Mr. Duerig has only recently returned from a several weeks visit in the San Luis Valley, Colo., which he says looks better to him than any other proposition in the west.

Readers of the Omaha Bee may expect that paper to manufacture any falsehoods between now and election, in its frantic efforts to defeat Gilbert M. Hitchcock. You see there is no hope for this man Rosewater to "become Senator Brown's successor" if Hitchcock is elected this year. Then it's an old newspaper fight between Hitchcock and Rosewater, and just now the Bee buzzard has valuable assistance from Edgar Howard of Columbus and the ex-convict Bartley, Howard's pal.

THIS AUTO BEEN LONGER AGO

(From the Democrat of Mar. 25, 1904)

"INDIGNATION RUNS RIOT"

"A great crowd of farmers and others gathered at the court house last Saturday afternoon to kick to a general disturbance over Dr. Leisinger's automobile. W. H. Gildersleeve called the meeting to order, S. E. Auker being elected temporary chairman. The chairman read some resolutions that had been previously prepared. Upon motion the resolutions were adopted. The organization was then made permanent by electing F. M. Griffith chairman, W. H. Gildersleeve secretary and S. E. Auker treasurer. The organization was christened "The Wayne County Life Protective Association," and the meeting adjourned at call of Secretary Gildersleeve."

Some of the resolutions were as follows: "We do hereby pledge ourselves to unite and share in the necessary expense of prosecuting all persons violating the laws of the public road etc. And also pledge ourselves to aid in the expense to recover by any person damage in property or body by such use of vehicles tending to frighten horses on the public road etc."

Dr. Leisinger, through the papers, informed the members of the association what he thought of their actions, and predicted that before many years the most abusive talkers against the automobile would be driving their own motor cars."

Within the last two years many Wayne county farmers, some of them members of the defunct "Wayne County Life Protective Association" have purchased automobiles, and try to forget what happened at the court house six years ago.

(Later, Oct. 31, 1910) W. H. Gildersleeve has purchased a fine second hand motor car. May he live long to enjoy it, and never be the cause of calling a second meeting of "The Wayne County Life Protective Association" to prosecute him for frightening horses on the public roads. A Subscriber.

Refreshments were served at Whalen's and the entire company taken to the Crystal, later games keeping the little folks up until a late hour. It was "one of the best times we ever had in our life" according to evidence of the guests.

George Griffith and bride got a warm welcome in Wayne last Friday evening when they arrived home from South Dakota. The boys must have bought all the rice in town to throw at them. Mrs. Griffith will be remembered as the daughter of a former Wayne resident, Mr. Moles, who moved to Dakota two years ago.

Candidate Hitchcock said in his talk here Monday that if defeated Nov 8th for the United States senate he would not under any circumstances be a candidate before the legislature, even if that body should be every member a democrat or populist.

This is the last opportunity the Democrat will have in which to ask all loyal Wayne county voters to vote for P. H. Kohl for state senator. What we mean by loyal is all voters who can lay aside their party pride and vote for the man Wayne needs in the legislature above all others.

While Alfred Pont, the democratic editor of Stanton, is supporting the republican ticket this fall he is far more consistent than are the candidates on the county option platform. Pont has always been a rabid prohibitionist and he is justified in supporting the prohibition ticket. The only peculiar thing is how Pont expects to get prohibition by electing fellows to office who are against county option, at heart, like McLeod and Prince.

WEBER BROS.

Death of Mrs. Dornberger.

Mrs. Jake Dornberger died at her late residence in the west part of town last Friday. Her death was the result of cruel neglect and a broken heart. For weeks the poor woman had alone and unaided, and without means, tried to care for her sick family, and worn out in body and soul the woman went to her bed and simply died, because in this town of money-grabbing officials, jolly-fish board of health and fanatical christians there were none to lend her succor. It had been reported that Mrs. Dornberger had typhoid fever. Dr. Naffziger tells the Democrat that she did not, but was simply wearied unto death with the terrible demands made upon her. After her death the friends who had paid the doctor bills and funeral expenses of the little Dornberger girl a few weeks ago, passed around a subscription paper and raised sufficient funds to give the dead decent burial, the funeral being held on Saturday.

On Sunday a nurse was secured for the other members of the family and they have been getting along very much better.

Vote a Strate ticket; Simon Strate of Hoskins for commissioner.

An Afflicted Family.

Old Wayne and Winside friends of the H. M. Dodge family will be sorry to learn of their continued misfortune. The following is from the Hartington Herald: The Dodge home will have the sympathy of the entire community in the new misfortune which has befallen it. Two members of the household, the Judge and his daughter have been operated on in the past year, and a week ago Monday the wife and mother was forced to go under the surgeon's knife for cancerous conditions. The operation was a long and difficult one and it seems almost miraculous that the patient survived the ordeal. Monday night she suffered a collapse, but Tuesday she rallied and commenced to gain and at present writing she is reported on the road to recovery. Judge Dodge returned home Saturday evening but the daughter remained at her mother's bedside.

Mrs. Peter Wagener Dead.

Mrs. Peter Wagener died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Muth, last Thursday, the cause of death being ptomaine poisoning. Mrs. Wagener had been cooking at the Nies cafe for some time. Her sickness was caused by eating canned tomatoes, so the Democrat is told. Not feeling well she went to Bloomfield three weeks ago. The interment was at Bloomfield.

CHIC GIRL BANDITS HOLD UP STRANGERS

Chicago Man In Omaha Gives Up Money to Smiling Bandits on Business Street

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 1.—Two days ago Robert Mitchell, while going to his lodgings at 9 p. m., was confronted by the muzzle of a revolver and compelled to turn over his money...

Now comes Gus Bartley, a Chicago railroad man, a stranger, who reports to the police that while walking along one of the streets, just off the retail district and before 10 o'clock at night, he was held up by two women and robbed of $120 in cash.

As the women stepped upon the walk, they met Bartley face to face. Smith, who was standing in front of a Manitoba breeze, one of them commanded.

"Hands up," as from the pocket of her dress she drew a revolver and leveled it on Mitchell.

Without waiting for a second order Mitchell's hands went up and remained there. The gun was still held on him by one of the female bandits, while the other went through his pockets and secured his cash.

After the robbery, still smiling, the woman who did the robbing told Mitchell the "right face and walk," which she did.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 1.—According to a telegram received in Lincoln this morning from R. L. Harris of Choctaw, Miss., Grace Ralph, daughter of Dr. Ralph, formerly of Pender, Neb., was kidnaped from the Harris ranch at Choctaw by a Mexican named Segundo.

As soon as it was found that he had kidnaped the girl, R. L. Harris telegraphed the news briefly to his father in Lincoln, asking that he see the federal authorities here to determine whether any action should be taken in the United States government.

