Death of Mrs. Watson.

Another sudden and unexpected death occurred north of Wayne early Tuesday morning. Mrs. Watson, who has for years made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Chas. White, passed away after a few moments illness. The aged lady was heard to cough uneasily, and upon going to her room her daughter found her barely alive, death taking place before a physician could reach the home.

The funeral was held at 2:30 today from the Presbyterian church.

Obituary.

Silas Mellick was born in Augusta, Pa., Jan. 22, 1844. June 1, 1871, he was united in marriage to Miss Mare E. Brugger of Erieburg, Pa. To this union four children were born. In 1878 they moved to Sandusky county, Ohio. Four years later to Waverly, Neb., and in the spring of 1889 they came to Wayne county and settled on a farm four miles northwest of Wayne where he lived until the spring of 1903 when he retired and moved to Wayne. He died at his home in this city on the night of April the 13th, of heart failure, being ill only one hour. There is left to mourn his departure from this life his widow, two sons, John and Frank, and two daughters, Mrs. Ed. Miller and Mrs. Wilbur Spahr, all of Wayne. Also a brother and sister, Rev. M. L. Mellick of Omaha and Mrs. John Tiger of Waverly, Neb.

The deceased early in life identified himself with the Lutheran church to which he always remained faithful and consistent member.

The funeral was held on Saturday, April 16th, at 2:30 p.m. from the Lutheran church, conducted by Rev. Ringer, his pastor, a large concourse of friends and neighbors paying a last tribute to a most worthy man of the past, and the remains being laid to their last rest in Greenwood cemetery.

It's Growing Wider.

We are just informed by the King Solomon people that the rich streak of ore in their No. 11 vein has widened to 24 feet and is growing richer in values. One chunk of ore which require six men to move, was taken out and Secretary Alexander says it looks the best to him of any ore he has ever seen. This has caused a great deal of excitement in the Frisco camp.

LARGE PRODUCTION OF GOLD

An article appearing in the current number of Everybody's Magazine in regard to the immense production of gold of recent years says: "There has been a remarkable increase in the world's output of gold in the past twenty years. Roughly, the output has more than doubled twice during that period."

A table compiled by Dun & Bradstreet shows that the output of gold for 1848 was twelve million dollars ($12,000,000) and for 1850 it increased to forty-four million five hundred thousand ($44,500,000) and by January 1910 the output had increased to the stupendous sum of four hundred fifty seven hundred sixty-seven thousand ($457,280,000) per annum.

almost staggering and stops to consider aside from this the enormous annual output of the other precious metals which brings the grand total into the billions.

More Gold For Past Ten Years

Than 400 Years Previous

The article states further that "more gold has been produced in the past ten years than was produced from the discovery of America, in 1492, to 1850." "Gold production is no longer mainly or even largely a placer mining proposition. It is today a business and commercial proposition as much as is the mining of coal or iron ore, or the production of corn or cotton. Because of improved and still rapidly improving metallurgical processes of extracting gold, making it profitable to work lower and lower grades of ore and the practically inexhaustible supplies of such ores, the output depends mainly upon the number and size of the mills employed in gold production."

Methods of Gold Production

"Up until 1850 only placer or surface gold was mined. That is, free gold, deposited in the beds of streams, in sands and in the crevices of rock. Placer mining still furnishes material, though not large percentage of the world's output.

"The second important stage in the production of gold was that of amalgamation, that is, the extraction of gold by means of its affinity for mercury. The third stage of gold production which began in 1887 is the one that is now responsible for something like two-thirds of the present output of gold. It marks the introduction to the chlorination and cyaniding."

Making Low Grade Ores Pay

"Cyaniding is now used in all the mines on the Rand and quite generally all over the world. Without this process, very few mines in the Rand would make a profit. With it they produce $150,000,000 of gold a year."

Estimated Output for 1925 Will Reach $1,000,000,000

"The cyaniding and chlorination processes have worked a revolution in the production of gold in the past twenty years. The output which before had been stationary or declining for thirty years, has doubled each decade since. There is at least a fair prospect that the output will double again by 1920. The basis for this statement is found in the fact that the workable refractory or sulphide ores, as they are frequently called, are much more extensive, perhaps a 100 or a 1000 times than are the free milling ores. In fact, there are literally mountains of these low-grade refractory ores—for nearly all are low-grade containing from one dollar to five or twenty dollars per ton.

"The average per ton in the Transvaal or Rand mines was about seven dollars last year. It has been declining about fifty cents per ton for five years, showing that lower and lower grade ores are being profitably worked.

In the Nemesake Mine in this country, pre producing less than two dollars per ton is being worked and is yielding big profits. The supply of very low grade ore is, in fact, practically inexhaustible.

"In view of these facts, it does not require a prophet to foretell an increase in the output of gold, even if no important new methods of production are found in the next decade, and it is reasonably certain that the rate of increase in the next decade will be as great as it was in the last, and that by 1920 or 1925 the output will reach $1,000,000,000 a year."

BY EDGAR WALLACE

He took from his pocket book on which the verse was written:

"Here's a puzzle language old,
Find my meaning and get my gold.
This one bolt—just one, no more—
Fish him out and he's morn."

Place it at a river's mouth.

East or west or north or south
Take some leaves and put them whole
In some water in a bowl.

I found this puzzle in a book
From which some mighty truths were taught."

"There are six words," said Jimmy, and scribbled them down as he spoke: "Bol, or boats, bawn, or leaves, deer, water, bowl; bowl."

"Each one stands for a letter—but what letter?"

"It's rather hopeless if the old man has scattered around for all sorts of out-of-the-way objects, and allowed them to stand for letters of the alphabet," said Angel.

The girl murmured something and Jimmy inquiringly repeated:

"I only say, that there seems to be a method in all this."

"Except," said Jimmy, "for this, and he pointed to the crossed out, 'dark'." By that it would seem that Reale chose his symbols haphazard and that the duck not pleasing him, he substituted the snake."

"I said," said Kathleen addressing Angel, "don't you see strange things in an illiterate man like Mr. Reale should make even though sketches unless he had a model to draw from?"

"Miss Kent is right," said Jimmy quickly.

"And," she went on gaining confidence as she spoke, "there is not something about these drawings that reminds me of something I've seen before, that they form a part of some system—"

"She stopped suddenly."

"I know," she continued in a lower voice: "they are scattered in my mind—with—with the book!"

The two men stared at her in blank astonishment. Then Jimmy sprang to his feet, alight with excitement.

"Yes, yes," he cried. "Angel, don't you see? The last two lines of Reale's doggerel—"

He found this puzzle in a book from which some mighty truths were taught."

"Go on, go on," Miss Kent cried eagerly. "You are on the right track. To think—"

Kathleen hesitated, then turned to Jimmy to address the first remark she had directed to him personally that day.

