The New Wayne High School Building is Dedicated

An event which has been looked forward to for some time took place last Friday, namely the dedication of our new school building, of which we are all so justly proud. Long before the commencement of the afternoon program visitors thronged the building, inspecting the different rooms and the beautiful displays of work, getting acquainted with the teachers, or partaking of delicious punch and wafers, which was presided over by the Misses Graves, Wallace and Theobald, assisted by a bevy of young ladies from the High school.

At about three o'clock the afternoon program began, with Mr. F. L. Neely, president of the Board of Education, in the chair. After a fine chorus by young ladies from the High school—"Evening Bells," Rev. Parker Smith offered the invocation. Pres. Neely then introduced Mr. J. H. Carddock of Omaha, the architect who planned the building. He impressed the audience as a man who thoroughly understood his business and knew what he did. He briefly outlined the plan and results aimed at, and closed his remarks with a splendid and well-deserved tribute to the Board of Education. The applause with which this latter was greeted showed clearly that it touched a strong chord of appreciation among the citizens of Wayne. Then followed addresses by Supt. Conn of Columbus, Mr. E. O. Garrett of Fremont, and Supt. Hunter of Norfolk. There was much friendly joking and some laughable stories at each other's expense before getting down to the actual business of speech making, which reduced the audience to a state of hilarity. Supt. Conn especially commended the beauty, general efficiency and completeness of the building—as well as the untiring efforts and constant oversight of the members of the Board of Education. "I venture to assert," said he, "that this has been done often at the neglect of their own personal business interests."

He dwelt forcefully upon the small fraction of the day which the teacher has the pupil in charge, saying that it should be a matter of surprise that so much is accomplished, rather than of complaint because of so little. That the parent is largely responsible for habits, personal habits formed out of school, and impressed parents with their obligations in helping to make a city with a clean, moral tone. He dwelt with emphasis upon the brightening street habit, and declared that parents should see to it that there are no loafing places along the street.

Before closing his remarks he referred to the practical, wholesome influence of Manual Training. One of its chief missions is to inspire a greater respect for labor. As one educator expresses it: "It unifies society, instead of stratifying it."

Supt. Hunter also dwelt upon the practical, the industrial idea, and brought out the truth that development along all lines rather than the few tended toward the shaping of the complete man or woman.

One very important point made by Mr. E. O. Garrett was that these splendid educational institutions make our beautiful city a far more desirable place to live. They will attract the best people and encourage the best citizenship. He also asserted some forceful truths regarding the self-made man, whether of moderate education or college bred. He must work to develop the very best in him, in other words, he must "work out his own salvation." A finely equipped school building is not enough, a capable and excellent corps of teachers backed by a strong school board cannot do all, but every boy or girl must, through very strength of character develop that best within that will respond to these helpful outside influences.

Mr. Garrett paid a beautiful and merited tribute to our excellent teaching force, but emphasized the fact that their work is handicapped and incomplete without the sympathetic co-operation of parents. Their presence is needed in the schools—not on special days so much, but to see the regular class work—to know the teacher, the teacher to know the parents and through the parents to better understand the child.

The afternoon session closed with the singing of America and the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. Ringer.

The evening program led off with a fine selection by the orchestra. Indeed, the music furnished by its members throughout the evening was of a high order and won much appreciation as shown by enthusiastic applause. They were accompanied by Mrs. Hudson at the piano.

The numbers given by the High school chorus are deserving of special mention, as their singing was excellent, and their training reflected much credit upon Mrs. Phillips who has charge of that work. They sang first "A Jolly Tar" and responded with a dainty encore.

The invocation was offered by Rev. Osborne, and after music, an address was given by Ex-State Supt. W. K. Fowler of Lincoln. Mr. Fowler is so well known, not only to the educational fraternity but to many others, as well that he was received with much warmth. After paying his respects to the speakers of the afternoon who had cracked jokes at his expense, and indulging in other pleasantries, he spoke of our beautiful new building, comparing it with others throughout the state; of its magnificent location, situated as it is on an eminence and surrounded by a natural slope. He urged that it be impressed upon the boys and girls of Wayne that it is their property. But he expressed the great truth that a fine school building with its splendid equipment and capable force of teachers are not all of education. There are vital forces that must be brought into action; there are sound principles to be formed and strengthened, that one may get the true perspective of life—to know the things that really count.

He also pointed out the immense advantage to be gained by parent, teacher and pupil from a closer, more sympathetic co-operation. And, it is safe to assert that the beautiful touch that this dedication day has given to the school and home atmosphere of Wayne will be an impulse to a nobler and even more helpful unity.

Mr. Fowler was followed by County Supt. Frank Pilger of Pierre, whose uncle, Adam Pilger, was the father of the Normal bill. His remarks were well-chosen and sound—mostly along the line of co-operation. Indeed this is the key note, not only among educators of Nebraska, but throughout the entire United States. There is a vital principle involved that has too long been ignored, and that must enter into the work in order to consummate the perfect ideal. He urged co-operation also with the Normal College—not to send them there too soon, but to send them there when they had finished the High School, and extolled the merits of this fine institution.

Prof. Bright's address was, as usual a treat. His clear cut ideas and forceful delivery, plentifully interspersed with roll humor (as he is to the life, expression—Irish by marriage) left a fine impression, also some excellent truths to be pondered over. His subject was "The Object of Life is to live," emphasizing the necessity of adaptation to environment and also to make life mean something.

