has had candidates for a number of high offices and now is honored with a supreme judge. Wayne county has solicited few offices and has had few. In accordance with the fair principle of distributing offices among the several sections of the commonwealth, Wayne county is entitled to consideration. Madison county ought to be glad of a change to recognize Mr. Welch. Mr. Welch was first in the field has every reason to ask for the appointment, has a good man as a candidate, and he having received the endorsement of this paper when he stood alone in the race, is still entitled to our support. Messrs. Madison and Antelope counties each have a state or federal officer at present. The only counties in the Ninth judicial district not thus honored are Knox and Wayne. Mr. Welch is endorsed as the Wayne county candidate in this instance, giving Wayne county a strong and just claim to the place.

Miss Edna Nieman Married.
Wayne acquaintances of Dr. and Miss Nieman will be surprised to learn of the marriage of the latter at her home in North Dakota. A cowboy, so the Democrat is told, before returning to Wayne Dr. Nieman hired the groom to do some work about his homestead, and the second day of his employment Miss Edna said to her father, "What pretty eyes he has got?" "Don't know anything about his eyes. I hired him to work," replied the old gentleman. Halloween evening they were married, and the Democrat hopes those eyes will always look pretty to the fair bride.

Married in Seattle.
The following account of the marriage of Miss Kathryn Atz, a sister of Mrs. C. M. Whitney, will be of interest to Wayne people who made Miss Atz's acquaintance when she visited in Wayne.
The wedding ceremony took place on the morning of October 30, at St. Ambrose Catholic church, Seattle, Wash., an associate teacher of Miss Atz acting as bridesmaid and an archdeacon as best man. The bride wore a handsome traveling suit of light gray.
Miss Atz was born and raised in this vicinity. Was for several years one of the successful rural teachers. Last year she attended Catholic college and at the beginning of the school year accepted the primary room at Clark Fork, Idaho, which place she resigned at the end of her second

Things to be Thankful for

We should be thankful that we live in Nebraska. We ought to be thankful that we made no mistake when we came to Wayne county, where crops never fail. There are good reasons to be thankful that the TWO JOHNS are here and sell Husking Mixtures at Sixty cents a dozen. We should not forget that no person died during the past year that had on Staley Underwear. We ought to be thankful that our wives have stood our abuse and not asked for a divorce. We should remember that to enjoy all blessings it is necessary to look well and up-to-date. We should not forget that the TWO JOHNS are ready to make us happy and comfortable if we purchase a Suit or an Overcoat from them. We cannot be thankful with cold feet; therefore, you should visit the TWO JOHNS who are experts in the Shoe business. We have had a bumper crop and if we now make the necessary investigation before we buy clothing we will have many reasons to be thankful. The TWO JOHNS feel thankful if they have an opportunity to show their clothing. Why not look at their clothing and buy where you please. No one has better reasons to be thankful this year than the TWO JOHNS, for the citizens of Wayne county have been very kind in giving them more trade during the past year than ever before. If we are ever going to be thankful let's do it this year. We have too many good reasons to be thankful to mention them all.

The statement shows a net gain of $37,245.95 in loans and discounts over a single year ago, and a gain of $37,583.42 in deposits in the same twelve months. The principal function of the week was the six o'clock dinner given by Messrs and Messdames Jacobs, Blair, Corbit and Bartlett to the members of the Acme club and husbands last Tuesday at the Acme restaurant. By the matching of bi-colored postal cards the ladies found their partners for dinner. On the back of these cards were communitrums, the propounding of which caused much merriment. A carnation was laid by each place card, which was of a unique Thanksgiving design. The guests were seated around two tables, a large bowl of pink carnations forming the centre piece for each table. The sumptuous dinner was served by the Misses Helen Pile, Helen Blair, Louise McCusin and Belle Brookhauser. With Dr. Blair as toast master, toasts were responded to by Messrs. Pile, Corbit and Williams. The evening was completed with jolly games and charades.

Poking Poor Poynter.

The one bright spot in the late election was the elimination of Ex-Gov. Poynter from any further consideration of the hands of the democrats. This ingrate owed his prominence to the democrats. They made him politically all that he is—all that he was. Had it not been for his duplicity, and his private secretary's rascality, the fusion forces would not have been thrown into the sad plight that his administration brought them. But with a meek and lowly demeanor, a hypocritical and subservient fawning to corporate powers, he threw the harpoon into Shalensberger and carried all the bewhiskered, narrowed discontented, howling, wild-eyed, belly-aching, along with him. Let him go. When his biography is written it can and will be truthfully said that this old toothless sore was the smallest bored individual that ever held down a gubernatorial chair. Pass on! Pass on! you doubly-dyed hypocrite, despised by those who once supported you, and loathed and hated by those to whom you have attached yourself.—Fullerton News Journal.

A "Pass" at the Bird.

