THE DEMOCRAT AT DENVER

Denver, Col., Brown Palace, July 8, 1908.—DEAR OLD DEMOCRAT!

Eryan!

Nebraska!

That's the slogan in this beautiful city of the west!

The word "Bryan" has magic, magnetism and something never known before (by republicans) stability and conservatism in it. It is the People vs the Guffness! the common voter against the Taft and Sherman hireling. In fact, this convention at Denver is looked upon as the greatest, most enthusiastic and even harmonious national meeting held in fifty odd years. There appears to be no remembrance of doubt but that the "Peerless One" will occupy the White House when Teddy goes to coonland for the big bear.

At present writing the matter of choice for second place is "all up in the air."

Had a mighty hard disagreeable trip getting to Denver. What now, after reaching the city, seeing the sights—and paying a plank for breakfast this morning—we feel better. Going to Omaha Sunday afternoon the trip was enjoyed by take told by Ed. Lundberg of Chicago. Ed. has become quite a Bryan man. At least he reads as he goes and like some others is wondering how men like our friend Judge Hunter is going to put up with the horrible nightmare. Going to the Calumet in Omaha the first table was found to contain our (Geo. Fortner was with the writer) old friend John Owen. J. E. was just having a debate with a pretty waiter girl as to what he should buy for the baby, the waiter insisted that it be socks, and John was just as insistent that he would have to see the "infant terrible's" feet first. About the time we had supper the flood came, and it was a rush of many waters, as bad as the first class passage a Day-report, for, allerman told about, while enroute to Denver. Talk about the scandalous director's gown; a Miss-ourer would take the Omaha flood and the imperiled Omaha girls for every time. At the depot we met Mr. and Mrs. (Frank) F. Hook, both looking happy and healthy. Frank introduced me as the Democrat man of Wayne and George as the member. The lady shook hands hesitatingly with the Democrat, but when informed as to my friend's identity and business gaily remarked, "Oh, that sounds much better." I bought a ticket and berth on the U. P. system and then Mr. Fortner, who was going to look at lands in Kansas, concluded to go by way of Denver, and asked me to change to the Rock Island road. It was the first time I ever cursed a ticket agent for being accommodating. He made the exchange, and thus at nine o'clock Monday we found our train marooned in lakes of water near Lincoln. At eleven a. m. we started back to Omaha, going to Council Bluffs for new engine and general repairs. At 1 p. m. we again started for Denver, in coaches, and at four p. m. Tuesday headed in the most beautiful city in the world. It was an agonizing trip, in a sense, partly from drouth and partly from hunger, the dining car failing to furnish grub at dining car prices. The train officials were simply "damnable" in their treatment of their passengers, refusing to allow them off the train—even in Omaha, where they belong for two hours. However, there were some "jolly spirits" on the hoodooed train, and looking backwards it doesn't look as tough as when longing for a peep at the Rockies.

Bryan will be nominated before this goes to print—and any of you dear republicans who think he will not be elected should get your ears to the ground.

By DAN

The above was received at this office too late for publication last week and may be of little interest at this late date.

Last everyone has read full and all sorts of accounts of the Denver convention. Denver millionaires simply did everything possible for the comfort of her guests. The greatest disappointment was inability of thousands to get into the big auditorium, although it at nearly all times was packed every available standing space. It was simply remarkable how people endured and enjoyed the session lasting from six p. m. Thursday the building was to be in session till 10 o'clock a. m. Friday. Many thousands of course left during the hours of the night but even then the beautifully decorated and completely reconstructed structure appeared practically full of people when the long session closed. The general impression appears that the matter of an hour and a half of applause at the mention of Bryan's name was part of the "printed program." Chairman Clayton and his aides, however, did all possible to quiet the convention. The general plan of the twenty thousand crazy Bryanites was to make four times as much of a disturbance whenever the chairman pounded the gavel, which he did every few minutes for an effort to restore order. The reason for the prolonged cheering was merely an effort to force the states of Delaware, Minnesota and New York into the Bryan parade. The Democrat man, however, considers the enthusiasm within the auditorium of minor importance compared to information gleaned in hotels, depots, streets and trains! In 1896 and 1900 there were many fierce encounters between the Bryanites and McKinleyites. A. Denver there was only one song sung, ever body was for the democracy—who talked politics. Visitors from every state in the union told the same tale: "we can't vote for the Taft-Sherman ticket. Perhaps the Democrat is over enthusiastic but it looks to us like the greatest political landslide in politics ever pulled off, and probable that states considered absolutely certain to elect republican presidential electors will be found in the democratic fold next November."