The effort to secure the return of the girl, Mr. Harris presented the case to some of the federal officers here this morning, who advised him to wire the attorney general in Lincoln to see whether steps could be taken to get the American consulate in Mexico to take up the case.

Skim Milk or Cream? Which?

THE CREAM of this fall's products are represented in the ready made garments for Fall and Winter that we are now showing and selling so many of. You will do yourself, as well as us, a favor by seeing these garments and comparing them for Correct Style, Materials and Workmanship with anything shown this season. We know that this stock of Misses' and Children's Coats and Women's Suits, Skirts and Coats, if thoroughly investigated, will be appreciated by the most discriminating buyers.

New Fall Suits $15 to $25
New Fall Coats $12.50 to $25
New Fall Skirts $6.00 to $12.50

THE SKIM MILK of our stock is represented by those garments which we were so unfortunate as to have to carry over from last spring and fall. We know, too, that, like skim milk, they will have to be almost given away. In a great many instances these garments have all the general appearance of this season's productions but it is not our policy to carry merchandise over from season to season. It is certain that these garments can be used for common wear and for keeping warm. You should see these garments and take into account the saving that they represent.

Every day over five million Bell Telephones are more closely joining together the city and the country. The farmer and his family now use the telephone constantly in calling up each other and in reaching city friends and business houses.

The value of Telephone service to the country subscriber lies in the number of people who can be reached without confusion, and the promptness with which responses are made. Bell service meets this demand.

 On Wednesday morning Dean Hahn of the State Normal, addressed our high school on "The Psychology of Thought and Action." Mr. Hahn explained very clearly that our thoughts and actions are largely determined by our environment and that as a consequence it is easy and not unusual for one to become a slave to custom or fashion rather than an individual thinker or doer. The speaker emphasized that in the same way a person in school or in society becomes a follower of the crowd or gang rather than an individual reasoner, and that it is the group personality that often leads to evil. From all this Mr. Hahn taught that group personality is a powerful factor for either good or bad and that when this personality is not for good, the individuals need to have and use good reasoning power in opposition to it, and thus make the group influence for good. Individual thinking, reasoning and doing is what needs to be taught to the American citizen.
 The Senior and Junior girls will hold a candy sale next Saturday.
 C. A. Berry on Tuesday sold the G. M. property east part of town to F. M. McIntyre of Clarkston, Neb., for $5600. Kruse paid $3500 for it a few years ago. Mr. Berry also sold the Geo. Korn 80 acres to a son-in-law of R. P. Williams at $100 per acre.

BY DAD

The bite of the tse-tse fly couldn't hurt Roosevelt, although fatal to even the negroes of South Africa. Now, what's the use of those New York politicians trying to hurt the colonel.
 Senator Burkett's description of his work in congress, "Keep 'A-Doing Things," is short two short words—"To Us."

A Wayne county farmer, a rather hard-shell republican, was telling the Democrat the other day why he was going to vote for Latta for congress, immaterial here to state. But when it came to Hitchcock for senator why that was seemingly out of the question. It is, to say the least, a peculiar situation of affairs. It is like buying a cannon to go to war with and then, instead of hiring a gunner, vote for a man to spike your gun. There are ten reasons why the intelligent citizen of Nebraska should vote for a magnificent fighter for the people's rights such as Hitchcock has proven himself to be, to the one petty, personal cause of this aforesaid republican voting for Latta. I would like to ask the farmers of Wayne county who read this column why it is that practically all the standpatters of any notoriety are men of large means, those rich individuals who pay the least taxes and who, like their Senator Burkett, believe in the poor consumer paying the freight—taxes—and that there shall be no income tax; no proportionate levy on the wealthy to pay governmental expenses. Congressman Latta is a good gun in congress alright, but what a sorry figure the old gentleman would cut if matched against a bunch of Burketts! The election of Hitchcock to the United States senate is more important for the good of the state and nation than all else in this election combined.

Sam Temple was trying to tell a bunch of loafers how ignorant Bob Mellor is, the other day. It appears Bob has been harping on the cigar man's demise, which he declares is to take place Feb. 28th, and the prophet was trying to arrange with his victim for cigars, etc., for the wake, when the latter angrily exclaimed: "Bob, do you know how ignorant you are? Why you remind me of the pooh white trash in Kentucky that the niggers wouldn't associate with. You're just like a fellow that toted in my father a load of barn, and it being pretty late, father told him to stay all night. When he came in to breakfast next morning my father addressed him with a 'good morning, sir' and the fellow said: 'why, why, I'm the fellow who brought the barn; I been here all night.'"

"Don't know whether the people are getting hungrier or it's your advertising that's doing it, but we have to run nights now," says Walter Weber of the Roller Mills.

A new business man has discovered a remarkable condition of affairs in Wayne that we old residents have not noticed because it has been growing on us gradually, like the opium habit. He says he asked Mayor Bressler what papers there were in Wayne and the mayor took him to the Herald; (which John T. largely owns) asked him where to get some lumber and was referred to the firm Mr. Bressler is a partner in; wanted to know which bank was the better and was of course sent to the First National. But the n. b. m. has not been around to buy his groceries nor his meat yet; nor has he been insured, asked for a loan, paid his water and light bills, romped in the park, been told how to vote, and last, but not least in price, bought a lot in which to be planted for infernal sleep. John T. Bressler is king of Wayne and Teddy king of the country. God save the mark! No, this is not a roset on Bressler, but kings are an awfully bad proposition in this country.

Some Wayne young men had a lot of fun Monday night and have been paying for it ever since! The most disastrous job was taking a wagon box load of beans from P. G. James' place in the north part of town, tearing the wagon apart and spilling all the beans on the road. Mr. James had no trouble in spotting the lads; some of them talked so loud one could distinguish their voices several blocks away, and the "dirty dozen" are now digging up $2.50 each for the sport. One of the "candy kids" was caught red-handed swiping refreshments from Jim Miller's kitchen, where a party was in progress, and he was dragged, in before the guests and stuffed with doughnuts. Dr. Heckert caught one of a bunch of boys who upset a small building at the rear of his house, and rather than be arrested they righted it up next day. Drayman Kopp had his wagon dumped in the creek. Board sidewalks suffered a severe shaking up. More damage was done than has occurred in the last half dozen years.

