HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

A Class of Twenty Complete the Course Ready for More Advanced Study or Other Useful Work.

Wayne may well be proud of her schools and of the excellent corps of teachers who take the little ones from mother and father and aid them to successfully climb the ladder of learning step by step until they reach the topmost round of the short ladder, and pause for an instant to select another that will permit them to attain greater heights in the world of knowledge.

The class of twenty who received their diplomas last Friday evening have made good in all departments of school work. They have gone out and met those of other schools in various tests of skill and learning, and always acquitted themselves with credit to all. They have not always won in these friendly contests but have profited by them whether victor or not. Whether in physical or mental encounter they have made good.

The class play, "The Professor's Mummy" presented last Thursday evening was witnessed by a crowded house, and we have heard no criticism, in fact the presentation drew only words of praise. Each member of the class had a part and every one of the twenty members played his part so well that it would be difficult for any one to name individual stars. An excellent play presented in excellent manner was the universal verdict.

At the Methodist church on Friday evening the class and a large audience were entertained and instructed by an excellent program. The songs, "The Call of Spring" by Mrs. W. H. Morris; "Two Grenadiers" by Willis Fleetwood, the "Class Song" by Seniors and "Sir Patrick Spence" by Herbert A. Welch, were excellent.

The invocation by Rev. Gorst was a sublime plea for Divine aid and inspiration for those just closing this work in the public schools fitted for a life of usefulness.

Dr. E. A. Turner, who gave the class address, told well of "The Ear-Marks of an Educational Man," in an hour of eloquent talk, full of good thought and excellent advice. The greatest "Ear-Mark" was the ability of the educated man to THINK. It is not committing to knowledge the thoughts of others that completes the education of man, but to learn to do his own thinking. He would have the class learn to masticate or "Fletcherize" in their mind, not gulp chunks of prepared knowledge down as a dog bolts a piece of meat. Learn to think—to study. Work the mind, and thus make it strong. Superintendent J. H. Kemp, in behalf of the Board of Education presented each member of the class with their well-earned diploma, a simple certificate that they had successfully completed the high school course, of little value compared to what the class had received at his hands and those associated with him in the work of education during their school life. His short talk was well received and worthy of remembering. He presented a $100 scholarship, given by the associated colleges, to Miss Bernice Beebe, she having the highest average grades of any member of the class during the entire school course. Miss Dorothy Von Seggern stood second on the list, both honors of no small importance.

The class roster is as follows: Paul Mines, Tracy Kohl, Clement Crossland, Harry Gildersleeve, Bernard McConnell, Willis Fleetwood, J. M. Strahan, Harold Weber, Margaret Heckert, Neva Orr, Alma Craven, Bessie Lauman, Inda Hinrichs, Dorothy Von Seggern, Bernice Beebe, Myra Bell, Grace Ash, LaVern Garwood, Hazel Norton and Lucile Scase.

Storm Wrecked

W. H. Merriman, wife and daughter, Miss Elsie, had an experience Sunday evening which they do not care to repeat. Returning from Wakefield with team and carriage they met the storm of that evening about three miles east of town. The storm approached so fast that they could not reach shelter after it became evident that they must seek shelter before it struck them. The storm was so fierce that the team would not face it, and as he turned to allow the horses to go with the storm the wind overturned the carriage almost catching the women beneath it. Unable to turn the vehicle back Mr. Merriman held the team until the hail came, when they broke from him and nearly wrecked the vehicle before they stopped in the shelter of a grove not far away. The three were at the mercy of the pelting hail, and it fared ill with them then. Mr. Merriman had lost his hat and every hail stone that hit his head made a welt that would take a louse a week to go round, unless a good traveler. The ladies were pelted with the hail until they carried many a back and blue spot for the next few days.

When the storm abated they found refuge for the night, and next morning managed to get the harness, and carriage and horses tied together enough to drag themselves and other parts of the wreck home. It is a wonder that they escaped with so little injury.

Flece Out on Bail

Upon orders from the Nebraska supreme court, William Flece, twice convicted of slaying his sister, Louise, was Friday released from the Thurston county jail. Flece obtained his liberty after Henry Flece, Fred Flece, and Herman Frewert signed bonds amounting to $15,000. William Flece will be free until the supreme court has a chance to hear a motion for a new trial. The court is not expected to sit in the motion until after the summer vacation, in which case the matter will not be brought up until the regular September term. When word that the bonds had been granted the accused man reached the Pender jail, Flece gave evidence of pleasure. After a talk with his attorneys, says an exchange, he expressed confidence that the case would never come to trial again, but that the court would order that all charges against him be dismissed. He still insists upon his innocence.

Mr. Flece arrived at Wayne Friday evening and to his home near here.

Class of Five at Carroll

Last Friday closed the school year at Carroll and a class of five graduated from the school at that place. Professors Lewis and House of the State Normal school made the commencement addresses. The attendance was large and much interest manifested in the exercises. The school year has been a most successful one.

MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES

The G. A. R. Post and W. R. C., Assisted by the Citizens of Wayne Today Pay Tribute to the Soldier Dead

This is Memorial Day, the time when old and young should unite in a tribute of honor and respect to those who went forth to battle fifty years ago in the cause of human freedom. No tribute of the people can repay them for what they endured—hardship, suffering from sickness, homesickness, wounds and death—but by the proper observance of this day we can show our appreciation of their great sacrifices, and impart in the rising generations a spirit of patriotism, teaching at the same time that there may be heroes in peace, as in war—that sacrifices may be made in time of peace equal to those of war—that is as noble and often more trial to live for a cause than to die for it.

This afternoon at two o'clock the citizens will meet at the opera house with the members of the Grand Army and observe this day, with music and speaking. Below is the program:

Music..... Commercial Club Band
Vocal Music.
Invocation..... Rev. Floyd Blessing
Vocal Music.
Address..... E. P. Richardson

Benediction..... Rev. Corkey
The exercises will be concluded at Greenwood cemetery by Casey Post, No. 5, Grand Army of the Republic.

Sunday morning at the M. E. church the old soldiers and their relatives and friends met for the Memorial Sunday service, Rev. Wm. Gorst preaching a sermon most fitting for the occasion. The church was very appropriately decorated with flags and flowers, and special music was provided for the occasion. It was a solemn service and most largely attended. The G. A. R. Post at this place now numbers but 17 members, but at one time it was more than 100 strong. Death has not claimed all of the deceased, however, for some have moved away and when a Post was established at Carroll a few years ago a number of the members who lived in that part of the county became members there.

There has been no death among the members of the post at Wayne during the past year, and the list of graves to be decorated here today is the same as that of a year ago, and is given below:

Sunday Rain

The rain that visited this part of Nebraska Sunday was a welcome visitor, and did a vast amount of good and little damage. It was hard to see a silver lining to the dark clouds that rolled on from the southwest, but it was there, no doubt. A little hail and considerable wind at times accompanied the rain, but beyond a few broken trees no damage is reported in Wayne.

The hail and wind were more severe over a strip about two miles east of Wayne, and several wind mills suffered, a corn crib was upset at one place, a hoghouse unroofed at another and the fields of grain were badly cut down by hail in a district from three to five miles southeast of Wayne.

Many are of the opinion that the grain was so small that it will come on again without serious damage. The storm was a blessing, but not unmixed with a little damage.

New Flag Pole on School Grounds

A magnificent 65-foot flag-pole has been placed on the school grounds at a cost of nearly $100. The pole is set in a five foot cement base and towers considerably above the school building. The money which was raised at the school entertainment last February was expended on this flag pole and could probably not have been spent in a better way. Today (Decoration day) "Old Glory" floats from this flag staff and in its silent way speaks to all and swells the hearts of all who see it with that just pride all true Americans have in their government.

When the schools are in session the flag will float from this staff, not only on special days but on the first Monday of each month as well, so that teachers and pupils can salute it and renew their pledge of patriotism. "I pledge allegiance to the flag and to the country for which it stands. One country, one language, one flag."

To Preach in Wayne

Next Sabbath morning Rev. Charles E. Baskerville of Bellevue, Nebraska, will preach at the Presbyterian church morning and evening as the pastor will preach at Bellevue on that day before the Christian Associations of Bellevue College. Mr. Baskerville is a fine preacher, son-in-law of Dr. Stephen Phelps, who recently was ordained as a minister after a brilliant college and seminary course. It will afford much pleasure to many of the people of Wayne to have an opportunity of hearing this promising young preacher. The morning service begins at 11:00 a. m., and the evening service at 8:00 o'clock.

THE NORMAL COMMENCEMENT

The State School Closes a Successful Year. All Events of Last Week Worthy of Praise.

The commencement exercises of the past week mark the close of a successful year in the history of the State Normal School at Wayne. In attendance there was an increase of more than twenty-five per cent over the previous year, and the number of graduates from the advanced course is 23 compared with 3 in 1911. The year will also be a notable one in the history of the school because of buildings and improvements. The library and science hall will be ready to occupy during the summer session, which will double the present equipment. The heating plant has been enlarged, and every building on the campus made modern.

The exercises of the week opened on Wednesday, May 22 with an open session of the Crescent literary society. The program consisted of a number of good musical selections, and a play entitled "Captain Racket." On Saturday evening the Philomathean society gave a most excellent program in the chapel, thus closing the work of the societies for the year.

Owing to the storm on Sunday evening, Dr. I. F. Roach, who had been selected to give the baccalaureate sermon, found it impossible to reach Wayne in time to fill his engagement. Upon request of the class Dr. Alexander Corkey consented to preach the sermon. With only a few minutes notice he preached a very inspiring and helpful sermon, and his willingness to help out in such a difficulty was greatly appreciated.

