Mrs. C. A. Chace has bought the E. R. Chace residence on 2d street at $2,000. The place was for sale and Mrs. Chace didn't want some one else to get it and "stick a dirty barn on the alley." Will Geary has leased the property.

The new incubator factory is a busy place these days. The building is certainly a dandy in size, material and finish and couldn't be beat for factory purposes. The machinery is now being put in place to turn out the 1911 crop of X-Rays which will have to be decidedly large to supply the demand for the "best incubator manufactured."

Only a few more of those garden blue berries left. If you want any drop a card at once to Jos. McCoun, Wayne.

Assenheimer of Altona for $100 per acre, a bargain for the buyer as land men say the place is worth $125. The other deal was a trade between D. A. Jones and R. Philleo, the latter taking 160 near Ashton, Idaho, for his 160 south of Wayne, at present farmed by George Philleo. To read the following article a republican would comment on it by saying "that's from the World-Herald," but instead of being the Omaha champion of common people's rights it is clipped from that staunch republican daily of the whole country, the Chicago Inter-Ocean. But anyway it is amusing to we democrats:

"Doubtless some of our readers expect to see comment in this place today on the affront administered by Colonel Roosevelt to Senator Lorimer through the Hamilton club recently.

It is rather difficult to meet this expectation, as it is not the province of a newspaper to comment on the manners of a private citizen, no matter how scurvy they may be.

A New York newspaper once stated that Colonel Roosevelt's alteration, falsification and publication of a private correspondence several years ago was adequate cause for his expulsion from any gentleman's club in the country.

A similar comment applies in this case. He played a dirty trick and was not ashamed. No principle of honor, no scruple of decency, once crossed his mind. It is sad, but it is true.

As regards the conduct of the Hamilton club, it is difficult to see how that organization can maintain itself as a gentleman's club, when, on the order of a private citizen, its officers will go out of their way to insult a guest who has disarmed himself by trusting to the club's generosity.

That they lent themselves to a cowardly personal vengeance, despite Colonel Roosevelt's unusually high professions of moral motives, is shown not only by the nature of the political feud between Colonel Roosevelt and Mr. Lorimer, which, after seven years, culminated in this scurvy blow below the belt, but also by the fact that Colonel Roosevelt made no objections to sitting at the same table with the leprous Bussie, beside whom Mr. Lorimer is viewed, even by his bitterest foes, as a paragon of social, political and official virtue.

The New York Evening post has recently summarized Colonel Roosevelt's character as that of a man "who talks big and acts mean." Colonel Roosevelt replied: "It's a lie!"

It is a lie? No, it is the truth, the sorry truth, and Colonel Roosevelt himself has proved it.

Jim Wachob was in Wayne Tuesday night on business for Millard's bank of Omaha for which institution he is now a traveling representative.

Perfection in Little Things Have Made the Favorite

A Favorite Bess Burner

Some manufacturers throw their stoves and ranges together.

They don't care how they make them—wantashowy outside appearance, in order to attract attention and sell the goods.

The makers of the Favorite could build their stoves that way—but they don't.

They have spent over sixty years climbing towards perfection in stove and range making, and we think they have now reached pretty close to the mark—that's why we handle the Favorite

The law protects you in the food you eat, but your own common sense is your only safeguard in buying stoves and ranges, and the confidence you have in the dealer from whom you buy.

Come and see our Favorites. You'll be pleased with the beauty of design and thorough workmanship. After you have looked them over carefully and compared them with other makes they'll be your Favorites too.

You will know what we mean when we say: Favorite means Perfection when applied to stoves and ranges. It means over sixty years of the very best endeavor in stove and range making.

TRAVELER COMMITS SUICIDE AT ROSALIE

He was seen at 11 o'clock last night, but not after that time until his body was found in a pool of blood on the platform today.

At the coroner's inquest it developed that he had a brother at Stony Point, Ind., with whom he was in correspondence, and on his person was found a letter, which appeared to be in a prosperous condition. The body will be held here awaiting instructions from relatives.

GOD'S MESSENGER ON A FATED TRAIN

Saves Many Lives. No Sooner Are Words Spoken Than Passenger Engine Crashes Into String of Box Cars.

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 10.—"Saved by the act of God." It ever a demoted man spoke the truth, it was when Garvey Provost, an Indian of Wallhill, Neb., in the midst of a broadcast campaign, flagged the Nebraska State fair special of the Burlington railroad at 11 o'clock last night half way between Lyons and Rosalie, Neb., just in time to break the force of a head-on collision between the freight and a flying string of runaway box cars. As it was, the collision was not averted, but its horrors were diminished by the fact that the wrecking and burning of two of the freight cars, the demolition of the passenger engine, the severe bruising of the engineer and the escape of the passengers from the wreckage, had done its worst.

Sent There by God. "I was sent as a messenger of God," responded the Indian, and the words were hardly out of his mouth when the spring runaway was dashed into the engine, and the freight train was wrecked absolutely nothing about the impending wreck and apparently had no other thought than an incoherent idea that he wanted to ride with it. His answer to the question "Why were you recalled a moment later when it became known that the dire consequences that otherwise would have been brought about, were averted."

The passenger train was the returning special that has been running out of Sioux City this week to Lincoln on account of the Nebraska State fair. It was at the station on the north side of the city, where it was waiting at a rapid clip against a strong wind suggested by a heavy rain. The storm was one of the most severe of the season, and the wind had been blowing for four hours, standing in the side of the train, the next station north of Lyons, and sent them out on the main track, gaining momentum as they went until about five miles out, they were attained a speed estimated at 25 miles an hour. It was then that the young Winnebago loomed up in the darkness before the special train, flashed a light and while it was still in motion but slowing down it was seen to be a freight train, a dread-dread shivering, and clearly of his mind, but he gave his startling answer to the train man's query, and then the crash came.

Started on Long Walk. From a long walk, it is reported that the special train was on its way to Lincoln on account of the Nebraska State fair. It was at the station on the north side of the city, where it was waiting at a rapid clip against a strong wind suggested by a heavy rain.

SOCIALIST MAYOR JOLTS ROOSEVELT

In Fierce Trade. The Colonel Declares That the Wisconsin Legislature Is Bound to Elect La Follette.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 9.—"It has been said to me since my arrival here," said Colonel Roosevelt today, "that in spite of Senator La Follette's having carried the primaries in a fair and open contest, an effort will be made to beat him in the legislature. I do not for one moment believe this, because any such conduct would be from every point of view an outrage, and a deliberate violation of good faith."

When in Oregon the democratic candidate for Senator, Governor Chamberlain, carried the primaries, and was proposed by the republican legislature should turn him down, I very strongly and publicly took the position that such an act would be one of bad faith on the part of the legislature, and I take the same position in regard to Senator La Follette."

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 9.—Shortly after Colonel Roosevelt arrived here today, and before he sat down to breakfast at the Pfister hotel, he found himself involved in a controversy with Emil Tuckey, the socialist mayor, who had declined to act on the reception committee which welcomed the colonel to Milwaukee.

In a contribution to the "Big Stick," a newspaper published by the Milwaukee Press club on this occasion Mayor Seidel stated that "if Mr. Roosevelt comes to Milwaukee holding the same ideas which he has expressed in the magazine article of March 20, 1908, it is clear that he cannot serve the cause of honesty and decency in American political life."

It is possible that I have misunderstood the article," stated Mayor Seidel, "but inasmuch as I am a socialist and he has designated socialism as a thing evil, it is against his religion, his honor, his morality, which would replace the family and home life by a glorious state of the free lunch counter and a state founding asylum—I am sure that he will not do this."

Charging the colonel "with a cunning and deliberate purpose to create a bad feeling against the socialist party," the visitor "could lay no claim to the right of preaching either morality, religion or civic righteousness."

Roosevelt Makes Reply. "In the speaking tour of Mr. Roosevelt through the west," said Mayor Seidel, "he has shown a degree of importance beyond political plans and designs. As such, of course, it is of no special service to the present city administration, and the problems that confront of city government are of a nature as those of the nation faces."

On being shown this statement Colonel Roosevelt promptly said: "I have no political program, and I have no political party. I am only a man who is trying to do his duty for his country, and I am not interested in party politics."

