OCTOBER 9 AND 10 DATES FOR BIG BARGAIN CARNIVAL TO BE HELD BY WAYNE MERCHANTS

HALL—LIBRARY—POSTOFFICE

Wayne Coming Forward on the Home—Stretch With New City Building, New Library and Larger Postoffice Rooms

For the past two weeks the work on the new city building has gone rapidly forward, and the building is beginning to have a finished appearance that is gratifying. The plastering is nearly completed, the upper windows are in and it will no doubt be ready for occupancy next month.

The library building is also nearing completion and it is also expected to be finished before the first of November. Wayne is surely moving forward this year. In addition to these public improvements a goodly number of new houses have been and are being built, making room for more people. And more people would gladly come to Wayne if they could get house room in which to live.

The work of fitting up the room on Main street for the occupancy of the post office is going on. A new outfit will be installed within a few days and our city will have postal accommodations more in keeping with their needs than for the past ten years. It is hoped that by the time we have outgrown the new quarters as we doubtless will in a few years, that a government building will be ready for the next move.

L. A. Kiplinger, candidate for county attorney on the democratic ticket, in is "the enemy's camp" today, having gone to Sholes, the home of his political opponent. We think, however, that he is diplomatic enough to avoid any bloodshed.

To Horse Owners

The prevalent horse disease is causing enormous losses to farmers in Nebraska and Kansas, and is now creeping over into the Dakotas, Iowa and Missouri.

We have just issued a bulletin telling about the use of Germozone for prevention of this disease. Germozone has won fame in the prevention and cure of disease of poultry and stock. Our dealers in the infected territory have been selling Germozone to stockmen and report that Germozone in the drinking water for horses seems to render them singularly immune from the terrible disease.

One thing certain, rush orders are pouring in hourly by mail, phone and telegraph for Germozone from several hundred Kansas and Nebraska towns. Cures have also been reported but prevention is far better than cure.

Germozone given in the drink kills germs in the water and also in the food. It is also used in case of sickness by nasal and rectal injection.

Save time by using Germozone in drinking water for your horses one or two tablespoonfuls to a pail of water. Give daily in all drinking water if contagion is nearby. Twice a week otherwise.

Germozone is antiseptic and a bowel regulator.

Prepared only in 12 oz. bottles at 50c each.

Fifty tablet packages at 50c per package.

Dr. Corkey Speaks at High School

On Wednesday morning Dr. Corkey of the Presbyterian church addressed the high school and made his usual excellent impression on his audience. Mr. Corkey took for his subject, "Little Things." He said that in the present age people are too prone to notice only the big things, forgetting that it is important to notice the little things. He introduced his subject with a few concrete illustrations, telling how the little mistakes in using a "u" for an "i" reported a Pink Tea as "Punk Tea" caused much relief to the lady who gave the tea. Dr. Corkey said that the smile, the kind word, the care of teeth and nails, the way one enters a room, shuts a door, addresses his superiors, and personal appearance are all "little things" which are of vastly more importance than is generally recognized. It is these "little things" which reveal the character of the individual and point to success or failure. "He who is faithful in little things is faithful in big things." The speaker urged his hearers to attend well to the little things in all their activities and they would unconsciously be doing big things. They would unconsciously become big men and big women of big achievements.

Cattle Coming in for Winter

The corn fields of Wayne county promises abundant feed for lots of cattle the coming winter, and they are coming this way from the great ranges in the western part of the state. Wednesday John Shannon brought 14 car load of those he has been buying to this place and they were taken by different feeders.

Frank Strahan took 129 head, James McIntosh 54, Gus Hansen 25, John Saas 28, Ted Perry 72, and two car loads were sent to Mr. Shannon's farm at Carroll.

Mr. Shannon left on the evening train for another shipment. He reports quite a severe snow storm in the west part of the state, the snow appearing as far east as Neleigh. There was also quite a severe freeze in that vicinity Tuesday night.

Charged With Abduction

Hoskins Headlight reports the arrest of Leu Sutton at the home of his brother three miles north of that place on charge from Creston, Iowa, of kidnapping Zenna Logan of that city. Sutton lived at Brooks, Iowa, a small place not far from Creston, and the two came to Hoskins about ten days ago, and last Friday went to Pierce and were married. The Iowa sheriff and relatives of the girl came the first of the week and took the couple back to Iowa. The girl is but 14 years of age.

A GREAT BARGAIN CARNIVAL

Wayne Merchants and Business Men Unite for Two Great Bargain Days, Oct. 9 and 10—Entire Surrounding Country Invited

Wednesday and Thursday, October 9 and 10 have been named as "Bargain" days for all who will come to Wayne—those days. Our merchants and business men have planned it so that special bargains may be found in nearly every line of merchandise. On other pages you will find cards making known the special offering of each one of forty-two firms who first started in the matter of having "bargain" days at Wayne. On other pages of this issue will be found the announcements of other merchants; and when you come, as you are earnestly invited to do you will find everything needed from a needle to a farm offered. The newspapers are this week going to all of the people in the county that we can learn the address of, and each paper contains the invitation which Wayne sends to you, and if perchance you are missed by the papers you are invited just the same.

On the sound theory that this is a better country to live in because of such little cities as Wayne, and that such places are possible in such a rich agricultural county as this, and that by hearty co-operation both town and country—buyer and seller—can be benefitted, this move was started. If the farmer and the merchant can work together, each to aid the other, both can profit thereby.

If a copy of the Democrat comes to you, read it carefully, news and advertisement, and watch for the issue of the paper next week, when there will be a special announcement regarding the subscription price of the paper for next year, if ordered and paid for on either of the "booster" days.

After much deliberation over the question of providing some special amusement or entertainment for these days it was decided that it would be best to make these two days business days and have the sport some other time. It is business for the purchaser to come to Wayne if he is offered better inducements, and it is business for the merchant to make the offering and induce the prospective purchaser to come and buy. All legitimate trade is an exchange for mutual benefit, and on these days it is proposed to make the benefit greater to the buyer than the seller.

