BIG BARGAIN DAYS FOR WAYNE

Merchants of Wayne Moving in the Matter of Inaugurating Bargain Carnival—Benefit to Buyers

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Commercial club last evening to which the merchants were invited the initial steps were taken to have a bargain carnival at Wayne in the near future, during which time each merchant will offer some very low price on many seasonable and desirable articles, and invite every person in the county to come and take advantage of the offerings. Thus there will be a great variety of bargains offered, the merchants will invite the visitors to inspect their stocks, and thus make known to a larger circle of buyers the advantages of buying merchandise at Wayne.

In Death's Repose

Quiet and peacefully the spirit of C. Ellis passed away early Monday morning at his home in Pilger where he had been a resident for more than a quarter of a century. His death was due to the infirmities of old age, being 85 years, 1 month and 11 days old at the time of his death.

The deceased is a father of L. E. Ellis of this city, who, with the other children except a daughter in Idaho, were at his bedside when he died. The funeral was held at Pilger Tuesday and was largely attended, friends and neighbors paying a last tribute of respect to a devoted christian citizen.

The democrat extends condolences to those in bereavement.

To Horse Owners

The prevalent horse disease is causing enormous losses to farmers in Nebraska and Kansas, and is now creeping over into the Dakotas, Iowa and Missouri.

We have just issued a bulletin telling about the use of Germozone for prevention of this disease. Germozone has won fame in the prevention and cure of disease of poultry and stock. Our dealers in the infected territory have been selling Germozone to stockmen and report that Germozone in the drinking water for horses seems to render them singularly immune from the terrible disease.

One thing certain, rush orders are pouring in hourly by mail, phone and telegraph for Germozone from several hundred Kansas and Nebraska towns. Cures have also been reported but prevention is far better than cure.

Germozone given in the drink kills germs in the water and also in the food. It is also used in case of sickness by nasal and rectal injection.

Save time by using Germozone in drinking water for your horses one or two tablespoonfuls to a pail of water. Give daily in all drinking water if contagion is nearby. Twice a week otherwise.

Germozone is antiseptic and a bowel regulator.

Prepared only in 12 oz. bottles at 50c each.

Fifty tablet packages at 50c per package.

Wedded Fifty Years

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Witter gave a family dinner Sunday, the 15th in honor of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Their children all being present with the exception of their oldest son, W. M. Witter of Los Angeles, who was unable to be present, but sent congratulations and a handsome remembrance. They were the recipients of many handsome presents and congratulations from absent friends. Mr. Witter has been associated with Wayne the greater part of his married life, coming to Wayne in an early day when Wayne was in its infancy and has lived to see it grow and flourish from a handful of people to a good sized city, with fine homes, beautiful churches and public buildings. Mr. Witter and oldest son started the first exclusive grocery in Wayne and furnished supplies to many a farmer who struck town with a covered wagon and a team and not a dollar in his pocket, and trusted him till he raised a crop. Those same farmers are well to do today with fine farms and can count their dollars by the thousands.

Mr. Witter has held a number of public offices being county assessor for the last five years which office he has filled satisfactorily. We hope Mr. Witter and his estimable wife may live to see many happy returns of the day.—Contributed.

Van Vliet in Recital

The first number of the Artist's Recital Course will occur on September 30th at the Methodist church. The artist to appear is Cornelius van Vliet, solo cellist for the coming season with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Berlin: Tageblatt, March 22, 1910.

The solo cellist of the Vienna Royal Opera, Cornelius van Vliet, appeared here in concert and is entitled to the highest praise. He has a beauty of tone possessed by few and his performance displays thorough and artistic musicianship.

The Daily Times, Davenport, Ia., Jan. 18.

One of the rarest delights of an evening that was a feast of music was the cello group of Cornelius van Vliet. It was the same Cornelius van Vliet who in recital only recently in Chicago with the celebrated Tetraxini and Mary Garden, carried off the highest honors. He is master of the cello and his whole soul is thrown into the artistry of the music he interprets.

Where Good People Live

Kingsley, Iowa, is the town—not the only town, perhaps, and possibly they are not all saints there. A short time ago a family passed through this county, from Kingsley, Iowa, and stopped for the night at the place of one of their former neighbors, Emil Hansen, southeast of Wayne. Jas. Crogan, wife and invalid daughter on their way to the mountains for the benefit of the young lady, who is afflicted with consumption. Too far gone to stand the sudden change in altitude of going by train, the physicians said that the one slim chance for life depended upon an overland trip to the mountains, living out of doors and making the change gradually. To do this the parents would have to mortgage and probably lose their home. But the people of Kingsley said no; we will send you. They bought them a team and wagon, equipped the outfit with tent and bedding, made up a purse of $500 and gave them letters of credit for as much more as they might need and started them out on the race with death.

Mr. Hansen said that the young lady looked like a corpse, almost, but she and her mother agreed that she was better and stronger than when they started, and were beginning to be hopeful of good results. At any rate it showed the good will of the people of Kingsley, and is an act that they will not have cause to regret.

Stop It—Under Severe Penalty.

The City Council and Street Commissioner hereby warn any and all persons against dumping trash in the ditch along Main street in the south part of town. The city has been to expense to clean this water way and if further obstructed it will be cleaned at the expense of those guilty. WALTER MILLER, Street Com.

STEALS THIRTY HEAD CATTLE

Stanton County Farmer Robbed of Herd of Cattle—Stock Located at Winside and Thief Located

Sheriff Porter and officers from Stanton county have been searching for a bunch of cattle which were missed from the pasture of J. R. Benne, four miles north of Stanton early in September. The cattle were taken from the pasture a week before they were missed, and they were finally located in a pasture north of Winside, where they were placed by Henry Trautwain, the Winside butcher, who bought the bunch from a man who gave his name as West, who claimed that he was moving the stock to Bloomfield because of short pasture, and that as he had no help to assist in driving them he would sell rather than continue the trip alone. The price paid for the lot was about $900.

Clarence Montgomery of Stanton is undoubtedly the man who stole and sold the cattle. He went to Norfolk and bought an automobile, then to Battle Creek where he married, and himself and wife have been located in Colorado, and are now doubtless in the hands of officers.

The owner has replevied 22 head of the stock, part of which had been killed. People living near the pasture heard cattle passing in the night before the bank records show that the stock was bought, and say that there was more than one person driving, so that when Montgomery returns, as he doubtless will, others may be implicated.

More About Seed Corn Care

Elsewhere in this paper is an excellent article about the selection and care of seed corn, telling many good things about it, and it was while speaking of this to Ed Owen that he volunteered the following bit of timely information.

Last spring he feared, that he would not have quite enough seed owing to the fact that the corn had shelled off more than usual, and this shelled corn was mixed with corn shelled from tips and butts of the ears so he decided not to use it but instead went to his crib and from it selected seed from the same corn he had selected from in the fall. The only difference was in the care the two lots of corn had been given. When planted the corn which had been well cared for came strong and quick—that selected from the crib slow and weak, and it was fully two weeks late in coming to a point where it could be cultivated, and never caught up. Was inferior to the other in every respect.

To add more proof to the theory of proper care, being important, a neighbor a little later came and got what seed Mr. Owen had rejected of the tips, butts and shelled corn of that properly cared for to finish out his planting. That he first planted had been of corn not given special care and his experience was the same as Mr. Owen. The corn from the house that had been kept warm and dry forged ahead of the other and maintained the lead.

While the talk was going on Mr. Mason came up and added his testimony, saying that it had been the experience on his land, and cited a case where the better part of his farm had one year returned 12½ bushels per acre less than land that was not as good, and he said the entire difference, so far as he could see, was in the selection and care of the seed. He said that neglect in that one matter had cost $450 in one season, figuring difference in returns at the market price. He closed his statement by adding that his son was that day in the corn field selecting seed corn for the next year.

These are facts well worth considering and now is the time to act for next year. It means an additional 500,000 bushels of corn to this county to properly select and can seed corn this fall.

The Weather Man Good

Apparently, we have passed a cold-wave period without a frost, and if the weather shall continue warm for the next ten days or two weeks as now seems probable, it will mean much to the country in increased quantity and better quality corn. The rains of the past week will also help fall feed conditions and make plowing easier.

Honors to Wayne County

Because the matter has not been advertised at home very extensively it is not known here except in a sort of general way that at Carroll there are two horse breeders who have done much to raise the standard of the horses in this county, and who conduct a large business in horses. That their stock is well up in its class is evidenced by the prizes they have been taking at state fairs in competition with the best specimens from over several states.

W. H. Billiter and Burrell Bros., have between them a bunch of 30 head of show horses that have been to Lincoln and South Dakota and are this week at Sioux City. At Lincoln the Billiter horses won five premiums and four at Huron. His horses are all Percheron except one road horse. The Burrell bunch is made up of Percherons, Belgians, Clydes and Shires. They carried away four prizes from Lincoln and nine from the South Dakota fair.

This is an industry that is only in its infancy here, and there is room for the breeding of thoroughbred horses and plenty of it so long as we continue to import as many horses as we do in this country. Many of the imported animals are no better than those we can breed in this country. And so long as there is profit in importing there certainly should be good money in breeding at home, if only the best will be bred and its merits be made known. We know of one importer in Iowa who imports an average of from 40 to 50 horses a month. He began the work in a small way 25 years ago, and had he taken as much pains to breed good horses as to import them, and advertised them as much we believe he could have had a better business today than he now has.

Rev. Corkey and Bellevue

The August college Bulletin issued by the Bellevue college contains the following regarding the pastor of the Presbyterian church at this place:

"Dr. Alexander Corkey, M. A. D. D., the talented author, scholar, preacher and lecturer, has been elected to the chair of Greek and Sociology. This announcement will be a delightful surprise to all friends of Christian Education. He is known throughout the west and may be said to have a national reputation. Dr. Corkey's fine personality, his genius as a writer and speaker, his scholarly tastes and his deep religious convictions, make him an ideal man to be the guide and friend of the young men and women during their student days. We predict that there will be a decided rejuvenescence of the Classical spirit at Bellevue under his inspiration.

