The many friends of Grandma Pingrey have been very much concerned about her the past week as she is confined to her bed. One eye has been failing for the past two years and has now failed her entirely. Other complications due to advanced age makes it quite a battle for her as she is past eighty seven but as she is one of the old New Englanders who was raised to womanhood among the hills of old Vermont she possesses the same sturdy qualities that won many a victory for the Green Mountain Boys. She has been blessed with a wonderful constitution and will power and we all hope for her speedy recovery that we may have her cheerful and sunny countenance with us many days. Grandma Pingrey is known all over North Eastern Nebraska and Southern Iowa and her many friends will be pained to hear of her illness. Her son Wilson Pingrey and wife of Coon Rapids, have both been out to see her.

THE Story of Francis Cluddle

A Romance of Queen Mary's Reign.

BY STANLEY J. WEYMAN

"Not a Spaniard," Master Bertie said simply. "How do you know?" "I know," he answered, "I raised the man in my arms, and carrying him carefully to the side of the road, set him with his back to a wall. The women were just coming up. 'Master Bertie,' I said in a low voice as I looked this way and that to see if the alarm had spread, 'I am afraid that the man is dead.' But say nothing to them. As it is one of the town guard you have killed!"

"One of the town guard?" he cried, a light bursting from his eyes. "What shall we do?" "We are lost, man."

CHAPTER XIV
 "What was to be done?" That was the question, and a terrible question it was. Behind us we had the inhospitable country, dark and dreary, the night wind sweeping over it. In front, where the lights twinkled, and the smoke of the chimneys rose up, lay the town, and to meet with a savage reception. And it was no time for weighing alternatives. The choice had to be made—made in a moment, and made by the man who had the quickness with which I made it for good or ill.

"We must get into the town!" I cried impatiently, and before the alarm is given, it is to go to my Master Bertie, and we cannot spend another night in the fields. Quick, madam! I continued to the duchess as she came up, and did not wait for her to speak, for I saw he was stunned by the catastrophe. "We have hurt one of the town guard through a mistake. We must get through the gate before it is discovered."

I seized her rein and jogged up her horse and gave her no time to ask questions, but urged on the party at a hard gallop until the gate was reached. The attempt, I knew, was desperate, for the two men who had escaped had ridden straight for the town, but I saw no other resource, and if I should not be able to succeed peacefully, if that were possible, than to expose the women to another night of such cold and hunger as the last. And fortune was so far favored that when I reached the gate it was open. Probably the patrol having ridden through to get help, no one had thought fit to close it, and no one withstanding, we slipped our horses under the archway and entered the street.

It was a curious entry, and a curious scene we came upon. I remember how strange it all looked. The houses, leaning forward in the darkness, the forms, clear cut against the pale evening sky, caused a darkness as of a cavern in the narrow street below. Here and there in the midst of this gloom, a light shone from a window, and the glow of a lamp, hanging from the ceiling, threw a gleam of light on the floor. Just within the gate stood a brazer full of glowing coal, and beside it a halberd leaning against the wall. Behind the watchman had run into the town with the riders, and I drew rein to alight, listening and looking. I think if I had ridden on, I should have found my horse well, but I knew I might have been allowed to give ourselves up.

But we hesitated a moment and were looking at each other, when I saw there were a score of people watching us, who took us for four men, Master Bertie and I being in front, and these, coming from the houses, in our country that I had more than a hundred times that this was a foray upon the town. At any rate, they took instant advantage of our pause. With a swift whirl an arrow whistled through the air, missing the duchess, by a hand's breadth, went clanking under the gatehouse. That served for a signal. In a moment an alarm of hostile cries rang all round us. I saw a man, who had been my horse's feet. Half a dozen odd missiles, snatched up by hairy hands, came raining in on us out of the gloom. The duchess, who was rising as one man. A bell began to ring a hundred yards in front, where the street branched off to right and left, the way seemed suddenly alive from the walls and windows. The men, with brandished arms, the gleam of steel, and the babel of a furious crowd—a crowd making down toward us with a purpose we need no German to interpret.

It was a horrible scene, the more horrible that I had not expected it. My horse was unshaken, as well as taken back by it. Remembering that had brought my companions here, and that they were a party of the town guard, I quailed. How could I protect them? There was no mistaking the stern meaning of those cries of rage as much as of suspicion. I had no time to think. The man who had struck down a bridegroom, and that there were young wives in the crowd in whose ears the ring of the bell was ringing. I yelled before their yelling cries.

"Go into the room awhile," I said softly. "He is not seriously hurt. I am sure. I will guard this. If any one appears at the window, send me."

She went gladly, and I took her place, having now to do double duty. I had been there a few minutes only, listening with my soul to the sound of the first signs of attack, either below me or in the room behind, when I distinguished a strange rustling sound on the staircase. It was a rustling, not a pattering, a good deal below me, and probably whoever made it was just within the doorway. I peered into the gloom, and my eyes fell on a figure. I cried in a tone of warning, "Who is that?"