INDIAN MYSTIC IS BRANDED AS FAKE

By Woman Victim. The Swami, Head of the Vedanta Cult, Lured from High Estate by Her Ohinese Rival.

New York, Sept. 9.—That Swami Abhedananda, local head of the Vedanta cult, is not the reincarnated divinity which he claims to be, but a mere trail human man with all man's failings, is the reason given by Mrs. William Jean Beaulieu, of 369 West End ave., and once a student at the convent of the Sacred Heart at St. Louis, for the many defections from the Vedanta ranks during the last six months.

When in Oregon the democratic candidate for Senator, Governor Chamberlain, carried the primaries, and was proposed by the republican legislature should turn him down, I very strongly and publicly took the position that such an act would be one of bad faith on the part of the legislature, and I take the same position in regard to Senator La Follette."

Mrs. Beaulieu's own story reveals many interesting experiences she had with the Swami during the three years. She had intended to take legal action against the leader, but changed her mind on advice of friends. However, she has secured the services of a handwriting expert and nine letters alleged to have been sent to Mr. Beaulieu in an effort to discredit his wife. To none of them did he pay attention, and she has since learned that the handwriting expert are nine letters alleged to have been sent to Mr. Beaulieu in an effort to discredit his wife.

AGED SON OF FORMER PRESIDENT TO MARRY

Child of James Monroe, 94 Years Old, Will Take unto Himself a Wife.

Ludington, Mich., Sept. 13.—That young James Monroe, of Bridgeport and Jacksonville, Fla., who asserts that he is a son of James Monroe, fifth president of the United States, has announced his intention of marrying at the age of 94, having outlived three wives and 12 children and having survived three wars.

Major Monroe's assertion that he is a son of the famous president during whose administration the Monroe doctrine was promulgated, is nothing new to his acquaintances in this city, in which he has been so long known. He has never before proved his assertion, although no biography of James Monroe mentions the fact of his having had a son.

Major Monroe's appearance, from the part of the historians is due, says Major Monroe, to the fact that little was ever known of the personal life of his father. Major Monroe says he is a second major, and that his mother's family name being Lauder. Here there is another seeming oversight by the historians, as only one major is mentioned in the biographies of James Monroe and that was to a Major Monroe who was born in Richmond, Va., on July 4, 1816. Upon the death of his father in 1831, he left his property to the hands of a guardian by whom he was taken to South Africa, where he remained several years.

CHARRED CORPSE IS THE EVIDENCE

THAT OF AGGRESSOR

Miss Leneve, His Affinity, Shows Little Disposition to Talk to Him at the Trial.

London, Sept. 13.—The resumption today of the trial of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen and Ethel Clara Leneve for the murder of the former's wife, Public Prosecutor Humphreys introduced evidence to establish the claim of the crown that the parts of the mutilated body found in the ship's hold were those of the missing wife, and to strengthen what has been popularly regarded as the missing link in the chain of circumstances which led to the conviction of the accused. The first witness called was Mrs. Adeline Harrison, whose acquaintance with Belle Elmore had extended over a period of some years. Mrs. Harrison was asked to state that she had found when the dismembered body was uncovered and having done so, swore that she recognized the exhibits as similar to those of Belle Elmore.

SCAR IS IDENTIFIED

A torn bit of feminine underwear also discovered by the searchers in the cellar, was next introduced and the witness declared that she had seen Belle Elmore clothed in underwear of a like texture. Testimony had been offered before, showing that the lower part of the body bore a scar the result of a fall from a window. The witness testified that she had seen Belle Elmore on the body of her friend.

The accused were seated in the dock while whispering distance and the door to the witness stand was kept open for the opportunity to speak to the jury. Miss Leneve presented a well-begone appearance and did not seem anxious to converse with Crippen, to whom his spectators had been staring for some time since his arrest, appeared as the Crippen of early photographs. He spoke to the girl anxiously and she replied that she had seen him in the dock.

OTHER WORKER WITNESSES

In his cross examination of Mrs. Harrison, Arthur Newton, representing Crippen, detracted somewhat from the strength of the evidence and incidentally introduced evidence which he claimed to be the line of defense. In reply to Mr. Newton's questions, the witness assented to the suggestion that the hair, the portion of a woman's vest, and the curling iron, which had been found in the cellar were not only similar to those worn or used by the missing woman, but also resembles those of the other.

DEW TESTIFIES AGAIN

Inspector Dew, who arrested the fugitives and brought them back to Quebec, re-entered the witness box today in the case of the Crippen trial. He testified that he had signed by Crippen when the police first asked him to make an explanation of his disappearance from London after the murder had been directed by him. The contents of the statements had already been covered by Humphreys in his opening address.

QUAKER CITY MUNYON DISAVOWS DR. CRIPPEN

Philadelphia, Sept. 13.—The testimony of a London chemist in the Crippen trial today, in which the witness stated that Crippen purchased five grains of hyosine on January 19 for use in homeopathic preparations, and that Crippen signed the receipt per H. H. Crippen, in the chemist's registry book, was shown to J. M. Munyon, of this city, by whom Crippen had been identified as the murderer.

Mr. Munyon stated that the deadly poison was never used by him in his preparations, and that Crippen never put up any remedies for him, as all the work was done in Philadelphia. Mr. Munyon further stated that Crippen severed his connection with the Munyon interests in December, 1908. He had been engaged only to answer medical correspondence for the company.

Have you paid your ice bill? Have you been successful in ordering your winter's supply of coal—on your face? are interrogation points that rise up and make faces at you these cold mornings.

An old friend of the Democrat called at this office the other day to suppress an immaterial incident he had previously conveyed to us so that "his wife would not hear of it. 'you see,' concluded the old philosopher, 'it gives these old women a headache to know so much.'"

You can't judge a man's age all by his gait, at least. It cost somebody a smoke to learn how young Tailor Tweed is, the other morning. Smooth shaven and up-right Bro. Tweed appears to be fair, fat and forty, but as a matter of age he is about ready to be chloroformed.

Spuds are in the class of "come high but we must have 'em" this fall.

This happened in a restaurant the other day and is one on the "high cost of living." He was going through his pockets in search of enough coin to pay for a modest lunch when he noticed a string of ribbon around the waiter's neck. "What do you call that on your throat?" he ventured to remark, as he fished out the extra two-bits. "Why, that's my tie of course, you fool." "Hic! thasho; hic! every thing's so durned, hic! high round here I thought it might be your gar—hic!—ter."

The bees are going out of political business this fall, at least two of them—Boyd and Burkett.

The Winside Tribune is authority for the statement that a farmer living near that fine little city will not send his two daughters to the state normal at Wayne because Shallenberger was defeated. The girls ought to stay at home and let the old man go to school for awhile.

Mayor Jas. Dahlman is already defeated for governor, taking the talk of some democratic papers for it. In defeat Jim will put up a much better front than their lamented Shallenberger.

No man is as important as he thinks himself to be. It is his conceit that keeps him up.—Bixby.

No, a whole lot of you fellows who think you are "cutting the ice" are simply sliding on it.

Phone 145 when you want printing.

There appear to be a lot of "walking curiosities" in Maine, Uncle David.

Nothing heard of Lon Hunter.

The standpatters have another guess coming when they study the election returns from Maine.

The old barnacles on the body politic are going to be jarred into the sea.

What's the use of sending Burkett back to the United States senate if the eastern states are going to repudiate the bosses, under whom Burkett assisted in giving the country twelve years of most remarkable legislation.

Senator Lorimer appears to be at least able to "come back" and kick the thing that snarled at him.

The man who is willing to suffer with hay fever until the corn is ripe can take a drink out of our bottle.

Get ready for the corn show game, the best one of all.

Practically all the republicans of Wayne are as tickled as are the democrats over the elections in the New England states. Maine certainly put an awful kink in the plans and specifications of the regular—public looters.

At Madison the minister, delivered a forceful sermon on "Hell," and at its conclusion the choir soloist, warbled in joyous voice: "Tell Mother 'I'll be There.'"

