Your Own Prices!

We didn't sell everything. We have some nice odds and ends in fancy goods, Japanese goods, novelties and toys which you can have at almost your own prices. You still have time to get these for New Years gifts if you pick them out at once. There is a big saving on every purchase. We want to close everything out so as not to carry it over for the next year.

Among good resolutions for 1907 one of the best and most satisfactory—at the end of the year—is pay up all your debts and don't contract any more.

The newspapers by dad, ought to take a vacation from christmas to New Years. Little advertising, less news, and no desire or ambition to stranything up.

"Not by a bottleful," replied a young is mother; "every two hours, you mean ". Geo. Dornberger tells a good story of Hans Schuster's gastronomic feats. There were seven men working at a certain farmer's home near Wayne, and the good housewife, who was extremely accurate in her calculations, cooked an even seven eggs for the hun gry bunch. Hans noticed the nicety with which she had counted noses and being first in line he slipped three juicy treasures onto his plate, and his father being next and not over-swift he put two of the remaining incubations on the old man t plate, leaving two eggs for the five men still waiting. To make matters worse- or better—!! Tans then covered his eggs with about half the contents of the potato dish. Young Dornberger says the full-grown employes had no need of any pills or cascartes while. Hans tabled with them.

She is thinking of you today, boys—that old mother in some far away home. Write her a cetter of Christmas cheer. It will cost you only two cents, but what wealth of 'cheer it will carry to the heart of the dear old mo her, who will receive it as proof that her wandering boy still loves her I do not mean this advice simply for young men who have wandered away from the old home, but for older men as well. Remember, boys, we never get so old as to make mother think of us in any other light than that of her boy. Yesterday I heard a promitent business man in folumbus say that he had not seen his mother for fifteen years, and had written to here only once in all those years, and I thought that if the angels should perform their who! duty at this Christmas time they must carry a letter of love from that old boy to his neelected mother—Columbus Telegram.

Speaking about weddings, of which She is thinking of you today, boys

Speaking atout weddings, of which here has been a great number re-ently, Deacon D. E. #iller tells me n amusing incident that hit him in as ensitive place, a few years ago. It was the occasion of Mr. Miller's 'mar-riage and he sent an invitation to an old college classmate, then a merchant in an adjoining town. Among the old college classmate, then a merchant in an adjoining town. Among the wedding gifts was a set of dishes from the merchant, which the groom probably failed to be properly interested. Later on Mr Miller received a "bid" to his friend's nuptials, and belog in Later on Mr Miller received a "bid" to his friend's nuptials, and being in his friend's town went to the store where his dishes came from and asked that a set just like them be sent his friend's bride. The proprietor didn't have them in stock but would get them in time for the event and send Mr. Miller the bill, etc. It so happened that D. E. couldn't attend the wedding, but being in the city a day or two later and having eight or ten dollars in his pocket concluded he might just as well step in and pay for those dishes. Asking for his bill he was struck speechless to read:

The bestentertainment we have had was the comment of the congregation intristmas. Eve at the Presbyterian (church. The program was an interesting one and the parts were all well taken. Harmon Northrop in a Jack Frost costume sang a fine solo, Gladys Goldie with her dollie gave a pretty bullady song and little. Natalie Harrington captured the audience with her sweet voice in "hrist the Christmas Baby." A dozen kirls represents ing snow flakes gave a drill and song vabout snow flakes gave a drill and song vabout snow flakes and holly wreaths whitch was very pretty. A crowd of the boys and girls acted a short play in the which they represented children from the picture books, this was splendidly done by all, Edna seace who took the part of Mother Goose deserving particular mention, also Ted Philieo who had the part of Santa Claus. The songs by the infant class were entered into with the usual vigor and as usual of were highly pleasing to the audience. Other numbers on the program were all well rendered and finished up with a musing feature being the six little cuiloading the Christmas tree, and amusing feature being the six little other numeres on the program were all well rendered and finished up with unloading the Christmas tree, an amusing feature being the six little wooly dogs given to Freda Ellis, later followed by a large white basket containing the real thing, a live doggle of Spaniel order presented by her goodnatured brother in-law.