Wayne, Nebraska

BY DAD

What, no burglaries in Wayne last week?

Nebraska is now forty thousand majority for Bryan and the indicator still going up.

Taft says: "I am entirely willing to turn the campaign over to my management." That's the cue. And who is the "management"? Simply and truly the "interests" of wall street and the trust protected corporations. Taft's advice is to put up to the west-ern voters and the Democrat is glad to note that the west, irrespective of politics, is going to dump it in the gutter of defeat.

Randolph Times: Col. Guiley and other eastern leaders "went turned down. These men and their followers will no doubt lend no support during the campaign or on election day to the Denver ticket."

Of course they won't; all such grafters will be found with big contributions to the Taft and Sherman tickets.

You can get a much better idea of how the people are going to vote next November by talking with people who have traveled through different sections of the country than you can by reading republican papers.

It is announced from the east that there is pronounced rivalry in the way in all lines of business. The nomination of Bryan has no depressing effect. Of course not. It was foregone conclusion that he would be nominated and the entire country feels that his election will be a good thing.

At last the poets have struck a snag—No matter where they turn. They can't locate a real good word to rhyme with Bryan and Kern. Now that to help them out, I'll put them on the "C" case a durr. For Bryan and Kern W. C. C. Jack.

What's the use in trying Taft? He's accepted before Ted and nominated.

In the eyes of republicans Hearst seems to be quite a man now since he has declined to support Bryan. If he had decided to support Bryan the republican press would have been playing Bryan and saying Hearst would do him more harm than good.

Anyhow, by dad, you fellows who "buried Bryan" a few years ago better be afraid of his ghost, eh?

What a poor judge William H. Taft must have been when he held his hand to the laboring man, justice, if he is to be believed on his present-day promises to get you out of it.

The republican national convention voted 860 to 4 against publicly recognizing campaign contributions. Candidate Taft has "turned the matter over to his managers," who by the way are some of the chief corporations and trust grafters of the country. The one hope of Taft and Sherman is to buy their way into the white house.

The American people are going to put permanent injunction on Taft, the man of labor injunctions and despoiler of the memory of Gen U. S. Grant.

There is a hard battle ahead. Now is the time for every republican to renew his faith and to pledge again his devotion to the party of progressive. —Norfolk News.

"A hard battle," yes but why not state that "now is the time for every republican to renew his faith in republican promises." The Democrat has been led to believe from reading republican papers, that Taft and Sherman represent the standpat element of the R. C. P. Is that not correct?

There might have been more June brides if the price of footstuffs hadn't been so dogged high.

Let's see, is it time to begin to worry about the race between King Corn and Jack Frost? Oh, well, if you don't care we'll wait a while.

Taft carries $50,000 life insurance. Perhaps he could borrow enough to build a front porch by utilizing some of the material in his bay window.

A Missouri judge has declared that our parents in the garden of Eden contracted a common law marriage. Of course. There was nobody else there to keep the poor cuss from being a damphire.

In 1908 Taft against Bryan, in 1912 Taft against Bryan, but in 1916 who will run against Bryan. —Ida Grove Pioneer.

Well, it is not likely that Bryan will be a candidate in 1916. Two terms will be all he will care to have of the presidency.

Just now the ice man has a smile on him like a presidential candidate.

Ears to the corn, this hot weather.