Henry Watterson on Roosevelt

Henry Watterson in the Louisville Courier-Journal: "Pardon the bluntness of rusticity! 'Tray, Blanche and Sweetheart,' the colonel described them the other day, 'yelping at my heels,' a 'repartee' which seems none the less biting because appropriated from the ex-president's distinguished kinsman, the late John Randolph, of Roanoke. 'Their abuse,' he added, 'is music to my ear and the breath of life to my nostrils.' Warlike nostrils, too, that smelleth the battle from afar, and cares no more for Brutus and Cassius, for 'Tray Blanche and Sweetheart,' than for lions in Africa and kinglets in Europe. In point of fact, the real, vital question before us is no longer the Mexicanization of the republic and the Disillusioning of Theodore, but this—shall Roosevelt Bryanize the republican party?"

The country has not wholly forgotten the cartoons of a few years ago, which represented the president that was and the president that would like to be as the two dromids; nor yet the epigram of the man from Nebraska that the man from Oyster Bay had stolen his clothes whilst he was in swimming. Many a truth is spoken in jest, dear old Mother Goose assures us. If we carefully examine and closely analyze the Osawatimie manifesto we shall find that most of it is as good Bryan gospel as the commoner could himself expound.

There is in all points a wondrous resemblance between Roosevelt and Bryan. That is why the Courier-Journal loves them so. Close of an age. Southern blood but western bred, one tracing back to Virginia, the other to Georgia. Voluminous of speech, fearless of consequences; born preachers; moral philosophers; humanitarians. To hell with political economy—every man his own political economist! To hell with the constitution and the courts of law—he is no leader of men, nor worthy the confidence of the plain people who cannot show them a livelier thing, or two, in government irradiated by the ethics of the new nationalism and inspired by the statesmanship of righteousness! "Be virtuous and you will be happy," wrote Vance, of Carolina, "but you will not have any fun!" Vance was away off. "We," exclaim the Siamese twins of the modern tent show, "are both virtuous and happy, and, behold, we have lots of fun!"

But a truce to badinage. The course of events forecast in these columns unfolds apace. The events unfold, and none the less surely because not at all slowly, a vista of possibilities yet more fantastic than was originally outlined, though even thus far upon the journey there has been no lack of the spectacular.

Theodore Roosevelt, at least, does not move in a mysterious way his wonders to perform. From Cairo to Rome, from Rome to Vienna, from Vienna to Paris and Berlin and London—why any of them?—and thence to New York and Denver, Chicago and Fargo, Kansas City and Omaha, and, lo, finally, to St. Paul. Who was it met him "in a pretty grove," as Mercutio says, "just without Ravena?"

The colonel is as open as the day. He leaves no one in doubt as to his intentions. His route is laid, his plans are set, his terms are writ, his very timetables have their exits and their entrances fitted to the prearranged line of travel and triumph. His companions de voyage are even Pinchot and Garfield. Their objective point? Well, if Taft does not get out of the way he'll have to; though all of us are agreed that he may serve out the rest of his term.

We recur to the question put by the Courier-Journal to its esteemed contemporaries six months ago—"to be considered without levity or passion before we are precipitated by the return of our wandering Ulysses into acrimonious controversy"—to wit: Is our representative government a failure, and do we want and need in the White House a strong man, who will take the bulls of graft by the horns and end them; who will hold the limitations of the constitution and the restraints of the courts of law in abeyance whilst he proceeds to purify our public life; because, in that event, Theodore Roosevelt was made for the job; a resolute and courageous and upright man, of great ability and large experience; only, let us make no mistake about the terms of the commission to be issued to him, for the reason that it can only mean life tenure and arbitrary, albeit wise and benevolent power.

So we said amid much derision and some discredit. Incredulity was the best we got for a well intentioned effort amid a period of calm, to bring the country to a realizing sense of import of the issues inevitable to the coming of the most extraordinary figure who has appeared in the world since Napoleon Bonaparte, already Europe's nominee for president of the United States, presently to become in America the most active force in contemporary affairs. Now that the inevitable has arrived they that were so glib about the absurdity of the Courier-Journal's thought seem actually dazed by the Roosevelt performance. They that laughed the most at us now abuse him like a pickpocket, or else fall in line in joyous response to all he says and does. They that were skeptical are dumb. Meanwhile the work of Bryanizing the republican party—for that is the real matter—proceeds consolingly; Burrows goes down in Michigan, La Follette goes up in Wisconsin; and, just as sure as the waters at Saratoga flow, and Lake George refuses to run dry, will the old guard troop its colors to the colonel the 27th of this good month of September. Then, most potent, grave and reverend signors, what are you going to do about it?

The play is up to the republicans. What the democrats may be able to do when the time comes is problematical. This is decidedly not their funeral.

The politicians as a rule are a cowardly set. Without much regard either to tendencies or consequences, they follow what seems to be the multitude. We may regard it as certain that from now onward the republican file leaders will begin to gather about Roosevelt. With the returns of November, sure to show yet greater republican losses than those of last Tuesday, the cry for Roosevelt will swell into a roar. The argument will be that he, and he, alone, can save the party. He proposes to save it by Bryanizing it. Can he do that?

Men like Barnes and Woodruff cannot stop him. They merely bring grist to his mill. The newspapers of New York will have to adopt another line of attack if they expect to stay the tide setting in at the west and flowing eastward.

Ridicule and abuse equally fall from the colonel's back like water from a duck's back. All things that are great are simple. The Roosevelt scheme first to Bryanize the party, and, under cover of the issue of the new nationalism—righteousness in public life and the setting of the man above the machine, the cleansing of the Augean stables and mending of the lot of the lowly and the poor—to sweep the country, though a daring, is a good scheme of practical politics conceived and brought forth by a man of rare sagacity and splendid executive ability. If it is to be headed off the real backbone and muscle of republicanism, the protective tariff system, must take the field, and who shall say that a man so fertile of invention, so fruitful of resources, so expert and so intrepid in action, has not already given the blood and brains of republican leadership the assurance that their interests shall be duly cared for when "Teddy comes marching home!"

Let us have no more fussing about kings and scepters, kaisers and crowns, the distinct proposal submitted by the immediate situation to the voters of the United States, involves a radical change—an actual revolution—of our established system of checks and balances, substituting a pure democracy for the present representative form, a centralized power at Washington instead of a series of state sovereignties, with a new Jefferson in the person of Theodore Roosevelt to administer it on lines of religion and humanity, not on lines of political economy, the constitution and the law.

Opening of the State Normal School at Wayne.

The new State Normal at Wayne, Nebraska will open Monday, September 19th. A faculty of twenty members has been selected, and it is the aim to make the new school one of the strongest educational institutions in the West. The members of the faculty are men and women of wide experience and broad scholarship. Each one has been selected because of special fitness for the work to be done. President U. S. Conn who has been placed at the head of the school is one of the best known school men in Nebraska. His experience as an educator covers all phases of school work, which combined with his broad scholarship and practical business training, eminently qualifies him to carry on the great work begun by Prof. J. M. Pile nearly twenty years ago. Speaking of the work of the school President Conn says: "The State Normal School of Wayne is not a new school. Its foundation was laid nineteen years ago by that great educational leader, Prof. J. M. Pile, who established the Nebraska Normal College. In this school thousands of young men and young women have been enrolled and prepared for their life's work. The school has grown from a mere handful of students to an annual enrollment of over a thousand. It developed strictly upon its merits and stands today as a monument to the energy and wisdom of its founder and leader. On the death of President Pile, the State bought the school and hereafter it will be known as the State Normal School of Wayne; and will be conducted in all respects as the other state normal schools of Nebraska. All the strong features of the old school will be preserved and many new ones will be added. The courses have been greatly strengthened, and the faculty has been increased in order to meet the requirements of the state school."

Tuition is free in all departments of the school, but a matriculation fee of five dollars must be paid by each student upon entering. This fee goes into the library fund, and is paid only once and entitles the student to a life membership in the school.

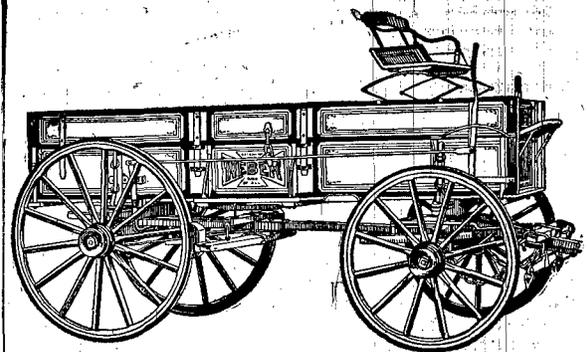

The course of study adopted for the new school outlines two years of work in advance of that required for graduation from our strongest four-year high school courses. "All students who have completed the tenth grade of a high school course or its equivalent may enter the State Normal School and enroll for work in any of the departments. A limited number of students who have completed only the eight grade will be admitted to the department known as "The Model High School," so practically anyone who desires an education may be accommodated.