"You haven't got—"

Jimmy's smile was a little hard. "I'm sorry to disappoint you, Miss Kent, but I have got a copy," he said, with a touch of bitterness in his tone. He walked to the piano and began to play the book case at one end of the room and reached down the book shelf well worn volume—and placed it before her.

Then, in his voice was deserved, she felt that.

She turned the leaves over quickly, but inspiration seemed to have died for there was nothing in the sacred volume that marshaled her struggling thoughts.

"Is it a text?" asked Angel.

"It is something," she said. "That sounds very definite. I thought if I had the book in my hand, it would recall everything."

Angel was interested, studying the results.

"Here's one letter, anyway. You said that Jimmy?"

"The door," said Jimmy. "Yes, that's fairly evident. What's the word is?" You see Reale said there are no good other letters?" I suppose it means so 'O' or 'K'."

"The best clue of all," he went on, "is the notes about the professor. We see them."

"M'm. To get the professor's book on it."

"M'm. To do what the professor did right."

"M'm. To write to professor about—"

Now the questions came. Who is the professor? what is his book, and what did he advise? He was in correspondence with him, that is certain in his desire for accuracy. Reale sought these papers in his office and if any book exists it is still in the place from whence this red cover came."

The two men exchanged a swift glance.

"Yes," said Angel, as in answering the others' unspoken thought, "it might be done."

The girl looked once to the other in doubt.

"Does this mean an extra risk?" she asked quietly. "I have not questioned you as to how this may affect your possessions if obtained without danger."

Angel regarded Jimmy's searching eyes. He was convinced that the better side of his strange friend's character should be evident to the world.

"Jimmy faced him in a partitioned room to secure the packet. Miss Kent," he said.

"Then I forbid my further risk," she said spiritedly. "I thought I had made it clear that I would not accept favors from your friend's hands; least of all do I want the favor of his life."

Jimmy heard her removed. He had a bitter pang when he realized she had chosen that moment.

"I do not think you can too strongly impress upon Miss Kent the fact that I am an interesting person," he said, referring to my offer to forego his fortune, "but I might remember in the legacy that is left to me, that I am not the least afraid of what I risk, nor the most beautiful quixotic the dubious credit of my natural desire to help myself."

She whined a little at the bluntness of his speech; then recognizing she was in the wrong, she grew angry with herself at her indiscretion.

"If the professor can be sure," she continued, regarding his surprise, "if the professor is still alive he will be found and by tomorrow I shall have an opportunity to possess a list of every book that has ever been written by a professor of anything."

Some thought tickled him and he laughed for the second time that afternoon. "There's a fine course in writing for us all," he said with a little smile. "Heaven knows the regions the literary professor will find us. I know one professor who has written a treatise on seduction that runs into the extent of 1,000 closely written pages. I have my own views of the subject, and I am not afraid to admit a chaos of thought, nature, searching references to books, literature, and et cetera."

The picture of the author was perfectly drawn in the paper and her friendship with the man, which was professedly a thief, and by inference something worse.

"I am gathered from the papers and carefully read them that the author is a scoundrel. This he is, and against Angel."

"Place this amongst the archives," he added sappily.

"Why not keep it here?" asked Angel in surprise.

Jimmy walked to one of the three French windows that opened on to a small balcony. He took a rapid survey of the street, then beckoned to Angel.

"Do you see that man?" He pointed to a longer sauntering along on the opposite sidewalk.

"Yes."

Jimmy walked back to the center of the room.

"That's why," he said simply. "There is no way to get him tonight, for the night. People aren't going to let a fortune slip through their fingers without some kind of effort to the contrary."

"What people?" demanded the girl.

"You mean those dreadful men who took me away?"

"That is very possible," said Jimmy, "although I was thinking of somebody else."

The girl had put on her wrap, and stood irresolutely near the door, and Angel was waiting.

"Goodby," she said hesitatingly. "I am afraid I have done you an injustice, and—I want to thank you for what you have undergone for me. I feel that I have been ungracious."

"You have done me no injustice," said Jimmy in a low voice. "I am all that you thought I was—and worse."

She held out her hand to him, and he raised it to his lips, which was unlike him.

CHAPTER VIII.

OLD GEORGE.

A stranger making a call in that portion of North Kensington which lies in the vicinity of Ladbrook Grove, by some mischance lost his way.

He had chanced amongst the opulence of the upper-middle classes, broughams stood waiting in small carriage drives, and ones blundered into a tidy mews, where horsey men with great blessings made ready the chariots of the Notting Hill plutocracy.

It may be that he was in no particular hurry to arrive at his destination, but certainly he did not call himself of opportunity in the shape of a passing policeman, and thus his aimless wandering led him to Kensington park road, a broad thoroughfare of huge gardens and walled forecourts, then turned into a side street. He walked about 20 paces, and found himself in the heart of slum land.

It is no ordinary slum between Westbourne Grove and Kensington park road. There are no tumbled down houses or hovels; passages; there are streets of houses dignified with flights of steps that rise to pretentious street doors and areas where long dead men that served the need of the lower middle classes of other days. The streets are given over to an army of children in curving styles of dirtiness, and the halls of these houses are bare of lamps, covering and in some the responsibility of leases held by eight or nine families, all pigling together.

They are streets of slatternly women, who live in their front doors, arms rolled under discolored aprons, and on Saturday nights one street at least deserves the name of public house, and the police have given it—

"Little Hell."

In this particular thoroughfare, it is held that of all signs the greatest is that which is associated with "spying." A "spy" is a fairly comprehensive phrase in Cawder street. It may mean policeman, detective, school board collector, on the gentleman appointed by the gas company to extract pennies from the slot meters.

Old George strolled on, and a man who seemed to be a collector came up to the surprise of the aged man, or verber his rent monthly in advance to the landlord. It was the only detached house that in this squalid road, and was No. 49. The furniture came by night, which is customary among people who concentrate their last fluttering rag of property that lies between the lady of the house, and the professor's bill of fare.

Old George stood, rubbing his head again, then repeated the name to himself a dozen times; then he rubbed his head again.

Bat, leaping forward to catch what might be a confession, sank back again in his seat and swore softly.

In the house of "J. Jones, Builder and Contractor" were gathered in strength the men who composed the "Borough Lot."

"Suppose he gave us away," asked Goye, "what shall we do with him?"

There was little doubt as to the feelings of the meeting. A low animal growl, startling in its ferocity, ran through the group.

"It has been given us away—it was Vinny with his dull fishlike eyes was talking, while Connor was talking—why, you must put him."

"You're talking like a fool," said Connor contemptuously.

"He has given us away," said Connor, "that he is no sooner in this house than the whole place will be surrounded by police."

"If Angel knows old George is one of us, he'll be watching day and night, and the cab that brings him will be followed by another bringing Angel."