Manson Democrat: As the election approaches, the average republican paper begins to advise its readers to vote the straight republican ticket. No reason is advanced at all—simply vote it straight because you have always done so, is the advice these wiseacre newspapers dope out to their readers. They say you will feel better, you will be a better citizen and a better church member, you will have better crops and better luck all around and trot with a better crowd if you stick with the republican ticket and vote it straight. It should make no difference to you, these monitors of your ballot, declare, if a candidate on the republican ticket is a swindler, a liar, a hypocrite, a thief, a drunkard or a wife beater, you should vote for him anyway. "Yes on your ticket, you know. Even if he does not know enough to pound sand into a rat hole, or if he has been sucking the public teat for two, three, four even five years, it's up to you to vote for him because he is on your ticket. The very fact that these newspapers advise any such idiotic procedure is an indication that they have very little regard for the intelligence of their readers. The thing for you to do is to vote for men you know to be honest, capable and efficient, regardless of politics. In other words, vote for your own interests.

Democrats, see that every democratic vote in your precinct is cast on election day. See that there are no stay-at-homes.

"Now, Birdie, when you are asked at Sunday school who made you, you must answer that God did, no matter what they tell you," said a fond mamma, coaching her five-year-old daughter in her catechism.

When Birdie was asked the question three hours later, she wrinkled her brow for a minute and then replied.

"I don't remember the gentleman's name, but it wasn't my father, no matter what you tell me."

When your old pipe becomes too strong you may easily remedy it by boiling it in milk for several hours, and then giving it to your wife. The pipe, we mean; not the milk.

They tell me about a young married man and his wife who wrangled for several months as to whether they should buy an automobile runabout, a touring car or two motor cycles. They finally compromised the matter by buying a baby carriage.—Denison Bulletin.

If the poorest lot of seed corn ever used has raised the largest and best crop of corn ever known, what in thunder could we have done with all the corn we would have raised if we had used good seed? What?

Yes, there are always some blind partisans, but Kohl gets all the rest.

The last two or three weeks of the campaign is being used by the republican press to tell some of the most ridiculous lies about Burkett's work in congress that the most rabid partisan could imagine. Most of these ingenious stories tally in statement of fact—or fiction—and were evidently written by the slippery senator himself and sent out to the papers whose owners have post-office jobs or those looking for them. That Burkett's amendment reduced the tariff on barb wire from $27 to $7.50 a ton; that Burkett worked and voted for free lumber; that he favored and voted for a revision tariff on the necessities of life downward, when every statement to that effect is absolutely false as is proven by the congressional record. The whole state is being flooded with "what Burkett did in congress," but practically every statement made by the senator through a disloyal press is what he should have done, and directly the reverse of what he did. Take the only reliable authority, the congressional record, and prove to your own satisfaction what a monumental prevaricator the senator has become to win a re-election.

Democrats and republicans at Stanton have apparently entered a combination to elect Chas. McLeod state senator. Down in Stanton county the county option question remains in the background, the friends of the republican candidate putting up the argument that Mr. McLeod has always been opposed to anything of that kind, and blaming the state convention for putting in a county option plank. Away from home, in dry communities, the county option slogan is Mr. McLeod's long suit. This sort of campaign is patterned after Aldrich's plan to become governor. They want them coming and going, play both ends against the middle.

Those "Chas McLeod" supplements, run in the exchanges, are clearly contrary to the postal laws, as they bear no date nor name of the town. But then republican postmasters can be blind when necessary for the good of the grand old party.

A good story on A. Woodruff, former editor of the Herald, comes from Sioux City. Mr. Woodruff sent several columns of type to his patent house at Sioux City to be printed on the inside pages of his paper, but the man at that end of the line took it to be dead matter—republican editorials—and dumped it all in the hell-box.

The date of Dr. Crippen's necktie party has been advanced to Nov. 8. As this is election day the event will not be likely to get much room on the front page.

If Roosevelt found many abandoned farms in New York he might better be doing a little conservation work there than to be stirring up nasty political musses and working to the thirty-second degree in the Ananias club.

J. Pierp Morgan has donated $100,000 to promote the movement for church unity. There will be quick movement until that $100,000 is gobbled up.

That English court acquitted Ethel Clara Leneve about as speedily as it convicted Crippen. It is the general impression that the entire job was completed in less time than it would require to get a jury in this country.

The six leading cotton mills in Fall River, Mass., capitalized at $6,000,000, pay dividends of 25 per cent and wages averaging, in 1905, $416. Is the tariff to protect wages or dividends? asks the Sioux City Tribune.

Has anybody heard the steel trust kicking about the proposition to spend $16,000,000, in fortifying the Panama canal? Not yet.

What's the use in talking about electing another president when we already have two?

It will pay you to leave the corn field to vote for Kohl.

F. A. and C. A. Berry and the Democrat man enjoyed a cool ride last Friday forenoon, making the run to near Randolph in about an hour, Verne Fisher being chauffeur, to meet the Hitchcock-Latta touring candidates. A small crowd was addressed at Sholes and again at Carroll, but at Pilger and Wisner rousing big meetings were held.

Last Saturday afternoon the Normal football team went to Stanton and there defeated the Stanton team by a score of 11 to 6. In the first two minutes of play Wayne scored the first touchdown. Stanton kicked a goal from the field in the last quarter of the first half, the score then standing 5 to 3 in favor of Wayne. During the first quarter of the second half neither side scored but Stanton nearing the Wayne goal kicked another goal from the field. With the score of 6 to 5 the Wayne team realized that they had to play and in the last three minutes forced the ball over, the goal line for another touchdown. The kick also scored. Again the ball was forced across the goal line but the referee ruled that the man crawled and penalized fifteen yards. Time was up shortly after the ball was put in play after the penalty.

The Stanton team is composed of gentlemanly players and it was the hope that they would return the game here next Saturday but they find it impossible to do so.

Corn-Husking Vacation.

Teacher, better plan to visit some good town school for a couple of days during the vacation; or better still, some good country school if you know of a good one in session. There are two good results of visiting. Besides the getting of new things in matter and method, one tests his way of doing the old things also. This comparison is a good thing.

In selecting a heating system school boards should be careful that they get what they pay for. Some stove-makers are now putting out merely a large stove with a sheet iron jacket and selling it at the price of those which have non-conducting jackets, a pipe for removing foul air and a fresh air intake.

What will be election results next Tuesday is a conundrum that the smartest politician can only guess on. Some time ago it all looked different, but today it's all as inscrutable as the election of 2010. The Democrat puts all its hopes in Burkett's defeat; no question about Boyd's. On governor it doesn't matter; either candidate will do and we won't be surprised at a majority of thirty thousand either way, although the chances are it will be as close as the primary toss-up between Shallenberger and Dahman. Next to Hitchcock we all ought to want Phil Kohl elected state senator. From reports from Stanton county Mr. McLeod is going to try and get all the votes in that county. It will take three or four hundred majority in Wayne county to make Kohl safe. Henry Bartels will be elected state representative. All we can be disappointed over will be Hitchcock's or Kohl's defeat. If the latter possibility occurs through Wayne county's negligence or meanness it will be a merry war in the future and a sad day for the Northeast Nebraska's state normal and a re-apportionment of the state's representation in the legislature.