Text books are furnished for a rental fee of ten cents per book for each semester. It is necessary for the student to deposit three dollars with the registrar when the books are received to cover their safe return. This deposit less the rental charges is refunded on the return of the books.

The best time to enter is at the beginning of the term. Next Monday September 19th will be devoted entirely to the registration of students. The school will meet the first time for chapel exercises on Tuesday at 11:30 and work in all classes will begin at once. A catalogue explaining in detail the work of the school and its advantages will be issued soon after its opening and organization.

...Peter Schuttler Wagon...

About the Building of a Schuttler Wagon

Some men are so constituted that whatever they do must be done right. They can no more slight any part of their work than they can change day into night. Everything must be made as good as they can possibly make it.

That's the way the original Peter Schuttler did his work, and PETER SCHUTTLE'S SONS HAVE BEEN MAKING WAGONS IN THE SAME CAREFUL WAY EVER SINCE. And today the name "SCHUTTLE" on a wagon stands for the highest possible QUALITY, just as it did when the first Schuttler wagon was made.

Quality is the only thing known around the Schuttler factory. The cost of building a wagon is never considered in the beginning, but every wagon is made just as good as it is possible to make it, and the selling price fixed afterward.

This explains why, in the face of the ever increasing scarcity and consequent advance of wagon material on one hand, and a constant demand for lower prices from the consumer on the other, Schuttler wagons retain the same high standard. Their makers don't know how to make them otherwise. The difference between a Schuttler wagon and a common wagon is only a few dollars, so why take chances on a common wagon, when you can have THE BEST WAGON MADE.

Win from Wisner

The ball players had a whopping big time at Wisner last Friday and brought home a victory and pockets full of ducats, about two hundred plunks, some of them say. The game was a poor exhibition of base ball, 6 to 4. Hartman was pitcher for Wisner and Simon for Wayne. This made fifteen straight victories for the local team with the exception of the two games lost to the Gayville, S. D., team.

Does It Pay?

Oats have not been profitable for several years, and yet it is necessary to sow some kind of small grain in this section to rotate crops. Why not raise more wheat, especially spring wheat? Wheat has produced good results, paying handsomely, yielding from 15 to 25 bushels per acre. It's right around the dollar mark. This part of Nebraska has produced this season as good wheat as they raise in the northern states. Why not raise more wheat if it pays? We will clean your seed wheat for you free of charge. We buy wheat according to quality, grading all wheat after dumping into elevator. If you bring good, sound, clean wheat you get more money per bushel for it than you get for shriveled, smutty, dirty wheat. In other words, you get well paid for spending a little more time and labor in preparing your soil before sowing your wheat and seeing that it is well covered after seeding. We do not dump all the wheat into one bin, but keep the cream of the wheat for milling. That's WHY our Flour is A-No. 1. For sale by all Wayne merchants.

The Democrat is informed that Boyd has not the necessary conceit to believe that he has a possible chance to be elected to congress, but is making the race for the sole purpose of getting a fat job from the administration. Boyd is alright, and just the calibre of a man the interests at Washington need in their business.

A number of newspapers that have been disappointed because Shallenberger was not nominated and have been throwing the harpoon into Dahlman, claim that the latter got out an injunction to stop the recount in Omaha. This is just about all these sheets know about the democratic candidate for governor, in this regard or any other. The injunction was asked for by a local candidate for county office in Douglas county, who was only five votes ahead of his opponent, and the recount changed the result so that the candidate who asked for the injunction was defeated. When you read of some newspaper or some scandal monger throwing dirt at Dahlman you are safe in assuming that the paper or "walking curiosity" doesn't know what it or he is talking about.

Pender Times: The esteemed Bloomfield Monitor seems somewhat jarred by our statement that Boyd is a "progressive" of the Joe Cannon stripe. The Monitor waxes our impression—among other things—of "Jim" Latta the farmer and "Jim" Latta the banker. That's easy. "Jim" Latta is a mighty good farmer and also a banker—we don't believe he knows very much more about the business than we do. He was such a good farmer that he made money enough to buy some bank stock. His success as a farmer, his high standing as a citizen and the further fact that the people of his community had faith in him caused the bank directors to put him in the office of president of the concern. It proved a good thing. The bank prospered, its president continued to farm—and even now when he's gone up higher he's a farmer—a good one too. He is also president of a good bank and he's a good congressman and for the next two years he will be a good farmer, a good congressman and the president of a good bank.

Henry Brownell of near Allen, an old friend of the editor, was in town last Saturday bringing his daughter here to have some dental work done. Mr. Brownell has had three cases of infantile paralysis in his family this summer his home being under quarantine for over three weeks. Three of his sons had the dread disease, one of them sixteen years old dying from it. The other two are slowly recovering but one of them has spells so that he falls down and cannot get up alone until he crawls up to something and then pulls himself up, and the other one is very weak. The son who died, Mr. Brownell thinks, would have been left a cripple had he lived. Mr. Brownell has the sympathy of the people in his sad trouble.

Mr. F. L. Sloop:

Dear Friend—We are having a nice and pleasant time out here. Every thing looks fine. Crops are good, corn is fine, pastures are fine. They are going to fill the sites next week. That is a great thing in this country. Some farmers have two of them. They are 14 ft on the inside and 30 feet high. That holds a lot of feed. Dairying is the main hold here. They have a big farmers' creamery in Salem. It cost $24,000 but they make the money now. That creamery is a bonanza to the farmer. They also have a big farmers' store that they bought for $12,000. They are doing a good business. I can't see how they make the money—they have only small farms, unless they make it out of the cream. They all have big houses but after all I would not like to farm here, too many hills to suit me. Best regards.

H. W. Lessman.

Winer Chronicle: A telegram was received the first of the week informing Mrs. Henry Perine of the death of her brother, E. P. Savage, at Boise, Ida. The funeral took place Tuesday. . . . W. F. Assenheimer was down from Altona Monday and made a business call at this office. He had just sold his farm of eighty acres northwest of Altona to Walter A. Peterson of Stanton county for $125 per acre. William is thinking of giving up farming and devoting his entire attention to the real estate business, at which he has always been successful.

To pick out your fall suit, just look in the inside coat pocket for the label. If it's a KUPPENHEIMER Label you can be sure of you're getting good clothes; if it's not you'd better investigate most carefully before you buy and find out if the clothes are made in a "good clothes" way. There's a big difference in clothes. Young men's clothes must be made in a young man's way. Old men's clothes will not answer their purpose. Here's a store that carries clothes especially tailored for all classes; all ages. If you're young we fit you with clothes tailored to fit young men. We carry the stock and are in a position to do it. Everybody recognizes the high standard of KUPPENHEIMER Clothes. The name KUPPENHEIMER has come to mean "clothes quality." They're the clothes that are worn by all the people who understand where they can place their clothes money to the best advantage. They have all the qualities--good fit, good shape, good all-wool fabrics, good tailoring--there is not a single respect in which they can be or are excelled. We want to see you this fall before you buy your clothes. It won't hurt to look and it's proved a big advantage to many. You'll miss a rare treat if you fail to inspect our fall styles; they're clothes that we are proud to show, and that you'll be glad to see. They're coming in now, new ones every few days. Come in any time. We always pleased to show. Remember the Label.