Pender Republic: If a man gets a wad in his mouth that doesn't taste good to him we don't mind seeing him spit it out, but we do object to his slobbering all over his whiskers and soiling his vest front in the process. The Dakota City Eagle in its last issue tried to compliment Judge Graves and wound up with the statement that "we don't blame him for riding on a pass if he can get one."
The man who claims to be a republican and then says he doesn't care if a public official rides on passes has no more respect for his platform than a hog has for Sunday. It is just such sappedad, subservient lickspittles as the Eagle that have kept the railroads in power in this state in the past and would keep them in power in the future if they could.
If the farmers of Dakota County were alive to their own interests they would refuse to support a newspaper that is only a snake in the grass and drives its fangs into them at every opportunity. The paper that doesn't blame a public official for riding on a pass is a stool pigeon for the railroad and nothing else.

The Columbus Telegram says skidoo to the railroads on the matter of advertising contracts for editorial mileage, and states that hereafter it will be cash for advertising or no advertising. Editor Howard always takes advantage ground on such propositions and says: We believe the day has come when a newspaper should exchange advertising space for cabbage, cordwood or railroad mileage. If our advertising space shall be deemed of any value by the railroad companies they will doubtless use some of it, and if they do use it they must pay the cash, just like every other advertiser. Ten years ago the editor of this paper pleaded with the members of the Nebraska Press Association to adopt the policy of requiring cash for railroad advertising, because we thought it was a step in good business direction. We are still of that opinion. Perhaps the railroads will refuse to spend any money with us for advertising. That will be their privilege. Perhaps other newspaper editors may regard our resolution to quit the trading business as a slap at them. It is not so intended. We recognize the certain legal and moral right of any newspaper man to exchange his advertising space for railroad advertising. We question the business end of it only.

In an editorial stating that the democratic party has always been credited with being the saloon ticket, and was such all during the recent campaign until a few days before election, the Columbus Telegram further says:

The deal between the republican leaders and the Omaha brewers was consummated in the office of the Omaha Bee on the Saturday preceding election day. Present at the meeting were Victor Rosewater, representing the republican state committee; two members of the Omaha fire and police commission, and several leaders of the brewery combine in Omaha. At that meeting it was agreed that the brewery combine should support the entire republican ticket, and Sheldon in particular, and in return for that support the brewers were promised that nothing should be done by the Sheldon administration to disturb the brewery combine in its right to run Omaha for the next two years just as it may please. Sheldon secured his large vote in Douglas county by aid of the brewery combine. Every republican candidate for the legislature would have been defeated in Omaha if that deal had not been made between the so-called Sheldon and the Milwaukee brewery combine which controls five thousand votes in Douglas county. Look for the proof of the deal when Sheldon shall appoint the members of Omaha fire and police board. His appointees will be named by the Milwaukee brewers who control Omaha.

Editor Howard's Pipe.