Mr. Main was then called on behalf of the School Board, he prefaced his talk by explaining that he didn't get to see Mr. Garrett before the latter had given away all his speech. But there was no need of apology, for the speaker made a plain, straight-forward statement of the history of the magnificent work done by the School Board of Wayne during the past two years in an effort to give to the citizens and tax payers of our city the very best for the amount of money to be expended. By careful manipulation in the sale of the bonds, the original amount of $400,000.00 was increased over two thousand dollars. There is some $150,000.00 of indebtedness, but this is a small matter when we take into consideration the superior institution which we now have, modern, fire-proof, convenient and sanitary. He closed his remarks by officially turning over to the citizens and tax-payers of Wayne the fine building which their united efforts had made possible.

Mr. E. Cunningham was then called upon, as a tax payer, to make some remarks, which he did very happily by expressing the conviction that every dollar paid in taxes for public buildings such as this, enhanced the value of the tax payers' property, and that no progressive citizen could make a reasonable objection.

Thus a very profitable and enjoyable program was closed with a benediction by Rev. Karpenstein.

SIDE LIGHTS ON DEDICATION DAY
Mr. Garrett was, according to his version, the victim of bare-faced graft, for he asserted that, one by one, the speakers of the afternoon adroitly extracted portions of his eloquence. But anyway, "what was left" was certainly very forceful and satisfying.

Papa," said little Winifred Main, "That attick man was a funny talker wasn't he?" And her papa had to remind her that it was the "Garrett" man instead.

Supt. Crago and two members of the Board of Education came down from Randolph.

The Misses Beck, Lewis and Wadsworth, teachers in the Emerson schools, were here for the dedication.

The illuminated building, presented a beautiful and attractive appearance. Supt. Kemp and his corps of teachers merit special commendation for the fine appearance of the rooms, for from the kindergarten up to the very highest department not only was artistic effect everywhere in evidence, but the display of work created much interest and comment. The sewing done under Miss Bressler's direction, and the articles made by the boys in Prof. Huntmer's manual training department showed skill and good effort.

Notwithstanding the fact that the visiting speakers almost to a man averred that they had been enticed into appearing on the program by Supt. Kemp through the soothing influence of a sumptuous dinner, yet they gave fine speeches, mirthful, wholesome and practical, and the audience was with them from first to last as evidenced by frequent applause and peals of laughter.

U. S. Conn to Head Wayne Normal College

One of the speakers at the dedication of Wayne's new $42,000 high school building, last Friday afternoon was U. S. Conn of Columbus, who is slated to become president of the Wayne Normal school as soon as the state buys the institution, which will be, it is understood, Thursday of this week.

The old state board has the matter in hand and after having visited the Wayne school some days ago, determined to make the purchase December 2, and start operating it as a state school as soon thereafter as possible.

Mr. Conn, who is to be president according to the best of information, was a teacher at Wayne for thirteen years and is a very capable man. His choice will please northern Nebraska educators.

There will be a vacancy on the normal school board when Mr. Hayes of Alliance retires, he having let it be known that he does not desire appointment. He seeks the presidency of the Alliance normal school, which is to be established by the state, in all probability.

And to fill the vacancy on the board, northern Nebraska people are urging the advisability of appointing Phil Kohl of Wayne. There is now not a single north Nebraska man on the board and with a state normal at Wayne the logic of having a man on the ground is at once apparent to all.

There is a Kearney man on the board, close at hand to the Kearney school; a York man on the board, close at hand to the York school; and there has been a Peru man on the board.

Graham of Omaha is seeking the position, but it is believed in northern Nebraska educational circles, as well as political, that Governor Shallenberger will appreciate the justice of the demand in this section of the state for at least one northern Nebraska man on the board. Unless Mr. Kohl of Wayne is appointed the nearest member on the board would be at York.—Norfolk News.

The Normal Board Vacancy
The logic of the demand being made upon Governor Shallenberger for the appointment of Phil Kohl of Wayne to fill the vacancy which is to be created in the state normal school board, is at once apparent to the most casual observer. There is now not a single northern Nebraska man on the board, and in case Mr. Kohl is not appointed, the nearest member of the board to the Wayne normal school, which is to be bought by the state this week, would be at York. The justice of the demand for a northern Nebraska man on the board, and one who would be on the ground near the school up here, seems unanswerable.

As a matter of fact, the politicians who run things at the state capital are not now giving, and never have given, northern Nebraska the consideration that it is entitled to in state affairs. But northern Nebraska is a very rapidly growing part of this great commonwealth and before they know it, some of the political manipulators who have been ignoring this part of the state all their lives, are going to wake up to a pretty, sorrowful realization of the fact that north Nebraska is on the map.

The attempt to prevent north Nebraska from gaining even one member on this board is only a single instance of the game that has been played for years and in which this part of the state has been given scant consideration. But the balance of power, held in this part of the state, is going to have an inning by and by that will be worth watching.

The Corn Show a Success

In every particular the Corn Show is a success. Considering the very unfavorable weather the number of exhibits that have come in is very remarkable. 245 entries are shown in all classes. The number of exhibits was undoubtedly cut down one half by weather which made it almost impossible to get to town. The Commercial Club feel well satisfied with the interest shown by our boys and girls and the farmers of our community in the show and the exhibition will undoubtedly be given next year of a larger and more complete scale. Today the judges came to pass on the quality of the exhibits and Domestic Science Topics. Next weeks we will have a more extended notice of the show and announce the prize winners. The Commercial Club deserve great credit for the thorough manner in which the show has been advertised and for the fine way the exhibits have been displayed and handled. Much good is bound to come from an exhibition of this kind and next year we can look for a great show.