School Notes

Several pupils have been enrolled in the grades within the last week.
On Thursday morning of last week Rev. Corkey of the Presbyterian church made a very interesting twenty minute address to our high school. The Rev. took for his theme, "Ireland," and very interestingly told about the people and products of the "Emerald Isle."
Mrs. Pile never fails to do her part toward helping the public schools. She recently presented to our schools a beautiful oleander and a number of beautiful pictures, among them a good portrait of the illustrious "Teddy" Roosevelt. We all feel grateful to Mrs. Pile for these gifts.
Our high school boys are taking a daily work-out at foot ball practice and from the present outlook we will have a winning team. Arrangements are being made for our team to play a number of the neighboring high school teams.
On Wednesday morning Prof. Britell of the state normal addressed our high school. Prof. Britell was principal of the Columbus, Nebr., high school for nineteen years, and is assured that a man of so broad an experience in high school work always has something helpful and interesting for students. Mr. Britell very forcefully impressed upon the students the purpose of acquiring knowledge--that it is a growth, a soul development, fitting the person to live more completely and in harmony with his environment.

We need an assistant kindergarten teacher. There is no salary in connection with this position, but anyone who is thinking of becoming a kindergarten director can well afford to serve in this position for a year without pay. In the kindergarten training schools the students are required to serve as assistants, a year or more without pay, and service here as assistant will be accepted and credit given for by these training schools. Anyone thinking of pursuing such a course may apply to our Board of Education or the Supt. of Schools.
Among the visitors of the week were the Misses Neely, Gamble, Vernerberg, Blair, Mellor and Chace, and Messrs. Forbes, Nichols, Brittain and House.

Proper Treatment for Snake-Bites and Poisonous Insects.

From Collier's.

Few of us have gone through a summer's season, especially if we love the woods and fields, without remembrance of those stings and bites of insects—and with those who are not so fortunate, places there is always the dread of snakes. A little knowledge along these lines is a very good thing, but we seldom go to such the end of it. It should be understood that the bite of a snake or sting of an insect can be quickly stopped by the simplest of remedies, and that the danger from poisonous insects is not so great as is commonly supposed. The bite of a snake is very slight, and insects have several ways of making themselves unpleasant. The bees, wasps and hornets sting by means of a stinging apparatus, the connective with a poison gland and situated at the end of the body. Of the stinging insects the wasps and the hornets cause the greatest inflammation, the most intense being that of the connective with a poison gland and situated at the end of the body. The Father of Savings Banks

From the Indianapolis News.

Among the many centenary celebrations recently held was one at Edinburgh, in connection with the founding of savings banks. The "father of savings banks" was a Dr. Duncan, of Edinburgh, a clergyman of the Scottish church. He was an eminent man, who poor laws, holding that such laws had the effect of degrading and pauperizing the people. With much the same ideas concerning economy and thrift, he set on foot a savings bank, the first of its kind in the world. It was the original of the good ones that have since been tried in England, but not with marked success, and he was the first to put the idea on a practical basis. The doctor's savings bank was

BETTER WAGE MEANS BETTER ARBITRATORS

President of National Thinks Salary Is Only Solution of Umpire Problem.

Chicago, Special: Numerous and well-founded complaints against the umpiring in the National League this season have set the wheels of reform revolving. Thomas J. Lynch, president of the league, and once an umpire, has formed several interesting conclusions during his few months as league executive and his personal observation in different cities. At the fall meeting of the National League he will present his remedy, which is as simple as the old mixture of sulphur and molasses that our mothers used to serve as a blood purifier in the spring.

Lynch doesn't believe that baseball can be conducted along lines marked out by rigid business rules, but his recommendation for reform from bad umpiring is certainly in line with what every business man believes that increasing salaries will increase the efficiency of his arbitrators, and that is what he proposed to urge.

Always Close Decisions.

Baseball is surrounded with many upitting tendencies, but the judging of close decisions is certainly one of the National League, and decisions are being rendered every day that tend to develop rowdy tactics and to unduly excite the low brows. Like the poor, the close decision will always be with us, but the organization of a staff of umpires who are quick thinkers and know how to anticipate plays will bring the close decision in line with the close decision of the million-dollar parks and the exclusion of intoxicating drinks.

There can be no reasonable objection to the club owners' paying the umpires an additional expense. Four umpires with proper material and umpiring equipment would be equal to eight ordinary arbitrators and their expenses would be reduced. The National League could easily afford to pay these men $5,000 a season. Star players often get more, and good umpires are sure to get more.

With the building of new ball parks and the increased revenue, the percentage of gate money paid to the league is more than enough to cover the expense of the umpires. The admission money at each game provides a fund that pays the salary of the league officials and umpires and all league expenses. And at frequent intervals the surplus is handed back to the eight clubs.

Brains Only Count.

Lynch believes that high salaries will attract a higher class of men to umpiring. The day has passed when a major league judge of play was a first class man of the first class ability to light and good judge of play afterward. The umpire area will guard in the big cities.

Ball players with reputations as quick thinkers are generally some of the game a long time. You often find them travel along the "boards" instead of their arms, and it stands to reason that a smart ball player will last longer than a dull ball player.

Such ball players usually manage to drag down good salaries for many seasons. And the quick thinkers in this day extend their thoughts into the future, and they are not content with their present position. They are not content with their present position. They are not content with their present position.

Players Best Arbiters.

Manager McGraw, of the Giants, agrees with President Lynch on this proposition, and generally some convincing arguments to the umpire "upfit." "I believe in making umpires out of ball players," says McGraw, "because a man who has never had experience of the game and who has never been a judge of play. Former pitchers or catchers ought to be the best judges of balls and strikes, and men who have played the infield would be the best to judge the base umpire's decisions."

"But there are many players who never would make umpires," added McGraw; "we have seen that demonstrated many times. However, I believe that a smart ball player will make a good umpire. He will anticipate many plays and be in the right place to judge them. I understand Bill Dineen is making good in the game, and I think a ball player could afford to hire men like Matthews and Brown when their pitching days are over. I'll warrant they would be just as successful as the umpires who are now in the game. They are men who use their brains."

Seven Million Dollar Joy Ride.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Seven million dollars on a joy ride through the streets of Washington is a sight to be seen every week day at the national capital.

And this money stands less chance of getting hurt through the careless driving of the wagon it rides in or from outside forces than it would in any other city in the country.

For the treasury has a new money wagon, a brand new vehicle, made of hard wood, and fitted with heavy locks and bars, to bring money from the bureau of engraving and printing where it is made, to the vaults of the treasury, where it is stored for safe keeping.

Not Safe.

From Human Life.

"The negro," on occasions, displays a fine discrimination in the choice of words.

"Who's the best white-washer in town?" Inquired the new resident.

"Ale Hall am a good 'tist with a white wash brush," answered the colored bartender, glancing at the newcomer.

"Well, tell me to come and white-wash my chicken house tomorrow," Uncle Jacob shook his head dubiously.

"Ale Hall don't believe sah. Ah! engage Ale Hall to white-wash a chicken house."

"Why, didn't you say he was a good white-washer?"

"Yas, sah, a powerful good white-washer, sah; but mighty queer about a chicken house, sah, mighty queer!"

Both True.

From the Boston Herald.

A minister, having walked through a village churchyard and observed the indiscriminate praises bestowed upon the departed, wrote the following epigram: "Here lie the dead, and here the living lie."

The Boston street railways, after investigation, decided that the hearing of locomotive engineers is affected by vibrations of the engine communicated from the floor, which the men stand. To prevent this, "count mats" are to be provided for the engineers and firemen.

ALLIGATOR JOE TELLS OF SAURIAN SINGERS

Expert Handler of Reptiles Relates Some of His Observations.

From Leslie's Weekly.

There are more things to be learned about alligators than one would think when gazing upon a horny backed, shovel-nosed reptile, lying listless on the bank of a swampy river. They are quite interesting creatures when all their qualities are known, but because of their unsociable nature it takes considerable time to become acquainted with one. For instance, nearly every American has at one time or another seen an alligator in a park zoo or a traveling menagerie; yet it is safe to wager that not many of them have seen a thousand, even among the keepers of the zoo and the showmen who are with their charges constantly, knows that an alligator can sing. After an intimate acquaintance with many thousands, even among the keepers of the zoo and the showmen who are with their charges constantly, knows that an alligator can sing.

A Best-Seller of the Fifties.

From Scribner's.