Dr. Corkey has accepted the appointment as Professor of Greek and Sociology, to begin his full service at the beginning of 1913. This year he will continue his work as pastor at Wayne and lecture on Sociology at Bellevue."

Court News

For the November term of the District court there is now on file the petition of Carrie Schalus asking divorce from her husband, George, alleging cruelty, abuse and desertion without cause. She also asks for the custody of their child and suitable alimony. A. R. Davis is her attorney. Carrie has also instituted action asking of her father-in-law, John Schalus, the sum of $10,000 damages, alleging that he has conspired to alienate the affections of her husband, George Schalus, causing him to neglect and desert her. Davis & Kipinger are her attorneys.

Wm. Brueckner is plaintiff in an action to be brought against Chas. Maas asking for $4,000 damages inflicted in an encounter which the two men had a few weeks ago where clubs were used with telling effect. We did not learn who are attorneys in this case as the papers in the case were not visible where we were looking. The men reside near Winside.

The judge has postponed hearing on all naturalization cases from November 7th until December 14th.

SIoux CITY WELCOMES WILSON

The Next President Greeted by Thousands at Sioux City Tuesday—The Big Event of the Fair

Thousands from all country tributary to Sioux City gathered from all directions Tuesday morning to greet Woodrow Wilson, democratic nominee for president. They came to see and hear him and judge what manner of man it is who had defeated the will of the political bosses in corporation ridden New Jersey, and caused the will of the people to be respected.

Those who saw him and heard his talk are unanimously of the opinion that he is a man of ability and integrity, with a purpose to do the right as he sees it, and the courage that will enable him to stand by his convictions. He dodged no question, but meeting every issue fairly, won the regard and respect of those who do not agree with him politically, and the love and admiration of those who think as he does, that the time is at hand when the people shall rule.

His speeches are all reviewed in the daily press, and any review that we could give would be too brief to do justice to the man who spoke. But all voters should study his utterances and know what he and the party he represents, stand for, and if it be good to give it earnest support; if bad oppose it. He asks support of no one who thinks he is wrong, and is entitled to the co-operation of all who believe that he is battling for the people.

He was greeted by large and enthusiastic crowds at each of the three places he spoke, and must have left with the impression that the great west is with him in the fight for the rights of the people.

Death of Mrs. H. W. Burnham

A sad death occurred at Omaha Monday when Mrs. Henry Burnham of Sholes passed away from an apoplectic stroke. She went to a hospital there several weeks ago to have the best of care during confinement, and mother and child were doing nicely, and expecting to return home within the week, when the messenger suddenly came. The husband was called at once, but could not reach the city in time to bid the wife farewell. The body and child were brought to Sholes Tuesday, and a delegation of neighbors went to meet the sad party at Emerson, returning with them and acting as pall bearers. Those who went on this sad mission were Will Morgan, A. E. McDowell, W. H. Root, A. Jackson, Wm. and Warren Closson.

A husband and six children besides other relatives and friends mourn the death of this mother.

Social Notes

There was a most happy evening passed by the Normal students at the Baptist church parlors Tuesday evening when the young people's class of that Sunday school tendered them a reception, welcoming the student to Wayne upon the opening of the new school year. Of students and class nearly two hundred were present—enough for a good time. Each one was labeled with his or her name to aid in the introduction. Games were enjoyed in the basement, and refreshments, consisting of orange ice, punch and cake were served. The rooms were decorated in gold and brown, the class colors. It was a kindly way to receive the young people, many of whom are away from home for the first time, perhaps. It will add to their good opinion of Wayne.

A large company of earnest women gathered at the Clinkenbeard home Wednesday afternoon to study the Sunday school lesson and to do honor to the esteemed hostess who leaves soon for Omaha. Mrs. Mines was the presiding officer and Mrs. Liks led the lesson study. At the close a dainty tray cloth was presented to Mrs. Clinkenbeard from the Circle by Miss White, as a token of their deep regard for her. The next meeting of the Circle will be with Mrs. J. J. Coleman Wednesday afternoon and all are invited to be present.

The ladies of the Bible Circle called at the home of E. B. Young and wife Sunday, it being Mrs. Young's birthday, and showered her with handkerchiefs in honor of the event, much to her delightful surprise. Rev. Jas. Lyons of India, who was a guest at the Young home spoke of the mission work in India to the ladies and others who came to hear a message from this visiting missionary.

Miss Clara Heckert entertained a number of her lady friends at a house party last Saturday. An elegant three course breakfast was served Sunday morning. Those present were the Misses Marguerite Chace, Freda Ellis, Jessie Strickland, Magdalene Hahn, Jane Arnold, Zoe Mellor and Clara Heckert.

The Aid society of the M. E. church are holding a business meeting and election of officers at the home of Mrs. E. S. Blair this afternoon.

The business meeting of the Tuesday club was postponed this week, and will be held next week at the home of Mrs. V. A. Senter.

About a dozen ladies called on Mrs. W. H. Morris Tuesday and pleasantly spent the afternoon at Bridge Whist.

The Helping Hand society meets Friday with Mrs. Fred Philleo.

The only harness that will give absolute satisfaction is one sewed by hand, the old fashioned way and made of pure oak tanned leather, tanned by pure chestnut oak bark. Such harness wears longer than any two sets made by a machine.

Likewise Collars. My collars are manufactured from the best of pure oak tanned collar leather and sewed with pure oak tanned thongs. As a result the sewing does not give away and it does not become necessary for you to have them repaired after a few montes service.

ISLANDS OF CORAL

True Ones Only In the Pacific and Indian Oceans.

THE GREAT BARRIER ATOLL.

This Famous Coral Reef, Off the Australian Coast, is the Largest in the World and Extends For Thousands of Miles—Bermuda's Worm Tubes.

There are no true coral islands in the Atlantic. The coral islands of the Pacific and Indian oceans are very distinct from the so called coral islands of Bermuda and the West Indies.

True coral islands, or atolls, are formed by corals building upward on a submerged reef or peak until the growth reaches the surface of the sea or so near it that broken pieces of coral, drift, sand, etc., accumulate and in time build an exposed islet. At other times the coral reef is raised above the water by volcanic action. The Pacific reefs are often circular or semicircular in form, and such reefs are known as atolls.

The largest coral reef is the Great Barrier reef of Australia, which extends for several thousand miles.

The coral islands of the Atlantic are formed by wave broken shells and bits of coral which have become solidified and fossilized by chemical action and age. This material is known as aeolian limestone and after exposure to the air is exceedingly hard and durable, but where freshly broken or cut it is very soft and can be chiseled and sawed into blocks for building purposes.

Many of the West Indian coral islands are partly composed of fossil coral reefs which have been raised far above the present sea level by the volcanic uplift of the rocks to which they were attached. Such coral reefs, says the American Boy, are often found hundreds of feet above sea level and in places are found alternating with layers of lava, showing that the islands have been raised and submerged several times in the past.

The atoll-like reefs in Bermuda are not coral at all, but are formed of innumerable worm tubes belonging to certain annelids. These worm tubes are often thickly fringed with other growths, such as coralline, seaweeds, bryozoa, corals, etc., and thus have the appearance of being composed of real coral.

Corals, when alive, are not white, but are of many beautiful and vivid shades of green, pink, red, brown, yellow, lavender or orange.

A mass of living corals, when seen through the wonderfully clear waters of the tropical sea, is a very beautiful and brilliantly colored sight. There are a great many kinds of coral. Some are rounded and massive and are known as "brain corals." Others are broad and spreading or branched, while others are delicately formed and very brittle. Others are covered with rose shaped or star shaped markings and are called "rose" or "star corals."

The openings or indentations in any coral mark the spot where a coral animal lived. The animals or "polyps" are very similar to sea anemones in form and have numerous fleshy tentacles, which may be drawn in out of sight when danger threatens. The entire coral is covered with animal matter when alive, and it is only after all the flesh is removed and the skeleton is bleached that the white coral appears. All the corals mentioned are known as "stony corals."

Another very large group of corals is the "horny corals," or Gorgonias. The well known "sea fans," as well as the "red coral" used for jewelry, belong to this group.

Corals are not all confined to tropical seas. There are numerous species found as far north as the Grand banks of Newfoundland and Greenland, but these are not the reef building species, but belong to groups inhabiting the deep sea. One species is quite common on the coast of New England, but Bermuda marks the northern limit of reef building species in the Atlantic—Exchange.

Dr. Cleveland was a visitor at Des Moines, going to that city Saturday on a mission connected with her professional work.

The fair at Madison last week was largely attended. The papers claim an attendance of 10,000 there Thursday. Hope that Wayne gets in on the circuit next year.

W. J. Weatherholt of Norfolk was a caller at this office Saturday to set his subscription credit a year ahead on the Democrat that regularly goes to his home. Mr. Weatherholt started married life as all young people in this county should, by subscribing for the Democrat. These two events occurred 27 years ago, and the paper has continued constantly to go to him all of these years, and he has regularly paid the proprietor, whoever it happened to be, for the paper has changed owners several times and also the name on one or two occasions, but like the brook, Mr. Weatherholt just went on and on, until he now thinks that he is the oldest subscriber to the paper in the point of continuous patronage, and he doubtless is, for the paper was young 27 years ago, and of those who were here then not many have remained here constantly.

You've bought mattresses before. You'll buy 'em again; unless, this time, you choose the Dixie NoTUFT—the lifetime mattress.

