FIVE STATE CONVENTIONS

Politics Saturated Nebraska Air Tuesday When Democrats, Republicans - Both Kinds - Populists and Prohibitionist Convened

Grand Island, Neb., July 30.—Two bones of contention in the pre-convention proceedings of the democratic party of Nebraska were settled at today's convention, by the election of William H. Thompson of Grand Island for state chairman, as the successor of John C. Byrnes at the afternoon session, and the specific indorsement of the conduct of William J. Bryan at the Baltimore convention by the decisive vote of 636½ against 246½ on a separately considered plank of the platform.

The platform was otherwise unanimously adopted. The election of the state chairman had been forced in the afternoon by Mr. Byrnes' friends, because it was felt that he was stronger than the anti-Bryan sentiment on the resolutions, and that if his election were made, it could be more easily done first and that it might have a bearing against the Bryan indorsement resolution.

But the chairmanship election ended before the results on the first ballot were computed and announced, by the withdrawal of Mr. Byrnes and other competitors in favor of Mr. Thompson, it then being apparent that Thompson had a small lead.

As the ballot stood before changes were made, Byrnes had 427½, Thompson had 475½, Ludi had 34, and James T. Brady of Albion had 12. After changes had been made, prior to withdrawals, Byrnes had 425½ and Thompson had 488½. Among the big counties, Douglas, Lodge and Platte voted solidly for Byrnes, and Landcaster, Gage, Dawson and Nemaha voted solidly for Thompson.

The debate on the resolution endorsing the action of Mr. Bryan at Baltimore was one long to be remembered by those privileged to listen to it.

Aside from the indorsement of Mr. Bryan the platform says in part:

"We approve the work of the democratic House of Representatives, and we heartily commend the Nebraska democratic delegation in either branch of congress for their faithful efforts to represent in the votes they have cast the democratic sentiment of Nebraska."

The platform favors the proposed state constitutional amendments, opposes "log rolling" in the legislature, promises the enforcement of the anti-lobby law; sees in the merger of telephone companies an effort to establish a monopoly, and deplores delays in the state supreme court. It denounces the sentences of imprisonment of Campers and Mitchell and asks for the impeachment of Judge Wright. It favors the workingmen's compensatory law; opposes contributions to campaign funds by saloons or brewers; favors reservation of water power by the state and abolition of prison contracts.

Two planks in the platform were rejected, those indorsing equal suffrage and 8 o'clock closing of saloons.

Split in Republican Party

At the Nebraska republican state convention at Lincoln Tuesday the party broke in two somewhere near the middle—or perhaps it would be more accurate to say that it split from top to bottom—thus possibly giving to each faction a portion of the brains of the parent organization. The introductory paragraphs of the State Journal's story of the event tell impartially what was done:

"The republican party in Nebraska is divided into two distinct branches, each with a platform of its own, much different in tone, each with a state committee of entirely different personnel, and each with officials to conduct the campaign. These two republican organizations are as distinct, as the result of the two days' milling contest by the delegates selected to attend the convention, as any two parties could be. The one branch will be known as progressive republicans, the other as Taft republicans although they will probably not call each other by those names.

The Taft republicans left the regular convention, held a separate convention, passed resolutions endorsing the national platform and ticket, agreeing to support only those state candidates who make a like endorsement, and depreciating the refusal of the regular convention to give them a chance to present a Taft resolution before they retired. The progressive republican adopted a platform in which an extensive declaration of principles is set out, each without any undue use of language, and without any perlude in which the opposition was viewed with alarm and the record of the party pointed to with pride, a time-honored custom neglected on this occasion. The progressive republicans refused to endorse any candidate, national, state or congressional, for office. The Taft republicans endorsed the president and vice president as candidates for re-election, but no others."

Bert Brown of this place captured the office of member of the state committee for this 7th senatorial district for the progressives. S. O. Reese of Randolph was named for the 8th district. The Taft men named no member from this district for their committee.

Nebraska Populists Meet

Aurora, Neb., July 31.—Endorsing the democratic national ticket and portions of the state democratic ticket, passing a resolution commending the action of William J. Bryan at the Baltimore convention, the populist state convention, adjourned here after being in session a little over two hours. The state central committee was organized with fifteen members, two from each congressional district and three at large, and a series of resolutions recommending reforms passed. Among the new measures endorsed by the resolutions were the direct election of president and an amendment to the constitution providing for the abolition of the electoral college.

Prohibitionists Meet

Lincoln, Neb., July 31.—Nebraska prohibitionists to the number of fifty had their state convention here, selected a state committee, made provisions for representation on the ballot in the November election and adopted a platform in harmony with the declarations of the national convention.

The Mikado Passes Away

Tokio, July 30.—The emperor of Japan died at 12:42 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning. He has been succeeded to the throne by the crown prince Yoshihito.

WAYNE COUNTY DEMOCRATS

Held Enthusiastic Convention Saturday, With County Well Represented. Delegates Named, Candidates Endorsed.

It was a harmonious convention of democrats gathered from all parts of the county which assembled at the Wayne county house last Saturday afternoon. The meeting was called to order by County Chairman, H. C. Bartels, and F. A. Berry was named as temporary secretary, after which J. C. Ecker of Winside was elected to preside at the meeting.

On motion the chairman appointed two committees, one on resolutions, consisting of W. D. Redmond, J. H. Kemp and Clint Fry; the other to select delegates to state convention consisting of G. Garwood, E. O. Gardner and J. H. Michell.

While these committees were out and at other times the convention was addressed by one from Hoskins precinct, who because of his unfortunate habit of imbibing too freely of intoxicating drink was no credit to himself, his precinct or these who listened to him with a patience and toleration that was remarkable. A bright mind, a ready command of language and a keen knowledge of the political situation were so bemuddled by the contents of his bottle and presented at all inopportune times until all were disgusted by his actions. But in addition to this short talk were made by J. C. Rundell and L. A. Kiplinger. Each of these gentlemen spoke well, and were given careful hearing. They in common with all democrats believe that the great majority of the voters now see that the democratic party is the truly progressive party, standing ready to battle for the people and against the common enemy—monopoly by government aid.

An encouraging letter from Congressman Dan V. Stevens was read by the secretary, telling of the bright democratic prospects at the seat of government.

Below is a list of those elected as members of the county central committee for the coming campaign:

Wayne 1st Ward, R. P. Williams. Wayne 2nd Ward, J. M. Cherry. Wayne 3rd Ward, L. A. Kiplinger.

Hoskins, Geo. Weatherhoit. Garfield, Geo. T. Dreverson. Sherman, A. E. McDowell. Hancock, Sam'l Reichert. Winside, Walt Gaebler. Chapin, Clint Fry. Deer Creek, James Stanton. Brenna, Emil Spitzgerber. Strahan, Ed Wallace. Wilber, W. H. Buetow. Plum Creek, G. H. Zest. Hunter, W. A. K. Neely. Leslie, Chas. Killian. Logan, J. H. Mitchell.

The following resolutions were adopted: We, the democrats of Wayne county, in convention assembled, reaffirm our faith in the principles of democracy as exemplified in the lives and records of its illustrious leaders.

We send cordial greetings to the democrats of the nation, and congratulate them upon the nomination of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas R. Marshall for president and vice-president of the United States.

We point with pride to the splendid record of our national candidates and invite the progressive element of all parties to unite in making Wilson and Marshall the choice of the people at the polls in November.

We endorse without reservation the state and congressional candidates and take pride in presenting them to the voters for their approval.

We especially endorse the efficient and painstaking work of State Senator Phil H. Kohl and Representative H. C. Bartels, who served their constituents so acceptably in the last session of the Nebraska legislature, and commend them to the voters for re-election.

We commend our entire county ticket, including L. A. Kiplinger for county attorney, J. W. Ziegler for county assessor and Henry Klipping for county commissioner, believing that the people's interests will be best served by their election.

We heartily endorse the wise, patriotic, and courageous course pursued by the Honorable William J. Bryan and the delegates supporting him at the Baltimore convention, and the delegates to the state convention are instructed to vote as a unit against any effort to engender discord by the introduction of a resolution either praising or censuring any delegate for his act at said convention.

The following were elected as delegates to the state convention: W. D. Redmond, Herbert Lound, S. L. Tidrick, W. H. James, L. A. Kiplinger, H. C. Bartels, J. H. Kemp and W. H. Root.

Killed in Railroad Wreck

Word comes from Idaho that Luther Evans, formerly of Carroll, was killed in a railroad wreck in the west the first of the week and that his body is being shipped to Carroll for burial in the family cemetery lot. Mr. Evans was a son of T. E. Evans, who formerly lived in this county, and both were well and favorably known here. The father moved to Traer, Iowa, about two years ago, and the son to the west three years ago.

We have seen no newspaper account of the wreck and no particulars are now obtainable regarding the accident. The body is expected here Friday.

T. E. Evans and son Erville came to Carroll Wednesday from Iowa, and this morning Mr. Evans went to Omaha to meet the body and those accompanying it. They will return Friday morning to Carroll and arrangements are being made to hold the funeral at that place Friday afternoon.

Luther Evans was 31 years of age and leaves a wife and one child, a father and brother and many relatives and friends to mourn his untimely death. They have the sympathy of many friends in this, their old home county in their bereavement.

Is Wayne to Lose Rev. Corkey?

The following lines in the Omaha Sunday World-Herald has set the many friends of Rev. Alexander Corkey and family wondering if the popular pastor is to be called away from Wayne:

"Professors Corkey and Harrington were elected by the Bellevue college board of trustees Friday. Dr. Corkey will lecture on sociology and teach Greek. Mr. Harrington heads the English department."

Rev. Corkey, who was home Monday for the day, before starting out to deliver a few lectures, said that the news of the election came as a complete surprise to him, except that he had been asked whether or not he would consider the matter if offered. He had expected to learn more of the duties and the probable time he would have to devote to the work before making a decision; and this he will do before accepting. He will see the officials of the college this week.

He has many friends here who hope that he will remain in Wayne, yet they are such sincere friends that they will want him to do that which will prove best for himself and family.

Old Settlers to Celebrate

Plans are being made for the annual picnic of the old settlers of Wayne county, at the Bressler Grove some day in the week before Chautauque meets, and the officers of the association and others who are interested are requested to meet at the office of Col. A. J. Ferguson Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock to perfect arrangements for the picnic. Partial arrangements are already made, and there is prospects of two bands, and no doubt numerous speakers will come to enliven the occasion with oratory. If you are not a tenderfoot arrange to attend.

Several Courts Courting

One day last week it was reported that there were courts enough in session in Wayne to make a showing in a city many times our population. The police judge was holding court—an almost unmentionable case. There was a case in bankruptcy before P. E. Weatherby of Norfolk. The county court was also in session, making four. Then at this season of the year there is some courting where there is plenty and no witnesses subpoenaed.

Edward Coleman is visiting at Randolph this week, and Miss Claire Coleman is at Carroll today.

Wayne County Teachers' Institute

The Wayne County Teachers' Institute will convene in the high school building at Wayne, Monday, August 19, 1912, and continue in session five days.

All persons expecting to teach in Wayne county are required to attend the institute. Attendance at summer school will not be accepted as a substitute since our institute is placed so late as to avoid the necessity of this excuse. This is the annual business session of the teachers of the county and it is for the best interests of both teachers and schools that everyone be present. Others who are interested and expect to teach in the future are invited to attend.

The work will be both professional and academic in its character. The class periods will be devoted to lectures and round table discussions. Note books will be furnished and teachers will be expected to keep a systematic record of the work.

The enrollment fee will be one dollar. The enrollment will begin on Friday the 16th, at the county superintendent's office and continue until the opening of the session. It is very much desired that all who can, attend to these matters at this time as it will do much toward obviating the confusion attendant upon the opening session.