Annual Family Reunion

During the past week there has been a family reunion at the home of W. S. Elder and wife, of the brothers and sisters of that lady. They make it a rule to have a meeting of the family once a year at the home of some member, and it is very nice custom for any family to adopt. Thus far they have held several of these annual meetings, and this year they came to Wayne to meet with Mrs. Elder. Thos. Kelly of Ottumwa, Iowa, is the oldest, a half-brother who has passed the four-score mark. W. A. Snodgrass and wife of Emerson, Iowa, were here returning Monday, Mr. Snodgrass being on jury in his home county. L. B. Wickersham and wife of Des Moines were members of the party the women being sisters. Then Chas. Kelly and wife of Laurel completed the family circle and those in attendance here also visited him at Laurel. The days together were passed in reviewing the scenes and events of other days. The last of the party left Wednesday.

THE WAYNE-STANTON GAME

The foot ball game last Saturday between the Wayne and Stanton high school teams resulted in a victory for Wayne by the score of 35 to 6. Though the opposing team was a little heavier, it was evident from the start that the Wayne boys had more training and knew the game better. In the first quarter the Wayne team made their downs so consistently, after Stanton kicked off to them, that within five minutes after the game started, Marsteller carried the ball over Stanton's goal line for the first touch down and followed it with a goal. Score 7 to 0. But Stanton came right back at the boys with a touch down by their star fullback, Captain Bair. They failed at kicking goal—score 7 to 6. The second quarter netted two touch downs for Wayne, both being made by Marsteller from the 40 yard line. Score 21 to 6. The third quarter added two more touchdowns to Wayne's side of the score, one by Jones and the other by Marsteller. Score 35 to 6. When it came to the last quarter coach Leavens thought the boys had a big enough score so replaced some of the Wayne men with others of less experience. This new lineup held the already plenty large score.

It was a good clean game throughout and much closer than the score would lead one to think.

The Stanton boys are gentlemen and their fullback and left half are stars in the game. The Wayne team will play a return game at Stanton on October 26.

SWEEPING WILSON VICTORIES

All Signs Point Toward a Victory For Woodrow Wilson for President. Great Progressive Wave Moving Forward.

To show how the political wind is blowing these days, when more and more people are becoming more and more confident that Wilson is to be the next president, we note that— Wilson's friends, the people won in the fight against Boss Smith in New Jersey by 20,000 majority, carrying all but one county.

The democrats polled more votes in the Massachusetts primary than did the republicans. Tuesday, nominating Governor Eugene Foss.

A straw vote of those in attendance at the meeting of the representatives of Iowa Municipalities at Sioux City Wednesday showed that Wilson is in the lead in Iowa. These mayors and city officials of this republican state are 44 for Wilson, 34 for Taft, 30 for Roosevelt and 1 for Debs.

The North Nebraska Eagle, for 25 years a republican paper, is out for this progressive leader. Teachers, ministers, students, business men, farmers and the great mass of laboring men seem to be uniting in one great army to name Woodrow Wilson to steer the great ship of state out over the great sea of opportunity, so that all may have equal chance for clear sailing toward the port of peace, plenty and happiness. When elected he will represent the people because it is just the people who are back of the great move which he is now leading.

Partial Bargain List

Going over the list of bargains offered for "bargain" days at Wayne, one will see that on these days there are bargains offered in harness, groceries, jewelry, drugs and medicines, confectionery, steel fence posts, millinery, photographs, meats, dry goods, underwear, clothing, coal, lumber, hardware, machinery for farm and house newspapers, dress goods, novelty goods, furniture, curtains, rugs, trunks and valises, cut glass dishes, shoes, grain, stockfoods, dentistry, stoves, queensware, and many other articles too numerous to mention. Come to Wayne—nothing like it ever happened before. It is not an amusement stunt, but a business proposition.

Democratic Committee To Meet

The secretary of the Democratic County Central Committee has issued a call for the members of the committee to meet at the court house at 3 o'clock Saturday, the 28th, to consider matters of interest in the coming campaign. The nominees of the party and others interested are invited to meet with the committee at that time.

County Central Committee Meets

The republican county central committee met last Saturday afternoon and organized by electing Grant Mears chairman and empowering him to select a secretary.

We are wondering whether it is a republican organization or not. If not, do not see how it can retain the name of a party which their leader says is so corrupt and expect the confidence of the voters. Seeking information, we asked a candidate for county office whether they were voting for President Taft or Roosevelt if they voted for the present electors, and he admitted that he could not tell—he had heard one of the nominees for elector—Johnson—say that he would not vote for Taft if elected.

The Democrat may be mixing in questions that do not concern us democrats, but we would greatly appreciate it if some one will write and let us know who a man is indirectly voting to elect president, if he votes for the electors nominated on the republican ticket last spring. We have good friends who are anxious to support Roosevelt—can they do so by voting for the present electors? Others are just as loyal to the President; will a vote for the present nominees count for their choice? This is one of the most vital questions in the state. Can a republican know that he is voting for his choice for president? Who will answer?

Help the Cause—Your Cause

If you believe that the policies advocated by Woodrow Wilson as leader of a great progressive movement are to your interest and the best interest of all the people, then you should contribute a little to the necessary expense of conducting the campaign. Too often the interests have paid campaign expenses and owned the government officials. The democrats are not accepting funds from these sources, and if elected will be obligated to the people and will serve the people.

A small amount has been paid to the fund through the Democrat, and more through some other source show that many people in Wayne county are in line, but the work should not stop until ever man who believes in the principles advocated has contributed something. The Democrat will be very willing to forward the money or turn it in to the home fund as you may direct. R. P. Williams is in the work, and will relieve you of surplus. Let's all help the cause.

The question of selling the fair grounds at Hartington and investing in a park near the town is under serious discussion there. The fair has not been a uniform success. The editor of the News takes a wise view. He says that to have a fair it must have some attention—that an officer should be elected to boost the fair, and begin for the next year. Boost and advertise. Wayne is not far from Hartington, and we will wager that not 25 people here knew that there was a fair at Hartington last week. W. A. Crossland left Tuesday for St. Louis, where he will enter the Washington University for a year of post-graduate work, having earned a scholarship entitling him to that honor. He finished at the Wesleyan last year, and has been busy most of the vacation with chautauqua work, but has been home on a short visit the past two weeks.

Domestic Science has been started in the Ponca public schools among the high school pupils. The Crete plan is being used; ten ladies or more of Ponca have undertaken to instruct the young ladies in the different ways of cooking. Each lady will give instruction in cooking of one kind of food and so on till the class has practical knowledge. After having attained this knowledge they are required to take their work before the judges, and it will then be judged by two judges upon its merits. The pupil is not to receive any help in cooking during the time she is making the trial product. This plan is under the direction of Prof. T. V. Truman.—Ponca Leader.