You'd hardly expect a package tied with light cord to hold for years, when subjected to continual wear. The tufts of the tufted mattress are only light cords. No wonder they weaken and break. The Dixie NoTUFT has no tufts. It is made of compartments whose partitions are as strong as the mattress itself. No wonder the Dixie NoTUFT wears well.

A family can suffer no greater affliction than to have a child subject to fits or epilepsy. Many a father or mother would give their all to restore such a child to health.

"I am heartily glad to tell you of our little boy who was completely cured of fits. He commenced having them at 13 years of age and had them for four years. I tried three doctors and one specialist but all of them said he could not be cured, but Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills made a complete cure. He is now hale, hearty and gay. It has been three years since he had the last spell. I shall give Dr. Miles' medicines praise wherever I go. ## Maine Recaptured by Republicans

The Maine election Monday resulted in a republican victory. The returns indicate that William F. Haines of Waterville, republican, was elected governor by a plurality of 3,557 over Gov. Frederick W. Plaisted, democratic candidate of Augusta. The vote, with twenty-eight towns missing in last returns was:

Haines, republican 70,072

Plaisted, democrat, 66,551.

Two years ago the vote for governor was:

Bert M. Fernald, republican, 64,647.

F. W. Plaisted, democrat, 72,425

Congressman Asher Hinds, first district and Frank E. Guernsey, fourth district, republicans, were re-elected by increased majorities, and Forrest Goodwin, republican, supplanted Congressman Samuel W. Gould, democrat in the third district.

The democratic candidate for the second district, Congressman D. J. McGillicuddy, was re-elected.

The legislature is likely to be republican by a safe majority insuring a republican senator.

Now that the state election is over the republicans will split into two factions, the third party uniting with republicans for state campaign. They now declare the truce ended and war open.

W. J. Bryan spoke at the Clarinda, Iowa, chautauqua last week, and one of the local papers of that place says that the gate receipts for the day were $1,265. That shows that Bryan has not lost his popularity, for we happen to know that there are many season tickets issued annually at the Clarinda gathering. We know too, that while it is the county seat of a county that is the banner republican county in Iowa, they always arrange to hire Bryan to come there to talk whenever their chautauqua enterprise gets in bad shape for funds. He pulled them out of a financial hole fifteen years ago, drawing $1,200 crowd the worst day, because of bad weather, that ever a chautauqua paid expenses. This simply shows that he is strong in the hearts of the people even though the politicians would gladly have it different.

Mr. Renter.

Dear Sir:—Why stay here and pay big rent when you can go to Minnesota and get a home in the Red River Valley? Well improved, not over six miles from town at $40.00 to $60.00 per acre and on easy terms. Our excursions are on the first and third Tuesdays of the month. Next Tuesday is the day, come in and see me for further particulars.

State of Trade

Pleasing Prospects. Late crops make gains. Early gathered surpass expectations. Corn promises record yield. Cotton next to large. Trade expands. Buying more urgent. Western reports most optimistic. Industry enlarging. Labor scarcity universal. Crop movement large. Ocean freight high. Collection improved. Money firmer. Car shortage in evidence.

The above is the terse manner in which Bradstreet's report tells of conditions. How hard it would be to tell more in less words. The report that follows in detail tells of decrease in business failures and the increase of new building. With scarcely an exception of locality or commodity the report is good. Here at Wayne we are in the midst of great agricultural wealth, and it need not be gathered and conserved to be of great benefit to all. The price of our great crop now about to be marketed is being reached after from far and near, and there never was a better time for the home merchant to receive liberal patronage than today. Reach out and invite them to come to Wayne for their supplies.

The Nebraska state Fair was a record-breaker this year, and we are glad of it. It will do the people good to get into a crowd and visit and see and learn what the other fellow is doing, and that reminds us that if it is good for the state it would be good for the county, and that citizens of Wayne county could well afford to move right now in the matter of having a meeting of some kind here this fall. Perhaps it is too late for anything elaborate, but a start could be made, and another year the matter could be started in the spring and preparations be made which would terminate in an exhibit in the fall which would be worth thousands to the community. It would mean better farming, better stock, better acquaintance and better feeling. Our resources are not fully developed. One man grows 25 bushels of corn to the acre and another 75 bushels. Why should not both do better, and grow 100 bushels? It is done in some instances. An increase of 25 bushels of corn per acre will require extra work, but it will pay an extra price.

Nebraska produces more agricultural wealth per capita each year than any other state. This, too, despite the fact that she is one of the youngest. She produces more wheat, corn, and oats per acre than any other state. She is fourth largest crop producer, and fourth largest oats producer, the third largest sugar beet producer, the second largest alfalfa producer, the third largest dairy products producer. She contains the third live stock market in the world, and is crowding for second place. Only one state equals her in low percentage of illiteracy, and only two states excel her the size of their permanent school fund. And no state spends more money per capita for educational purposes than Nebraska. That's the kind of a state you live in, and you ought to be mighty proud of it.—Maupin's Weekly.

Great Men Differ

While some of our citizens are talking of paving, others are asking an extension of the water mains. One or more buildings that are needed will be erected, we are told, if the city will extend water mains a block or two. Everything possible should be done to encourage building, but it may be that the extension is not now possible. As to paving, the big end of the expense of that is paid by abutting property, yet there is quite an expense that goes with paving for the tax payer. One good thing would result from paving at Wayne, and that would be the lowering of the center of Main street a little lower than the walk grade, or the raising of the walk grade. The former would cause less grief to all.

Here's another one of those excellent planks in the Democratic state platform: "We favor taxation reforms by separation of the sources of the state and local revenues, thus giving to counties and towns the privilege of enjoying the taxes from purely local valuations. Land held for speculative purposes, and without improvement ought to carry a larger share of taxation than it now does. To this end we promise to submit to the vote of the people a proposed constitutional amendment enlarging the powers of the legislature with respect to the enactment of the taxation system, and then provide for the selection of a commission whose business it will be to investigate and report for the consideration of the legislature its idea of the taxation system suited for Nebraska's peculiar needs."

The Emerson people are calling for a new depot, and are trying to show greater need for one than Wayne. We will not dispute that point with them, but at Emerson they have ample platform room out of doors which Waynettes are denied. If it rains here we cannot stand out in the rain on the platform but must get the drip from the roof. And then our platform—a part of it is watertight and slopes the wrong way so that it easily holds an inch of water in places. You Emerson folks had better keep still—you don't know how well off you are in the matter of depot and platform accommodation.

The plank in the progressive party platform favoring equal suffrage is simply a sentimental bid for notoriety, for the states, not the nation control and regulate who shall vote within the borders. The constitutional amendment route is the only one over which the Federal government could get anywhere on that track and, to attain it by that route, the women now living would never get a vote unless it moved faster than had the change for direct election of senators traveled over the amendment route.

Matters may not be much bettered by the forced retirement of Judge Hanford from the Federal bench in Washington, for the President has named as his successor Clinton H. Howard, a corporation attorney who has long been in employ of Great Northern railroad and a lobbyist. If he proves as corrupt as the other man he will also be compelled to step down and out, and some day the people will see to the appointing of these judges who are to pass judgment upon them.

According to Roosevelt the majority of the people of this country are not right—are dead wrong—because they do not agree with him. It is a fine thing to have such a firm set of convictions, all acquired in such a short space of time. While hobnobbing with such characters as Perkins of New York, and Boss Flynn of Pittsburg, he assumes that Wilson is under the control of corrupt bosses. To deny his assertion is to make one a member of the growing Ananias organization.

No, Johnnie, the Roosevelt followers are not called the "third party" because they are supposed to hold any points over the socialists or prohibitionists or other parties that were organized and soliciting votes long before a "Bull Mooser" was heard of, but because they are for a third term, and it should be called the third term party. No, my son, it will not be the fourth party next time, because there won't be any next time. The good die young.

The Third party has not only stolen most of the good things in their party platform from the democrats, but they have now taken as their party emblem the bandana of red which was so popular in the Cleveland-Thurman campaign, and we imagine that the late Allen G. Thurman will appear as a ghost to them for this violation of their chosen text, "thou shalt not steal."

A Plain Statement of IHC Wagon Value

SOME farmer saves money every time an IHC wagon is sold. Not because it costs less money to begin with, but because of the length of service it gives, an IHC wagon is the cheapest wagon you can buy. The longer a wagon lasts the cheaper it is. That is why it is economy to buy the best wagon—one that will outlast any ordinary wagon. When you buy an IHC wagon you invest in a wagon built of the highest grade material which experience and care can select or money can buy, built in the most thorough, painstaking manner, by skilled workmen, in factories which have modern appliances for doing work of the highest standard at the lowest possible cost.

All lumber used is air-dried in sheds with concrete floors. This insures toughness and resiliency. All metal parts are made of especially prepared steel, guaranteeing the longest service. Each wagon undergoes four inspections before being shipped so that it reaches the purchaser in first class condition, ready to be put to work at once, and able to carry any reasonable load over any road where a wagon should go.

Weber and Columbus wagons have wood gears, New Bettendorf and Steel King have steel gears. The IHC dealer knows which wagon is best suited to your work. When you see him get literature from him, or, write

Pipes and butter gain strength with age.

When is a lap dog? How old was Ann? and what is a republican? are the puzzle questions of the day.

We are to have a new dollar bill. It will be smaller than those now in use, but let us hope that it will buy more of the things necessary for man to eat and wear.

Woodrow Wilson and William J. Bryan are to speak from the same platform at Lincoln October 5th. Wilson is moving out very nicely for a candidate who was to be kept on his front porch to entertain those who could call. He will make a better president for getting out and meeting the people—have a better idea of conditions and needs of the country. Then, another important matter is this, the more who see and hear Mr. Wilson, the more Wilson men there are.