Among the instructors are: Professor F. M. Gregg whose work in past years has proven his worth, and we are indeed fortunate to secure him again this year.

Miss Bertha Knoll who was here last year, will have the primary work. Few persons in the state have a more enviable reputation as institute instructor. Her personality, enthusiasm and splendid ideas are never forgotten.

Dr. Harvey Curtis will present a phase of school work new to the teachers of Wayne county in his lectures on organized play. As Dr. Curtis is an authority in his line of work, Wayne county is extremely fortunate to secure him for a whole week's work.

Professor Rees Solomon will have charge of the music.

Patrons are welcome at all sessions—the work of Dr. Henry Curtis will be of special interest to visitors.

Teachers who have been annoyed by solicitors at former institutes will be glad to learn that no agents will attend this session of the institute.

J. E. Hufford went to Omaha the first of the week to take charge of a department of the McClure book business in that city during the busy fall season. The family went to Holdridge to visit at the home of her parents for a time.

Find Man's Coat—Owner Missing

Several days ago J. W. O'Neil of Wayne received an express package sent from Omaha. He opened it, and found it contained a coat belonging to a relative, W. A. Moore, who has been living in Omaha. An unsigned note was inclosed which read:

"Found at Ninth and Capitol." As no word has been received from Moore for several days the O'Neil family became alarmed and Mr. O'Neil went to Omaha to ask aid of the police. He told the police that they had received no word from Moore since a week ago Friday.

The police say that Moore has lived here for some time but cannot tell where he was employed. He is a young man about 22 years old and limps when he walks.

The above was taken from an Omaha paper, and is partially correct. William A. Moore is a member of the Wayne lodge A. O. U. W., and the last heard from him by relatives and friends here was when he left Peru to go to Omaha. The pocket of the coat contained letters from J. M. Cherry, and the family finding it sent one of the letters to Mr. Cherry telling about the finding of the coat. Mr. Cherry at once notified J. W. McNeal, who is Moore's uncle, and he went at once to Omaha to investigate. They learned of a man being found dead in a room not far from where Moore's coat was found, and it was reported that he had been buried unidentified, and it was feared that it might be Moore. Mr. McNeal soon learned upon arrival at Omaha that the man who died was not his nephew, but he is unable to find his nephew.

City Cafe Closes

Owing to the high cost of living the City Cafe, conducted for the past three months by C. L. Rudd, failed to open its doors Sunday morning, and a card announced that no meals would be served there that day, and a number of boarders sought other places for breakfast. Mrs. Rudd left Tuesday going to Dow City, Iowa, and Mr. Rudd left for Omaha the same day, where his brother, who preceded him in the business here is now engaged in business. It is said that his brother retained an interest in the business, and he was expected here Monday evening, but did not come. Mr. Rudd when leaving, stated that he would return this week. So far as we can learn he is not involved to any extent unless it be that he is owing on the fixtures used to conduct the business. Mr. Rudd stated that his business had not been paying and he decided to quit.

The Nicest Tooth Paste we ever saw

Nyidenta Cream is the most delightful and effective tooth cleanser and preservative you can possibly use.

Nyidenta enters the crypts and crevices of the teeth—even where the bristles of the brush fail to go—prevents fermentation and inhibits the growth of disease germs upon the mucous membranes of the mouth.

Nyidenta Cream is a prophylactic and preservative—it supplies the cleansing elements necessary to tooth preservation, elements that are found in the normal secretions of every mouth but always absent in the presence of decay.

It hardens the gums, protects, whitens, and polishes the enamel of the teeth—sweeters and perfumes the breath.

There is absolutely no waste to Nyidenta—it is clean and economical.

WAKEFIELD, NEBRASKA

A Few Facts about One of the best Cities in Dixon County. Recognized as one of the Commercial Centers of the State . . .

Editor Democrat.—If you will grant me space in your paper I will endeavor to give you a brief picture of Wakefield, Neb., one of the most progressive little cities in Dixon county, as the expressed opinion of Uncle Josh Wise, who visited the little city a few days ago. Uncle Josh is one of these easterners that has so much of the ready cash that he cannot find a market for it in the eastern states and came west to invest it in the fine lands that are to be found at such reasonable prices in comparison to the values in the east. Mr. Wise left the York state some weeks ago and started for the west, making stops at intervals along the route. All through the states of Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, nothing appealed to him until he landed on the Nebraska soil. As soon as he found himself in Nebraska he began to sit up and take notice of the vast prairies and beautiful farms that are to be seen along the lines of railroads. The farther out in the state he got the more interest he began to take. This interest continued to increase until he arrived in the neighborhood of the prosperous little city of Wakefield in Dixon county. Arriving at Wakefield he decided that he had reached the garden spot of the great west and dropped off to dive farther into the beauties of the surroundings. He found Wakefield was one of the cleanest, neatest and best regulated little cities that he had found since leaving York state. He was not slow in making up his mind that Dixon county was one of the best in the state and without going farther he would make a thorough investigation in and around the thriving little city.

He was much surprised to learn that the so-called dugouts or sod houses had been supplanted with fine and elegant residences on the fine prairies that used to be the abiding places of the beasts of the plains. The old gentleman was much surprised at the general appearance of everything he saw, and decided that this section was the garden spot of the wild and woolly west. He also conceived the idea to his entire satisfaction that the much talked of wild Indians of the great west were something of the past, and that their habitations were filled up with the best class of people that are to be found anywhere.

As has been stated before, Uncle Josh left his native state to come west and invest some of his surplus cash in some of the best land that the sun ever shown on. While Mr. Wise is out here to part with his ready cash of which he has an abundance, he also is here to find a good wife and as he expresses it, the women of the western prairies are the most beautiful, the best formed and the most affectionate that he has seen in his life. Now girls, do not all of you think that you can win the heart and hand of Uncle Josh, for to be honest with you, I do not think that any of you stand the least shadow of a chance to win his affections as he is not of the class that takes very readily to the yards of dry moss and bolts of ribbon that adorn your head gear. But to be candid with you, I am of the opinion that some of the old maids in this section of the country that he chanced to meet stand the best show of finding a warm place in the heart of Uncle Josh Wise.

After Uncle Josh had taken a brief survey of the little city, his next thought was to see the surrounding country. This he found to be as fine and well improved as any he had found anywhere. He also found the farmers to be very prosperous with everything at their command that goes to make home comfortable and happy.

After his tour of the surrounding country he returned to the town to interview the business men. He found them up-to-date in every detail and their various lines of goods as complete and well selected as can be found in any locality, and all of them very enthusiastic as to the future of the little city.

 heifers were also in good demand at good, firm prices. The meager supply

 good strong prices.

Heinecken, the German Prodigy.
 Christian Henry Heinecken, the most wonderful of all the world's precocious prodigies, was born at Lubek, Germany, in the year 1721. When but nine and a half months of age this human wonder could pronounce every word contained in the German language, and before he had rounded out his first year of earthly existence he knew all the leading events of the world's history. At the age of fourteen months he could give chapter and verse of any quoted passage of the Scriptures and knew the history of every book in both the Old and New Testaments. At the age of two and a half years he could answer every question in the geographies and histories then in use and could converse with visitors in either German, French, Dutch, Latin or Greek. His fourth year was devoted to the study of religion and ancient history. He had finished the studies mentioned and had started on a course in oriental religion
 when he suddenly died before completing his fourth year.

Instinct In Birds.
 In the stormy part of the year a steamer encountered rough weather,
 and, as often happens at such times,
 many sea gulls hovered near the ship
 and even came on board. One allowed itself to be caught, and it was found that it had a fish bone stuck in the eye
 in such a position as not absolutely to destroy the sight, but penetrating an inch into the flesh of the bird and projecting an inch and a half. It might have had a fight with a fish or got transfixed seeking its prey. The doctor of the ship took the bird, extracted
 the bone, applied a soothing remedy to the wound and let it go. It flew away, but returned the next day, allowing itself to be caught. The doctor examined the wound, which was progressing favorably, applied more of the remedy
 and let the bird go a second time. It flew several times around the ship and then departed and returned no more.—

G. A. Sala and His Epitaph.
 Among some autograph letters and historical documents sold recently was a series of eight letters by George Angustus Sala addressed to W. P. Frith, including an amusing forecast of his own epitaph:

When I die it may be written on my tomb,
 He wrote the worst burlesque ever noted;
 He abused the constituted authorities
 and
 with malice prepense
 maligned
 The Royal Academy of Arts.
 He did the things he ought not to have done and never did
 Those he should have done.
 He was stout in person and bloated in countenance, and
 He never came to dinner when he was asked.
 But when he "dropped in" unasked was no doubt better company than many invited guests are! —Pearson's Weekly.

Futility of Education.
 An eminent physician, at a recent convention of railway surgeons in Philadelphia, said of a safety device that has averted many railway accidents:

"The advantage of this device is now almost universally recognized. Indeed, the railroad who disputes its advantage is as antiquated as the old resi-
 denter who said:
 "Education be hanged. That's young Bill Smithers took an engineering course in a correspondence school and then put up a sign on his carriage house and hadn't no better sense than to spell 'carriage' 'garage.'" —Exchange.

Changes at Crystal Lake

A number of Wayne people are interested in Crystal Lake holdings, and the following from the Sioux City Tribune of Tuesday
 evening will be of interest to them:
 'Riley Howard of Orchard, Nebraska, is today closing a deal whereby he acquires possession of the entire holdings of the Foye family at Crystal Lake. The abstracts to the property are being examined today. It is thought the deal will be concluded tomorrow.
 Mr. Howard pays $11,500 and takes the holdings of Joseph A.
 Foye, Sr., Joseph A. Foye, Jr., and
 Harry A. Foye. The senior Mr.
 Foye sells the cottages he owns at the resort; Joseph A. Foye, sells 1,280 feet of water front and the Forest Beach bath house; Harry A.
 Foye disposes of his lots at the Foye dock and near the dance pavilion. His property is known as "Foye park."

The article goes on to state that Howard, who controls the electric road to this resort will now be able to extend the road to the park,
 which will give him terminal facilities which he could not before procure.

Bryan on His Trail

The cheerfulness and most soul-
 satisfying news that has come out of the preliminaries of the campaign is that William J. Bryan is to camp on the trail of Theodore Roosevelt.

That, we judge, will be about enough for Roosevelt. If it isn't,
 we are informed that "Battle Bob"
 LaFollette will, from time to time, lend his assistance to Mr.
 Bryan's patriotic and commendable efforts to knock Mr. Roosevelt into a cocked hat. Bryan, alone, would be more than a match for Roosevelt. He is more than a match, forensically, for any living man.
 He is the most wonderful platform
 fighter this country has produced.
 But Bryan, with LaFollette to help him—LaFollette to speak for those progressive republicans who are neither summer soldiers nor sunshine patriots, but really progressives—will give Mr. Roosevelt that bully strenuous time he long has sought and mourned because he found it not.

It is a program that is brimming
 over with poetic justice, too.
 Four years ago, when Mr. Bryan had Taft on the run, Roosevelt intervened and got on Bryan's trail. He camped there so effectively that he induced multitudes
 to believe that Taft was actually a progressive republican, and in consequence Bryan was beaten.
 Roosevelt beat Bryan out of the presidency in 1908; Bryan will take great pleasure in insuring that Roosevelt is even more overwhelmingly beaten for the same high office in 1912. Honors will then be even, says the World-Herald.

