Going to Be a Killing.

The DEMOCRAT can heartily "here to" to the following from the Columbus Telegram. Only a few days ago a young man drove an automobile up Main street, from the German store past the M. E. church at not slower than thirty or forty miles an hour, the machine fairly jumping from one crossing to another. Had this devil of an auto driver killed one of the writer's children, which might easily have happened, he would never have run another automobile this side of hades, where he belongs: "It's coming, boys. Death is coming to some person beneath the wheels of an auto on Columbus streets. My advice will not keep you from killing somebody, but duty impels me to speak. You have had good luck so far, you who drive the autos in Columbus. I hope you may always have good luck. But some one of you will be a murderer pretty soon. I say you will be a murderer, because, having knowledge that reckless driving kills people, you shall not escape with a simple charge of manslaughter on the day when you shall kill the victim. I am not knocking on the auto. Going to own one myself just as soon as possible. But it is not pleasant to see people killed in public places, and hence this warning. Six miles an hour is fast enough to run through the busy streets. Some of you are running sixteen or better. Yesterday I heard a man say that if one of his children should be killed by a reckless auto-driver, he would kill that driver if it was 'the last act of his life. The man talked like he meant it. Perhaps it may be one of his children that will be offered as the first sacrifice upon the altar of auto-speed craze in Columbus. And then perhaps there may be two killings on the same day. Slow down to a decent gait on the public streets, boys. There is nothing in this swift driving on the public streets except danger—danger which must in the end be attended by death."

For the Public Good.

One hears a good deal about the power of the press, but the fact is that no newspaper has very much real power over men or events in these days unless it is known to be standing sanely and steadfastly for the welfare of the whole community and nation. The day of party organs is past. Sensational papers appealing to popular passions cannot move thoughtful men—the men who make history. The only kind of newspaper that really has tremendous power in these days is the independent, reliable, disinterested journal of wide circulation, whose columns are known to stand always for the general good—for public honesty and a square deal, whatever happens. An excellent example of this sort of journalism is THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD. It has the enormous circulation that deservedly goes with the printing of all the news, but its power lies in its wise, conservative, independent editorial policy, which is shaped with one sole end in view—the public good. Its news and critical columns show the same spirit.

The Need of an Industrial Education.

The demands of the times is for an education that will fit the boys and girls of today, for their task of tomorrow. The marvelous industrial advance made by the world has been brought about by master minds directed toward the needs of the manufacturing and building trades. And since there no longer exists the apprentice system of training the youth, in the trades and crafts, the public school must try in some way to fill this need.

James Crellman says, "The cry of hustling, enterprising America is not for more clerks, office boys, doctors, lawyers, professors or writers, but for more efficient workmen." The scarcity of men who can use their heads and hands is apparent everywhere. The result is that fifty per cent of our skilled labor class are of foreign birth, schooled in the continuation, trade and technical schools of Germany, France and Switzerland. We are expending money and energy enough to correct this condition, but not wholly in the right direction. What we must have is an education that so hardens the child's view of the industrial world that he enters the skilled labor class, instead of drifting into those professions and lines of work already crowded. He must be taught the honor and dignity of labor. And this can be brought about only by training his brain to think, and his hands to do.

The child is longing to do something and unless the school furnishes opportunity for this trait to be developed he loses interest and leaves school. Education is not looked upon by the child as an opportunity and a privilege. In his eyes, all are receiving this free gift, and he longs for something he can have, that others cannot. Hence any trivial position suiting his fancy is accepted by him, and he enters the wage earning class, there ever to remain, in that great army of unskilled labor, poorly paid and illiterate.

The main cause of this may be traced principally to the old educational ideal (to which several persistent clinging) that a rigid, hard, stern drill in a few subjects develops mental power that can be used in all subjects. Necessarily Greek, Latin and the higher mathematics furnished the material of the grind. But later investigation proved this theory false. And after centuries we arrive at the conclusion that mental power developed in one function of the brain cannot be transferred to another. In other words the knowledge of Greek or Latin would not develop the mind in such a way that banking would come second nature to man possessing before no trait as a financial leader. Every function of the brain must be developed separately. Hence the leaders of tomorrow must have a broad knowledge of several subjects. Instead of a deep knowledge of a few.

In the past the college with its limited number of subjects set the standard, the High schools prepared all for college, the grades for High school and the Bureau of Education collected statistics like these. One in every ten of the pupils enrolled in the primary finish High school, one of every ten of our High school graduates enter college and of those ten, six finish. In other words, start with 1000 pupils in the primary 100 finish High school, 10 of these enter college and six finish.