Senior Class Play

After the excellent plays given last year by the high school and the Normal, and after the delightful presentation of the comedy by the Crescent literary society under the direction of Miss McBeth, the public has come to expect something worth while from students of the local institution. Accordingly a large crowd witnessed the play by the Senior class of the Normal last Monday night at the opera house. The play itself was clean, humorous, bright throughout, and the instructor, Miss Piper, should be congratulated upon the good taste of the selection. Much keen repartee, comical and dramatic situations, a few touches of the heroic, a little graceful love making, all combined to please. It would be invidious to select any of the actors as being meritorious above the rest. The hero of the story, a young American, sturdy, loyal, unpretentious, determined to do his duty with no spectacular accompaniments, was exceedingly well done by Gerald E. Cress. The part of the heroine, a beautiful English girl, who comes to appreciate the unassuming manliness of the hero, was taken with no less success by Miss Antha Taylor. Graceful, witty, charming she was from the first to last. The jolly, slightly ironical, keen and incisive character of the partner of the hero, was well carried out by James Britton. His pretended deafness, his frequent and indiscriminate and unserious love-making, were the source of much fun, while his genuine loyalty to his friend was well shown. The fine American girl who loves the hero without his knowledge and without a return of affection was one of the best touches of the piece and was beautifully set forth by Miss Helen Blair. The old maid aunt was well represented by Miss Charlotte Ziegler. Such characters on the stage are usually far too loud, Miss Ziegler was just right, sentimental in the extreme, but subdued withal and exceedingly funny. Miss Marsteller as the wife of Sir Humphrey Bunn and stepmother of the heroine, Paul Young as the son, Izzetta Johnson as flower girl, Dale Rickabaugh as mercury and Glen Hickman as Sir Humphrey, left nothing to be desired. The part of Brown, the defaulter, false wooer and general arch hypocrite was done in a masterly style by Alfred Lewis.

The class adviser, Miss Piper, was the instructor and planner of the entertainment and showed great skill in the work.

All in all the performance was far above the usual standard of amateur acting.

Field Day

The annual field day program occurred on Tuesday afternoon and although the weather was such that the crowd was small the enthusiasm was high. The field events were closely contested, and the alumni base ball team made a showing that was very creditable. Only twice did the regular Normal team get things going their way. For the first two innings the score was a tie, then the Normal boys steadily crept to the final score of 11 to 2. Next year they hope is for more favorable weather conditions and an equal amount of enthusiasm.

Alumni Reunion and Banquet

At 6:30 Tuesday evening about 75 members of the Alumni and invited guests sat down to a banquet in the gymnasium. President C. R. Chinn, of the Alumni Association, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced Superintendent Robert I. Elliott, who acted as toastmaster of the evening. Mr. Elliott is an eloquent and forceful speaker and his witty introductions put life into the program. The speakers were Miss Lottie Robertson, Miss Edith Beechel, Miss Elizabeth Kingsbury, President Conn and Richard L. Metcalfe. On behalf of the Alumni Miss Robertson

The salary of the rural route men is to be raised to $1,074 for a 24-mile route if the contemplated change in the law is made. If the route is longer than 24 miles the annual compensation is to be $44.75 for each additional mile, and a corresponding reduction where less than 24 miles are covered. One would suppose that the volume of business would have a little to do with the compensation unless he class the carrier and his horse in the same class.

Richard Coe of Crofton, who was so nearly burned to death in a fire at that place several weeks ago, has brought suit in the district court of Cedar county against the Standard Oil Co., and John J. Griffen, their local agent, alleging that his loss and injury was due to the defective oil he had been supplied with by the defendants. The law requires that kerosine show a flash test of 112 degrees or higher, and that the oil furnished to him tested 53 degrees. Harry Brady also sues for an alleged loss of $1,000.

The infant daughter of Wm. Broman and wife was christened Sunday at the German Lutheran church northeast of Wayne, and a number of relatives and friends from Pender drove over to help celebrate the event, and the storm prevented their return by automobile as planned, and several of them came to Wayne and returned by train Monday morning. Among those from Pender were F. E. Berg, Albert Kretke, Henry Gilster and wives, Mrs. Elfine, Wm. Weseloh, Otto, Robert and Fred Schmidt, both junior and senior, and Henry Rogue. Philip Gratz and others were also present from Laurel.

You can never tell what a mule or a broncho will do. Ray Roberts has discovered that this applies to an old mule as well as a young skittish mule colt. Ray is a son of J. M. Roberts on the A. B. Clark home ranch, and having to go for the cows, obtained permission to ride the old family mule, but the old mule would not stand fire when an automobile met them on a bridge, and in the hurry to get away the animal left Ray on the bridge, throwing him so that he struck the bridge rail in such a manner as to cut a gash in the calf of his leg that required several stitches to close. He is now about well, but has lost lots of confidence in a "trusty" mule.

"Bill" O'Brien and his Big Scheme

You may not know William O'Brien of Atkinson, Neb., now, but you will know him after while. You may not know him as "William," but you will know him as "Bill," and that's the way he prefers. O'Brien is doing a great work in Nebraska, and doing it quietly and well. Of course he is making money by it, but at the same time he is making life happier and easier for thirty or forty families, developing a vast tract of Nebraska land, and making it possible for poor men to acquire good farm homes. It is this way: O'Brien owned a vast tract of land in Holt county. He couldn't farm it all himself, and investigation revealed the fact that tenant farming didn't pay well. So he cut his tract up into little tracts. On each tract he built a little cottage, a good barn, some sheds and a windmill. He fenced off the fields, too. Then he added about 10 per cent to the value of the land with its improvements and looked about for purchasers. Not for men who could pay half down and the rest in six or eight years. He wanted poor men with big families; men who were willing to work. He found them in Lincoln and Omaha. Some of the men who bought O'Brien tracts didn't even have money enough to pay their fare to Atkinson. But he didn't care if they were the kind of men he wanted. When satisfied on that score the money for carfare was forthcoming, together with money to pay freight on household goods. Today there are forty families developing O'Brien tracts in Holt county. O'Brien furnishes the livestock and the implements. The farmers will pay him fair interest, and in time will own their little farms. And while they are developing these little farms they are adding to the value of O'Brien's other holdings. It is an inspiration to talk with "Bill" about his great scheme. He doesn't think he is a philanthropist, but he is—and the right kind, too. He says it is a money making scheme with him. It is, but it is more than that—it is a home making, estate building, nation strengthening scheme. Nebraska Farm Journal.

The Tolling Bell

It Was a Mystery, but It Was Explained

By ALBERT TUCKER KENVON

When I was master of the Heleu MacAvoy, one of the old time brigs, I was on deck one night keeping a general lookout. The sky was overcast, rendering the night dark, but there was no wind. The sea was smooth only for a ground swell. According to an observation taken the previous noon, we were not near any land or sunken rocks—that is, nothing to warrant a warning to ships.

And yet there came across the surface of the water, "followed by distance," the sound of a buoy bell. I say a buoy bell because it tolled with that irregularity which sailors would recognize at once as belonging to these bell warnings against dangerous places at sea.

I at once ordered the lead heaved, but "no bottom" was reported. Nevertheless I confess I was very uneasy. Though we were in deep water, we might be near a ledge. However, we could do nothing but keep posted so far as possible as to the depth of water beneath us, and, though we kept lowering the lead, we did not reach bottom.

Meanwhile, though we were scarcely moving, we continued to approach the bell or it approached us, for the sound became gradually more and more distinct.

I would have cast anchor except for the fact that there was no bottom. I could only wait for developments. The watch heard the tolling and were on the qui vive for something to happen. Those below came up one by one and leaned against the rail, listening, or in knots discussed in low tones what the mysterious sound might be.

The strokes continued to approach us or we them till they seemed to be scarcely a cable's length distant. Then we began to make out something black dead ahead. I called out to the man at the wheel to port the helm. He did so, but there was so little headway that our course was but slightly deflected. A black bulk passed so near us that we could see it was there, but so far that we could not distinguish what it was.

Nevertheless we all agreed that it was afloat and drifting. Gradually the tolling of the bell became less and less distinct, but did not die out entirely for more than an hour. It was a gruesome sound and depressed the crew, causing forebodings among the superstitious.

The next morning a vessel appeared far astern of us. She had no sails set, and our glasses failed to reveal any one aboard. A fresh breeze blowing in her direction sprang up, and since on the course we were sailing it was dead ahead I concluded to turn about and investigate this strange ship. As we neared her we failed to see any one aboard of her, and her wheel was revolving as the rudder was swung by the waves.

If any of the sails had been set they had been blown away. As soon as we came within hearing distance we knew that the tolling of the night before came from her, for we began to hear it again. It was evident that she was a derelict, and I inferred that the rope attached to the clapper of her bell had either rotted away or become loosened, so that as she rose and fell on the seas the bell was tolled.

As soon as we came within easy reach of her I ordered a boat lowered, and I was pulled to the derelict. A ladder was hanging to her side, so we had no difficulty in getting aboard of her.

We found the sails furled and a cable dangling from her bow with the starboard anchor gone, indicating that she had been lying at anchor and had been blown away. This theory was borne out by the fact that most of her boats were gone, no fragment of them being left, indicating that the crew had taken them. The ladder hanging over the side was further proof of this. The ship was not in bad condition. Indeed, had I seen any one aboard of her I should not have taken her for a derelict.

There were one thing that puzzled me. The bell rope had not been parted. It was hanging loose. Why it was so I could not divine. Such ropes are always fastened, and I saw no reason why it should have been left unfastened or have become so after the crew had left the ship.

There was nothing open that would jeopardize the ship in case of bad weather. The hatches were in place and the companionway closed. Why this was so I could not understand—that is, if the crew had gone ashore from the anchorage, leaving her alone, and she had been blown off.

Having noted these things, I went below by the fore-castle companionway.

There was not a soul below forward. I did not expect to find any one there alive, but I fancied I might find one or more dead bodies. I went aft to where the officers' quarters were and looked into every room. The last one I came to, evidently the captain's, gave me a surprise.

On the broad berth a little boy, not a year old, sat looking at me. His eye was bright and his cheeks ruddy. Indeed, he was the picture of health. Seeing me, he broke into a smile. Behind him, with her face to the wall, lay a woman. I touched her, but she did not move. Pulling her over so that I could see her face, I saw by a slight muscular movement that she was alive.

I had brought a flask of liquor with me in case of such an emergency and poured a little down her throat. She opened her eyes, but soon closed them again.