"No, I'll stake my life on the old man. Not I want to know how Mr. Cursed Angel will not long to wait, for Bat's knock came almost as Connor finished speaking.

Half his hair dragged into the room, old George stood, fumbling his hat in his hand, smiling helplessly at the dark face that met his. He muttered something under his breath.

"What's that?" asked Connor sharply.

"I said, a gentleman—" began old George, then lapsed into silence.

"What gentleman?" asked Connor roughly.

"I am speaking of myself," said the old man, and there came into his face a curious expression of dignity. "I say, and I maintain, that a gentleman is a gentleman, whatever company he keeps."

It was with satisfaction that the Cawder streeters discovered that the new occupant intended reviving the ancient splendor of the establishment. At any rate, a bond was prominently displayed behind the counter.

THE CASTORIA COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE

Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the

New Perfection WICKER-FRAME Oil Cook-stove

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room.

The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove will do anything from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue, enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed—and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.

The nickel finish with the bright blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

Only One African Rhinoceros Left.

Theodore Roosevelt, in his book, "The Winning of the West," describes the two great rhinoceroses of Africa as being "the last survivors of a race which once numbered innumerable thousands." He writes of the "black" rhinoceros, one with the front horn much the longer, one with the rear horn at least equal to the front. It was Selous, a singularly clear sighted and keen observer, who first proved conclusively that the difference was purely imaginary. Now, the curious reader is likely to find experienced hunters usually attaching different temperatures to these two rhinoceros species. The first kind, that with the long front horn, they described as a mixture of dangerous ferocity and the second as comparatively mild and inoffensive; and these veterans (Drummond is an instance) persuaded themselves that this was true, although they were writing in each case of identically the same animal.

LIVING ON THE EQUATOR.

Three Things Are Necessary—Mosquito Bar, Water Filter and Quinine. Without mosquito bar, no person would have a chance to live on the equator, wrote Ida Verdi Sholton in the Delphinton.

No matter how hot and stifling the night—and no other place can be so stifling as the equatorial African night during the long rainy season in the interior of the continent—the shuddering chills tickled-in mosquito bites—not the ventilated kind civilization knows, but one of closely woven stuff, through which no air circulates. When the mosquito bar was let down in the top of almost the entire room, but it proved especially useful in sickness and convalescence. If perfectly once free from insect bites, as malaria the white man's most insidious too, comes from the bite of the mosquito, every precaution must be taken. It is three things are absolutely necessary in Africa—a mosquito bar, a water filter and quinine.

The bed was made by a native carpenter, who was of wood, the slats of bamboo ribs, tightly together with the pitch side uppermost. They didn't give a bit and were an excellent dancing floor for the dried plantain leaves which made the mattress. The leaves were confined beneath tickling tucked to the four sides of the bed, but they rattled easily, and when I lay down on the continuous leafy mat, it was a soft, comfortable bed for me. The bamboo was slippery, and insomnia kept me from leaves on the nose, so the most of the time I slept on a hard surface. My pillow was of dried sweet smelling grass. Whoever says that hard beds are beautifiers should sleep upon an African bed.

Useful Springs.
In certain favored portions of the globe, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, there seem to have gone out of her way to produce phenomena which are of distinct use to mankind. In the vicinity of Reykjavik, Iceland, for instance, there are some springs the water of which is scalding hot. The springs, however, rise close to a stream, which is thus made warm, thereby enabling the Icelandic women to wash clothes in it. The water is also periodically whilst a short distance away, where the water is cooler, a really made warm bath can be indulged in. The springs, of course, are of volcanic origin, and a strong smell of sulphur pervades the atmosphere in the neighborhood.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is no drug or cure for deafness, and there is no constitutional remedy. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling noise in your head, and you feel as though your head were entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing is forever destroyed forever. It is out of the ear, caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the various surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Dr. G. C. Hunt's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

They would crack open and bleed, itch, burn and ache so that I could not sleep and could do but little work. They were so bad that I could not dress myself in the morning. Smoking Through Hole in Head.

During the South African war, says a writer in the Strand, a Boer soldier named Frank Brown was shot in the forehead with a rifle bullet. Strangely enough it did not kill him, and after the war he secured employment on one of the transatlantic steamers. When fully recovered, he complained of trouble in his head, and after a thorough examination the surgeon of the ship decided that the bullet, which had never been removed, must be extracted. This was done, and afterwards, for the amusement of his friends, the wounded soldier placed a lighted cigarette in the hole from which the bullet was extracted, and drew the smoke through his nose.

The children had left the playground and also that there were some faint morsels of bread and cheese left. If there was anything that Waffles did like it was a nice piece of cheese.

"It's funny," he said to himself, "to think that mice like cheese and so do cats."

"I think I smell something that reminds me of a little mouse," said he as he carefully picked his way among the clouds of dirt. "Now just as soon as I get through with this cheese I am going to take a little journey and see if I can find out where this mice come from."

Then Waffles sat down quietly and ate the cheese, which the children had left.

"My, but that is good," he said to himself. "It would be a fine idea to finish my meal with a little mouse."

The only thing I know to do is to leave something here which looks like a piece of cheese; then I will hide in the tall grass and wait until the little mouse comes and eat the cheese, for there certainly must have been some mouse here, unless my sniffer deceives me, and I do not think it will doubled in a couple of years."

Waffles squatted down in the tall grass and lay very, very still. "My, how still I am; I don't believe even my whiskers are moving." Just then he saw the little Mattle Mouse creeping toward him. He said to himself: "Oh, my, oh, my, how many mice are here."

Little Mattle Mouse crept nearer and nearer and just as Waffles was getting ready to spring, Rover came barking down the field and Waffles said to himself: "I know I'll miss that mouse, but the best thing for me to do is to seat as fast as I can," and he bounded out of the grass and ran toward the barn.

THE CITY MICE'S RIDE.

Ethel's father took his place at her desk last night and asked her, "What other colors are mice besides gray?"

"I do not know," said little Ethel.

"Then you find out tomorrow," said her father and tell me tomorrow night."

Please tell me some more about the City Mice," said Ethel, and her father told her the following story:

When Mrs. City Mouse woke up one morning found himself and his dear wife in a trap set for them by a fox.

He thought he would not wake up his wife and Mattle Mouse, but would let them sleep in the wagon and when they would wake up the trap would be sprung.

By the time the trap was sprung, the man had already set the trap for the mice.

ANGELESQUIRE

He took from his pocket book the familiar slip on which the verse was written:

"It's a puzzle in language old,
Find my meaning and get my gold.
Take one bolt, just one more,
Fix it on behind a door."

Placed it at a river's mouth
East or west or north or south.
Take some leaves and put them whole
In some water in a bowl."

I found this puzzle in a book
From which some mighty truths were taken.

"There are six words," said Jimmy, and stretched them down as he spoke.