The sound ceased abruptly, but it left me uneasy. Whoever he was, he was up with us with gunpowder? No, it did not think so. They would not care to ruin the gateway for the sake of capturing a small party. And the tower was strong. It would not be easy to blow it up.

Yet in a short time the noise began again, and my fears returned with it. The rustling came from the stairs, and I took care of yourself!"

The answer was a flash of bright light, which for a second showed the figure of a man, who was coming up, a stunning report, and the pattering down of half a dozen slugs from the roof. I laughed, my first start over. You will have to come a little higher up, I called out. The man who was coming up, and my halberd was several feet long, so that I could reach as far as I could see. I had had time, too, to grow cool.

After this there was comparative quiet for another space. Every now and then a stone, or, more rarely, the ball of an arquebus, would come whizzing into the room, and I would not fear this. It was easy to keep under cover. And their shouting no longer startled me. I began to see a glimpse of hope. It was plain that the townsmen were puzzled how to come up, without suffering great loss. They were unaware of our numbers, and, as it proved, believed that we had the upper hand. I was not in the least case was impracticable as a point of assault, and the window, being only three feet in height and 20 from the ground, was not much better, if defended as they were, and I was, by a couple of desperate swordsmen.

I was not much astonished, therefore, when the rustling sound, beginning again in the room behind me, came this time to no more formidable force than a hail in Spanish. "Will you surrender?" the envoy cried.

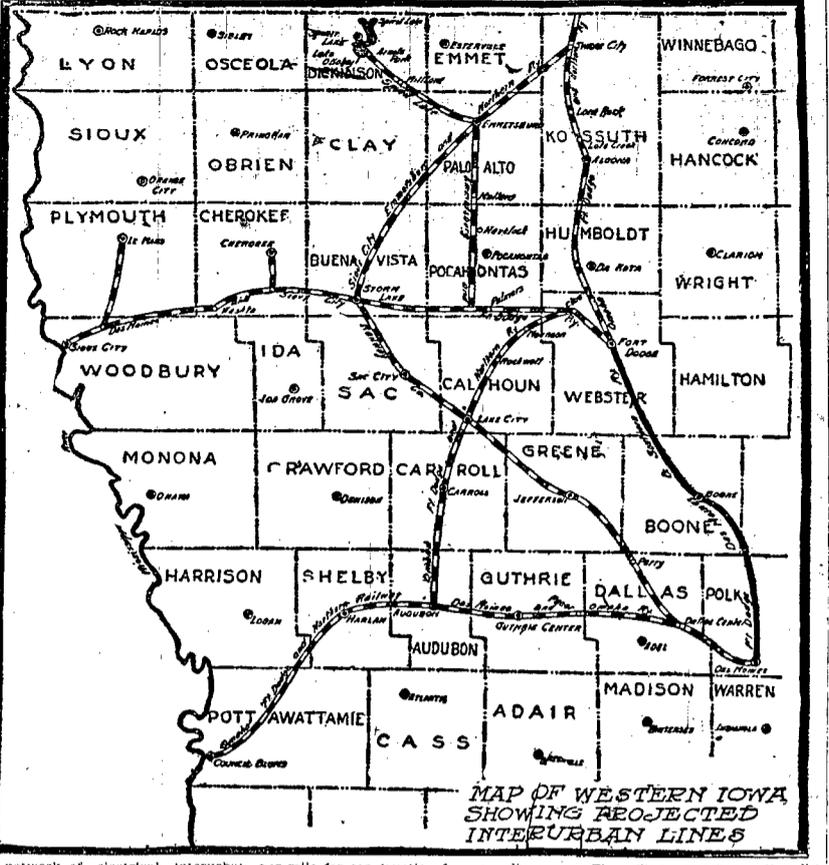

"No," I said, roughly. "Who are you?" was the next question. "We are English," I answered.

He went then, and there for the time negotiations ended. But, seeing the dawn of hope, I had not been long in any trap or surprise, and I cried to the duchess to be on her guard. For this reason, too, the suspense of the next few minutes was almost unbearable. I had never had more than a few minutes before, but the minutes came at last to an end. A voice below cried loudly in English: "Hullo! Are you gentlemen?"

"Yes, yes," I replied joyfully before the words had well ceased to rebound from the walls, for the voice and accent were those of Lindstrom's. A cry of relief from the room behind me showed that there, too, the speaker was recognized. The duchess came running to the door, but I begged her to go and keep a good lookout, and she obeyed.

Agricultural Experts From Japan.
 From the San Francisco Chronicle.
 R. K. Nagamine, a Japanese expert on agriculture, who has been employed by the mikado's government at Earmosa for the last few years, arrived in this city recently on the steamer Asia on his way to Washington to investigate the methods of the United States department of agriculture. "We have had in Earmosa, over 600,000 acres under cultivation, and we stepped off the steamer, and we want to find out how the United States grows about it to improve the conditions of its farmers. We can improve conditions in our country, shall go to Washington soon to get some advice from your authorities as to how to organize our farms. We will try to grow rice, sugar, tobacco, sweet potatoes, green crops, barley, wheat and beans. In fact, we can raise almost any crop, but we do not know how to do it. We do something for the soil from which we are demanding so much. We cannot continue to take everything from the soil and put nothing back. I hope that the United States will give us some advice and return home to my native land by way of Europe."