The Lincoln Journal continues to misrepresent John H. Morehead's attitude towards the initiative and referendum. But it cannot evade the fact that Senator Morehead voted for the law as it is now before the people for approval. Nor can it disguise the fact that for political reasons it, and other republicans of its ilk, pretending to be wholeheartedly for the initiative and referendum, endeavored to "put the democratic legislature in a hole" by forcing it to submit an initiative and referendum proposition that would be open to attack.

The later solution of the disease that is killing so many horses is that it is not meningitis, but a poison taken in to the system from the pastures. Horses should be taken from the pastures and given dry feed. It is fortunate if it prove true that it is the feed that is causing the great loss rather than a contagious disease as fatal as meningitis, for the loss can be more easily checked.

Normal Starts Year Well

Registration for the new year began on Monday and is still in progress. The enrollment at present shows a good increase over that of last year, the most pleasing feature being the large number who are registered for advanced work. Indications are that there will be a Senior class of thirty members, and the Junior class now has an enrollment of forty. Classes have been organized in all subjects called for in the regular work and many of the departments found it necessary to offer advanced electives in new subjects.

Miss Mary Pettit, who was recently placed at the head of the department of domestic science, arrived in Wayne on Thursday of last week and will organize the work of this department. The courses outlined in domestic science for the first semester include cooking, sewing and sanitary science. Miss Elizabeth Bettcher is the new critic teacher in the training department, she having in charge grades three, four and five. Miss Kingsbury, after spending several months abroad, has again assumed her work at the head of the German department. Following the chapel exercises on Tuesday morning all classes have met regularly and the prospects are bright for an exceptionally good school year.

NORMAL NOTES.

The members of the faculty will give a reception to the students on Monday evening, September 23.

Rev. B. P. Richardson met with the school and conducted the devotional exercises at the first chapel service.

Professor Huntemer has scheduled a game of football with Sioux City for September 28, and our team will meet Gates Academy on October 12.

Professor Hickman is offering a course in advanced physiology. This is to meet the needs of the students who wish to qualify for a city state certificate.

Miss Kingsbury is greatly pleased with the interest shown in the work of the German department. The beginning class in German at 10:30 was so large that it was necessary to provide a new section for 7:45.

The class of 1912 of the Wayne high school is well represented in the attendance. The following names appear on the Junior roll of the state normal school: Harry Gildersleeve, Paul Mines, H. M. Strahan, Neva J. Orr, Alma Craven, Bernice Beebe, Tracy Kohl and Grace L. Ash.

After all, the real significance of the vote in Vermont recently was not the size of the Bull Moose vote or the heavy inroads it made into the regular Republican vote, but the splendid showing made by the Democrats, who in round figures, increased their strength from 16,000 in 1908 to 20,350 in 1912. This means that the party not only stood solid as a rock, absolutely united, but it drew to itself a large Republican vote.

Home From Europe

Last week J. G. Mines returned from a sojourn of two months in Europe. He visited the British Isles, France, Germany, Italy and other countries, seeing all that was to be seen and all the time no doubt comparing what he saw to America. He reports a most interesting and enjoyable time, but there is no place like home.

Monday evening Christ Wishof returned from a sojourn of three months in Germany, his native land. He reports a splendid visit.

Among The Churches of Wayne

Baptist Church

(Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor)
Sunday morning at 10:45 the pastor will preach on the theme: "The Divine Challenge." The sermon will have a vital relation to our coming year's work and we are anxious to have a goodly number of our members present.

The young people's society meets at 7 p. m. Leaders are Misses Ina Hughes and Hazel Norton. Our meetings are full of interest and helpfulness. Each gathering an inspiration.

After an extended song service by the chorus, under Prof. Davies, the pastor will preach a short evangelistic sermon at 8 p. m.

The reception given by the young people to the students of the Normal last Tuesday evening was an enjoyable affair. About two hundred were present. Our church is glad to have the student body share all phases of our church life.

Next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, our annual fellowship meeting will be held. This is the one gathering of the year in which all our members meet in fellowship and social enjoyment. It should be attended by all. Instead of a supper the ladies have arranged to serve ice-cream and cake. A report of all departments of our church will be given and should be heard by all. Members of our congregation are invited. If you are interested in the coming year's work, you will not want to miss this meeting. Remember the date.

The Men's class, taught by Prof. Lewis, has decided to take up studies in the Social Gospel. The coming months, the lessons will deal with "Crime and the Criminals." Visit the class one session and you will become a permanent member.

The committee for our state convention meeting are doing active work now. Let each of us assist them in any way they may ask.

German Lutheran Church

(J. H. Karpenstein, Pastor)
There will be services at 11 o'clock a. m. and Sunday school at 10 o'clock. Everybody welcome.

School Notes

The enrollment in the high school has reached 108. This is probably the largest enrollment in the history of the high school.

The Nebraska State Teachers' association will meet in Omaha on November 6, 7 and 8, 1912. E. L. Rouse of Peru is president of the association. Among the prominent speakers who will appear before the association are Hon. Wm. Jennings Bryan, Hon. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, Dr. Frank M. McMurry of New York, Eugene Davenport of the University of Illinois, Charles H. Judd of the University of Chicago and J. W. Crabtree, president of the Normal School at River Falls, Wisconsin. Mr. Bryan will give the chief address on Thursday evening, November 7th. He has made a study at first hand of education in most of the leading countries of the world. The executive committee considers this opportunity to hear Bryan the greatest opportunity that has come to Nebraska teachers.

Miss Tot Chapin of the class of 1911 was a high school visitor last Friday.

Leslie Epler of the class of 1911 entered the University of Washington this week.

A large number of the classes of 1911 and 1912 entered the Wayne State Normal this week.

Hazel Norton, Myra Bell, Bessie Lauman and Lavern Garwood, all of the class of 1912 are teaching in Wayne county.

Ruth White and Nellie Juhlin of the class of 1911, are teaching in Wayne county.

The North East Nebraska Teachers' association will meet at Emerson on Saturday, October 12, 1912.

The work in all departments is moving along very nicely.

The high school orchestra will be organized next week.

The foot ball team was disappointed last Saturday in that their opponents did not get here. The Lyons team was to play here and when they found that they couldn't get here by train, owing to the wreck at Blair, they started for Wayne in automobiles, but only a part of them got here. No one is to blame for the disappointment, as the Lyons fellows did the best they could to get here and not disappoint the Wayne team.

The Stanton high school foot ball team will play the Wayne team next Saturday on the Wayne field.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces that an examination will be held for the position of clerk in the post office at Wayne, October 12, 1912. Applicants must have reached their eighteenth but not their forty-fifth

POINTS TO NOTE IN HORSE BUYING

When possible in purchasing a horse the animal should be examined in the stable. Note the way in which he is tied to the manger, whether he has been chewing the tie strap or the fixtures, thus indicating a cribber; how he stands in the stall and his general behavior when you step to his side, says M. W. Harper in the National Stockman. Give special attention to the horse's conduct while grooming, particularly along the belly, the back of the fore legs, the front of the hind legs and the flanks. Harness the horse, giving special attention to the manner of taking the bit, the general behavior when placing the headstall over the ears, the harness over the back, the crupper under the tail and when buckling the girth.

Lead the horse from the stall, noting the method of picking up his hind feet

The Suffolk Punch breed of draft horse is renowned for endurance, uniformity of type and activity. The United States has never been a heavy buyer of Suffolks, the average American stallion dealer not being able to compete against the high priced Australian and Argentine buyers. In Australia the Suffolk is held in high esteem, and they bring enormous prices. The Australians like them on account of their ability to withstand the conditions of drought and short rations and their wonderful activity, which enables them to travel long distances to water and return to back ranges where grazing is good. There are only about 1,000 pure bred Suffolks alive in this country.

As he backs and his manner of turning around. As he passes into the yard the doorway affords a very good place to examine the eyes for impaired vision and the mouth for irregular teeth and determining the age.

Carefully examine the teeth. As the lower jaw of the horse is narrower than the upper, the outside of the upper teeth and the inside of the lower often become sharp and lacerate the tongue or lips, thus preventing the animal from feeding and often interfering seriously with his action, because of the irritation caused by the bit, hence carefully examine the teeth for irregularities.

While in the doorway the nostrils may also be examined. There should be no discharge and the nostrils should be of fresh pink color. A profuse colored discharge indicates glanders, distemper, shipping fever and similar diseases. This may be only temporary, but one buying a horse cannot afford to take the risk.

After examining the eyes, mouth and nostrils, lead the horse into the yard. Note the general appearance; the manner of holding the head; the mobility of the ears; the manner of standing, and the like. Give special consideration to soundness, especially of the legs and feet. Do not overlook abraded knee or fetlock joints, as these suggest that the horse stumbles or interferes. Any growth along the cannons or pasterns must be carefully examined, as these may be splints, ring bones, side bones, or the like. Pick up the foot and note the condition of the sole and frog.

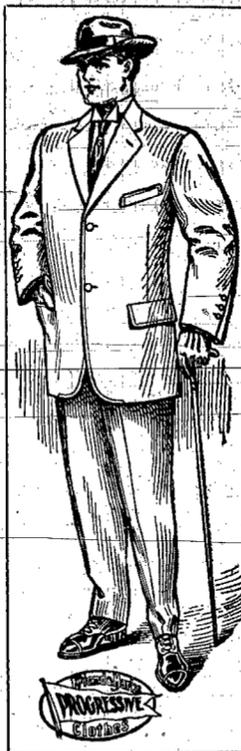

Note the action first at the halter and then hitched. Give special consideration to the walk as this is a very important gait for all types and breeds of horses. Next note the manner of starting, turning, stopping, backing and the like. Note the ease of control and how the horse guides this way and that. Drive the horse rapidly for about one-half mile, stop him and observe him standing after the exercise, especially with respect to the regularity of breathing and his manner of standing; these suggest heaves and distemper.