Tuesday Judge Moses and his son, F. E. Moses and wife started for California, where the elder man has been for several winters and the young man spent last winter. They plan to remain all winter—in fact make their home there, but return here for a vacation in the summer time and also look after farm interests here. It is 34 years since they came to Wayne county, and settled six miles from their next door neighbor, in Brenna precinct where they now have land. Wisner was the nearest railroad point, a long haul in those days for everything which came by freight from the east. They have seen and helped develop this country until it stands second to none as a farming community. Regretting their departure, they have the best wishes of many.

You've bought mattresses before. You'll buy 'em again; unless, this time, you choose the Dixie NoTUFT—the lifetime mattress.

You'd hardly expect a package tied with light cord to hold for years, when subjected to continual wear. The tufts of the tufted mattress are only light cords. No wonder they weaken and break. The Dixie NoTUFT has no tufts. It is made of compartments whose partitions are as strong as the mattress itself. No wonder the Dixie NoTUFT wears well.

"The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know that I have taken a pill. Frequently being troubled with headache, I take an Anti-Pain Pill and get immediate relief in every case." A. L. Wilson, Sparta, Ill. Mr. Wilson was for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of Sparta.

STOPS HORSE PLAGUE

Strenuous Efforts Being Made To Stay Ravage of Disease

The following precautionary measures are recommended by the veterinarians of the state for warding off the attacks of the new disease among horses. They constitute about the best advice that we are able to find on the subject.

(1) All horses and mules should be removed from pastures and placed in barns or dry lots which are entirely free from vegetation.

(2) Last year's or an early cutting of this year's hay should be fed. Old grain should be used in preference to new or recently threshed grain. Add a small quantity of flaxseed meal to the feed morning and night and continue until a laxative effect is produced.

(3) Water with a bucket directly from the well. Where tanks must be used, scrub and rinse the water tanks thoroughly. When dry give a coat of lime whitewash. Wash the tank every week as long as the disease exists in the neighborhood.

(4) When once the disease attacks an animal the power to swallow is more or less impaired and owners should exercise due caution in administering any medicine in the form of a drench. So far, medicinal treatment is unsatisfactory. In the light of present information more good can be accomplished along the line of prevention.

(5) We recommend that all horses and mules dying from this disease should be buried six feet under ground and one bushel of lime used on each and every carcass.

(6) We also recommend that animals dying from this disease should not be skinned since transportation of such skins may spread the disease.

(From the Depart. of Agriculture)

During the last five months numerous reports have been received by the Bureau of Animal Industry relative to the existence of forage poisoning in various sections of the United States, particularly in Louisiana, West Virginia, Kansas and Nebraska. It has usually occurred when a hot, dry period has been followed by rains, or during wet seasons, especially those which are characterized by frequent rains alternating with hot sunshine, producing a damp sultry atmosphere. Such conditions are most favorable to the production of molds, and all outbreaks that have been investigated by the Bureau have been traced to the eating of unsound or moldy forage or feed, or to the drinking of water from wells or pools containing surface water drained through decomposed and moldy vegetation. This disease has been shown to be also due to eating damaged ensilage, hay, corn, brewers grains, etc. Horses and mules at pasture may contract the disease when the growth of grass is so profuse that it mats together and the lower part dies and ferments or becomes moldy. No specific organism or virus has yet been found which can be considered as the cause of the disease.

The so-called cerebrosplinal meningitis of horses being an entirely different disease from that which occurs in man, the symptoms as well as the cause are distinctly different. In the most rapidly fatal attacks death takes place in from 5 to 48 hours. Such cases begin with violent trembling or stupor and extreme weakness, or with staggering gait, partial or total inability to swallow, impairment of eyesight, followed by partial or complete paralysis, inability to stand, with marked delirium, during which the animal lying flat on its side becomes violent and knocks and bruises its head. In the second form of the disease the same line of symptoms may be noticed in a milder degree. Difficulty in swallowing, slowness in chewing the feed and inability to switch the tail are observed. Breathing becomes heavy and noisy, and delirium may develop with stiffness of the spinal muscles or partial cramp of the neck and jaws. Death occurs in from 6 to 10 days. In the last or mildest form the lack of voluntary control of the limbs becomes but slightly marked, the power of swallowing never entirely lost, and the animal has no fever, pain, or unconscious movements. In those cases which get well the animal generally begins to improve about the fourth day and goes on to recovery. One attack does not protect against a second attack, as horses and mules have been known to have the disease two or three times. The first principal in the treatment of this disease consists in a total change of feed and forage. Horses kept in the stable should be fed with sound forage and grain from an uncontaminated source, even if such feed has to be brought from a distance. Horses that have become affected while at pasture should be removed from the field in which they have been running. The animals should be brought to the barn or corral and fed on wholesome and clean feed and forage. The water, unless from an unpolluted source, should likewise be changed.

At present this preventive treatment is the only satisfactory method known for checking the disease, as all medicinal remedies used have been unsatisfactory in the vast majority of cases. The first step is to empty the bowels and remove the poisonous products, but on account of the difficulty in swallowing, an aloes ball or Glauber's salt is hard to give. In fact no remedy should be given by the mouth if the throat is paralyzed, as pneumonia is liable to result. Fifteen grains of eserine under the skin, if the animal is not too greatly depressed, will usually act promptly. Intestinal disinfectants such as calomel, salicylic acid, and creolin are also used. If much weakness is shown and the temperature is below normal give aromatic spirits of ammonia, digitalis, alcohol, ether, or camphor. Rectal injections of warm water are good, and warm blankets wrung out of hot water may also be applied to the body. Subsequent treatment should consist of 2 grain doses of strychnine twice daily, or a mixture of 2 drams tincture nuxvomica and one-half ounce of Fowler's solution given at one dose, and repeated three times daily, to combat the effect of the poison upon the nervous system.

Plain Facts Plainly Stated

"He that believeth a lie shall be damned," saith the Lord, and that is the present pitiable condition of the G. O. P. For 18 years laymen thereof have been believing a lie. They have been told that the Wilson tariff law of 1893 caused the panic and hard times of that sorrowful year.

Lie No. 1. There was no tariff bill in 1893.