Don't overlook the fact, republican friends, that if Taft is worth six millions to a few eastern corporations and trust managers (the lowest estimate on their source) Bryan—a Nebraska man—is worth several billion dollars to the eastern country. If you feed these eastern ganders all the sauce the geese will go hungry, by dad.

Sam Davies took an auto ride to Wakefield last Saturday and failed to get back until he could walk in, missing all his evening paper delivery.

Makes your girl love you and keeps the girl sweet and cool—Whalen's ice cream.

Hurry for Bill!

The third time most always proves a charm.

The short farmer has one advantage. He can claim that his corn is knee high.

It seems to be the general impression that the sheath gown will not become popular at picnics in the woods.

Yesterday the president inspected Peary's ship and bade the explorer farewell. The fellows who put up the money can now bid farewell to it.

It was really entertaining to read several columns about the Denver convention and then read a three line item which proved conclusively that there was nothing to what you had read.

Sad Death of Iver Hughes.

Just coming into man's estate Iver Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hughes died last Monday evening at nine o'clock after a week's illness. Peritonitis is given as the cause of death, brought on, so the Democrat is informed by eating freely of ice-cold water-melon. Dr. Knott of Sioux City was summoned, arriving only a couple of hours before the boy died. Dr. Knott was of the opinion that he might have saved the patient had he been called twenty-four hours sooner. The funeral was held at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the residence, Rev. Thus Osborne preaching a touching sermon. Iver Hughes was in his eighteenth year and one of the best boys in town, to his young friends. Modest and unassuming he was well liked by everybody. Since so cool vacation he has been clerking at Felter's drug store. The Democrat extends deepest sympathy to the bereaved parents, sisters and brothers.

College Notes

Miss Tillie Hadik enjoyed a visit from her cousin Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss James enjoyed a visit from her sister on Tuesday of last week.

Amelia Reeves of Madison was visiting friends on the Hill Friday. Miss Reeves spent the past year as primary teacher at Creston where she met with the greatest of success.

Co. Supts. Perkins of Madison county and Pilger of Pierce county took up their work as teachers the first of the week. They will be members of the faculty for the remainder of the term.

Amey Mahood left last week for Cascade, Colo. where she goes to the Western Students Conference as the delegate from the College Y. W. C. A. Miss Mahood will be in school all next year.

Ida Glason of Madison, who will complete the work of the State certificate course next month, has secured a good school near Hastings. She will receive $5 a month.

Co. Supts. Teed of Dixon county and Miller of Cedar county left for their homes the latter part of last week after having spent a month instructing in the college. They had many good friends during their stay with us and all very much regretted that they could not remain longer.

The Boys Athletic club entertained the young ladies Thursday evening. An interesting program was presented. The evening was passed very pleasantly, with special music by the orchestra and refreshments.

As has been the case every Saturday for the last few years, we have a principals' association. The association is composed of those who will be principals, assistant principals, and school teachers. Much good is being done by the members as a result of these meetings.

Rev. Hunter conducted a prayer service Tuesday morning and gave the students a very pleasant talk. The Wayne ministers have been very kind in visiting us this term, and we appreciate their talks very much.

Co. Supt. Ward of Antelope county was a college visitor the last of the week. He spoke to the students at the four o'clock meeting and at afternoon. Mr. Ward is an entertaining speaker and his talk was very much enjoyed by all. He also made a few remarks at the Chapel exercises Tuesday morning.

E. O. Garret, the good-natured and enterprising representative of the American Book Co. spent several days last week at the College. Mr. Garret attended the governors' meeting at Washington this spring at the request of Gov. Sheldon. He gave an interesting talk to the students at Chapel, taking for his subject, the personality of the men he met and saw at Washington.

Ollie Jones of the Wayne Normal spent Saturday and Sunday at Winside.

Amos Carter and wife of LaCrosse, Wisconsin, is visiting at the home of his brother, A. H. Carter of this place.

Mr. Smith, the cement sidewalk man of Laurel was in town over Sunday, returning to Laurel Monday morning.