We had brought some broth in a bottle, which one of the men carried. I called for him to come down to me and fed the woman a little of the broth. She opened her eyes again and this time looked for the child. Seeing him, she looked again at us men and muttered what I took to be thanks that the boy would be saved. We fed her a teaspoonful of broth at a time till she was able to articulate. She was so low that I dared not move her, and yet I would not leave her. We remained near the vessel all day, and before dark I determined to take her and her boy on to our own ship. Wrapping her in blankets, we carried her on deck. The most difficult part of it was to get her into the boat, but we accomplished this by tying her in a hammock and with a rope at each end lowered her. The baby I carried down in my arms. In the same way we took her aboard the MacAvoy.

The derelict was in such good condition that I concluded to put a prize crew aboard of her and send her to Honolulu, not many days' sail to the north of us. There would be nothing to do but provision and water her, though it would be safer to do some pumping, so I sent half a dozen men aboard of her with what they would need and had the pleasure of seeing them hoist her sails and move away northward.

The woman we had rescued was ready the next morning to give the main points of her experience. The ship was commanded by her husband. They had sailed from San Francisco for the Hawaiian Islands. Blown off their course by bad weather, they had come upon an island. Their stores and water being pretty nearly exhausted from being out longer than they had expected, the captain had taken the main part of the crew ashore to see if he could replenish both, leaving only three men aboard. While they were gone a hurricane sprang up from off shore, parted the cable by which the ship was anchored, and she was blown out to sea. The captain's wife helped the men to get down the hatches. This was about all they could do to keep the vessel afloat. The men remained on deck trying to get her under control, but every one of them was washed overboard.

When the storm abated the captain's wife found herself at sea on a derelict. Most of the food left aboard had been damaged. The mother, fearing that before they would be rescued the supply of food necessary to keep them both alive would be exhausted, kept it for her child. She thought over possible ways to attract attention of other vessels, but could devise no way except to loosen the bell rope and let the clapper swing with the waves. This done, she remained in her cabin with her child awaiting such fate as Providence might have for them.

She had no idea how many days she had been afloat. Her little larder grew less and less every day, and, while at first she ate what was absolutely necessary to keep sufficient strength in her to take care of her child, at last, that the little one might live as long as possible to get the benefit of a rescue, she refrained from food entirely. It is probable that had our coming been delayed a few hours she would have died.

I got what information I could from her as to the island on which her husband and his crew had been marooned and judged that it was one of the Sporades on the Polynesian groups. I was bound for the Philippines, so that both these groups lay in my course. It behooved me to find them if possible, not only to reunite this family, but take off the marooned men. A few days' sail brought us to the first of the groups, but we heard nothing of the men we searched for. But when we struck the Polynesian we had better success. The rescued woman was on deck when we passed one of them and recognized it as the island from which she had been blown. We circled it and on a bit of high ground saw with a glass something white fluttering. We turned our course toward it and struck the marooned men.

As we approached we saw them standing on the shore watching us, and presently we heard the cheer, but when we came near enough to make them hear that we had the captain's wife and boy on board they went wild with delight, and I saw one of them drop on his knees. I was sure it was the captain himself.

I shall never forget the meeting between the captain and his wife, to say nothing of his having his boy restored to him. He was so relieved and delighted at their restoration that for some time he did not ask for the story of their rescue. When he had heard it and that his ship was also saved and gone to Honolulu he had nothing further to desire.

We took him and his crew aboard and transferred them to the first ship we met going westward.

From that day to this there are two things connected with the adventure that will never fade from my memory. I shall never cease to hear the melancholy irregular tolling of that ship's bell. But, more than this, the sudden coming upon that picture of innocent budding life, unconscious of the dreadful situation of which it was the center, is stamped indelibly on my mental vision. I had found in the midst of an ocean a ship, on that ship the only conscious thing was a child and on that child's face a smile.

The Right Kind of Hustler.

There is a good story concerning a certain trip of inspection when Louis Hill and a party of officials were taking a peek at the station agents somewhere along the line in Minnesota. At a station we may call Oscarville an agent, perhaps forewarned, was observed frantically moving trucks and clearing up.

"There's a hustler for you," said one of the party.
"Humph," said Hill.
At another station the agent met them smilingly, smoking a good cigar and clad in his best clothes. He was frankly idling, yet nothing was asked.
"Well, what do you think of that?" commented one of Hill's friends.
"There's an agent who has time to loaf."
"Humph," said Hill.
A month later the "loafer" was promoted.

"If a man can get the work done without doing it himself he's the man for me," was the explanation of the railroad president.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Geo. Neale and wife of Ft. Calhoun stopped here Monday to visit at the home of their former neighbor, Mrs. Simmerman, who lives on a farm not far south of Wayne. Mr. and Mrs. Neale have a farm a few miles east of Bloomfield which they had been visiting and stopped here on their way home. Mr. Neale was particularly impressed with the fine crop prospect he noted in this part of Nebraska.

Mrs. W. H. Weber and sons, Harold and Gilman, left Saturday morning for a summer vacation on the Weber ranch near Dunning. They were to stop to visit at Omaha a short time, and from there go to Broken Bow, where they will be joined by the daughter and sister, Miss Hazel Weber, who has just completed a year's work as teacher in the schools of that city, and we are informed is elected for another year. The entire party are planning to spend the summer on the ranch. The oldest son has planned to grow 30 acres of corn and the boys will probably neither of them be idle. It will be a happy way to spend the summer. Harry, son of J. F. Sherbahn, went with the party and will spend the summer there.

While the good people were meeting at Wayne Monday to organize a good roads organization for the county, Oscar Johnson, who lives six miles northwest of Wayne was coming to Wayne with four horses hauling him in on a King drag. He did this to help put the road in shape for travel following the rain of the evening before. Now that is the kind of a good-road movement that counts, and if every citizen would do a little volunteer work of that kind it would be a great help at small cost to anyone. We saw another drag come in from the west, but did not learn from how far out and whether or not it came as volunteer work. Mr. Johnson says that the road to his place is all in very good shape except the first two miles north of Wayne, which is quite rough. If some who live along that part of the road would make a few trips to town on a road drag it might be improved.

Don't fail to take in one of the plays at the large Canvas theatre, a treat in store for you, June 5th. "The Knobs of Tennessee."

Mrs. H. Lawrence and her daughter, Miss Clara Heckert, who were here for two weeks visiting at the home of her son, T. B. Heckert, returned to their home at Red Oak, Iowa, last Friday.

Dr. C. W. Farwell of Omaha will give the second of the series of lectures Sunday, June 2nd, at the I. O. O. F. hall at 8 p. m. These lectures are attracting attention of the church people in all places, principally due to the fact that a harmony and beauty in God's word is shown, in a logical and convincing manner, pleasing to all thinking people. Dr. Farwell will show in Sunday evening's lecture that "God's purpose was not to convert the world in this age." The church is called to joint heirship with Jesus Christ and to a place with him on his throne. After this is accomplished then the world will be delivered from death, and the highway of holiness will be opened up.

By a special arrangement these lectures are free and no collection. Musical selections by Miss Blanche Paul of Emerson.

A Growing School Man

Ben Robinson who has successfully solved the initial problems of consolidated schools for rural districts, is growing in demand as an instructor. Following the closing of a successful year at Sholes he has been called to a larger school, and there is no doubt but that he will make good. Mr. Robinson passed through Wayne last week on his way to Inman, where he went to deliver the commencement address before the graduating class of nine, and their many friends. His subject on that occasion was "Qualities that Win." Last Saturday he was invited to Shelton, where they are planning to form a consolidated school, to address the patrons of the district proposed to be formed. The Shelton people are much in earnest in the matter of consolidation, and have had Mr. Bishop, formerly state superintendent, but now one of the faculty at Ames, Iowa, there to speak on the subject.

Mr. Robinson has successfully met and overcome the obstacles and difficulties that were in the way of the first consolidation in this state and while the work was done in an obscure place it has put Sholes on the map and made both the place and the man known beyond the borders of our own state.

When a customer has once been educated to quality, he will seldom seek a store that appeals merely to the desire to save pennies.

There are communities where quality arguments would have no weight, but many more could be educated toward quality if the right arguments were used.

Quality arguments are sometimes slow trade builders, but they build exceedingly strong. Bargain goods are only a bargain to those who cannot afford the best, but there is generally a hole in a bargain.

McCabe Still On the Job

George B. McCabe, the Agriculture department underling who pestered and hampered Dr. Harvey W. Wiley until that efficient public servant was driven from office, after 30 years of faithful work, has branched off into a new line of activity. He is now trying to drag down the standard of meat inspection test, so that the beef trust can sell the carcasses of diseased cattle and hogs as food.

At committee hearings brought about by Congressman Nelson it was testified that McCabe practically issued orders to the government meat inspectors to let up in their rigid tests, and to pass over those carcasses which were found to be only partly diseased. How long must the consumers of this country stand for this man McCabe, arch-enemy of the pure food laws of the nation?

TO START THE BOYS AND GIRLS TO THINKING

Howard J. Gramlich in the Twentieth Century Farmer

Some three years ago the farmers' institute department of the State university and the state department of education conceived the idea of having a week's short course at several of the county seat towns in Nebraska for boys and girls from the rural districts. At that time several of these short courses were held and all proved quite satisfactory. Since then there have been a few held each year. During the last year the department of agricultural extension at the university farm has conducted six of these boys' and girls' short courses in agriculture and domestic science, and plans for the coming year are to conduct even more, as they are proving popular, and the department believes a great deal of good can be accomplished for the amount of money expended.

Boys and girls enjoy the course because of the novelty of it—the variation which it offers from their regular school work and the practical value which they see in it. Needless to say, the boy or girl 15 years old who has never been away from home to speak of and who has spent practically all of his or her time in the district school appreciates coming to the county-seat town and spending a week with other boys and girls from over the county and learning a few practical things which they can go home and put into practice.

