THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Was Not Largely Attended, and Was Controlled by Progressives. Delegates Named for State Convention, and County Central Committee Named.

The Republican county convention which met at the court house last Saturday afternoon was almost entirely progressive, the standpat element of the party having been nearly all eliminated at the precinct caucuses. In Wayne, the third ward was the only caucus in which the progressive element met any opposition, and it was voted down and out so far as being delegate to the county convention was concerned.

There are those who question the right of the progressives to meet under the name of the republican party call, but the progressives claim the right as theirs by "Previous condition of servitude."

—that they were in good standing and voted with the party believing that it then stood in a great measure for the progressive ideas; finding that it did not measure up to what they thought it did they, being in the majority, propose to say what party ideals should be, and those who find them too progressive to follow may remain wedded to their old idols. But it is not our fight, and we only want to tell of it and let them fight it out to a finish. Taking the past history of the democratic party as an index, progressive republicans have a long fight ahead of them before they wrest the party machinery from the monied power, and we believe that they can do it quicker and better by working with the progressive democrats than in any other way.

Prof. C. H. Bright was made chairman of the meeting Saturday, and Bert Brown secretary for both permanent and temporary organizations. No resolutions were presented, and no long speeches made. But the liberality of the body was shown when it invited W. D. Redmond, one of the leading democrats, to address the meeting telling why Governor Wilson should be elected. This honor was modestly declined by Mr. Redmond, thus missing an opportunity to bring into the democratic fold those who had not been previously accused of not being within the republican party, though participating in a republican convention.

The following delegates were elected to attend the state convention to be held at Lincoln: A. R. Davis, Frank Erxleben, Geo. W. Yaryan, A. T. Chapin, C. H. Hendrickson, Bert Brown, John C. Davis, R. R. Smith, W. W. Kingsbury, nine progressives.

After selecting the following precinct committeemen convention adjourned:

Wayne 1st Ward, C. A. Chace, Wayne 2nd Ward, Geo. Lamberston,

Wayne 3rd Ward, Bert Brown, Hoskins, Ed Behmer, Garfield, J. C. Davis, Sherman, T. A. Jackson, Hancock, S. H. Rew, Winside, H. E. Siman, Chapin, Wm. Prince, Deer Creek, Geo. Yaryan, Brenna, A. E. Gildersleeve, Strahan, Aug. Wittler, Wilbur, James Griener, Plum Creek, Geo. Berris, Hunter, W. L. Cunningham, Leslie, Amos Longe, Logan, Frank Crane, The members of the new committee were called to meet and organize the first Saturday in August.

Home From Germany

Wm. Dammeyer and wife arrived here from Germany Friday evening. They left here last spring to visit relatives and friends in their old home, and entertained some thought of remaining in their native land; but after the visit was over and they considered conditions there and compared them to America both agreed that they had been too long in the west to ever be contented with conditions in Germany. It appeared too slow—too much of a settled and fixed condition. The country is developed, roads paved, buildings all done, business all settled in ruts; the majority of men in business there contented with what comes to them and expecting to retain the business for life. He could have bought business places there in his line, but when it came to a show down they thought they preferred America.

We hope that Mr. Dammeyer will decide to locate again in Wayne, for he has many friends here, and we do not know of a better place for him to set up again.

Under An Auto

Last Sunday Henry Oldham, the Ferris wheel man with the National Amusement and Carnival company came near meeting his fate. He has an automobile and when the company is changing from one place to another tours across country in the car, taking his wife and some of the company with him. Last Sunday they were leaving Clearwater for Petersburg, and having got a late start was dusting along at a 2:40 gait or better, when they came to an angle in the road, and in trying to make the slight turn at the high speed the car skidded and turned turtle. Part of the occupants were thrown out and part held under the car, but fortunately no one was killed or even seriously injured.

Base Ball Notes for the Week

By Official Reporter

When the expenses of running the team this year were considered it was estimated that the gate receipts would at least be as large as they were last year, namely $150. At the present rate they will fall about 20 per cent below this and as the management is determined to end the season without any indebtedness we must all try and boost the gate receipts a little. This falling off in base ball attendance is a condition that is troubling every town and city this year. Newspapers the country over, are commenting on it and trying to discover the reason. Many claim that the great interest in politics is the factor that has hurt the attendance. They argue that many of the dyed-in-the-wool fans discuss the respective merits of Roosevelt, Wilson and Taft until they forget to get out and root for the home team. However, it is a condition that has to be met. In our case it is not so serious but that just a little raise in the attendance will overcome it. We have sixteen games yet on the home grounds. If we can average $60 a game we will make both ends meet. Just make it a point to get out to the games. Take the wife or best girl. You'll have a good time and feel well repaid. The team is going fine. We have had but two games of poor ball out of all that have been played and now that we know the merits of all the teams around us we will be careful to schedule only good games.

The class of ball played has been the best we have ever had. We have won a big majority of the games we have played and those that have been lost were lost by very small scores and several of them in extra innings. The boys have conducted themselves in an exemplary manner. There has not been a bit of rough play, umpire baiting or scrapping such as is often seen and every town they have visited commend their gentlemanly conduct and base ball ability.

Since last week's paper was issued three games have been played and all have been won. Pierce was defeated 4 to 2; Carroll 3 to 0; Wisner 3 to 0. Today we meet Bloomfield and Saturday Coleridge. The games will be hotly contested and a great credit to the team that wins them. Bloomfield and Coleridge have lost very few games this year, but we are going to upset them if it can be done.

Official Scorekeeper Fred M. Pile, promises to have a tabulated report of the player's batting and fielding averages ready for next week's issue.

Walworth, who pitched for us last year did the pitching for Wisner Tuesday and showed good improvement over last year's form. Poor support at a critical time was responsible for one of the scores, and wild base running shut his team out of their only chance to cross the plate. Ryan of Wisner umpired and while he did not see the balls and strikes a couple of times just as the players and spectators saw them, he was fair and impartial to both sides.

Which reminds us of a pretty good "umpire" story that will illustrate how differences can arise between the "umps" and the bleachers: In a close game all of the fans in the right field bleacher were particularly caustic in their remarks about the umpire's lack of judgment on decisions. In the fifth inning this umpire climbed into the bleachers and sat down among these critics. They immediately wanted to know what he was doing there instead of out in the diamond. To which he replied, "You fellows up here seem to be able to umpire so much better from these seats than I can out there that I thought maybe you had a better place to see the play from than I had, so I came up here to try it awhile." Then they let him alone.

Stock Shipments

There was a very light run of stock the past week, only a dozen cars from Wayne. They went out as follows: Simon Goeman 5 cars of hogs, Perry & Gildersleeve 2, Strahan & Kingsberry 1, R. A. McEachen 1 and Jas. McIntosh—1. M. D. Coleman shipped two cars of cattle to South Omaha. One car of hogs went to that market, the others to Sioux City.

Restraining Order Issued

George and I. D. Henderson, who have property in Roosevelt Park addition to Wayne, are plaintiff in an action to enjoin Nels Orcutt from building a dwelling on what Mr. Orcutt supposed was his lot, and which the Hendersons thought was a street to their residence. The record shows that A. B. Slater deeded this property with adjoining tract to Perry Bros. some twenty-five years ago, and in the deed was a clause stating that the grantees reserved this tract as a street for themselves and their heirs, etc., and it has since then been open and used by those who desired to for street purposes. About fifteen years ago Mr. Slater deeded the same tract to Mr. Orcutt, who has since supposed that it was his property, and has regularly paid taxes on the same, and some time ago started to build, putting in a foundation and then waiting until about two weeks ago, when carpenters began work, and then Hendersons soon began proceedings to maintain their roadway open. Last Thursday a restraining order was issued, and a hearing is set for this afternoon before Judge A. A. Welch.

There are thus three claimants to the property, Mr. Orcutt, by deed from Slater, who appears to have previously deeded same property with street reservation which would make the public a claimant, and Perry Bros. to whom it was deeded with the street clause, and who claim that if it is not a street it belongs to them. There is the groundwork for a perplexing legal tangle.

To Mill Now and Then

Weber Brothers inform us that it is now quite common for the farmer to come to mill with his grist in an automobile, change it for the ground equivalent and choo-choo home again. That is quite different from forty-five years ago when the writer had to go to mill on horseback with the grain hanging in either end of a sack over the back of the faithful old mare, wait from two to eight hours for "your turn" and then start back up the steep, winding road which led up out of the valley in which the mill nestled beside the little stream that furnished the motive power. It was almost equal to a picnic to get a day off to go to mill. The mill was owned by German Lutheran people, and they had their holidays and holy days, and it frequently happened that American families went to mill on one of those days, not thinking that it was different from any week day, and they were lucky indeed if they got even so much as a look in at the mill to leave their grist and come for it some other day. Frequently there would be no one about and the farmer had to haul the grist home again. A trip of that kind always set the one making it to studying the almanac when he was planning to go to mill next time. In those days every man was supposed to get the flour from his own wheat, less the toll, and farmers were pretty careful not to send poor wheat to mill. That would do for stock to eat.

Corner Stone Layed

Sunday afternoon the corner stone of the new Baptist church at Carroll was laid with appropriate exercises. A large crowd had gathered around the place at the appointed time, temporary seats provided for most of them. Rev. Reeves had charge of the services. The address was made by Rev. B. P. Richardson of Wayne on "The Significance of a Church to a Community."

The people are undertaking a splendid piece of work, which when completed will give them more than double the present room. They are to be congratulated upon this new enterprise.

Wayne Depot Case

Progress is being made slowly with the Wayne depot case now before the supreme court. The attorneys for the railroad now have their briefs and abstracts in the case finished, and the commissioners are no doubt now preparing their answer. According to its place on the court calendar and the speed with which such cases are moved up toward a hearing it is not probable that the case will be reached before fall.

Social Notes

Miss Ina Hughes entertained about 18 young people at her home in the west part of town, last Thursday evening, complimentary to her friend, Miss Mary Larsen. Music, games and other amusements helped to while away the pleasant hours at the close of which the guests were invited to partake of a dainty three course luncheon. Those present report a very jolly time.

Miss Eva Mellor entertained a number of her lady friends at her beautiful home on the heights yesterday afternoon. The girls spent part of the afternoon posing for camera fiends, who wanted something to keep the memory of these happy little occasions ever green in their hearts. The hostess then served delicious refreshments.

The Bible Study circle met at the cozy home of Mrs. Oliver Graves Wednesday afternoon. There was a large attendance and much interest shown in the study, Mrs. Clinkenbeard being leader. Next week the farewell meeting will be held at Mrs. C. A. Grothe's home where all are invited to this Rally day service.

The Ladies Aid society of the M. E. church will meet next Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Theodore Duerig, for "tea and talk" and Mesdames Bruner, Samuelson and McVicker will assist the hostess in serving the refreshments.

Mrs. J. J. Williams entertained the Helping Hand society at cards last Friday afternoon, the players occupying three tables. At the close of the delightful afternoon the hostess served an elaborate course luncheon.

The ladies of the G. A. R. will meet Saturday, August 3rd, for the initiation of members and all members are urged to be present. Ice cream and cake will be served.

Mrs. A. A. Welch entertained at a beautifully appointed six-thirty dinner complimenting Mrs. Welty of Washington, the guest of Mrs. M. S. Davies.

The ladies of St. Mary's Guild met at the home of Mrs. J. P. Gaertner Wednesday for a social afternoon.

Mr. Renter.

Dear Sir:—Why stay here and pay big rent when you can go to Minnesota and get a home in the Red River Valley? Well improved, not over six miles from town at $40.00 to $60.00 per acre and on easy terms. Our excursions are on the first and third Tuesdays of the month. Next Tuesday is the day, come in and see me for further particulars. 30tf. F. H. Benshoof, Agent.

Political Straws

New Jersey will have a complete Roosevelt ticket in the field this fall.

The Nebraska republican convention gives promise of being about half and half.

Uncle Sam is after the sugar trust. To take the tariff off would be a good way to hit that combine.

There are six attorneys at least waiting to step into Judge Gaynor's shoes over in the 4th judicial district of Iowa, if the judge is elected to the supreme bench.

Governor Wilson has retired from public view a time to write his letter of acceptance. We thought he would accept. President Taft is denying all visitors while he tells on what terms he will run the race.

In Kansas the President's action through the court to oust the five Roosevelt electors from the ticket was decided against the President. Wonder if the president would not like to have the recall power enlarged?

Illinois will have Taft and Teddy tickets in the race this fall and naturally the Wilson and Marshall ticket will win; in fact, we think that Wilson will win over either of them alone and he surely can beat the two.

Woodrow Wilson will continue to be governor of New Jersey while running for president. That is right. The people of his state have not recalled him, but the people of the nation are calling him to a higher position.

Finn of Pittsburgh has had an all-day set too with Terry about the situation in Pennsylvania, and from the little that either of them say the inference is that they do not agree. The public awaits to learn who is to be boss.