INTERURBAN LINES TO LINK COUNTIES OF WESTERN IOWA

MAP OF WESTERN IOWA SHOWING PROJECTED INTERURBAN LINES

A network of electrical interurban lines which, it is now believed, will be completed within the next two years, will place the cities and towns of northwestern Iowa in closer touch with their immediate trade territory as well as with the cities of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois now a part of the interurban system.

The advance of the interurban in this country within the last five years has been marvelous. Wherever these roads have linked towns and cities there has been a distinct advance in trade and social conditions. The scope of the lines now projected by the business interests of Sioux City, Cherokee, Storm Lake and Fort Dodge is wide.

Cross 40 Counties.
 Of the 40 counties included in the western and northwestern Iowa district, more than 20 of them will be crossed by the lines of interurban.

The extreme north, Dickinson, Emmet, Kosciusko, Palo Alto, and Clay counties will be especially benefited. Plymouth, Woodbury, Cherokee, Buena Vista, Pocahontas, Humboldt, Sac, Calhoun, Webster, Boone, Greene, Carroll, Shelby, Audubon, Guthrie, Dallas, Polk, and Pottawattamie are the others.

The great success of the line now being operated from Fort Dodge to Two Notes is one of the most encouraging features of the entire enterprise.

While not an especially difficult engineering feat to secure entrance into Iowa and cutting a road through to builders of lines. From preliminary surveys by experts, it has been demonstrated that it will cost close to $20,000 per mile for construction for some distance out of Sioux City.

From either Ireton or Cherokee an up to Spirit Lake, and from Cherokee east through Indian Lake to Fort Dodge construction can be made at an average cost of $10,000 per mile.

All of these conditions are now being carefully weighed by the men behind the enterprises. All are firm in the belief that the roads will pay and will result in building.

The writer has in mind a moss and fern covered hamlet in Indiana which has been asleep ever since the close of the civil war. Three years ago, an interurban out of Indianapolis pushed its way through the village. It did not do so without some opposition from the residents thereof, however.

The village said that they had never seen an interurban. The village merchants were puzzled by the little trade which they controlled. They feared the interurban would take it to Indianapolis.

All Fears Vanish.
 But the interurban came, nevertheless. The village merchants literally shivered in their boots when the first car ran through on its regular schedule. But like most fears there were entertained about the interurban.

Instead of losing the moss grown hamlet gained prodigiously. Indianapolis people had never happened to visit the picturesque little place, simply because it was off the beaten path. When the interurban put them in connection with it, they proceeded, quite unconsciously, to dispel the fears which the village merchants had held.

The village now has a first class hotel. It had to build one to care for the out of town people who flocked there to spend the week ends and holidays. Previous to this even the village boarding house had led a precarious existence. The merchants fairly gasped when one merry excursion party spent the night in the village. It was not noon that any one of the merchants had been accustomed to take in during a period of a month.

It is found to be a common practice to haul the hay, straw and stover to the barnyard, and from there to put it out there. This practice, however, necessitates hauling there, makes the roughness less palatable, on account of the accumulation of manure which is not removed. It is a great deal of the pasture grass, less hay is wasted, and the manure is effectively distributed where it is needed, and where it is most beneficial.

Farm Notes

THEORY AND PRACTICE.
 Many farmers—intelligent, successful men, too—still retain the old-fashioned universal prejudice against what is slightly termed "book farming." It is doubtless true, in farming, as in all other lines of human endeavor, theory without experience is helpless when put to the actual test, while experience minus theory (if there be such a thing) seems to succeed. In other words, the "book farmer" with a head full of "improvised" theories as to how the soil should be tilled and the stock bred and fed, but without actual experience in agricultural pursuits, would make but a sorry showing on the farm, beside a hard-headed, practical tiller of the soil who had "been through the mill" of experience and farmed his acres without regard to the despised "theories" of the "book farmer."

This much is granted. But the work of the experiment stations in the several states, the short courses given to farmers and their sons in the agricultural colleges, the work of actual demonstration carried on from place to place before the eyes of the people by such men as Professor Holden, the "corn" experimenter, and the "hog" man, to remove the prejudice that formerly existed against "book farming," and to prove to the men actually engaged in farming a "theory" (and a "theory" more) from the soil that "theory" plus experience make a very profitable combination.

The theory work done on the farm in the matter of increasing yields, of enhancing profits in the feed lots, and of generally increasing the yearly profits of a farmer, is a task that is open to a great many men who formerly scoffed at "book farming," and has tended to enlarge the views and broaden the scope of the farmer's knowledge to a wonderful degree. There are few farmers anywhere today who cannot be benefited by reading and studying agriculture in its higher branches. They cannot grow the best crops, the best methods and experiences of others, and by acquiring knowledge of the scientific truths of their calling. The increase in the yield of a crop, the profit to the farmer, and the constant studying of soils and grains and grasses—in other words, "book farming."