Now, if only one in every 166 can take, or does take, advantage of our collegiate education, are we going to leave the other 165 to face the battles of life with the three R's or perhaps a smattering of Latin and the higher mathematics?

Germany has risen to power and riches among the industrial nations through her trade and technical schools, and as Crellman says, "It is not the German blood, but rather the German school, that is conquering the markets of the world."

Are we to stand by and see other countries excel, when it rests within our power to lead?

Is our industrial supremacy secure when our education prepares none of the army of industrial workers?

Are we to measure the needs of the future by that of the past, and say because we did not receive an industrial education that the present and future does not need it?

Measure our education by our needs, and you will find it wanting. Heed then the signs of the times, and harken to the plans of those advocating an industrial education.

Give the boys and girls of today an education that will enable them to enter a life of activity, bearing their full share of the world's work.

Give them an insight into the great industrial world that they may more wisely choose their course for after life. And though here in the west the need is not quite so keenly felt, remember that our boys and girls will some day have to compete with those better trained. So it rests with us to prepare them toward the highest standard. Making of them not only master minds, but master hands.

Mr. Wooster's Protest.

There is more truth than poetry in Charles Wooster's recent letter to the Lincoln Journal protesting against the personal attacks made upon him by the "poet philosopher" of the Journal, Dr. Bixby, because of his anti-prohibition views. In his letter the venerable sage of Merrick county says:

The purpose of Mr. Bixby in his whole article was to hold me up as an advocate of the saloon and as making common cause with thugs and bums and the vilest of men. And what is true of Bixby in this matter is true of prohibitionists generally. Let a citizen oppose them, no matter how good a citizen or true a man he may be, he is immediately marked down as "a wallowing in the dust" and being of the lowest of the low. Getting drunk and beating one's wife is a mild offense compared with the despicable work of these assassins of character.

Mr. Wooster of Merrick county is not the only victim of this surprising spirit of intolerance manifested recently by the one-time "gentlemanly Mr. Bixby." Spitefulness and littleness, directed against individuals and entire communities, have become manifested in Bixby's lucubrations since he himself became voluntarily a total abstainer and took up the fight to compel all other men to become so. It seems impossible for him to understand, just as it does for so many others who believe as he believes, that any man can deplore the evils of intemperance and detest the lawless saloon unless he accepts their particular remedy.

We are likely to have this distressing liquor question with us for some time to come. It will be impossible to get all men to agree as to the remedy. And so the differences, eventually, will have to be settled, after full discussion, at the ballot box. Surely it is desirable to make that discussion as fair and temperate as possible. Surely above all others those whose lives are devoted to preaching temperance should practice temperance in language. There are a good many people who do not believe in a protective tariff. Not all of the anti-prohibitionists are saloon keepers or "bums," any more than all the protectionists are trust magnates or trust lickspittles. Neither, for that matter, are all prohibitionists intolerant and unfair. There are some who are ready to discuss the liquor question reasonably and without spleen. But they do not seem, just now, to be those most in evidence.—World-Herald.

A member of the board of county commissioners tells the DEMOCRAT that the county will probably have all its indebtedness cleaned up at the next meeting of the board, Tuesday, June 1st. This is a pretty good record considering the heavy liabilities that confronted the board two years ago. County expenses have not grown any less, but with some thirty thousand dollars cleaned up in the last year or two taxes ought to be a little lighter in the hereafter.

A business man says that while going home one evening of a band concert, he took notice to see if there were any contributors to the band fund taking in the music, and states that there was not one, but that the sidewalks were lined with retired farmers who never pay a cent towards public enterprise of that sort. He suggests that the retired farmers get up a "retired" fund to be expended for the kind of public amusements they like best. They ought to at least raise enough money among them to put on a "greased pig race" providing they raise the pig and a butcher shop donate the grease.

The silk mills and manufacturers of the country are now holding their annual clearing sale of spring and summer silks. Room must be had for the fall silks, which they now begin to manufacture. So the spring and summer silks are cleared out at bargain prices. This is done by arranging the silks in lots of 1,000 yards, and sending out samples of each lot with the clearing sale price attached to merchants all over the country. It takes a good-sized store in a good size town to handle 1,000 yards. Wayne merchants have heretofore not undertaken such a big purchase. James Ahern thinks that his trade would appreciate a chance to buy silk at bargain prices well enough to enable him to handle 1,000 and this week he has placed on sale at 39c, 49c and 59c; one lot of these silks bought at the annual clearing sale of the American Silk Mills. It remains to be seen whether our Wayne ladies are as eager to buy money saving bargains as they are in the cities.