Silo Advantages.
Providing succulent feed for stock during the winter months and establishing a reliable source of provender for supplementing pastures is not the only advantage of the silo. One of its greatest economic advantages is increasing the capacity of the farm. It requires on the average at least two acres of the best corn belt pasture to keep one cow through the grazing season. The same area planted to corn ought to yield at least twenty-four tons of silage, which with one-half ton of cottonseed meal, would keep five cows through the same season.

Select Only Sound Stallions.
No horse is better than his feet. Whether buying a work animal or breeding to a public service stallion be sure to examine the animal for soundness. If the work animal is unsound you don't want him. If the breeding stallion is unsound you don't want his colts.

Teeth of Old Sows.
Watch the teeth of the old sows. If the tusks keep the grinders apart, saw them off. Sometimes it is necessary to pull a bad tooth.

Railway Commissioners Register Protest at St. Paul.

SEEK TO BOOST CARLOT CHARGE

Government Experts Have Nothing Definite to Recommend in Connection With Treatment of New Horse Disease—Water Case Goes Over.

Lincoln, Sept. 17.—Railway Commissioner H. J. Winnett and Rate Clerk U. G. Powell of the state railway commission have returned from St. Paul, where they appeared before the interstate commerce commission in a protest against a proposed increase in the rate on potatoes from Nebraska to Chicago ranging from $6 to $21 per car. The increase is asked by the Northwestern and Burlington. Mr. Powell was the main witness in the case and presented an array of figures to show that such an increase would be unjustifiable. Mr. Winnett is of the opinion that Mr. Powell's figures made considerable impression on the commission.

Forage and New Disease. There is nothing new to report from the office of the state veterinarian regarding the horse disease. The work of investigation is being carried on as hard as it is possible to carry it, but at present the investigation has not made much headway other than to gain knowledge on which to work. "There may be some connection between the use of forage or newly cut hay and the disease," said Dr. Davidson, the government expert. "One thing that leads us to think that this is so is the fact that animals in cities and larger towns which have been kept on dry feed all summer are not afflicted with the disease."

Morrill to University. Professor Walter J. Morrill, for several years in the forest service of the government in Colorado, has been selected to head the department of forestry at the state university. He arrived in Lincoln a few days ago and has been getting acquainted with the work here preparatory to the beginning of the school year. Professor Morrill is a graduate of the Maine university and of the forest school at Yale.

Aurora City Institute. State Superintendent Delzell returned to Lincoln from Aurora, where he attended a city institute in that city. "This is something new for Nebraska," said Mr. Delzell, "and was not inaugurated in this state until last year. The Aurora meeting was about the fifth or sixth held in the state and is proving to be a good thing." Superintendent Waterhouse of Fremont was the chief instructor.

Snow Covers Ground in Black Hills.

Omaha, Sept. 18.—Weather reports sent into the railroads indicate that the only thing that saved the northwestern portion of the state from a killing frost was the rain and cloudy weather. Up in the Black Hills country and to the north and west there was snow enough to cover the ground. In some places temperatures got down to the frost point, but a stiff breeze and the heavy weather is said to have saved the corn and vegetables.

West Conference Ends Labors.

Scottsbluff, Neb., Sept. 17.—The conference of the West Nebraska Methodists closed its deliberations with R. P. Hammon's missionary sermon. ## TRY DESERT WHEAT CORN

Cuming County Farmers Experimenting With New Plant.

"Desert Wheat-Corn" is the name of the food and forage plant introduced into Cuming county by R. G. Langer, who brought the seed with him from Oklahoma. A number of experimental fields of this grain have been planted in Cuming county with the view of testing its fitness for the soil of Nebraska and demonstrating its value. The habitat of the plant is Mexico. The fruitage is very much like wheat, the heads being similar, but much larger and with larger grains. The plant withstands drought and hot winds perfectly and will grow freely under arid and semi-arid conditions. It makes excellent fodder, is a fine chicken feed, can be used as popcorn; when cracked makes a good breakfast food, when ground can be used for pancake flour and can be used for hominy and if necessary the parched product makes good coffee.

PLANS FOR BIG CONVENTION

Nebraska Manufacturers' Meeting to Be Held on Nov. 14.

The convention of Nebraska manufacturers is to be held at Omaha on Nov. 14. This has just been decided by the committee that was appointed by the Omaha Manufacturers' association to make arrangements for the call of the manufacturers of the state in mass convention this fall for the purpose of organizing a state association. A great number of letters have been received at the club rooms from manufacturers in every part of the state favoring the calling of such a convention. The personnel of the convention will be representative of every part of the state and representative of every line of manufacture.

ELEVATION CHARGE REDUCED

Interstate Commerce Commission Issues Important Order.

The beginning of the end is believed to have been reached in the custom of paying arbitrary grain elevation charges.

Notice has been received that the interstate commerce commission has issued an order reducing the elevation charges at Omaha and all other Missouri river points from 3/4 of a cent per 100 pounds to 1/2 of a cent per bushel on wheat. The old rate of 3/4 of a cent per 100 pounds still maintains on oats.

Burlington to Build Into North Platte.

North Platte, Neb., Sept. 16.—E. M. Westervelt, right-of-way agent of the Burlington railroad, and another officer of that railroad were here examining the houses owned by the railroad on the right-of-way of the road to be built from Newark through the Platte river valley into Wyoming. A price was fixed upon all of the buildings along the right-of-way through this city. Twelve of the fifteen houses were sold before the advertisement was put in the paper. The buildings are to be removed not later than April 1, 1913. This is taken as an indication that the Burlington will need the right-of-way soon after this date for construction purposes.

Shoots Wife, Kills Self.

John Lewis of Nebraska City shot and probably fatally wounded his wife and attempted to kill his nine-year-old daughter at the home of Harry DeFord when Mrs. Lewis refused to have a divorce suit annulled which she has had pending. Lewis ran into the back yard and fired at Joe Kramer, who was passing, and then sinking out of sight in the weeds, he turned the revolver on himself. The shot went through his head and death was instantaneous. Mrs. Lewis is in a critical condition in a local hospital, with two bullet holes in her body.

Suit Against Lodge.

The Royal Neighbors of America, an auxiliary to the Modern Woodmen of America, have appealed to the supreme court of the state from a judgment in the district court of Lincoln county secured by Thomas J. Youda, whose wife, Annie, held a certificate for $2,000 in camp No. 301 of North Platte and who was given judgment for the full amount. The order appeals on the grounds that at the time Mrs. Youda made application to join the organization she made representations that she was in sound health, when this was not the case.

Dundy Corn Crop Is Large.

Benkelman, Neb., Sept. 16.—Reports from over all of Dundy county indicate that the corn crop will be the largest in the history of the county, the average per acre being placed at thirty bushels, with about 80,000 acres in the crop. About half of the crop is now out of the way of frost and the remainder will be in ten days. The hay crop is also very heavy this year.

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Beef Market Active and Feeders Rule Strong.

HOGS GET BLOW UNDER BELT.

Sheep and Lamb Receipts Quite Heavy. Plenty of Buyers on Hand—Killing Sheep and Lambs Generally Steady. Feeders Steady to Strong.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Sept. 17.—Receipts of cattle were very fair today, about 8,000 head being received. There was nothing of consequence in the way of corn-fed cattle on sale. Although the supply of grass cattle was well up to the average for this time of the year, there was a healthy demand from both dressed beef men and feeder buyers and anything that brought out competition sold readily at fully steady figures. In cows and heifers the trade was rather active and prices well sustained and there was a good brisk trade in stockers and feeders, with prices much the same as on Monday, but quite a little better than the close of last week.

Out the quotations: Choice to prime beefs, $9.25@10.25; good to choice beefs, $8.25@9.00; fair to good beefs, $7.50@8.00; common to fair beefs, $6.00@7.25; good to choice heifers, $6.25@6.85; good to choice cows, $5.50@6.25; fair to good grades, $4.25@5.40; canners and cutters, $3.00@4.00; veal calves, $4.50@8.75; bulls, stags, etc., $4.00@5.50; choice to prime feeders, $7.00@8.15; good to choice feeders, $6.00@6.75; fair to good feeders, $5.50@6.00; common to fair feeders, $4.75@5.50; stock cows and heifers, $4.50@5.75; choice to prime fat beefs, $7.75@8.75; good to choice grass beefs, $7.00@7.75; fair to good grass beefs, $6.25@7.00; poor to fair grass beefs, $5.00@6.00.

About 6,500 hogs arrived today. The market opened 10@15c lower and closed around a quarter off. Trade was slow at the decline. Light and butcher hogs sold up to $8.35, and they were right good stuff, such as sold at $2.65 early Monday morning and at last week's close.

Nearly 35,000 sheep and lambs were received today. Buying began early and continued until practically everything desirable was disposed of. The prices paid were generally steady with Monday. There was a good many feeder buyers here and the trade on that class of stock began just as soon as it was sorted up. Movement was active and the prices paid were steady to strong. Good feeder lambs sold as high as $6.75, which was 10c higher than Monday.

Sheep and lamb quotations: Lambs, good to choice, $7.10@7.40; lambs, fair to good, $6.60@7.00; lambs, feeders, $6.00@6.75; yearlings, good to choice light, $5.25@5.65; yearlings, good to choice heavy, $4.75@5.10; yearlings, feeders, $5.00@5.50; wethers, good to choice, $4.15@4.75; wethers, fair to good, $4.00@4.15; wethers, feeders, $3.90@4.40; ewes, good to choice, $3.75@4.35; ewes, feeders, $3.10@3.60; ewes, yearling breeders, $4.50@5.00; ewes, aged, $3.50@4.50; culls and bucks, $2.00@3.00.