George C. Scott was nominated at LeMars by the republicans of the 11th Iowa congressional district to succeed congressman, E. H. Hubbard.

Iowa democrats are holding their state convention at Cedar Rapids today.

The progressive republicans of Iowa opened a state convention at Des Moines Wednesday, but at this writing they had taken no definite action in regard to a state ticket and it is thought that only an electoral ticket will be named.

The latest report indicates that the progressive element will control the Nebraska republican state convention. And the more returns that come in the more it looks that way.

A Lincoln dispatch says that Governor Aldrich is sending out notices of assessment for campaign purposes to those who hold office by virtue of his appointing power. This may not be a holdup, but there are probably few who would care to refuse.

The Nicest Tooth Paste we ever saw

Nydena Cream is the most delightful and effective tooth cleanser and preservative you can possibly use.

Nydena enters the crypts and crevices of the teeth—even where the bristles of the brush fail to go prevents fermentation and inhibits the growth of disease germs upon the mucous membranes of the mouth.

Nydena Cream is a prophylactic and preservative it supplies the cleansing elements necessary to tooth preservation, elements that are found in the normal secretions of every mouth but always absent in the presence of decay.

It hardens the gums; protects, whitens, and polishes the enamel of the teeth—sweetens and perfumes the breath.

There is absolutely no waste to Nydena—it is clean and economical.

BRIEF GLIMPSES OF CARROLL, NEBRASKA

And It's Commercial and Social Advantages.
—Brief Business Sketch

Carroll, Nebraska, the subject of this sketch, is situated about ten miles northwest of Wayne, the county seat of Wayne county. This little town is nicely located and has good churches and excellent schools. The town is not so very large, but the people that inhabit it are of the highest class and all are genial, happy and prosperous.

In presenting my brief sketch of the place, I do so with a degree of pride, believing as I did, that it is one of the most progressive little towns in the county, furnishing a striking illustration of the possibilities of a wide awake western city of so small dimensions.

Little more than a decade ago it was only known as a small cross road town, today it is a thrifty, bustling village of several hundred prosperous bread winners supplied with modern improvements, up-to-date business houses, and neat and well kept residences. It is located on the Bloomfield branch of the C. St. P. M. & O. railroad which affords it ample shipping facilities.

Carroll is not a town of stately homes of the idle rich, but here every body is busy and consequently everybody is contented. Prosperity is general, and the pitiable contrasts of the comfortable cottage and the magnificent homes as apparent in the average towns are conspicuous only by their absence. An air of newness and neatness in the comfortable cottages and well kept lawns at once impresses the visitors with favor. Improvements are steadily going on and with the fertile country that surrounds Carroll, its future is indeed very promising.

The local merchants of Carroll have met the demands of their trade more than half way in carrying extensive stocks of high class goods, and the people of the town and surrounding country have found that just as good bargains can be obtained in the staples at home, and everybody knows that better home trade means better home stores. Beyond that the home merchant is a citizen whose success means better public improvements, better schools, finer churches, more residences and a prosperous town and country.

The Carroll schools are always supplied with the best educators that can be procured. The churches are presided over by able preachers.

Carroll is surrounded by one of the best and richest agricultural communities that is to be found in any portion of the great state of Nebraska. All the farms are well improved and well stocked, giving the appearance of a high grade intelligent and energetic class of farmers that is a credit to any community. The farmers in this locality are all well to do, and many of them have beautiful homes and are blessed with an abundance of everything desired. It can be said of Carroll that it is brim full of business enterprise with as thriving and industrious a set of business men as can be found in any town, who never turn down a proposition that will be of interest to the town. The commercial interests of the town are well represented in all branches of business.

The people of Carroll and surrounding county can boast of one of the greatest enterprises of this section of the country. This enterprise is known far and near as the Carroll Stock Pavilion association. This institution was organized under the laws of the state of Nebraska in 1907, with a membership of seventy-seven stockholders, who hold one hundred and twenty-three shares of the stock at $25.00 per share. The stock is mostly all held by the business men of Carroll and the farmers around. Some of the shares, however, are held by parties living in Wayne. The officers of the association are J. H. Porter, president; H. L. Bredemeyer, secretary; and Daniel Davis, treasurer. The association was organized for the purpose of originating a sale and exhibit place for the display of any surplus stock that the farmers and others may have to dispose of. It will be shown farther on in this article to what success the enterprise has met with. These sales and exhibits are held in the fall and spring of each year. Usually it is opened about the middle of December and is continued every alternate Saturday until about the middle of March. The writer is informed that on these sale days the people came for miles, and miles from every direction to attend them and that the little town often presents the appearance of a great metropolitan city so large is the crowd on the streets and at the pavilion, which is located just one block north of the main or business part of the town. The building is neatly and conveniently arranged for the display of horses, cattle and hogs, with ample seating capacity for those in attendance. The west part of the building is provided with the regulation stalls for the accommodation of horses, and east side is also arranged with stalls to accommodate horses and cattle. On the north of the main building has recently been added a building for the accommodation of the hogs.

The association handles their sales on a two per cent basis and employ their own auctioneers and do the advertising. Often times during the seasons thoroughbred stock sales are held at the pavilion but are conducted by the owners of the stock, paying the association a rental for the building and grounds. The building has three acres of ground in connection with it. To show the volume of business done at these sales I am informed that the sales at the pavilion during the fall of 1910 and spring of 1911 the sales amounted to twenty-eight thousand, six hundred and seventy dollars, and last fall and this spring the sales amounted to sixteen thousand, eight hundred and ten dollars. The sales the past season fell considerably short of the average season, but this was accounted for owing to the shortage of feed last year. The coming season is expected to eclipse any of the past sales, owing to the bright prospects of the present crops.

The following is a review of the different branches of business that is represented in the town:

Wm. B. Hornby & Co., have been in the general merchandise business in Carroll for the past thirteen years and carry a fine and well selected stock of dry goods, notions, shoes, hats, caps and groceries. The stock of goods they handle consists of a fine and well selected line of dry goods, notions, work clothes, hats, caps, shoes and groceries. They are both experienced men in their line, and carry only such goods as their customers demand.

We intend to give away, FREE, cash receipts of this store one day each month.

This is our plan: Our National Cash Register, which we have just installed, issues a printed receipt with each purchase you make.

Be Sure to Get Your Receipt

So Get A Receipt With Your Purchase

In addition to the above plan we will pay you 5 per cent interest on the cash you spend at our store. Just think of it, paying you interest on what you spend.

Many strong minds, giant intellects, are held down and starved out by crippled digestive power, dyspepsia and the poison absorbed as a result of chronic constipation. If your stomach lacks digestive power the natural and simplest thing to do is to put into it the agents it lacks. Above all things avoid strong drugs that paralyze and irritate the stomach and bowels. A sound, healthy stomach contains the same digestive agents Spruce Pepsin tablets contain.

C. W. Hiscox and wife entertained quite a party of relatives at their home Sunday, Mrs. E. J. Hale, coming from Norfolk, Mrs. Maude Osborn and Miss Blanche Reese, cousins, accompanied by three little folks, Eva, Mammie and Francis Boyer, all from Battle Creek, completed the party. They returned Sunday evening to Norfolk.

A card from J. M. Ross, who is at Dr. Nichol's sanatorium at Hot Springs, South Dakota, tells the Democrat readers that he is getting on nicely. He also sent us a booklet telling of the place he is staying. It is a great institution, and many have been relieved of suffering and an untimely death. Another sanatorium using the same treatment has been established at Savannah, Missouri.

A party composed of Lloyd and Cella Gildersleeve, Pearl Sewell and Vallie Arnicost left Wednesday morning for a trip through the famous Yellowstone park. They will go over the Burlington via Billings, Montana; run over to Powell, Wyoming, to visit friends, and then take a trip through Idaho, down to Salt Lake City and Denver on the home trip. It takes in a lot of country and some of the famous scenery.

Oscar Reed from Hartington went home Monday after a few days' visit at the home of C. E. Tweed and wife, his uncle and aunt. On Friday evening a party of about twenty young folks were entertained at the Tweed home on College street in his honor. After a happy evening at various games, choice refreshments were served, closing a happy evening for the young people.

Dr. L. P. Gaertner, son of John Gaertner of this place, who graduated from Creighton with the class of 1911, and has since been intern at a hospital at Butte, Montana, has moved to Three Forks in that state and will locate there. His new home is a thriving new town that has a population of about 500, and has not near got its growth, being quite a railroad center. The Doctor's Wayne friends wish him well.

Fred S. Berry returned last week from a combined business and vacation trip of two months, spent in the west. He visited several California cities, among them Los Angeles and San Francisco. At the former place he looked in on the court before which Clarence Darrow is now on trial, and saw this famous criminal lawyer. He visited parts of Arizona and Colorado, and expresses the opinion that business is pretty quiet in most of the west—booms are overdone, he thinks. Evidently the climate is first-class, for Mr. Berry comes home looking well and feeling the same way.

One item that got side tracked last week, while waiting for more knowledge of it, was that relating to the trip of the railroad men from here and all other points along the main line and branches to Omaha, last week Sunday. Train and track men and agents who could get away were all gathered with the officers and managers of the road. All of the railroad men from here went except Agent Moran, who had been at Sioux City the day before attending a meeting of agents from over the system, and had too much work to get away two days in succession. About 500 men were in attendance, perhaps more, and they discussed railroad problems of the different departments, and doubtless received and imparted ideas of benefit to all.

When it comes to paying losses in Life insurance, here's quick work. Young Mr. Elts of near Shubert, Richardson County, Nebraska, bought a policy in the Bankers Life at Lincoln on June 19, was examined June 20, was drowned Sunday, June 23. The policy was written in the company's office in Lincoln Monday, June 24, the company was notified of the accident and death June 25, and the claim was promptly paid. Jack Cherry and Mr. Hettrick are doing a splendid business for the Bankers in our country. In all that is good the Bankers Life lead. If you insure in the Bankers Life you get more for your money and your money stays at home too. Mr. Elts was 24 years old, a big strong manly fellow, but was drowned in the Nemaha River with a sister and another young lady in the early afternoon of Sunday, June 23. Many companies would have denied all liability, but not the Bankers Life. Claims are always promptly paid by them.

Wm. Berry arrived here last week from California to visit his sons, F. A. and F. S. Berry. He is 87 years of age, and not in the best of health, yet he made the trip alone, and came through all right. He had decided not to come east this summer when his son F. S. was with him, but later changed his mind and started alone.

State Normal Notes

There will be a meeting of the Board held at Lincoln on Wednesday, July 31.

The music furnished by Professor Coleman's chorus class Monday morning was greatly enjoyed by the school.

Mrs. Edith Smith Davis addressed a union meeting of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. last Sunday afternoon.

A picnic by the kindergarten department Wednesday was an event that was thoroughly enjoyed by the little folks.

E. B. Young, accompanied by his brother, Rev. Howard P. Young, of Table Rock, were chapel visitors Tuesday.

Mr. A. L. McLaughlin, the general representative of D. C. Heath & Company, was in Wayne Monday and made his usual visit to the Normal.

The Stanton county students planned a picnic in the Bressler grove for Tuesday afternoon. The rain interfering, the Y. W. C. A. room was used instead.

Principal B. F. Robinson of Sholes, and Superintendent-elect of the Bancroft schools, spent the first of the week at the Normal in the interest of the Nebraska School Review.

On Thursday and Friday of this week the work of the school will consist almost entirely of examinations. Students who live in county seat towns will be excused and take their examinations at home. Others will be given an opportunity to take the teacher's examinations here and then have the grades transferred to the proper county.

The school was fortunate in being able to secure Dr. H. W. Wiley of Washington, D. C., to deliver a lecture before the students of the summer school. Dr. Wiley is not an entertainer, but his address last Friday evening was a great educational treat for those who heard him. It was the message of a man who has spent twenty-nine years of his life in public service, during which he always proved an able champion of the rights of the people.

A crowded house greeted the open session of the Philomathean literary society last Monday evening when they presented to the public a three-act drama entitled "The Silent Detective." Miss Emens as Marcia Gray, Miss McBeth as Josephine Howells, Miss Baker as Nellie Gray, Miss Finch as Mr. Howell, Miss Nan Killen as Sara Chapman, Miss Norris as Susan Wilkins, Miss Jessie Beechel as Aunt Chloe, Mr. Wichman as Fred Howells, Mr. Paul Carpenter as Doctor Alcott, Mr. Emery as Bert Hawley, and Mr. Rogers as Jerry Wilkins, were all strong characters and the parts were exceptionally well played. An admission fee of fifteen cents was charged, which brought $44 in to the treasury of the society.