Lew Boock, formerly of Winside, but now the proprietor of a hotel at Phillip, S. D., arrived home Monday for a short visit with parents and friends.

A. Bohlander, who has been sojourning in Wyoming during the past two days arrived home Monday morning.

Messrs Brown, McClusky and Prescott went to Crystal lake on a fishing trip Thursday returning Friday evening. The usual hard luck story, with a noticeable aggravation of Brown's cough.

F. W. Tucker and Dan Carter gave an informal party to a few of their friends Saturday night. Light refreshments were served.

Frank Ware, our genial druggist, departed for Omaha the first of the week where he has accepted a lucrative position with a drug firm.

The People of Winside are rejoicing over the fact that they are not called upon to mourn the untimely death of our marshal, Cap. Isadore M. Hills. Circumstances and the timely intervention of friends saved his young life from being quickly and effectually snuffed out last Saturday evening by a local fire hose temporarily suffering with St. Vitus Dance. The Captain, clothed in his usual gracious manners and with his hat at the usual 45 degree angle, connected up the fire hose with the hydrant at Mettlin's corner and concluded to wet the coals in the street. As the water of fire he grasped the nozzle with an old time fireman's grasp and yelled for water. The man at the hydrant turned on the water, and the next instant the marshal was indulging in a series of gyrations which would make professional tumbler look like thirty cents.

During the first few moments, people thought he had been partaking of the loco weed, but the principal actor finally landed on the ground and with undaunted courage renewed the battle by endeavoring to get a strangle hold on the nozzle, but he miscalculated the distance and got a one hundred and forty pound stream on the roof of an adjoining street car. He remained in the tree for a full count and removed such portions of the same from the various portions of his anatomy which he could easily reach and renewed the struggle. This time he strived for a hammer lock and half nelson, but again the hose eluding a rush, inserted in the waist band of the marshal's trousers and proceeded to deliver water therein at the rate of 450 gallons per minute. Now comes the harrowing details—unfortunately for the Captain, his trousers were built of three-ply, malleable, water-proof material and the bottoms were inserted in his feet, thus making a perfect seal for the time being, an absolute non-leakable stand pipe with the marshal rattling around on the inside. The capacity of the trousers was only 20000 gallons when occupied, and after being filled, the water having to way of escape had to escape over the top naturally, and very close to his mouth. Cap had learned, while in the Blackfoot country, the effects of water, when taken inwardly upon the human system, and at a moment realized the full extent of his peril. Just at the moment when it seemed as though a few drops would send him out into his coffin, a young Henry Smith, standing at the hydrant and so realizing the eminent peril, with great presence of mind, shut off the water, thus saving to the people of Winside, the water cure and gallant Captain, and likewise saving the unnecessary expenditure of six bits for flowers. Moral: Don't monkey with the buzz saw.

Death of Chas. Liedtke.

Friends of Chas. Liedtke were shocked to learn of his death, which occurred last Friday night. Liedtke had been in poor health for a year or two past. Of late he appeared better and went to work on the railway. He was taken seriously ill a week ago Monday and grew rapidly worse until death released him from his sufferings. Chas. K. Liedtke was born at West Prussia, Ger., June 6, 1862. He had been a resident of Wayne for twelve years. He was married fifteen years ago and leaves a widow and two children.

Water, Gas, or Oil.

G. J. Savidge writes the DEMOCRAT from Omaha, under date of July 10th: "Today I was instructed by Mr. E. B. Nichols, Sup. of C. St. Paul and M. and O. R. R. Co., under a contract to drill a hole in the ground at Wayne with the intention of getting a flowing well, gas or oil, want to exceed 2,000 feet. Will begin work in Aug.

Otto Diederichs of Beannington Neb. was in the city the past week attending the funeral of Charles Liedtke last Sunday. Mr. Diederichs is a cousin of Mrs. Liedtke.