Best-sellers there were, and ever have been. In the 1850s, a certain young man named Mitchell was writing them. His books were read by old and young; they sold like hot cakes, as we say; like bread as the more sober idiom would have it. He himself did not; sometimes they read them to our mothers. "The Reveries of a Father" reads those books, if we are not mistaken, is still read today; but my copy of it is long since sold. It was a school-boy's "Vell," the bravery of its gilding is tarnished; yet how crisp were the pages 60 years ago! "The Reveries" came into the world with a pseudonym; the author's name, H. H. Windsor, was the pseudonym. It was written by a young man, a bachelor no longer, though still an amateur, but yesterday, H. H. Windsor had survived his literary generation, and even in his hey-day an old-world flavor was in his writing. The most interesting part was one that knew the Spectator past and had smoked his pipe over Sterne and Goldsmith. It is hard to see how he was the worse off for it or his readers.

I treasure my copy of "The Reveries," though I picked it up for a song at a stall where none but the maimed of the book world did their way. It is a shabby old book, and its two engravings have faded, but as I turn the pages that I adore. But, as I turn the pages that I adore. But, as I turn the pages that I adore. But, as I turn the pages that I adore.

Laws to Prevent Wrecks.

Spreading of the railroad disaster in which nearly 50 persons were killed under circumstances unusually horrifying. H. H. Windsor, in the Popular Mechanics, says: "The making up of a train as it was assembled. Two locomotives ahead, representing probably nearly 200 tons of metal; the usual mail and baggage cars, and the passenger cars. The force of the oncoming sleeping car, the force of the oncoming sleeping car, the force of the oncoming sleeping car.

Diplomatic Gossip.

From the Washington Star.

An English diplomat at a dinner in Lenox said of Mrs. Langtry: "When she was at the summit of her beauty and her fame—when crowds of admirers followed her to the Row—she met at a semi-private dinner an African king."

"Mrs. Langtry, dazzling in her beauty, sat beside the king. She was dressed in the most beautiful and very best to please and amuse him. And she must have succeeded, for at the dinner's close he heaved a deep sigh and said to her: "Ah, I have had only made you black and fat you would be irresistible."

Rough on Steve.

Steve was very badly in love, and had sat up till the wee sma' hours composing the following lines: "Beautiful one, with eyes so blue, Oh! my fond heart sings for you!"

Sweet spirit, listen to me now, Hear once again my ardent vow. He turned out about three yards of this soul-inspiring love-statement, and the object of his admiration, with a request that she would express an opinion on its merits. This is what he received: "Dear Steve—I do not like to hurt your feelings, but if you will read the initial letters of your first four lines downward I may say that they express my sentiments exactly."

No Wonder.

The ancients thought the world was flat; I'm really a good deal wiser than they. We'd find it flat, I dare to say, if we were living in their day. No show girls to delight the men. No pipes to smoke and no cigars. No cocktails served at handsome bars. No bridges to cross and no boats. No yellow journals and no flats. No new growing and no hats. No tariff problem to attack. No new growing and no hats. No new growing and no hats. No new growing and no hats.

Domestic exports in 1909 were: Corn, $24,299,000; wheat, $48,978,000; cotton, $162,377,000; oil, $99,749,000.

Centennial of the "Lady of the Lake"

From the New York World.

This year, 1910, is the centennial of Sir Walter Scott's third great poem, "The Lady of the Lake," which is still widely read. "Today all Scotland rises up and calls its author blessed, for the many Scott calculated that during each century tourists should see at least $1,000,000 in seeing the spots made historical by the great master of the English language.

The Lord of Abbotsford did not lose by the poem either. He would not sell his rights for a mess of pottage, as did John Milton with his "Paradise Lost," or Goldsmith for some of his classics. He received more in the copyright, and received more in after life.

None of Scott's former works was ever looked for with half the anxiety as was the case with "The Lady of the Lake." The cantos, as they were sent to the press, were read to select circles by James Ballantyne, and popular opinion greatly favored them. Everywhere it was anticipated that a great poem would appear, and when it was published, it was read to select circles by James Ballantyne, and popular opinion greatly favored them.

That is Why Farms Are Worth Five Times as Much as Those in East.

From New York Times.

If the Times really wants to know why it is that western land—in Iowa, Illinois—pleas for $100 to $200 an acre, while plenty of farms can be bought in New York for $10 to $20 an acre, let it pay attention. The secret is about to be released. And let me say at the outset that with considerable familiarity with both west and east, I do much prefer to buy eastern to western lands.

One point in favor of the western farm is that, whereas a western farm, properly handled, will raise crops which pay for the cost of the investment without fertilizer, a great many acres of land in the $10 and $20 belt are merely something to put productive soil on top of. The French method of carting the land away when one moves westward is the best illustration of this. Several cheap New York farms.

English in London.

Senator Dewey, on the deck of the Lusitania, talked about "English, as she is spoken in London."

"It is very difficult to understand that London English," he said. "I know a man who had lodgings all July in Bloomsbury, near the British museum."

"On his return from the museum one afternoon, my friend said to his landlady: "Can I have a cup of tea, if you please?"

"Certainly, sir; at once," the landlady replied. "The kettle 'as been b'llin' for 'ours."

"But—or—I prefer freshly boiled water, if you don't mind," stammered my friend.

"The landlady reddened with anger. "Look 'ere," she said, "if 'ad meant wot you mean I'd 'ave said 'hours."

Unfair.

Senator John H. Bankhead, discussing a political move, said with a smile: "Oh, it's too coldly calculated. It's almost unfair. In fact, it's like Mrs. Blank."

"Mrs. Blank is a leader of Bar Harbor society. Her husband said to her, one afternoon, as she made a very elaborate toilet for a garden party that she was giving to some members of the British legation: "Why did you write to all our guests that this party was to be absolutely informal?"

"Mrs. Blank laughed. "So as to be the best-dressed woman present, of course," she said."

The Enemies.

Approps of the enemy, now happily buried, that used to exist between Minneapolis and St. Paul. Senator Clapp said at a dinner in the former city: "I remember an address on careless building that I once heard in Minneapolis. "Why," said the speaker in the course of this address, one inhabitant of St. Paul is killed by accident in the streets every 43 hours."

"A bitter voice from the rear of the hall interrupted. "Well, it ain't enough," it said."

PRESSED HARD.

Coffee's Weight on Old Age.

When prominent men realize the injurious effects of coffee and the change in health that Postum can bring, they are glad to lend their testimony for the benefit of others.

A superintendent of public schools in a Southern state says: "My mother, since her early childhood, was an inveterate coffee drinker, had been troubled with her heart for a number of years and complained of that 'weak all over' feeling and sick stomach. "Some time ago I was making an official visit to a distant part of the country and took dinner with one of the merchants of the place. I noticed a somewhat peculiar flavor of the coffee, and asked him concerning it. He replied that it was Postum. I was so pleased with it that, after the meal was over, I bought a package to carry home with me, and had wife prepare some for the next meal. The whole family liked it so well that we discontinued coffee and used Postum entirely. "I had really been at times very anxious concerning my mother's condition, but we noticed that after using Postum for a short time, she felt so much better than she did prior to its use, and had little trouble with her heart and no sick stomach, that the headaches were not so frequent, and her general condition much improved. This continued until she was as well and hearty as the rest of us. "I know Postum has benefited myself and the other members of the family, but in a more marked degree in the case of my mother, as she was a victim of long standing. "I've read the above letter. A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of testimony."

From the Argonaut.

"Pedro, I owe about three thousand francs," said a Parisian grocer to his shopman.

"I have two thousand francs in the safe, but the shop is empty; I think it is the right moment to fail."

"That is just what I want," said the grocer. "You have plenty of brains; think the matter over tonight and tomorrow morning."

The clerk promised to think it carefully over. On the next morning, next morning the grocer found the safe open, the money gone, and in place a note which ran as follows: "I have failed. I owe you three thousand francs and am off to America. It is the best excuse you can give to your creditors."

A Successful Quest.

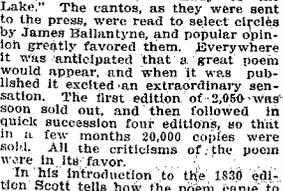

From Daily Commerce and Trade Reports.

Recently cultivated alluvial lands in southern France are worth $550 to $800 an acre, especially in the Valley of Basse-Durance, where fruit and grain are raised. The following is the statement of an agricultural authority quoted by Consul General A. Gaultin, of Marseilles. On the hillsides of Rouvres, where many arid trees are planted among other vegetation, the value of the land does not exceed $50 to $240 an acre. This range of $50 to $800 represents the limit of variation in the value of lands on which there is a large amount of water. It says that vineyards in southern France are worth $240 to $200 and flower and vegetable lands $400 to $800 an acre.