Wilson and Immigration

Some republican newspapers are trying to make it appear that Gov. Wilson is a foe to immigration, using a certain statement in one of the books he wrote as the basis for their charges. In the book in question Dr. Wilson deplored the practice, in use at the time he wrote the book, of certain trans Atlantic steamship companies in artificially stimulating immigration from South Europe. These steamship companies got out huge advertisements and posters, setting forth that every man who came to America would be given a free farm and a good job, and other ridiculous promises. Gov. Wilson wrote that this had the effect of bringing many people who were not in a position to make a success in this country and who would have been better off at home.

Gov. Wilson is not opposed to immigration. He wants this country to continue to be a haven for the oppressed people of Europe, but he wants sane and reasonable regulations, such as at present prevail. He doesn't want steamship companies to hold out false promises to prospective immigrants, and it is significant that practically all of the foreign newspapers published in this country are in accord with his views.

The Express Graft Again

The Interstate Commerce Commission, in its report on the express business, sets forth that while the express companies pay dividends on a capitalization of $106,000,000, they have an actual capital investment of less than $7,000,000. Their chief asset is their contracts with the railroads, which contracts are little more than licenses to rob the people. Express rates in this country are ten times what they should be on some classes of merchandise, and as much of their traffic is in food stuffs, the tremendous benefits they enjoy adds directly to the high cost of living.

Rural Schools

At the recent meeting of the National Education Association in Chicago a good deal of attention was given to the "little red school house" (Who has ever seen a country school house painted red?) and its problems. It was declared by more than one speaker that the country child is a neglected child, and the country school a neglected school. We may agree with this, but we can't agree with the speaker who casts a reflection upon the mental ability of country youths by stating that less than one-third of them make their grades. There is enough wrong with country schools, goodness knows, but the country child is all right. He doesn't get as good a chance at the school game as town and city youngsters; that's all.

It was urged at this meeting of school teachers that agricultural instruction must be established in rural schools to restore interest and incentive to rural education. This may sound well enough 500 miles away from the "little red school house," but just how the teaching of a smattering of agriculture would make a school out of a little one-room institution of three or four pupils presided over by a very young girl just out of school is beyond our ability to understand. Did it ever occur to you that our school system is a form of co-operation, enforced through the government, it is true, by which citizens secure the benefits of school training for their children? The reason towns and cities have better schools than the country is that there are more patrons and more taxpayers behind each school unit—more co-operators, a bigger concern. The more citizens there are joined together in a given school, up to a certain limit, the better the school. That is why the towns and cities get all the good teachers in the course of time—or just as soon as they have practiced up on farmers' children. The thing that ails the country school most of all is its size—or better, its lack of size, and the small number of people back of each "little red school house" with coin and patronage. Consolidation will help immensely, but we can never have really good schools in the country until we have more pupils in the country to patronize and support them. If you don't believe this compare the schools of a ranch or country, or region of large farms, with the schools of a compactly settled community of irrigation farmers or fruit growers.

While rural schools, in our opinion, can never be really efficient until conducted in large units, with more patronage and support behind each unit, yet something could be done to improve them as they stand. Compare the management of the rural schools with the management of the schools of large towns and cities. The latter employ in each case a city superintendent. He is elected by the school board, and his selection is not confined to a group of local candidates, but the board may go to the ends of the earth for a good man or woman. A California city has recently come to Lincoln, Nebraska, for a city superintendent.

On the other hand, our rural schools are under the direction of the county superintendent in each county. This officer is selected by the people at a regular election from a group of candidates, each of whom must be a citizen of the county. This narrows the opportunity to make a good selection, and makes the office a political affair. We have confidence in the people all right, but in the excitement of a campaign when their attention is fixed upon candidates for higher positions they cannot be expected to take much time to discriminate between candidates for county offices.

And then when a good superintendent is secured (and there are a host of good ones in Nebraska) he may be voted out at the next election when the people are deciding even local elections on the tariff question or money question. There is neither a high tariff nor a low tariff method of running our schools, and it is foolish to make the office of county superintendent, a political one.

The county superintendent in each county ought to be appointed by a competent board, the board being responsible to the people, which like the school boards of cities and towns may go outside of the community if need be to get a good officer. Then the appointee ought to be allowed to keep the job until he has time to work out his plans. Such a system would, we are convinced, give us much better school management. And this is not a slap at present county superintendents, either, for they haven't much show to make good because of the frequent campaigns they must make to stay in office.—Nebraska Farmer

Freak Base Ball Plays

A writer in the American Magazine tells of many freakish ball plays. Among the abnormal incidents that figured in the earlier history of the national game, perhaps none is as well known to old timers as the one which happened to Cliff Carroll, on the St. Louis grounds, when he was a member of the famous Browns. He was running forward to take a base hit on the first bound. The ball bounced crooked and hit him on the chest. He grabbed at the ball hastily and, as he clutched it, he shoved it down into the handkerchief pocket of his shirt front. The runner saw Carroll tugging and straining to tear the ball out of his pocket and instead of stopping at first, he sprinted on to second while Carroll, still trying to dislodge the ball, ran to second. The batter passed the fielder and turned for third with Carroll in pursuit. At third Carroll stopped and tried in vain to release the ball, and the runner kept on across the plate and scored the winning run. After that pockets were removed from baseball shirts.

A fake play robbed 'Doc' Casey's Toronto team of a game in the Eastern League. The game was at Rochester and Casey's catching staff was so crippled that the plump little veteran was compelled to don the wind pad himself. Casey is short and quite stout. But he was doing fairly well until the tenth inning, when Rochester had a runner on third with two out. A wild pitched ball struck the ground in front of Casey and disappeared. The runner hesitated until he saw Casey making frantic efforts to get the ball from under his protector, then he came home with the winning run just as Casey located the sphere, which had gone under the protector and wedged itself past the elastic belt too tightly.

A strange freak play was made by Frank McNichols in a minor league in Chicago. McNichols was playing first base. The score was tied in the ninth inning. There were runners on second and third with two out, and a base hit meant probable defeat for McNichols' team, and loss of the city championship. The umpire's blouse was filled with extra balls and in stooping to sight along the plate as the pitcher wound up, he allowed one of the spare balls to fall to the ground behind him. The batter hit a hard line drive that seemed aimed at the pitcher's ankles. The pitcher leaped aside to avoid being hit, the batted ball struck the ball on the ground and the two balls kissed off at right angles. One went straight toward the shortstop, the other toward second baseman. Each player thought the ball rolling toward him was the one in play and each dashed forward, made clever running scoops at the same instant and threw to first base at the same time. The shortstop threw high and to the left of McNichols, the second baseman threw low and to his right. McNichols, with his left hand stretched high, caught one ball in his mitt and with the other hand caught the low throw, and Fitzgerald, after scratching his head an instant, called the batter out and refused to allow either of the runs that crossed the plate on the play to be recorded.

The Logan Squares, a local Chicago team once played a game with a famous colored team called the Leland Giants. In this game, which was to decide the city pennant championship, a freak play occurred that helped the Leland Giants to win. A batted ball that was going safe over the head of the second baseman, struck an English sparrow, killed the bird, and fell directly in front of the baseman, who threw the runner out and saved the game.

Lightning Strikes Windmill

During the rain last Thursday evening lightning struck the windmill tower on the Phil Damme farm a few miles southwest of Wayne. No serious damage is reported. The bolt set fire to the dry grass that was around the tower and burned over quite a little patch.

Captures a Tarantula

When George Warner came home from Bonesteel Sunday he brought a pet with him which he captured in that tropical clime Saturday, just to show his children what a pretty thing a tarantula is, and when he came to exhibit his prize, lo, there were many of them for in capturing the insect he took with it, or rather the tarantula took with herself a white appearing ball about the size of a robin's egg. This must have been the covering of a nest full of eggs, for from it came hundreds of little tarantulas, not as large as a common house fly. The little fellows were quite lively and if one old spider can mother as many of the little pests as did this one, we do not want to live in the land where they grow wild.

Mr. Warner was selecting the ripest fruit from a bunch of bananas when this spider jumped quickly out from the bunch onto his arm and as quickly darted back into concealment. The fruit was then taken to the street and the ugly looking thing hunted out and removed with a pair of blacksmith tongs, and placed in a glass jar. Mr. Warner proposes to preserve the entire bunch in alcohol, and we hope he will place it in some public collection of insects.

They're all Doing It Now

The trusts have found out that nothing pays so well as "dissolution". Following the decree of the supreme court ordering the Standard Oil trust to dissolve, the value of that monopoly's stock went skyward. The court decree, without changing the trust in any way, except in the matter of administration, amounted practically to a government guarantee to violate the laws. After the decree was issued the trust managers discovered that the monopoly stood in no further danger of government prosecution, and as this danger always had been the chief menace to the trust, it was a great boom to have it removed. According to the value of the trust share rose rapidly.

As a result, other trusts have begun to "dissolve". The beef trust has announced a "dissolution" plan, so that it, too, may conform to the supreme court definition of a law abiding trust. The powder trust did likewise, the decree, in its case, being written by the trust's own lawyer, and later approved by the federal court of Delaware.

Next to a high tariff, "dissolution" is the best thing that ever happened to the trusts.

Hurt in a Runaway

Wm. Brumester who lives a few miles west of Tندر is said to have been quite seriously hurt last week, when that vicinity was visited by severe storms of wind and hail. The hail rendered his team unmanageable, and he was trying to unhitch them from the wagon when they started and ran, dragging the young man by the lines which in some manner had been wound about him. In attempting to cut the lines and free himself, it is reported that he cut a gash in his breast, the blade causing internal bleeding. The man is about 27 years of age, and only recently married.

Our Operators Answer In Four Seconds

We have rushes of business just as stores, banks and restaurants do. When you assert that our operators are slow in answering, please consider this:

Does any store clerk, sales girl, or any cashier in town wait on you as quickly as do the operators of the Telephone Company?

The average time you wait for "Central" to answer is less than four seconds—less than one-fifteenth of a minute. Does any other business house give you as uniformly prompt service?

WAYNE MARKET REPORT

Table with market prices for various goods: Oats, Corn, Barley, Spring wheat, Wheat, Eggs, Butter, Hogs, Fat Cattle.

It will soon be time to discharge the ice man and negotiate with the coal dealer.

Once more we pause to ask, 'What is a Republican?' and many echoes reply, but no two alike.

This is a busy year for the postmasters, for there is a presidential election pending, and the poor fellows don't have much faith in the chance to retain their job.

As compromise for those who are discussing whether the Goddess of Liberty or a burley buffalo shall have place on the new 3-cent piece, we suggest the bull moose as being about the right size to fit on this little coin.

The Wayne county farmer can hardly have a kirk coming this year—he felt sure two weeks ago he would have, but since then the weather has been so favorable that he should now be ashamed of himself for doubting the powers that order all thing well.

And another good thing to the present congress was done is to practically kill the prize fight business. I did it in a simple way. Just forbid the sending of the prize fight pictures from one state to another. In these latter days the big profit accruing to the fight promoters came from the moving pictures, and with the profit eliminated the prize fight will soon die a natural death.

The best and most popular planks in the platform thus far adopted by the proposed new party are democratic doctrines that have long been advocated by progressive democrats as party measures, yet the new party proposes to have on its banners the great commandment, 'Thou shalt not steal' and they take that without giving proper credit to the author of that great law.

The Beef Trust is officially dead says Attorney General Wickersham, in accepting the dissolution of the trust as fixed up by the trust attorneys. Well, if it is dead like the Standard Oil and Tobacco concerns meats will be harder to reach than ever before. Now would be a good time for the vegetarian to get busy and convert the people who cannot afford to buy meat to their diet beliefs.