To Whom it May Concern

Dwelling House Mutual Ins. Co., Dear Sirs:—Your check was handed me today by your agent in full settlement of my loss by fire. I am well satisfied with the way it was adjusted and the promptness on your part in settling up. I will be glad to recommend your company to any one wanting insurance and will tell them to see your agent, F. H. Benschhoff, and get his terms.

Yours Respectfully,
Roy N. Tharp.

Baptist Church

(Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor)
On last Tuesday the pastor met with the committee in Omaha, to arrange a program for the state convention, which meets here in October. The prospects are that we shall have some fine leaders here with us. We shall soon begin some definite plans regarding it.

On last Sunday afternoon the pastor made an address at the laying of the corner-stone of the new Baptist church at Carroll. The people there are going to greatly increase their working capacity very much by the building project.

W. H. Stageman, Good Fellow

W. H. Stageman of Randolph, one of the well-known all round good business men of Randolph had the dragnet working without avail Sunday and Monday in an effort to "rope in" a smooth swindler whom he had identified at a Randolph bank, by endorsing a $300 draft on New York. The man was evidently a professional in that kind of business, and timed the work so that he had plenty of time to get away before the fraud was detected. It is a safe plan to let the stranger wait for his money until word can come from headquarters.

Hail Storm

A hail storm passed over a section of the country a few miles southeast of Wakefield last Monday. It is reported that considerable damage was done to the young corn and the oats that are still standing in the fields. Just what the damage amounts to cannot be estimated but it is thought that it will run into several hundred dollars in the path of the storm. The scope covered by the storm was said to be about a mile wide and several miles in length.

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Beef Very Scarce and Prices Fully Steady.

HOG MARKET MOSTLY STEADY

Sheep and Lamb Receipts Very Small, Lambs Are Fully Steady—Sheep Steady to 10c Lower—Good Demand for Anything Showing Quality.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, July 23.—A very good run of cattle arrived today, about 3,400 head. The beef supply was very scarce and prices were fully steady. No good to choice heavy cattle were offered such as Monday's $9.50 beefs, but choice yearlings brought $9.00. Trade in cows and heifers was very dull, but prices were not very much different. Veal calves found a ready sale at strong figures, and bulls, stags, etc., were quotably steady. There was no great amount of activity in the stock and feeder trade, but prices were generally well sustained and the volume of business was fair. The small supply of western grass cattle that were offered sold readily at steady to a little stronger figures.

Cattle quotations: Choice to prime beefs, $9.00@9.50; good to choice beefs, $8.50@9.00; fair to good beefs, $7.75@8.50; common to fair beefs, $6.00@7.75; good to choice heifers, $6.25@7.75; good to choice cows, $5.50@6.25; fair to good grades, $4.50@5.50; canners and cutters, $2.50@4.25; veal calves, $4.00@8.00; bulls, stags, etc., $3.75@5.25; choice to prime feeders, $6.00@6.75; good to choice feeders, $5.25@6.00; fair to good feeders, $4.50@5.00; common to fair feeders, $3.50@4.50; stock cows and heifers, $3.25@4.75; good to choice grass beefs, $6.25@6.75; poor to fair grass beefs, $4.25@7.75; poor to fair grass beefs, $5.00@6.00.

About 10,000 hogs arrived today and the market was about steady. There is a good demand for desirable killers, and this is becoming more noticeable every day as the average quality of the receipts is getting worse. Trade was a little slow all day. Good lights made a top of $7.45, identical with Monday's best prices.

Sheep and lamb receipts amounted to about 3,500 head. Receipts consisted chiefly of fat ewes and wethers. A shipment of Wyoming ewes sold for $2.55. Two loads of western Nebraska spring lambs sold for $6.60. Prices paid for lambs were fully steady with Monday and the close of last week. It is said to be the fat sheep market as anywhere from steady to 10c lower.

Sheep and lamb quotations: Lambs, good to choice, $6.85@7.25; lambs, fair to good, $6.00@6.85; lambs, feeders, $4.75@5.25; yearlings, good to choice light, $4.75@5.15; yearlings, good to choice heavy, $4.50@4.80; yearlings, feeders, $3.70@4.25; wethers, fair to choice, $4.25@4.65; wethers, fair to choice, $3.75@4.25; wethers, feeders, $3.50@3.75; ewes, good to choice, $3.75@4.00; ewes, fair to good, $3.25@3.50; ewes, feeders, $2.00@3.00.

Lecture By Harvey W. Wiley

But that people are ignorant and indifferent to conditions that prevail; more people would have braved a little inclement weather Friday evening, brushed aside trivial excuses and gone to the Normal chapel and learned first hand more of the great battle that is being waged against great odds for the preservation of the health of the people, from one who is on the firing line and has been in the battle for years.

Dr. Wiley is no orator, but to give his story just a "Hoosier" who grew up with but few educational opportunities—so few indeed that he says it is with difficulty that he speaks the English language correctly. But he has a message for the people, and they receive it gladly, those who realize the importance of his work, but they appear to be in the minority here.

He takes the broad ground that health is of the greatest value to the people, that the two things most essential to health are fresh air and plenty of wholesome food. The air, free though it be, is not used by many people. They are afraid of catching cold if they sleep with the windows open.

He said that in the states which keep vital statistics (6 of them) the figures show but few deaths from natural cause—old age—only 66 to 1000 deaths. If we lived right old age and accidents would be chief causes of death. He thinks there is improvement, for the average age of man is now nearly ten years more than it was not many years back. He spoke of the high death rate among infants, 120 to the 1000 die before one year of age, and when there keep vital statistics, records show that more than one-half of these deaths were due to stomach and bowel trouble—improper food.

He showed how little attention congress pays to health legislation for the human animal. The District of Columbia asked for an appropriation for Washington, which he declared a most unsanitary city, and they were given $100; but they have made liberal provision to fight hog cholera and kindred disease. The experience the head of the health board of Indiana, in asking an appropriation of $100,000 and getting only $5,000, told how the average member of a legislature looks at these questions. He told how, by showing how much more was done for the hogs than the people, the legislature came through with the other $95,000 asked.

Teachers were urged to carry the work of education along the lines of sanitary living to the young, and as a result in a few years there will be a class of citizens who will have a proper knowledge of the importance of health and how to maintain it. He spoke briefly of his great fight to have foods true to label, of the opposition that had to be met from those who are profiting by using unhealthful preservatives and adulterations. In his own state, the interests were fighting pure food, law, and their influence at Washington was so great that he was not permitted to go to Indiana and testify in the case, so the court came to Washington to hear him and they won.

In his opinion the tariff is a small question compared to proper regulation for the purity of food products for the people. In fact, he convinced most of his audience that his was the correct view. Those interested in the profits of impure food may steam roll Dr. Wiley, but he will come up smiling and be at them again, or we fail to get the true measure of the man.

He paid tribute to Governor Marshall of Indiana for the stand he had maintained in favor of the enactment and enforcement of pure food laws, and predicted that no party would remain long in power who was not favorable to laws that would tend to give the people pure food and safeguard them as far as possible from the evils of diseases whether hereditary, contagious or the result of impure food.

Give Our Side a Chance

In an article taken from the Chicago Herald headed "Business Men in Theatricals," we notice that "The Lion and the Mouse" is going to make a few steps before starting a run in San Francisco. Now why can't we have this company stay one night with us? They surely must have a first class company to contemplate an extended run in the western metropolis. Give us a chance.

August Sown Clover

About a year ago we urged our readers who had lost stands of clover to try sowing it in July and August, says Wallace's Farmer. We urged it simply as an experiment. Our advice was purely theoretical, but we reasoned in this way: That if alfalfa sown in late summer in the humid section brought better results than when sown with a nurse crop, we did not see why clover should not be able to make sufficient growth to furnish winter protection for itself. We always assumed, of course, that there should be sufficient moisture in the soil to secure germination. A number of our readers tried this method, and the majority of them with success, although there have been some failures reported. We probably did not give them sufficiently exact theoretical advice. Many of them last year could not sow their clover till too late, because of lack of moisture. We should have warned them to drill in this clover, giving it at that season of the year about the same depth of covering they would wheat.

We apprehend that there are some failures in the stand of spring sown clover this year, though not nearly so many as last year. In going over one of our wheat fields in which clover was sown in the spring, we find the stand very thin where the wheat is very heavy and lodged. The removal of this great mass of covering in a very dry, hot time, such as we are having, will likely kill out this stand of clover. Where the wheat stood, the clover seems to be a perfect stand. We have no doubt this condition prevails on many farms.

It is possible, where you have an abundance of rain, to make a forty-bushel crop of winter wheat and at the same time retain a stand of clover, but it is very doubtful where the weather is dry, and hot weather follows the removal of the nurse crop. The same is true of oats. With warm weather following the removal of a heavy crop of oats, no matter how good the stand may be, it will likely disappear. We would like our readers who are growing heavy crops to watch the clover carefully.

If, after a few days of hot sun, the stand has disappeared, don't hesitate to disk in the usual sowing of clover and timothy as soon as the crop is removed. The depth of covering should depend on the weather. If the weather is dry, we would give it the same covering we would give winter wheat. We are satisfied that in this way many failures of clover, or partial failures may be avoided at the expense of the work and seed. We can not afford to have a stand on one part of the field and a failure on another part. In these cases we would always put in timothy with the clover, and in the usual proportions. When we really begin to learn how to grow winter wheat and the other big crops that we must grow if we are to get enough revenue from lands at present prices we will probably have to resort to August sowing altogether. We would not like to advise that now, because, while the results reported have been favorable, it will require at least another year or two of successful experimenting to justify us in adopting this method; but we "feel it in our bones" that we will have to come to it when we get down to really good farming.

About a year ago a Farmer's Grain and Live Stock association was formed at Coleridge and one of the elevators already built at that place was purchased. Concerning a report that the venture had been a losing one, the Blade of that place says:

The report had been circulated that the Farmers' Grain & Live Stock Association was some $1200 in the hole and while the directors were certain that there was no such deficiency, just to be sure of the exact condition, they met last week and had an itemized statement submitted by Manager Hassmann.

This statement showed accrued profits of better than $400 on hand which represents about 5 per cent on the investment of $8,000.

Considered as a straight investment these profits of only 5 per cent would not be encouraging but taken as an indirect investment and it is probable that the real profits to this community and particularly to those who have sold corn and grain has been at least the amount of capital invested or $8,000 for the competition has been such that prices close to freight off have prevailed since the farmers begun buying.

A report keeps coming from different sources that Wayne county is to have an official organ for the new party. We would advise them to wait until the conventions are held.

Wilson's chances of election are improving. Following the loss of Mike Harrington to the party, it is reported that Tom Taggart of Indiana has abstracted himself from the Wilson supporters.

Apparently not having trouble enough within its own party the State Journal is worrying over the trouble it anticipates the democrats will have at Grand Island. It may not be all harmony in the ranks of democracy, but on this particular year our republican brethren will have plenty of amusement at home, we think.

We pause to remark, that every few days some one agrees with the Democrat when it says that a good building and loan association would be a great help to Wayne and those who are paying rent here, and not be detrimental to those who have spare money, for if they placed some of it in B. & L. stock it would return good interest.

If this canal toll matter cannot be settled any other way, we might let Teddy take the chair a few minutes and tell the world to stand back or put up, that it is our canal because he took the land on which to build it, and having taken the site without the aid or consent of any other nation, we will run it the same way, right or wrong.

Stanton and Holt counties were controlled by the standpat element of the republican party in their conventions Saturday. The same was true at Valentine in Cherry county. In Holt county the progressives won. The progressives were also in the saddle in Thurston county. In Antelope and Madison counties the Taft element controlled. So in this corner of the state, it looks like about an even break.

Reports from all parts of the state indicate that the grass crop is above an average, and this with a short cattle crop indicates that feeders will sell high this fall. The practice of selling heifers for feeders in the range country, and the annual killing of millions of calves regardless of sex for veal in the east is in a great measure responsible for the growing shortage of beef. The falling off of supply is increasing daily, as compared to one year ago. Better save the heifer calves for the next ten years. Why kill the goose that lays the golden egg?

Why not tote fair? This question is provoked by a reported conversation in regard to politics. The parties talking were two friends—republicans, but not of the same kind. One was dissatisfied, and after talking the matter over announced that he expected to vote for Wilson. Now what argument (?) do you think this announcement was met with? It was this: "Wilson is a prohibitionist," knowing that the man to whom he was talking opposed prohibition as do most Germans. Whether his charge is true or not makes no difference in Nebraska, where we have a law which enables prohibition question to be settled wholly aside from a man's political beliefs on other economic questions, and we predict that the question will shortly come before the people of the state in a way that a man may vote for or against it according to his opinion on that question. Whether or not Wilson is a prohibitionist need not enter into his standing with the voters of this state, for as president he could have nothing to do with the question here. If our standpat friend wants to be fair, he should go and tell his friend that they will both have a chance to vote against prohibition when the question comes up in this state for settlement—but we had always supposed that this particular standpatter favored prohibition.