NOT THE TIME FOR THAT

Scotsmen Objected to Mixture of Good Whisky and Religious Conversation.

Owen Seaman, editor of Punch, was the principal guest at a dinner of the London Authors' club recently, which was followed by a discussion on "Honor." Mr. Seaman began with a story deprecating the spoiling of a good dinner by any discussion at all.

There were three characters in the story—a bluetite and two Scotsmen. The story at once struck a note of probability by showing the Scotsmen drinking whisky. The bluetite buzzed on the pane; otherwise silence reigned.

This was broken by one of the Scotsmen trying to locate the bluetite with zoological exactitude. Said the Scotsman:

"Sandy, I'm thinking if you fly is a bird or a beastie."

The other replied: "Man, don't spoil good whisky with religious conversation."

Shrewd Scheme Stopped Run.

Many years ago, in consequence of a commercial panic, there was a severe run on a bank in South Wales, and the small farmers jostled each other in crowds to draw out their money. Things were rapidly going from bad to worse, when the bank manager, in a fit of desperation, suddenly brought him of an expedient. By his directions a clerk, having heaped some sovereigns in a frying-pan, paid them over the counter to an anxious applicant. "Why, they're quite hot!" said the latter as he took them up. "Of course," was the reply; "what else could you expect? They are only just out of the mold. We are coming them by hundreds as fast as we can."

"Coming them?" thought the simple agriculturist; "then there is no fear of the money running short!" With this his confidence revived, the panic abated, and the bank was enabled to weather the storm.

"The Wish is Father to the Thought."

"And one of the most remarkable changes in the last 30 years of teaching is the abolition of corporal punishment. A boy of this generation is never whipped. But a boy of the last generation—well!"

Doctor Waggoner smiled.

"The boys of the last generation," he said, "must have believed that their instructors all had for motto: 'The swish is father to the thought.'"

"I sprang to one side where an angle of the wall shielded me from the bullets and paused to look about me. The air was thick with smoke, and not until I drew quite near could I perceive Padeloup's squat figure. He was standing at the head of the stairs, a little to one side, his huge club raised in his hands. At that instant a shaggy head appeared and the club fell upon it, crushing it like a shell of glass. The body pitched forward, and again Padeloup raised his club and walloped like the very god of death.

As I silently took my place beside him, I perceived that the sounds from below were not only of rage and triumph; there were groans among them and oaths and screams of agony, and as the smoke lifted for an instant I saw that the stair was cumbered with bodies.

A sort of panic seized upon the mob as it discovered its own losses, and for a moment I drew back in terror before a mysterious and fearful force, which slew and slew, silent, untrifling. A sudden stillness fell upon them as they contemplated that bloody scene—a stillness broken only by those groans and curses which the crowd shouted a sharp command and a cloud of black smoke puffed into our faces and the odor of burning straw.

As I touched him on the arm, Padeloup, whose attention had been wholly concentrated on the stair, wheeled upon me, his club ready to strike.

"Come!" I shouted in his ear. "Come!" and I motioned to the stair behind us.

"M. le Comte," he demanded, "where is he safe?" I answered, "So are the women! Save yours!"

He glanced again at the stair and sniffed the air with distended nostrils.

"They are going to burn us out," he said, and even as he spoke, a tongue of yellow flame licked the bottom of the stair.

Then the wounded wretches stretched upon the floor, their shrieks redoubled, but now there were prayers mingled with the curses. My heart turned sick within me as I looked at the scene.

"Come!" I urged, and plucked at my companion's sleeve.

This time he nodded, and I ran up the stair. He followed at my heels.

"Here we are!" he said, and paused at the open window.

He motioned me to precede him. I sprang to the sill, seized the cord and slid to the ground so rapidly that I did not touch the floor. My feet felt the pavement. In a moment, Padeloup stood beside me.

"This way," he said, and without an instant's hesitation, led the way to a door at the end of the passage. We plunged into it without stopping to look back and pushed our way forward until we came to a little embankment of trees. Here we paused to take breath.

The dawn was just tinging the eastern sky, but across the cold, gray light, there burst suddenly a mighty finger of flame. It was the tower blazing like a torch. The smoke and the sound of the falling of stones, that I thought of the fate of the wretches who had perished there.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Tragedy.

Padeloup did not so much as glance at the blazing tower. He was gazing at the woods about us, scanning each thicket with eyes of preternatural brightness. It was still too dark for me to discern anything at all in the smudge of shadow beneath the trees, but my companion seemed to labor under no such disability. "Now, of course," that he was searching for some trace of his master.

"He said that he would wait for us at the edge of the wood," I told him, "straight westward from the tower."

"We came that way," said Padeloup, gruffly. "It was there I thought to find him, but he was not here. I will go back again. Wait here for me."

In an instant he had disappeared beneath the trees so quietly that I did not hear so much as the rustle of a leaf. He melted into the forest; became a part of the woods.

I turned back to the tower and watched the flames as they leaped high in the heavens, as though striving to touch the stars, which faded and paled before the growing light.

Dawn was at hand, and I realized the folly of lingering there. That rope hanging from the window must have discovered—perhaps had been discovered long ago by the patrol, of course, would follow instantly. And my heart suddenly chilled at the thought that perhaps M. le Comte and the women had walked straight into a trap laid for them.

The thought brought me to my feet, and I looked to right and left with an overpowering feeling of helplessness. At the first step I would be lost. And yet I could not stand idle.

A sudden vivid sense of companionship caused me to start around. It was Padeloup who had returned as noisily as he had gone.

"You found them?" I asked.

He shook his head and sank to a sitting posture, his brows knitted, his eyes staring as if before him.

I hurried to ask the direction of his search, the details of it, but something in his attitude warned me to hold my tongue. Then suddenly his face cleared and he sprang to his feet.

"Come," he said, and set off down the hill at a pace which I found it no small task to equal.

Once among the trees the going was still more difficult. How my companion got ahead so swiftly and easily, I could not understand. As for myself, I floundered through the underbrush and over the uneven ground as best I could, but the best was bad enough, and more than once I fancied that Padeloup had abandoned me to my own resources, but always I found him patiently awaiting me. He seemed to have some well-defined objective point in view, for he went straight forward without looking to right or left. We came at the end of a few moments, to a gentle valley, fenced with trees, and up this he turned almost at a run. At last I panted after him up a little hill and found him calmly sitting at the top.

I hung myself beside him, breathless, utterly exhausted.

"Do not wait for me," I said, as soon as I could speak. "You must find them by some means more than I. I will shift for myself."

"We stop here," he answered, gruffly. "They must pass this way."

At last I was able to sit up and look about me. The hill on which we were stood at the junction of two little valleys.

"They must come by one of those," continued Padeloup. "We will wait until they pass."

"But why did they not wait for us in the wood?" I questioned. "Perhaps M. le Comte gave me up when I did not follow him."

"No," said Padeloup. "They waited; but they were discovered and forced to flee."

"Discovered?" I repeated, despairingly.

"At least a body of peasants passed over the spot where they had stopped. They may not have been seen."

I breathed again.

"And they will pass this way?"

CHAPTER XVII.

I Take a Vow.

For an instant, I was so shaken by that dead weight on my arm, by that white drawn face turned blindly up to mine, that my heart stopped in my bosom. Then I shook the horror off.

"She is not dead," she cannot be dead; it is nothing; it will pass in a moment," and gripping my teeth together in a very agony of effort, I lifted her in my arms, and set off up the hillside toward the ledge which Padeloup had pointed out.

How I reached it I know not, for long ere I had covered half the distance, the voice was roaring and before me and the blood pulsing like a hammer in my brain. But reach it I did, after what seemed an eternity, and, pushing aside that certain of vines, I saw before me the dark entrance to the cavern, framed by the solid rock. I stooped and entered, then laid my burden gently on the hard, dry floor and hung myself, well-nigh senseless, beside her.

Padeloup. "Come, we are losing time. The women cannot go much farther along such a road as this," his master warned him.