These short courses are conducted in conjunction with the county superintendent in each county, it being the duty of the county superintendent to advertise it in advance and get representatives from as many districts in the county as he or she possibly can. In some counties the superintendent has been able to have a representative from practically every district. The department recommends getting one boy and one girl from each district preferably the oldest ones or the ones furthest along in their school work. While it is true that the younger children cannot grasp all that is taught them, they enjoy the week's work and secure from their older brothers and sisters what they were not able to get themselves. As a rule the boys average over 14 years of age. At the Beaver City short course held the first week in April of this year the boys averaged slightly over 16 years in age. A group of boys averaged that old, practically every one from the country and all eager to learn, make a fine field for the advancement of agriculture. Many of them living so far from Lincoln will be unable to continue their education beyond the district and high school, and this line of education offered by the department fills a much needed requirement in their future lives. Those few who are able to come to Lincoln and take the agricultural school course are only the more anxious to come after having had a taste of it. Likewise it is the same with the girls who take the work in the domestic science classes.

These short courses, or schools, as they are called, are sometimes accused of being out teaching the boys how to farm. Perhaps in a way this holds. However, as a matter of fact the prime purpose of these short courses is to get the boys to thinking. Many of the things discussed at these short courses have been discussed by the parents at home. However, the short course emphasizes the why and wherefore of everything, and this is the part which interests the curiosity of the developing mind. The work given to the boys at these short courses consists quite largely of stock judging, rope tying, corn and grain judging and similar subjects which all American boys are interested in. Stock judging proves perhaps as interesting and of as practical a value as any other phase of the work. Boys like horses. However, when it comes right down to telling the good and bad points of a horse it does not take one long to detect that the boys have been used to merely casting a casual glance at the horse and then passing on. The work which can be given them in a short time at one of these short courses merely teaches them to look at an animal and a second time and notice all the points. Many boys do not know the common colors in horses when they see them, and a little work is given along this line, as well as estimating weight, girth and such points. It would be impractical to go into the real depths of horse judging with the boys and endeavor to consider the matter technically. However, in several afternoon's work they are able to become very much interested in the horse and to begin to notice a good many new points which they had not noticed before. The same method is used with the milch cows, beef animals, hogs and other stock which are available. As a general rule several afternoons in the week are spent in taking the boys on excursions to good stock farms within a mile or two of town. In many cases stock are available which are fully equivalent, if not better, than much of the stock which is available for the boys taking the agricultural course at the state agricultural school.

In the rope tying work the boys bring 5 cents worth of quarter inch, three-strand rope and the first afternoon they are asked to tie all of the knots which they know. As a general rule they can all make a common over-hand knot, a slip knot, perhaps a square knot and one or two others. It is very seldom that a boy is able to make more than five knots. Before the week is out some twenty knots, including splices, halters and braids, are made. Any boy can make these various handy contrivances and after once learning how to make them will very seldom forget. Of course, the quarter-inch rope is easier to work with than the large rope. However, after mastering the art of making splices and braids with a small rope, anyone can make the same splice, braid or knot in a large rope. These are very simple, indeed, and yet it is surprising to go out into districts where men are handling ropes constantly and find how few really know how to make these knots and splices in the correct manner.

An instance of this was called to notice recently at the Ord short course, where a boy 20 years old came in and stayed until 6 o'clock one night in order to be taught how to make a long splice. When he started to leave the hall for his ten mile trip home he made the statement that the knowledge he had gained would have proven worth $100 to him last summer. One afternoon when they were very busy with the hay they broke the main rope and had to go clear to town for another one, simply because no one in the crew, including himself, knew how to splice the rope into a small enough splice so that it would go through the pulley, and, as usual, it rained the next day.

The work in domestic science for the girls includes work in cooking and sewing. It is needless to say that both of these prove very interesting to girls and extremely practical. In the sewing work the girls make various stitches and before the week is over they make a handbag, apron and various other articles. In the cooking they are given the food principles and many recipes are prepared. They are encouraged to go home and cook the same dishes and bring back samples the next day. Some girls are inclined to look upon the work of the household as beneath them and when they are taught little simple things right in the school room they begin to look upon manual labor in a different light. Likewise with the boys; the little work which is given them is given with the idea of keeping them better satisfied on the farm rather than to try and pull them away.

Some people are opposed to their children being taught the lines mentioned. They seem to think that they themselves are competent to teach all the child should know about such things and that the school room is the place where they should learn latin, algebra, Greek and European history—things which are doubtless valuable to any child from a cultural standpoint, but which they perhaps will never hear of after they leave school, while these simple things which are taught them regarding their own work and work which many of them will pursue throughout their entire lives will constantly come before them.

If these short courses can accomplish nothing more than to get the boys and girls thinking about the practical things and to make them better satisfied with their own conditions as they are at home, they have accomplished all that is to be expected of them.

Governor's Day at Randolph

Governor Aldrich has informed the Randolph committee of the date on which he will come to our city during the soldiers reunion. The Governor will arrive at Randolph on July 1st, probably on the noon train, and will make the opening address to the old soldiers at the reunion on July 2nd in the forenoon. From Randolph the Governor goes to Wayne and will there make the dedicatory speech for the new building at the normal school.

Later in the season he will again visit Randolph in the course of his campaign for re-election to the chief executive position in our state. Gov. Aldrich has made many friends in Randolph in previous visits, will make many more. Randolph Times.

Clyde H. Tavenner Tells Things

Washington, May 27.—The Theodore Roosevelt who will go down in history will differ considerably from the Theodore Roosevelt who is today the popular hero in many states. This will be because of the abundance of official data in the archives of the Department of Justice in Washington which shows beyond successful contradiction that Roosevelt is allied and always has been with the "far reaching Morgan interests," the same interests which are now financing with a lavish hand his campaign for re-nomination.

Although the ex-President, past-master in politics that he is, may be able to lead thousands of voters to believe that he is really against the great industrial trusts which are ever tightening the screws on the American public and sending up prices; even though Roosevelt may temporarily fool the majority of the people in this regard, he will not be able to fool historians. The data at the department of Justice in Washington, revealing his failure to bring criminal prosecution against George W. Perkins for organizing the illegal harvester trust, when considered with the sworn report of the Roosevelt campaign committee of New York showing how Perkins contributed thousands to return Mr. Roosevelt to the White House, forms a chain of evidence that will surely be commented upon by unprejudiced historians.

History will have to state that during all the time he was in the White House, as well as when running for the third term, Mr. Roosevelt was in frequent conference with George W. Perkins, who might be accurately described as the official messenger of Wall street. History must show that Perkins was the chief aid and schemer of J. P. Morgan while the latter was in the years between 1905 and 1911 throttling business in every direction. It was Perkins who as Morgan's business partner showed Morgan how to dominate the boards of directors of all the great railroads, banks and trust companies, express, telegraph and telephone companies, steamship lines, insurance companies and all the great industrial trusts, to the end that Morgan now has a strangle hold on a corporate wealth of over thirty-five billion dollars, an equal to one third of the total wealth of the nation.

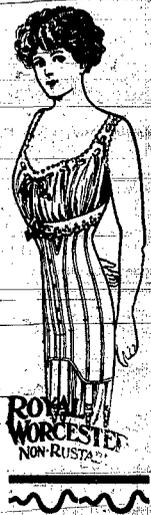

Mr. Roosevelt's biography will also relate that while he was president, Burdette D. Townsend, one of his assistant attorney generals, investigated the harvester trust, reported that it was a trust of the most vicious character, that it was holding up the farmers, that all the plans for its organization and manipulation had been conceived and executed by Roosevelt's friend, George W. Perkins, and that Mr. Roosevelt's answer to the recommendation of the investigator to prosecute the trust was an order to his attorney general not to start suit until he gave the word, which word was never given, Mr. Perkins thus being saved from a possible penitentiary sentence and the trust from dissolution.

Not one out of a hundred persons know these facts, and it is impossible to educate all the people on a subject like this in a short time. But Mr. Roosevelt's historians will find it all; and perhaps more!

WAYNE MARKET REPORT

Following are the market prices quoted up to the time of going to press, Thursday:

Table with market prices for Oats, Corn, Barley, Spring wheat, Wheat, Eggs, Butter, Hogs, and Fat Cattle.

Will Wayne county farmers ask for a short course here this winter? Do it now.

President Taft has declared that there is no intention of intervention by this country in Cuban affairs, and it is the proper attitude for this republic to assume.

Eugene Debbs holds one on W. J. Bryan in that he has received the presidential nomination of his party four times to only three times for the democrat.

We doubt if Wayne people can spend money to better advantage than in improving the roads that lead to Wayne.

The blame for the loss of the Titanic is officially laid to Captain Smith, and he is dead and don't know it.

We would modestly suggest that now that the Commercial Club has got the base ball matter in other competent hands, it give a little attention to the organization of a loan and building association here.

It has been suggested that a short course in stock judging, agriculture and domestic science would be far more beneficial to the farmers of Wayne county, and especially to those who will be the active farmers within the next few years.

"Soaking" the Consumer

Once more the poor old consumer has to dig down into his pockets and pay tribute to a trust. This time it is the coal trust, and the excuse given for this trust's latest scheme to gouge a few extra dollars out of the public is the fact that the coal miners struck.

Pigeonholed

The standpat Senate, at this writing, has refused to pass the tariff revision downward bills, or the income tax bill upon which action long ago was taken by the Democratic House.

State Normal Notes

The next meeting of the Board of Education will be held at Kearney on June 28.

Hon. A. H. Viele of Norfolk attended the chapel exercises last Monday morning and gave a short address to the students.

The graduating exercises on Wednesday closed the work of the regular school year.

The school was very delightfully entertained by the pupils of the primary department on Monday morning.

Miss Jennie Gaertner has just received notice of her election to a position in the Sioux City, Iowa, schools.

On Friday morning members of the G. A. R. were guests of the school and patriotic exercises took the place of the regular chapel service.

Board of Equalization

Notice is hereby given that the Board of County Commissioners, the County Assessor and the County Clerk will sit as a Board of Equalization, commencing on Tuesday, the 11th day of June, 1912.

CHAS. W. REYNOLDS,
County Clerk.

PRESIDENT AGAIN REBUKED

New Jersey Sends Solid Wilson Delegation to Baltimore, and Roosevelt Men to Chicago.