I notice by the Idaho papers that Hon. J. W. Tanner (known and loved in Nebraska by the name of Jim Tanner,) is favorably mentioned in connection with a senatorial seat in the Idaho legislature. Jim Tanner did good service in the Nebraska legislature in the old days, and he is qualified by age and experience to do still better in Idaho. If Jim shall go to the senate he will go in the guise of a democrat. Indeed he is unable to eat, sleep, talk, write or legislate in any other than the democratic way. He is deserving any and all honors which the people of that mountain state may confer.—Columbus Telegram.

The pioneers and old settlers of Dakota county are planning for their annual reunion which is to be held at Dakota City, August 29th. These annual reunions have a growing interest as the days of pioneer hardships grow more indistinct to the view of those who endured them and ere many years the pioneers of this part of Nebraska will be numbered with those who have joined the silent majority. If someone would assume the responsibility of collecting reliable historical data of those days before those who made the history of those times pass away they could hand to the coming generations something of great value. Possibly this work has been done, if not it should be the aim of the organization of pioneers and old settlers to see that it is done before it is too late to do it well.

Several weeks ago the Democrat gave space to an article by the Harvester Trust, as the International Harvester Company is commonly called. This week we present to our readers a letter by W. H. Green of Creighton, which appeared in the last issue of the Commoner. Mr. Green has been in the thick of the fight against this organization, and his letter will both interest and instruct. It gives one an idea of how great combines are entrenched in state and nation, and in many instances in the court. It may look like an easy matter to defeat them at the polls, where the votes are supposed to count, for we know that a great majority of the people do not favor the combine methods, but we wish to go on record now that it will be no easy job. They will wage an unscrupulous fight to the end, and no means that spells success to their cause is too insignificant for their use.

Commissioners' Proceedings.

Wayne, Nebr., July 23, 1912. Board met as per adjournment. All members present. Upon application John V. Ott is hereby admitted to the Soldier's Home at Burkett, Nebraska. Board proceeded to the examination of the treasurer's books and records.

No further business completed. Board adjourned to July 24, 1912. CHAS. W. REYNOLDS, Clerk.

In this day and age, time is a great factor in all work, and the man who can perfect an invention which saves time is virtually adding to our lives. People who are not yet very old can remember when a woman's time was not considered of especial value, but now their time is valued nearly as highly as that of the man, and why should it not be? There is no reason why it is not as economical to provide a time saving washing machine as a time saving haying machine. On another page is the advertisement of a washing machine and wringer which is sold under a positive guarantee to save time and labor with washing and ironing, for it is a combined machine—and more than that it saves the clothes from the wear usual in washing, saves the buttons too. Mr. Johnson, who is sales agent for the machine has a room south of Hotel Boyd where he demonstrates what the machine will do, to all who call, and he especially invites the ladies to call and see the machine at work. More than that, he will take a machine to your place and do a washing free of all charge, then if you wish a machine he will order one for you, and if within a month after the machine arrives, you can find a garment that it will not clean as thoroughly as can be done by hand or other machines you may return the machine and get your money back. But the invitation is to call and see the machine at work—you will not be urged to buy—in fact those who see it do not have to be urged.

Gave Temperance Lecture

Mrs. Edith Smith Davis spoke on temperance to a full house, if you pardon the expression, Sunday evening, when the out-door meeting was taken to the Presbyterian church on account of the threatening weather condition. Miss Charlotte White introduced the speaker. Her address treated the temperance question from a scientific standpoint, and was well received. At the close of the meeting pledges were circulated and signed by many, and rejected by others because of the cider clause.

A W. C. T. U. organization was inaugurated the day before, and more new members pledged after the meeting also. The following officers were then elected:

President—Miss Charlotte M. White.

Vice-president—Mrs. A. M. Helt. Secretary—Mrs. Oliver Graves. The ladies will hold their first meeting next Thursday afternoon.

Since the editor of this sheet was mistaken for one of the professional men at the head of the state institution of learning on the hill, the editor of the Herald, who was thankful that he was not there, has been meeting the trains regularly but has not been called "Professor" yet. It is but fair to say that the lady who made the mistake made ample apology as soon as she discovered her error—the Professor, of course; didn't know that there were so many degrees of lack of beauty.

Fred Wadsworth, who is here from Idaho visiting his brother, George, received the head and antlers of a fine buck elk the other day, from his western home. Those who saw it first thought it was a "Bull-Moose" head to be used as a party emblem here this fall by the adherents of the 3rd party, but such is not the case. Mr. Wadsworth did not kill this animal, but found it upon the prairie where it had evidently died from the wound inflicted by some hunter. Upon presenting the facts in the case to the game warden he was given permission to ship the head from the state, and now has it here cleaning up the antlers so as to make them marketable.

M. Barrett and his son, E. H. Barrett, were here this week visiting at the home of J. F. Barrett, who is son of the elder and brother to the younger man. E. M. Barrett is one of the live political wires of the democracy of Iowa and he is confident that Iowa democrats will make a winning fight this year. He attended both national conventions this year, being a spectator at Chicago, which convention he considered rather beneath the dignity of deliberative body. It required a big force of Chicago police to keep rioting down. It was not all peace and harmony at Baltimore, however. They returned to their home at Dunlap, Iowa, this morning, accompanied by J. F. Barrett's sons, Frank and Mort.

One of our aspiring young attorneys was placed in an embarrassing position one evening last week. He appeared to be trying to monopolize the attention of the ladies of a small party that happened to meet while on their way to attend a lecture at the college, and he was fairly successful too, much to the amusement of another professional young man. At the critical moment the professional man found himself alone with the ladies before the man who said, "tickets, please" and without a penny in his jeans, and of course the ladies were not carrying any change with them. It was embarrassing, but he met the situation well and got past the gate keeper with a pledge to "square himself" before breakfast the next morning, and after the lecture he was game enough to vote that it was his duty to invite the crowd to an ice cream parlor. The attorney claims that his only loss was a temporary loss of "dignity" and this he has recovered and is wearing it as though it had never been disfigured in the least. From the manner in which he met this trying situation we advise his political opponent to withdraw from the race now, for Kip will walk away with the cake.

Ice cream and cake served on the Baptist church lawn tonight. Come I. W. Alter returned home this morning from a week's visit spent at his farm in Antelope county.

Mrs. W. F. Auker of this place and Mrs. Arthur Auker of Winside are visitors at Sioux City today.

A freight wreck near Blair Tuesday delayed the Omaha passenger train several hours that day, and Wednesday. No one was injured so far as we can hear but six cars of fruit and a car of wheat went to the bad pretty quick.

Elvin Johnson returned this morning from his trip to Barre, Vermont, where he bought a car of granite for their shop here. He is well pleased with the result of his trip, and feels well repaid in the quality of goods he was able to procure by buying at headquarters.

The 12-year old son of Geo. Van-Norman had the misfortune to have his left thumb nearly crushed off in gasoline engine Wednesday. It is possible that the thumb may be saved, but it is doubtful, as but a part is left for circulation to work through. It will be known in a day or two whether or not amputation will be necessary.

Wm. Dammeyer is up to his old tricks again, having bought the pool hall from D. E. Kelly which he sold to him nearly a year ago, and is now in possession and greeting his former patrons as they drop in. He will also resume the manufacture of cigars as soon as he can get a stock of tobacco here and make his peace with Uncle Sam's internal revenue collector and give bonds to keep within the limits of the law regulating the manufacture and sale of cigars. Mr. Dammeyer's many friends are glad that he is to remain here. Mr. Kelly is undecided as to his future location, but is looking for an opening.

REGULATE STREET TRAFFIC.

Redlands (Cal.) Engineer Uses Guide Lines on Corners.

A plan to avoid the congestion of traffic which can be used to advantage in most cities has been devised by City Engineer Huxley of Redlands, Cal. It consists of a strip of bright aluminum paint, with guiding arrows pointing to the right courses, which are more suggestive than signs could possibly be.

The guiding line runs along the center of the street, keeping its proper position on curves. In approaching a curve, where drivers of rapidly moving vehicles have a tendency to "cut corners" instead of keeping on the proper side of the road, the device is of special value. Drivers would readily learn to observe and follow the guide lines, especially in streets of heavy traffic.

LEATHER ROADS.

Experiments in Handsworth, England, Show Excellent Results.

Experimenters in road material appear to be trying almost every known substance which is not too expensive, from the hardest, like steel and glass, to softer materials like cork and rubber.

At Handsworth, England, a road has been in use about a year which was constructed of tar and leather and is said to have worn very well. The leather used was obtained in the form of waste and chippings from leather manufacturers. Discarded scraps of leather were taken and cut into small pieces and added to bitumen, asphalt or tar heated to a suitable consistency. After making this into a uniform mixture it was spread upon the ground and stone or gravel was spread on the surface.

It is claimed that by the combination of leather with the substances named a material is produced which is readily applied in a moldable condition and which stands very considerable wear, gives little or no dust, is very resilient and silent and offers good foothold to horses.

State Aid For Improving Highways.

The roads of the country will be benefited to the extent of $200,000,000 during the next five years if the house adopts and the senate and president then approve a resolution which Representative French of Idaho has introduced. It provides for an expenditure of $20,000,000 by the government each year for five years, the states to add an equal amount for improving their roads. The money would be divided among the states according to population, not counting cities with 30,000 or more population.

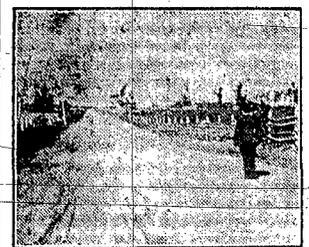

GOOD ROADS AND THE FARMER

They Mean a Great Reduction in His Expenses.

A SUPERVISOR IS NEEDED.

Without a Competent Man in Charge a Great Deal of the Labor is Wasted. Farmers Should Get Together and Help Highway Engineer.

It is worth while for all intelligent people to have some general idea concerning the simpler facts involved in the art and science of road building and maintenance. This is a matter which should appeal particularly to the farmer, for to him more than to any one else the well built and maintained road means a saving of time and money in marketing his products and makes easier the attendance of his children at school and his family at religious services and increases the social intercourse which is needed to make farm life what it should be. All highways are intended to afford a hard, smooth and as nearly as possible a horizontal surface, over which the great instrument of civilization, the wheel, with its burden, can be made to move with the least possible friction. Every unit of friction encountered is a measurable element of cost either in time, power or damage to the road and carriage. For every foot of distance he traverses the wagon is incurring a tax. The amount of the tax over a properly constructed and maintained road may be as low as 5 cents per mile, but this increases with increase in grade or the condition in which the road is found. Because this tax is not paid out in actual cash to the sheriff the farmer does not realize that it is coming out of his pocket all the time, but if he will think a moment he will realize that it is an infinitely higher rate of tax than any direct tax which he may be called upon to pay to keep the wheels of civilization going.

The cash value of a good road has been summarized under the following headings:

- First.—A reduction in the cost of hauling.
- Second.—An increase in the value of lands within its zone of influence.
- Third.—Increase in productive value through making uncultivated lands accessible.
- Fourth.—The substitution of the more profitable crops for the less profitable crops.
- Fifth.—The ability of the producer to market his produce at a time when the prices are more favorable instead of marketing his produce when the roads permit.

Realizing now what bad roads are costing the farmer and what good roads will mean to him, the question is how can good roads (and by good roads is meant roads which are good 365 days in the year) be obtained and maintained, for it is just as necessary to maintain a road after it is built as it is to construct it in the first instance.

It is now the consensus of opinion among men who have spent their lives studying road problems that the only sensible plan for any county or township to adopt is to set apart a portion of its money for the employment of a competent road engineer to properly locate its roads and supervise their construction and maintenance. In order, however, to have a uniform method of road construction from one county to another it is believed that the wisest policy would be for the state to have some kind of supervision over the road work of the counties and for the state to aid the counties, certainly to the extent of furnishing highway engineers for the proper location of roads. Under the present system of working the roads it is not a rash statement to say that at least one-tenth to one-fifth of the time and labor expended in public road work is absolutely wasted.

THE CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE OF DIRT ROADS

The Fundamentals Must Be Mastered First, Says Major Thomas.

The desirability of good roads needs in this day no extended advocacy, says Major R. G. Thomas in Good Roads. Their desirability, if not their necessity, is generally acknowledged. The agitation of the subject during recent years has called forth from various sources full and convincing expositions of the advantages of good roads to the citizen, to the state and to the nation.

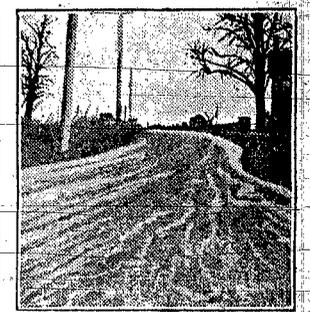

I shall therefore proceed at once to my immediate subject, "Earth Roads—Construction and Maintenance."