In the election of Wm. H. Thompson of Grand Island to the chairmanship of the state committee the convention acted wisely; for in Mr. Thompson we have a leader in whom all have confidence, first in his hearty sympathy with the people in their forward movement against the monopolies now entrenched behind special privilege; and second, because of his ability to successfully organize the party for this great fight. Under his wise leadership the democracy of Nebraska should move on to a great victory both in state and national politics. We predict that the votes given to progressive democracy this fall will outnumber those of any previous election by many thousand. Let us all aid in the work.

Mrs. James Leahy and baby and Miss Ella Leahy arrived home Friday evening from Crystal lake after a week's outing. In the case before Judge A. A. Welch last week asking an injunction against Nels Orcut restraining him from building in what is claimed as a street, the order was granted. We have not learned when a final hearing will be held. A. B. Dixon has returned to his home at Lincoln after a ten day visit here, at the home of F. Blair and wife. This was his first visit to Wayne, and he was agreeably surprised to find an agricultural country so far superior to what he had pictured this part of the state. Those who saw the Auto Cycle washer thoroughly clean a very badly soiled shirt in two minutes conceded that the machine has merit—and when one thinks that it would have washed a half dozen shirts as quickly as it did one, and did as good a job, they realize what a labor saver it is. H. L. Bredemeyer of Carroll passed through our city this morning enroute to Sioux City to spend Sunday with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Wacker of Winside who is in the Samaritan Hospital at that place where she underwent an operation a couple of weeks ago. He reports Mrs. Wacker as recovering nicely from the operation. A. E. Row and wife from Blair came last week to visit at the home of I. C. Trumbauer and wife, the ladies being sisters. Mr. Row is engaged in the sale of silos during the spring and early summer, and is a great believer in the economy of silage as a perfect ration for stock. Mrs. Row departed for her home today to join her husband who left Monday. The W. C. T. U. held a meeting Tuesday afternoon and completed their organization, electing Mrs. McConnell secretary, Mrs. Horace Theobald treasurer, Mrs. James Britton superintendent of scientific temperance, Mrs. O. E. Graves superintendent of evangelistic work, and Mrs. Geo. Porter superintendent of mother's meeting. The next meeting will be held the afternoon of August 16th. Word comes from Clinton, Iowa, that Mrs. G. W. Barker and daughter Florence have gone from that place to Baltimore, Maryland, to visit relatives there, and that upon their return they will be accompanied by Mr. A. E. Jeffery, who will come to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. Barker, at Clinton. Should his health be good enough they may all come on to Wayne to visit relatives and friends, for this place was long their home. Was there ever such a time for daily newspaper readers? Everybody wants a daily paper now, and they want one that will give them the "straight" of everything going on. The State Journal is that sort of a paper, and to induce you to become a reader now makes the very low price of only $1.50 from now until January 1, 1913, for both the daily and Sunday paper. Send your order and money now, and the paper will start at once. It will stop on January 1st. Write to The State Journal, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Clyde Oman is at Omaha today. Miss White is visiting at Sioux City today. Miss Agnes Leahy left for Winside Friday to visit friends. John Grimsley is transacting business at Sioux City today. Phone Rundell for Elberta—nothing but the best quality offered. John Gustafson went to Omaha Thursday to look after his property there. Herbert Leach left Thursday morning for Lake Okoboji to join friends there for an outing. It's too hot to bake now days. Use Buster Brown Bread. Arrives fresh every day at Rundells. This is going to be a busy season for those who have nothing to do but argue politics. It is beginning early too, this year. July 19th was Free Day at our drug store. Bring in your cash tickets of that date and get all your money back. Leahy's drug store. 31-2. You are asked to read the Beaman advertisement early this week that you may not be disappointed because you did not know of its special offer until too late. A son born to Frank Simonin and wife July 25th lived less than a day. The funeral and burial were the 27th. The parents have the sympathy of all in their bereavement. Mrs. J. A. McGinty and family from Winside spent Thursday at the home of J. H. Massie and family, while on their way to Huron, South Dakota, where they will make their home from now on. Mrs. McGinty and Mrs. Massie are sisters. Those who want a teachers position in the Philippines may learn something of the requirements, pay, and conditions by applying at the Wayne postoffice. The winters are very mild there, and coal and clothing bills are small items of expense. John Good and wife came Wednesday evening from Washta, Iowa, to visit at the home of their son John at Altona. They were accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Colwell from Wagner, South Dakota, who had been visiting her parents in Iowa and came here with them on her way home. The new library building is moving toward completion at a satisfactory rate. The building is now ready for the tile roof and the men who are to place it are expected here next week from Chicago. The library building appears small, but it will make up in quality what it lacks in size—and the size will prove ample we doubt not. Those who attended the "Chicago Convention at the opera house two weeks ago will be sure to see the "Baltimore Convention" which will be presented at that popular play house Saturday, both afternoon and evening. There is a great interest in politics this fall and all should see the show that made so much political history. K. G. Johnson, who is demonstrating the famous Auto Cycle washer here regrets that he was called away from Wayne Saturday afternoon, and if those who called that day will come again he will gladly show them the machine, and show them what it will do. The ladies are especially asked to come and see. It is the washer that you will ultimately buy.

Rock and barrel salt at Rundells. Miss Almstead is visiting friends at Norfolk today. Many from Wayne are at Winside today attending the carnival. F. A. Berry returned Wednesday evening from a three-day business trip in the western part of the state. Mrs. Savage has returned to her home at Grand Island, after a visit of several weeks at the home of her parents, Rev. Gorst and wife. Mrs. R. E. K. Mellor, and Ringland by Mesdames Wilson and Angland will entertain at Kensington at the Mellor home Friday afternoon. A. M. Helt and his sister-in-law, Miss Wildman, who is spending the summer here, went to Lincoln Thursday to attend the Epworth Assembly. Miss Anna Herdt returned to Lincoln Thursday after a visit with her sister Mrs. J. C. Nuss. The lady made her home here several months last winter. The rain storm did not prevent a goodly number of the women from attending the Rally Day service of the Bible Circle at Mrs. C. A. Grothe's yesterday afternoon. At the close of the interesting lesson study light refreshments were served by the hostess and some plans for work during the short vacation were discussed. The Circle meets again the first week in September with some interesting meetings between. Messrs. Blair & Mulloy are planning some decided improvement in their store room. The interior will be changed to meet their needs, and a new and modern front will replace the present front. The new front will be of plate glass set in copper frame, and will consist of a lobby 7x7 feet, thus giving a show window on each side a little larger than the lobby. In front of the store will be placed an iron lamp post, from the top of which the light of five electrolier lamps will dispell the darkness. The material for the change is already ordered, and work will soon be under way. Chas. Sellers is home from a trip to Wyoming and other points in the west. He was at Powell, Wyoming, where there are a number of Wayne people. Of that place he says it is young, and will improve with age. The most profitable farming there it is thought will be hay—alfalfa and stock growing, and that is the purpose of most of the farmers there. They also grow a large yield of potatoes and all kinds of garden truck; but the potato is too bulky to ship far and pay mountain freight, and except in the season when travel is heavy to the park there is not much market for "garden sass" so it naturally settles down to stock and alfalfa. Bees do remarkably well there, however, and many are trying from a few to 50 stands. Some hives are producing at the rate of 100 pounds of honey per year.

Among The Churches of Wayne Baptist Church (Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor) Sunday morning will be our communion service. We appreciate very much the interest taken in this communion and fellowship service by our members. This service generally makes our highest attendance for the month. The pastor will give a brief communion address Sunday morning. We hope to make the service a quiet communion meditation, throughout. We are arranging for their class picnics. Already four classes have had their outing. Let each teacher try to arrange for such an afternoon with her class. On Sunday evening at 6:30 the pastor of the Presbyterian church of Randolph will preach at the court house. Our prayer meetings have increased in attendance the last few weeks. This is a thing to be highly commended. We meet in the ladies parlor each Wednesday at 8 p. m. We cordially invite you all to worship with us. St. Paul's Lutheran Church (Rev. Floyd Blessing, Pastor) Services next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Subject of sermon, "The World's True Light." Please keep in mind the Sunday school at 10 o'clock. The Ladies Aid Society will hold its next meeting at the home of Miss Adda Stambaugh on August 8. Choir rehearsal next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. CATHOLIC CHURCH (Rev. Father Kerns, Pastor) At Wayne—Mass at 8:00 a. m., Sunday school at 3:30 p. m., Benediction, 7:30 in the evening. Mass will also be celebrated at Carroll at 10:30 a. m., on Sunday, August 4th.

German Lutheran Church (J. H. Karpenstein, Pastor) There will be Sunday school at 11 o'clock a. m., and preaching services at 3 o'clock p. m. The Ladies Aid met with Mrs. J. Lueders Thursday. Death of Mrs. J. S. Gamble (By Rev. Amos Fetzner) Hattie L. Norman was born in Illinois January 1, 1858, and died at her home four, and one-half miles northeast of Wayne July 26, 1912. On February 18, 1885, near Kobby, Kansas, she was married to J. S. Gamble who mourns his loss of a loving wife. This union was blessed with five children, three of them preceding her to their home beyond, while Grace and Roy were with her in her last hours. Sister Gamble had been a great sufferer for years so that death to her was a welcome guest, even calling upon others to pray that the Dear Father would take her unto himself. Sister Gamble early in life became a Christian, uniting with the church to which she was faithful and true until death, being a member of the Wayne M. E. church at the time of her departure. In 1905 she with her family moved from Kansas to Wayne county, living for a short time near Wayne and then into the Grace church community where they lived until two years ago last spring when they moved northeast of Winside where they resided for one year, when they purchased a farm four and one-half miles northeast of Wayne. That this family were held in high esteem was manifested by the large company of people from Grace and the Winside communities attending the funeral services which were conducted in the Wayne M. E. church Sunday, July 28, by the writer, her former pastor at Winside and Grace, and the body was laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery in Wayne.

Base Ball Notes for the Week

By Official Reporter.
Since the last writing the Wayne aggregation have been playing great ball. Making a clean sweep last week by winning five games from Carroll, Wisner, Bloomfield and Coleridge, they began again by defeating Winside 5 to 3 on the local diamond but Bloomfield put a crimp in their percentage by taking them down the pike to the tune of 7 to 5. Even then victory wasn't in sight until the ninth round had passed and Mrs. Hicks had gathered her bunch of children together and politely informed them that they didn't have quite enough scores and besides nine bells had struck and supper was about ready. This game was marked with great hitting on both sides, each team gathering ten hits from the opposing pitcher, while the errors were about even. Jones lead for our bunch, getting three out of five and by the way, while Jones is a recent addition to the team, he needs no introduction whatever and they that remember him last year will take great pride in seeing him crack 'em a mile and eating 'em up in the short garden.

Last Friday the M. G. R. took his bunch to Wisner in Holland and played a beautiful game winning 2 to 0, that being the second shut out for that city within the week. Gurness pitched great stuff during this fray, letting the hard hitting Wisnerites plus a few West Pointers with one little measly hit and that a bunt which Mrs. Murphy herself gobbled up and threw out the runner at first by two hops but the umps was eating peanuts with his best girl and called the runner safe, but there is no doubt but that is the way he saw the play. They treated us royally there and as far as that goes they have that reputation so we could expect nothing else.

Saturday Coleridge made their first appearance and were promptly trounced 8 to 4 but not until after the most sensational rally seen here for some time. Everything was going along merrily for our neighboring city until the seventh count when the fire works began. With the score 4 to 2 and us on the short end, Rodman cracked out a single and that started the big show which never stopped until seven hits had been made off Mr. Hayes and six dough-boys were added to our list making it 8 to 4. Rodman twirled this game and gave a good exhibition working out of the pinches in great style. It was reported that he lost six pounds during the battle but if he did, according to the restaurant man he made it up that evening.