"Boats or bolts, bowls, or leaves, doorwater, mouth, bowl."

"Each one stands for a letter—but what letter?"

"It's rather hopeless if the old man has heard around for all sorts of out of the way objects, and allowed them to stand for letters of the alphabet," said Andrew Gregg.

The girl murmured something and met Jimmy's inquiring eyes.

"I was only saying she said belli-tatingly, 'that there seems to be a method in all this.'

"Except," said Jimmy, "for this,"

and he pointed to the crossed-out duck.

By that it would seem that Reale closed his shabby hazard and that the duck was placing him, he substituted the snake.

"But," said Kathleen, addressing Angel, "it doesn't seem strange that an illiterate man like Mr. Reale should make even these rough sketches. Anle he had a model to draw from?"

"Miss Kent is right," said Jimmy quickly.

Ard," she went on, "telling commoners that there were not something about these drawings that pernods you of something?"

"What?" asked Angel.

"I cannot tell," she replied, shaking her head; "and yet they remind me of something and worry me, just as a bar of music that I cannot play well.

I feel sure that I have seen them before—"

"She stopped suddenly.

"I know," she continued in a lower voice, "they are asphyxiated in my mind —with the book."

The two men stared at her in blank astonishment. Then Jimmy sprang to his feet, alight with excitement.

"Yes, yes," he cried. "Angel, don't you see? The last two lines of Reale's duo—"

I found this puzzle in a book

From which some mighty truths were wrote."

"Go on, go on," Miss Kent, cried

Angel eagerly. "You are on the right track. Try to think—"

Kathleen hesitated, then turned to Jimmy to address the first remark she had directed to him personally that day.

"You haven't got—?"

Jimmy's smile was a little hard.

"I'm sorry to disappoint you, Miss Kent, but I have got a copy," he said, with a tone of bitterness in his tone.

He walked to one end of the room and knocked a roll-worm volume—and placed it before her.

The rebuke in his voice was deserved,

she felt that.

She turned the leaves over quickly,

but inspiration seemed to have died,

for there was nothing in the sacred volumes that marshaled her struggling thoughts.

"It is text?" asked Angel.

She shook her head.

"It is—something," she said. "That sounds vague, doesn't it? I thought it

I had the book in my hand, it would recall everything."

Angel was intensely studying the re-bus.

"Here's one letter, anyway. You said that Jimmy had lost his book, its second letter is 'T.' You see Reale's scribbled notes?" All these are no good, the other letters are best. I suppose it means: so we can cut out 'O' & 'K'."

"The best clew of all," he went on,

"is the notes about the professor. You see them?" To get the professor's new book on it.

Men: To do what the professor thinks right.

Men: To write to professor about now. The questions are: Who is the professor, what is his book, and what did he advise?

Reale was in correspondence with him, that is certain in his desire for accuracy. Reale sought to be sure. In these papers there is no trace of a letter, and if any book exists it is still in the hands of the place from whence this edifying volume came."

The two men exchanged a swift glance.

"Yes," said Angel, as if answering the other's unspoken thought, "it might be done."

The girl looked from one to the other in doubt.

"Does this mean an extra risk?" she asked him, as if to how this redoubtable

butler might fit into your possession, but I have a strong hunching that it was not obtained without danger."

Angel disregarded Jimmy's warning frown. He was determined that the better side of his strange friend's character should be made evident to the girl.

"Jimmy faced death in a particularly unpleasant form to secure this packet,"

Miss Kent said. "I think friend will further risk it," she said slyly. "I thought he'd make it clear that I would not let him go."

The girl looked from one to the other

in doubt.

asked him, as if to how this redoubtable

The picture he drew was too much for the gravity of the girl, and their friendship with the man, who was professedly a thief, and by inference something worse, began with a smile of laughter that gripped his self.

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE

Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat.

Cautious Note: Be sure that you get the stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection".

THREE THINGS ARE NECESSARY: Bar, Water Filter and Quinine.

Without a mosquito bar a white person would be unable to live on the Equator. The Venetian mosquito bar is the best. Delinquent.

No matter how hot and sultry the night—and no other place is sultrier during the long rainy season in the equatorial jungle—one must sleep under a closely tucked-in mosquito bar—and this vented kind of civilization knows, but one brutal frankness is one of the privileges as well as one of the misfortunes of friendship.

It is the rule that all travel in equatorial regions which interfere with their respective business.

Those who have achieved something worthy of notice can afford to wait for recognition.

It's Just Possible

You have never bought an XTRA GOOD boys suit or overcoat. Perhaps you have and yet never gave the matter much thought; did not realize how good a purchase you made.

There are thousands of mothers who always get XTRA GOOD clothes; who won't take any other. It is just as important to find this label when buying, as to find the right size; that's the way to buy. If you have not followed this will you please do so next time without fail.

This store is full of good stuff for the little fellows. We make every effort to please them and give them what they want. We want them for customers when they grow up. If there is something that you have wanted for your boy and can't find, look here; you'll most always find our stock complete.

BY DAD

A girl at Dunbar broke her jaw while calling the hired man to dinner. A person might easily break the ten commandments calling hired help to work these times, but when they are so stubborn about coming to meals it's conclusive evidence that no pork is served on the table.

The weather man has been insuring the past week.

Here's 'oping Jack gets 'em all, but he won't find as many drys as there was election day.

A stony New York man took a nice present home to his wife and she was struck speechless with surprise, failing to recover for twenty-four hours. He now takes something home to her every night.

Kreider's shoes for children are known in the world over for their wearing qualities. Ahern sells them.

Prof. and Mrs. Bright are now on their way to the Philippines. They left there on a two-years leave of absence and go back now because circumstances here in Wayne are not what they had expected them to be.

Bailey, the farm philosopher, has figured out a problem that has worried me ever since the war of '61, as follows:

"Should alien hemp come into your garden and begin to excavate it into mounds and pits, get a shingle and split it into two pieces as inch wide and bore a hole through the ends of each. Then these just above the knuckle of each leg (the hen's leg) leaving the bottom of the shingle about two inches lower than the hen's foot. She will lift her foot to scratch, the end of the shingle will, if hanging perpendicularly, strike the ground and shove her foot ahead; then she will raise the other foot to scratch and the stick will shove that foot ahead, and in this way she will walk herself out of the garden when her real intention all the time is to remain and scratch." (Patent applied for.)

The man who changed 'em in March and the fussy woman who made her old man make garden before the blizzard and freeze—we feel sorry for them by dad.

This is an unusually bad year for the cherry crop. The frost fixed those we get on the trees and the anti-saloon league those we were won't to swallow with our morning's good morning."

Sullivan's orchestra will play for John Good's last dance at the opera house Friday night, April 29th.

Congress is certainly keeping up its reputation for being the high cost of living. It wants $36,000 more for investigation.

tigating the cause. It would require much more than that to make a thorough investigation of congress.