Lie No. 2. Of all the panics and periods of hard times from Jackson to Roosevelt not one of them was caused or influenced by tariff legislation.

Lie No. 3. That we always have good times when the republicans control and hard times when the Democrats "are in" and there is no excuse for believing such falsehood.

Under Grant and Hayes from 1874 to 1878 was a period of wide spread ruin—the worst the country ever suffered with no "free trade" or "fear of it" in sight. The people were too hard up to provide "free soup" for 3,000,000 of idle men in search of employment and the G. O. P. legislators who had produced this condition passed laws to put them in jail or on the rock pile.

And but for the confidence of the people in western banks that gave credit to cashier's checks in 1907 that panic would have been more disastrous than it was.

No wonder the Almighty has decreed the destruction of the republican party through his anointed agent, Theodore Roosevelt.

FARMER GETS LESS, BUT—

He Has to Pay More for What He Doesn't Raise.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has just announced that notwithstanding the increased cost of living among the people as a whole there was a greater decline in the prices paid to farmers from Aug. 1 to Sept. 1 this year than there was last year.

The average farm prices of the important crops (corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, flaxseed, potatoes, tobacco, cotton and hay, which represent about three-fourths of the value of all the country's crops) declined 7 per cent. during the month, while in that time last year they declined in price only 4.4 per cent., and during the last four years the decline in price averaged 3.8 per cent. The average of farm prices on Sept. 1 was 2.8 per cent. lower than on that date last year.

Prices paid to farmers on Sept. 1 this year, with comparison of prices paid on the same date last year, follow:

Articles	1912.	1911.
Corn	$0.774	$0.659
Wheat	.859	.848
Oats	.350	.404
Barley	.535	.770
Rye	.708	.769
Buckwheat	.766	.740
Flaxseed	1.626	2.036
Potatoes	.650	1.137
Hay	12.130	14.640
Cotton	.113	.118
Butter	.242	.281
Chickens	.113	.111
Eggs	.191	.174

But the prices on tariff nurtured articles of manufacture which the farmer has to buy continue to soar.

TRUTH ABOUT THE TRUST

"Expected Economies from Combination" Do Not Materialize.

(Louis D. Brandeis in Collier's.) Leaders of the new (Third Term) party argue that industrial monopolies should be legalized, lest we lose the efficiency of large-scale production and distribution. No argument could be more misleading.

It may be safely asserted that in America there is no line of business in which all or most concerns or plants must be concentrated in order to attain the size of greatest efficiency. For while a business may be too small to be efficient, efficiency does not grow indefinitely with increasing size. What the most efficient size is can be learned definitely only by experience. The unit of greatest efficiency is reached when the disadvantages of size counterbalance the advantages. The unit of greatest efficiency is exceeded when the disadvantages of size outweigh the advantages. The history of American trusts makes this clear. That history shows:

First—No conspicuous American trust owes its existence to the desire for increased efficiency. "Expected economies from combination" figure largely in promoters' prospectuses; but they have never been a compelling motive in the formation of any trust. On the contrary, the purpose of combining has often been to curb efficiency or even to preserve inefficiency, thus frustrating the natural law of the survival of the fittest.

Second—No conspicuously profitable trust owes its profits largely to superior efficiency. Some trusts have been very efficient, as have some independent concerns; but conspicuous profits have been secured mainly through control of the market—through the power of monopoly to fix prices—through this exercise of the taxing power.

Third—No conspicuous trust has been efficient enough to maintain long as against the independents its proportion of the business of the country without continuing to buy up, from time to time, its successful competitors.

There is plenty of peace about the Taft candidacy but nobody claims "it passeth understanding."

Woodrow Wilson says to the long-suffering farmer who buys in a trust-controlled, highly protected market and sells his wares in a free market: "Walk into your own house and take possession."

How many of those who are struggling with the "High Cost of Living" believe there is to be any relief if the Republican party, which brought it about, remains in power?

The Bull Moose ran things with a big stick at Washington for seven and a half years and didn't by act or word smite the bosses he now rails against or promote the causes he now "embodies." Being "a practical man," he asks a third, etc., term.

By applying the common sense test to Rooseveltian romance Governor Wilson manages to keep the country both amused and thoughtful.

What's a Moosette? A Third Term peekaboo!

Gov. Wilson said to the newspaper men, at the New York Press Club banquet: "Suppose you had a House of Representatives mixed like the present Senate. I think we could all go fishing for the next two years." But he's at the helm and there won't be any mixing. Democrats—that's all.

Miss Elizabeth Bettcher is a graduate of the Indiana State Normal School, and for sometime a student in the Indiana State University. Her experience as a teacher covers every phase of public school work. For several years she was employed in the public schools of Indianapolis. Upon coming to Nebraska she was elected to a position in the grades at McCook, and later promoted to the English department of the McCook high school. From this position she was called in 1910 to serve as county superintendent of Red Willow county. At the close of her term of office she was elected to a position in the state department of education and is still a member of the board of examiners for life certificates in Nebraska.

At a meeting of the board of education held at Lincoln on September 2, Miss Bettcher was elected intermediate critic teacher of the Wayne state Normal school and began her work at the opening of the new year.

State Normal Notes

A delightful occasion of the school year was the reception given by the faculty to the students on Monday evening, September 23.

Dean Hahn will speak before the general session of the Northeast Nebraska Teachers' Association, which will be held at Emerson on October 12. His subject will be "The Man Element in Man-Making."

The first public program of the year will be given next Friday evening by the Crescent literary society. This society has organized by electing Albert H. Miller, president; Glenn Gildersleeve, vice-president; and Eugenia Madson, secretary.

Miss Edith E. Beechel, member of the class of 1912, is registered for work leading to the degree of Bachelor of Education. Miss Beechel is supervisor of drawing in the Wayne public schools but has so arranged her program as to be able to spend every forenoon at the Normal.

Willis I. Fleetwood registered Monday and will take special work at the Normal this year. Mr. Fleetwood is a member of our Normal male quartette and he has rendered great service to the school during the past year. We are glad to have him enroll as a student.

The Junior class met last Friday afternoon and organized by electing the following officers: President, Tracy Kohl; vice-president, Martha J. Woosley; secretary, Freda J. Ellis; class sponsor, Professor Bright. This is the largest class in school and insures a strong senior class next year.