E. E. and Nathan Chace came up from Stanton Monday to visit relatives.

Adolph Keeper and Herman Fiege recently bought farms from the Kivett Land Co. through O. D. Franks. Violin and Clarinet lessons will be given by A. G. Bohner, half block west of P. O.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to extend our heartfelt thanks to the many neighbors and friends and also to thank the Sons of Herman and Eagle, Orders for the assistance given us in the death and sickness of our husband and father. Mrs. Chas. K. Liedtke

From The Center Of Things.

Special Correspondent. Last week was a week of political turmoil in Lincoln. Every train brought the prominent men of democracy to Fairview to consult with Bryan and Saturday morning the big delegations began arriving. All day Saturday the delegates and visitors to Denver were streaming into the hotel from Lincoln to Fairview. A large delegation led by Bryan headed by Rev. Fater Nugent, the eloquent divine who made such a splendid campaign for Mr. Bryan in 1896, came in Sunday. Oklahoma's bunch of "rooters," filling two special trains over the Rock Island, also came in Sunday and spent five hours in Lincoln. They marched to Fairview with flags and banners flying. It is safe to say that there were 2,000 visitors at Fairview, Sunday and the single line street railway to Mr. Bryan's home was utterly inadequate to carry the crowds.

Friday night the Nebraska Traveling Men's Club held their annual banquet at the Auditorium, and seven hundred people ate and listened to democracy's greatest orators. Richard L. Metcalf editor of The Commoner, officiated as toastmaster. Thomas P. Gore, the blind senator of Oklahoma; Augustus Thomas, the famous playwright; Congressman John James of Kentucky; and Alexander Row of the New York State Com. Union, were the political orators. Mr. Bryan was the last speaker on the list, but refrained from talking politics save in a general way, confining his remarks largely to welcoming the guests. But even though he tried to avoid partisan politics every now and then he brought his remarks to their feet with a whirlwind of applause.

Much has been said about "making the platform 'Fairview'" but you may take the word of one who thinks he knows that the platform adopted at Denver will be made in Denver. Mr. Bryan has been consulted early and late of course, and has freely expressed his views. But he has not been interviewed by a hundred special correspondents kept up with a correspondence that taxes the resources of a rural free delivery carrier, occupied two or three pulpits introduced a speaker at a big labor meeting at the Auditorium, and attended a half dozen weddings. And every newly wedded couple has received from him a wedding present that he personally purchased in company with Mrs. Bryan. In addition he has written his usual grat for The Commoner, attended three or four dinner parties as the guest of close personal friends. Amidst it all he is the same calm, genial good-natured gentleman with a smile and a welcome for every one who calls. Of the fifty or more special correspondents who have camped in Lincoln at one time or another during the last month, the writer can call but one who is a Taft supporter, though ninety-five per cent of them represent republican newspapers.

Tom L. Johnson of Ohio, Charles A. Towne of New York, William A. Sulzer of New York and John W. Kern of Indiana were among the notables who called at Fairview last week. There were others too numerous to mention.

Speaking of "original Bryan men," it may be interesting to read something about Richard L. Metcalf, the associate editor of The Commoner. He has been as close to Mr. Bryan during the past eighteen years as a man could be. Metcalf is an Illinoisian by birth, but got his start in the newspaper business at Poplar Bluff, Mo., in 1887 he went to Omaha and became a reporter on the Omaha Bee. When Gilbert M. Hitchcock, now congressman from the Second Nebraska district, started the Evening World at Omaha Metcalf joined his editorial staff. Afterward when the World consolidated with the Herald he became political editor of the consolidated papers. In 1890, when Mr. Bryan was first nominated for congress it was Metcalf who took charge of his newspaper campaign. He exposed the ties between venal populist managers and the republican machine, and his work had a marked effect on the result—the election of Bryan by 5,000 majority in a district normally 4,000 republican. It should be borne in mind that Mr. Bryan was not a "fusion" candidate in either of his congressional campaigns. He was opposed by a populist candidate both times. In 1894 Mr. Bryan became editor of the World-Herald with Metcalf as his associate. When Mr. Bryan was nominated in 1896 Metcalf became editor-in-chief of the World-Herald with the writer of this letter as his assistant. When The Commoner started Metcalf was immediately asked to become associate editor, and he accepted. However, he retained his connection with the World-Herald until 1894. "Met" as everybody calls him, is one of the best newspaper men in the country. He is modest as a woman—and as tender. But when a campaign opens in Nebraska the political "medicine mixers" always consult him and seek his advice. Mr. Bryan trusts him implicitly. "Met" had complete editorial charge of The Commoner during the year Mr. Bryan was abroad, and he "made good." Indeed he would make good anywhere. During all the years of Mr. Bryan's political prominence "Met" has been his closest personal advisor, his closest friend.