For a bargain in Shirt Waists don't miss the $1 Shirt Waist table at Ahern's.

I didn't take mine off, don't think. I wait until they sweat and shrink. This Democrat may look thin to you as by dad, but next week's may be in the freak class. For several weeks the office force has been only a girl and the boss. Last Thursday, on plea of sickness; the angel quit, but we since understand it was to get married. On top of this disaster we had to set up and print the six-page Teacher, and still no sign of even a little "devil" of a printer. At the present stage of the game we'd like to trade the Democrat office for a dog; and then shoot the damned dog.

When you want something to wear ready made, Ahern's is the place to go for it. We are handling all ready-made lines in larger and finer assortments than any other store in the county.

The "Little Giant" (W. H. Thompson) certainly showed superior wisdom by pulling out of the U. S. senatorial race. The United States senate is just as bad a place as the mother-in-law of Texas.

Be ready, by dad, for the big doings; the "ladies" band concert at the Baptist church April 29th.

Dear the Ladies' band concert, at the Baptist church April 29th.

Plant your potatoes next week in the dark of the moon. Get the seed from those Early Ohios at Ahern's; price 75c bushel.

There are a lot of people asking for higher wages now who will be asking for jobs in the near future—at any old price. And we'll be glad, profanely glad of it. A fellow can't blow his nose in his employer's company these days—if he wants to keep them.

Veteran E. H. Dorsett of Wayne, according to advices from Congressman Latta, now draws a pension of $20 per month.

Never before shown in Wayne—such a fine display of Shirt waists, in both silk and lawn, as you'll find at Ahern's.

400 printers more or less want to work on the Democrat next week, but that doesn't help out any this week. By dad, I don't know whether I'll be here next week or not. This crunching process 18 hours a day, is enough to bring on appendicitis—or that velvet feeling, long thirst.

Billy Sunday has tackled Chicago. We'll tell Billy will candidly admit that he has arrived at his proper destination, the last place on the circuit.

"Mike," said Pat, "What do two green flags on the rear end of a train mean?" "It means another one is coming," said Mike. A few days later Pat appeared on the streets wheeling his baby and two green flags were fastened on the baby car.—Fremont Herald.

Sure, Teddy will do it. His plans were laid long before he shot a lion in the back when the poor beast wasn't looking.

Don't make dresses for your girls until you have seen those pretty, ready made dresses at Ahern's. The styles are prettier, they are as well made and just as cheap as the dresses you get up at home.

The Argonaut: When Mr. Jenkins went to his bedroom at half-past one, it was with the determination of going to sleep, and with another determination that he would not be interviewed by Mrs. Jenkins. So, as soon as he entered the door and deposited his lamp upon the dresser table, he commenced his speech: "I locked the front door, I put the chain on. I pulled the key out a little bit. The dog is inside. I put the kitten out. I emptied the drip pan of the refrigerator. The cook took the silver to bed with her. I put a cane under the knob of the back hall door. I put the fastenings over the bathroom windows. The parlor fire has coal on. I put the cake back in the closet. I did not drink all the milk. It is not going to rain. Nobody gave me a message for you. I mailed your letters as soon as I got down town. Your mother did not call at the office. Nobody died that we are interested in. Did not hear of a marriage or engagement. I was very busy at the office making out bills. I hung my clothes over chair backs. I want a new egg for breakfast. I think that is all, and I will now put out the light." Mr. Jenkins thought that he had hedged against all inquiry, and a triumphant smile was upon his face as he took hold of the gas check, and sighted a line for bed, when he was earthquaked by the query from Mrs. Jenkins. "Why didn't you take off your hat?"

Plant your potatoes next week in the dark of the moon. Get the seed from those Early Ohios at Ahern's; price 75c per bushel.

G. P. Hitchcock is Dead.

G. P. Hitchcock died in Omaha yesterday morning, at the home of his son Frank, aged 53 years. Thus another name is added to the long death list in Wayne county for 1910. Mr. Hitchcock had lived in Nebraska for 54 years, being a native of Michigan. The funeral will be held next Saturday at 2:00 p. m., from the family residence in Wayne.

Deceased leaves a wife and six children, Mrs. Ralph Greer, Blunt, S. D.; F. W. Hitchcock, Omaha; Mrs. Wesley Kruger, Andover, S. D.; Mrs. Howard Wilbur, Marshalltown, Iowa, and Stanton and Leila Hitchcock of Wayne.

Installation Services at the Presbyterian Church April 27th.

On Wednesday, April 27th, the installation services will be held at the Presbyterian church of Wayne at which time Rev. Alexander Corkery will be formally installed as pastor. Rev. Samuel Light, Presbyterian evangelist of Niobrara Presbytery, will preside and ask the new minister the constitutional questions. Rev. James Corkey of Winterset, Iowa, a brother of the local pastor, will also be present and will deliver the installation sermon.

The charge to the people will be given by Rev. B. O. Pearson of Lyons. The music for the occasion will be furnished by the quartet which has charge of the music at the Sabbath services.

The installation services will be followed by a service of welcome on Thursday evening, to which all the other denominations and local pastors will be invited, and at which time Rev. J. S. Corkery will also preach. At this service the newly installed pastor will be formally welcomed to the church and community.

Would Redistrict the State.

Nebraska News. That a non-partisan convention of northern Nebraska citizens should be held in Norfolk in the near future to get united action looking toward a redistricting of the legislative districts of the state, is the belief of James Britton, county judge of Wayne county, who was in Norfolk.

He points out that the state has not been districted since 1887 and that the present arrangement is out of proportion because the northern part of the commonwealth has grown so much faster than the southern part.

The Deere No. 9 Leads the Field Why?

Because it leads in accuracy—actual accuracy. We demonstrate it. Because it leads in perfect checking, independent of speed of team. Because it leads in easy operation. Instantly changed from hill to drill. Has spring lift. Automatic reel, perfect foot drop, etc. Because it leads in simplicity and strength of construction. Front frame is tied in eight places. Because it leads in substitution of malleables in place of common castings at all vital points. Because it leads in lightness of draft. No strain on the check wire, hence no side draft. Because it leads in ability to successfully plant not only corn, but practically any kind of seed. Because it leads in number sold each year—and this number is every year increasing.

Drop in and get a copy of our booklet, "More Corn and Better Corn." Contains a lot of boiled down practical corn information.

Winside News
From our Correspondent.
John Dimmel went to Omaha this morning.

Mesdames A. Woodward and L. W. Freedham left this morning for Arco, Idaho.

Mrs. Amanda Hersched after having undergone an operation at the hospital at Sioux City, died Friday. The remains were brought to Winside Saturday morning and the funeral was held Monday.

The hearing for a temporary injunction restraining the city daddies from buying a city building, was postponed to a later date, which will probably settle the matter.