The Christian associations started the work of the new year by holding a union meeting in the chapel on the afternoon of Sunday, September 22. Professor Britell gave a very interesting talk on "Things not in the Curriculum." Special music was furnished by the normal male quartette and by Miss Ina Hughes. Elmer R. Rogers is president of the Y. M. C. A., and Bertha B. Preston president of the

Y. W. C. A.

The matter of financing school activities has always been a problem to those who have been entrusted with that part of the school life. For this reason normal schools and colleges have seen the necessity of placing all public entertainments on a sure financial basis. In many institutions the payment of such a fee by students at the opening of each semester is made compulsory but it was thought best by the board of education to leave this part of the normal schools entirely optional with the student body. On Wednesday morning, a plan worked out by a special committee and approved by the faculty, was presented to the students and met with an almost unanimous endorsement. Under the new arrangement, instead of paying separately for every entertainment, a student will be permitted to purchase a semester ticket for $1.00. This ticket will entitle him to all the entertainments given under the auspices of the normal for the current semester.

During the first semester the following attractions are offered: Four football games, five basketball games, two lectures or entertainments and one subscription to the school paper.

The enthusiastic support given by the students to this new plan is very gratifying to the management of the school. At least seventy-five per cent of those now in attendance at the Normal have signed for a semester ticket, making the proposition entirely practicable and leaving no question as to the success of school activities this year.

The Blond Giant

It is Not Safe to Jump at Conclusions

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Mark Ellsworth bought a magazine of the train boy and settled comfortably back to his seat. The book opened of itself at one of Eunice Ward's charming little love stories, and Mark scanned the columns eagerly for the paragraph that introduced the inevitable man in the case. He was vexed with himself even as his eyes fell upon the offending paragraph.

As usual in Eunice's latest stories the hero was everything to be admired—manly, lovable and big and blond and handsome.

Mark slapped the pages together and cast the magazine from him, staring moodily at the delectable scenery. He was rather below the medium height, dark and pale and square jawed and very American. Quite the opposite of Eunice Ward's ideal as depicted in her stories. Of course the big fresh faced English type must be the sort of men Eunice admired, for her heroes were all of that description.

The train drew to a stop before a little terra cotta station, and Mark gathered up his traps and hastened out into the October sunshine.

He had cherished a vague hope that Eunice might be there to meet him—once in the earlier stages of their acquaintance she had come for him—but no, Mrs. Raymond, his hostess, sat alone in the motor smiling a warm welcome.

"Eunice was coming, too," she said as they sped along the oiled road toward Windymer, "but at the last moment Mr. Punderson reminded her of a promised walk, so she went with him."

"Who is Mr. Punderson?" asked Mark grimly. "Not Percy Ranier Punderson, the poet chap?"

"Yes; and you will like him so much," returned Mrs. Raymond enthusiastically, her dark eyes flashing one glance at his stern profile.

"No doubt," said Mark dryly. "He's an Englishman, isn't he?"

"Oh, yes."

"Big and blond and something of a giant?" There was an unconscious note of anxiety in his deep voice.

"Why, yes—in a way," laughed Mrs. Raymond, as she gave him her hand alighting. "I didn't know you men noticed each other's looks much."

"We don't as a rule," returned Mark deliberately, "but we observe and admire poets as we do women, you know."

"You will like Mr. Punderson," predicted Mrs. Raymond, as she directed him to his room.

Mark Ellsworth was sure that he must detest Punderson the poet. As he dressed for dinner his fine forehead was creased with a dark frown as he went over the months of his acquaintance with Eunice Ward. He had been a bosom friend of Dick Raymond's before that gentleman's marriage and since then had been a frequent guest at Windymer. Eunice was Mrs. Raymond's cousin, and it was at Windymer that Mark had met and fallen in love with her among the winding paths of that most fascinating of homes.

The presence of Percy Ranier Punderson at Windymer was significant. Mark had heard of him as a dreamy, soulful individual, and he could not associate Mrs. Raymond's description of the Englishman with the drooping, anaemic poet his imagination had conjured.

Eunice gave him a cool little hand and a fleeting glimpse of sea blue eyes that were hidden at once by thickly fringed white lids.

"We had about given you up," she said reproachfully. "You've promised to come down every Saturday for the past month and now, the first week in October, our expectations are at last realized!" The mock regret in her tone quite hid something that Mark was too miserable to recognize.

"I've been very busy," he said absently, "and in town the weeks do slip away. You have not been dull?" His eyes involuntarily turned toward Punderson's broad back.

"Not at all!" she cried hastily. "Mr. Punderson is quite as ardent a pedestrian as I am, and together we have tramped over every road in Mereton, coming home with the most appalling appetites."

"I hope you will walk with me," said Mark, speaking more wistfully than he knew.

"Of course," she replied quickly. "I know the loveliest place in the country. We will start tomorrow morning while the others are at church."

The prospect of having Eunice all to himself for several hours put Mark in the best of spirits and during the course of the evening he came to like the big quiet blond giant who seemed a living representation of the heroes who marched through the pages of Eunice's stories.

As they struck into a long amber lighted wood road the next day Mark turned and looked at Eunice, she stepping easily beside him. She wore a simple walking skirt of white serge and a white knitted coat, with a white felt hat perched on her golden hair. She looked very young and very fair, but he thought her voice lacked its usual buoyancy. Then it occurred to him that Eunice might care for Punderson and the poet might be merely whiffing away a pleasant fortnight amid congenial companions. Suppose Punderson was trifling with Eunice's love and she—careless!

"Why do you look so very fierce?" she laughed suddenly.

"I was thinking," he said, somewhat lamely.

"And disagreeable as the thoughts must be judging from your frown you will not sell them for pennies?" She jingled some coins in a tiny pocket of her jacket.

"I was thinking what I'd do to the man who ever caused you one heart-ache!" he burst out passionately.

She paused and faced him with a blank look in her eyes. "Why—why do you say such a thing?" she asked with an effort.

"Because—oh, Eunice, because I love you. You needn't turn away. Of course I know it is of no use—I'm not the sort to attract you—but it relieves my mind to tell you," he ended bitterly. He did not look at her face; his eyes were fixed on the dead leaves on the ground under their feet.

"How do you know that it is of no use?" she said quietly, and as he looked up, startled, her eyes drooped.