The principal prizes won by the Wayne by the Wayne Commercial Club were won as follows:

- 1st Prize—$25.00 Ed. Roggenbach.
- 2nd Prize—$15.00 Dervin Fay.
- 3rd Prize—$10.00 Almon Pond.
- 10 Best Ears of Pop Corn
- 1st Prize—$4.00 Stevens Rifle by Otto Yogo, Herald Lightfoot.
- 2nd Prize—$2.50 Cash by Dr. J. J. Williams, John Horn.

Debate Friday Evening

The gentlemen who have the debate in charge for Friday evening, Dec. 8, will give the public a rare treat, for without exception they are men of splendid ability, and are making research in this subject that will furnish live information as well as, no doubt, much amusement. A subject which, the world over, is causing people to "sit up and take notice" is surely a live subject, and not one to be ignored. Come and hear the merits of the case which sound impartial judges will decide. Don't forget the date, Friday evening, Dec. 8, in the assembly room of the High school building. The musical program begins promptly at half past seven so as to give the debate plenty of time and it is safe to assert that we shall have a musical feast. Miss Graves will add no small part to the program by giving one of her charming and popular readings. Read the program elsewhere in this issue.

School Notes

From Wayne County Teacher:

Some of our rural schools will have an exhibit at the Corn Contest Dec. 2. We wish all might have been represented.

A literary society has been organized in school district No. 25, Ernest Samuelson is the teacher.

Practically all schools that closed for corn husking re-open the first Monday of December. It always seems too bad that the schools must be closed during a month of good weather.

Mrs. Maria Wolf who has taught in Wayne county for so many years but who has been out of the work for the last two years has again decided to enter the ranks. She will teach the Gildersleeve school and patrons and all interested in the school are glad to welcome her.

This is the kind of weather when a man wishes he could manage somehow to hold his job without working for it.

It is thoroughly understood tho' not always expressed that anyone interfering with the progress of a worthy institution is not a good citizen. Speed the day when principals and superintendents will put the ban on such imposition, by causing pupils to pass into classes the work of which is more in accord with the mental capacity of minds blunted by fond parents indulgence.

If teachers who are teaching on third grade certificates would begin now to get their second grade certificates they would be ready in the spring to take anything that might come their way. If they put off getting their certificates until the summer vacation there is always a possibility of not passing and having to give up a school. The thing to do is to get a certificate and then a school, but too many, to their sorrow, put the cart before the horse and get a school first.

All subjects below 80 must be re-taken, and passing grades made, to renew a second or first grade certificate. Also the required amount of reading circle work must be done.

Teachers, unless you make note of the children amenable to the compulsory education law who are attending parochial school or who for some other reason exempt, upon the monthly report, we are apt to waste valuable effort where it is entirely unnecessary.

There were 50 teachers in attendance last Saturday forenoon and 75 in the afternoon, in spite of the weather. It is one of the best recommendations for a teacher when she is professional enough to come some distance on a day like Saturday. The association decided to have its next meeting on the 15th of January at Wayne, and to have an all day session.

The note books of the Reading Circle work show much careful preparation in many instances. In one or two cases there is evidence that one person did the work and a parasite came along and copied it.

Noted Lecture Coming

If present arrangements succeed, a rare treat is in store for the good people of Wayne in a lecture from Prof. Byron Cummings of the University of Utah, on "The Cliff Dwellers of the San Juan Country."

Many months ago Prof. Cummings gave the promise that if it could be arranged on one of his trips east, he would stop off and give us this lecture. He now has two years leave of absence from the University, and with his family sails for Europe the last of December or the first of January. Aside from Prof. Cummings' work in the University with which he has been connected for twenty years or more, he is an eminent archeologist, pursuing his researches every summer among the Cliff Dwellings of Southern Utah, known as the San Juan country. He has made many remarkable discoveries which will be spoken of later.

This high class lecture will be illustrated by beautiful stereopticon views which alone will be worth many times the price of admission. Prof. Cummings is now in Southern Utah clearing out the ruins of an isolated Cliff Dwelling which he discovered last summer. He has given to Utah a most valuable collection of relics of this ancient people. When he returns to Salt Lake he will deliver a lecture there before the State Archeological society before his departure for Europe. Watch for further particulars.

Minson Democrat: Yes, it is true that there were many fine young men killed in the football games last Saturday. What are you going to do about it? Pass a law to stop football as it is now played, of course! You are the same fellow who passed laws to regulate the speed of railway trains, stop automobiles from going too fast, put an end to boxing and other forms of prize fighting, aren't you? You are the same fellow who got prohibition enacted into a law and got a law passed against the sale or use of cigarettes, aren't you? Of course! Well, what good did it do you? The football games and all other games or pastimes, or habits that are really dangerous will always be indulged in by people who cannot enjoy anything unless there is an element of danger in it. If people did not get mad and killed in playing football they wouldn't be half so crazy to play it. If there was no danger in running trains too fast and sending automobiles ahead at a killing pace, there would be no desire to do it. Man seems to court and enjoy danger and the more you try to stop him, the crazier he seems to get into danger. When a man goes to the devil with drink, or ruins his health with cigarettes or morphine or cocaine, or some other bad habit, he does so because he has lost control of himself entirely. At one time he could control his speed, but he hit the pace too fast and lost his controlling lever in the mad race. The more danger there is in a pastime, the harder it is to make men break away from it. Football as it is now played, is exceedingly dangerous and somewhat brutal, but they will keep right on playing it as it is until something more hazardous is figured out to take its place.