The Cost of Education in the County Schools.

(From the Wayne County Teacher)

Perhaps the most important fact brought out at the Emerson meetings, at least from an economic standpoint, was in the comparison of the cost per child of a year's education in rural and village schools.

Superintendent Perdue handled the subject, "County Schools," and spoke first of the advantages which the city school has over the country school, because it can have teachers suited to the work of the grade taught—a primary teacher for the little folks, an intermediate and a grammar teacher for these particular grades, and high school teachers for the older boys and girls—each a specialist of some description in his particular line. In the rural school one teacher teaches all, and the chances are that if she is a good primary teacher she is not a success in the upper grades, and vice versa. In addition to this advantage the town school has at its head an experienced man or woman who can properly supervise the work; who can visit the teachers in their various departments every day, if necessary, and direct the work. Besides this inspection the State High School Inspector visits the school once a year and makes helpful suggestions. He then compared this with the rural school calling attention to the fact that, more often than otherwise, the teacher is inexperienced. The County Superintendent by much hard work and some neglect of office duties manages in these eastern counties to visit twice a year. There is no state inspection of the rural school.

Now comes the startling fact, that on an average it costs just three times as much per pupil to give the country child eight years of schooling as it does to give the town child twelve years, with the attending advantages. Mr. Perdue gave these figures for Madison county. The cost per pupil in rural schools of Madison county for a certain year was $6.67; the average cost per pupil in the Norfolk schools with special teacher for music and arts and crafts, etc., $2.67. He gave figures for other counties all bearing out his original statement.

Fire Day.

From Wayne County Teacher:

State Superintendent Bishop has set aside a day in November to be known as Fire Day. Mr. Johnson the Chief Deputy of the Fire Commission has prepared a pamphlet, which will be sent to each teacher sometime during next week. We quote the following from Mr. Bishop's letter:

"Mr. A. V. Johnson, Chief Deputy of the Nebraska Fire Commission, has prepared an excellent pamphlet entitled 'Fire Prevention Text Book,' for use in the public schools of Nebraska in which the following subjects are treated in a very practical manner: Importance of fire waste instruction; carelessness with matches; the safety match; coal oil or kerosene lamps; kindling a fire; stoves for cooking and heating; fires from chimneys; stove pipes and smoke; sparks; the ash heap and the coal pile; danger from heating gas; danger from Christmas trees; electricity; fire protection.

"In recognition of the importance to every person of an acquaintance with the dangers of fire, the best means for prevention of accidents, and a knowledge of the best means for prevention of accidents, and a knowledge of the best methods of handling fire and fire materials, I have designated the first Friday in November, which occurs this year November 4, as 'Fire Day,' and am recommending that, unless there be local reasons for not so doing, each school on that day give some special attention to instruction in the use of fire, and fire producing materials, and discuss the dangers arising therefrom.

"In compliance with Mr. Johnson's request I have made some suggestions to teachers on the observation of that day. These suggestions appear in the 'Fire Prevention Text Book.' Mr. Johnson is sending, free, a sufficient supply of copies to each county superintendent, city superintendent, high school principal and ward principal to provide each teacher under their respective direction a copy of the pamphlet.

"We are fortunate in having a Fire Commission which takes so direct an interest in this matter and which is willing to do its part toward assisting the public schools in bringing so important a subject before the people in so attractive a manner. I hope that you will make good use of the material sent you, and that your efforts will result in much increased precaution in the use of fire. One life saved is worth the entire efforts of all of us."

Printing that Pleases—The Democrat.

Selecting Library Books.

Now that we have a law compelling districts to invest a small amount in library books each year, teachers ought to see to it that the money is properly invested.

Too often a district board and once in a while a teacher, too, will come into a bookstore with the amount of money to be invested and will tell the clerk that they want library books for that amount. He, never having given the matter a moment's thought, puts together some books for the amount and the board or school teacher departs, the letter of the law having been complied with, but the money wasted.

If the teacher has not the time to read the books before buying them she should select them from some of the recommended lists. Each teacher was supplied with bulletin No. 6 at institute time. This contains a list selected and graded with utmost care. If she wishes to get these through the local dealer he can easily order them for her, but never should she allow him to select them as he does not know her school.

This is a matter that should be attended to now so that the school may have the use of them during the winter.

The haphazard reading of library books allowed in some schools is detrimental to say the least. In one school we visited, the pupil as soon as he thought he had his lesson, was allowed to step to the book-case and take out whatever book pleased his fancy. If he tired of that he could go and get another. Well, in this particular school one boy (he wanted the visitor to see that he could get his lesson in a very short time) stepped to the book-case very soon after we had entered and spent some time in selecting a book, glancing at us every little while to see if we were properly impressed with the fact that he had his lesson in so short a time. He finally selected a book and went to his seat, but this did not end the library book farce for the school, by any means. Soon, half the pupils had been to the book-case, selected a book and gone to paging it. Then young Mr. First-boy (feeling that he has escaped the public eye too long) brought back his book and selected another, with the result that the others followed suit. Before we left every pupil but two had been reading or rather paging a library book. One naturally expected perfect lessons but such was not the case—the preparation would have been on an average about fifty percent, and the pupils had gotten nothing from the library books but the exercise of running back and forth to the book-case for them.

We give the following list of books suitable for seventh and eight grade supplementary reading which Superintendent Stevens spoke of in institute in connection with the Outline for Reviews, he gave.

JUST A MINUTE—NOVEMBER.

Mr. Taft, who rules the nation, Offers this, his proclamation; Whereas, Providence continues Blessing us from day to day, And the boon of independence Has, we take it, come to stay; And whereas, Indulgent Nature Lavishes upon us still Bounty in excess of what the Weather and the bugs can kill; And whereas, The old republic Couldn't be improved upon, Notwithstanding everybody Gets to run it off and on; Therefore, I, as delegated Now and for a short time hence President, decree that turkey Shall go up to 20 cents.

That's about all there is to it. Once the country raised its own, and the White House proclamation was not greeted with a groan. Father simply grabbed the hatchet, mother got the water hot, father read the proclamation to the turkeys in the lot, all the young and female turkeys promptly fainted from the shock, and after due farewells the gobler laid his head upon the block.

No one telephoned the butcher, asking what a turkey cost. No one in his deep resentment wished the Pilgrims were long lost. No one, while the feast proceeded, knew the torment of the rack figuring upon his napkin what the day had set him back.