PASTURE ADVICE.
 The Missouri state board of agriculture offers this sensible advice in a bulletin recently issued. The first green crop of the year, the water-cress, produces very little grain, and both pastures and cattle suffer as a consequence of early spring pasturing. If, however, the late fall pasture has not been broken up, the water-cress will remain quite a little dry cured grass, which the stock necessarily get when picking for the new. This old grass serves as a "green" pasture, and is found to overcome the very laxative effect of the new. All bluegrass can be pastured until short, if this is done during July and August, that is, after it is fully matured. The water-cress, if cropped from October to December, that is, after the fall growth has been made, bluegrass should not be mowed during the winter, but should be mowed in its spring or fall growth.

It is found to be a common practice to haul the hay, straw and stover to the barnyard, and from there to put it out there. This practice, however, necessitates hauling there, makes the roughness less palatable, on account of the accumulation of manure which is not removed. It is a great deal of the pasture grass, less hay is wasted, and the manure is effectively distributed where it is needed, and where it is most beneficial.

College Notes.

Prof. Huntmer's father and mother visited with him for several days last week.

The Cash sisters had a guest during vacation their aunt, Miss Linke, of Thurman, Neb.

Miss Anna Brown of Meadow Grove is back again. Her sister accompanies her and both are hard at work.

Miss Leeta Cross, one of the substantial women of last year, has enrolled for special work in Manual training.

Miss Jennie Anderson, S. C. C. '07, has enrolled for advanced work. Her work as a teacher was so successful that she has been re-hired at an advance in salary.

A number of High school students have enrolled and are making up grades. This is most commendable, for they will be much stronger after a year of Normal work.

The regular monthly examination for those wishing teachers' certificates was held Friday and Saturday of last week. Quite a number took the examination at that time.

State Supt. J. L. McBrien was a visitor on the hill for a few hours Saturday. Many of the students attended the eighth grade graduating exercises at the court house to hear Mr. McBrien's address.

Mr. H. P. Shumway of Wakefield brought his niece, Miss Cass of Lyons, who has enrolled for the term. Mr. Shumway spent the day inspecting the school and its work which he highly complimented.

During the past week, a great deal of the machinery arrived and is being placed in position as fast as possible. The regular work in the department will soon begin under the direction of Prof. Huntmer.

Wm. Blackstone, who graduated from the Professional course last year, spent several days last week visiting friends on the hill. He has just closed a successful year's work at Elsie, Neb., where he was principal of the school.

Supt. Teed of Dixon county and Supt. Miller of Cedar county, who are instructing in the College this term, spent Friday and Saturday at their county seat giving the regular monthly examinations. They returned to their work Monday morning.

Taking into consideration the large number of students in school this term the work in starting off nicely. Many new classes have been organized for the benefit of those preparing to teach. We now have review classes in all the first and second grade branches, also in some of the more advanced work.

About the only thing for the 4th is Hoskins and Laurel. Wayne has too much coming in chautauqua to find time to celebrate.

It's an easy bet that Mayor Ley has the speediest Automobile in town.

Albert Berry has a lot of fine pianos on hand that were not sold with the bookstore. Albert is offering these instruments at much less than wholesale prices because it costs a good deal to ship them back to the factory and that method is always unsatisfactory. Selling pianos is like the automobile business. You can save hundreds of dollars by buying when a fellow has got to sell.

Not Quite Dead Yet.

A special from Lincoln to the dailies this week reads: Officers of the state Anti Saloon league are beginning to caustically criticize Governor Sheldon because he hasn't given promised decision on the complaint brought to remove the mayor and councilmen of Wayne from office on a charge that they had been derelict in duty in not cancelling a license to Peter Thompson after his conviction for selling liquor to minors. The testimony was taken away back in February, and a decision was promised within two weeks. Since then the license year has expired and Thompson's license has been renewed. In the view of the league this new grant is more reason why the mayor and council should be removed, but the governor has given no word.

At the governor's office it was stated that there is a legal question involved which it is expected will come up in the next few days. That is whether the mayor and council had the right to revoke the permit to Thompson under the circumstances. The governor does not want to order the proceedings to remove the men unless he is sure that they had legal power to do what they are accused of refraining from doing.

The above is simply a bit of hot air from some Thomas' staffer. Gov. Sheldon turned down the application to remove Wayne councilmen, very decisively. He suggested to Atty. Thomas, for the anti-saloon league, that he commence mandamus proceedings in the supreme court to compel the city council to revoke the Thompson license, but such a result was not what Thomas or the anti-saloonists wanted. They didn't care anything about the Thompson license, but were simply taking a long shot to discredit and remove Wayne councilmen, that their party hasn't got the necessary votes to do so in Wayne.

The following, from a staff correspondent of the Indianapolis News, appeared in that republican paper, issue of June 7th, before Taft was nominated.