While "Met" and Mr. Bryan were associated on the World-Herald they had a dispute concerning the advisability of printing a certain article. Bryan objected on the ground that it was "personal journalism." Met insisted on printing it because it was "good newspaper business."

Finally Mr. Bryan leaned back in his chair and said: "Well Met, between my efforts to make a statesman out of you, and your efforts to make a newspaper man out of me, I don't really know what will happen."

The "original Bryan man" may not be Richard L. Metcalf, but he is backed for first place by thousands who know all ten facts. But Met would indignantly deny that he has done anything more than a newspaper man would do who tried to perform his work to ten best of his ability.

Wellman On Bryan.

The following is part of a write-up of Bryan, by Walter Wellman, in the Chicago Record-Herald, a republican paper that has always supported the money-made presidential candidates. No doubt the purpose of the Record-Herald is to scare the corporations and Wall Street to the real danger of Bryan's election to the presidency.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 1.—It is a big game that is being played here by a big man for a big prize.

To reunite a disrupted party. To bring all factions together upon a platform all can stand upon. To inject into a party, till now so often beaten that it has become well nigh hopeless, not only harmony, but hope, and confidence enthusiasm—this is the task William Jennings Bryan is engaged upon.

The objective, of course, is the White House. Mr. Bryan is playing his part well, with great skill with well defined ideas as to methods, with a personal magnetism and self control rarely equaled among our public men, with almost infinite knowledge of men and conditions everywhere in the country.

A strong, stocky, big-faced, heavy jawed, quick-eyed, pleasant speaking, sweet-smiling man stands on the porch of a beautiful country house. His hand is outstretched. He welcomes all comers. No sort of Democrat is repulsed. No matter what he has done or for whom or what voted, or talked, or written in the days that are gone—if he is now a Democrat and for the old party the glad hand grasps his as he walks up the stairs. If he is a man of any importance whatever, and he takes the trouble to wire ahead Mr. Bryan will meet him at the railway station and drive him out to Fairview and make him happy.

This man who is now hard at work reshaping, remaking, re-creating the Democratic party, under his leadership and incidentally for his own benefit, is one of the marvels of the age. In his personality he is one of the most remarkable men of our day. He is now a strong, a ripe, a full man. He is indeed the new Bryan. He has grown in poise and wisdom and judgment and insight and grasp till he has become almost ideal as a leader, as a doer of the sort of work that now lies to his hand. We who judge him simply as a performer from the artistic side, from the viewpoint of competence and cleverness and adaptability—simply as a player of a great game which interests us because it is great and well played—cannot withhold from him the meed of our praise and admiration. We remember the Bryan of old, eloquent but inexperienced, passionate but poor of judgment, a born preacher and crusader, a little fanatical somewhat narrow, inclined to harbor personal resentments, bigoted as many strong and earnest men are to the point where they do not much like those who disagree with them, inclined to think that whatever they stand for must be right and that it is their duty to convince all mankind to their way of thinking. The new Bryan is better balanced, more tolerant, not less sincere, but more adaptable, still the preacher by instinct, but the harmonizer and builder by trade. He has grown and he has learned. A fine type of the race of men we Americans are proud of is he, as he walks along the railway platform or upon the broad veranda of his home with his marvelous memory for faces and names his winning smile, his cheery "Hello, Jim," or "How are you, John?" Back of the smile and the nice manner and the winsomeness is every inch the man—masterful, intellectual, tenacious, dominant. You like the smile and the handshake. But you never forget the forcefulness behind them.