Everybody was provided, as the founders pre-supposed. No one can be very thankful, if the truth should be disclosed, paying what we pay for turkey, and, for all of Heaven's gifts, feeling that the day was founded for the Armours and the Swifts.

November gets its name from the Latin novem (nine), and was originally the ninth month of the year. This brought Thanksgiving around two months earlier than we have it now, and it became very unpopular. The insurgents, who constituted a majority in the agricultural districts, were bitterly opposed to it. They made two contentions: First, that young turkeys were not old enough to market; second, that crops had not progressed to the point where it was possible to make out whether there was anything to be thankful for or not. In 713 B. C. the storm broke. The insurgents carried Gaul, Britannia and 17 other doubtful states, and the Forum immediately assembled and made November the eleventh month of the year.

The festive colt will sniff the air and don his heavy underwear, and the frenzied candidate will jump and hop around upon the stump. He'll point with pride and view with fear, and suck and blow the atmosphere, and then together with his cult, await with prayer the result.

Does reason haply hold its sway, or is it madness for a day will tell the people what to think and put the country on the blink? One cannot tell, but must abide the count that sees him justified in courage, confidence or doubt, according as it may turn out.

One thing alone is sure, it seems, and that is this: No one esteems a patriot in politics. We only trust him while he sticks to war, with all its thrill and throbs. The moment that he wants a job somewhat conspicuous for pay, by Jove! we don't know what to say.

But whether we do ill or well, election day alone can tell, or whether love for us and fear did any good, will then appear. We have to judge men as we may, and where the candidates all say about the same things in the end, one scarcely knows who is a friend. Then let us all embrace the chance and be as merry as we may, for whether we desire or dance, the fiddler is for all to pay. The gentle autumntime will pass, the countryman will kill his hogs, the cotton-tail will weary the grass around the overcast dawn, the honking geese will ride the heights with that wailing hollering of his, and the wolf will sit around o'night and tell the moon how thin he is. O woe is us that could enjoy the autumntime for aye and aye, and what with growing soul empty, is wretched from day to day. The phosphorescence in the sky, the quail with wings on the hill, the blackbirds ever bobbing by, and the wind soft-sighing where it will. But happiness could never last, as Anthony could apprehend, and holding Cleo to him fast, destroyed himself before the end. The summer cometh after spring, and winter the man withal, as truly must succeed the sweet and gentle blanchiments of fall. At any rate, upon a day, December, desolate and gray, Will come to whine through the cracks.

With the co-operation of our FARMERS with the Commercial Club, we will be able to put on these corn shows every year, and we know of nothing more educational in Agricultural lines than these annual corn shows, where the farmers have the opportunity of comparing the products of his farm with those of other farmers, and an exchange of methods in farming.

For Thursday night we have prepared a program of selections by the Band, interspersed with short talks by some of our progressive farmers, on different topics of the farm.

Congressmen Hitchcock and Latta arrived in Wayne Monday by auto on schedule time, 10:40. It had been arranged to have the band out to greet them but no band appeared, the control of the organization evidently being too much of the Burkett stripe. The visitors spoke to a very attentive if not very large crowd at the First National bank corner. Mr. Latta is not much of a public speaker but he's just the same on the inside as on the outside and a large man in every other particular. Mr. Hitchcock is an orator but the shortness of their stay prevented his going exhaustively into any subject.

Parties who heard Burkett's speech in Wayne, however, could readily understand why the latter would not meet Congressman Hitchcock in joint debate.

Moles--Griffith.

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 26th, in the presence of a few friends, Edna May Moles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Moles, was united in marriage to George W. Griffith of Wayne, Nebr., Rev. C. H. Bryan, pastor of the M. E. church of Philip officiating.

The bride wore a fawn colored princess gown of messaline with braid trimming. The decorations were in pink and white.

After congratulations, a dainty three course supper was served, and after much merry making, at the expense of the bride and groom, the young couple left for their future home at Wayne, Nebr.

Miss Moles has been one of our most popular young ladies and will be an addition to Wayne's church and social circle.

The groom is an electrical engineer in Wayne, and has made many friends in his short visits in Philip.--Bad River News.

Altona Men are Generous.

Johnny Johnson and Otto Greenwald, of near Altona, sent the Democrat thirty dollars to be given the destitute Dornberger family. Now, mark the difference. We have a county board supposed to look after such cases and they draw a salary for doing such duties. We have a board of health that has authority to order all proper assistance at county expense in such cases. We also have a number of ministers and they are soon going to hold a big revival, but they were and are doubtless too busy heaping infamy on Jim Dahlman and working for county option Aldrich, the man who hired a frail female to furnish the most damnable, perjured evidence to dishonor and divorce a good man, to look after the destitute and dying in our city. Last and largest it was every Wayne resident's business to have helped poor Mrs. Dornberger, and the writer has an uncomfortable conscience in the matter; a regret when too late that just a little expense and trouble might have saved so much misery. But two farmers, fifteen miles from town, upon reading of such a state of affairs sent in thirty dollars to alleviate our neighbors' sorrows. If there is any hell in the hereafter the population there will be rich and poor, preacher, layman, bloodsucker and profigate--same as we have in Wayne.

Norfolk News: Gilbert Dales of Wayne, an expert mechanic and carpenter, known in Norfolk as "Up-to-Date," was arrested for being drunk by Special Officer E. Sasse. Monday morning he was released on his promise to leave the city. Dales was found mixing a drink at the city water fountain on Norfolk avenue and Fourth street with water and alcohol in a tin cup used by the public. When sober Dales is said to be one of the finest workmen in the country.

Eric Stem of Hoskins, who was arrested last week for being drunk and gave Judge Eiseley a bad check for $15 to pay his $12.50 fine, receiving $5.50 in change, came to Norfolk Saturday and made satisfactory settlements all around. The check, which was on a Hoskins bank, is said to have been returned to Norfolk with a claim that it was no good and the authorities immediately got busy and Stem made hasty steps to Norfolk to settle up.

TORNADO IN ITALY DOES MUCH HARM

Coasts of the Bay of Naples and of the Gulf of Salerno Devastated by the Elements.

Naples, Oct. 27.—The beautiful coast of the Bay of Naples and the Gulf of Salerno and the islands of Ischia and Procida have been visited by a peculiar combination of the elements. The exact number of victims has not been learned, but 250 persons are said to have been killed. The monetary loss is estimated at $1,000,000.

Islands Suffer Most.

Ischia and the adjacent islands suffered most. No Americans are reported. In the troubled zone, foreigners made their way to the islands in a wilder berth, because of the cholera epidemic. Throughout the night much confusion existed as the failure of the electric wave and violent eruptions from the territory in darkness and without means of easy communication. Admiral Leonardi, minister of marine, is at Ischia organizing the relief, for which $100,000 is already available.