Monday our good friend Winside blew into camp and promptly left, leaving their little imprint on our score book which read 5 to 3. It was a good game from start to finish, both sides hitting freely with more or less errors. Nepo got away with everything on the third corner.

Next week we are matched for a number of purses at Randolph and Crofton against Bloomfield and Coleridge and sincerely hope that we come out on top and will if the same class of ball is played as has been last week. One thing lacking here is the public interest in the team. The attendance at the games has been below average and we are at a loss to account for this. If we had a losing team we could see why the gate receipts should dwindle but the team is and has been winning close to 70 per cent of their games and this is exceptionally good for an independent team, so all that can be done is to watch and wait and hoe corn while old Sol smiles.

Bloomfield will be here for another big battle Tuesday. They have the players and they fight to win. This will be the only game next week until Saturday. Don't miss it. Remember the date—Tuesday, August 6th.

Word comes that Geo. Stone will be here tomorrow (Friday) to play with Madison. They are coming loaded to win. They have as good a team as we have met and they play fine, clean ball.

Next week our team plays in three tournaments for substantial purses. Should we succeed in winning these games the proceeds will pay expenses for the week.

The Luxus Brewing Co. team, one of the best semi-professional teams of Omaha will be here one week from Monday and Tuesday for two games.

Out of curiosity, Rodman who pitched the game against Coleridge Saturday, weighed in on the meat market scales at 10:30 in the morning and again after the game. The scales showed that he lost just six pounds during the afternoon, which would demonstrate that base ball is play that takes some strenuous work.

When you are preparing to attend the ball games think of some one whom you might influence to go along and bring them with you. The gate receipts must be kept up in good shape if we are to keep the team going.

Mr. Renter.

Dear Sir:—Why stay here and pay big rent when you can go to Minnesota and get a home in the Red River Valley? Well improved, not over six miles from town at $40.00 to $60.00 per acre and on easy terms. Our excursions are on the first and third Tuesdays of the month. Next Tuesday is the day, come in and see me for further particulars.

SIGNOR LACERENGA, ROYAL ITALIAN GUARDS BAND.

SIGNOR LACERENGA, director of the Royal Italian Guards band, which plays here Chautauqua week, first distinguished himself as a bandmaster as the director of the Boys' Musical College band when he was ten years old and a student in the Boys' Musical college in a suburban town near Naples, Italy. At the time of his graduation he was the head master of his class. At an anniversary celebration in this famous old college town this boys' band appeared on the anniversary day program in conjunction with the celebrated Neapolitan Concert band, one of the best known in Italy. His genius was soon discovered, and he was sent to Naples, where his education was completed. He has directed some of the greatest bands in Italy and returns to America this summer with his Royal Italian Guards, a Victor organization. He toured the Redpath-Fornor Chautauqua circuit with this band last summer and is brought back in response to thousands of requests.

She has been a member of the Constitution chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She has visited almost every civilized country of the world and made extensive sociological investigations in her travels. She established a $4,000 home for indigent gentlewomen in her own state, Mississippi. She has lectured in every state and territory in this nation from Alaska to Florida and in many foreign countries. She has met Count Tolstoy at his home in Russia and has a personal acquaintance with more of the great men and women of this generation than any other woman in the world. She will speak in this city Chautauqua week.

Washington Political News

By C. H. Tavenner

Washington, July 30.—Face to face with the realization that a democratic administration is coming into power, and knowing that this will mean the end of the tariff protection privilege under which they have plundered the people for nearly a score of years, the tariff trusts are going to take one final gouge into the pocketbooks of the people before they are pushed away from the troughs of special privilege at which they have grown fat.

The leather trust, which is largely owned by the beef barons, has announced that the price of leather is to increase 20 per cent. This increase is attributed to the greater demands of the automobile manufacturers for leather. This demand is no greater now than it has been for the last three or four years, and those who are familiar with trade conditions say the excuse given by the trust is only a subterfuge. The increase will mean another boost in the price of shoes, which will mean that hundreds of thousands of people, especially women and children, who are unable to pay more than they are now paying, will have to use a cheaper quality of footwear.

The clothing manufacturers—which means the woolen trust—also have announced an increase in the prices of cloth for fall and winter deliveries. The price of woolen cloth, it is announced, will go up all the way from five to twenty cents a yard. This increase is made necessary, the trust managers say, by the wool shortage here and abroad, and by the increased cost of labor.

It will be recalled that immediately after the Lawrence, Mass., strike last winter the woolen trust announced an increase of fifteen per cent in its products. The excuse was that this had to be made in order to meet the demands of the workers. The mill men, women and children who had been working for $5, $6 and $7 a week were granted an increase of five per cent, which meant only a few cents additional each week to them, and to meet this increase the price of cloth was boosted fifteen per cent. In this way the wool trust owners were able to make the consumers pay, not only the increased cost of labor, but all the expenses of the strike as well, so that dividends, far from being less on account of the strike, were actually greater as a result thereof.

Both of these announced increases are purely arbitrary. There isn't the slightest excuse for an increase in the prices of either leather or clothing, and the only excuse for either is the inordinate greed of the trust owners. These men know that after next year they will have to climb down from their high perch, from where they have been directing their wholesale robbery of the people, and for that reason they are preparing to get the last dollar possible for themselves before their special privilege graft comes to an end.

I want your name and address.
J. C. Sparks.

In view of the fact that the seven principal live stock markets have seen a beef shortage of nearly five hundred million pounds since the first of January, farmers will take a good deal of interest in the articles in The Iowa Homestead on the subject of economical and profitable beef production. The Homestead is the greatest farm paper of the West and is entitled to liberal patronage. We club it with our paper at the low price of $1.75 per year for both publications. Farmers who can devote some time to canvassing for subscriptions to The Homestead may learn of a most liberal offer by writing to James M. Pierce, Publisher of The Homestead, Des Moines, Iowa.

An observer in India has found a small fly of the midget class with its proboscis inserted in the abdomen of a mosquito, engaged in sucking the mosquito's blood. There is comfort, if not benefit, in this bit of news. Why can't we import this midget? The mosquitoes would know how it is themselves then, perhaps.

Thos. Olson was here from Fremont last week, and wants to move to Wayne, but was unable to find a house in which to move. He wants to lease a place suitable for a branch nursery business for a term of years. The Chico Press of Chico, California, tells of the recent celebration of a golden wedding by a couple who formerly lived and were well known in northeastern Nebraska. Bert Brown buckled on his armor bright and early Monday morning and started for the scene of strife at Lincoln, a soldier in the progressive republican cause, willing to do all and dare all for his intrepid leader. At Lincoln he was joined by A. R. Davis, who went to Iowa last week for a brief visit with home folks before going to the front. Mr. Davis from Carroll also joined the Wayne county squad at this place. We hope that some lighter weight than the president is riding the steam roller if it goes over them.

Lewis, the 12-year-old son of Ferdinand Tamme, cigar merchant of Madison, was accidentally drowned at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon while bathing in Union Creek near the railroad at that place. Young Volfrick and Kuri were bathing with Tamme and for some unaccountable reason Kaul and Tamme, both of whom could swim, became helpless and Volfrick succeeded in rescuing Kaul but was unable to save Tamme. Alarm was given and after searching for an hour the body was discovered and brought to the surface of the water by Arthur Schmidt, says the News-Dispatch.

While out riding last Thursday, Wm. Beckenhauer and family were the victims of an accident which might have resulted much more seriously, but for prompt action and a strong arm. They were in a double seated buggy traveling over a smooth road at slow speed, when without warning the front axle of the vehicle suddenly broke, dropping the front to the ground. Mr. B. tightened the hold on the horses so they got no start for a runaway, and soon had the carriage unloaded. When the axle broke, Mrs. Beckenhauer had the misfortune to get her foot caught between the wheel and the body of the carriage bruising it badly, but breaking no bones. Examination of the axle showed the break was all new except a very small part of the axle which showed rust. They cannot understand why it should break when it did.

At the time of his graduation he was the head master of his class. At an anniversary celebration in this famous old college town this boys' band appeared on the anniversary day program in conjunction with the celebrated Neapolitan Concert band, one of the best known in Italy. He has directed some of the greatest bands in Italy and returns to America this summer with his Royal Italian Guards, a Victor organization. He toured the Redpath-Horner Chautauqua circuit with this band last summer and is brought back in response to thousands of requests.

Washington Political News

By C. H. Tavener

Washington, July 30.—Face to face with the realization that a democratic administration is coming into power, and knowing that this will mean the end of the tariff protection privilege under which they have plundered the people for nearly a score of years, the tariff trusts are going to take one final gouge into the pocketbooks of the people before they are pushed away from the troughs of special privilege at which they have grown fat.

The leather trust, which is largely owned by the beef barons, has announced that the price of leather is to increase 20 per cent. This increase is attributed to the greater demands of the automobile manufacturers for leather. This demand is no greater now than it has been for the last three or four years, and those who are familiar with trade conditions say the excuse given by the trust is only a subterfuge. The increase will mean another boost in the price of shoes, which will mean that hundreds of thousands of people, especially women and children, who are unable to pay more than they are now paying, will have to use a cheaper quality of footwear.

The clothing manufacturers—which means the woolen trust—also have announced an increase in the prices of cloth for fall and winter deliveries. The price of woolen cloth, it is announced, will go up all the way from five to twenty cents a yard. This increase is made necessary, the trust managers say, by the wool shortage here and abroad, and by the increased cost of labor.

It will be recalled that immediately after the Lawrence, Mass., strike last winter the woolen trust announced an increase of fifteen per cent in its products. The excuse was that this had to be made in order to meet the demands of the workers. The mill men, women and children who had been working for $5, $6 and $7 a week were granted an increase of five per cent, which meant only a few cents additional each week to them, and to meet this increase the price of cloth was boosted fifteen per cent. In this way the wool trust owners were able to make the consumers pay, not only the increased cost of labor, but all the expenses of the strike as well, so that dividends, far from being less on account of the strike, were actually greater as a result thereof.

Both of these announced increases are purely arbitrary. There isn't the slightest excuse for an increase in the prices of either leather or clothing, and the only excuse for either is the inordinate greed of the trust owners. These men know that after next year they will have to climb down from their high perch, from where they have been directing their wholesale robbery of the people, and for that reason they are preparing to get the last dollar possible for themselves before their special privilege graft comes to an end.

I want your name and address. J. C. Sparks.

In view of the fact that the seven principal live stock markets have seen a beef shortage of nearly five hundred million pounds since the first of January, farmers will take a good deal of interest in the articles in The Iowa Homestead on the subject of economical and profitable beef production. The Homestead is the greatest farm paper of the West and is entitled to liberal patronage. We club it with our paper at the low price of $1.75 per year for both publications. Farmers who can devote some time to canvassing for subscriptions to The Homestead may learn of a most liberal offer by writing to James M. Pierce, Publisher of The Homestead, Des Moines, Iowa.

Henry Soules went to Sioux City Tuesday to see his father, who is at one of the hospitals there, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis last week. He reports that he is resting easy and will be allowed to set up in a day or two, all of which is good news to his Wayne friends.

One of the real social events of the week was the picnic of the little folks who belong to the Sunday school classes of Mrs. McVay and Miss Rue Rickabaugh of the Baptist school which was held Tuesday at the Munsinger place, close to Wayne. For true sociability a picnic of little folks takes the cake.

At the Vibber Cafe the eating public, and that is about all of us, are finding the same service continued daily regardless of the lack of competition. While serving more people this popular eating house has always met an increasing business with adequate help to properly care for the wants of their patrons.