The "wets" have finally concluded to let the town go dry without further protest. A wise conclusion for we will glad to note what will do to some of the drys.

Miss Babbitt, the efficient solicitor for White House canned goods, will be in Wayne next week. This is her annual visit and her friends and patrons will be pleased to meet her. Miss B. will receive orders for next fall delivery which will be filled by our local grocer, Ralph Rundell.

Wayne people will be pained to hear of the death of Pat Sauntry, at his home in South Dakota, last week, from quick consumption.

Misses Bressler gave a delightful one clock luncheon yesterday, complimenting to Miss Lela Tucker, and this evening Miss Theobald gives a six o'clock dinner with miscellaneous shower for next week's bride.

Mrs. McLeod and Miss Wilda Chace were in Wayne last night enroute home to Stanton from Sioux Falls.

WHEN

The appetite suggests something good—when health dictates something nourishing—when bodily strength demands something sustaining—in short, when you're hungry, think of the store of QUALITY, Rundell's grocery.

Sometime

Somewhere in Wayne, someone may show a line of Olives equal to the present offerings, but not as yet. A moment's inspection of this line, it will be noticeable that the factor of Quality has not been forgotten.

A pleasant chat, like a pleasant meal, must have a climax—as a climax, include in your next grocery order a few cans of White-House canned fruits and vegetables—it will make that chat more pleasant.

New Arrivals

In season are Fresh Lettuce, Radishes, Onions, Asparagus, Celery and Tomatoes.

Flower Bulbs, assorted varieties. Chick Food, that's all food. Genuine Early Ohio Potatoes, for planting. White Rose Gasoline—National Light Oil. Bran and Shorts in 100-lb sacks.

Resolutions of Omaha

The Presbytery of Omaha, of which Rev. Alexander Corkey has been a member for several years, adopted the following resolutions on the occasion of his dismissal to Niobrara Presbytery in order that he might accept a call to the Presbytery church in Wayne:

"Whereas our brother, Rev. Alexander Corkey, goes from us to take charge of the congregation of Wayne in the Presbytery of Niobrara; therefore be it

"Resolved that the Presbytery of Omaha express their appreciation of his faithful and efficient services while with us in our borders."

"We commend him for his sterling worth of Christian manhood, for his ability as an able and eloquent preacher, a safe and sane evangelist, a popular teacher and an author of no mean repute."

"We recognize his deep grasp of essential truth, his skill and force in its presentation, and his broad humanity and Christian sympathy which have endeared him to us all as a friend and brother."

"While we regret to see him go from our Presbytery, we trust that he may be inspired for his work in his new field of larger opportunity with the thought that he takes with him the esteem and best wishes of the Presbytery of Omaha."

"Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded with his certificate of dismissal to the Presbytery of Niobrara."

The resolutions were unanimously adopted by a standing vote of the Presbytery.

The clearest and most succinct declaration of the dramatic duties was made by Bolleau when he laid down the law that a tragedy must show "one action in one day and in one place." It must deal with only a single story; and this obligation is the unity of action. It must never change the scene, mass its episodes in a single spot; and this is the unity of plot. Action must contract its necessary situations into the space of 14 hours, into a single day, and this is the unity of time.

According to Consul General Jones, at Winnipeg, Canada, is in great need of men traps. Farmers in the grain belt are becoming anxious about the invasion of rodents from the United States and are willing and able to pay a good price for a trap that will combine durability and efficiency. The rats are nearing Winnipeg and attempts to check them by inoculation with a communicable virus have so far failed to stop their march.

Statistics have been amassed by some one in a girl's college, where there is an enrollment of 1,600. Of this number, more than 100 have the name Helen which means light. Many came with less than 90. They followed Mary, Martha, Florence and Elizabeth in that order. There were many Hopes and Dorothys and a few Emilys and Penelopes, but Abigail, Hulda and Heribeth seem to have outlived their popularity in America.

A writer in the London Graphic figures that it costs about $3,000 before the ordinary individual can afford to fly the gaudy notes, including the aeronaut itself, but a shelter for the flying machine, tools needed for the countless repairs, etc. He asserts also that every return to earth is marked by the necessity of $10 worth of repair and readjustment. No wonder that flying is not a popular amusement.

At what age does the little tapir lose his markings? A tapir born in October in the London Zoo is a plump, little animal, exactly like his parents, except it is strongly barred with white horizontal stripes, while, as everybody knows, all tapirs are plain, dark slate color. But now, after four months, the stripes are disappearing, those at the head being the first to go. Time has solved the problem.

A recent test of wireless telephony was made to show its value for transmitting music. Several selections were sent in a transmitter at Park Avenue and Fortieth Street, New York, and was listened to by a group of newspaper men at the Metropolitan Tower. At the time the signal was clearly heard, but frequently it was impossible to hear anything but a confused blur of sound.

HEREDITY CAUSES BOY TO STEAL HIS NEIGHBOR'S HORSE

Takes a Joy Ride Becomes Frightened and Hikes for Another State.

Lincoln, Neb., April 16.—The state normal board meeting at the state house yesterday was enlivened by the filing of report by Secretary Luther P. Ludden attacking the management of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's school and by the election of Mr. Crabtree's successor.

W. D. Hayes of Alliance, formerly a member of the state normal board, appointed as a democratic member by Governor Sheldon, was unanimously elected to succeed Mr. Crabtree the 1st of June. His election to please the teachers' committee had obtained permission from him to present his name. It is supposed that he will accept the position inasmuch as he allowed the committee to consider his name as a candidate.

He is now principal of the public schools of Alliance and is receiving $3,000 a year. The normal board is now governed by Mr. Hayes. Mr. Crabtree is receiving $3,000 a year, and the appropriations of the legislature will not permit the payment of more.

U. S. Conn. superintendent of the public schools at Columbus was elected president of the state normal school at Wayne. Both elections were by ballot. Conn. was elected by the teachers' committee comprising State Superintendent Bishop, Dr. Shellhorn, of Peru, and Mr. McDonald of Kearney, had presented the names of Mr. Conn, J. A. Beattie and W. R. Jackson as suitable men for the election at Wayne. Mrs. Jackson received three votes. No salary was demanded by the board. The teachers' committee, led in the election by A. C. Fuller, of the Wesleyan university, if he would consider an offer of the presidency of the Peru normal. He said he would not.

There were 21 applicants for president of the Peru, Wayne and Chardon normal schools. The board took no action in regard to the position of Chardon on the ground that the interest suit initiated to prevent the building of the school also prevents the board from electing a president.

ASQUITH RESOLUTION ADOPTED IN COMMONS

London, April 18.—Arid scenes of excitement hardly paralleled since the Gladstonian home rule debates, the house of commons last night by a majority of 102, recorded its approval of the Asquith resolution, which gives the House of Lords power to veto bills introduced by the Commons.