Scene Is Desolate.

The unique high road from Sorrento to Salerno is already impassable by far. The mountain cliffs and bordered with fruit trees and vines, was unrecognizable today. All several points landslides have occurred. The great damage was done in the towns of Portici, Torre Del Greco, Resina, Amalfi, Sorrento, Maiori, Ravello, Positano, Capri, and the famous Mount Vesuvius. The station master on the railroad at Vietri, a mile and a half west of Salerno, was killed by an electric shock, while attempting to check the news of the disaster to other points.

Reports from Ischia describe the situation there as distressing. The famous baths of Lucina have been closed for 15 months into the future. Mount Epomeo is 20 feet deep. When the cyclone was at its height enormous hail stones fell and huge rocks descended from the mountain peaks came tumbling down.

AT Torre Del Greco the roof of a building was blown off and the floors collapsing, carried a sailor, his wife and child to the bottom. The woman was killed and the husband with the babe in his arms, escaped from the place only to be drowned in the street. The babe was rescued.

ANGRY DAUGHTER JAILS HER FATHER AFTER LONG HUNT

Child Now Asks That His Trial Be Delayed Until She, as a Lawyer, Can Prosecute Him.

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 31.—After 31 years, William Sperry, or William H. Pound, 70 years old, was trailed and arrested on complaint of his own daughter, and this same daughter, who is now residing in Washington, will soon be graduated and hopes to assist in his prosecution as her first case. The father and daughter met here for the first time in 31 years in Wyandotte, now Kansas City, Kan., according to the daughter's story. Sperry deserted her mother and four small children 31 years ago and a former servant of the family in Ohio.

Sperry was not seen or heard from by his wife or children in that time. The woman with whom he went away fifteen years ago Sperry came to Tulsa. He changed his name to William Pound. He was a carpenter. He has two children by his first marriage. In 1910 Margaret Hopkins Sperry, now Mrs. Margaret Worrell, an employee in the department of commerce and labor at Washington, interested in representing her mother as a pensioner. Sperry was an old soldier. The bill passed and it was this pension that the daughter more vindictive. Two years ago the mother and daughter written to the pension department stating that Mrs. Sperry's husband was living, and that under such circumstances she was not entitled to the pension. The department started an investigation which revealed the whereabouts of Sperry. The deserted woman's pension of $15 per month was cut off.

When the daughter learned of the lost pension she immediately began to trail her father. She hated him, she hates him now, though she says that her mother, through all the years, was always loved the mother and is reluctant to see him sent to prison, which the daughter insists she will do if it is within her power.

Sperry was taken to Tulsa and will be given a preliminary hearing there. His daughter also went to Tulsa in order to see the same train. She has asked that the trial be postponed until she can appear as a lawyer to prosecute her father.

"It will not be long," I whispered. "We shall find a house. Be brave! Remember only that I love you."

She answered with a pressure of her arms about my neck, and I went on with new strength, my heart singing. At last, with a deep breath of thankfulness, I discerned the roof of a hovel rising above the hedge to the right. Was it occupied? There was no light at the window, nor smoke rising from the chimney, but I hastened forward to its door and knocked. There was no answer. I tried the door and found it barred. I rapped again, rather hammering savagely with my fist. This time a step approached.

"Be off," cried a harsh voice. "No entrance here for you, citizen."

"Citizen," I said, as mildly as I could. "I ask your aid; you will lose nothing by opening the door."

"Be off," he cried again. "I will not open it."

"Well, then, if you will kick it in," I said, letting my wrath burst forth, "and shoot you down like the dog you are." (Oh, a gold louis if you did me death if you refuse, and I gave the door a premonitory kick which made the flimsy building tremble. "Come, is it war or peace?"

"What is the matter, citizen?" asked the voice, after a moment, in a milder tone.

"Some water boiling hot and cloth for a bandage."

"I promise it."

"Very well, I will open the door."

"You will make a light first," I said, and I lit the candle, carefully on the ground in the shadow of the hedge. I drew my pistol and assured myself that it was ready. "Come, make haste," I added.

"There it is," I said, "but it is not yours. His eyes gleamed as he looked at it and he licked his lips as a dog might have done at sight of a savory bone; then he turned to the hearth, and I saw the smoking embers throw some pieces of wood upon them, and an earthenware pot from another vessel which stood on the hearth, and placed it in the midst of the flames.

"Your water will be ready in three minutes, citizen," he said.

"Good," and I moved before the fire a bench which served as a chair. I sat down, and my companion, looking about with a snarl.

"Yes—and if you touch the goldpiece, I will kill you. Sit down in yonder corner."

He backed into the corner indicated and sat down, staring vacantly. In an instant I was outside and lifting my club in my arms, bore her back to the cottage and closed and barred the door.

"Sit here, my love," I said, and placed her on the bench. "Now, let us see the bleeding."

I knelt before her and with fingers which trembled so that I could scarcely guide them, removed the shoe and cut away the stocking. The ankle—which should have been so slim, so graceful—was cruelly swollen.

"It will be better in a moment," I said, and dipping the remnant of the stocking in the steaming water, held it close against the hurt.

"Oh, that is heavenly!" she murmured and breathed a deep sigh of relief. I bathed the ankle thoroughly, immersing it in my arms, bore her back to the cottage and closed and barred the door.

"Sit here, my love," I said, and placed her on the bench. "Now, let us see the bleeding."

I knelt before her and with fingers which trembled so that I could scarcely guide them, removed the shoe and cut away the stocking. The ankle—which should have been so slim, so graceful—was cruelly swollen.

"Name of a dog!" yelled a hoarse voice. "Where are those blockheads? Ah, they shall hang for this! Deserters! Traitors!"

"There was an uneasy movement among the men. I saw that they had reason to know and fear that voice. In another instant a ferocious face appeared in the doorway, its eyes gleaming with rage.

"What!" I cried, and I saw a sword gleam in the air and descend with no uncertain force on the heads and shoulders of the men. "You are cowards! Is it thus you do your duty? Hounds! Curs! I'll show you!" and he drove them forth pell-mell into the street.

He turned upon me a disdainful countenance. "out, you beast!" he said. "Don't you see we wish to be relieved of you? You say you are going to Thouras. Well, the door is open. Suppose you start for it now."

"When I start my prisoner goes with me," I said.

He stared at me for a moment as though scarcely able to believe his ears.

"What!" he shouted. "You dispute with me! You—you scum, you insect, you toad, I tell you to get out of my sight, and get out while you are able to use your legs."

"Fah!" I retorted, rage mastering me. "Save your ass's voice for those cowards out yonder. I'm not afraid of you."