"Eunice!" His hands went out and were withdrawn, clinched, to his sides. "Oh, of course I know I'm not the type you admire—one has only to read your stories to recognize that. Eunice, but, Eunice, if you ever need me I'll fight for you until the last!"

"I need you now, Mark," she said almost inaudibly.

"Ah!" His hands clasped hers this time, and he looked at her eagerly. "Who is it, Eunice? You needn't be afraid to tell me," he urged.

The fringes lifted, and in another instant he would have glimpsed a heaven in their depths, but then there came an interruption. Firm footsteps trod the crisp leaves, and there came into view the massive form of Percy Ranier Punderson. His hands were stuffed in his pockets, and his fair hair was rumpled and tossed out of its usual order. He stopped short at sight of the two, and as his glance fell on Eunice's lovely, agitated countenance a light came into his eyes.

"Ah! I thought I had the woods to myself," he stammered awkwardly. "I thought you had gone to church with Dora and Dick," observed Eunice, recovering her composure. "I was taking Mr. Ellsworth over to the ruined chapel. Won't you join us?"

"Thank you; no. I was about to turn back. We started for church, but the motor broke down at the crossroads. The Grenvilles came along and offered seats for two, and, as I was out of humor for church, I walked back." He made as if to retrace his steps, but Eunice's carelessly put question checked him.

"Who was with Alice Grenville?" she asked.

"Why—er—Tommy Lapham, I believe, and—er—her father was driving the machine. I'm afraid you'll be late for luncheon if I detain you any longer," he said, and, with a nod of farewell that included Mark, leaning against a nearby tree, Mr. Punderson tramped back over the fallen leaves and was soon out of sight.

"Shall we go on?" asked Eunice.

Their walk was resumed in a silence that was not broken by any reference to their interrupted conversation. A griminess had settled around Mark's lips, and his chin looked more square than ever. Eunice's fair brow was puckered in a frown, and there was a troubled look in her eyes.

When Mark did open his lips once more it was to speak of the brilliant autumn coloring or the scampering gray squirrels that crossed their path. At last they emerged upon a cleared space—crowning a high bluff that jutted into the sea. Here were the charred and crumbled ruins of a once beautiful stone chapel.

Mark removed his hat and drew a deep breath of the sweet pure air. "Windymer is beautiful, but if I had my choice I'd build a home right here on this headland," he said thoughtfully.

"There is a good road that leads into the highway," observed Eunice quietly as she seated herself on the stone steps of the ruined edifice. "I have bought this land, Mark. Don't you think it will make a beautiful home for me?" She was looking at him through drooping lashes.

"Yes," he returned dully, staring away at the glistening waves. He was thinking of the ideal life Eunice would lead with her poetic husband if she married Punderson. And he was sure that she cared for the Englishman.

"I want to tell you something about Mr. Punderson," went on Eunice. "I am sure you will understand that it is entirely confidential."

"Yes," he repeated grimly.

"Well, Mr. Punderson is very much in love with Alice Grenville, and she is flirting outrageously with every man she meets. Just at present it is Tommy Lapham, whom no one takes seriously, yet poor Mr. Punderson is absurdly jealous. If he understood women he might see that Alice is in love with him and that she is afraid somebody will discover that fact. Stupid, isn't he?" A pink flush appeared in her cheeks, and her blue eyes were quite hidden.

Mark breathed quickly. He took a step toward her, a light in his dark eyes. "Eunice," he said hoarsely, "are all women like that—do they try to hide their love from the man who loves them?"

"Not all, Mark," she said in a tone between tears and laughter. "But those of us who are not sure, when we give our love first, we must dissemble, such as describing our hero as a blond giant when as a matter of fact—Oh, Mark!" as he took her in his arms.

"When as a matter of fact"—he repeated, laughing down into her eyes. "He is like you," she whispered, her lips against his.

Among The Churches of Wayne

Presbyterian Church

(Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor)

Next Sunday morning will be Rally Day at the Presbyterian church. The combined service begins at 10:30 a. m., and the program, printed elsewhere, will be appropriate to the occasion.

In the evening the sermon will be on "Cornelius, the Good Pagan." This is another discourse in the series on "Bible Portraits."

At the Wednesday evening meetings, beginning this week, the church is studying questions relating to our country and its progress. The subjects to be discussed areas follows: "Growth of the United States," "Sources of Immigration," "The Negro," "Loss of Population in Nine Great Agricultural States," "Women and Children in Industry," "Economic Aspects of the Liquor Problem," "Ownership of Wealth in the United States and the Growth of Socialism," "The Church and Social Reform," "The Church as a Religious Force." These subjects will be illustrated by specially prepared charts.

The C. E. Society has resumed its regular Sabbath evening meetings one hour before the evening service of worship. This winter the young people will take up the study of Arthur H. Simth's book, "The Uplift of China" in connection with their meetings, beginning the study next Sunday evening under the leadership of Miss Mamie Wallace.

Little pennants bearing the motto—"Count on Me" will be given to all members of the Sunday school responding to the Roll Call at the Rally Day service next Sunday morning.

The Women's Missionary society held a delightful social meeting at the home of Mrs. Eph Beckenhauer on Thursday afternoon of last week. During the summer three of these social meetings in the country have been held, the other meetings being with Mrs. C. S. Ash and Mrs. J. C. Forbes.

Baptist Church

(Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor)

Next Sunday morning's service will be prospective as Sunday closes our church year. The subject of the sermon will be "The Prosperous Way." In the evening after a song service by the chorus choir, the pastor will preach a short evangelistic sermon.

In but a little over two weeks the convention will meet with us. Much needs to be done between now and then. Let each member of each committee be prompt in responding to the direction of the chairman.

Our next week's prayer meeting will be very important. Besides being our covenant meeting, it will be the time for selecting delegates to the convention. While all our members should plan to attend the convention, only the delegates can vote.

In spite of the very disagreeable weather last Tuesday evening our annual fellowship meeting was a most enjoyable affair. A good number of our members ventured out and an excellent time was had. The short addresses by Prof. Lewis, Mr. S. R. Theobald and Mr. Sprague were of high order and well received. Prof. Davies and Miss Ina Hughes each favored the meeting with appreciated solos. The different contests and the awarding of prizes were followed by an elegant serving of ice cream and cake by the ladies. Those who were present all expressed themselves as being glad they came. We were very sorry the weather made it impossible for all our people to be present.