Chicago, Ill., June 6th.—As has been said, there is to be no personalities associated with the campaign that has been planned by the field candidates. No one intends to say aught against Mr. Taft as a man, nor is there much disposition to say that he might not make a good president if elected. The sum total of the argument against nominating him is that he can not be elected, and it will be pointed out with more energy when the delegates all get here, that for the following reasons he will be defeated, if nominated:

First—On reflection the people of the country will not elect a man whose nomination was dictated from the White House.

Second—He will lose the votes of a large number of progressive republicans everywhere as a result of the support he is getting in Wall Street and from the trusts and "interest" generally.

Third—The negro vote of the country is against him and will never become reconciled to his nomination.

Fourth—Organized labor is unfriendly to him and is quietly laboring to wage war against him if he should be nominated.

Fifth—His statement about General U. S. Grant on Decoration day has offended the Grand Army men of the land, and they may be expected to be lukewarm in the campaign, if they do not refuse to support him.

Now these republicans who are opposing the nomination of Mr. Taft for the above reasons believe every reason they assign is based on facts. They have faith to believe that the delegates to the convention when they get together here and canvass the situation with the view of doing what is best for the party will see what a risk the party will be taking in nominating a candidate against whom there is so much aggressive opposition.

Party representatives of the party there are to believe the first reason assigned for desiring to prevent the nomination of Mr. Taft is sufficient. Many persons believe too little attention has been paid to the use of federal power in obtaining Taft delegates. It is common knowledge among persons who have followed the events of last year that the entire federal machine, with the president of the United States at the throttle, has been used in making sure of the election of delegates who would support the administration's candidate. In the south, where the federal office-holders could not control without running roughshod over the opposition, roughshod methods were resorted to.

Practically every delegate from the south who is here asking for admission to the convention as a Taft man was chosen by a convention of office-holders. When it became necessary for the administration to resort to extreme measures Frank H. Hitchcock was taken from the office of first assistant postmaster general and placed in charge of the work of obtaining delegates in the south. Why? Because, as first assistant postmaster general, he had appointed the postmasters down there and was the one man who could successfully assemble them in conventions for the purpose of electing delegates that would come here ready to carry out the administration's bidding. More than a year ago the federal administration deliberately started out to gather in the 241 delegates from the eleven southern states for Mr. Taft—states that do not contribute one electoral vote to the election of a republican president, and yet have within one vote of 25 per cent of the votes in the national assembly. The federal administration's activity in the south makes the contest from down there doubly interesting. If the national committee should stand by Mr. Hitchcock's word—if it shall say that it was right and proper for the office-holders to dictate the election of delegates—Mr. Taft's chance for obtaining the nomination will be greatly enhanced.

Unless all signs fail delegates from the progressive republican states of the west will want to know all about the Taft alliance with Wall Street before casting their votes in the convention. It is inevitable that there must be some explanations. Why is the Standard Oil company, the steel trust, every trust and land, now for Mr. Taft? It will, in the opinion of good judges, take a lot of explaining to convince the western delegates that a deal of some sort was not made. In New York it is common talk that it was the president's promise to "take the teeth out of the Sherman anti-trust law" that brought some of the big ones over.

The administration failed to persuade congress to extract the salt teeth, out from all accounts Mr. Roosevelt is determined that the national convention shall, in its platform, promise to have congress do the extracting at the next session. Somebody carried the word to the "undesirable citizens" in New York that if Mr. Taft should be nominated and elected they might be able to fix him in his way.

And my hair raised up straight, you bet, when I plainly heard him say: "Just tell all my friends 'roundabout that when the town went dry, I cut it out as many did and made a gallant try.

But when the town went wet again, I cut it out to beat the band.

But after being dry so long the change I couldn't stand, just tell them how I poured it down until I got too sick.

Now you may squint in your embalming stuff and I'll die without a kick."

Lincoln, Neb., June 6 (Special Correspondence)—Unless all signs fail, we are only in dry weather—Lincoln will be the center of things political in this republic from now until March, 1909. From July 7 or 8 the candidate for president put up by a united democracy will be in Lincoln, and after the Tuesday after the first Monday in November—and from then on until the first of March, 1909, the president elect will be a resident of the Nebraska capital. This is not only the belief of all good democrats, but it is a belief expressed by a great many republicans who have come to think more of country than of party, and who are rather averse to the new idea of "entail" as applied to the presidential succession.

All this means that Lincoln will be the Mecca of democracy from now on. And really the distinguished leaders are beginning to visit and consult with Mr. Bryan, and with one accord they report enthusiasm, determination, optimism and democratic ranks.

It is pretty generally understood that in the event of Mr. Bryan's nomination at Denver—a foregone conclusion—he will not again make a campaign tour, but will remain quietly at his home, "Fairview," and receive and entertain the delegations and visitors that are sure to flock in upon him. Mr. Bryan has several dates for addresses during the campaign, but these were made many months ago and the addresses will not be political.

Henry Watterson of Kentucky was a guest at "Fairview" several days recently. He reports the Kentucky democracy united and fully fit for the fight of its life. "Kentucky will give Mr. Bryan a rousing majority

BY DAD

It looked good for Bryan and the democrats long ago; now it looks like a sinche.