Newark, N. J., May 29.—Col. Roosevelt on the republican side and Gov. Wilson on the democratic side were overwhelming winners in yesterday's primary election in New Jersey.

The Roosevelt victory was a clean sweep and the former president will apparently have every one of the state's twenty-eight delegates at the Chicago convention.

The result exceeded the expectations of the most enthusiastic Roosevelt leaders.

Gov. Wilson's triumph on the democratic side was only a trifle less complete than that of Roosevelt.

The Taft supporters hoped for a share of the delegates until midnight. At that hour they claimed more than six, and an hour later their claims dwindled to the two delegates from the sixth district.

Wilson stock is looking up a bit, with Texas, Minnesota and his home state instructing from him.

There will be both Taft and Roosevelt delegates seeking admission at Chicago from Texas.

How sweet for a political party to dwell together in brotherly love.

Where one goeth there will the other go also.

The Old Boys On Parade

The following verses, written by Ella True Connor, the fact that the "Old Soldiers" at a reunion or national encampment several years ago were caught in a severe storm, but declined to seek shelter.

"Tis the Battle Cry of Freedom, boys!
O don't ye hear her play?
We've faced a hell of shot and shell,
Why should we flinch today?
There's a feeling in the air, old pal,
That smells of sixty-one.

When every man with heart and hand
Was shouldering his gun,
Never mind the weather, boys,
We've heard the bugle play;
'Tis the Battle Cry of Freedom, boys!
Why should we flinch today?"

So in their sadly shortened lines,
With features grimly set,
They marched adown the city streets,
The men who're with us yet,
And well we know if need should be,
'Ere that old flag be furled,
They'd raise her tattered folds again,

And face a frowning world!
What hand would desecrate a star,
What heart would see it dim,
While these old veterans of ours
Still raise their battle hymn,
'Rally round the flag, boys!
Rally once again!
Shouting the Battle Cry of Freedom!

See the gray beards sway,
Mark the flashing of the eye
That speaks not of decay!
Amid the pelting of the rain,
The cold that chills the blood,
They marched along with jest and song,
Drenched by that Autumn flood!
What heart with one last spark of fire,
Could view that halting line
And not rejoice with heart and voice
That their dear flag is mine?

No miscreant arm shall lower a star,
No foreign foe shall dim,
While memory of that splendid march
Recalls their Battle Hymn!
'Rally round the flag, boys,
Rally once again!
Shouting the Battle Cry of Freedom."

Miss Dixon was at Wakefield today.

The Normal Commencement

son welcomed the class of 1912 into the association which was responded to in a neat speech by Miss Beechel, a member of the present graduating class.

Commencement Exercises
Those who attended the commencement day exercises at the Normal chapel Wednesday morning, and there were many, will long remember what they heard on that occasion.

Beginning with the ideals of the past, good and grand as they were, the foundation of the ideals of today, the address showed how ideals had grown and are growing; that the teachings of Christ are becoming more and more the ideals of the present time.

His peroration was grand and inspiring beyond description and pictured an ideal of the twentieth century that is coming nearer and nearer to the one ideal character he would have all strive to emulate.

President Conn introduced Robert I. Elliott, who with a few fitting remarks on behalf of the State Board of Education conferred upon each member of the class of 1912 the certificate to which they were entitled in the course of work they had completed.

Wayne joins with the carnival company and the Base Ball association in inviting everyone and their folks to come and celebrate next week. Encouraging Base Ball Notes
(By an Officer)

Season opens Wednesday, the first day of Carnival week. Our team plays Winside and there will be plenty of sport. Winside has a bunch of salaried men who are hard to beat.

Carroll comes the following day with a team that has been been playing good ball.

Stanton will be here Friday and the old-time rivalry between these two teams insures a good game.

Depew will catch; Hunter will play third; Carey shortstop; Ringler second; Shellington plays left field; Leavens center or right field; Cress will play first base or center field. It has not been decided who will pitch. The club has two or three good men in view who are coming to try out when we go to Stanton Monday.

There will have to be some fancy pitching done by outside teams to keep the score down on our boys.

Unless we are badly mistaken there are several men on our club who will hit over the 300 mark all season.

John Kate is practicing on an X-Ray curve for the opening game.

We are going to have more, better and cleaner base ball this year than ever.

All northeast Nebraska has the base ball fever and every team seems anxious to meet and play Wayne. We have letters from several semi-professional teams from Omaha, teams from Iowa and South Dakota, all of whom have heard of Wayne's club and would think it a great credit to defeat us. There is nothing that will advertise a town quicker than a good ball team and we have a club of gentlemanly fellows who will bring us credit.

F. A. Berry is riding about in a car which he recently purchased and he kindly remembers less fortunate friends.

There will be a business meeting of the M. E. Ladies Aid society in the church parlor Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, June 6. All the ladies of the church requested to be present.

Mrs. Wright returned from Omaha Wednesday evening, where she had been to spend a few days with her daughter who is ill there. The young lady is slowly improving in health.

Social Notes

The Bible Study Circle had a most enjoyable afternoon yesterday at the pleasant home of Mrs. Wm. Christensen. The Winside ladies have invited the circle to meet with them on the eleventh of June and quite a number are planning to attend their service. Mrs. Williamson will lead the next meeting at Mrs. Henry Giese's.

The Degree team of Golden Rod Camp of Royal Neighbors, has accepted an invitation to visit the camp at Norfolk next week and give the initiatory and floor work there. The camp at Wayne has one of the best drilled teams for that work in the state.

Miss Ruth Bressler entertained the Bridge club at her home Tuesday evening. Three tables were occupied by the players and delicious candy served. Miss Katherine Ross of Pennsylvania was the guest of honor.

Miss Ella McVay entertained the Sunday school class of the Baptist church at her home Wednesday night. About twenty members were present who enjoyed a general good time. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. W. H. Schorer went to Norfolk Wednesday evening to attend memorial services at that place and decorate the grave of her father.

The Helping Hand society will meet for a social afternoon with Mrs. Fred Philleo tomorrow.

The ladies of St. Mary's Guild gave Mrs. Kruger a most pleasant surprise yesterday afternoon.

Judge Powers from Norfolk was a Wayne visitor Wednesday.

Prof. J. T. House was called to Randolph Thursday evening to deliver an address to the graduating class at that place.

Mrs. Magnus Paulson was called to Emerson Tuesday to attend the funeral of her father, C. W. Perry, who died suddenly the night before.

W. H. Morris and wife, Dr. Gamble, Mrs. H. B. Jones, Mrs. Jas. Miller and a number of others were at Sioux City the fore part of the week where they heard the famous Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

Top-Notch Cattle Prices

Messrs. Hanssen & Wamburg and Chas. B. Thompson have broken all previous price records for cattle at Wayne within the past week. They bought 70 head of choice ones from Wm. Watson at $8.45 per cwt., which is said to be the highest price ever paid here. They also bought 65 head from Mike Coleman, paying him $7.50 for the heifers in the bunch and $8.25 of the fat steers. There are but few people who really believe that the Farmers and Feeders will go broke at present prices for farm produce, but it is a little expensive for those who have to buy it for eating.

Dr. Cadwell was here from West Point this week visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. L. Soules.

Douglas County Cows

The Agricultural Experiment station which is a part of the Nebraska university, says the World Herald, has just issued a bulletin, No. 1291, concerning the results of Douglas County Cow Testing association. It says that the Holstein cow, Roxanna, has a record for one year of 757 pounds of butter fat, the little Jersey, Jacoba Irene, 952 pounds, and the Guernsey heifer, Dimple, 906 pounds. With this sort of stock in existence, some Nebraska farmers are working away with cows producing 80 to 100 pounds. It is declared that there is no question that there are 200,000 cows in Nebraska that do not pay for their keep, and that the profit from the other 500,000 can be greatly increased if not doubted, thus adding millions to the income of the cow owners of the state. The tables contained in the bulletin shows an enormous difference in the quantity of milk produced by cows in the same herd, the differences running as high as 11,000 pounds during the year. There were sixteen herds in Douglas county tested in this way. The report says:

"Just west of Omaha, in Douglas county, is located a very prosperous, progressive farming community. Here the price of farm land is already in the neighborhood of $200 per acre. In this locality and in this connection it is of interest to note that even the farmer, who years ago could not be forced into dairying, has now turned to it and is getting very satisfactory results."

This county is no more favorably situated for dairying than a majority of the counties in the state. Even if the number of cows was not increased, but brought up to the standard that they could attain in two or three years Nebraska could add many millions to its products every year and create more wealth than ever came from the mines of coal, gold and silver of any other state. It is to be hoped that the bulletin will be generally circulated among farmers.

For the thinking farmer there is no feature of that great weekly farm publication, the Iowa Homestead, but has a dependable value. Even its advertisements are a source of interest and profit to the reader. Oftentimes the advertisements of a single week afford a means by which a farmer may save enough to by his subscription for a lifetime. The Homestead wants live farmer agents in this county. Our readers may secure The Homestead and this paper at the low rate of $1.75 per year for both papers if orders are left at this office. For liberal terms to agents address James M. Pierce, Des Moines, Iowa.

GOLLMER BROTHERS Arrange for the Children

Gollmer Brothers Show, which is booked to exhibit one day only in Wayne, on May 31st, has made unusual efforts to entertain the little folks as well as the adults with wholesome and profitable amusement. The date of a visit by the Gollmer Brothers becomes a veritable "children's day."

In this country there are hundreds of large cities and good towns where the Gollmer Brothers Show is popular. It is always accorded a hearty welcome and a liberal patronage wherever it exhibits. The Gollmer's would like to please the children of every community, but it is a physical impossibility for their circus to visit all of its towns at just the right time. To do such a thing would necessitate the dividing of the show, and this they would not do. No matter how small a town the Gollmer Brothers Circus may visit, it is never divided. It is one of the little rules that has made the combination what it is.