When E. S. Johnson, a traveling man proposed to vote, claiming that he made his headquarters at one of the local hotels, it was shown that he had a family living at Kansas City and he was told by Chief Malone that if he attempted to vote, he would be thrown in jail. Johnson, however, went to the polling place alone during the day and did not vote.

Several university students were challenged on the ground that they received a part of their support from home and were not residents of Lincoln. The students swore in their votes and this may be made the basis for a contest.

DOCTOR AND WOMAN ARE FOUND GUILTY BY JURY

Watseka, Ill., April 14.—Dr. W. R. Miller and Mrs. J. B. Sayler, whose names were coupled in the Sayler murder of yesterday, were found guilty of manslaughter for slaying Dr. J. B. Sayler of Crescent City, husband of the woman, last July. John Grunden, medicine vendor from Oklahoma, and father of Mrs. Sayler, was acquitted by the jury.

Punishment was fixed by the jury in Dr. Miller's case at 12 years' imprisonment. In the penitentiary, while imprisoned for three years, the physician was allotted to Mrs. Sayler.

The trial, which occupied nearly a month and which has held a large share of the attention of the residents of Iroquois county since the killing of Dr. B. Sayler last year, came to a speedy close.

The general expectation was that the jury, which had been deliberating more than 30 hours, would disagree on the afternoon of May 1, when ten ballots had been taken, and when the trial reached the manslaughter verdict against Dr. Miller and Mrs. Sayler and of acquittal for her father.

DAKOTA CLAIMANT IS BRANDED AS A FRAUD

Cambridge, Mass., April 14.—Judge George F. Lawton, in the probate court today, branded as an imposter Luke Tarpenning, a Wahoo saloonkeeper, is in trouble again because he has been accused of assaulting a deputy revenue collector, Charles Slater, of Fremont.

Slater discovered that Tarpenning had sold more than one case of liquor to one man in one day, and under the federal law this made him liable for a tax as a wholesaler in addition to his retail tax. Tarpenning denied that he had done this, and when Slater became insistent, Tarpenning ordered the collector away, and when he refused to go, struck him and then jumped over the bar and tackled him.

Tarpenning's alleged offense comes under a provision of the law recently made to catch moonshiners in the south, providing for $2,000 fine or a year's imprisonment for anyone who assaults, resists or opposes a revenue officer in the execution of his duty.

ENGLISH WARRIOR HAS AN AVERSION TO THE FAIR SEX

Falls Into Clutches of Female Reporter and Disappoints Her Greatly.

BRADSTREET AND DUN REPORT ON BUSINESS

General Trade Is Shown to Be More Cheerful in Several Lines.

THE WEEK IN GRAIN.

Chicago, April 19.—Is Lord Kitchener a woman hater? Or does he merely ignore the sex? Or is he having a good time pretending?

The warrior was in Chicago yesterday. He remained here too short a time to settle many burning questions, particularly where they related to opinions representing the accumulated sense of a life of activity. But one reputation had been given him in advance to snatch a "lady reporter" from her regular duties and send her to present the question plumb to his lordship. In its inquisitorial form it went something like this:

"Lord Kitchener you have the reputation of being the longest term woman hater of all the British Isles. Is this correct?"

Must Live Up to Reputation.

"Well, I always must live up to one's reputation, you know."

"Oh," said the reporter, "then it is true, Lord Kitchener?"

His blue eyes, which look out frankly, danced mischievously.

"No, no; I can't say that, you know; I can't even say that, because I have no reputations which need be lived up."

"At least," went on the questioner, "we trust the feeling applies only to individuals, not to woman as a whole."

"Absolutely, absolutely," replied the fighter, relapsing into an amused silence.

Why didn't he undertake something nice about the sex? An dragged but companionable, he said that women the reporter had a brilliant thought.

He Doesn't Consider Himself.

"And the American woman, she insisted. "Wouldn't you like to meet her?"

"Ah, here is the subject upon which all them commit themselves."

But to Lord Kitchener she said,

"Have you met many American women on this trip?"

For a moment he became serious. "No, no; and the reporter tried hard to compare himself there was a shade of disappointment in his tone. But there he stopped.

"But you have known many of them in England?"

"Oh yes; I have met many American women over there."

Why didn't he add "and always I have found them charming?" Distinguished, masculine travelers, said the reporter, waiting for the next question. Instinctively one felt he knew what was wanted and instinctively one felt he wouldn't say it.

"Well," said the reporter, resignedly. "While we are on the subject of women, Lord Kitchener, won't you tell us what you think of the English suffragettes?"

And then Lord Kitchener did laugh. Never Had Seen One.

To tell the truth, he replied, they did not exist when I left England. Since it has been eight years since I have been home and really who knows? I do not know her, so I don't have to have thought of her at all."

No even the militant suffragette had gained his attention and thought! And this frank Lord Kitchener strongly advised, "Bank credit, the essence of money as police, a loan, maintaining over the output, the last six months' history has adored since the beginning of time."

So, is he or isn't he? He says he is not individuals, not as a whole, but is Lord Kitchener's "whole" made up of all the feminine individuals? Women in general is interested because some woman in particular is missing a great deal. And if it's true, a pity us."

Arrives From Australia.

Lord Kitchener arrived in the city direct from San Francisco. He has been studying army conditions in Australia for the British government, instituting reforms, and collecting information which he is shortly to deliver to the government colonial department. He said that he was making the tour across the country as quickly as possible and that he would sail as soon as he could after reaching New York. He left the city over the Lake Shore route on the Twentieth Century Limited.

WOMAN SLEEPING FOR THREE YEARS

Remarkable Case in New York Will Probably End in Death.

New York, April 19.—Soon after Mrs. Jessie Hodus, 38 years old, moved with her family from New York to Brooklyn three years ago, she fell into a deep sleep and she was still in slumber today. And it has been that way, save for a few hours each week, ever since. Mrs. Hodus, even during her trance, moves spontaneously. Friday afternoon she awoke and busied herself about the house and Saturday she spends the day in chattering with her children and gleanings the news of the neighborhood. Then she goes back to bed again to rest for another week. While she sleeps, her body is rigid, though she was dead.

In the earlier period of her strange sleep she did not always fully寤 in her own home. Sometimes it was in the home of her married sister. She was there asleep for three days at one time, and again perhaps in the home of a neighbor. But they knew the symptoms in East New York now, and when Mrs. Hodus says she is dead, she will hurry her home again, holding him firmly. That she will eventually die from her strange illness is accepted as a matter of course by her family. They say that each time she awakens from her strange slumber she is weaker physically.

From the Wayne County Teachers
The Eighth Grade Examinations

Perhaps a fourth of those who wrote upon the eighth grade examination last month passed, and no doubt teachers over the county are wondering what is the matter. To my mind, the trouble is this. The questions are based upon the course of study and teachers have not followed it as they should. In some instances, also, teachers have deceived themselves as to how well a thing was understood.