The DEMOCRAT is always prepared to accommodate subscribers who wish to pay up back dues. Don't be bashful about making your wants known in this respect.

Axel and Miss Jennie Vennerberg departed last Saturday morning on a six months' trip to Sweden. Axel is one of the hardworking, steady young farmers of the county, and perhaps well, there is no telling who will return with them. Miss Vennerberg has been principal of the Carroll schools, one of the best teachers we have, and entitled to a well-earned vacation.

A member of the board of county commissioners tells the DEMOCRAT that the county will probably have all its indebtedness cleaned up at the next meeting of the board, Tuesday, June 1st. This is a pretty good record considering the heavy liabilities that confronted the board two years ago. County expenses have not grown any less, but with some thirty thousand dollars cleaned up in the last year or two taxes ought to be a little lighter in the hereafter.

A business man says that while going home one evening of a band concert, he took notice to see if there were any contributors to the band fund taking in the music, and states that there was not one, but that the sidewalks were lined with retired farmers who never pay a cent towards public enterprise of that sort. He suggests that the retired farmers get up a "retired" fund to be expended for the kind of public amusements they like best. They ought to at least raise enough money among them to put on a "greased pig race" providing they raise the pig and a butcher shop donate the grease.

The silk mills and manufacturers of the country are now holding their annual clearing sale of spring and summer silks. Room must be had for the fall silks, which they now begin to manufacture. So the spring and summer silks are cleared out at bargain prices. This is done by arranging the silks in lots of 1,000 yards, and sending out samples of each lot with the clearing sale price attached to merchants all over the country. It takes a good-sized store in a good size town to handle 1,000 yards. Wayne merchants have heretofore not undertaken such a big purchase. James Ahern thinks that his trade would appreciate a chance to buy silk at bargain prices well enough to enable him to handle 1,000 and this week he has placed on sale at 39c, 49c and 59c; one lot of these silks bought at the annual clearing sale of the American Silk Mills. It remains to be seen whether our Wayne ladies are as eager to buy money saving bargains as they are in the cities.

We surely had one of Sam Temple's "spells of weather" this week.

Don't feel so bad about the daily, hourly, drizzle. It was snowing in the Black Hills yesterday.

A New Jersey man has attracted considerable attention by eating nine plates of ice cream, five pies and a dozen bananas in less than an hour. And they call it a man?

After all the cemetery is much safer than leaving your "affinity" letters laying around for the curious to dissect.

I expect Billy Mears will be around looking for me with an ax after he reads this paper. It is peculiar that after knowing people for about twenty years one can refer to "Peter" as "Billy," or "Jim" as "John." When you read that little item about "Billy" Mears, kindly fall to the fact that it refers to that grand old man, Mr. Peter Mears.

We have some young fellows in Wayne who are going to be great financiers—maybe secretary of the treasury. The other evening a young man was calling on one of these youngsters' sisters and during the evening he struck up a bargain with the kid brother. "I say, William, if you will get me a lock of your sister's hair I will give you a dime."

William—"Oh, make it a quarter, can't you, and I'll get you the whole bunch. I know where she hangs it at night."

If one rain is worth a million dollars, there ought to be about sixteen millions added to Wayne county's wealth the past four days.

It takes a white man to make a good "colored minstrel."

It is alleged that an Ohio man recently coughed up three carpet tacks. He must have swallowed them. Even the most careless surgeon would hardly sew carpet tacks inside of a man.

If the tariff on razors gets too high to suit you, you can just get mean about it and let the barber shave you.

The stock of gold money is said to be 75 per cent greater than it was ten years ago. Have you realized it?

That fellow who told congress to go to hell must have had an awful grudge against his satanic majesty.

A Montgomery, Ala., man was sent to jail a few days for robbing a gas meter of $2. Is this a case of thief catching a thief?

The daily papers of Monday stated that two of the largest managerie owners of the states had shipped over a hundred old, tame lions, consumptive leopards and other supposedly wild animals of the African jungle to Mombasa. This may in part explain some of those hair-breadth escapes and killings of T. Roosevelt and son.

H. H. Rogers is said to have given $4,000,000 to each of his children just for pin money. Poor unfortunates. Quite frequently parents seem to have it in for their children.

Funny how some men differ in opinions. Now there is Deacon Elsen and Sam Temple, who look just as much alike—as they can. Call Mr. Elsen Temple, and he only smiles. But make the mistake of addressing Mr. Temple Mr. Elsen and the Kentuckian gets ready to shoot.