However, aside from politics, the Sioux City Tribune is the best daily paper published from Chicago to Denver, in the middle west, and it will grow in favor where such delinquencies as the Sioux City Journal can't be pushed upon the public.

Card from Mrs. Garwood

Winside, Neb., Nov. 29, 1909.

Editor—

My attention has been called to an article in your paper last week, written by Mr. Judson Garwood, in which he makes light of the desertion, by his son, of myself and baby. It is perhaps a small thing to Mr. Garwood Sr., but to me, deserted in a strange town at the beginning of winter with a little baby to care for, it is a serious affair. Mr. Garwood would have it appear that I am unnecessarily excited and that no desertion was intended. Why he thinks the latter I do not know unless he is posted on his son's whereabouts and considers that it all that is necessary. But when a man, without a word of warning, disappears and a month goes by without hearing from him, it looks to me like desertion of his wife and innocent child, of the cruelest kind. Then, too, in regards to the money in the bank which Mr. Garwood Sr. would have people believe was a great sum and which he evidently begrudges me, I will say that it was pitiful and only enough to keep us but a short time, and then God only knows how we will live, particularly since Mr. Judson Garwood had the fore-thought to notify me by letter that I need not expect any help from him or his family, which I suppose includes his runaway son. I may be excited, as he says, but because my husband failed in his Winside life is no reason, that I can see, why myself and innocent babe should be made to suffer the pangs of cruel desertion, and neither can I see where my husband, Orrin Garwood, has been misrepresented in this matter.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. ORRIN GARWOOD.

Interesting Meeting

The program of the Monday Club at its last meeting was something of an innovation, from the fact that it was given by a few of the husbands of the club instead of by the ladies. The club and their husbands met at the home of Mrs. Chace at six o'clock and sat down to a delicious three course dinner. After this was discussed at length, a little recreation followed, the meeting being called to order at about eight o'clock by the president, Mrs. Mellor, who conducted the program in a gracious and dignified manner. The first number on the program was "Auld Lang Syne" sung by the club.

Philanthropy as developed through Municipal Reform" was omitted on account of Judge Welch's absence from town. Dr. Wightman, in an exceedingly clever manner, showed the workings of "Philanthropy, as developed through Medical Science." His paper was most interesting from a scientific as well as humane point of view, and would be worthy of a public audience. He spoke of the development of medical science along its many lines, what the discovery of anesthesia has meant to the world, the great progress in surgery and of the men who have given their lives freely to advance this science for the aid of suffering humanity. He closed with a touching tribute to Dr. Weelam McClure, the plodding country doctor in Ian McClure's "Doctor of the Old School."

A ladies quartette, consisting of Mesdames Main, Welch, Wightman and Cunningham very sweetly rendered the number "The Little Lamb." Mr. Main followed with a splendid paper on "Philanthropy as developed through the Educational Idea." He showed what civilization and education have done for the world, particularly along philanthropic lines. Among other examples he contrasted the work on the Suez Canal, causing the death of thousands of slaves in a few months, with the work on the Panama Canal of today, and the care that is taken of our workmen along the lines of sanitation and in every other conceivable manner. He closed his paper with a cleverly told story of Van Dyke's "The Other Wise man," who left his companions, when on the journey in quest of the King, to help the man fallen by the wayside; but after continuing his journey at night and alone, he was met by the King with the cheering greeting "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Dr. Hecker gave an excellent paper on "Humanitarianism," treating it from the definition "one who is justly concerned in promoting the welfare of his kind." He spoke of the greatest of all humane Tarians—Christ, who left as his example of what one human being can do for another; he showed that Christ's gifts for the poor and afflicted were not national objects, but that he gave love, sympathy and companionship and that the greatest humanitarian has followed in his footsteps, giving personal service to the poor and needy, with wonderful results. Among humanitarians of the present day he mentioned Judge Lindsey of Denver, whose work is so well known and whose influence is gradually being felt throughout the whole country for a betterment of the laws for children, Dr. Grenfell, who has given his life and great talent to help the people of Labrador, and Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, who has done so much for the people of Chicago and others.

"Transcendentalism, or the Utopias of all ages" was handled by Chas. Beebe in a manner showing much careful thought. Transcendentalism dates back to the early ages; the word was originated by Emanuel Kant and deals with the philosophy of mind as distinguished from that of matter. It claims that in order to believe certain things, one does not have to experience them. For instance, our instinctive faith in God, in virtue, in the human soul and in the immortality of man.

This philosophy is needed by us all in this busy, material and practical world. Leading exponents of this belief were Emerson, Parker, Geo. Wm. Curtis, Alcott, Chas. A. Dana and Margaret Fuller. They founded an organization in 1841 called "Brook Farm" at West Roxberg, its aim being to promote human culture, etc. This existed only a few years, however, but there is no doubt that the high ideals they promoted resulted in much good.

"The Old Kentucky Home," sung by the men, led by Mr. Marsteller, was very much enjoyed.

Guests of the evening were Mrs. McElroy of Vinton, Ia., Mrs. Brum, of Webster City, Ia., and Mrs. T. B. White.

The Course of Study

From Wayne County Teacher.