Methodist Church

(Rev. Wm. Gorst, Pastor)

The vote to consolidate the three conferences, the Nebraska, North Nebraska and West Nebraska, was carried by 75 to 11. As it now stands the "Nebraska Conference" is the largest body of its kind in the Methodist church, having 414 members. At its present size it will be entitled to 18 delegates in the next General Conference.

Next Sunday we begin the new conference year. It is the "Key Day". There will be a sermon to sound the "Key Note" for the year and every member and friend of the church is to be present—if possible—any failure in this interest of either pulpit or pew can be forgiven but it is sincerely desired that all necessities for forgiveness shall be reduced to a minimum.

In the evening the pastor will speak to young people more especially, about Peter.

Epworth League services, at 6:30, followed by preaching services at 7.30.

German Lutheran Church

(J. H. Karpenstein, Pastor)

There will be Sunday School at 10 o'clock p. m. and preaching service at 11 o'clock. The Ladies Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. Jacob Reeg next Thursday, October 3rd.

Simple Directions

"They were telling stories of the late Andrew Lang in one of the clubs the other night.

One man told a story of a dinner invitation given by Mr. Lang. He was staying in Marlowes road, Earl's court, a street away at the end of that long Cromwell road, which seems to go on forever. The guest was not very sure how to get to Marlowes road, and Lang very kindly explained:

"Walk right along Cromwell road," he said; "till you drop dead, and my house is just opposite!"—London Answers.

At the Musicale.

"How did you like Miss Kazozzle's aria at the musicale last night?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle.

"I didn't notice it," replied Mrs. Gortlotte, "but I thought them back earrings she had on looked kind of cheap!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Something Wrong.

Mrs. Am. I said "the star of your life," as I was when you used to write love letters to me? MR.—Of course dear, Mrs.—I don't seem to be drawing a star salary though.

Action from youth, advice from middle age, prayers from the aged.—He said.

Call on Gaertner & Beckenhauer to move or tune your piano.

Chapin Precinct Caucus

The democrats of Chapin precinct will meet in caucus at the Brugger school house on Thursday evening, October 3, for the purpose of nominating precinct officers. All who wish to affiliate with the party are invited.

CLINT FRY, Committeeman.

Mr. Renter.

Dear Sir:—Why stay here and pay big rent when you can go to Minnesota and get a home in the Red River Valley? Well improved, not over six miles from town at $40.00 to $60.00 per acre and on easy terms. Our excursions are on the first and third Tuesdays of the month. Next Tuesday is the day, come in and see me for further particulars.

30tf. F. H. Benshoof, Agent.

His Kind Heart.

"I wish," said the man with the bulbous nose and the baggy trousers, "I had all the money I've wasted on liquor and tobacco."

"What would you do with it?" asked the gentleman with the long hair and the refined features.

"Oh, I s'pose I'd spend most of it for the same kind of stuff again, but I'd put aside at least $10 of it to buy a rockin' chair for my poor old mother. She says she's got so she fairly hankers for a rockin' chair after she's done a hard day's washin'!"—Cleveland Leader.

A Distinction.

"Can you give my daughter all the little luxuries to which she is accustomed?" asked Mr. Silters, as Skinfat asked for his daughter's hand.

"I can indeed," replied Skinfat. "I am worth twice as much as you are."

"Then I consent," said Mr. Silters. "Bless you, my son!"

"Gee!" ejaculated Skinfat as he walked home later. "Suppose he had asked me if I would!"—Harper's.

The Only Way.

A person of little tact once remarked to the octogenarian Auber, "What a sad thing it is, this old business!"

"Yes," agreed the old musician, "it is sad; but," he added, with witty philosophy, "up to the present time no surer way has been discovered to live a long time."

Correcting Him.

"Gibbs—Oh, yes, Jones is an ass and all that, but you'll never hear him say a mean thing about his wife. Dilbs—I don't know. He says she made him what he is!"—Boston Transcript.

Big Surprise to Many in Wayne

Local people are surprised at the QUICK results received from simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Ad-Ire-i-ka, the German appendicitis remedy. Shulthies' Pharmacy states that this simple remedy antisepticizes the digestive system, and draws off the impurities so thoroughly that A SINGLE DOSE relieves sour stomach, gas on the stomach and constipation INSTANTLY.

He gathered up about 800 head, mostly for immediate sale. He has sent one car to his farm and will next week bring fifty head more of 3-year-old feeders.

A peculiar freak of nature, the result of last spring's high water, is noted on the farm of J. E. Miles, formerly the Sawtelle farm, adjoining the city limits of West Point. The river has changed its course and has left some four acres as accretion to the farm of Mr. Miles. The peculiarity of this addition to the farm is in the fact that about one half, or two acres, is the finest kind of gravel, deposited en masse, ready for hauling away. The balance of the accretion is a splendid quality of plastering sand, sharp and clean. There are thousands of loads of each of these deposits.

The Union hotel has been undergoing constant improvement during the past year, and is now receiving the finishing touches by installing a hot water heating system. When winter settles over the land as it shortly will, the average traveling man is as much interested in a warm place to sleep as any other thing, and therefore the landlord of the Union is preparing to cater to his needs as never before and is anticipating that less traveling men will shun Wayne for a night's lodging this winter than ever before. We are glad to note the improvement, for it means more business for Wayne.

W. F. Reetz and Geo. Henderson had a peculiar experience Monday. They started to the country southeast of Wayne in an automobile, and just as they were going out of town passed a team driven by Carl Matteson, who had for his load a corrugated steel culvert. The automobile passed the team without apparently disturbing them, but hearing a noise they looked back and saw the team coming at them on a full run. After the car had passed the team jumped and the culvert rolled and threw the driver and his companion off, leaving the horses without driver. The men in the car speeded up to get out of the way, and were followed until they came to where the road turned. They kept straight, but the team turned. They then came back to the corner and followed the team until they caught it and then returned and brought Mr. Matteson to town. He was not seriously hurt, but considerably bruised up by the fall.

ALWAYS FOUGHT LIKE CATS.

Yet Snarling Ibsen and Bjornson Could Not Keep Apart.

Edmund Gosse in his "Two Visits to Denmark" tells of how he heard, through Christian Molbech, of the antagonism between Ibsen and Bjornson. It was in their younger days at Rome, and Ibsen, poor and obscure, indulged his naturally sullen temper to the utmost. Later he became quite a dandy in appearance, but at this time, in the sixties, he wore a long black beard and possessed but one coat, shabby and green.