For the first time in many years Nebraska has been robbed of her lovely Indian summer days. We seem to be jumping from the wave of summer heat at once into the days of frost and cold. We shall miss the Indian summer days. They have been through all the years a blessing and a boon to dwellers on the prairies. Did you ever hear the legend of the Indian summer? A Pawnee tradition tells that the Great Spirit gave to his children on earth those later summer in this wise. Pa-laa-nee, the beautiful daughter of the Pawnee chieftain, Mondamin (guardian of the harvest) fell in love A-ga-roo the young and brilliant war chief of the Sioux. Because of the bitter feud which had long existed between the rival tribes, it had been decreed by the Pawnees in grand council, and likewise by the Sioux, that death must be the portion of the man or woman who should chose for wife or husband a member of the rival tribe. It was a case of love at first sight between A-ga-roo and Pa-laa-nee. They met by accident upon the banks of the Cedar, a sparkling tributary to the Loup. Immediately A-ga-roo declared his love and instantly Pa-laa-nee accepted it, declaring that in a vision the Great Spirit had revealed to her that in due season A-ga-roo should come to woo and win her love. Each knew the decree of the rival tribes against such marriages, but neither feared that stern decree. By appointment the lovers met in a great wood, near where the swift running Loup or Wolf river joins the shallow Platte, and there by the ministrations of the chief medicine man of the Sioux nation they were united in marriage according to the marriage rites of the tribe of the Sioux. When the marriage was reported to the chiefs of the two tribes great was the indignation of the people. Every Sioux upon the prairie esteemed the valiant A-ga-roo for his prowess in the art of war, and every Pawnee from the Kansas on the south, to the Niobrara on the north, loved the gentle Pa-laa-nee, regarding her as a gift from heaven, so fair of face and form was she. But the laws of those wild children of the prairies were immutable. The lovers had defied the decrees which had been rendered in solemn council by the tribes. At a great council of the Pawnee nation the lot was cast, and it said that the daughter of their chief must die. Mondamin loved his beautiful daughter but he also loved the honor of his tribe, and his own vote was cast in favor of the death of his child. And then came the matter of the manner of death which the maiden must suffer. One warrior proposed that she should die by an arrow from the bow of the best marksman in the tribe. Another said this was a death too honorable for one who had ruthlessly defied the will of the great council and so fervent was the clamor for a terrible death that at last a majority voted that the girl must die the death of the stake. On the same day that the Pawnees voted the death of the daughter of their chief the Sioux in council decreed the death of their own young war chief, and by a strange coincidence the date of the execution of each was set for the first day of the new moon in the season of Lu-na-na, which is equivalent to the white man's October. After her conviction Pa-laa-nee was placed under close guard as was her lover, each in the chief village of the different tribes, that of the Sioux being on the Cheyenne river, and that of the Pawnees being on the Loup. A-ga-roo after his seizure by his own people, had sent a trusted friend as a spy to the camp of the Pawnees, and the spy hastily carried to him the decree of the Pawnee council, and the date set for the burning of his sweetheart at the stake. At last the dread day of execution arrived, and the greater part of the Pawnee tribe was gathered at the spot designated execution. The women of the tribe had collected an immense supply of dry leaves, grass and light wood for the death-fire. When everything was in readiness the beautiful Pa-laa-nee was led about the living circle so that all might see her in the hour of shame and hear upon her the taunts peculiar to each member of the tribe. The women cried: "Shame upon the woman who sold herself to him who slew her brothers!" The men cried: "She was brave to defy the laws of the Pawnees; we shall see if she be brave to meet the Fire spirit face to face." With antelope thongs the girl was bound to the death stake, and at a sign from her father, the chief, all was silent, in order that all might hear the death song from her lips. And then there was wafted upon the breeze the sweet accents of the well loved child of the tribe—expressions of love for A-ga-roo, mingled with prayers to the Great Spirit—prayers which asked no boon for herself, but only for the welfare of her lover and her people. And now the time has arrived to apply the touch to the faggots piled about the stake. This honor was accorded to Ga-lan-too, a Pawnee warrior who had long sought to make the girl his bride. Ga-lan-too touches a flaming torch to the dry leaves and grass. A great cloud of smoke arises. The people look expectantly for the blaze, but no blaze appears, nothing but smoke. Ga-lan-too cries treachery, and proclaims that an enemy of the tribe must have dampened the death fuel during the night. The chief and his advisers examine the leaves and the grass, only to find it dry as powder. In breathless silence the people await the rising blaze which is to consume the offering which they are making to the Great Spirit. They wait in vain. The volume of smoke increases, but no fire appears. Now the people are all afloat. They commune among themselves and say that the Great Spirit is angry with them for attempting to take the life of the beautiful girl, and that he will not permit the Fire Spirit to harm her. The timid ones hastened from the scene. The sky is darkened by the cloud of smoke, and the low atmosphere holds it close unto the ground. Suddenly the smouldering leaves and grasses are agitated, as if some living thing were making effort to emerge therefrom, and an instant later the head of a great bald eagle is seen rising above the mass. The head protrudes further and further, and at length with a sweep of his powerful wings the eagle throws the fire-pile in every direction from the sacrificial stake, where the beautiful Pa-laa-nee, still unharmed, still chants the death-song of her people. A thousand arrows are pointed at the eagle, but before any can leave the bow a clarion voice is heard, saying: "Slay not the messenger of the Great Spirit. He comes in the form of the eagle, the most cruel of all birds. If the cruel eagle which tears the young fawn with his talons can show mercy, surely the children of the Great Spirit ought to show mercy." The voice came from the lips of the Sioux medicine man, who had appeared as if by magic in the center of the awe-stricken Pawnees. At the side of the medicine man was the noble A-ga-roo who had escaped from captivity in his own village. At sight of their fierce enemy a thousand arrows leaped the bow strings, but not an arrow leaves the bow, for again the voice of the medicine man speaks to the people: "Slay not A-ga-roo, whom the Great Spirit loves, and whom he has sent to the village of the Pawnees as a messenger of Peace. Dear Sirs:—Your letter of recent date inquiring about the condition of my eyes, received in due time, and in reply would say that my eyes are better than they have been for ten years. I began wearing glasses nine years ago and had been troubled with inflamed and irritated eyes for some time previous to that. I had my eyes examined and glasses fitted by four different doctors before I came to you last fall, and while my vision seemed to be correct by the glasses, my eyes were no better and in fact, grew steadily worse, as did also the headache I was troubled with. Being a teacher necessitated constant use of my eyes, and the eye-balls and lids were in constant condition of inflammation and were very painful. After wearing your glasses a short time the inflammation disappeared entirely and my eyes have steadily improved until now I can study and read for any length of time without any discomfort. The headaches have disappeared also. Thanking you for the great help you have given me, I remain

Died in The Cornfield.

Adolph Gherke, a young man 22 years old, was found dead in a cornfield last Friday night north of Winfield. The young man had been boarding at Aug. Dankburg's and was husking his corn near there. Wednesday morning he started out to work and not returning at Dankburg's presumed he had gone to Gus Mettlen's place to husk corn. Friday evening it was learned that he had not been there and a search found his team tied to the corn crib where he had been working, and a short distance away lay the body of the man stiff in death. The supposition is that he was taken sick, tied up his horses and started away, falling on his face. Coroner Williams went out to view the remains and the jury was impeached and found the cause of death unknown. The funeral services were held at Winfield Sunday where deceased has a brother, Otto Gherke, residing. The young man was well thought of, a hard worker and there is considerable mystery as to what caused his sudden demise, which apparently took place on Wednesday, two days before being found.