Sit down and talk with Mr. Bryan for half an hour and you will find that he takes a modest and proper pride in the fact that he is now the undisputed leader of his party, that he is coming again into his own, that he has regained his estate without the aid of wealth, or influence or corporations or organization. As he well says, he has had nothing but himself, nothing but his principles, nothing but his steady appeal to the people. As he also well and perhaps with designed significance says he had had no patronage, no office holder, no machine behind him. For the most part, as he adds, the machinery of the Democratic party was in the hands of state or local leaders who were not for Bryan.

They had everything with them except the people. Mr. Bryan had nothing except the people. And in the end as the big strong fellow on his front porch chuckles, everything went the way the people wanted it to go.

This is what Bryan has done; this is the way he has done it. And the man that can do this in that way, after two defeats and an eclipse, after the superficial observers the country over had ruled him out as a back number and dead one, has something very extraordinary in him. He is a power, a force, a quantity, an entity, a factor in our national life. He is something that must be reckoned with. That is what his party is doing now. It is learning who is master. His is the power that has tamed his party, tamed it, made it answer his call, cast out of his band. What he will do with the country remains to be seen. Just what this power of his is, how it will look in chemical analysis, what we shall find at the bottom of the crucible, is not to be discussed just now. We are only concerned with the fact, and the fact is this man sitting there so calm and serene and confident on his front porch is the Democratic party of to-day.

Too much attention is being paid to Hobson. This country has no use for agitators of his stripe. Someone should sink a schooner in his gas bag.

Political Anecdotes.

From six p. m. until four a. m. looks long, but it was only loud, lively and the greatest ten hours of life the writer ever experienced.

The Chicago Record-Herald is one of the big papers of the country to drop gracefully into the democratic hand-wagon. Press reports from a great many leading publications of the states is of a decidedly different tone from that of 1896 and 1900. Either there is a great blimp to the Bryan and Kern ticket or a wise plan to scare the republican grafters and millionaires of tariff, trusts and the Street into spilling millions of dollars into the republican campaign managers big pot.

After attending the Denver convention and reading various newspaper reports of the great history making meeting the DEMOCRAT wants to state that the very fairest, truest and most accurate accounts of the proceedings were found in the Chicago Record-Herald. Intensely democratic organs were won't to enlarge upon or become perhaps a little too enthusiastic. Republican dailies such as the Denver Post, Omaha Bee, and more particularly the Sioux City Journal, simply made ludicrous monkeys of their publishers in an endeavor to detract from the generally stupendous magnitude of the national doings. The Record Herald, while it may not have pleased all its democratic readers, gave a graphic and magnificent recount of the national affairs as it really occurred.

While attending a national convention is strenuous physical, mental and financial exercise, it is a great revelation to the man who "always stays at home." Denver, particularly offered great opportunity to "open the eyes of the blind." It is simply a magnificent city. Pure air and the best water in the world; beautiful streets of stone buildings, clean and tidy; little dust and no dirt, and then, to a democratic mind, the complete obliteration of the g. o. p. There was not a single picture of Taft to be seen in Denver (out of courtesy to her Bryan guests, and how different from Bryan's own city and state.) Not one shout for Taft and Sherman was heard by the Democrat man—not even enroute to Denver nor returning. But aside from politics a national convention offers more opportunity to study men, places and things in general than any other institution.

A visit to Denver and her nearby cities is as good, even better, than going to a "world's fair." There are many places of interest and education in these Colorado cities. The government mint, state capital, which contains enough exhibits to keep one busy for a week in exploring; great public bath houses, parks, mountains, streams full of fish, mines, etc., etc. If you are "tired" go to Denver and get a new lease on a life that is worth living.