In regard to good roads, as to most good things, there are obviously degrees of excellence.

While it is to be hoped that the roads over which there is heavy traffic in the vicinity of the cities and towns of the state will be macadamized, graveled or otherwise improved in the not distant future, it is evident that in the main the public roads of the state must of necessity be composed of earth for many years to come. Such being the case, it is fortunate that under favorable conditions, when well drained and free from ruts, the earth road is the most satisfactory for pleasure and for light traffic.

The statement that an earth road is as good as any other kind of road if kept well drained and free from ruts reminds one of an old saying that a certain bronze eagle in Salt Lake City "fles down to get a drink every time it hears the town clock strike." The writer holds that the statements are true in both cases, but the conditions are equally impossible of fulfillment. No claim is made that under all conditions the earth road is as good as any other type of road. It is held that with proper construction and maintenance the earth road is a good road, and it may serve a community well until the increase of traffic makes a more unyielding surface imperatively necessary.

It is to be remembered that when the time comes to build a macadam or other pavement it will have to be built upon an earth bed, so that much of the work of making an earth road may be utilized in the future when it becomes necessary and practicable to have a paved surface to the road. The condition of the common roads is so bad at certain times that it is desirable that every interested citizen should know something about the location, construction, drainage and maintenance of earth roads, and under the term earth roads are included those with an admixture of sand and clay.

Everything connected with the construction, use and maintenance of roads was in times past before the introduction of railways the subject of exact observations and experiments, many and varied in character. On this account our engineering works that treat of roadmaking are excellent reading today. This is true not only of the construction, but of the need of better legislation.

It is held that many of the evils as to bad common roads that we suffer from at the present time are inherited from the antiquated legislation of the past.

Now that we have the results of a great number of years of experience in older countries, it seems that there is little to invent, but much to learn in this branch of construction.

Yet there have been improvements in roadmaking and especially in road-making machinery and tools, notably the stone crusher and the steam roller.

It must be acknowledged that conditions in this country are in many respects different from those that obtain in the older and more thickly settled countries of the old world. Nevertheless the fundamental principles of good road construction are the same everywhere, and once they are understood can hardly be forgotten.

Road-Building Experiments.

Experiments are being continued by the office of public roads of the department of agriculture to determine the best form of binder to use for road surfacing, preserving the road and laying the dust. Many of these experiments were carried out last year in cooperation with Cornell university.

Tar, oil and oil asphalt preparations have been used, and one road has been surfaced with the new oil concrete that has been developed by the department. The roads as a rule have stood up well to average heavy traffic, but it is still too soon to give a final verdict on the several materials used.

The department says that if the several states would improve even 20 per cent of their roads the saving in transportation charges and the advancement of real estate values would amount to from half a billion to a billion dollars annually.

Experiences of an Implement Dealer

W. H. Green, Implement Dealer and Newspaper Man of Creighton, Tells of His Fight Against the International Harvester Company.

By W. H. Green of Creighton, Nebraska: I have been in the implement business twenty years and thanks to the vigorous vitality of my ancestry, I am alive. I was a pet agent of four of the different harvester companies before the amalgamation. I continued for two years after the trust was formed, but I never failed to register my convictions about the ultimate result, that greed would follow power.

A well-groomed young gentleman called upon me in the early part of 1905 and after getting my convictions, informed me that he was in the secret service of the harvester trust and that I would have to shut my mouth. I told him I thought this was a free country, but two weeks after three representatives of the trust arrived and transferred the four lines of harvesters I had been selling to my competitor who already had the other two lines. I accepted the gauge of battle and began a campaign in the newspapers. I contracted with an independent line of harvesters and made a contract for half a page in our weekly newspapers. I must have produced original matter as the Implement Age of Philadelphia and Farm Machinery of St. Louis reproduced my advertisement in their publications every week. I was swelled up like a mushroom until one day a collector for the International Harvester company presented me with a bill for the independent line I had been selling, and derisively informing me that the trust had owned the independents all of the time and had carried on the campaign for the purpose of baiting suckers like myself out onto the limb and then sawing the limb off behind them. Since that hour my warfare has been of the guerilla pattern.

There is a rule in bridge which says when in doubt play trumps and on some such theory, I bought a newspaper and I have never been idle since.

Swift says that the man who makes two blades of grass where one grew before is a benefactor, therefore the stockholders of the harvester companies must look upon George W. Perkins as a patron saint for he made one dollar into five when he took property and old notes not worth thirty million of dollars and coined them into one hundred and twenty million of dollars worth of negotiable property, on all of which the American farmer pays a large dividend.

I furnished the evidence and ex-Senator W. V. Allen drew the pleadings for an ouster proceeding against the harvester trust in Knox county, six years ago. Edwin P. Grosvenor, the brilliant young special assistant attorney general of the United States has taken several extracts from this petition in the preparation of the instruments he has filed in Minneapolis to dissolve the trust. For some reason we could never get this case brought to trial in Nebraska. The trust lawyers would have to be absent in Europe one term and the next their wives were sick or something and finally the case was dismissed by our county attorney between terms without my knowledge or consent.

A year ago when the department of justice finally decided to prosecute the harvester trust the department requested me to come to Washington and bring my data and papers with me. I had an excellent opportunity for three weeks to mix with men who are specialists in this kind of work.

Before delivering the papers I had brought to Washington, several prominent democratic congressmen and senators tried to prevail on me to refuse the documents to the department of justice, but to retain them for the democratic investigation which was sure to take place. Two resolutions were introduced in congress, one the Foster resolution I prepared myself, and a hearing was held before the committee on rules, on January 17, which the New York papers considered significant enough to devote a yard square of their front pages to, but the same influence which prevented the establishment of a twine factory at the penitentiary in Lincoln a few years ago, made itself felt in Washington. And speaking of penitentiaries, I spent the second and third of last January in the state prison at Stillwater, Minn., and after examining the success that state has had as a factor in the world's twine product, I was not surprised that the harvester trust made themselves good fellows to some of our Nebraska legislators. Minnesota began the manufacture of twine with an appropriation of $250,000 and out of that capital they have earned a surplus of one million six hundred and twenty thousand dollars in nine years and have become the third largest manufacturers of binding twine in the world and in reality set the price for which all twine is sold. Men who have studied the twine question say that Minnesota has not only saved the farmers of that state a million dollars a year but that they saved nearly as much for the farmers of each of the other states. Minnesota will manufacture 2,500 mowers, 1,200 binders and 1,500 hay rakes this year and while the Nebraska farmer is paying $165.00 for his binder the Minnesota farmer will buy his for $110.00.

If the national campaign progresses in the same channels it has cut out for itself thus far, I look for the outsiders to get a peep into modern big business as it works behind the scenes.

Were Robert M. LaFollette, as our international citizen, president, with Senator Clapp or Congressman Rainey in the attorney general's office, those cowardly criminals would be ordering life preservers for generations yet unborn. I have every confidence in my country and in my countrymen, but I think it dangerous to extend too much power or worse than all, to fawn upon men who possess no instinct but a bravado to plunder when they are under cover.

The International Harvester company with its one hundred and forty millions could not withstand the attacks made upon it for one week were it not for the fact that the McCormick and Rockefeller families are intermarried. This family relation admits Cyrus H. McCormick to the directorate of the City National Bank of New York.

In his remarkable address before the house committee on rules, Samuel Untermyer stated that no individual or institution had money or power enough to be dangerous to our society and civilization but that it was the money which those men held within their powers as the fiduciary agents that enabled them to make or break individuals, corporations or communities at will.

I listened with breathless interest for two days while Louis Brandies tore the reorganization scheme of the tobacco trust to atoms before the committee on interstate commerce of the United States senate and I am fearful that President Taft's scheme of reorganization will be impractical and impotent.

Three days after the hearing before the committee on rules Mr. George W. Perkins gave the Washington papers an interview in which he said that President Taft had promised that the harvester trust should have all of the time needed for reorganization and that the plans of reorganization were mutual.

I was commissioned by the national anti-trust league to call upon the department of justice and inform them that if they started a reorganization scheme for the harvester trust such as they had perfected for the tobacco interests, that impeachment proceedings against Mr. Wickersham would be started in the house of representatives within twenty-four hours. I was shown into Mr. Fowler's private office and that eminent prosecutor nearly took my head off with the challenge: "Do you come here to intimidate this department?" I answered, "No sir, even a one-horse newspaper man from Nebraska knows better than that. I came down simply to tell you." Mr. Wickersham's first assistant then wanted to know the objections to the tobacco reorganization and I told him that dividing an illegal corporation into parts with the same men owning and controlling the different divisions looked to me like apprehending a band of horse thieves who had stolen several thousand horses and the decree of the court being that a large band of horses was inimical to the welfare of society, therefore the horses must be divided into small bands and each thief to get his pro rata.

The fact that the farmer must pay 20 per cent more for his harvesting machinery than he paid before the formation of the trust; the fact that thousands of traveling men who had put in their best days with the harvester business were left without positions; the fact that every hotel man has his gross receipts cut down a thousand dollars annually; all of these pale into insignificance compared with the fact that the harvester trust is the spoke of the system's wheel which reaches out into the farming districts whether it be to bribe legislators, subsidize the press or blackmail and blackhand commercial interests.

I am not a pessimist, yet I chose these words to close my address before the committee on rules: "Mr. Chairman, a grave responsibility rests upon this committee and upon the committee of the whole. There are times when we need patriots as badly as we needed them in 1776.

"A wave of semi-socialism, unorganized anarchy, or incipient revolution is sweeping across the land. And can you question why? When you see the man who steals a postage stamp sent to Leavenworth, and the man who exports a million to Berlin; when you see the man who makes a gallon of moonshine whisky condemned to darkness and despair at Atlanta, and the man who wrings hundreds of millions from the consumers cheered as a philanthropist as he dances upon the precipice of perjury; when you see the man who smuggles an extra suit of underwear sent to Sioux Falls, and the man who wrecks one of the greatest commercial institutions in the nation and throws the financial life of the whole country into convulsions, made ruler over many things, then I say it is not any wonder that the whole fabric of our civilization should quiver with the fever of apprehension and alarm."

The State Tennis Meet

The meeting closed at Norfolk last Thursday after four days of ideal weather for tennis. Below are the winners:

NEBRASKA TENNIS WINNERS.
Singles championship, 1912—Harry A. Koch, Omaha.
Doubles championship, 1912—Harry A. Koch and Conrad Young, Omaha.

Singles championship runner-up—Joe Adams, Omaha.

Doubles championship runners-up—Joe Adams and Bob McCague, Omaha.

Singles consolation—Rev. John Calvert, Sutton.

Doubles consolation—R. F. Lee and H. H. Ellis, Peru.

Singles consolation runner-up—C. A. Davis, Beaver City.

Doubles consolation runners-up—J. S. Mathewson and N. A. Huse, Norfolk.

At a business meeting the association decided to make the entrance fee hereafter $3.50 per man for the tournaments, $1 of which goes to the state association, the balance to the city entertaining the association.

The following directors were elected: Tony Edmondson, Friend; F. S. Morgan, Wayne; Charles A. Patterson, Arapahoe; C. M. Mathewson, Walthill; Harry A. Koch, Omaha; N. A. Huse, Norfolk; C. R. Morey, Hastings; Miss Louise Pound, Lincoln; Benton Perry, York; Lynn Sherwood, Beatrice.

The directors then elected Tony Edmondson president, C. A. Patterson vice-president, F. S. Morgan secretary and Harry A. Koch, treasurer.

Of the game which Frank S. Morgan of this city played against the champion in the singles, the Norfolk News says:

Frank S. Morgan of Wayne gave Champion Harry A. Koch of Omaha a genuine scare in the singles semi-finals at the Country Club courts in the state tournament Wednesday morning.

Morgan played the champion to a standstill and had him worried. As it was Morgan took one set from the Omaha man and he made Koch work for all he got. The final score was 6-2, 3-6, 6-2, in favor of Koch.

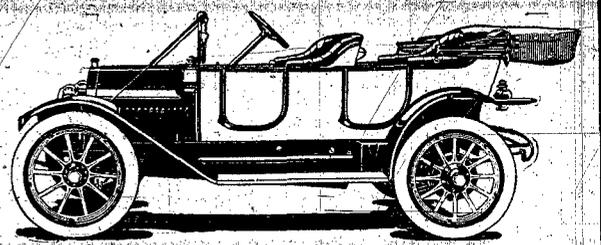

Morgan played brilliant tennis. He has a remarkably fast serve and was getting his first fast ball in almost every time. So fast is this serve that Koch was unable to place his return and many times he failed to return at all. More than that, Morgan was passing Koch on either side, was lobbing successfully, and was using a hard, fast return ball. Morgan lost because, in the last analysis, in his efforts to place too close to the lines he often drove the ball out of the court. But he put up a corking game and was the sensation of the tournament to date. Koch was not in the form he had shown Tuesday when Passewalk of Norfolk took two games in each set from him by clever all round play.