Mrs. W. C. Hudson from Muscatine, Iowa, and Miss Ola Alger from Omaha came Saturday evening to visit their brother, J. Alger and their nephew, C. H. Fisher Mrs. Hudson has been visiting in northern Iowa before coming here, and later was joined by her daughter, Miss Bessie Hudson, who had been at Lake Okoboji for an outing.

J. T. House, wife and daughter Mary left last Friday for Chicago where Mr. House will complete a course of university work that he has been delving at for several seasons, and his many friends expect to see him writing a new string of initials after his name when he signs it on official papers as soon as he has his final examination.

Prof. Wiley is the proud owner of a new gun, which he had made for his especial use, and he has been out trying it, and says it is o. k., but he did not get as many clay birds with it as with his old gun, but the new gun will have to get a little accustomed to the professor before it will do its best. It is the product of the Meridian Arms Co., and was found for him by Barrett & Dally.

The Chico Press of Chico, California, tells of the recent celebration of a golden wedding by a couple who formerly lived and were well known in northeastern Nebraska. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Orcutt, brother of Nels Orcutt of this place. A hundred guests were present, and numerous presents attested to the esteem in which they are held. Mr. Orcutt from this place spent the winter at their place.

Bert Brown buckled on his armor bright and early Monday morning and started for the scene of strife at Lincoln, a soldier in the progressive republican cause, willing to do all and dare all for his intrepid leader. At Lincoln he was joined by A. R. Davis, who went to Iowa last week for a brief visit with home folks before going to the front. Mr. Davis from Carroll also joined the Wayne county squad at this place. We hope that some lighter weight than the president is riding the steam roller if it goes over them.

Lewis, the 12-year-old son of Ferdinand Tamme, cigar merchant of Madison, was accidentally drowned at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon while bathing in Union Creek near the railroad at that place. Young Volrick and Kurl were bathing with Tamme and for some unaccountable reason Kaul and Tamme, both of whom could swim, became helpless and Volrick succeeded in rescuing Kaul but was unable to save Tamme. Alarm was given and after searching for an hour the body was discovered and brought to the surface of the water by Arthur Schmidt, says the News-Dispatch.

While out riding last Thursday Wm. Beckenhauer and family were the victims of an accident which might have resulted much more seriously, but for prompt action and a strong arm. They were in a double seated buggy traveling over a smooth road at slow speed, when without warning the front axle of the vehicle suddenly broke, dropping the front to the ground. Mr. B. tightened the hold on the horses so they got no start for a runaway, and soon had the carriage unloaded. When the axle broke, Mrs. Beckenhauer had the misfortune to get her foot caught between the wheel and the body of the carriage bruising it badly, but breaking no bones. Examination of the axle showed the break was all new except a very small part of the axle which showed rust. They cannot understand why it should break when it did.

State Board of Assessment Decides on Tax Values

AMOUNT NOT YET GIVEN OUT

Notice Sent Each County and Giving Until Thirteenth of August to Show Cause Why Should Not Stand—Seven Counties Given Reduction.

The board of assessment finished up all the counties as regards the raising or lowering of the land values. Box Butte still continues to be the delinquent county and until that report is in nothing definite regarding each county will be given out for publication by the board.

Notice was sent to each county showing the amount the board has agreed on for a raise or reduction and giving them until Aug. 13 to appear and show cause why the figures set by the board should not stand.

Following are the counties which will be raised, though in some cases the raise is practically small:

Boyd, Boone, Buffalo, Butler, Cass, Chase, Cherry, Cheyenne, Colfax, Cuming, Custer, Dawes, Dawson, Deuel, Dixon, Douglas, Dundy, Fillmore, Gage, Hall, Hamilton, Harlan, Hayes, Hitchcock, Holt, Hooker, Johnson, Kearney, Keith, Keya Paha, Knox, Lincoln, Logan, Loup, Morrill, Nuckolls, Phelps, Pierce, Platte, Red Willow, Richardson, Saline, Saunders, Sioux, Thayer, Thomas.

The following counties will be given a reduction:

Blaine, Burt, Cedar, Seward, Thurston, Washington, York.

Northwestern's Plea.

The Northwestern railroad, by its agent, Robert McGinnis, asked the board to reduce terminal values of its road as returned by local assessors at the towns of Able, Beaver Crossing, Brainard, Clearwater, Elgin, Fremont, Gordon, Hastings, Hay Springs, Lynch, Oakdale, Omaha, South Omaha, Pilcher, Rushville, Scribner, Stanton, Superior, West Point, Wisner and York. There are 116 towns on the Northwestern, and while most of them return increased valuations for terminal taxation, Mr. McGinnis did not object to any except those mentioned above.

Kearney Water Fight.

The irrigation board was busy on the hearing of citizens of Buffalo county against the Kearney Water company in regard to the use of water from the Platte river. The people complain that the company is only entitled to a reasonable amount of the water, which is used for electric power, while the farmers who need the water for agricultural purposes are deprived of it. They demand a certain amount of water over and above the "reasonable" amount needed by the power company.

Bryan Will Speak on Unveiling Day.

W. J. Bryan has accepted an invitation to make an address at the unveiling of the Lincoln monument on Sept. 2. Whether this will cut out Colonel Roosevelt, who thought he could not be present until a later date, is not known. Mr. Bryan will close his Chautauqua season a few days before the above date and will go with his family for an outing in Colorado a few days later. He will then return and take up the work of the campaign.

ESCAPED CONVICT CAUGHT

Two Much Wanted Bonner Brothers Captured at Beatrice.

Beatrice, Neb., July 30.—Norman Bonner, who escaped from state's prison at Fort Madison, Ia., and after being re-arrested, escaped twice from officials at Joplin, Mo., when taken there to see his dying mother, again has been captured.

With his brother, Merle Bonner, he was arrested by the police here. The two are said to have been implicated in a robbery at Falls City, Neb. Norman is to be returned to Iowa to conclude his sentence at Fort Madison.

Dundy Farmer Burns His Wheat.

Benkleman, Neb., July 30.—Ben Bockhold, who lives about fifteen miles south of Benkleman, had about thirty-five acres of the finest wheat in his neighborhood. There was a pile of straw in the middle of it and Ben thought he would burn up the above said straw and save himself the trouble of going around it. So he applied a match, buried up the straw and with it the thirty-five acres of wheat. It was estimated the wheat would have made twenty bushels to the acre.

Throws Himself Under Train.

Hastings, Neb., July 30.—Oliver Linder, aged sixty, committed suicide by throwing himself in front of the engine of Burlington passenger train No. 1 near the station here. The body was ground to pieces. Linder made two previous attempts at suicide and his son killed himself here two years ago. Despondency over inability to find employment to enable him to properly support his family caused him to commit the deed.

Ouster Case Begins.

Acting as referee for the supreme court, Judge Silas A. Holcomb began taking testimony in the court house in Omaha in the case of the state against Fire and Police Commissioners Pivnick and Ryan, charged under the Sackett law of having willfully failed to enforce the laws which by virtue of their offices they were compelled to do.

MEN OF MONEY TO MEET

Bankers Will Urge Cooperation With Nebraska Farmers.

Cooperation between bankers and farmers will be the principal theme of discussion at the annual meeting of the Nebraska Bankers' association, which will be held in Omaha on Aug. 26 and 27.

Experts from both lines of endeavor will deliver addresses before the convention, considering the ways in which unanimity of action may be brought about. The bankers realize that the prosperity of the state depends upon the activity of the farmers and also that they owe their best efforts to the further development of our agricultural conditions.

Just how this concerted action may be secured is the chief topic of discussion and any suggestions that may be made will receive consideration.

"The day of diversified activity is passed," say the bankers. "What we want is cooperation and the bankers are willing to do what they can to bring it about."

FINDS WIFE REMARRIED

Baker Returns to Hastings After Absence of Fourteen Years.

Hastings, Neb., July 29.—After an absence of fourteen years, W. Baker has returned to find his undivorced wife married to David Hyatt. Baker has taken possession of the Hyatt home with the avowed purpose of making a visit with his family. Hyatt meanwhile has established temporary abode elsewhere and will not return home until Baker resumes his wanderings.

After being married fourteen years Baker deserted his wife and six children in 1898 and has since traveled about from place to place. His departure, he says, was caused by trouble he had with the Hastings police.

A few days ago Baker came here from Omaha and found David Hyatt the head of his household. Mrs. Baker married Hyatt ten years ago. She says a lawyer told her it was not necessary to get a divorce in order to remarry, as the desertion by her husband was equivalent to a decree of separation.

TWO DIE IN ACCIDENTS

Both Victims Were South Omahans Who Had Gone to Sarpy County.

Sudden death came to two South Omaha people, the victims both being on trips to Sarpy county. Joseph Miller was knocked from the Missouri Pacific trestle by a train near La Platte while fishing and was killed. Mrs. Lena Goodman was instantly killed by a bullet from a rifle being carried over the shoulder by Ernest Meyers, a ten-year-old boy. Mrs. Goodman was sitting on a porch in Bellevue, holding her small baby at the time.

That the shooting was accidental appeared from the fact that the young Meyers boy was carrying the gun over his shoulder at the time the weapon was discharged. What caused the discharge of the gun could not well be accounted for, although it is surmised that the weapon had been left cocked by the boy, who was hunting in the garden when the accident occurred.

GOLDEN-RULE POLICY TRIED

Omaha Police Receive Instructions From Commissioner Ryder.

Omaha, July 30.—Police Commissioner Ryder's "golden rule" policy went into effect when all police officers on duty were given blank summonses and instructed to yank ordinarily peaceful citizens into court only upon dire necessity.

These summonses, issued to a man or woman who otherwise would be arrested, direct the offender to appear in police court at 8:30 o'clock in the morning on the day specified. They are signed by the policeman and the citizen is warned that failure to obey means the issuance of a warrant for arrest.

PHONE CASE GOES OVER

Company Given More Time to Answer Lexington Complaint.

The complaint filed by Lexington against the Nebraska Telephone company was heard before T. L. Hall of the railway commission. The telephone company wishes to raise the rates when it puts in the metallic system. The city authorities claim it has no right to do this, as the city has a contract with the company which fixes the rates, not to exceed $1.50 for house phones and $2.00 for business phones. The company was not prepared to show that these rates were too low and an adjournment was taken to give the company time to file papers with the railway commission.

State Sells Porkers.

Land Commissioner Cowles reports that fifty-six hogs were marketed at the Lincoln asylum last week, which sold for $7.25 per hundred. The net proceeds from the sale amounted to $1,352, making an average of a little over $24 per hog. Mr. Cowles said he could remember back several years ago how it took nearly a wagon load of hogs to bring as much as one of the asylum animals did last week.

ROADMAKING

IN THE HILLS.

Suggestions For Making a Quick Drying Highway.

HOW TO GET RID OF WATER.

Carry it Directly Across by Sloping Road From the Bank Side—Pointers on Grading—Results Obtained by Plowing.

I have always been very interested and observant in the matter of country roads and have read many valuable articles on the subject. But I still think there are some points that I have not seen touched upon relative to road-making, especially in the hill country along the Mississippi and Missouri slopes.

The great object of road work should be to get the water away as quickly as possible. We have a good soil for roadmaking, but the hills are of silt formation, and a stream of water crumbles them like so much loaf sugar.

Many of our experienced roadmakers will throw up a hill grade and carry the water down each side for long distances. Then comes a heavy rainfall. Forty thousand rivulets from the hillsides above pour into the drains, and such a volume of water accumulates as to cut deep gorges. These make the road almost impassable and require several days' labor a number of times each year to repair. To avoid this trouble the road may be sloped from the bank side enough to carry the water directly across the road.

When a grade is desired on a side hill roadway plow in three furrows on the lower side, the outside furrow to be about twenty feet from the bank. When grading draw this loose dirt toward the center of the roadway with a slope of about one inch to the foot, carrying this slope across the entire grade. The ditch thus made should be opened at short intervals to let out the water.