Uncle Sam has again restored the weather map service to Sioux City. You can now tell what sort of weather we had yesterday.

Poet Bixby of the State Journal is evidently of the opinion that because he was able to corral an unhuman thirst for booze, no other booze artist should be given the same privilege.

Isn't it remarkable that, no matter what the shade, some of the girls can make their complexion match their costumes to a nicety. But, after all, there is something about it that makes a fellow think of the alleged germs that lurk in prettily painted cheeks and lips. If it should ever be made a crime to kiss, there will be no trouble about passing up these hand-painted freaks.

Stick to your flannels, Tom.

Don't take them off, my boy,
And catch pneumonia.
Stick to your flannels, Tom.
However glows the sun,
Or you will be an angel, Tom,
Before the spring is done.

Anna Held will retire from the stage with a million dollars, which she made by showing the people what they wanted to see.

If Walter Wellman succeeds in reaching the north pole the stuff he writes while sitting on it ought to be worth at least one dollar a word.

Wonder if the recent election in Omaha had anything to do with the big train robbery pulled off within the city limits of the metropolis last Saturday night? Some of our prohibition friends ought to be able to place the responsibility where it belongs—in their minds.

Those "slouchy crowds" about the saloons suit the Democrat all right, if not the Wayne Herald. There are many whom the Democrat has known for the past twenty years, are generally square-shouldered, honest, upright men, if they do take a glass of beer, or even one of whisky. Somehow the world was made with different kinds of people on it, and we are glad of it.

Judge Howard's wife has been in the first duties of woman is not to cook a good dinner, but make herself pleasing in the eyes of her husband, but that she can't do either while wearing one of those hideous rats in her hair.

Well, we'd rather have the rats in her hair than have her cook us a "rat" of a dinner.

Pender Times: The Wayne Democrat was roasted by a real fire last week, but Goldie don't mind a little thing like that—he's been in the fire before.

Not in the least. And we came out of this real fire just about as serenely as we have the "profane" fire our fellow citizens have built under our feet.

Pender Times: The Wayne Democrat thinks Phil Kohl would make a good governor. Right, you are, but wouldn't he make a good state senator as a starter—until Shallenberger finishes his second term.

Senator A. Beck pulled his No. 10s out of the Wayne mud this morning and left for Montana. The senator is taking great chances in the wilds of Montana, judging from his mental condition at the depot this morning, where he tried to give Agent Moran $36 for a $26 ticket. His Wayne pals will feel quite uneasy about him until they note his safe return.

Numerous heads are popping above the water for county offices and we hear such familiar names as "Charley," "Jack," "Grant," "Ene" and "Bert."

This makes four wet days in succession; enough for a feast.

Message From Ju Ja.

Mr. Roosevelt is "annoyed," and, no doubt through force of habit, he relieves himself in a statement that sounds just like one of those old, familiar special messages. Indeed one has to rub his eyes to realize that the man is on the Ju Ja ranch in Africa and not in the White House.

Consider the phrasing: "Sheer inventions," "due to bribery," "dishonorable man," "willing to invent untruths for money," "traffic in other forms of dishonor."

No correspondent faked this. The "internal evidence of authenticity," as the literary critic would say, is convincing. Mistakes may have been made, yarns told, about Roosevelt's bags of game, but there is no mistake about this bag of words. It is the straight goods from the old man himself.

Mr. Roosevelt warns the world that a great deal of lying is being done about his hunt, and that when the truth, or something like it, has been told, it has been bought with bribes from mercenary and conscienceless guides or porters. For no newspaper, he informs us, has a representative with the party, and all persons connected with the expedition are obligated to secrecy.

This offers some hope that the stories of Sunday slaughter, the killing of the two giraffes on one Sunday and of a female rhinoceros on the next, were erroneous. But only some hope, for these stories were wired by the Associated Press, and Roosevelt does not say that a representative of the Associated Press is barred from the camp. Indeed such a representative has just returned to Nairobi after two days spent on the firing line and it is through him that Roosevelt transmits the special message from the jungle to the world.

Perhaps it is the report of his bagging a mosquito that the former president mainly objects to—the mosquito measuring seven feet from tip to tip and that was brought down with one bullet from Roosevelt's gun as it was spoking a hundred gallons of sweaty blood from a hippopotamus which it had run clean through with its steel-like and elongated proboscis.

Are we not to believe that Roosevelt and Kermit have slain charging lions, leopards, rhinoceroses and a python coiled to strike, to enwrap and to strangle—to swallow whole, indeed, our beloved former president? Are we not to believe that Kermit's latest achievements were the slaying of a charging hyena and the slaughter of a surprising number of female wart-hogs? These deeds are chronicled and given to a breathless world by the Associated Press correspondent—the same man that has given us the undeniably authentic message from the jungle.