Advice On Alfalfa Culture

A recent issue of the Iowa Homestead contains an original article on the subject of sowing alfalfa that is of exceeding value. The writer goes to some length in the description of plans that succeeded in securing a good stand. The difficulty in getting a good start has been the main obstacle in the growth of alfalfa. This article is itself worth many times the cost of a year's subscription to the Iowa Homestead. This paper and The Iowa Homestead are clubbed together at the rate of $1.75 per year for both papers. When your telephone lines are in use business is delayed and customers possibly lost. The additional expense of a few dollars per year in telephone equipment may result in the saving of hundreds by facilitating communication with customers.

If you are in doubt about your telephone equipment notify us, and we shall be glad to make an investigation and determine what changes, if any, are needed.

Sloan Asks Information Regarding Nebraska Volunteers.

CHANCE FOR THE SURVIVORS.

Bill introduced in Congress for Pensioning Their Widows and Children. Two Deaths Affect Families of State House Officials.

Lincoln, July 24.—Adjutant General Phelps is in receipt of a letter from Congressman Sloan asking for information regarding survivors of the Nebraska volunteers who enlisted to fight the Indians in Nebraska during the civil war, and announcing that a bill had been introduced in congress for pensioning survivors of that regiment, their widows and children. The bill is known as house roll No. 25,065. In 1898 a similar bill was introduced, but did not meet with the approval of the government, the reason claimed being that as the members of the Nebraska militia which defended the borders were not sworn in by a regular army officer they could not be considered as legally a part of the army.

The men who are thought to come under the provisions of the bill were those who enlisted in what was called the First regiment—First brigade, Nebraska militia (mounted), and their duties were to keep the Indians in subjection so that the regular regiment could be used in the south.

The adjutant general's office has on file numerous letters and other papers relative to the matter which has been up several times before in an effort to get the Nebraska volunteers recognized as a part of the regular service, but nothing has ever come of it, though these documents show that much fighting was done and that this regiment, which consisted of four companies of mounted men and one detachment of artillery, saved the government the necessity of keeping a portion of its regular army in Nebraska when its services were so badly needed in the south.

This band of Indian fighters was composed of men from Omaha, Plattsmouth, Nebraska City and the country down around Gage and Pawnee counties.

Two Deaths Affect State Officials. Mrs. E. B. Cowles, wife of State Land Commissioner Cowles, died at the family residence, Eighteenth and N streets. Mrs. Cowles had been suffering from a cancer for about three months and had been slowly declining until about a week ago, when it was evident that there was no hope for her recovery. She came to Fairbury from her native state of Illinois when a girl and lived in Fairbury, where she met Mr. Cowles and they were married and resided there until Mr. Cowles was elected land commissioner and entered upon his duties, when they took up their residence here.

Another death affecting the state-house family was that of little Donald Price, eight-months-old son of D. D. Price, state engineer in the irrigation department. Mrs. Price had put the little fellow to sleep and laid him on the bed, leaving the room for a short time. Later in going back to the room where she had left the babe, she found him lying on the floor, where he had rolled from the bed, the bed clothing having become wrapped about him in such a manner that he was suffocated.

Melick Shows Guards. Warden Melick of the state penitentiary evidently can show his few guards a few things in the nerve line a few days ago when Prince, the negro murderer of Deputy Warden Davis, who will hang in a few weeks, sent back his dishes after partaking of a meal furnished him in his cell, it was discovered that a knife was missing. Determined to get the knife, if possible, Warden Melick ordered three of the guards to search the cell and discover the knife. All three of the men showed the white feather and the warden went into the cell and secured the knife.

Lancaster Land Values. The value of land in Lancaster county, according to the report of Assessor Miller, is $7,556,015, as compared with $5,895,065 last year. The assessed value of lots this year is $8,401,850, as against $7,471,328 last year. Improved lands are assessed at $6,714,155 this year, with improvements thereon at $841,860. Total value of the personal property in Lancaster is $7,506,224 this year, against $7,637,285 last year.

Commissioners to Gandy. Railway Commissioners Clarke and Winnett went to Gandy, in Logan county, to investigate a complaint coming from the citizens of that place regarding the inadequate depot facilities there. It is claimed that more side track is needed to take care of the business of the community. Commissioner Clarke will go to Lexington before his return to look up a complaint at that place regarding telephone rates.

Forty-seven Bushels an Acre.—Tecumseh, Neb., July 24.—The wheat crop is the best in years in Johnson county and many stories of big yields are coming from the fields. One of the best is that of Schlater Bros., who farm just south of Tecumseh. From an eleven-acre field they secured an average yield of forty-seven and three-fourths bushels to the acre.

PHELPS SEES CAMP GROUND

Adjutant General Looks Over Site for Guard Meeting.

Lincoln, July 24.—Adjutant General Phelps returned from Grand Island, after holding a conference with the Grand Island people regarding the location of the annual encampment of the Second regiment of the Nebraska guard this year. He was met at Grand Island by Colonel Paul of the Second and he inspected the grounds which the people there are offering free of charge.

The grounds lie two miles north-west of the city on a horse ranch, which contains an auto speed track, and is on the Platte valley bottom. Plenty of good water can be secured and a good field for the maneuvers. The encampment will be held Aug. 23 and the hospital corps of Lincoln will participate in the encampment.

BELL MAKING CONNECTIONS

Company Furnishes Toll Service Over Automatic at Lincoln.

Omaha, July 23.—The Nebraska Telephone company is now making connections with the automatic system of Lincoln for toll line service. It is now possible for a person having a Bell telephone in Omaha to talk to a person in Lincoln who talks over the automatic. This, the Bell people say, is practicable for toll lines only, as the calls are few and the Bell long distance operator in Lincoln, for example, has one automatic dial before her through which she can make connections with the automatic long distance in Lincoln.

The Nebraska company expects to combine exchanges with the Independent Telephone company at Fremont soon. It is expected that this will be accomplished about Jan. 1.

Game Warden Will Protect Larks.

Attention of Game Warden Miller was called to a fracture of the game law by some of the members of the Rod and Gun club of Omaha. A letter was received, enclosing a clipping from an Omaha paper, stating that a member of the aforesaid gun club had been seen to shoot and kill a meadow lark and black bird recently. Mr. Miller says that he has had frequent complaints of the same nature regarding the shooting of birds of this kind round the pleasure resorts near Omaha and that fourteen convictions have resulted from the prosecutions.

Platte River Canal Project.

Omaha, July 24.—The estimated power that is to be developed through the construction of the Platte river canal and power plant near Fremont when converted from kilowatts to horse power is to be 33,000 horse power. The plan, as Fred A. Nash, president of the Omaha Electric Light and Power company, gives it, is that eventually this plant shall furnish the power for the lighting of Omaha and for the driving of trolley cars.

Builder of Ralston Lines in Toils.

Omaha, July 23.—Clyde E. Coons, the man who organized a company capitalized at $100,000 to build a railroad from Omaha to Ralston, a well known promoter, ex-convict and for the last few months general manager of the Davenport-Iowa City Interurban, has been arrested by the Chicago police and is held on a charge of running a confidence game. A NIGHT IN NEW ZEALAND

The Raweis Company from the South Sea Islands a Chautauqua Feature.

FATHER, MOTHER AND SON

They Come On in Native Costumes and Present Graphic Description of Life Among the Maori—Many Strange Ceremonies and Incantations.

Hine Taimoa Rawel, the wife and mother in the Raweis company, which is to be here Chautauqua Week, is a woman of the South Seas and a woman of broad culture and learning.

She is a native New Zealander who came up from an environment of semi-savagery and is today the most brilliant woman of her race.

She has addressed large audiences in this country and was last winter the principal speaker on the program of the Illinois Teachers' Association meeting in Chicago.

The story of these stalwart islanders from New Zealand, is one of stirring interest. Their Chautauqua program is one of the most novel features on the American platform. It is like a night in New Zealand.

The Raweis Company has three members, Hine Taimoa Rawel, her husband and their son, Rae. They come out in native costumes and in addition to their songs, stories and their many strange ceremonies and incantations, they present a series of beautiful pictures of the south sea island scenery.

This graphic description of some of their peculiar customs by a cultured daughter of the race, will be found distinctly interesting:

Hine Taimoa Rawel.

New Zealand is the wonder land of the South Seas. It is the land of romance, poetry and sentiment. It amazes its visitor with its wealth of natural curiosities, and the endless variety and grandeur of its scenery. It is the home of the Maori, the very highest type of life inhabiting the islands of the Pacific; a romantic people, who have been wonderfully quick to forsake their ancient customs and savagery and fit themselves for the highest walks of civilized life.

The Maori are really not the aborigines of the country, nor are they of the same stock as the natives of Australia, who are of a strikingly different type of man, and so much lower in brain and talent as to be out of comparison with them. Indeed, the Bushmen of Australia, if not the lowest grade of humanity, are but a single rung from the bottom, the decision lying between them and the Hottentot, their young wandering about naked, and being taken no more account of than monkeys. New Zealand, moreover, never was a part of Australia. It has none of its trees, flowers, animals, birds or reptiles, which are as totally dissimilar as its natives.

Discovered By a Priest.

The folklore of the people says New Zealand was discovered by Te Kupe, a priest who lived on an island called Hawaiki. This priest incurred the displeasure of the ruling chief of Hawaiki and was compelled to flee his island home to save his life.

Securing a canoe and stocking it with provisions, he put to sea, as he supposed to see home and friends no more, and possibly to find his grave in the mighty ocean. But a kind providence favored the lone boatman and over the peaceful ocean he paddled his way. His was a long journey. When his relatives found he did not return, they mourned him as dead.

To their surprise, many moons later, he came back as one returned from another world. But the story he brought was even more surprising than his appearance. He told them in glowing language of a wonderful country which he had discovered towards the south. He spoke of its richness and the strange things he there beheld—huge forests, burning mountains, steaming lakes, gigantic moa birds. As the story of some new

A POEM OF THREE WORDS BY STRICKLAND W. GILLILAND IS SHORTEST ON RECORD.

Strickland W. Gilliland is the "Baltimore American Man" who wrote "Off again, on again, gone again, Finito!"

And he is coming here as a Chautauqua humorist.

Gilliland is the best-known of all newspaper humorists. He was a writer of humor for years on the Baltimore American and contributed humorous lines to many national magazines.

Strickland Gilliland

He served as president of the American Humorists' Association one year which is perhaps the highest honor that could be accorded to any newspaper humorist.

He told some stories once at a little gathering of newspaper men in Baltimore and that was his first "humorous lecture." He went out later to fill a few Chautauqua dates, retaining his position on the American, and writing his lines with the car seat as his desk.

He soon became known as a lecturer and went onto the lecture platform doing Lyceum work the following winter.

For two years he was part of the time lecturer and part of the time newspaper humorist.

Later, he resigned his position on the American because he had become best known as a humorous lecturer and there was a demand for his time in every part of the country.

He still contributes, however, to newspapers and magazines, doing his work as writer between seasons in Lyceum and Chautauqua work.

He has a beautiful home in Roland Park, Maryland, which is a suburb of Baltimore.

Last winter he was a speaker at two banquets at which President Taft was the guest of honor. One of these was the Knights of Columbus dinner in Peoria at the time of the President's visit to that city; the other, the annual dinner of the Ohio Society in Philadelphia.

It is said that he is the author of the shortest poem ever written, "The Antiquity of the Microbe."

This poem was printed in the Ladies' Home Journal last winter and was as follows:

Adam
Had 'em.

Mr. Gilliland's Chautauqua address is more than an hour of humor. It is good sense mixed with humor.

HE IS AN EDITOR AS WELL AS CHAUTAUQUA LECTURER.

Ralph Parlette is not only well known as a Chautauqua lecturer, for he is about as well known as an editor.

Mr. Parlette grew up in a printing office back in Ohio. Today he is the editor of Lyceumite & Talent, a magazine of national circulation, devoted to the interests of the Chautauqua and Lyceum.

SHE WENT INTO EGYPT'S TOMBS

And an Arab Ruffian Forced Her to Buy Gems Taken from The Mummies.

A TRIP ALONG THE RIVER NILE.

Belle Kearney, Chautauqua Lecturer, Author and Traveler, Tells of an Experience She Had Near Luxor—The Kings Were Buried There.

Belle Kearney, southern lecturer, author and traveler, who is to speak here Chautauqua week, tells this story of a trip she took across the desert near Luxor on the Nile river in Egypt, to visit the tombs of the kings:

"The only companion I had," she says, "was a donkey boy, and it was a long trip.