After the grading is done headers should be put in to divert any water that might follow the wheel track. To make these headers scrape with the slusher a trench a little diagonally across the grade about two scrapers wide and not deep. Deposit this dirt with more from the outside alongside the trench, making the ridge no higher than absolutely necessary to accomplish its purpose and not less than ten feet wide, thus causing as little obstruction as possible. This plan will always provide a quick drying hill road. With the occasional use of a King drag this can be kept like a boulevard.

When the highway is cut through a hill it is desired to keep reducing the grade. To this end work the road against one bank, leaving a ditch on one side only. Turn all the water from above and along the hill into this ditch. Plow it in repeatedly each season. After this trench has washed too much for safety smooth this side and change the ditch to the opposite side of the road and repeat. You will be surprised at the change in steepness effected in ten or twelve years.—W. S. Wiley.

GOOD ROADS ATTRACT THE POPULATION.

Counties which are neglecting the improvement of their highways need not be surprised when the census figures show that they are losing population, while more progressive counties are gaining. Good roads attract population, while bad roads drive it away.

DECEIVING PICTURES.

The battle between the catalog houses for supremacy is not being fought out by a calm comparison of goods, quality for quality and price for price, but on the spectacular field of advertising. The one great object of the catalogue house is to make the sham and the shoddy look like the real thing—in a picture.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE

FIGHTING THE UMPIRE.

Said this young man:
"The boss was always criticizing my way of doing things. I wouldn't stand for it, and so I quit."

I knew the youth. He had changed places a number of times and always
for the same reason—he could not stand criticism. When his employers found fault with his methods he was immediately up in arms trying to justify himself.

He deserved to fail.
I know another young fellow whose attitude is entirely different. He invites criticism. He says to his employer: "I am doing this way. Is it right, or would you suggest some better method? I hope you will watch me and correct me when I go wrong.
I want to know the best and most efficient way."

Note the difference.
One is strong enough to see his mistakes and profit by them; the other deceives himself by fighting criticism.

In general it may be stated that it is the big man who admits his error
and corrects it. The small man resents the criticism and clings to his error.

Can you endure criticism?
Or do you get mad at the critic?
You say the criticism is harsh? Suppose it is. Forget the harshness and ask the question: Is it just? Does it touch the spot? Can I profit by it?
All of us make mistakes.

It is only the egotist who believes in his infallibility. And he plays the fool who loses the benefit of a point
by flaming up at the judge.

The wise man invites criticism.
Indeed, the wise man if he cannot get a proper analysis of his work in any other way is only too glad to pay a competent judge to pass upon it.

Do not get mad at the umpire.
His ruling sometimes may be unjust. If so the sequel will show. But if it is just, if it is applicable, you merely kick against the goads. If the shoe fits wear it!

Be kind to your critic. He is a friend in disguise.

You cannot afford to persevere along wrong lines. You must know the truth. When the critic tells you the truth grin and bear it.

Be wise—
"We arise on stepping stones of our dead selves to higher things."

HASTE AND HURRY.

Haste is one thing, and hurry is quite another.
Haste, like a railroad train, goes straight and swiftly on its way to its terminal.

Hurry, like an aeroplane in a counter-
current or buffeted by head winds, goes zigzag.

To illustrate:
Not long ago I watched two separate gangs at work on a railroad embankment. Each gang, composed of a like number of men and teams, had about the same number of yards of earth to move.

One boss, a nervous, excitable fellow,
hurried his gang by constant impetuosity. Alternately he urged and swore.
He stewed and fretted and worried his gang.

The other boss seldom spoke. He merely kept his eyes open to see that his plans were carried out. There was no fuss and no hurry. Yet the men and teams fell into line at the right moment.

I learned a few weeks afterward that the quiet man completed his job ten days in advance of the other.

Haste helps.
Hurry is but haphazard.

It is usually the fretful mind that seeks to do things in a hurry. The trained mind hastens methodically.

Speed is not necessarily determined by the number of times the wheels go around. There is such a thing as lost motion. Or the belts may be slipping.

Hurry merely marks time, while haste
marches directly into camp.

Ordinarily there is no call for either haste or hurry, but when the urge is on every force must be marshaled, and swift results are brought about by making haste.

Behind the work must be the careful,
predetermined plan and the resolute,
resourceful mind which accurately aims
the effort, but there must be no hurry.

Hurry misdirects energy.
Hurry makes friction.

Plan your job in advance. Go at it calmly and with reserve power. Be sure you are right and then go ahead—
swiftly, accurately, grimly, intelligently. But, whatever you do, do not hurry.
Hurry is a wasteful force.
Make haste slowly.

PASS IT ON.

If a bit of sunshine hits ye
After passing of a cloud,
When a fit of laughter fits ye
And ever you're feeling proud,
Don't forget to up an' fling it
At a soul that's feelin' blue,
For the minute that ye sling it,
It's a boomerang to you.

Which is about the best thing Captain Jack Crawford has written.
It rings true.

Joy comes in the wake of him who dispenses cheer. It is the reflex action of goodness. It comes back many fold. As Crawford says, it is a boomerang that operates on the minute.

It pays to fling it.
Flowers grow up in the pathway of him who helps to sweeten some of the world's bitterness and to brighten some of the world's darkness. The principle is the old one that you have what you give away, and that what you withhold from giving away you lose.

Look you—
When you find a man who is forever
sowing seeds of kindness and smiles
of good cheer, one who puts the soft pedal on his miseries and stugs out loud on his halloojahs—
Follow that man!

Follow him and find out how to imbibe kindness, inhale cheerfulness, absorb sunshine—and how to dispense it.
If you know of a book by anybody,
anywhere, that will teach you the secret—
Buy that book!

Learn the secret. Get the how of it into the bones of you and then give out the smiles of encouragement that set the ripples of gladness and beating into motion.

The world needs it. And the boomerang will give you bigness of spirit.
Smile awhile.
And while you smile another smiles.
And soon there's miles and miles of smiles
Because you smiled.

It is like the pebble dropped into the quiet waters of a pond. The ripples go out and out to the farthest shore, and "there's miles and miles of smiles" because you smiled.

And you are the center of it.
When you speak the word of grace
in season, when you let loose a rift of sunbeam and "fling it at a soul that's feelin' blue"—
You are sowing seeds of kindness.
And that is the way to grow your own happiness.

A SMILE.

It was a long time ago.
The editor to whom I had given the manuscript of my story for perusal
handed it back to me, saying:

"There is nothing in it, young man.
"From our standpoint it is absolutely of no account. You do not know the first principles of writing a story. It requires as much technical knowledge
to produce a salable short story as to build a house."

Which was news to me.
And then, noting the disappointed
expression of my face, the editor smiled
very kindly and went on to point out some of the lack in the construction of my tale.

He kept on smiling.
And I scarcely heard what he was saying. But I watched his smile. I fairly hung on the smile.

There was something in the warmth of it that took away a part of the sting of his plain speaking. It operated as a sort of first aid to the injured.
It salved my wound. It helped my hurt courage.

Long ago I learned the truth of his criticism of my alleged story. It was the crude attempt of a youth who believed any one should be able, after a little practice, to dash off a story that would sell.

But that smile!
It was not the kind of smile that "won't come off"—a habitual or professional smile. He was not that sort of smiler. Looking back, I am able to realize that I enjoyed that day a rare look into the very tender heart
of a very strong man.

The smile was not the self satisfied
smirk of a self conscious superior.
Nor was it a smile of duty conjured
up for the occasion.

It came up from the wellsprings of the man's fine nature. It was a smile that spoke volumes of good will toward me. It was the generous smile of a busy, hardworking man who had no time to spend on a boy. It was an understanding smile—not pitiful, but sympathetic.

It was the smile that helps.
The editor died a few years afterward and never knew what his smile did for me. It put heart into me. I went away sore at my defeat, but determined to keep on trying.

I have not written many short stories.
A writing man soon learns his limitations as well as his special talents.
But I have kept on writing for the market—for thirty years now. I was tided over by a smile.

THE SORROWS OF CHILDHOOD.

This is a true story about Maggie
and Walter Bowen, aged eight and six years.

A few days ago the two children were discovered fast asleep in a big box in the rear of a store building.
And the reason?

Because of the advent of a baby in the Bowen household who was displeasing to the children.

The brother and sister had started for school, as usual, when they decided to find a home elsewhere because they did not like the baby the stork
had brought.

Poor kids!
They started across country, and they would go far, far away to grandpa's,
six miles distant. And it was a fine day for a journey, and there were many things to see, so that when they got to grandpa's it was rather late.

The children were kept overnight
and started for home the next morning. But there was that baby in the house! Everybody paid attention to the ugly thing, and nobody cared for them.

Then the baby was red and bald as it could be.
With the feeling that home was not what it used to be, with mamma in bed and papa so busy—and that bald-headed baby—the two wandered about town awhile.

They discovered a big box partly filled with excelsior and crawled into
it. Walter's feet hurt him, and he took off his shoes and stockings. Then he went to sleep, Maggie felt it her duty to watch over him. But soon she was in the land of dreams.

And then—
Their walk having made the little folks tired, they slept soundly. When they were awakened by a policeman
they cried and were frightened until

ITALIAN BAND TO PLAY HERE

Coming All the Way from Europe to Fill Chautauqua Engagement.

LACERENZA, GREAT DIRECTOR

As a Boy, He was Leader of the Musical College Band—He Studied in Naples—Has Filled Many Notable Engagements.

The coming of the Royal Italian
Guards Band to this city, Chautauqua Week, is an event of interest to everyone who loves the music of a good band.

The Royal Italian Guards toured the territory of the Redpath-Horner Chautauqua last summer, and have been brought back this summer at the request of thousands of Chautauqua
patrons throughout the Middle West.

They have been in Europe all winter
and came back for this tour about the middle of May.

The band was organized by Victor,
the celebrated band man, in Venice,
three years ago, and this is their third trip to America. They made a Chautauqua tour through the East two years ago.

Their winter engagements have been in Europe, where they have scored many notable successes.

They have played at Royal Command on several state occasions, an honor second to none over in sunny Italy.

The director of the Royal Italian Guards is Signor Lacerenza, and of Signor Lacerenza, Mr. Victor writes
as follows:

"Signor Lacerenza was at the age
of ten when he was placed in the Boys' Musical College of his native town near Naples.

Following his trip to America he appeared at the famous Jersey resort, Lakewood Inn, at Lakewood, N. J.;
then at the Kaiser Karton, Sea Gate,
N. Y., for eighteen weeks of consecutive success; then sixteen weeks at the famous Rendonna Hotel, Brighton Beach, N. Y., and was especially engaged for the entire season of 1911
at the well-known hotel, the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York City.

Signor Lacerenza, the celebrated tenor with the Troubadours, was first heard of in Naples, when merely a youth, he having been discovered in the chorus of the cast of Aida and I. Pagliacci. Signor Lombardi, the conductor of the theatre at that time,
at once discovered the gift of this young man, and took him under his paternal wings. After he had accomplished the modern school method of singing, he was five years later seen as the title role in the very same opera in which he had appeared years
before in the chorus.

Following his success there he came to America and was at once placed with the late Manhattan Opera House,
New York City, in which place he scored in the operas, Aida, Traviata, Lucia di Lammermoor and several others. Following the closing of that opera house, Mr. Oscar Hammerstein made Signor Lacerenza an offer to take him to London, but he, having secured
other prominent engagements in America, declined to accept that offer.