Some notable men were seen and heard by this writer, enroute to and from Denver, as well as some "dame phools" like the woman kisser Hobson who got credit for sinking the Merrimac when his men took all the death risk. Nearly all these notables had "Bryan stories" to tell, and some went even so far as to emphatically state that Bryan had friends who would die for him. What a hold Bryan has on the people—outside of Nebraska where many offer him insult—simply past understanding.

The DEMOCRAT man had the race of his life last Monday morning. Sunday evening about thirty or forty passengers were told that there would be positively no trains leave on the Neb. division before nine o'clock Monday morning. The writer was one of a party who went to see the operator, third floor of the depot, about this matter, and he stated that not even a freight would go out. The result was that a number of passengers "got left" for the day in Sioux City. The DEMOCRAT man was away out at Smith's Villa, perhaps two miles from the depot, when he got a phone message that the train would leave right on time. Ten minutes to eight we caught a street car which went so slow that it was abandoned on 4th street and a fast race for the depot got us there just in time to see the passenger several hundred yards down the track. Our toothpicks were urged to greater speed and for a few minutes it looked as though we could beat the C. St. P. M. and O., but when twenty feet away the engineer opened the throttle. Yelling desperately with what voice we brought back from Denver to a farmer on the end of the coach to "pull that cord" the train again slowed up and we fell in a heap on the steps. It was a race that would beat Taft and Sherman any month of the campaign. Another sprinter a few yards in the rear was distanced and left to kick himself in Sioux City.

There was one Fourth of July celebration a little out of ordinary in Norfolk last Saturday.

Joseph Holdoebler, the Wayne county paranoic who was released from the Norfolk institution on parole a short time ago, received permission from the children's home in Omaha to take his little girls, age five and seven years, to Norfolk for a visit with their mother, who is an inmate of the Norfolk asylum.

The father and the little tots decided to walk out to the institution, and arrived at 3:30, eager to see mamma. The poor mother had not seen her little ones for about two years, and despite her mental condition, recognized her babies and soon had them on her lap talking to them and loading them with caresses. The little ones are rugged, German youngsters, and on the return trip to town ran and played along the roadside picking flowers, chasing the birds, and happy in the thought that they had seen mother and were having an outing with their big stalwart father.

The trio returned to Omaha Sunday morning.

Holdoebler is the man who has been attracting so much attention by writing to European rulers asking for his release from the asylum, claiming that he is sane and unjustly deprived of his liberty. Dr. Young had left him out on parole, a German veterans society of Omaha promising to become responsible for the man's conduct.

Holdoebler served in the Franco-Prussian war, the war of the rebellion and the war in the Philippines. A band new G. A. R. badge was conspicuous on the lapel of his coat.

One of the objects of Holdoebler's visit was to take his wife out of the asylum and make a home for her in Omaha, where he is earning eighteen dollars a week as landscape architect. Mrs. Holdoebler's condition is such that she cannot be released—Norfolk Press

Delay in commencing treatment for a slight irregularity that could have been cured quickly by Foley's Kidney Remedy may result in a serious kidney disease. Foley's Kidney Remedy builds up the worn out tissues and strengthens these organs. Commence taking it to-day. Raymond's Drug Store.

The warning comes from Texas that the end of the world will come in 1911. Texas is so near like the other place that the change will scarcely be noticeable to the people of that state.

The function of the kidneys is to strain out the impurities of the blood which is constantly passing through them. Foley's Kidney Remedy makes the kidneys healthy. They will strain out all waste matter from the blood. Take Foley's Kidney Remedy and it will make you well. Raymond's Drug Store.

At Sioux City yesterday John Ostrander of George, Iowa, was put out of business by the filing of a petition in the federal court declaring him a bankrupt. In his list of debts the first item is $14, due his local paper for subscription. How could a man like that succeed in business?

This is what Hon. Jake Moore State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol For Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sir—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs. In fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in all my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity may be benefited. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904."