They are telling an awful joke on Geo. Warner, of Abern's store. Mr. Warner had John McGinty hold up a bunch of bananas while he, Warner, stood a string of them in some manner the cord got knotted around Mr. Warner's thumb, and when McGinty let go the bananas fell with a sickly thud and Geo. Warner was hoisted to the ceiling. It was a case of being weighed in the balance and found—lighter than bananas, by dad.

St. Louis City seems to be doing things in baseball business. Here's a 'oping she is last one to hit the top of the figners.

The Norfolk News brought news of Cleveland's death to Wayne ahead of telephone or telegraph. But then these corporation-bound institutions are most awfully slow these days.

A way says some young men in Wayne are like a lot of postage stamps that have been dampened. They are sticking to themselves and not much account.

No, it isn't the Sherman who said, "War is hell," but this one will know that he's right. He died November 6th here—Cherokee Democrat.

But then he'll be all right. Late ad vices are to effect he has his gall (stones), with him.

Winside people now know that anti-spoilism, like small pox, is very contagious. There is no doubt that the two or three citizens of that burg who are trying the rule or ruin scheme caught the disease from Wayne's contaminated.

There certainly is nothing the matter with Nebraska weather this week—for cornmaking purposes.

By dad, these are the days when Whalen's pure ice cream touches the spot.

Speaking about Nebraska freight business, it takes John Kato to tell the story. "Asked why he didn't make complaint to the railway commission Mr. Kato laconically and expressively replied "Oh h—!!" Kato says it takes 22 days to ship an incubator to Pawnee City, 12 days to David City an equal length of time to various jerkwater stations in the state, and only 6 days to get freight from Pittsburg, Pa., or less time from Chicago.

The Teddy-Taft-Sherman combination is surely on the down grade. At present rate of demoralization it will be only a short race to ruin from the passage of the Aldrich-Wall street currency measure to sure destruction.

The Democrat dislikes to see Editor Howard and J. P. Latta get into any scrap over the nomination for congress. Put it up to the voters as to whom they want to beat Boyd, and let's beat him. Either Howard or Latta can do the job and never wink an eyelash.

An insurance man of one of the prominent Omaha companies was in Wayne this week and wanted to wager money that Taft won't carry Iowa by 10,000 votes, that Iowa is a taxable grip and that now conditions are growing worse for the g. o. p. In his Omaha office this insurance man states there are five live-long republicans, every one of which is boosting for Bryan today, owing to the manner in which the Chicago convention put up a ticket, the Aldrich-Vreeland money bill and various variations from honor by his own party.

Why is it that a woman will teach her 10-year-old boy that it is wicked to tell a lie, and on a trip with him and fall in the conductor he is only 6 years old?

A deaf and dumb man went into Sam Temple's one day last week, and wrote on his begging card: "I have no people. Sam jerked out his pencil and inscribed below the above description: "I have, but they are not worth a damn." The beggar was satisfied with the contribution.

Manson Democrat: During the recent cyclone which passed over Livorno, a farmer of that vicinity had an interesting experience. He and his hired man had been compelled to unhitch their teams for the day on account of the rain and both went fishing for bullheads in the bayou of the Des Moines river. They sat on a log-cabin stump in the center of the bayou and threw their catch into the water that was in the stump to keep them alive. When they had considered over a hundred fish the cyclone came upon them and both made for cover. After the storm had passed they ventured forth to look after their fish. Instead of over a hundred these were only about 25 of the bullheads left, the stump by the force of the wind. But the few that remained had been thoroughly "cleaned" by the elements, beheaded, skin ned and made ready for the skillet, and then a friendly stroke of lightning had fried them to a nice, appetizing crisp. This story is vouched for by both the farmer and his hired man, both of whom are temperate citizens.

Here is an old one on the prohibitionist's story. In a certain town where two brothers are engaged in a flourishing retail coal business a series of revival meetings were held, and the elder brother of the firm was converted. For weeks after his conversion the brother who had lately "got religion" endeavored to persuade the other to join the church. One day, when the elder brother was making another effort, he asked: "Why can't you, Richard, join the church as I did?"

"It's all right for you to be a member of the church," replied Richard, "but if I join who's going to weigh the coal?"

Post control of the pesky thing and ran it into the fence, tearing down four or five posts and getting out in center field before he could stop it. The young man was thrown about 60 feet when the auto stopped, but it is reported that J. W. was carrying too much ballast for a high drive. The auto was little the worse for the accident.

A good automobile story is being told on Tom Steele of Sioux City. Mrs. Steele is at present visiting in Wayne. Tom was new to the millionaire's goods and in the absence of his chauffeur attempted to run the thing into the barn, on a narrow plank entrance. It didn't have steam enough on, so Tom put on plenty, shooting into the barn and up against the far end of the building. Then T. J. lost his head and like a billy goat the auto kept butting away, being thrown back at every plunge but always coming up again for another defeat. Mrs. Steele finally secured assistance from down town and had her husband rescued from his perilous predicament.