One of the greatest difficulties standing in the way of systematic and uniform work in our rural schools today, is the unstable teaching force; unstable in the sense that so few stay in the work long enough to carry out any set of plans they may have in mind. Some indeed, have no system. Others have excellent ideas, which, if carried out, would produce most gratifying results. In most cases their purposes are defeated by the successor who may or may not bring into the school well defined ideas, hence the work is unsatisfactory in too many instances.

There is a uniformity of text books, and a course of study in Wayne county that ought to insure every child in the rural schools of the county a complete and a thorough course in the common branches. During the years we have had uniform text books and a course of study to follow, a wonderful improvement has resulted, but there stands in the way of realizing the full benefit, the teacher who does not follow the course. There are a few who seem to lack the ability to follow a course of study and there are others of the opinion that to follow their own plan is better. We believe that all the latitude that can be utilized is given when the course of study is a supplement to their own ideas. The clamor that originality is taken away is more of an excuse than a fact. The course of study tells what to teach but leaves how to teach it to the teacher. Even granting that a certain teacher's plans are far ahead of those offered by the course of study, the argument offered in the outset of this article is pertinent, for her successor will most likely follow some other plan, and should she attempt to follow the "unwritten plan" of her predecessor, failure would result no doubt.

From every possible view point it is to the advantage of the school, the teacher and the community that the course be followed. We have exerted every effort to instruct and advise the teachers to adhere to this excellent outline, but we find that our efforts in some instances have been in vain. We feel that it is our duty to take some action, and at the same time exercise a right which will give the boys and girls of Wayne county what they are entitled to, hence we will rule that the course of study must be followed so far as possible.

Our Winter Birds

While we are bewailing the wet, the cold and the stormy weather out in the fields, the roads, and the woods are some very useful citizens taking an entirely different attitude toward the winter. "While the wintry wind blows, and the snow drifts fiercely" they are twittering contentedly over their breakfast of weed seeds, and perhaps thinking of their summer homes within the Arctic circle.

We little appreciate the friendly offices of these tiny birds who come from the far north to spend their winter with us. Take the tree sparrow, for instance. It takes many hundred weed seeds to make one breakfast for this unobtrusive little visitor. This species may be identified by its chestnut crown, brown and grey back, brown wings with white bars, and by the dark dash in the middle of its ashy grey breast. Along with the tree sparrows are the song sparrows, juncos, chickadees, and rarely, when the snow is very deep, a redpoll.

In the pastures and feed lots are the horned larks doing their large part to ward lessening next year's weed crop. When you are driving along the road some of these days and wish a good view of one, watch the road-rat ahead of you. You will recognize him from the black, tufts of feathers that stick up from either side of the head, whence the name "horned." When you come upon him he will squat down in the dust, trusting to the similarity of color to deceive you. He will "pull in his horns" too, hoping (not hopping, he never hops) thus to escape notice. If he does not succeed he will take to his heels like a racer; if he cannot beat you he will fly to the nearby field but may come back to the road very shortly. Often a flock of from fifty to sixty will winter around a barn and no matter how bad the weather they are always busy and contented, calling between mouthfuls their cheery "tseet."

If you are fortunate you may see a nuthatch. These are birds of the woods and can "go the wood-pecker one better" in that they can run either up or down a tree. They are blueish-grey in color with black crowns.

The blue-jay with his saucy voice and brilliant coat is oftentimes a permanent resident.

There are many more and if we would cultivate the society of these little friends, we would be better both aesthetically and financially.

Compulsory attendance reports for October have not yet been filed from Dist. No. 7, 8, 32, 49, 60, 62, 66. The compulsory education law cannot be enforced without these reports.

The following changes have been made in the teaching corps of Wayne county:

Miss Esther Madsen will take Miss West's place in Dist. No. 10, while Miss West takes Miss Barnes' place in Dist. No. 33. Miss Barnes will not teach during the winter.

Miss Henyan will teach the remainder of the year in the Naim school, Miss Beale having decided to enter the Normal.

A grade of 70 in each subject with an average of 75 will be required of all those who pass the eighth grade examination in the spring. Grades over 80 will be accepted from those who wrote last year.

Miss Woods of the High school spent Thanksgiving at her home in Hartington.

Miss Scherwin spent Thanksgiving at her home in Belden.

Atty. Siman was a visitor from Winside Tuesday.

NO ESTRANGEMENT
IN CUDAHY FAMILY

Reno Divorce Case Denied Any Relationship With Family of Packers.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 30.—A special from Reno, Nev., says that Ruth Cudahy has arrived there for the purpose of bringing divorce proceedings against her husband, Thomas Cudahy, son of the head of the Cudahy Packing company, of Sioux City and Omaha. It is said the divorce is sought on account of the sporting proclivities of her husband. Edward A. Cudahy, head of the Cudahy Packing company, insists that there is no mistake about the report coming from Reno. He says that there are but three Cudahys, himself in Omaha, Mike, in Chicago, and John in Milwaukee, engaged in the packing business. He says there is no Thomas in any of the families, not even in the second generation. And so far as he knows no Cudahy has had any domestic trouble and no Cudahy in any of the families contemplates divorce proceedings.

He landed at the marquis' shooting box, breakfasted with the party, took the hunt and flew back to Mourmelon four hours later, carrying on the monoplane not only the shotgun, but also the bag of game, mostly pheasants, which he had killed. Great interest in the feat was shown by the general public. The marquis was watching for Latham, and the monoplane was made out while still far away. It appeared very small, but rapidly grew larger.