"We have not far to go—just around that turn, yonder, and we are safe."

Suddenly behind us rose a chorus of savage yells.

"I drew my companion to the side and half carried her up the steep slope over which, in rainy weather, the torrent plunged. Padeloup had already reached the top. As I looked back, I saw a mob of men clambering savagely over the rocks below. At that moment, M. le Comte panted up, with Madame in his arms.

"There, he said, with a smile of triumph, as he placed her on her feet, 'That is accomplished. They will never dare—'

A single musket shot rang out; I saw the smoke drift slowly up—and at the same instant, Madame staggered and fell into her husband's outstretched arms.

"What is it?" he cried. "Oh, my love, my love!"

Her eyes were open and she was gazing fondly at him. She tried to speak, but could not. Her lips were decked with blood. Then her eyes closed, and she fell lifeless.

It had happened so suddenly that I could scarcely realize it—could scarcely believe it.

"Come," said Padeloup again, and touched his master's arm.

M. le Comte lifted to us a face convulsed.

"Go!" he said hoarsely. "Padeloup, I charge you with these two. Save them! I can hold this mob back."

Padeloup looked down at them. They were very near, and climbing steadily upward. With a start, the most superhuman, he caught up a huge boulder and sent it bounding toward them down the slope. They saw it coming, and scattered, then when a second followed it, fled wildly.

Their advance had been checked for the moment.

Padeloup turned back to his master.

"Come," he said, "I have not time to tell you the details of what has happened. M. le Comte laid his wife's body gently down and stood erect.

"I tell you I die here," he said, in a great calmness in his eyes. "Will you obey me, will you not? I command you to guide these two to the hiding place you spoke of."

For an instant, Padeloup's eyes blazed defiance, then he glanced down at the enemy, and he turned and set off up the stream.

"Follow him, Tavernay," commanded M. le Comte, "and if he hesitates, if he would not save my life, if I could—it is worthless to me. I commend Charlotte to you. Go straight west to the Bocage—there you will find friends. God bless you."

"I cannot go," I faltered. "I cannot leave you here! That would be too cowardly!"

"You are right," he echoed, facing around me. "It is not to you I choose the coward's part. To you I give a duty far more difficult. Ah, here they come," he added, and he raised his pistol. "I beg of you, to brave our fate to go!"

I could do nothing but obey—no other path lay open. With sinking heart, I passed my arm again about the waist of my companion, who seemed only half-conscious, who was happening, and followed Padeloup, who was awaiting us impatiently at a little distance.

"Do not look back," he said, and he turned from the bed of the torrent up the steep hillside. I paused for one backward glance at the friend I had abandoned; he was standing erect, his arms outstretched, his eyes blinded me, and I hastened on.

In a moment, Padeloup stopped.

"Do you see that ledge of rock up yonder overgrown with vines? The vine is on the left side, and you will find behind them a very comfortable cavern. Enter it and you are safe."

"And you?" I asked, seeing that he turned away.

"I? Oh! I return to my master!" and he was off in an instant.

I looked after him, touched anew by that dog-like figure, and he disappeared from my sight down the torrent. In the distance I heard a rattle of muskets; they were attacking them, then, and I plucked to myself that gallant figure, and, following, his eyes gleaming a smile upon his lips. Ah! if I were only there beside him!

Then, suddenly, I became conscious of dead weight on my arm, and glanced down to see that Charlotte was lying there unconscious.

Red Cross Christmas Seals.

Arrangements for the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals for 1910 have been announced by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis and the American Red Cross. "A Million for Tuberculosis" will be the slogan of the 1910 campaign. Two features of the sale this year are unique and will bring considerable capital to the tuberculosis fighters. The American National Red Cross is to issue the stamps as in former years, but this organization will work in close co-operation with the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which body will share in the proceeds of the sales. The charge to local associations has been reduced also from 20 per cent to 12 1/2 per cent, which will mean at least $50,000 more for tuberculosis work in all parts of the United States. The stamps are to be designated as "Red Cross Seals" this year and are to be placed on the back of letter instead of on the front.

TINY BABY'S PITIFUL CASE

"Our baby when two months old was suffering with terrible eczema from head to foot, all over her body. The baby looked just like a skinned rabbit. We were unable to put clothes on her. At first it seemed to be a few matted pimples. They would break the skin and peel off leaving the underneath skin red as though it were scalded. Then a few more pimples would appear and spread all over the body, leaving the baby all raw without skin from head to foot. On top of her head there appeared a heavy scab a quarter of an inch thick. It was awful to see so small a baby look as she did. Imagine! The doctor was afraid to put his hands to the child. We tried several doctors' remedies but all failed.

"Then we decided to try Cuticura. By using the Cuticura Ointment we softened the scab and it came off. Under this, where the real matter was, by washing with the Cuticura Soap and applying the Cuticura Ointment, a new skin soon appeared. We also gave baby four drops of the Cuticura Resolvent three times daily. After three days you could see the baby gaining a little skin which would peel off and heal underneath. Now the baby is four months old. She is a fine picture of a fat little baby and all is well. We only used one cake of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. If people would know what Cuticura is there would be few suffering with eczema. Mrs. Joseph Kossmann, 7 St. John's Place, Ridgewood Heights, N. Y., Apr. 30 and May 4, '08."

A Poor Roof Is a Needless Expense

You don't need to spend money for painting or patching your roof, or to have it regreaved; neither will you have to replace it after a heavy wind storm, if you use

Galva-nite Roofing

Galva-nite is coated on both sides with flaked Mica, a mineral that never wears out. This coating protects the heavy wool felt base and its three coats of mineral asphalt. Gravel or crushed stone in a roofing allows the weather to dry the oils out and it soon rots. Mica retains these oils and defies the weather.

A complete roof is the result if you use Galva-nite. It cements and welds together.

A bunch of Carroll ball fans came down to root for Stanton Monday, and they went home happy, even Jim Shannon drawing interest on the deposits he made with the Wayne players.

Wayne well deserved to lose the ball game last Monday if only because of the abuse given some Stanton players. Funny remarks and lots of hot air is all right but personal remarks as to a man's appearance never come from a gentleman even in the heat of an argument. The ball management should put a rigid quietus on such ribald ugliness from Wayne's rabble.

Dr. H. G. Leisenring was plaintiff and Ed. McManigall defendant in a law suit tried before Judge Britton and a jury last Saturday, the doctor suing to collect and old account contracted when he gave defendant's family medical attention several years ago, before the latter moved to South Dakota. A letter from Robert H. Jones to the Democrat from Weiser, Idaho, says they are well and prosperous and in the midst of a big apple harvest.

D. A. Jones has had his head bandaged up the past week, but not because of "the other fellow." It was the removal of a foreign growth by Dr. Williams that made the soreness. Doc says he refused to take chloroform for the job, but that Dr. Williams had something better than a sleep dope to give him so that he could stand the pain. Half a dozen other fellows are now talking about hiring Dr. Williams to remove their lumps.

A team, owned by L. L. Way and driven by Al-Dragon came dashing down Main street Monday just after dinner. Although Dragon was assisted by Mr. Graves, in the wagon, they were unable to check the big, speedy horses. Opposite Ahern's store, Mr. Holland, a popular traveling man, ran out in the street and grabbed one horse by the bit and hanging on for a half black, succeeded in stopping the steeds. It was a risky job for Holland, and he must have had an idea there was an hearse aboard the vehicle instead of a Dragon.

Wayne lost a good game of ball to Stanton last Monday. The Stanton team agreed to play their regular team, both nines to be same men as played last game at Stanton. Instead of doing so the Stanton team was reinforced by one man from Carroll, one from Norfolk and a third from Pilger. In the 2nd inning Stanton scored one man by their umpire calling a safe on 2nd base, when he was clearly out. They got another score in the 8th and Wayne one in the ninth, a home run by Landers with nobody on bases and nobody out, making it 2 to 1. Hartman pitched an excellent game, while Albert Sabs was just medium and only fanned out a couple of batters in the entire game. What made the local's feel sore was that Sabs had a chance to score, being on 3rd base, but between the yells to "stay there," and "come home," and bum coaching by Moran, he froze to the base. Anyway it was a good game, only the visitors outplayed us at the bat, and were especially strong on umpiring.