As a board of equalization the county commissioners are having a strenuous time of it as well as the taxpayers. The board adjourns today; but will meet again to adjust these matters.

Western Nebraska

Once appeared on the map as a part of the Great American Desert. Then came the cattlemen with their large herds of cattle, proclaiming that it was a cattle country and nothing else. Then came the homesteader and met with insults from the brave cowboys, together with the dry years, which caused him to retrace his footsteps. At this time the population of Nebraska was only about 452,402, and now it is more than five times as great, and more than twenty times the amount of land is under cultivation. 50 years ago it was difficult to get a farmer from the wooded sections of the east to settle on the open prairies where the land lies waiting for the plow; it was a new proposition demanding new methods and he was not used to them. But when he once learned by actual experience the advantages of the prairies, nothing could drive him back to the woods. When once a man has farmed by the Campbell System of Soil Culture in the arid west, he ceases to long for the best farm in the eastern portion, where thousands of dollars are lost almost every year by the extreme heavy rains.

Come take a trip with us to DALTON, CHEYENNE COUNTY, NEB. We will show you the Garden Spot of the State, where the Bancroft Colony are the owners of over 25,000 acres of land. 15 families moved from Bancroft to Dalton last spring.

How to Get an Automobile

An automobile is within the reach of nearly every one. If you will commence now and get on the right track you will find that you will soon be able to indulge in such luxuries as automobiles. It is impossible to accumulate anything when the outlet is greater than the income. If you want an automobile you must at once shut off the unnecessary expenses you now have, and you will in a short time find that you have accumulated sufficient funds to buy a first-class automobile. You cannot shut off the outlet by doing business with anyone but an experienced merchant. Inexperienced merchants are experimenting with your cash, and you will be the loser. We can help you to save a number of dollars if you will buy your clothing of us. We are experienced merchants and you will always get the full value of your money in anything you buy here. We are now fitting out our customers for hot weather. Your feet will need attention when the weather gets hot. We know how to fix them so you will be comfortable. Your head should be cool in hot weather. Let us fix your head so you need not fear a sun stroke. Your body will need cool clothing and we can supply that for very little money. Now the extra money you save here you can put in the bank and if you will use the same good judgment in buying all other necessary things you will soon find your bank account will justify you to buy an automobile. If you do not want an automobile it will be pleasant and profitable for you to do business with us anyway. Try us for a year and see if you do not make money. You cannot lose anything by doing business with us; then why not see if you can't save something. Give us a trial.

HUNG HERSELF TO A TREE

Mrs. Jasper Meyer Takes Her Life—Had Been Insane.

A message came to town Monday morning for the coroner, Dr. Williams, and Sheriff Mears to go to Lars Spike's place, eight miles southeast of Wayne, that Mrs. Jasper Meyer had hung herself. The particulars are, as nearly as the DEMOCRAT could learn, that Mr. and Mrs. Meyer, who live near Pender, went to her parents' home to visit. Sunday night Mr. Meyer slept upstairs and his wife in the lower rooms with her two children aged five and seven years. When the family arose in the morning they were shocked to see the woman hanging to a tree in the yard. The unfortunate woman was undoubtedly of unsound mind. Several years ago, before her marriage, she was temporarily insane and for a time confined in an asylum.

Later the DEMOCRAT learns that an inquest was held, the findings being that deceased came to her death while temporarily deranged. It also appears that Mr. and Mrs. Meyer had been staying at the Spike home for some time, having previously resided at Emerson. A note unsigned, was found which stated that the deceased was unable to longer bear up under a nervous strain; that she was sorry to have to commit the deed because of kind parents and such nice children, but she couldn't stand it any longer, etc.

The funeral was held Wednesday forenoon at the Spike home, later services being held in the Lutheran church by Rev. Ringer. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Spike will sympathize with them deeply in their terrible affliction.

Ringling Bros.

At Sioux City, Iowa

The people of Wayne will have an opportunity on Saturday, July 11th, of visiting Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows, the point of exhibition being Sioux City. This season marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of this great circus, and the Ringling Brothers are celebrating the year by presenting the greatest European program ever offered, a parade that surpasses all those of the past, a new and complete menagerie, another brilliant spectacle, and the most astonishing and sensational "thriller" in all history.

The "thriller" is nothing less than a double somersault in mid air made by a heavy automobile with Mlle. La Belle Roche, a young French woman, at the wheel. The car dashes down a steep incline from the dome of the tent. An abrupt curved terminal hurls the car high above the heads of the audience, where it accomplishes two complete revolutions and then lands with a crash on a narrow runway, exhausting its terrific momentum on the hippodrome track.

This is an act that defies English. It cannot be described, and when once seen, the picture of it will be carried in memory to the end of life. It is the first instance where a single automobile has turned two somersaults in space.