It is a fact that the Gollmer's made greater efforts, and have gone to more expense to entertain the little folks than any other managers. Older people can always find entertainment, but it is the little ones that are neglected by many. Almost one-half of the space in the animal tent is filled with the finest Shetland ponies ever seen in one collection. They are of all sizes and colors. These ponies are used in the magnificent parade to pull the little cages of the miniature menagerie. Almost one side of the big menagerie tent is filled with little, cute and costly cages, made in imitation of the larger ones. These small cages are inhabited by small animals, such as monkeys, etc. In the circus proper, there are many clowns, who are employed for the sole purpose of entertaining the children. Buster Brown is there, too.

In addition to these attractions must be added the several acts of trained animals. The child who is so fortunate as to have enjoyed such amusement is winning much in an educational way.

EYE STRAIN.

First Felt Not in the Eyes, but in the Organ That Is Weakest.

No human organ, except possibly the heart is called on for such hard and continuous activity. Even the most musical ear is never taxed beyond the three or four hours of a Wagnerian opera and at the worst is rested by frequent intermissions. The brain, even in the case of professional men, is called on for only six to eight hours of work a day. But we use our eyes in business all day and then all evening in our amusements. In point of fact, the heart itself is less severely taxed.

The eye has, to be sure, a most marvelous strength. As long as its mechanism remains measurably correct it seldom or never gives out, and its vitality is supreme. But when to the strain of near work in artificial light are added defects in its own mechanism even this wonderfully adaptable and hardy servant gives symptoms of strain.

The brain is generally our first informer. It automatically supplies the energy that flogs the lens muscle to its ceaseless task, and it is in the closest possible sympathy with the retina, the sensitive plate on which all vision is recorded. The brain declares its exhaustion in headache and vertigo. The masterful eye, so to speak, shunts off its suering upon the nearest neighbor. Yet in many cases even the brain gives no direct symptom. It is the central organ, the highly vital and complex master of the entire system, and it also has a superior way of passing on the kick. Just how it does this oculists do not profess to know. The rule seems to be that eye strain declares itself first in the organ which is nearest and weakest. The stomach, the liver, the intestines, the kidney, the heart or the membranes of nose and throat may develop symptoms while the eye and the brain seem normal.—Metropolitan Magazine.

TOOK HIM LITERALLY.

And the Great Sculptor Houdon Found His Name Changed.

Houdon, the famous French sculptor, rendered great service to the fine arts not only through the masterpieces he left behind him, but also by perfecting the casting of statues in bronze. This art, fallen into disuse since the renaissance, he revived. When he reached his seventy-third year, writes Mr. C. H. Hart and Mr. Edward Biddle in their life of the artist, Houdon withdrew from active work. As a means of agreeable relaxation he began also to frequent the performances at the Comedie Francaise.

It so happened that in consequence of certain alterations the building had to be closed for a considerable period. On the day of its reopening Houdon came as usual, but a new ticket taker had been engaged since his last visit.

"Monsieur, your ticket, please!" this official cried.

"I don't need any," and the venerable figure continued to advance.

"But, monsieur, no one enters without a ticket."

"I have my entree, sir," replied Houdon, growing warm.

"But how do you call yourself?"

"How do I call myself? How do I call myself?" Then pointing to the statue in the peristyle, which he himself had made, "I'm the father of Voltaire!" he cried, and he passed in triumphantly. The amusing part of it is that the next evening as Houdon passed in the ticket taker turned to his assistant and instructed him to subscribe on the register of entries for the evening, "M. Voltaire, le pere."

It is easy to imagine the hilarious reception of this at the Comedie, and for some time after the old sculptor was referred to by this name exclusively.

The Healing Laugh.

Merrionopathy is the science of the healing laugh. Merrionopathy is better than homeopathy or allopathy for curing all the gloom diseases and grouchy complaints that make life miserable. The wise physician well understands the therapeutic value of fun and a cheerful spirit. Medicine may be a necessary and powerful agent in the treatment of illness, but it may fall where fear and melancholy join hands with the disease. Laughter is one of the best medicines in the world and lengthens life as well as brightens it.—Christianity Herald.

Pointing the Path of Duty.

"Don't you think women ought to vote?"

"Of course I do," replied Mr. Growcher. "Man is oppressed by economic conditions which only women can understand. What women want to do is to get together and legislate to prevent hat shops from collecting $40 for a handful of straw and a bunch of feathers."—Washington Star.

"Tit For Tat."
Professor Skeat in his etymological dictionary explains the expression "tit for tat" as "blow for blow" and says that it is a corruption of tip for tap, where tip is a slight tap. He refers to Bullinger's works, l. 283 (Parker society), the translation of which is, I believe, dated 1577. May I be permitted to direct attention to the fact that "tit for tat" had already appeared at an earlier date—in John Heywood's "Proverbs," 1546? Since tit for tat (quoth I) on even hand is set, Set the hares head agaynst the goose jeb-let.

In a note it is stated that "tit for tat" is simply a corruption for tant pour tant. Halliwell-Phillips' dictionary has "tit for tant, tit for tat."—London Notes and Queries.

A Useless Verdict.
"Yes," said the old traveler. "I was on a jury once. It was a murder trial I didn't want the fellow hanged and so stuck out against the other eleven for nine days, locked up in the jury room, when they gave in, and we brought in a verdict of not guilty, and then I was ready to stab myself with spite."

"What about?"
"Cause the mob had hanged the prisoner on the very first day we were locked up."

Soiled Wall Paper.
A wall paperer advises to get a roll of cheap cotton batting for cleaning soiled wall paper. With a piece of the batting go over the surface of the paper lightly. Then with some more batting go over the paper with greater pressure. The result is astonishing. To keep the paper looking well this treatment should be given occasionally.

Well Handled

By F. A. MITCHEL

Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer were wealthy and in the social swim. They were lovers, but Mr. Mortimer had been a gay boy in his time, and it was hard for him to settle down to an interest in one woman. He was an affectionate husband and would have scorned to deliberately prefer any woman to his wife. But he was human, and there were times when it appeared that polygamy would have suited his especial makeup better than the single wife plan. For a number of years after his marriage his family were in danger of a breakup, for there are few women who will forgive a husband criminal inconstancy.

Nevertheless Mr. Mortimer was very much in love with his wife. His escapades were quite free from criminality, and there was not one of the women whom he favored with his attentions that he would have exchanged for his wife. He was simply unappreciative of the danger he was taking for the indulgence of an occasional whim of breaking up his home. It must be admitted that he realized the pain these indulgences would give his wife should she discover one of them.

Mrs. Mortimer employed a woman to come in before she went out to dinner or other functions to dress her. Mlle. Lecroix was her name, and she was very pretty. Mr. Mortimer's peccadilloes had thus far been so trivial, his wife had been so sure of his affection, he was so devoted to his children, that she had had no uneasiness about him. But an incident happened soon after Mlle. Lecroix began to make up the lady for the outside world to look at that seemed to cast a lurid light on the situation.

The French lady's hour for her manipulations was about the time that Mr. Mortimer got home from downtown after business. He would let himself in at the front door with his latch key, hang up his coat and hat in the hall closet, then go upstairs to his wife's bedroom to give and receive the marital kiss. One afternoon when he came home to find Mlle. Lecroix at her decorative work he advanced to do the kissing. Mrs. Mortimer usually sat before a large mirror on these occasions and could see her husband reflected in it as he approached. Her maid was so attractive in appearance that the lady, not overconfident in her husband, often kept an eye on his image from the time he entered the room, with a view to discovering any especial greeting that might pass between the two. But on this occasion the day being warm Mrs. Mortimer was sitting before a window, and instead of using the mirror she held a hand glass.

When Mr. Mortimer entered the hand glass was resting on his wife's lap. The French girl turned as he entered, and at the same time the wife raised the glass. It was only for a second that she caught the reflection of her husband's face, but it was enough.

Neither Mr. Mortimer nor the maid saw the convulsive clutch Mrs. Mortimer gave the mirror, nor did they see her lower lip. She had their secret, but they did not have hers. Mr. Mortimer came around beside her and kissed her, receiving the usual response, though he thought her lips were a trifle cold.

"Anything new downtown, dear?" asked the wife casually.

"Nothing special. Stocks have been better today."

"Well, you'll find the things in the sidebar. I wouldn't take more than one today. You know we're going to the Spinnery, and they have a great deal of wine on the table."

"Right, dear. Shall I bring you up one?"

"No, thanks. I'll have to take one before dinner."

Mr. Mortimer went to the sideboard, never dreaming that he had been found out. Later he and his wife dined out, and he remarked that he had seldom seen her in such good spirits.

A few days later Mrs. Mortimer was being decorated for another function, when the latch key was heard in the lock below. The decorator stood behind the lady's chair dressed in spotless white, and the lady herself was on this occasion also in white. They were not far from the same height and build. As soon as Mrs. Mortimer heard the sounds below she sprang out of her chair and ordered the maid to get into it. Miss Lecroix wonderingly obeyed Mr. Mortimer came up and entered the room, the woman standing behind the chair keeping her face turned toward him. Going to the side of her whom he supposed to be his wife he bent down to kiss her. The scream that greeted him and a burst of laughter from the woman behind the chair caused him to look up at his wife.

He knew at once that the conditions between him and Miss Lecroix had been discovered. Without a word he left the room.

When the couple were at dinner, the children having gone up to bed, Mr. Mortimer said:

"Sweetheart, there's no harm done. I assure you on my word of honor. Possibly there might have been, for that young woman is a siren. Please get rid of her at once. The danger to you and the children and, most of all, to me has passed, and it will never return. Why should it, since I have discovered by your handling of this incident that there's not another woman in the world equal to you?"

And it didn't.

Jam Started as Medicines.

Jam in its early days seems to have been regarded as possessing medicinal properties. Gait in "Annals of the Parish" notes "a new luxury that got in among the commonalty about 1700. By our young men that were snobs going to Jamaica and the West Indies heaps of sugar and coffee beans were brought home, while many, among the cabbages in their yards, had planted berry bushes, which two things bapening together the fashions of making jam and jelly came to be introduced into the village. It was found that jelly was an excellent medicine for a sore throat and jam a remedy as good as London candy for a cough or a cold or a shortness of breath." Did it ever occur to you that "jam" was abbreviated from Jamaica?—London Spectator.