Mlle. Bertrame, Soprano.
Mlle. Luis Bertrame, the soprano with the Troubadours, although of Italian parents, spent most of her time in Paris and scored the success of her life at the well-known Opera Comique Theatre, Paris, in The Hugu-
not, Faust, I. Puritani, La Boheme, and other well-known operas. In America she has been with the Academy Opera Company, the Aborn Oper-
Company, and the Savage-Italian-
American Opera Company in Canada.

Signor Mele, the cellist with the Troubadours, is considered the best among the very few good players of that difficult instrument. Signor Toscanini, who in his day was considered
the best the world knew of, heard Signor Mele in New York and was astonished at his bow movements and for the easy manner in which he commands his instrument. He is from Milan, the birthplace of the best musicians the world knows. In America
he has filled some very notable engagements. Among them was his engagement with Mlle. Adeline Patti on her farewell tour of the country a few years ago.

Signor George, the violin soloist of the Troubadours, traveled with Mlle.
Tetrazzini on her concert tour two
years ago.

He has had full charge of a large orchestra that has played for twenty-
two weeks at the Fort Lowry Hotel, Brooklyn Beach, New York.

He is American born but of Italian parents. He has studied abroad for several years under the tutorage of Signor Zanibon, the famous violinist
of Palace Italian, in Venice, Italy.

COSMOPOLITAN.

Two of the Chautauqua's musical companies, the Band and the Venetian Troubadours, come all the way from Italy. The Raveis Company comes from New Zealand. Belle Kearney, as world-wide traveler, is an international character. Laurant is bringing his magic from East-India. These Chautauqua celebrities come from every direction. And they are meeting the highest standard as lecturers and entertainers—the Chautauqua standard.

SEASON TICKET PLAN BEST.

You may go to the Chautauqua with a season ticket, or a single admission ticket you buy at the gate. On the season ticket plan the cost is about half of what it is on the other plan.
The season ticket may be used by any member of the family. Besides, the community's interest in a Chautauqua is measured largely by the season ticket sales. The Chautauqua's permanency depends on them.

FILLED MANY A BIG ENGAGEMENT

Venetian Troubadours Played
In Honor of King Edward's Visit.

AND ON THE ROYAL YACHT.

Signor Vante, Director; Signor Mora,
Tenor; Mlle. Luis Bertrame, Soprano; Signor Mele, Cellist, and Signor George, Violinist, Notables
in the Music World.

Engagements that members of the Venetian Troubadours have filled a
of such interest and of such importance in the musical world that a story
of several of the members is given
here to show something of the work
they have done and suggest a bit of the character of the work that will be presented on their Chautauqua engagement at this place.

Signor Eugene Vante, director, was graduated from the Royal Art Academy of Venice, and took first prize on the Venetian Gondolier Water Excursion on the occasion of King Edward's visit to that city. He was a very young man, just graduated, and it was his starting point.

Among the most important engagements at which he has played might be mentioned his appearance at the well-known Gallery Humbert the First,
at Naples in Italy. This was by royal command, and at that time the majority of the present personnel of the company was with him. He was again asked to perform at the seating of the new Cabinet at the Quirinal at Rome,
and achieved tremendous success.

Later he gave twenty-nine concerts at the beautiful Roman Palace Garden.
He also filled other engagements on the weekly water excursions in Venice
and along the picturesque Adriatic lakes, the most important being the one on the royal yacht Savoy.

Played at Lakewood Inn.

Passport to the North Pole.

A passport to the north pole was issued some years ago by the governor of the province of Tobolsk, which stretches along the Russian shores of the Arctic ocean. The official was approached by two men who had been engaged to proceed to the north with an English expedition then fitting out. Their petition was for a passport to the pole itself, but the governor pointed out that the pole was as likely to be in their home province as in any other, that it was extremely unlikely they would reach it and that if they did there were no police there to examine their credentials. At last, however, to satisfy them he ordered the issue of a document allowing them to pass without let or hindrance to the north pole.

A Story of the Old U. S. Army

By EDWIN THORNTON

The days of army posts on the western frontier, a garrison shut up by itself with no outsiders to see or talk with or even hear about, are over. Then, too, in those days—they are not so far distant—occasionally Indians must be driven back to their reservations, and sometimes they would be too strong for the little garrison, and days and nights of agony would pass in expectation of their making a break in the walls and murdering every one inside the inclosure, including women and children.

Yet there was a pleasant side to the life. The garrison shut off from the world constituted a family consisting of two divisions, the one being composed of the officers and their families, the other of the men and their families. Between officers and men was a dividing line as to association on familiar terms, but there was a union of heart. The enlisted men understood that this line had from time immemorial been considered necessary to the discipline and efficiency of an army.

Years ago there was one of these army posts in what is now a sovereign state in the American Union. One day when a supply train arrived it brought something to stir the tiresome life of the officers' division—a young lady. She came to visit Mrs. Major Bertrand, wife of the commandant, whose niece she was. Her coming had been talked about, but her appearance was disappointing. She was not especially pretty, though she possessed a soft dark eye which was very expressive, though of what no one could exactly determine.

Within four hours after her arrival she had divided the garrison into two sections, consisting of those who liked and those who distrusted her.

However, it was not long before her friends were converted to the opposite side by the fact that she was caught talking with a private in the ranks named Conover. A few of those who had fancied her remonstrated with her, telling her that perhaps she didn't know that association with an enlisted man by the families of the officers was prohibited. She listened to them demurely with those singular eyes of hers fixed on them, but said nothing. Nevertheless only a few days had passed when she was again seen talking with the same man.

The matter now came to the ears of Mrs. Bertrand, who gave her niece a lecture and told her that if she was against caught noticing any one of the enlisted men as an equal she should be sent home. Then Evelyn—Evelyn Pierce was her name—asked with real or feigned innocence—her aunt could not tell which—why she could not treat one in the ranks just as she would treat an officer. Mrs. Bertrand could only say that it wasn't the custom and has been an unwritten law in the army.

And so Miss Pierce was in disfavor. Those who showed their condemnation most openly were the women of the garrison. The officers, whatever they thought of the young lady's action, though they refrained from showing her marked attention, always treated her with studied politeness. This was due the commandant's wife, whose niece and guest she was. But it was not long before several of the unmarried officers began to find it difficult to let Miss Pierce alone. There was something about her that the cloud hanging over her could not obscure. Furthermore, she had voluntarily brought that cloud upon herself and gave no evidence of being ashamed of it. Possibly an attraction in her was that no one could quite make her out. Some said she was a fool, others that she was very shrewd.

One day an Indian came into the fort and told the major commanding that those of his tribe on the reservation the fort was intended to keep in order were preparing for war. He said that he knew in the end an uprising would be disastrous to his red brothers and that the more would be a grievous error. At any rate, he had come to warn his white brother, and, having come, he could not go back. He must remain in the fort or be killed. He was, of course, suffered to remain.

The coming of this redskin, who soon became known as Uncas, cast a deeper blot upon Miss Pierce. He was seen to look at her covetously, and she was seen chatting with him, as she had chatted with Private Conover. Soon after this conversation she went to the major and told him to look out for Uncas. The major asked her on what she based her distrust, and she replied that he had a wicked eye. The major told his wife what Evelyn had said, but as no one else had noticed any wickedness in the redskin's eye and as Mrs. Bertrand was very much troubled about Evelyn's actions, she lost her equanimity and attributed her niece's accusation to a desire to hide the real cause of her treatment of him. The major did not entirely agree with his wife, but he couldn't send Uncas out on suspicion to be murdered by his own people, so he took no action in the premises.

One evening when darkness had fallen on Uncas met Evelyn just going into her aunt's quarters and beckoned her to follow him, whispering, "I show you something to prove me the white man's friend." She did as he desired, and he led her to the back of the magazine, which was hidden from view, moving some rubbish, exposed a through which, by stooping, one might pass.

"Go in," he said. "I show you what I mean."

Evelyn drew back.

"I show you that somebody here is traitor; he goin' blow up magazine."

Evelyn hesitated, but not for long. Possibly the man whom she knew had been captivated by her appearance, for she had spoken to him but once and then to warn him not to trouble her—had a secret which he would give to her alone. Bending low, she went through the opening. She could see nothing for the darkness. On a shelf stood a lantern, which Uncas instantly lighted; then, after pretending to look for something, seizing her and clapping his hand over her mouth, he dragged her through another opening, and she found herself outside the fort.

What she had suspected was plain to her now, though so great was her terror that it only flashed through her mind. Uncas had come to the fort to effect an entrance for his comrades. He had secretly made the opening to the magazine, concealed it and made another through the wall of the fort. Desiring to possess her, he had arranged to take her with him when he went back to his people. Darkened long before dawn he would lead them through the magazine into the fort and massacre the garrison before they could form to repel the attack.

Evelyn was very strong for a girl. She had not been captured, but before summoning all her strength to a supreme effort—it was a supreme effort—she wrenched herself from the Indian, and before he could get his grip on her again she darted away to the fort. She ran in the dark, but no thought of falling. Fortune favored her in this, while he deserted the last. He fell, and while he was getting up his feet again Evelyn gained sufficient advantage to reach the magazine, the fort and pass through it.

When Uncas entered through the same aperture she was standing by a barrel of gunpowder, from which the head had been removed, holding the lantern directly over it.

"Come a step farther," she said, "and I'll drop it."

She stood at bay ready to sacrifice herself and the Indian. Savage as he was, he at once began to look for some stratagem by which he could again get the advantage of her. Drawing away, he feigned fright, then penitence, telling her he had been tempted by his passion for her to take her to his own wigwam and make her his wife. He would rather die than harm her.

This and other things he said, watching her like a cat for an opportunity to catch her off her guard and get her again in his power. Meanwhile she was thinking how to get out of his clutches. She could hear a sentry walking on the parapet, though his steps were only audible to her when he came to that end of his beat nearest the magazine. He had turned and gone to the other end when she formed a resolution—She listened to Uncas as though moved by his penitence till the sentry came back to the end of his beat nearest her, then gave a shriek so loud that had it not been inclosed would have awakened the garrison.

Major Bertrand had given orders that a key to the magazine door should hang in the sentry box of the man who guarded it. Since the magazine was never unguarded the key was always within reach of a sentinel. The man, hearing the shriek, seized the key and, opening the door, saw Evelyn standing by a powder barrel. The moment she saw him she pointed to the hole in the wall leading from the magazine by which the Indian had beaten a retreat.

A hasty explanation ensued, and within a few minutes men on horseback started after Uncas. In his fall when chasing Evelyn he had received a sprain which deterred him in his flight. Hearing his pursuers near upon him, he crawled under a bush, but they had caught sight of him and, pressing on, dragged him out.

When they reached the fort with him they took him to the commandant's quarters, where Evelyn had gone and, after a fainting spell, had regained somewhat of her equanimity.

After a brief examination Uncas was taken out and shot.

So ended an attempt of the Indians to gain by stratagem possession of the fort, which doubtless would have been successful had not the man to put it in practice lost his head over a woman. Had he not attempted to take Evelyn with him he could easily have introduced his red brothers and caught the garrison napping.

A great change came over those who had turned a cold shoulder upon Evelyn. She had warned them against the savage and by her heroism had saved them from being massacred. And not long afterward another matter was cleared up.

Private Conover was not Conover at all, but Eugene Werner, a gentleman, son, who had enlisted in the ranks for the life, the experience and a possible commission in the army. Evelyn had recognized him as such when the others had either failed to do so or had declined to take notice of the fact. After the episode which had nearly become a tragedy Evelyn openly associated with him, and Mrs. Bertrand for her sake recommended the young man for a commission. Then he and Evelyn became engaged and were married at the fort.

It was then that a blind infatuation of several of the officers had operated for Evelyn flamed up, and they damned themselves for not having made an effort to win her.