"Dog," he yelled and sprang upon me.

But I had my pistol out—it was his lip or mine and fired straight into that savage countenance. I saw the gaping hole the bullet left; I saw the blood spurt from it as he pitched forward at my feet. Then a score of voices, harsh and hoarse, called me to the window. I should have thought for an instant that I should be torn asunder. But a mounted patrol, summoned by the shot, cantered up, cut their way through the crowd, and for me out of its clutches.

"What is all this?" demanded their officer.

In two words they told him the story pointing to the body on the floor and the cowering man in the corner, her hands before her face. They ended by demanding that I be hanged forthwith.

"Oh, I shall hang," my new captain assured them. "Rest content! But he may be a spy and first we'll see what he knows. Tie his hands."

"They were secured behind my back in a twinkling.

"Bring the woman, too," he said, and one of them brought her forth and threw her across a horse. I saw with a sigh of relief that she had fainted. "Give me the keys, Coulthoun," he added to one of his men. The rope was a strong yet slender line. Already in one end of it there was a running noose, and I shuddered as I guessed its meaning. I threw the noose over my head, drew it tight about my neck and made the other end fast to a ring in his saddle.

"Release him," he commanded, with an evil laugh. "He can't get away."

For an instant, the thought flashed through my brain that I would not let the man escape. I seized the rope, dragged under the hoofs of the horses. Then, as a trooper cantered by me, I realized my cowardice. So long as a breath of life remained in me, I meant to save her from the hideous fate which threatened her.

So I ran along in the dust beside my captor in such agony of rage and despair that I had no thought of anything but to save her from the hideous fate which threatened her.

He turned upon me a disdainful countenance. "out, you beast!" he said. "Don't you see we wish to be relieved of you? You say you are going to Thouras. Well, the door is open. Suppose you start for it now."

"Bring the woman, too," he said, and one of them brought her forth and threw her across a horse. I saw with a sigh of relief that she had fainted. "Give me the keys, Coulthoun," he added to one of his men. The rope was a strong yet slender line. Already in one end of it there was a running noose, and I shuddered as I guessed its meaning. I threw the noose over my head, drew it tight about my neck and made the other end fast to a ring in his saddle.

"Release him," he commanded, with an evil laugh. "He can't get away."

For an instant, the thought flashed through my brain that I would not let the man escape. I seized the rope, dragged under the hoofs of the horses. Then, as a trooper cantered by me, I realized my cowardice. So long as a breath of life remained in me, I meant to save her from the hideous fate which threatened her.

He turned upon me a disdainful countenance. "out, you beast!" he said. "Don't you see we wish to be relieved of you? You say you are going to Thouras. Well, the door is open. Suppose you start for it now."

"When I start my prisoner goes with me," I said.

He stared at me for a moment as though scarcely able to believe his ears.

"What!" he shouted. "You dispute with me! You—you scum, you insect, you toad, I tell you to get out of my sight, and get out while you are able to use your legs."

"Fah!" I retorted, rage mastering me. "Save your ass's voice for those cowards out yonder. I'm not afraid of you."

"Dog," he yelled and sprang upon me.

But I had my pistol out—it was his lip or mine and fired straight into that savage countenance. I saw the gaping hole the bullet left; I saw the blood spurt from it as he pitched forward at my feet. Then a score of voices, harsh and hoarse, called me to the window. I should have thought for an instant that I should be torn asunder. But a mounted patrol, summoned by the shot, cantered up, cut their way through the crowd, and for me out of its clutches.

"What is all this?" demanded their officer.

In two words they told him the story pointing to the body on the floor and the cowering man in the corner, her hands before her face. They ended by demanding that I be hanged forthwith.

"Oh, I shall hang," my new captain assured them. "Rest content! But he may be a spy and first we'll see what he knows. Tie his hands."

"They were secured behind my back in a twinkling.

CHAPTER XXIV

THE DRAGON'S DEN.

The rush of the intruders, sudden and overwhelming, drove me back from the door. But I managed to hold my place in hand, before my love, too dazed to move, could do anything but stare at them and curse the fortune which had brought us to this desperate pass. But I had a part to play—a part I had rehearsed more than once for just such an emergency as this—and I got my wings back by a supreme effort. The newcomers still stood gaping in a semi-circle about us.

"Well, citizens," I said, trying to

CHAPTER XXV

"What is your business here, citizen?" queried the first speaker, after a moment's staring at her. "I am a citizen, citizen," I protested, pushing him back good naturedly, though there was red murder in my heart.

"Her clothing is not that of a maid," said another staring at her. "Well, may not a maid don her mistress's gown?" I demanded. "Especially in this time of need, citizen?"

They laughed again at that, but I saw that suspicion had been aroused. "I don't intend, but enough to impede the work of the country lads," I would have said through my teeth, "once that peerless creature a servant, indeed!"

WRONG IN THAT DIAGNOSIS

Physician's Method May Have Been All Right, but Here He Was at Fault.

We are told that the latest sensation in the medical world is the assertion of a doctor that he is able, by looking into a patient's eye to make an accurate diagnosis of the complaint which the patient is suffering. But is this really as novel as it is supposed to be? I recollect hearing some time ago of a doctor who said to a patient who was under examination: "I can see by the appearance of your right eye what is the matter with you. You are suffering from liver." "My right eye?" asked the patient. "Yes," returned the doctor. "It shows me plainly that your liver is out of order."

"Excuse me, doctor," said the patient, apologetically. "My right eye's a glass one."

Rosewater? Phew!

The false and flimsy nature of the case attempted to be made against Mr. Hitchcock by the Bartley-Rosewater conspiracy is disclosed in their own alleged "evidence" as plastered over the first page of Sunday's Bee. The conspirators are condemned by their own documents, as any business man will readily discover by even a cursory inspection of them.

Exhibit 1, of their "evidence," is the fac simile of a check for $3,000 made out by G. W. Wattles to himself, on December 28, 1893.

Exhibit 2, showing the alleged indorsements on the back of this check, show the check indorsed over to Hitchcock by Wattles, and indorsed then by Hitchcock. There is stamped on this reverse side the date, "January 2, 1894," and written thereunder, in a hand-writing evidently that of Bartley himself, "Chas. Acct. J. S. Bartley, Treas." The Bee says that this notation was made on that date—January 2, 1894.

There is no evidence to sustain this statement. And the circumstantial evidence, supported by Bartley's own statement in his letter to Mr. Hitchcock, is directly against it.

For mark what follows. Exhibit 3 is represented as a "RE-NEWAL NOTE" given by Hitchcock to Wattles, on September 25, 1893, for $3,000, as a continuance of the obligation of December 28, 1893, which, according to Exhibit 2, had already been charged to Bartley's account!