Acute Sense of Hearing.

"Yes," said the prosperous lawyer in speaking to a friend. "I had a long wait before I got any practice, but I am certainly satisfied now with my profession and its emoluments. The early days, the waiting for clients, were hard, though. Why, do you know that I got so after awhile that when I heard a footstep on the stairs I could tell ninety-nine times out of a hundred whether or not the person was coming to my office?"

"Well that is strange," replied his friend. "Your sense of hearing must have been very acute."

"Not so much that," replied the lawyer. "You see, I made up my mind that they were not coming to my office, and ninety-nine times out of a hundred I was right."

When Death Cools His Sting.

There is a curious superstition in Jamaica that if a death occurs in the house all the water in it is poisoned at once and must be thrown away, the reason given being that death cools his "sting" after destroying life in the first water he finds, and as no one can tell—death being invisible—what jar he may choose it is safest to throw it all away. Careful people to save trouble even carry all water out of the house immediately before a death is expected.

MENDING OUR HIGHWAYS

Wayne County Good Roads Organization Formed. Well Attended Meeting at Pavilion Monday Start County Organization

There was a very fair attendance of good road boosters at the meeting called for Monday afternoon to complete the organization for the bettering of the public highways of this county; but it was not representative of the entire county as it should have been. This was perhaps due to the lack of an organized effort to notify and invite the people to attend rather than to indifference to the work.

A permanent organization was partially formed by electing Wm. H. Gildersleeve president, Rev. Alexander Corkey vice-president, J. M. Cherry secretary and H. B. Jones treasurer.

A committee composed of S. E. Auker, Dr. F. C. Zoll and M. Hiscox was named to frame a constitution and by laws to report a meeting on Monday, June 10. Another committee was named to nominate a list of vice-presidents and directors, giving each precinct in the county a representative on the board. Dr. V. B. Vail, Clyde Oman and Frank Strahan were named on this committee.

It was voted to join the state and national association, a representative of the association being present. There was some opposition to this motion, some thinking that the state organization fee was too large and that the amount that would go to them could be better used for work at home. This would seem true unless the representative who was at the meeting Monday failed to tell all that the state organization stands for.

In this organization there is much that is practical that might be done and with co-operation much might be accomplished. An Iowa organization was told of in which each member obligated himself to carry a shovel with him and fix at least two small rough places a day if he found them in his day drive, and thus they soon had little annoying places fixed without expense to the county or the organization.

While telling of good road matters it might be well to mention that there is opportunity now if city and county will work together to materially reduce the steepest grade on the main traveled road from the north. The hill is within the city limits, the low ground outside the city. The county has just completed a concrete culvert here giving ample water-way, so that a permanent grade may be put in and maintained. By city and county working together, the city can furnish the dirt for the grade from the crest of the raise, and the county furnish the place for the dirt to the advantage of the public. If you cut a foot and fill a foot you reduce the grade two feet. This work is of interest to every farmer north of Wayne and to every business man here.

Both Camps Give Figures

Washington, May 25.—With about sixty delegates remaining to be selected, both the Taft and Roosevelt managers, today gave out detailed figures intended to prove their respective claims to absolute control of the Chicago convention. Representative McKinley claimed for President Taft 566 instructed and pledged delegates and conceded 366 to Col. Roosevelt. In neither total did he include the results of the Ohio primaries.

Senator Dixon claimed for Col. Roosevelt 493 instructed 38 pledged and 52 "still to be elected" in Arizona South Dakota, New Jersey and Texas. Adding the LaFollette and Cummins delegates, 46 he claimed a total of 629 for Col. Roosevelt.

Approximately 775 delegates to the democratic convention have been elected or slightly more than two thirds of the total of 1,094.

THE DEMOCRATIC CLAIMS.

The maximum strength claimed by the respective headquarters today was as follows:

Clark, instructed 323; pledged 68; total 391.

Wilson, instructed and pledged 275; certain as second choice 30; total 305.

Underwood, instructed 100.

At Harmon headquarters it was stated that an estimate of strength would be prepared next week.

Home From California

Nels Orcutt returned last week from Chico, California, where he spent the winter—that is, he was there while we had winter. He says they have delightful winter climate there in the valley of the Sacramento. It is a great fruit country, and grows all trees with little or no irrigation, as an unfailing supply of water is obtained at a depth of but twelve feet. The citrus fruits are grown there as well as apples, peaches, pears and plums. Oak trees attain great size there, and grow a very broad top. He saw an oak tree 27 feet in circumference and more than 100 feet tall; and one branch of this tree was 95 feet in length, and was propped up on account of its great weight. He says that redwood trees grow very rapidly there, but this is not the home of the great redwood trees. He saw trees of that kind that had attained a size of 24 inches in diameter in 20 years. There they have fresh vegetables the year round, but little rain and hardly a frost all winter, in fact the freeze that struck California last winter was less severe there than in some place in the south part of the state. It is a spotted country, part excellent soil and part almost worthless. He enjoyed the five winter months greatly.

Kearney and Buffalo Counties in Quarrel Over Payment.

PRICE RETURNS FROM WAHOO

Bids for Rebuilding of North Bend and Fremont Bridges Taken Under Advisement—Short Stock Cars Go Into Discard.

An appeal from the district court of Kearney county to supreme court has been made by Joel Hall against the payment of a claim by the Standard Bridge company of Omaha, amounting to $632.75, one-half of the amount due the company for repairs upon a bridge on the line between Kearney and Buffalo counties. Hall denies that Kearney county ever entered into a contract to pay the amount claimed by the company, claiming that the bridge was built by Buffalo county alone for its sole benefit at a point where there is not nor never has been a public road; that agreement was then made at the time the bridge was built that Kearney county should not at any time be called upon to help keep it up; that the road was located by special act of the legislature, Feb. 19, 1875. He further sets forth that Franklin and Buffalo counties were to pay all expenses in the building of the bridge which was put in to benefit Kearney Junction, the new county seat. The papers filed in the case are very voluminous and the case promises to attract a great deal of attention.

State Engineer Price has returned from Wahoo, where he went to meet with the county board of Saunders county regarding the letting of contracts for the rebuilding of the North Bend and Fremont bridges, which were washed out this spring. There were a large number of bids, running all the way from $58,735 to $85,130 for the North Bend bridge and $59,072 to $89,500 for the Fremont bridge. The bids were taken under advisement until June 6.

CROPS ARE IN FINE SHAPE

Railroad Reports Show That Little Damage Is Done to Date.

The Burlington's crop report shows most of the corn to have been planted and growing nicely, a good stand and unusually free from weeds. This cereal is reported as being about ten days late.

Alfalfa is said to be in unusually good condition. The first crop of alfalfa has been cut and is heavy, ranging from two to three tons per acre.

In most localities in Nebraska and Kansas the reports state that while soaking rains would be most acceptable, they are not very badly needed, adding "that as a rule, there is no extreme need for rain for some time."

Short Stock Cars Go Out.

The railway commission has authorized the Union Pacific to discard all stock cars less than thirty-six feet, six inches long, and hereafter that road will have the same standard for stock cars as the Burlington.

A reduction was also ordered on the wool rate, with an increase in minimum weight of carloads on the Union Pacific road. The company is permitted to change unwashed wool from third to fourth class and to increase the minimum weight from 20,000 pounds to 24,000 pounds.

New Prison Contractor.

The board of public lands and buildings met to consider a proposition from a Wisconsin firm to employ about fifty convicts from the penitentiary for the manufacture of chairs. Leo, the present contractor, has not been using the number of men called for in his contract with the state, neither has he paid for the use of the men he has used for the past three months. It is proposed to release Leo from the contract so far as it covers what convicts the new contractor may use, if it can be arranged.

Seek Pardon for Son From Prison.

John Lieb, a full blooded German, with his wife, a full blooded Omaha Indian squaw, called on the governor for the purpose of getting the release from the penitentiary of their son, who was sentenced to a term of three to ten years for attempted assault. The district judge who sentenced the young man would not recommend a pardon, but thought possibly he had been punished enough with the few months served.

John W. McDonald of Lincoln Dead.

A private message received from New York tells of the death there of John W. McDonald, a pioneer banker and capitalist of Lincoln, who recently underwent an operation in a New York hospital for stomach trouble. Mr. McDonald was a heavy property owner of Lincoln and one of the wealthiest men of the state. He was president of the Lincoln Traction company until the reorganization three years ago.

Target Practice.

Company H, Nebraska national guard, Osceola, is now having its annual target practice on the range. Major Penn, inspector of the guard for the war department, and Captain Kesterson of the guard staff are on duty at the range. There are to be not less than one company officer and eight men present each day and each is allowed two days' pay.

BERLINGHOFF GETS HIS CASH

Board of Public Lands and Buildings Allows $1,000 Bill.

The board of public lands and buildings ordered two spiral fire escapes for state buildings, not now equipped with this means of lifesaving in case of fire. One is the low grade building at the Kearney school for the feeble minded. This is the building in which the pupils of lowest intelligence are quartered. Another is on the only building at the Hastings hospital for the insane which is not already so equipped. The fire escapes cost about $1,000 each.

The board also contracted for an electric lift-food dummy for the Norfolk hospital for the insane. The board also voted to pay Architect Berlinghoff $1,000 as a balance on his fee for designing and superintending the construction of the new building at the Norfolk hospital. The amount was appropriated by the legislature to be paid Berlinghoff when the building was completed and accepted. Land Commissioner Cowies voted against the payment, the other three members in favor. Cowies says the work of the architect was not satisfactory.

TOTAL CANDIDATES SPEND

Twenty-two Thousand Dollars Spent of Record in Primaries.

A footing of the amounts which candidates in the recent primaries admit they spent either in the effort to obtain a nomination or the accomplishment of the object is $22,109.36. Some of the losing candidates and one winner, W. J. Bryan, did not file expense accounts.

Secretary of State Wait is now preparing lists of the nominees of the various parties to be certified out to the state committee of each of the parties. The new primary law requires this to be done, in addition to the certification to county clerks, to put the names on the ballots in the fall. In the case of several candidates of the Populist and Socialist parties where there were ties, the persons interested will be notified to appear at the secretary's office and draw lots for the place.