It would be cruelly to pry us loose from the charging hyena and the wart hogs. And, indeed, none of the reports are so uncomplimentary as to provoke sizzling hot special messages. They only show that Mr. Roosevelt is getting what he went after, and he didn't go to Africa to get the sleeping sickness.—World-Herald.

Mrs. Fred Koester departed Thursday morning for Norfolk where she will visit for some time at the home of her daughter.

Last Friday our high school ball team played two games at Belden. The first game Carroll vs. Belden ended in a victory for Carroll, after a battle royal of fourteen innings, score 5 to 6. John Norris pitched the full 14 innings and did some high grade work. The second game Carroll vs. Wareham was won by Carroll, the score being 4 to 14. Only seven inning being play for it was getting too dark.

Fred Koester, who is a member of Co. D, Nebraska National Guards, received orders to report at the company armory at Norfolk, Monday, May 31, to take part in Memorial services. The veterans of the civil war are fast passing to the great beyond, and the militia boys are being called upon to fill up the ranks and do honor to those brave dead who gave so much, that this great country of ours might endure.

The lecture of Rev. Ray of Norfolk on the "Holy Land," at the M. E. church Friday night, did not receive the patronage it deserved, only about twenty being present. It is a lamentable fact that anything in the entertainment line having real merit, receives a mighty cold reception here, but watch the people fall over themselves going to Rip Van Winkle tonight.

Hoskins News

The U. D. club gentlemen took the lady members to the minstrel show Tuesday evening, in lieu of a supper they didn't give the "girls" earlier in the season. The show certainly was a "filling," all right, at least the kind that would make a woman's tongue wag for some time, if she lost a good supper by reason of it.

Miss Mary Wilson's school mates served a very jolly party on her last Friday afternoon. The girls took "baskets" and presents with them and gave their young companion a wholesome idea of the high regard in which she is held.

Mr. Rogers arose as he usually did about 7 o'clock. At 8 o'clock he was found in bed, apparently unconscious, and was shortly summoned. He was suffering from a stroke of the apoplexy.

Mr. Rogers' estate is estimated at $40,000,000. Mr. Rogers had embarked on his venture into the financial panic of 1907.

Only a few weeks ago the road was opened to traffic and Mr. Rogers had visited the new line and was on the arrival of the first train in the city.

College Notes

(Too late for last week's issue.)
Misses Ida Gleason and Helen Hoffman, two of last year's students, were at the College this week making arrangements for attending next term. These young ladies have been very successful teachers this year in Wayne county.

Miss Jennie Vennerberg, Carroll's most efficient principal for two years, was a pleasant caller on the Hill Monday. She will start Saturday for a trip to the land of her nativity, Sweden.

Carroll News

From The Index.

Rev. D. T. Davies left Thursday morning for Denver where he will attend a church meeting.

A baby boy arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hans A. Hanson last Friday night.

Word was received Monday that Aaa Cotterell, a son-in-law of Mr. Sommers formerly of Sholes, met death Sunday on his claim in Rose Bud by being struck by lightning.

Miss Nettie Jones was a passenger Tuesday morning for Ashton, Idaho. She will be gone for some time. She goes to take care of her sister, Mrs. Luther Evans, whose health has been very poorly since arriving in Idaho. We are informed that Mrs. Ed. Evans has also been quite sick of late. It is to be regretted that these young people are not enjoying better health in their new home.

Last week Francis Bros. had occasion to send word to the Avery machine people at Omaha to send one of their men up here on a special errand. A young man was selected and he hastened to the depot to catch the train for Carroll. At the depot he was met by a stranger who claimed he was James Francis of Carroll, said that he had had been informed that he was going to Carroll to see Francis Bros. The stranger said he was a brother of the Francis boys here, and that he had just marketed a car of cattle in Omaha for which he had the draft, but that he wanted to stay over night in Omaha and wished the Avery man would let him have fifty dollars and he would give him the draft to hand to the boys here that they might deposit it for him, and that the boys here would give him the money when he arrived. The Avery man said he only had thirty dollars that he could spare and he gave him that. Imagine his surprise when he got here and found out that he had been duped!

Already there are several candidates for the appointment as county superintendent to succeed Mr. Littell, deceased. The appointment of anyone who expects to be a candidate at election would give them an undue advantage. We believe for this reason and others that the appointment should go to Mrs. Littell, who is familiar with the work and is well qualified.