LIVE MOUSE IS DROPPED IN MOUTH OF SNORING MAN

Is It Assault With Deadly Weapon, or Breach of the Pure Food Statute?

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 24.—Under what charge can a man be prosecuted for dropping a live mouse into a man's mouth and then holding his nose to compel him to swallow? That is the point which Judge Levy will be called upon to decide tomorrow when the case of John Sacra, of South Omaha, against George Howan, now under bond, is called in court. A few days ago Sacra was enjoying his usual afternoon nap, and was presently snoring loudly. Howan, who was a generous angle of divergency. The usual accompaniment of hearty snoring attracted the attention of a fellow being, who saw an opportunity for a practical joke. He visited the convenient mouse trap and, taking the live mouse by the tail, is said to have dropped it into Sacra's unsuspecting throat. The mouse, eager to escape in any direction, assisted nature's progress in the throat of Sacra, and to make surety double, Howan grasped Sacra firmly by the nose, after a well known trick of mothers with infants or horsemen with refractory horses which need inducements to compel swallowing. This was in trouble for at least three parties, the practical joker, the man with the mouse inside him, and the snoring man who had disappeared.

SEVERED FINGER IS A CLEW TO THIEF

London, Nov. 30.—The "Clew of the Severed Finger," a thrilling detective story, might be founded on a real incident in the London police annals of this year.

During a Clerkenwell street at night, a policeman found a man's finger impaled on a spike surmounting a gate. He took the grim relic to Scotland Yard, where it was compared with the other finger prints in the Rogue's gallery. It was thus proved to belong to William, a hand of a notorious thief.

It was then a simple matter for detectives to look for a man with a bandaged right hand. He was eventually traced to a gang of pickpockets in South London, from the place where the finger was found. He protested his innocence, gave his name as Harry May and indignantly asked how could pickpockets with a hand like that be so successful.

But the evidence of the severed finger was conclusive and "Harry May" confessed that he could keep on his feet by the means of the finger which he had lost. He had been away while he was climbing the gate in Clerkenwell. The police proved a number of previous convictions against him, for which he had served a total of 18 months' hard labor as a suspected person.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY ON LONELY ROAD

St. Paul, Kan., Nov. 30.—A lonely road in the north of here was the scene of a triple murder and an assault on a woman yesterday night. The dead were Mrs. M. B. Berk, 67, wife of a farmer, and her son, 25, and a girl, 15.

The body of Mrs. Berk is the supposed victim of the crime. Mr. Berk, who lives in the town, is a well-to-do farmer. The child probably was shot because the murderer feared that he had been recognized by the little girl.

Seen Alive Last Night.

Mrs. Berk and her child were seen last night last night when they started to drive home to Pontonville, from the home of Mrs. Berk's mother, Mrs. M. B. Berk, on the lonely road. This morning the Berk family and body were found standing in the roadway at a deserted spot.

The body of the child was discovered in the roadway at a distance away from the road, some distance away. Berk's body was found. Berk had been shot in the head and twice in the back.

Made Desperate Struggle.

Mrs. Berk fought bravely for life and honor. Along the trail to the corn field were found both the slippers she had worn, ribbons from her hair and her cloak. There had been a desperate struggle.

It is supposed that Berk was the first to be killed. The indications were that he had been shot as he sat in the car. An assault had been made on the child. Two bullets evidently were fired into his body after he fell. Another bullet then ended the life of the child.

Coroner Bailey, Sheriff McRivich and County Attorney Woolley hurried from Pontonville as soon as they heard of the crime. The bodies were removed to the hospital and held for the coroner. Bloodhounds were sent out in an effort to trace the murderer, but to no avail.

SEEKS TO ENTRAP HER PRETTY NIECE

Princess de Sagan, Title Mad, Would Have Marjorie Could Wed.

PARIS, NOV. 30.—As if the Gouids had not gained a monopoly of foreign titles in the family of their attendants, the Princess de Sagan, formerly Anna Gouid, is said to be doing her utmost to bring about a match between her niece, Marjorie, and the Duke of Berwick, of England, better known as the Duke of Alba, and whose patronymic, Stuart Fitzmaurice, perpetuated the royal crown of Britain.

The princess approves of the proposed alliance, realizing that a splendid social position it would give her niece. Her friends expected the empress of the French, Eugenia, who is related to the family through another marriage, and establishing her in the forefront and most exclusive English society.

But apart from this, the head of the princess is, and has for a long time, been completely turned through her affection for titles. Her friends expected that after she had realized the awful mistake she made in having married the unrepentable Count de Castejane, she would marry a man of more titles, but would have urged her niece not to risk marrying a member of the nobility, who, no doubt, is chiefly interested in a few hundred dollars belonging to her wealthy father.

But not at all. She not only married the ancient royal Prince de Sagan, and suffered an innumerable amount of ridicule, but is now urging her niece to place her head in the lion's jaws, for while the Duke of Berwick is no doubt far above the Duke of Sagan or Castejane, he is not one of the nobles, but what the outcome will be of a match where dollars, not love, is the chief incentive.

SEVERED FINGER IS A CLEW TO THIEF

London, Nov. 30.—The "Clew of the Severed Finger," a thrilling detective story, might be founded on a real incident in the London police annals of this year.

During a Clerkenwell street at night, a policeman found a man's finger impaled on a spike surmounting a gate. He took the grim relic to Scotland Yard, where it was compared with the other finger prints in the Rogue's gallery. It was thus proved to belong to William, a hand of a notorious thief.