If Wattles, on January 2, 1894, had charged this $3,000 due him by Hitchcock to the account of Bartley, how could Hitchcock still be owing the same $3,000 to Wattles, and be giving him a renewal note therefor, on September 25, 1893?

If the original loan, as evidenced by the check, was charged by Wattles to Bartley's account, then Bartley, not Wattles, was the creditor. And in that event Mr. Hitchcock could not have given a renewal note later to Wattles.

The evidence of the documents themselves, therefore, is conclusive that Hitchcock's debt was to Wattles, not to Bartley. And it is up to the conspirators to explain, if they can, when and why the notation in Bartley's hand-writing was made on what it represented as being the back of the original check.

It is highly significant that the Bee's "Exhibit 2," which purports to be a "tracing" of the indorsements on the back of the original check, is wider than "Exhibit 1," which is alleged to be the face of the same check, and two inches shorter. The clearing indorsement of the bank is missing, and the indorsements by Mr. Wattles and Mr. Hitchcock, topped by the alleged indorsement of Bartley, which is upside down, are certainly in an unusual position on paper handled by a banker.

No fair-minded man, at all conversant with business affairs and methods, can study the alleged "evidence" emblazoned to the world by the organ of the Bartley slanderband, and fail to be impressed with the thought that Mr. Hitchcock is attacked by a band of conspirators who are without conscience or scruple and who will resort to any means, however foul, in their desperate endeavor to fasten suspicion upon a clean and honorable citizen.

Mr. McLeod Not Consistent.

The Star-Mail acknowledged a call on last Saturday of Mr. Chas. McLeod, of Stanton, republican candidate for state senator in this district and Hon. Thos. Alderson of this city an ex-member of the Nebraska state legislature. Mr. McLeod is a very pleasant gentleman to meet. Like many of the republicans he is a democrat but does not know it. He is in favor of the election of the United States senators by the direct vote of the people. He heartily indorses the initiative, referendum and recall and in speaking with the writer took occasion to say, "Mr. Bryan's policies were injected into both parties." He (meaning Mr. Bryan) got his county option plank into our platform but failed with the democrats. I voted against county option in the committee, in the convention and would vote against it at the polls in Stanton county but inasmuch as my party has adopted as one of their planks the county option policy I will vote for the caucus bill whatever that bill may be." Which in substance means that Madison county as a whole can vote this county dry and the towns of Madison, Norfolk, Battle Creek, Meadow Grove, Tilden and Newman Grove must remain dry. "But should our county as a whole see fit to vote the county wet the prohibitionists or county optionists can in the towns proper vote either of our towns dry. Now in all fairness can Mr. McLeod or any other man with ordinary intelligence ask a civilized community to support him or any other man who is pledged to a bill (and Mr. McLeod is one of them) that was prepared by the anti-saloon league calling for just such a law.

Mr. Phillip H. Kohl, of Wayne county the democrat nominee who opposes Mr. McLeod is opposed to any county option bill but stands for the strict enforcement of the present, Siccumb law and is opposed and will use his influence against the repeal of the present 3 o'clock closing law.—Madison Star.

Henry Bartels.

This year at least this district need have no fear of the results of the election as far as their representation is concerned. While the republicans have a strong man in the field, the democrats have one who is just as well qualified and as honorable as Mr. Prince. Henry Bartels has been in this country for more than 21 years, and those who know him best speak the most highly of him. One thing is sure, he is one of the county's most public spirited men and is always working for the best interests of his community. There is not a man in the vicinity of Carroll who has worked harder for the advancement of the town and community than has Mr. Bartels, and no man can say one word against him as a man. Go where you will in the vicinity of Carroll, and we have yet to find the first man to cast any reflection on his character, but any are unanimous in saying that he is a prince. He is broad in his views, and if elected will work to the utmost for the benefit of the district. The question of United States senator is left to the voter and will in no way affect you by voting for Mr. Bartels. He believes in being progressive and will always be found on that side regardless of party lines. His long residence in the district qualifies him to a marked degree to fill this position and he is well posted on the necessities of the people. This is the first time for years that Carroll has had a man in the field for a state or national office, and this, taken with the eminent qualifications, should entitle him to every vote in the town and precinct. All voters of Carroll and vicinity should remember this and cast party lines to the wind and work and vote for Henry Bartels. He is a broad, honorable man. If any man in the district can do anything for this immediate vicinity he is the one that can and will do it. It is an acknowledged fact that a man from another part of the district will be most likely to benefit that immediate part, as he is closely in touch with that part and this being the case makes it only the more imperative that the people hereabouts unite in the support of Mr. Bartels. And we will add, in conclusion, that a vote for him will be appreciated. And he is entitled to it.

Remember that a vote for Kohl is a vote for the good of the State Normal school.

Just remember, democrats, that this man Aldrich who is asking for your votes, has been one of the most bitter republican politicians; that his whole public career has been for the boozing interests previous to being converted by the republican state platform; that his record in a notorious divorce case, which he admits, is too black and damnable a thing for any citizen to overlook; that his character, morally, is far below Jim Dahlin's as the earth is from the evening star. While our democratic candidate for governor is not exactly what you would like to have him, that even from any standpoint, as a man and citizen, he is so far above Aldrich that no apology can be made for the democrat who bolts Dahlin to vote for the republican candidate. Don't do it!

Coleridge Blade: The chief difference up to date seems to be that Dahlin mixes it with men crooks while Aldrich struggles to the women crooks. However Aldrich is more respectable because he prays "Amen" in the M. E. church corner. Gosh!

The Hartington Herald started a piano-auto contest and then withdrew from the ring. These subscription contests for pianos, etc., are going out of date.

A whole lot of talk is being circulated about Congressman Latta having voted against a forestry appropriation over west in Nebraska. The congressman succeeded in holding the bill up a while till he got the grafting part cut out and then he voted for the appropriation and it passed. One item of the appropriation was for axes at $3.90 which sell at $1.25 to private parties. That's the way Congressman Latta voted against the forestry bill. That they cannot find anything more than these items on which to criticize Mr. Latta, shows what kind of a representative he has been.—Hartington News.

According to statements made by C. M. Guenther of Columbus, Victor Rosewater of the Omaha Bee ought to be confined in the state penitentiary. Mr. Guenther presents proof positive that the Omaha Bee maliciously doctored up the documents in the plot to prove that Hitchcock was a participant in the Bartley defalcations, and he has given the Burkett-Howard-Bartley outfit a rounding up that should land them all in the bull pen. Candidate Hitchcock should and no doubt will receive thousands of votes from citizens who have become disgusted and alarmed at the magnitude of the Rosewater Burkett conspiracy to defeat him.