"On the way over to the tombs, the boy said to me, 'Now lady, don't be tempted to buy the things that will be spread out before you as we go along, but wait until we have visited the tombs. On our return journey to Luxor, I will take you to a friend of mine who lives out here in the hills, and you can get the genuine articles from him.'

Belle Kearney

"I followed his advice and turned a deaf ear and blind eyes to the most irresistible cries of the vendors, and to the fascinating relics spread out by the wayside.

"On our return from the tombs, my donkey boy led me up, up, up to the very top of a high hill. 'There,' he said to me, 'Get down from the donkey.' I obeyed. He conducted me to a square enclosure, where he knocked. The gate was opened instantly by an Arab, and it was closed and locked behind me.

"I was invited into a sort of a shed, the roof of which was covered with leaves. Several Arab men entered and sat at my feet.

Were Valuables There.

"One of these, who seemed to be the spokesman and leader, said, 'Lady, do you see those baskets on the shelf up there over your head? Well, every night, after the scientists leave the tombs they have lately discovered, these men and I go down into them, and get what we can of valuables. It is a penitentiary offense. If it is found out on us, we shall have to pay the penalty. Are you going to tell on us?'

"He placed several of these large baskets before me and spread out the contents. There were beautiful vases of alabaster, strings of priceless beads taken from the mummies, and innumerable articles that I would have given worlds to possess.

"The spokesman looked at me intently and said, 'You must buy some of these things.'

"'Why, but I cannot,' I said. 'Setting your teeth fiercely, he repeated, 'You must buy some of these things.'

"Realizing that I was completely at the mercy of those Arabs, I bought rather ruefully with the painted covering that had been taken from the face of a mummy, besides several other articles.

"These were later given to the museum of a college in my own state, Mississippi."

UP TO YOU.

A Chautauqua pledge: I am going to start today planning for our Chautauqua, which is only a few days off. Unless I talk it up, it won't be a big thing. It'll be a fizzle. I must get every man to want to go, as I do myself. The best advertising the Chautauqua will get will be my own efforts in swelling the crowd—in urging everyone I know to "come along." I can make it the biggest event our town has known.

METHOD IN BUSINESS.

One Busy Executive's Plan For Keeping His Papers in Order.

Often executives use portfolios on their desks for keeping important matters before them, but if they have many matters the portfolio becomes bulky, papers are lost and the desk is cluttered. With a flat top desk portfolio is an impossibility.

Recently a business man who was a firm believer in the portfolio idea worked out a variation of it which handled his matters very satisfactorily. He bought a four drawer flat file cabinet, which sat beside his desk. He could pull all of the drawers out part way and drop papers in them as he worked, thus keeping them off his desk and putting them where they would be taken care of.

The top drawer was labeled "Today," the next one "Tomorrow," the third one "Next Week" and the last one "Next Month." When he reached a paper he wanted to take up next day he dropped it in the second drawer and followed the same idea with the other drawers with reference to time. Each morning his stenographer emptied the "Tomorrow" drawer into the "Today" drawer, and when the man started the day he took the contents of the "Today" drawer and placed them on his desk. Once a week, Monday morning, the stenographer emptied the "Next Week" drawer into the "Today" drawer and on the last day of the month emptied the "Next Month" drawer. The scheme worked admirably well in his case and with a few variations to meet particular conditions will solve many vexing problems.—Business.

The Empty Silo.

This is a good time to devote an hour or two to the tightening up of silo hoops and making taut the anchorings, says the Kansas Farmer. The probabilities are that most of the silage is fed out and the silo will stand empty until time to refill. The wind and sun will dry out the staves, and unless the hoops are kept tight and the anchorings are secured there is danger from wind. If the staves are pulled well together the danger of damage to the silo from blowing down or rocking in the wind is very slight. We know of silos which have stood twenty years, which have been blown down, but it has required some care and foresight in keeping them erect. It does not pay to spend good money for anything and then neglect it. The old adage, "A stitch in time saves nine," works well in practically every farm operation.

HE FIRST SANG IN A GLEE CLUB

Everett Kemp, Chautauqua Entertainer, Got His Start In School.

It was Everett Kemp's Bone Colored Whiskers story that was so long thought of when Kemp's name was mentioned that he says, now that he is doing a "heavier" class of work he can't get away from it.

His masterpiece of interpretation is Seven Oaks, that old story that almost every reader of fiction of twenty years ago has read.

No man has ever presented Seven Oaks as Everett Kemp has. It is the best work he has done.

His Printer of Udell's he uses all ways on Sunday.

"I was a kid in school," Ever-

Everett Kemp

Kemp says, "when I got the notion of being an entertainer. I started right then. I organized a college male quartet. But I was the most enthusiastic man in it. I had to sing parts to accommodate the others. I would sing anything to make things go—bass, tenor, baritone or what not.

Booked Outside.
"And I became a booking agent at that time. I wasn't satisfied at singing at college literary society meetings, and the little functions about the school. I went outside on Saturdays and booked dates in surrounding towns.

"I was the 'clown' of the company. The fellows would make me do all the 'stunts.' I was the pianist, the interlocutor, the stage manager. I usually had to introduce the company and always announced the numbers, as we had no printed programs.

"My Bone Colored Whiskers story. I don't know where I got it. I just found it, I guess. I have told it so long I have forgotten.

"But that story went well from the first. It is the one thing that tided me over when I got through school and our quartet broke up and I was looking for something to do.

"It seemed to be the one thing that held me together, I was so accustomed to working with the other fellows.

"But it is so different from much of the work I am doing now. I give it occasionally—when the occasion will allow, and when I have been asked to do so.

"I may use it some in Chautauqua work this summer. I am looking forward to a good time out in the Middle West among all those Chautauqua folks. A Chautauqua is the best thing I know of."

James Francis O'Donnell is the greatest of Catholic entertainers. His "Sign of the Cross" has been seen and heard in almost every city in America.

Chas. Frink, with the Novelty Players, one of the seven musical companies here Chautauqua Week, is a typical banjo man. He has played a banjo ever since he was old enough to hold one on his lap. He has been before the public ever since he was a boy. He sings, too, and plays his own banjo accompaniments.

"My Love is Like the Red, Red Rose" is a song that has been sung around the world. It was written by James G. MacDermid, the music composer and publisher, who will accompany his wife, Sibyl Sammis MacDermid, in her Chautauqua recitals. Mr. MacDermid is one of the greatest accompanists in America. And in this Chautauqua work he is playing many of the pieces he himself has written.

The Novelty Players have a program that is full of surprises. It is a novelty musical company made up of four of the greatest novelty musicians and entertainers doing Chautauqua work.

At the Chautauqua, we have the offerings of a whole summer's amusement park crowded into one week. And it is a better class of amusement than the big city offers.

A thing that puts this city in the class of progressive towns is the Chautauqua.

NOTED SOPRANO TO SING HERE

Sibyl Sammis MacDermid on Chautauqua List.

Sibyl Sammis MacDermid and her husband, James G. MacDermid, are two of the best known musicians in America.

They are to be here Chautauqua Week. Sibyl Sammis MacDermid has sung in grand opera several years and has been soprano soloist for some of the largest symphony orchestras in the world.

Sibyl Sammis MacDermid, Operatic Soprano

She was Sibyl Sammis when she returned from her study abroad and sang in Madison Square Garden, New York City, an event that attracted the attention of the whole musical world.

Mr. MacDermid was at that time connected with one of the largest music houses in Chicago, his home. He was entirely unknown as a composer, although he had written some music.

HUSBAND IS A COMPOSER.

James G. MacDermid

Miss Sammis, who had already achieved fame as a singer, began singing his songs in her recitals. In almost a day they were being played and sung in the largest cafes and restaurants in Chicago, and later, in every city from coast to coast.

"Today he is one of the best known composers in America. Besides, he is the head of a large music publishing house.

Sibyl Sammis MacDermid ranks among the world's greatest sopranos. She has sung with the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company of New York and some of the largest symphony orchestras in the world.

The MacDermids have a studio in Chicago where they devote their entire time in the winter months. The only recital work they do at that time is in and about Chicago.

GET THE TICKET AND GO.

Seven grand musical companies and the splendid list of lecturers, orators, entertainers and high-class novelty features the Chautauqua offers are worth the price of the ticket.

There is no question about that. It is the clearest, best entertainment that could possibly be conceived of. It offers opportunities of instruction to be had in no other way. And it costs so little.

It is a modern Chautauqua—built on modern and on enormously large plans to meet the big demands of the present day. The whole plan has grown because it is such.

A boost for the Chautauqua is a boost for the town and yourself. Get the ticket and go.

An Italian band will play here Chautauqua Week that has played to the crowned heads of Europe, Chautauqua circulars say. They will go back next fall and make the boast that they have played to the prosperous and progressive farmers of the Middle West.

Mlle. Lutz Bertrame, diva with the Venetian Troubadours, has sung with as many as four different grand opera companies, mostly Italian companies. She is of Italian birth—but received her musical training in Paris.

A JAUNT THRU THE HOLY LAND

Belle Kearney Says It is a Dangerous Journey From Nazareth to Haifa.

Belle Kearney, the Chautauqua lecturer, author and world traveler, was telling a story the other day about her travels in the Holy Land.

"It was very dangerous," she said. "I traveled alone in the Holy Land. I started once to drive in an omnibus from Nazareth of Galilee to Haifa, a distance of about twenty miles, alone with the teamster.

"That was the most terrifying experience of my life.

"Just as the vehicle started out from Nazareth, with not a passenger in it but me, a man with a most forbidding countenance, holding a gun in his hands, stepped into the conveyance and sat on the rear seat.

"Half way to Mount Carmel the driver stopped the horses. I thought, my hour of doom had come. Dead stillness. Suddenly we heard a cry. My heart stood still.

"From the bushes sprang an Arab with a little girl by his side.

"They climbed into the vehicle and we pursued our journey over those charming valleys and up and down those flower-decked mountains to Haifa.

"Upon arriving at that village I was told by the nuns in the Hospice where I stopped for a rest that when the Commune of Nazareth learned that I was to take the perilous journey from Nazareth to Haifa alone that he had employed the man with the gun to go along with me to protect me.

"So, how often it is in life, we fly from those that are our best friends.

"We fear, when we should rejoice."

Even the old staid East has become alive to the Chautauqua's worth. The Chautauqua was started in the East fifty years ago on old Chautauqua Lake in New York. But it was the one eastern Chautauqua that amounted to much. It is the West that has made the Chautauqua what it is today.

The State of Nebraska alone has eighty-one summer assemblies. The Redpath-Horner Chautauquas number one hundred and thirty-five, all between the Missouri and the Rockies; there are more than sixty Redpath-Vawter Chautauquas between the Missouri and the Mississippi and the Redpath Lyceum Bureau manages thirty-six Chautauquas out of Chicago. That makes a total of two hundred and forty. This summer a Chautauqua system has been started in the East which already has a healthy growth.

When the Italian Guards Band was in Cheyenne, Wyoming, last summer, a Cheyenne newspaper printed this story about the director: "Signor Lacerenza's father was the director of the King's Band in Italy. One day as his band was playing for the King, they happened upon a peculiarly beautiful note. The King and Queen liked it so much they asked that the piece be repeated, for they wanted to hear that note again. But the note could never be found. It was lost. Lacerenza's father searched frantically for it. He beat the air with his baton. He struggled all the rest of his life in a fruitless effort to find this lost chord. He died without having found it, and Lacerenza has taken up the search. That accounts for the spirit he puts into his work as band director."

The Rawels Company lived in the very heart of savage New Zealand. The New Zealanders are the most civilized, however, of the races of the South Seas. But they know the life of the savage. Chief Rawel says: "Why, yes, I know many savage men—cannibals, they are. Although I have never really participated in a cannibal feast—no, yet I have seen many a one. I am going to tell some stories about cannibals in my Chautauqua address that will startle some, I presume. And they are incidents with which I am myself thoroughly familiar. It is not necessary to exaggerate when we tell what we know about cannibals. There is much we cannot tell."

Some of the fifty men on the Redpath-Horner Chautauqua tent crews are training for college athletics. They handle the big tents, drive stakes and put up canvas. They sell tickets at the gate and see to the general comfort of Chautauqua patrons. They are college men, off on a vacation. They sleep in a tent within the Chautauqua enclosure which they call the "dog" tent. Of course everyone supposes they lead a merry life. And it may be they do.

With a playground expert from West Virginia in charge of the junior Chautauqua, the boys and girls are promised a big time Chautauqua Week.

There will be a big crowd in town Chautauqua Week.

At a meeting of the Commercial club Monday night it was decided to have a carnival and baseball tournament at this place next week. There will be four days of fun and friclick, commencing Tuesday night. There will be twenty attractions and a ball game in the afternoon for four days. Friday will be Children's day, when all children will be admitted at half price into all the shows and the ball game will be free to them.