The world-wide character of this year's remarkable company can be seen at a glance. From France comes the great St. Leon family of acrobats; the Patti Brothers, who walk, skip the rope and dance on their heads; Burgess and Clara, the gymnasts; the wonderful Mariell troupe of cyclists; the aerial Millettes, and Miss La Belle Roche, who does the dangerous automobile double somersault.

From Italy have come the great Bedini family of riders and the Marnello-Marnello quartet of acrobatic jugglers. In Germany were found Schadel, the great zebra rider; Marguerite and Hanley, the gymnasts; and the Proffit trio and Horton and Lindlee, burlesque bar performers. Rucolones, the world's greatest trainer of animals, and his marvelous company of horses are from Russia, and the Mizra Golem acrobats are from the court of the Shah of Persia.

Wormwood and his trained bear; the Duttons and the Clark Brothers, riders; the great aerial Clarkonians and the famous Jordan family are from England; Kerslake and his company of pigs that skip the rope and shoot the chutes are from New Zealand and the eight Carnellos, acrobats; Alvarez, the acrobat; De Mario, the contortionist; and a company of burlesque bull fighters are from Spain.

Nature has provided the stomach with certain natural fluids known as the digestive juices, and it is through these juices that the food we eat is acted upon in such a way as to produce the rich, red blood that flows through the veins of our body and thereby makes us strong, hearty and robust and it is the weakening of these digestive juices that destroys health. It is our own fault if we destroy our own health, and yet it is so easy for any one to put the stomach out of order. When you need to take something take it promptly, but take something you know is reliable—something like Kodol For Dyspepsia and Indigestion. Kodol is pleasant to take. Four Months.

Four months now of lying, four months of deceit,
Four months of proclaiming that each side will beat,
Four months of denouncing, four months of high praise,
Then the glad returning in the peaceful ways,
Four months of cajoling, four months during which,
It will be disgraceful for men to be rich,
Four months of reviving ancient party strife,
Then the happy ending, and the peaceful life,
Four months of loud talking for the man who toils,
Four months of reviling, those who want the spoils,
Four months of proud politing, four months of alarm,
Then the glad forgetting of the threatened harm,
Four months of hurrahing, four long months of brag,
Four months of wild cheering for the grand old flag,
Four months of denying, four months of dark dread,
Then the same old toiling for our daily bread,
Four months of hard scolding, four months of deep hate,
Four months of besmirching every candidate,
Four months to be tortured by unfulfilled fears,
Then the nodding onward through four peaceful years.

The Adams County Democrat has succeeded in making a good point with a few words when it prints this editorial comment on a matter of its own experience. The freight rate question is brought to the attention of the publishers of the Democrat again by the receipt of a car of news print paper from Little Falls, Wis. This car came by way of Chicago rate. The charge from Little Falls to Omaha, a distance of 600 miles, was $64.16, while the charge from Omaha to Hastings, a distance of 150 miles was $83.36, making a total charge for the car of $147.52.

The Nebraska charge is almost five times greater than Iowa and Illinois charge, and why such an out rage is allowed to be perpetrated on Nebraska citizens we do not understand. Freight rate reform clackers keep on talking and railroad commissioners continue to make the usual grand stand play, but the Nebraska has to pay the freight, and the rate is just as exorbitant today as it was before Governor Sheldon and other reformers were elected to remedy this.

A carload of paper hauled by the railroads in Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin 600 miles for $64.16.

The same carload of paper hauled by the railroads in Nebraska 150 miles for $83.36!

Almost $20 more for hauling the car in Nebraska 150 miles than for hauling it in the other states 600 miles!

Ten and one-half cents in Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin per mile!

Almost 55¢ cents a mile in Nebraska!

Have Governor Sheldon and his railroad commission made good?

Had the governor forgotten the strong and forcible speech he made all over Nebraska, two years ago, pointing out the injustices perpetrated on Nebraska people by Nebraska railroads?

Or has he been so busy perfecting his alliance with Victor Rosewater and the interests Rosewater represents that he has no time to devote to the issue on which he was elected?—World Herald.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean, that bred to the narrow republican sheet, thinks there is "something queer" about Candidate Taft making such strenuous statements for publicity of all campaign contributions, and then the 46 delegates from Taft's state voting solidly against a national plank demanding such publicity. The Inter-Ocean even states that it "would be uncharitable to guess the reason."

Judge Welch soon disposed of the Winside saloon case last Saturday. The opposing forces agreed to go into court without witnesses, but agreed to disagree after opening the case. Judge Welch decided the saloons should continue business at least pending a desire of the antis to show some cause later why they should not.

The matter of expense in presenting what evidence they have is apparently what worries the dry advocates.

The Norfolk News' statement that both the west and east are represented in the g. o. p. national ticket—Taft being from a "western State"—Ohio—is the first joke of the campaign. Still, the republicans will endeavor to make out that black is white, or that a very yellow yellow, is the clear quilt before the campaign is well underway. If Taft and Sherman are what the western republicans want, stand for the reforms the west is in need of, why there can be no political controversy over anything. Let's call 'em elected and quit arguing about the matter. "Ohio a western state!" What magnitude of imagination!