It was then a simple matter for detectives to look for a man with a bandaged right hand. He was eventually traced to a gang of pickpockets in South London, from the place where the finger was found. He protested his innocence, gave his name as Harry May and indignantly asked how could pickpockets with a hand like that be so successful.

But the evidence of the severed finger was conclusive and "Harry May" confessed that he could keep on his feet by the means of the finger which he had lost. He had been away while he was climbing the gate in Clerkenwell. The police proved a number of previous convictions against him, for which he had served a total of 18 months' hard labor as a suspected person.

TRAINER IN BATTLE WITH FIERCE BABOON

Inferocious Animal Gives Man Desperate Struggle for His Life.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 30.—Struggling for his life with an infuriated baboon, Fred Wilson, of Brazil, Ind., a trainer employed by an animal show, fought desperately for an hour yesterday with a baboon that attacked him in the cage.

The beast clutched Wilson's throat, but so long as he could keep on his feet he had the best of the fight. At length he fell exhausted from loss of blood and the strain, and the animal gnawed at his face.

A score of monkeys in the cage kept up a shrill screaming during the progress of the fight and this finally attracted the attention of other employees, who rescued Wilson. Wilson is in a serious condition.

IMAGINATION ALMOST CHOKES BOY TO DEATH

Pittsburg, Nov. 30.—Simon Vetter, 5 years old, nearly choked to death on imagination. Not until he was examined by an X-ray was it discovered that the hospital did the boy had died.

The surgeons found no obstruction in his throat, but they told him they did. Then he breathed freely, and the bluish color left his face.

While eating lunch at his home in Verona some food lodged in his throat and he began to cough. While he coughed up some obstruction, the boy was sure that more of it was coming down his throat. In the opinion of the physicians, the choking was due to the fact that the boy imagined the food was still in his windpipe.

WOMAN TRIES TO MURDER A NEGRO WHO ATTACKED HER

McAlester, Okla., Nov. 30.—Mrs. John McAlester, wife of a miner, when taken to the county jail yesterday to identify Will Jones, the negro who tried to assault her yesterday, pulled a revolver from the folds of her dress and fired at the prisoner. The bullet went wild and the officers disarmed her and took her away.

Last night a mob tried to seek the negro away from the officers and lynch him. There were no indications of a mob today.

BRADSTREET AND DUN REPORT ON BUSINESS

THE WEEK IN GRAIN.

New York, Nov. 30.—Wheat, including four exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending November 25, aggregated 4,347,438 bushels, against 4,182,000 bushels, or 165,438 bushels, for the 21 weeks ending November 25 exports are 68,782,144 bushels, against 67,911,411 bushels, or 870,733 bushels, for the corresponding period last year.

Corn exports for the week are 25,561 bushels, against 140,407 bushels, or 114,846 bushels, for the corresponding period last year.

For the 21 weeks ending November 25, corn exports are 3,688,415 bushels, against 3,475,836 bushels last year.

NEW YORK, NOV. 30.—Bradstreet's

Colder weather and the approach of the holiday season have continued to stimulate retail trade and measurably improve the reasserting trade with jobbers. Rains or snows, while temporarily retarding country trade by making the roads bad, have checked the excessive growth of or insect damage to winter wheat, and given a good quantity of moisture to the growing plant, thus placing that crop in good shape to enter the winter.

In wholesale trade there are, however, some indications of current tendencies to restrict fullest activities. The high price of cotton is still responsible for some curtailment of output and also some hesitation on the part of buyers who are slow to follow the dry goods market upward.

R. D. DUN & CO.'S WEEKLY REVIEW OF

Favorable industrial conditions remain unchanged and new production is now proceeding at an increased rate. Although the business is not yet out of the doldrums, the people are doing things, actually produced and wealth created from the products. The recent warm weather checked activity in some mercantile lines and suggested a speculative developments, work unfavorably in others and this gives the superficial impression of a pause in business activity. But the real picture points to a marked industrial expansion. The heavy demand for steel products continues and some reports indicate that specifications and new orders for steel are being placed in even greater than the remarkable tonnage booked during October. There is increasing evidence of the reluctance of mills to accept business extending far into the future and some commitments have been made beyond the first half of 1910. Contemplated construction will call for a large amount of material.

THIRD PERSON SHOT IN MOUNTAIN FEUD

Williamson, W. Va., Nov. 30.—That a third person was shot in the battle between the Christian and Daniels families near Devon, Mingo county, Thursday, became known when a physician called on Dr. Deane at the home of his brother. He found the man who had been shot to death.

In the event of his death, three members of the Daniels family will have been wiped out. The last fight of the latest feud between Mrs. Charles Daniels and her 16-year-old daughter were shot to death.

Physician officers have refrained from approaching the Daniels home since the fight of two days ago, knowing that it means more bloodshed.

Information gained today points to the possibility that the two most prominent and most highly respected families of Mingo county may become involved in the feud.

The Daniels married into the Cline families, sons and daughters of Confederate veterans. They are the descendants of the pioneer settlers of the mountain region. The other side is aligned close kin of the Hatfields.

X-RAYS SHOW LUMP IN CHEEK IS BURIED TUBE

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—Albert Scott came down from Harrisburg with a lump in his cheek, which he was having removed. He went to the St. Joseph's hospital, and there the X-rays were turned out the troublesome spot.