Leonard Meikle, Mrs. L. S. Needham's nephew who resided in Winside for several months at one time, but now of Sioux City, went to breaking on the railroad the first of last week, and on his very first trip fell under a car as he was making a coupling and was run over by the entire train. He was so badly injured that one arm had to be amputated and one leg was crushed in such a frightful manner that it too may have to be taken off. He is now lying in a hospital at Sioux Falls. Leonard seemed to have been very unfortunate always, as he frequently received some injury. Just a few days before the last accident, he fell from a scaffolding to the ground, a distance of about ninety feet.

BISMARCK'S REVOLT.

The Quarrel and Retort That Parted Him From the Kaiser.

The emperor's quarrel with Bismarck is a matter of history, and it started owing to the chancellor having a private interview with a certain political personage unknown to his majesty. The kaiser, hearing of this, wrote to Bismarck telling him that he expected to be informed of all such interviews before they took place. The prince's reply to the letter was a verbal one and was spoken to the emperor's private secretary. "Tell his majesty," it ran, "that I cannot allow any one to decide who is to cross my own threshold."

When the message was delivered to the kaiser he drove around to the chancellor's place and asked him what the discussion in question was about. In excited tones the prince declared that he could not subject his intercourse with political personages to any restraint, nor would he allow any one to control the passage to his private apartments.

"Not even when I as your sovereign command you to do so?" shouted the emperor, enraged.

"The commands of my sovereign," coldly replied the chancellor, "end at the drawing room of my wife."

At the same time he offered to retire from office. This was on Saturday, and on the following Monday the emperor politely asked Bismarck to send in his resignation. On March 18, 1890, the Tuesday after the quarrel, the abdication was written, and Germany lost her pilot.—National Magazine.

This Life.

Life is made up not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindness and small obligations given habitually are what win the heart and secure comfort.—Sir H. Davy.

Pure Breds Versus Scrubs.

The pure bred animal is not one that will make good on poor feed and care. The scrub will beat the pure bred every time when it comes to "rustling." Its own way. But the scrub will not and cannot make money for its owner. And right here is where the pure bred exceeds. He has capacity which the scrub has not. Give the pure bred animal good feed and care and he will make money and do it quickly. At least three crops of pure bred beef animals can be turned out ready for market to every two crops of scrubs or grades. Grades make money for their owners sometimes, but the amount and the quickness with which results are obtained are in direct proportion to the infusion of pure blood, which makes them grades and better than scrubs.

TREATMENT FOR STOMACH WORMS

At this season of the year the flock owner who has not had successful experience in combating stomach worms is beginning to make inquiry as to how he may prevent his lambs from dying or from becoming infested to a damaging extent. This pest has in recent years been recognized as the most active handicap on sheep raising in the eastern states, writes G. P. Williams in the National Stockman.

Likely the most generally used preventive for stomach worms is tobacco. Any form of tobacco that is available may be used. "Tobacco dust" is the waste (floor sweepings) of cigar factories usually and is the most efficient form because apparently the strongest. Most factories now grind it fine and sell at prices varying from 1 cent to 5 cents a pound. Tobacco stems (midribs of leaves) may often be had at the factory merely for the hauling. It is not a question of how much tobacco to put into the salt, but just the opposite. Merely salt the tobacco sufficiently to induce the sheep to eat it. It may be necessary to begin by mixing equally by weight, but the proportion of tobacco should be raised as soon as possible. Adding to the salt small quantities of "scrap" or smoking tobacco is not efficient and merely a waste of money. A good mixture with which to start is a gallon of salt, half a gallon of sulphur, a pint of pulverized (buy that kind) copperas and five pounds of tobacco dust, which later should be largely increased. If stems are available cut them finely in a feed cutter or salt them with brine and feed in a large box or manger. Such treatment should be employed throughout the year, as winter treatment will have a greater tendency to free the flock from parasites than summer treatment.

After weaning the lambs place them on new pasture, not having carried sheep that season. Adding a grain ration is of market value at this time, and a good many sheepmen rely upon it as a preventive. If desired the lambs may be drenched with gasoline, which is an efficient remedy. We employ this treatment every year, and we lose no lambs from stomach worms, whereas formerly we lost a good many. Add a tablespoonful of gasoline to three times the quantity of milk and administer by means of funnel and rubber tube. The lambs should fast eighteen hours before the treatment and two hours after. We dose them three successive days. Others use coal tar creosote and like it better. Those who use creosote give from two to four ounces of a 100 per cent solution.

Swale Hay Unfit For Horses.

Dr. Alexander, professor of veterinary science at the University of Wisconsin, gives the following warning with respect to the feeding of swale or marsh hay:

Beware of swale hay for horse feeding if it is seen to contain horsetail (Equisetum palustre). At best such swale or marsh hay is unfit for horse feeding and should be used for the packing of iron castings or crockery.

Horses have small stomachs and need nutritious food in small quantities often. Swale hay is bulky, woody, indigestible and lacking in nutriment. When infested with horsetail it is positively poisonous. Recently, in a county of Wisconsin where much swale hay has been fed this season, many horses have died. They became partially crazy, seemed to be drunk, staggered, weakened and in some cases went down paralyzed before death. We found that horsetail was the cause, and the trouble has ceased since this poisonous weed has been removed from the hay or other hay feed. In other cases of trouble, from feeding swale hay that had not had time to sweat or ripen in the mow or stack, animals also became partially crazy, but they did not die. The irritant in the hay was successfully antidoted by giving a tablespoonful of bicarbonate of soda twice daily in the feed or drinking water. Thus far, however, no antidote has been found for horsetail poisoning.

Pure Water For Dairy Cattle.

Clean water is an important factor in producing clean milk. A cow producing one and one-half gallons of milk per day will require about five gallons of water and one producing three gallons twice as much. If pure fresh water is applied more of it will be taken by the cow; also more milk will be produced and a purer cleaner milk will be obtained. A pure water supply should be provided, and the cows should not be required to drink from a stagnant, filthy pond or pool.

THE SWINEHERD.

Many young boars are ruined by being allowed to run in lots near the sows.

Growing pigs should not be crowded into close, filthy quarters, exposed to vermin and disease.

In order to insure uniform growth the pigs should be fed when all of them are at the trough.

If your sows have done well better keep them a little longer, even if they are beyond the age limit, rather than to take up with young and often unreliable sows.

No branch of husbandry now pursued offers better opportunities for profits for the amount of money invested and the time expended than the production of hogs.

THE MORGAN HORSE.

Best Type of Carriage Animal Ever Produced in America.

If we examine the pedigrees of American bred horses that are of marked beauty and finish we find with sufficient frequency to make the matter worthy of note strains of thoroughbred of Denmark (founder of the American saddle horse) and of that most beautiful of all families ever bred on American soil, the Morgan. These strains vary not only in the proportion in which they are present, but in their nearness and remoteness, but still throw on the subject enough light for us to say, with but little fear of contradiction from those who have studied it, that the blood which has the most often produced our most beautiful carriage horses, is trotting, tracing through the thoroughbred, Denmark and Morgan crosses.

To obtain a clear idea of the value in this connection of the strains I have named, let us go back a little in the history of American horses and see what these distinguished families really were. Let us take first the Morgan. This family has gone on record as the gamest, the most beautiful and, all things considered, the nearest to perfection of any that America has produced. Though not as fast as the trot as some other families, they were all fast, they all showed uncommon endurance and stamina, they had the points of equine excellence and elegance that distinguished the Arab, and they bore themselves as superbly as the proudest of the aristocratic sons of the desert.

The Morgan stallion Ethan Allen III is a chestnut foaled in 1855, says American Cultivator; height 14.2, weight 1,000 pounds; bred by Silas Wight, East Burke, Vt.; owned by E. A. Hoffman, Lyndonville, Vt. Ethan Allen III still lives, a king among Morgans, and can be seen any day at Cahoon farm, Lyndonville, Vt., where he is in charge of his owner. The large half tone cut of him standing still was taken from a photograph made in 1887 by Alford & Co. at Detroit, Mich. Ethan Allen III was sired by Peter's Ethan Allen II.

In every single respect since size they were ideal horses. Concerning the breeding of Justin Morgan, the founder of the family, there has been endless discussion, but of this we are certain that the family had the propensity that only comes of ancient and unsullied lineage. It is no wonder, then, that their blood should be found in some of the best of our carriage stock today, and it is logical that we should look to it as an important element in breeding such stock.

It is a pity that such a family should not have been preserved in its integrity and that its blood should be so largely lost to present day breeders. But through the desire to breed extreme speed the Morgans were crossed with other families and the original type was very largely lost. Efforts are now being made to restore it, and if this is successfully accomplished and by careful selection the size increased a little (all of which can unquestionably be done if sufficient time is taken) the advantage to American breeders will be very great. It will be quite a number of years, however, before all this can be done and a still longer time before the stock will be available to breeders as a distinct breed.—From "The Horse," by David Buffum.

The Brood Sow.

Get sows with good dispositions. They make better mothers, are much safer to handle and will fatten more readily. A quiet dispositioned sow is worth more at home and sells for more than do those that are cross.

Force the Young Pigs.

It is practically impossible to crowd young pigs too fast provided they have the right kind of care and feed. The faster they grow the quicker they make money. If eating and digesting capacity is necessary.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

It should be remembered that a horse can do no more than his feet will stand.

The horse cannot rest while fighting flies. Better shade or screen the barn windows.

If the fetlocks are clipped and the horse's legs are kept clean, scratching will never bother.

Sheep at six years of age lose their teeth; hence they should be fattened and sold before this period.

It will only take about half as much grain and other feed to raise a litter of pigs if they are given pasture.

Prime fat lambs cannot be produced by alternate grass and grain. They must be pushed to lay on fat from start to finish.

A wide range of frequent exchange of pasture will reduce the ravages of the stomach worm, that fearful enemy of the sheep.

SELECTING THE BOAR.

Success in Hog Raising Depends Largely on the Sire.

Careful consideration must be exercised when selecting a boar for a herd of sows. The future usefulness and development of his offspring requires thought and good judgment at the mating period, says R. H. Stone in National Stockman. We cannot afford to use a scrub or a pedigreed runt under any consideration. Remember there are about 2,000 pigs in the first ten generations, and it is essential to develop them along profitable lines. One day spent at mating period, regardless of distances, to find a good pure bred boar will obviate a year of disappointment.

A litter of eight good pigs from a pure bred boar mated with a choice sow will require less feed and when grown will produce fifty pounds of meat per pig more than scrubby ones, thus making 400 pounds of additional meat without additional expense. Our expense shows that a sow that grows eight pigs to maturity twice a year is a more profitable sow than one that produces more pigs and fails to develop them. Usually the sow has sufficient milk for eight, and when they are allowed to suckle six to eight weeks the pigs are in prime condition to wean without having any setback. The sow can generally be bred successfully on the third day after weaning, and it is no trouble to have her produce two litters per year if you give her the proper attention. Watch her on the twenty-first day after breeding and if necessary turn her with the boar again.

The popularity of the boar's ancestors on both the paternal and the maternal side, their ability to reproduce good specimens for generations, coupled with good individuality of the breed represented, make his value. He must be a strong, vigorous fellow, active, of good size and good disposition. Pay a price he is worth to you, used in your herd. Any boar is high priced regardless of what you pay for him if he cannot make good on a business basis from a breeder's standpoint. High priced boars with popular ancestry in the pedigrees must compensate their owners by producing for them pigs superior to former generations. A boar may be a sure breeder for one person and prove a total failure the way another man might feed and care for him. Never allow him to run at large with the sows. Have an individual pen and yard for him.

A good herdsman anticipates his wants at least six months ahead of time. It is poor policy to defer buying until you want a boar for immediate use and then take what you can get. When you know you must renew before the lookout for a few months ahead, and then you can buy one to your satisfaction, both as to price and individuality.

TREES ON STATE ROADS.

New York Highway Commission Plants 1,500 Poplars and Birchies.

Fifteen hundred trees are being planted along the Kingston-Elenville and the Kingston-Saugerties state roads by the New York state highway commission. About 900 trees will be set out along the former and about 600 along the latter road.

It is the intention of the state to beautify the country through which state roads have been and are being constructed, and the trees will be planted in sections where at present there are no trees. In time the trees will add greatly to the beauty of the state highway routes. Poplars and white birches are the trees chosen for planting.

After the Roller Towel. The roller towel, known in medical circles as the "death towel," is to be barred from cafes, saloons, barber shops, hotels and public places of San Francisco, according to an edict of the board of supervisors. Before the resolution is finally drafted an attempt will be made to make it a misdemeanor for a barber to use a "hot towel" upon more than one person until the towel has been laundered.

Waiks Must Be Sprinkled. The health department of Fort Worth, Tex., has given out instructions to the effect that the state law requiring sidewalks to be sprinkled with water before sweeping will be enforced. Health Officer Bender states that dust is one of the most effective agents in spreading disease and that precaution must be taken during the summer to prevent the endangering of health.