IF NOT--WHY NOT

The Twentieth Century Farmer, the great exponent of new methods of scientific farming and soil culture, tells how it is done.

You can do it on your farm.

Have you had your soil analyzed?

Do you know what plant foods it contains, and in what proportion?

Do you know that every crop you raise takes plant food out of your soil, and that unless you are putting an equal amount back you are robbing the soil?

Do you know how to put it back?

The Twentieth Century Farmer tells you how.

It is the best farm magazine. It is printed on the paper, with beautiful illustrations. It has a handsome colored cover each week with a beautiful artistic cover design. It is edited and published in the West for Western farmers. It contains articles by scientific men of authority on all topics pertaining to the farm, besides stories, fashions, patterns—a special department for mother and the children.

The Sunday World-Herald contained a notice saying that the postmasters must distribute the mail to the lock boxes on Sunday the same as before the new appropriation act became effective with the clause relative to Sunday closing; but the order issued to Postmaster McNeal does not so state. On the contrary, it says that he shall only distribute to the lock boxes letters to traveling men or such mail as is addressed in care of hotels, mail for newspapers and newspaper bundles for newsdealers. It is the purpose of the postmaster to have the lobby of the office open so that those who have mail in lock boxes not taken out on Saturday evening may get the same during the day Sunday.

Fred Wright and wife of Spokane are here visiting his mother and other relatives and friends, coming from southern California here, where they first went on their wedding trip, for they were but recently married. They are guests at the home of his mother, Mrs. W. M. Wright.

R. P. Williams began a good work Wednesday, soliciting $1.00 contributions to the Wilson-Marshall campaign fund. Up to date he has secured about $30.00. If he has not seen you, it is an easy matter to see him, and the cause needs the aid, and Wayne county should be represented in the fight. If you find it more convenient leave your contribution at the Democrat office. It will be forwarded.

One of the real big treats of each theatrical season is that old but ever popular stage story, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," as presented by Stetson's big spectacular company, which will be seen Thursday, September 26th, at the Wayne opera house. As in former years this sterling company is equipped with new effects and startling scenes, electrical and mechanical surprises are promised. The vaudeville and specialty numbers are said to be of the 1912 and, while the negro melodies and the old southern plantation songs are rendered as only the genuine southern darkies know how to sing them.

Rev. James Lyon, a district superintendent of the M. E. church in Rookie, India, and for a third of a century a resident of that country where he is engaged in mission work, was a guest of E. B. Young and wife last week. From a small beginning he has built up a membership of 16,000, and has 85 teachers and preachers at work in his district, two of whom are supported from Wayne. This is his second furlough in the time he has been in the work, and he came to visit his children who have been in this country for education and because of better climate.

Chas. Thompson shipped a car of good Wayne county horses to Sioux City the first of the week.

Miss Emily Killion went to Omaha this morning to visit relatives and friends for a time.

Wm. Selligman is hauling lumber for a new barn 28x32 on one of the Robert Mellor farms eight miles northwest of Wayne.

Nels Moore of Hordville, spent Sunday at Wayne, while returning from a visit with his son and many friends at Coleridge. While here he was a guest at the home of his cousins, E. O. Gardner and family.

Chas. Wilson from Ohio, and Aaron Wilson of Sioux City and their sister, Mrs. Randolph, also from Sioux City, were guests at the home of their cousins, Ed Johnson and wife, Wednesday. They agree that we have a pretty city and rich farm country.

Mrs. Mary Sponhower and her daughter, Fern, who came here last week for an extended visit with the elder lady's daughter, Mrs. Vibber were called to their home at Neligh the first of the week by the sickness of a son at that place.

A certain elderly, but young looking man of this city was returning from a trip at one of the Springs, where he had gone several weeks ago to drink of their beneficial waters. It seems what he brought back with him in the form of the liquids was either too heavy or the grip containing same was too weak to carry its contents. Anyway, when he stepped off the evening train the bottom let lose and deposited its contents on the platform, much to the evident embarrassment of the gentleman and the silent amusement of the crowd. However, equal to the occasion he gathered what he could of the "spill" and took them home. We sincerely hope his health was not impaired any by the loss of his recuperators. That's all right, my friend; accidents will happen any where and often at inconvenient places too.

Some matter is crowded out this week which will appear in the next issue.

Miss Ruby Hughes who is teaching at Oakland, was with home folks at this place over Sunday.

W. F. Ramsey left Tuesday for Central City and Grand Island. He may go to Hot Springs, S. D., before returning.

H. E. Grigg lost half of the third finger of his right hand, and split the little finger nearly an inch Monday in the plaining machine at the Perkins shop. He got the hand in the wrong place and that was all there was to it. Once the hand was in, he was lucky to escape with so little loss. The wound is doing nicely.

The attendance from here to the fair at Sioux City this season is less than a year ago, according to the sale of tickets. Tuesday was not a pleasant day or more would have gone. The ticket sale that day was 107. On Wednesday, which was the big day last year 145 tickets were sold, and this morning 110. The special trains come in fairly well filled from the west, and several extra coaches are used for the branch each day. On Tuesday the Bloomfield Wilson & Marshall club came in a special car, appropriately decorated, carrying the members of the club and a band.

SELECTING SEED CORN EARLY

When and How to Select—The Essentials of Good Seed—How to Care for It.

The editor of the Democrat could tell in a few words, perhaps, all that he knows about the selection of seed corn, but Hoard's Dairyman contained a paper from O. D. Center which was given before the Illinois Farmers' institute that contains so much that is timely and good that we believe any farmer who reads it will find something new therein, and if nothing new to him it will certainly strengthen the faith that is within him and make of him a more enthusiastic advocate of good seed selection:

Corn selection early from the field and properly stored is reasonably sure to grow and give a perfect stand when planted next spring. There is a direct relation between the stand of corn secured, the yield of corn produced, and the profit from the crop. It costs no more to grow a field of corn having a perfect stand than it does to raise a field with a 60 per cent stand. The preparation of the seed bed, the amount of seed planted, necessary labor and cultivation given are equal in either case.

The germ in every viable kernel of seed corn is a live, very small, tightly rolled corn plant. The kernel, apart from the germ, is only a stored food supply for the use of the little plant before it comes above the ground. Freezing this little plant while tightly rolled within the kernel will kill it. Everyone knows that a corn plant is easily killed and blackened by freezing. It is just as fatal to the corn plant to be frozen within the kernel as it is when frozen as a growing plant. Seeds must be selected before killing frosts or freezing weather occur if it is to show a high, strong germinator. When so selected and properly dried it insures seed of the highest quality. Killing frosts or freezing weather invariably weaken the growing quality of any grain containing excessive moisture. If the freeze is too severe, the germ is killed.

Corn, even in the soft dough stage of maturity, when carefully cured makes excellent, strong, growing seed. Corn that matures on the stalk well into the glazed or dented stage is preferable, however, to that picked and cured in the soft dough stage. Seed corn properly selected, husked and carefully stored under average conditions before the middle of September will be reasonably sure of becoming thoroughly dry before freezing weather comes. The use of such seed corn will result in better crops, higher feeding values and increased profits from this crop.

How to Select Seed.

The best seed can only be selected from the standing stalks. The easiest method of selecting seed from the field is to sling a bag over the shoulder having the mouth well in front but at the left side. One can pass between the rows and easily and quickly make the desired selections. If two-thirds of a nail keg hoop is firmly tacked in the mouth of the sack, it will save time and make it much easier to drop the selected ears into the bag. With this bag, or with a basket, if preferred, go into the best part of the field and select such seed ears as are most mature. Maturity is indicated by brown, dry silks, the husks of the ear turning yellow and by the tendency of the ear to hang tip downward. Ears on long shanks however should be avoided. Select the mature ears from vigorous appearing, up-right, well-rooted stalks. These stalks should have many broad leaves, for the leaves form the food-factory of the plant. A large number of broad leaves indicates a good big food factory, therefore a strong grain. Do not select ears that grow too close to the ground or those that are high on the stalk. The height of the ear from the ground can be changed and regulated by seed selection. It is important that the ear should be high enough so that the crop can be handled with a corn-binder. The place of the ear on the stalk, the form of the ear and the strength of the plant are characteristics that are handed down from the parent plant through the grain to the next crop. The corn plant transmits both good and bad characters just as animals do. Good characters to look for and select are the upright, stalky, well-rooted, leafy plants; ears that are mature, well-filled, of good form, and that are produced about midway of the stalk. These characters can be noted only when seed selection is made from the standing stalks. When early selection and picking is done they are easily observed. The stalk producing the seed ear is a mother plant that has impressed her characteristics on each kernel of the seed ear. The value of using pure bred sires or dams in breeding up a herd or flock is commonly recognized. These facts regarding stock breeding are just as true concerning farm crops. There is no crop with which this plan of improvement can be applied so surely, easily and economically as with the corn crop. Good mothers should be selected for the corn fields just as they would be selected for hogs, horses or cattle.

In selecting, there will be found a great difference in ear maturity on equally good stalks. The early maturing ears will produce corn of like sort. In this way, great progress toward desirable corn can be made. Good selection of seed ears cannot be made from the shock or from the field late in the fall, since it is impossible to tell the time of ear maturity. Corn left unhusked until late, whether on the stalk or in the shock, cannot properly dry out for seed. The husks prevent the moisture from drying out rapidly and thoroughly and as a consequence the grain is usually frozen either before it is husked or else thoroughly dry after being husked.

Essentials of Good Corn.