Imagine the astonishment of Scott, and the doctors, when they found the lump was a tube, an inch and a half long, imbedded in the face of the patient beneath one of his eyes.

Dr. S. Lewis Ziegler, of the eye department, operated on Scott, and removed a silver tube. About a year ago Scott was treated for a too copious flow of tears, and the doctor at that time inserted a silver tube in place of the tear duct, which became clogged up and which, consequently, caused a back flow of tears into the eye.

After the tube was inserted Scott forgot about it and when his cheek began to give him pain he never dreamed that the tube had slipped out of place and had imbedded itself in his cheek.

It is said that he was not to get along with more tears and less tube.

ROBBERS TOWER OFFICERS IN FIGHT TO MAKE ESCAPE

Hemlock, Minn., Nov. 29.—One robber, whose name is said to be "Jim Smith," was instantly killed, and Deputy Sheriff Andrew Johnson, was fatally wounded, in a battle between the robbers, who had blown a safe in the village of Pupoksy, 17 miles northwest of here.

It was received here from Pupoksy that the robbers were going toward Hemlock on a railway passenger car. Sheriff Hazen, Deputy Sheriff Johnson and Police Officer Allen Springer went to the Great Northern bridge a mile west of Hemlock to watch for them.

The robbers dismounted from the passenger about 100 feet from the bridge, and walked toward Hemlock. A policeman, who was concealed at the south end of the bridge, while Policeman Benner was watching at the north end.

One of the robbers, who was within 10 feet of Deputy Sheriff Johnson, ordered them to halt, but received a rifle bullet in his left lung. The other robber shot at Sheriff Hazen, but Misses Johnson dropped by a log.

Officer Benner called to Hazen and Johnson to lie low, and began to shoot. The robbers started back up the track, and the train was ordered to stop.

One of the robbers pitched forward. Examination showed that he had been shot through the head. The other robber escaped, but a posse is searching for him.

GOMPERS ATTACKS JUDGE OF COURT

Washington, Nov. 29.—"I repeat what I have said heretofore. Justice Wright is biased and is unfit to wear the judicial robe." Samuel Gompers, the president of the American Federation of Labor, who arrived here today, thus referred to Associate Justice Wright in the district court yesterday when he sentenced Mr. Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, all officers of the federation, to varying terms of imprisonment by a judge of the court in the Buck Stove & Range case.

"If the supreme court of the United States declines to permit the issue of writs of habeas corpus, I will appeal the decision of the lower court. Will you ask the president for a pardon?"

It will not be replied, "nor will I allow the president to be asked to pardon a man who has violated a law and been found guilty and sentenced to prison. I might consider the question of seeking executive clemency."

DEAD GAMBLER ORDERS WINNINGS PAID VICTIMS

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 29.—One of the strangest wills ever made here was today filed in the last testament of George Brown, a well-known gambler and race horse man, who was filed in the probate court.

"It is my desire, as far as possible," the will reads, "that every person, man, woman or child, any money which I may have won from them by gambling during my lifetime, and I direct my executor to make every effort to learn and name, and to reimburse them to the full amount, with interest, from the day the money was won."

Another strange provision of the will is that the executor is to protect the testator and his wife, which will bear only their given names, omitting the name "Brown."

PRINCESS PAT GOING HUNTING IN AFRICA

London, Nov. 29.—Princess Patricia, of Connaught, the greatest royal heiress of Europe, expects shortly to visit East Africa with her parents, the duke and duchess. She has made them a condition of the marriage that she should antelope, if nothing else.

There is a well defined idea, however, that the real object of the visit is to get the princess into the "Pat's" infatuation for a young British officer who is without title or means. For a long time the princess turned a deaf ear to all state proposals of marriage, even that of the Duke of Teulm, who is brother of the Duke of the Abruzzi. As the Duke of Connaught is devoted to his daughter, she has been placed in the position of a royal marriage against her will.

The Duchess of Connaught and Princess Pat intend to make their headquarters at Nairobi while the duke follows in the footsteps of Lord Curzon, even to engaging the services of the famous guide, Cunningham, who is now with the expedition.

SAYS RACE SUICIDE IS GOOD FOR NATION

Professor Nearing Declares It Prevents Population Greater Than Can Be Cared For.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 29.—"Limit the number of children in each family and limit the immigration to the United States, or else there is a grave danger of the population exceeding the available food supply, is the assertion of Professor Scott Nearing, instructor in economics in the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania.

Speaking before the Hebrew Literature society on the subject of "Race Suicide," Professor Nearing ridiculed Theodore Roosevelt's pet theory of the advisability of big families, declaring the anti-race suicide sentiment was responsible for the increase now being experienced.

"Race suicide is a good thing," said the professor, "because it prevents an increase in population greater than can be cared for. It also means an easy life for women. How do you suppose they spend their prime in bearing children? Families are not heard of in America because we have such great relief from the population increase greater than these resources can be developed, we may again appear."

"We do not need so many people in this country. It is no longer the function of women to bear children, but to rear children."

"If woman is to do effective work in this world she is not to have 20 children in 30 years. She should have two, three, four or five children in 30 years and rear them into splendid citizens."

"We must restrict the population to provide a food supply for all. We must restrict the number of children in each family in order that the mothers have time for child rearing."

He and his sister, Miss Rose Christy, parted with the child at New Orleans, taking the little girl with them.

Mrs. Christy obtained a writ of habeas corpus Saturday at Zanesville, Ohio, to get possession of the child. The artist and his wife have been living apart since last spring.