Mitchell Bonds Refused.

Lincoln, May 29.—The state auditor has refused to accept the bonds of the town of Mitchell, voted some time since for the purpose of a sewerage system. The grounds for the action are based upon the fact that the bonds were voted by an act covering internal improvements, but does not include sewerage. The auditor claims that a special act provides for sewers, but provides that the bonds shall not exceed 5 per cent. The Mitchell bonds call for 6 per cent and on that provision the bonds were refused by the auditor.

Judges to Take Vacation.

The supreme court is preparing to take its summer vacation, the last sitting of the court being scheduled to commence June 2. Though there will be no hearings after that week until September, the court has a large number of cases under consideration which have been argued and submitted, which will be sufficient to keep the justices out of mischief most of the time at least. Judge Barnes has been showing symptoms of uneasiness, however, for some time, every time anyone indicated the conditions were right for fishing.

Road Work for Convicts.

Secretary Mellor of the state board of agriculture has proposed to the governor that the idle convicts at the penitentiary be used to improve the roads leading to the state fair grounds. The roads are sadly in need of improvement, but the fair board has no fund available and the city appears disinclined to spend the cash for the purpose. The governor has not decided definitely to adopt the suggestion, but thinks favorably of the plan and unless some valid objection is raised it probably will be put into practice.

Morley Wills His Head.

Charles Morley, the convict serving a life term for the murder of Warden Delahanty, has willed his head to Dr. M. G. Welch, the prison physician. During his trial one of the points of his defense was that a bullet fired into his head and imbedded in the brain had rendered him irresponsible. When he dies he wants Dr. Welch or his successor to make a post mortem and see just what effect the bullet had on the brain.

Democratic Committee Meets.

Lincoln, May 29.—About seventy-five Democrats met at the Lincoln hotel here, subject to the call for the members of the state committee to meet and select alternates to the national convention. After some discussion as to the method of selecting a place to hold the state convention, Grand Island was chosen, receiving 15 votes; York, 6; Lincoln, 3, and Omaha, 2.

Bullheads for Distribution.

The state fish commission has received a large consignment of bullheads of exceptional size and is distributing them over the state, sending them particularly to waters where other fish could not thrive. The fish come from the lakes in Cherry county and there was so many of them in the tanks that a large number died in transit but even then there was plenty to send out.

Flage Admitted to Bar.

William Flage, under sentence for manslaughter for the killing of his sister, was admitted to bar in the sum of $15,000, the supreme court approving his bond. He lives in Dixon county.

USE THE DRAG ON YOUR ROADS

Advice From D. Ward King on Proper Time to Drag.

WHEN THE SOIL IS JUST MOIST

Novel Method of Keeping Roads in Good Shape Employed by Automobile Testers in Lansing, Mich., Has Succeeded Admirably.

Much trouble has been caused by persons who advise others to drag the earth road while it is muddy, says D. Ward King, father of the drag. The drag does not give perfect satisfaction, as a rule, when so used. In fact, I have known of many instances where a trial of that plan has so disgusted a man that he has thrown up the whole job and declared it a fake.

The proper time to drag, the earth road is when the soil is "moist, but not sticky;" moist enough to pack, but not wet enough to fasten itself to the slabs of the drag.

The idea of using the drag when the mud is like mortar is a seriously mistaken one.

The testers of the Olds Motor works, automobile manufacturers, have adopted a novel and what is stated to be an efficient method of preserving the country roads over which the tests of the automobiles are made near the company's plant at Lansing, Mich.

Most of the roads are of earth, and the work of repairing the damage done by driving the automobile running gears over the roads at high speeds is accomplished by attaching a road drag to the chassis itself while making the tests. The testers are usually allotted a certain stretch of road, making a circuit over which they drive each chassis which is to be tried out. Under the direction of the chief tester some of the roads have been dragged several times during the past season. As a consequence the roads are in excellent condition, it is said.

The officials of the automobile company state that it is a matter of policy with them to keep the roads in the vicinity of the factory in as good condition as possible and that this use of the drag is an efficient method of doing it.

One of the accompanying illustrations shows a view of a road being dragged in the manner described and gives an idea of the condition of the road previous to dragging. The other illustration shows the same roadway after it had been dragged several times.

Elastic Roads in Switzerland.

An interesting experiment has been made with promising results at Zurich. Fine gravel, the grains averaging from one-twentieth to one-twelfth of an inch in diameter, the whole carefully freed from earthy substances, was coated in a revolving drum with tar. These pellets were then carefully dried and hardened and after eight or ten weeks were spread during dry weather in a thick layer upon a prepared roadbed and rolled. The road thus formed is inexpensive, possesses a certain elasticity and is said to withstand well the effects of heavy traffic. The desirability of a slightly elastic road for saving wear and tear and suppressing noise is evident.

There are no stumps in the coun- try, no ward heelers, no dives, no houses of infamy, no schools of crime. But there are indescribably awful roads, especially in the winter.

A Good Move.

It is a good idea to have a clean ditch at each side of the road before winter. The other day a farmer plowed a good furrow out of each ditch of the road alongside his farm, and he pulled the dirt over the grade with a road drag. It was a neat thing to do. The dirt put on the grade was not enough to make mud, but enough to open a clear track for the water into each ditch.

GOOD ROAD MAXIMS.

Get on the good roads wagon. A mile of good road is worth thousands of columns of speeches and resolutions. Build a mile. Instead of cursing your earth road, drag it. The public road is occupying the best thought of the nation. Get down to business in the matter of building roads. Buy a road roller and fix your old roads. The farmers' greatest need is improved highways. Good roads will check the rush of the farm to the city by making country life more attractive. One man and a pair of mules can drag ten miles of road a day. If you can't do anything else, why not drag your road? Make a road drag and get busy on your earth roads while they are soft and you will have a smooth surface when summer comes. The application of a little "horse sense" to the maintenance of most roads would be a mighty good investment.

GOOD ROAD WORK MORE THAN DOUBLED IN A YEAR.

New York State Has an Envyable Highway Record.

An extraordinary amount of road work was done last year on roads of New York as compared to the previous year, according to the annual report of the state highway commission, which has been submitted to the legislature. Last year 932 miles of new work were started and 540 miles completed, while in the previous year 513 miles were started and 430 miles finished. This year the commission will work on 1,800 miles of good roads, both state and county, at an approximate cost of $22,000,000.

The commissioners report that 5,907 miles of country roads and 1,340 miles of state roads will have to be laid in order to complete the original system of good roads in the state. To this end a new $50,000,000 bond will be required, and it is asked for.

The commission recommended the planting of shade trees along the roads of the state and asks for the co-operation of the conservation commission. The abolishment of all toll bridges is called along the Mohawk, Delaware and Hudson rivers. The necessity for improving all roads which are feeders to the state system was brought to the attention of the town boards.

The commission is composed of State Superintendent of Highways C. Gordon Reel, State Engineer Bensei and State Superintendent of Public Works Peck and took the place of the highway commission created under Hughes' administration.

SURVEY DIRT ROADS.

Pennsylvania Engineers Working Along Lines of the Sproul Act.

Two corps of engineers under the supervision of Edward S. Frey, an assistant engineer of the Pennsylvania state highway department, are surveying roads in York and Adams counties which will be included in the system of main highways of the state to be constructed under the Sproul act by the recent legislature.

The electors of the state will be asked to authorize the expenditure of $50,000,000 for the improvements. There is at present $5,000,000 available for the purpose.

Mud Roads Relic of Barbarism.

Mud roads are a relic of barbarism and always indicate a people of slow and unprogressive habits. If a stranger should ride over all the roads in any county and find them all macadamized he would be ready to bet on the superior intelligence and enlightenment of the people, whether he met a single one or not. The roads of any county can be greatly improved by the road drag, and now is the time to do it. Some farms have already been enhanced several dollars per acre by the simple process of keeping the roads to them in good condition by the vigorous use of the drag.

Roads Need Attention.

Perhaps nothing has been exploited to a greater extent than the King road drag, and perhaps there is no implement that is more generally neglected. Whether past experience shows that the road drag is not the useful and valuable implement its champions would have us believe or whether it is simply neglecting the use of a good thing is not apparent, but the result is the same. The roads need attention, and they need it more frequently than they get it. If the road drag is not the thing then something else should be used. But use something.

Maintaining Gravel Roads.

In order to maintain a gravel road in good condition it is well to keep piles of gravel alongside at frequent intervals, so that the persons who repair the road can get the material without going too far for it. As soon as ruts or holes appear on the surface some of this good fresh material should be added and stamped into position or kept raked smooth until properly consolidated.

Nine Miles of Roads Built.

Nine miles of streets and roads have been built in Anniston, Ala., by Mayor J. L. Wike during the past three years, and it is estimated by Street Overseer W. E. Parker that if the work had been done by contract it would have cost at least $15,000.

A Crippled Mind

Many strong minds, giant intellects, are held down and starved out by crippled digestive power, dyspepsia and the poison absorbed as a result of chronic constipation. If your stomach lacks digestive power the natural and simplest thing to do is to put into it the agents it lacks. Above all things avoid strong drugs that paralyze and irritate the stomach and bowels. A sound, healthy stomach contains the same digestive agents Spruce Pepsin tablets contain. Spruce Pepsin tablets will digest fermenting, decaying food that lays like a lump in your stomach. We have proved this thousands of times or we would not dare spend thousands of dollars to prove it to every sufferer from stomach trouble. We will send you a trial box FREE. Harness and Collar Talk...

The only harness that will give absolute satisfaction is one sewed by hand, the old-fashioned way and made of pure oak tanned leather, tanned by pure chestnut oak bark. Such harness wears longer than any two sets made by a machine.

Likewise Collars. My collars are manufactured from the best of pure oak tanned collar leather and sewed with pure oak tanned thongs. As a result the sewing does not give away and it does not become necessary for you to have them repaired after a few montes service.

The only place to purchase harness and leather goods of this high merit is