The important points to bear in mind are: (1) Maturity. Mature corn is of higher feeding value than the same amount of immature, it is much easier to store, it is worth more per bushel and is always higher in vitality under adverse conditions. In general, the larger the cob and deeper the kernel, the longer it will require an ear to mature. Immaturity is shown by chaffiness, looseness of grain on cob and by light weight. (2) Size and form of ears. It is not the large ear of corn that is always desirable. Well formed, well filled, medium sized ears are generally more productive and of stronger vitality. In shape the ear should carry its butt size well to the tip, have straight, regular rows of even-sized kernels, and be free from irregularities. (3) Filling. The more completely filled the cob over both butt and tip with large sized dented kernels, the more desirable the ear, other points being equal. (4) Depth and type of kernels. For most corn a blunt wedge-shaped kernel is desirable. The depth of the kernel will vary with the variety. The kernel should be as long as will mature under average weather conditions. Be sure the kernel is full and plump at the germ end. This insures good food supply to the embryo plant and also protects it. (5) Per cent of shelled corn to ear. It is the amount of shelled corn produced per acre that counts. Cobs have little food or selling value. Ears that conform closely to the points already given are almost certain to contain a high percentage of shelled corn. Consideration of these will give a very uniform lot of seed which is highly desirable. If double the amount of seed needed for planting is saved, attention can be given to the filling of tips and butts, straightness of rows of grain, shade of color, etc., in typing the corn. These points make up the general conformation of the seed ear just as the top and under line, the hams, etc., are points considered in the conformation of hog; or the top and under line, the loin and additional points are considered in the conformation of a prize bull or steer. The more uniform the type of seed corn, the more even and uniform the stand of corn secured with the average planter. It has been proven at several experiment stations that evenness of distribution by the planter in the field has considerable influence on the size of the ears produced, and the yield of corn per acre. The more even the distribution, other factors being equal, the better the ears and the greater the yield.

How to Care for Seed.

Do not pile the freshly selected seed in a box or bin. Do not leave it in bags or piles on the barn or granary floor. If no other place is available, strip off all but a few of the husks and use these to tie the ears together in pairs, and then hang them, if the weather is dry, over the clothes line out in the open yard for a week or ten days. Still a better way is to remove all the husks and place the ears in strings of about ten or twelve each, using binder twine to loop the ears together. Hang these strips of ten or twelve ears in some protected place that has a good circulation of air. An open shed, the open attic, the driveway to the barn, or even under the eaves of some building where it is protected, are good places.

There are three necessary conditions for the safe curing of seed corn, which must be observed. First, select the seed corn early enough so it will have ample time to dry thoroughly before freezing weather. Second, maintain a temperature of above freezing until the seed is dry. Third, have sufcient circulation of air around each seed ear so that the moisture will be carried away as rapidly as evaporated. If these conditions are maintained, there is no question but that the corn thus saved will have high germinating power.

As soon as the corn is fairly dry, place it in the attic near the chimney, in the basement near the furnace, or in any place where it is dry and the temperature will not go much, if any below freezing. If the seed corn is thoroughly and carefully dried, it will not be injured by any ordinary degree of cold. It is the freezing of the moisture contained in the grain and cob that bursts the cells of the germ and ruins the seed. If the moisture is not present, freezing cannot occur. Wheat, oats or any other grain would be injured in the same way, if it was not dry before freezing occurred. It is not safe to store the seed corn in cellars that are without a heating plant, in oats bins or in open sheds. After the corn has been carefully selected and dried, it must be well stored. Too much care not be taken in this.

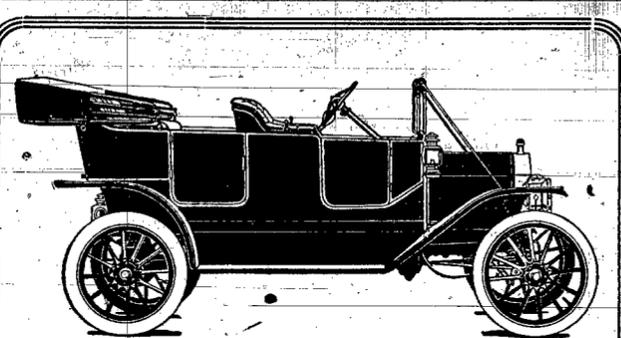

Seed corn is commonly ruined in any one of four ways. By freezing, the most common way; by growing, found only when the weather is excessively hot and moist after the seed ears are picked; souring or fermenting when conditions of storage are similar to those given for growing; moulding when stored in a close, warm room or box, before it is thoroughly dry. Any place of storage that will avoid these four sources of spoiling will be a safe place to keep the selected ears.

If possible, keep the seed at an even temperature through the winter. The United States Department of Agriculture in a series of tests found that seed corn stored and kept at an even temperature above freezing gave better stands, stronger growth, and larger yields than the same kind of seed kept where the temperature varied.

Good Seed Corn the Cheapest.

A bushel of seed corn will plant six to eight acres of land. Any other common farm crop, with the exception of flax, clover or alfalfa, requires approximately a bushel to the acre. Eight or nine pounds of seed corn is all that is required per acre. For feeding value there is no cereal that can begin to compare with it, for in addition to the grain produced, there is an almost equal amount of palatable, nourishing, high-grade forage. Counting seed corn at $5.00 per bushel it requires less than 65 cent worth of seed to plant an acre. With wheat, oats or barley, it requires anywhere from 65 cents to one and a half dollars' worth of seed for the same area and the price of these is only regular market price at that. If seed corn is figured on the same basis of market price, the cost of seed per acre would average less than ten cents.

If Governor Aldrich still wants to debate, suppose he argue his pretensions against the fact that during the twenty months of his administration there has been more disorder, rioting, murder and trouble in the penitentiary than has happened during all the other years of Nebraska's history. Let him explain why it was that under his administration the state's finances were so badly managed that for the first time in fifteen years state warrants had to be registered for future payment. Let him offer some explanation of the brutal treatment of that feeble-minded white girl in the Beatrice institution. Let him explain the troubles at the soldier's home at Milford. What about his extravagant demands for appropriations for the executive department? What about his failure to attend to the business the people gave into his hands?—Maupin's Weekly.

A Crippled Mind

Many strong minds, giant intellects, are held down, and starved out by crippled digestive power, dyspepsia and the poison absorbed as a result of chronic constipation. If your stomach lacks digestive power the natural and simplest thing to do is to put into it the agents it lacks. Above all things avoid strong drugs that paralyze and irritate the stomach and bowels. A sound, healthy stomach contains the same digestive agents Spruce Pepsin tablets contain.

Spruce Pepsin tablets will digest fermenting, decaying food that lays like a lump in your stomach. We have proved this thousands of times or we would not dare spend thousands of dollars to prove it to every sufferer from stomach trouble. We will send you a trial box FREE.

MONEY AND THE ELECTION

The following from Collier's Weekly is perhaps as fair a statement as can be obtained of the attitude of the candidates and the big financial interests in the pending campaign. At any rate it charitably refrains from mentioning the Taft candidacy and from whence comes the means to pay its expenses:

The statement of Colonel Roosevelt, frequently reiterated, that the money powers are fighting against him exclusively, and are satisfied with both Taft and Wilson, is no doubt a perfectly candid statement of his belief, but it seems to us grossly inaccurate. The president, from some source to us unknown, has recently got plenty of money for his campaign. We happen to know that Mr. Perkins, while making it clear that he can raise all the money needed by the Bull Moose, if he wants to, has held back and indicated that he might step out if things did not go according to his wish. We state this not as a surmise but as a fact. It doesn't mean anything against Colonel Roosevelt's independence, which is well established, but it does seem to us to constitute a reason for not making changes of probable subservieny or helplessness against Governor Wilson.

Whether or not big business men would care to help Governor Wilson financially can scarcely be known, as he is so particular who contributes to his fund. Our guess would be that Mr. Jacob Schiff's support of Governor Wilson might be founded partly on the belief that he was going to be elected, as Mr. Schiff could scarcely take much satisfaction in the Governor's intense feelings about the existence of a money trust. We mention this instance, because Mr. Roosevelt has chosen to emphasize Mr. Schiff as an indication that high finance fears only him. As a matter of fact, the Morgan interests in general will probably be backing the Colonel even more heavily than they are now before the campaign is over. On the monopoly issue the principal exponents of the Colonel's position are Judge Gary and Mr. Perkins. On the tariff issue, the old Republican gag of Mark Hanna's day is served up anew, in the idea that the Government will see that the tariff graft stops in the pay envelopes. Workingmen have heard that story a long, long time and meantime the price of living goes up, huge fortunes swell, trusts are created by tariff favors, the city grows at the expense of the country and "prosperity" means plutocracy.

To our best belief, Charles R. Crane is the only big business man in the country who has thrown his whole heart into the effort to elect Governor Wilson to the Presidency. "Another Roosevelt controversy is pending, this time his adversary being Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, formerly chief chemist of the department of agriculture. Col. Roosevelt is laying claim to credit for the enactment of the pure food law and Dr. Wiley not only denies that the former president deserves any credit for it but he charges Col. Roosevelt with responsibility for the establishment of the Remson board, now so widely condemned. This is the board which is responsible for the fact that the use of benzoate of soda as a preservative is permitted," says the Norfolk News. If the only living Ex-president is such a friend of the masses as he claims now, he made a very poor showing when he was president. He selected a poor stick for his successor, and he is now evidently tied to interests which would prevent him from doing things for the people if elected again.

The People's Campaign

There is a feeling, wide-spread and general, that to a greater extent than ever before the people are back of the democratic nominees for president and vice-president—that the people want a signal victory at Baltimore when they named their candidates not only without the aid of the great moneyed interests of the nation, but in spite of their united efforts to defeat one who would not accept money or aid from them in his pre-convention campaign, and thus feel obligated to do their bidding. If there has been a presidential candidate of the leading parties other than Bryan free from plutocratic rule in the past thirty years we fail to know who it was. President Hayes, who was placed in office by the interests refused to serve them as faithfully as they desired—and was not returned. Garfield made a stand against certain interests and paid the penalty, for though he was shot by a crank and fanatic, the clash of interests might be held responsible for creating a sentiment which led to his assassination.