As an illustration of the first fault (not following the course of study) take this question in history: "From 1783 to 1789 is the critical period of American History. Why?" Only a very few answered this correctly. Now, the course of study calls for a month's work on this period and only the other day we heard a class which was using Barnes' History, dispose of it in five minutes. No wonder a pupil from that class, five months hence, should miss it, is there?

"County Option" furnishes another illustration from the same list. This was missed more than any other question and the course of study calls particular attention to it in the topics given for review. Note this answer from one of the papers, telling what county option is: "They tried to stop the liquor but people kicked." It is hard to mark a pupil down for an answer that shows thoughtless teaching and lack of preparation on the part of the teacher so plainly. Another question showing much careless work by teachers was the one in geography which asked what latitude and longitude are. Over half gave this answer: "Latitude is breadth and longitude is length." To be sure, the first sentence in Fry's advanced text under this subject says "latitude means breadth and longitude means length" and we gather that teachers have not made the distinction between the deviation and the definition of the words.

Perhaps the failure of so many will have one beneficial result--making teachers realize, as no amount of talking has done, the necessity of following the course of study.

The Next Eighth Grade Examination.

Instead of having the next eighth grade examination in April as originally planned, it will be held the 12th and 13th of May. We do this after talking with some of the teachers who desire a little longer to prepare pupils for the last examination. The program and regulations will be the same as last month. If a pupil takes a subject to raise the average he may keep the higher grade.

All eighth grade manuscripts will be kept in this office until after the graduation in June. None will be allowed to be taken from the office, but any person interested is invited to call at the office and look over the papers. We shall be glad to go over any paper and point out the errors, hence if you are not satisfied with the grades you received and feel that you deserve a higher grade on the papers submitted do not advertise your failure to others, but come in and talk it over with us.

The word "series" appearing in the reading lesson, was assigned to a pupil to be used in the language lesson.

After consulting the dictionary the pupil found the word to mean "likeness, etc," and wrote "The man is is is is is is is sick," illustrating the use of the word in a sentence and incidentally the results usually obtained from an unbridged dictionary.

Organization of the Boys' and Girls' Club in Wayne County.

On one side of the supplement will be found a large advertisement for the organization of the Boys' and Girls' Club. We wish each teacher to take this to school and pin it in a conspicuous place so that all the pupils may know of it. We would greatly appreciate any effort put forth by the teachers to have boys and girls of proper age attend this meeting at the court room on Friday afternoon of April the 29th.

The purpose of this organization is for the boys and girls to carry on, under the supervision and direction of the state department, a series of experiments in corn growing and domestic science in a systematic way. It will be of vast importance in an educative way to the boy and girl who will carry it through as directed.

We request teachers to count any one who attends this meeting for the half day as not absent from school.

Harold Bonta of district number 71 received a diploma of honor in the month of March.

Sixty-two eighth graders were writing on the examination for pupils' certificates at Winside, Carroll and Wayne on the 24th and 25th of March. Those who passed in all subjects in this examination were Lucile Schemel of district number nine, Amanda Davis and Gladys Wood of district number 56, Mary Retwisch of district number 80, and Stella Anderson of district number 63. Quite a number of others passed in all the subjects which they took, but thought it best to leave some subjects until the next examination. Others failed in but one or two branches and will complete the examination at the next writing.

School Notes.

The Winside school board has secured Superintendent Bicknell of Ogallala for next year. He comes highly recommended and we are glad to welcome him to our county.

We are informed upon good authority that Miss Vennerburg will not accept the principalship of the Carroll school for next year.

School is closed in district number 33 on account of small pox. The home at which the teacher has been boarding is the one quarantined.

Teachers who failed to do the Reading circle work for this year need not apply for a certificate, as it will not be granted. We do not care for teachers who are not interested enough in their pupils. Luella Pilger is the teacher.

There appears to be a lack of qualified teachers this spring. Several schools have been closed because a School is closed in district number 83 again on account of the sickness of the teacher. It is next to impossible to secure good teachers at this time of the year as the home teachers are all supplied with schools and those from away must be taken more or less on trust.

Thirty teachers registered on Friday and Saturday to take the teachers' examination. From the number of applicants we have each month there should be plenty of teachers, but nevertheless they have been scarce all winter.

Owing to the prevalence of a number of children's diseases over the county the attendance in a number of the schools has been very small and irregular for the last two months.

Prof. F. M. Gregg of the Peru State Normal has recently published a new text on parliamentary law. Mr. Gregg will teach this subject at the Wayne county institute next fall.

ORDER OF HEARING ON ORIGINAL PROBATE OF WILL.

The State of Nebraska, ss.

At a County Court, held at the County Court room, in and for said County of Wayne, on the 15th day of April, 1910, Present, James Britton, County Judge.

In the matter of the estate of Hans Sorensen, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Mary Ellenbrig, formerly Mary Sorensen, praying that the instrument filed on the 15th day of April, 1910, and purporting to be the last Will and Testament of said deceased, may be proved, approved, probated, allowed and recorded as the last Will and Testament of said Hans Sorensen, deceased, and that the execution of said instrument may be granted to Mary Ellenbrig as Executrix. Ordered, That May 9th, A. D. 1910, at 10 o'clock A. M., is assigned for hearing said petition, when all persons interested in said matter may appear at a County Court to be held in and for said County, and show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted, and that notice of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this order in the Nebraska Democrat, a weekly newspaper printed in said County, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing.

(True copy) JAMES BRITTON, County Judge.

Notice of Application for Liquor License

Matter of application of Fred Ziemer for Liquor License.

Notice is hereby given that Fred Ziemer did on the 11th day of April, 1910, file his application to the board of Village trustees of Hoskins, Wayne County, Nebraska, for license to sell malt, spirituous and vinous liquors at Hoskins, Nebraska, from the 3rd day of May, 1910, to the first (1) day of May, 1911, inclusive, at lot (8), block (3), in the original village of Hoskins, Nebraska.

Why should a pupil say that "emphasis is stopping at every other word," say that "arithmetic is figuring," define perimeter as the "outward outline of a number;" silent reading as "reading without getting sense;" give the table for long measure correctly but say it is used in measuring nuts and candy; that the result of the war with Spain was that "they helped the Indians get possession of the United States;" that the three departments of government are "Lincoln, Washington and the District of Columbia;" that fans were made at Faneuil Hall and that Yellowstone Park is in China?

These are but a few of the absurd mistakes that were found on the eighth grade examination papers corrected last month.

J. A. HUEBNER, Village Clerk.

For Season of 1910.

I will have a Mammoth black jack, and a black Percheron horse, better known as the Cadwell horse, in the old Newton barn all the coming horse season. This jack is the best animal in Northeast Nebraska, and the Cadwell stallion is too well known to need advertising.