This year the democratic nominees are not asking or receiving aid from these great interests. The people have nominated the candidate and are asked to elect them. With this end in view the national and state committees have asked the democratic newspapers to announce these facts and receive and acknowledge subscriptions from the people. In accord with that plan, there was a meeting of the democratic editors of the Third congressional district at Norfolk last week and the following resolution was passed:

Resolved, The democratic editors of the Third congressional district at a meeting held at Norfolk, August 30, 1912, heartily approve the plan of the Nebraska state central committee to raise funds for the democratic national and state campaigns from the public through the press, believing as we do that the success of Wilson and Marshall and principles they represent rest alone on the individual voter, who must be depended upon, not only to give his best personal efforts to advance the cause, but to finance the campaign as well by small contributions; therefore be it,

Resolved, That we agree to use our best efforts to raise such a campaign fund and ask the supporters of our national nominees to assist us in this undertaking.

In accordance with the above the Democrat will receive contributions for state and national funds. Where no wish is expressed, the contribution will be divided equally, but the wishes of the donor will guide in the matter if they designate for national state, or county committee.

If convenient use this form.

A Gift of Flowers

That Were Thrown Out of a Window

By F. A. MITCHEL

Being invited to spend the week end with my friend Mary Morrison at her cottage by the sea, I was about starting from the house when I received a telegram, as follows:

"Tina will meet you at the station. Bring her along."

I had heard Mary speak of Tina Archibald, who rejoiced in the more euphonious name of Gwendolin, but whose baby nickname had stuck to her through childhood and youth. I had never seen her, but had been told that she was a very attractive girl. But how was I to recognize her? Mary had not told me that she would carry her handkerchief in her left hand or that she would wear a sprig of geranium in her belt. Doubtless she had spoken of Miss Archibald to me so often that she supposed I had met her cousin.

I went to the station expecting to find a young lady on the lookout for some one she didn't know and in order to prepare for a little attention bought some violets, which I carried in my hand. I had no sooner entered the waiting room than I noticed an attractive looking woman walking back and forth, starting at every man she passed. I was sure she was the person I was to meet, so I walked up to her, lifted my hat politely and was about to ask her if she was not Miss Archibald when she gave me a meaning look and said in a quick low voice:

"Not a word till we are on the train."

I confess I was surprised. What could be the necessity for such mystery since I was simply to escort her on a short journey? However, it was she who was making the mystery, not I, and it behooved me to do as she said and find out the cause when she chose to tell me. I relieved her of a satchel she carried and conducted her to a parlor car. When we were seated I politely handed her the violets. The day was hot, and a window was open. What did she do but throw the flowers out on to a side track.

Never in my life have I been more astonished at the reception of a gift. The expression on my face betrayed how deeply I felt the insult, and the lady hastened to explain. But the explanation only added to my amazement.

"We are observed," she said; "the violets will give us away."

"Give us away?"

"Yes; Mary knows that you were to carry violets, and she may have let it out."

"Mary knows! She mentioned nothing by which?"

"Hush! The man opposite is listening."

Of all the receptions I ever had from woman this certainly was the most remarkable. Surely there was something missing that would have made all this clear. I have it. Mary has written me a letter that I have not received. In that letter she developed something in which I am expected to take part. The telegram was supplementary.

"I suppose you know where you are to take me?" said my companion in a low voice.

"I do," I replied, retiring within myself and determined to let the story proceed without giving away the fact that the only instructions I had received were to take her to Mary Morrison's seaside residence.

"Will Arthur meet us at the station or somewhere else?"

This was a point blank question that I proposed to parry. "I have not been instructed as to that. Doubtless we shall be advised when we arrive."

"Surely," I remarked to myself, "this ease with which I satisfy the lady. I wonder if I'll get on as well with the rest of the questions she asks me."

"I don't dare continue this any longer," she said suddenly after looking through the car suspiciously. "I will take another seat."

She did as she said she would do. I didn't mind her mysterious actions up to this point, but now to be deprived of the company on which I had counted was positively annoying. I thought I would give up my part in the play, follow her and ask her what the dickens it all meant. I was rising to do so when she saw me and with knit brows and a commanding look ordered me to remain where I was.

The train stopped at a station at which a number of persons got on. I happened to look at Miss Archibald and noticed that she had pulled a thick veil down over her face. I didn't think very much of this, for the car was full of dust. Not having any one to talk to, I lay back and closed my eyes. A boy selling candies went through the train crying his wares. He ceased to shout at the end of the car where Miss Archibald was sitting, and not long afterward I felt a tap on my shoulder. Looking up, there was the candy boy holding out a pasteboard box to me.

"Don't want any," I said testily.

"Lady at other end of the car sent 'em to you, sir."

I took the box, removed the lid, and there on top of some bonbons lay a folded bit of white paper. Opening it, I read:

"The gentleman in the white vest and glasses knows me. Should he get out at our station don't leave the car on any account. Go on to the next."

"This beats me," I remarked to myself, reading the note over a second time to make sure I had read it aright. I surveyed the gentleman referred to and detected him looking over the top of his newspaper at Miss Archibald, as if trying to make out whether or not he knew her.

"Well," I said to myself, "I'm not having the companionship of a young lady, but I'm having a lot to think about. I wonder what he has to do with it all."

But Miss Archibald kept the veil over her face, and there was no show for the man to claim an acquaintance, which I inferred the play that was going on wouldn't admit. I had a notion to go and sit by him and engage him in conversation, with a view to pumping him, but on second thought desisted.

Presently, the train slowing up at a station, I saw Tina glance through the window, give her hand a quick little shake at some one outside, then look meaningly at me and gather her belongings as if to leave the train. I followed suit. She came past where I was sitting and whispered: "It's all right. They are on the platform. Come."

Whether to come or escape from I knew not what by remaining on the train I was uncertain. Curiosity prevailed, and I passed out just behind Tina. On the platform were a young man and a girl. Tina and the man greeted each other with a loving though somewhat excited look.

"Where's Fred?" he asked.

"Here." She turned toward me.

"That's not Fred."

"Not Fred?"

"No."

"There was a tableau not describable in words."

"Why, he carried the violets," stammered Tina.

It was time for me to say something, and I did.

"There has been a mistake here. I expected to meet a young lady at the station whom I had never seen, and I carried some violets that I proposed to bestow upon her. This young lady, through a mistake, of course, accosted me, and we got on the train together, when she threw my violets out of the window."

"Oh, heavens!" exclaimed Tina.

The young lady and the young man smiled.

"Never mind," said the young man. "All's well that ends well. Permit me to explain, sir. You have unintentionally got mixed in an elopement. A friend of mine was to have met my fiancée at the station and escort her to me here. She has missed him, and since you have performed his part thus far I would be pleased to have you finish it by serving as my best man. This is Miss Darton, who is to be bridesmaid."

I bowed politely to Miss Darton, who, vainly endeavoring to repress her merriment at the absurd outcome of the affair, returned my salute.

"Come on," said the groom. "We have no time to lose. I have a carriage waiting."

He hurried us off to the carriage, he and his fiancée engaged in too serious a business to be affected by the ludicrous feature of the affair. But Miss Darton was convulsed, and I boiled over with suppressed emotion of a similar kind.

"I wonder who got my girl," I remarked.

Miss Darton exploded at this, and it drew something like a smile to the lips of the groom. The bride refused to see anything to laugh at.

"Perhaps Fred got her," remarked Arthur.

"I trust she didn't throw his violets out of the window," I remarked.

At this the bride to be gave a nervous little laugh and said: "I trust you will pardon me. I was very much rattled."

"Naturally. One doesn't elope every day in the year," I replied.

By this time we had driven to the door of a pretty little church, where we all alighted and entered. We passed down the center aisle to the chancel, where the couple were married. The bride and groom went out together. I following with the bridesmaid. Then we re-entered the carriage and were driven back to the station. A train soon took away the bride and groom, leaving Miss Darton on the platform with me; she intending to go in the same direction as I.

"Who is Mary?" I asked.

"I am Mary. I arranged this elopement." Her merriment returned at the mere mention of the affair.

We boarded the next train, and I parted with her at my station, but not before I had received permission to continue the acquaintance begun in such an unusual manner.

When I reached my proper destination I drove up to Mary Morrison's cottage. She looked at me anxiously and asked:

"Where's Tina?"

"Married," I replied laconically.

"Come, don't talk that way. Tell me why you haven't brought her."

I told the story and when I had finished was informed that Tina was a poodle. She had been left in the city, and a maid was to have met me with her at the station.

I met Miss Darton later on—of course I didn't leave her without taking her address—and we enjoyed very much talking over the episode that had occasioned our acquaintance. More marriages occur between groomsman and bridesmaids than those officiating at any other function. Miss Darton and I happened to make one of these cases. But we didn't elope, and there was no poodle to mix up anyone else on our wedding.

Roosevelt Overlooks Himself

Mr. Roosevelt declares that Barnes, Penrose and Guggenheim work hand in hand with the big interests. This is all true. How about Mr. Roosevelt himself?

It was not at the solicitation of Barnes and Penrose and Guggenheim that Edward H. Harriman raised a political corruption fund of $260,000. It was at the solicitation of Theodore Roosevelt.

It was not Barnes and Penrose and Guggenheim who, according to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, bucked the Pure Food law. That was done by Theodore Roosevelt.

It was not Barnes and Penrose and Guggenheim who failed to bring the machinery of the law into play to send George W. Perkins to the penitentiary for violating the Sherman law in organizing the illegal harvester trust, and who then accepted Perkins' millions to run for a third term for President. That was Theodore Roosevelt.