He used, related Professor Molbech, to keep morosely to himself in the Scandinavian club at Rome until supper time, then, emptying his bottle of wine, he would brighten, not into geniality—for that would have been impossible—but into sarcastic loquacity. And let Bjornson appear and a storm was at hand.

"Oh," said Molbech, "to be in Rome with Ibsen and Bjornson together, my dear young friend, it was a weary, weary thing! They could not keep apart. They were like two tomcats parading and snarling and swearing at each other, yet each bored to death if the other were not present. They collected their adherents behind them. There were two well defined parties.

"I assure you, if it amused the Norwegians, it was death to us easy going Danes and Swedes. At last Bjornson took himself off. Oh, what a sigh of relief we gave! And Ibsen came into the club, glanced around and snarled, and there was no one to snarl back at him. Then followed the publication of Brand, and money came in, and Ibsen grew to be a celebrated character. So he smiled and stretched out his legs and was quiet. But agreeable? Oh, no!

"Let us use words in their true sense. Ibsen has never been an agreeable man, and he never will be. But he is a great genius and a very honest person."

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Faulty Living is the Cause of "the Malady of Civilization."

Bright's disease has been called "the malady of civilization," and the name is not unmerited. It is beyond everything else a disease of civilized white men, and it is due almost entirely to those habits of life which distinguish the white man from the savage of the jungle. Nine times out of ten it is the result, more or less direct, of disorders of the digestive tract, and nine times out of ten these disorders are due to too much eating and drinking, too much bending over desks and too little fresh air.

The savage lives in the open, eats simple foods, knows nothing of whisky and gets plenty of sleep and exercise. As a result he has a good digestion, a clear eye and good red blood in his veins. But the civilized white man eats rich food, made appetizing by stimulating condiments; braces himself with alcohol, lives in stuffy houses, in filthy, smoky cities and never walks when he can ride. The result is that his stomach fails in its duties; his kidneys, inundated by poisons, go to pieces—and he dies from Bright's disease.

Sometimes the trouble starts in the kidneys themselves—as, for instance, when they are crippled by alcohol and sometimes it starts in the stomach or elsewhere. But in any case the blame lies with faulty methods of living, and it is the kidneys that suffer the final damage. And when they falter or fail in their business the body fills up with poisons and death is not far away. Bright's disease, in fact, may be called autopoisoning. Its victim dies of poisons generated within his own body.—Leslie's.

A Scientific Defense.

"You are charged with selling adulterated milk," said the judge.

"So I understand, your honor," said the milkman. "I plead not guilty."

"But the testimony shows that your milk is 25 per cent water," said the judge.

"Then it must be high grade milk," returned the milkman. "If your honor will look up the word milk in your dictionary you will find that it consists of from 80 to 90 per cent water. I'd ought to have sold it for cream."—Judge.

A River of Death.

Before the English occupation of India it was estimated that the Ganges carried to the sea every year 1,000,000 dead bodies. It was then considered by the Hindus that the happiest death was one found in its waves, and all pious Hindus who could do so were carried to its banks and placed in its waters to die. The decaying carcasses along its banks were probably responsible in no small degree for the pestilences which formerly desolated the peninsula.

Mexican Cacti.

Mexico has a cactus which grows toothpicks; another, ribbed and thickly set with toothpick spines, which furnishes the natives with combs. There is another cactus the long curved spines of which resemble fishhooks. There is another which is an almost perfect imitation of the sea urchin. Still another resembles a porcupine. There is another covered with long red hair which is nicknamed the "red headed cactus."

Men Are So Stupid.

Your Suit Coat or Skirt

LISTEN---Isn't it a fact that all garments look fine when new?

But isn't it a fact too that far too many of them do not look so fine after three or six months wear?

Take those made of fabrics that are not pure wool---the most of them fade. Then take a fabric that is all wool but was not put through a satisfactory shrinking process before ever a pattern was laid upon it, and it is almost needless to tell you that the garment made of that fabric will pucker at the seams and will sag or shrink out of shape.

Now the Coat, Suit or Skirt that we offer you is made of pure wool fabric, fully shrunk. Then in addition to that we not only guarantee the wearing quality of the garment you buy, we guarantee that its GOOD APPEARANCE will also last.

Come to the store before the best of the garments are gone and let us show you other superior points in the garments that we sell.

CORNELIUS VAN VLIET was a child of music. He was born in Rotterdam, Holland, on Sept. 1, 1886. Beginning with his sixth year, his father had him instructed in violin and piano. At nine years of age his whole interest centered in the cello, in playing of which he finally became master so that today there are but few who may be counted his rivals.

C. van Vliet began his instruction in Rotterdam with the esteemed and distinguished teacher of the cello, Professor Oskar Eberle, after whose death in December of 1901, van Vliet continued and completed his studies with Professor J. Mossel in Amsterdam, with whom he achieved the best results. During the time the young artist was active as a member of the Konzertgebouw-Orchestra of Amsterdam under the direction of Wilhelm Mengelberg.

At the age of twelve he often appeared as soloist in the larger cities of Holland.

His travels began in October, 1903, when but seventeen years old he became solo cellist of the Philharmonic Orchestra of Leipzig under Hans Winderstein. In Leipzig as well as on many concert tours of the orchestra, van Vliet proved a brilliant success.

His reputation as an artist soon spread so that Oscar Nedbal, famous as violinist and composer, and at that time director of the Philharmonic Orchestra of Prague, engaged him. With this orchestra van Vliet made numerous concert tours through Bohemia, Poland and Russia, always with the same success.

After a brilliant season in Pawlowsk, near St. Petersburg, van Vliet stayed for a time in Helingsfors, the capital of Finland, as solo cellist of the Orchestra and professor and performer of chamber music at the Conservatory, where he won esteem and recognition as an artist.

He gave up this position in October, 1905, to become the first solo cellist of the Kaim Orchestra in Munich, Germany. Here too, success followed him and he had the honor to play on several occasions for members of the royal household, for example the Princess Ruprecht the future queen of Bavaria.

In October, 1908, he was engaged by the famous director Felix von Weingartner as solo cellist of the Vienna Royal Opera, a position which he held for three years until at last his wish to appear in America was fulfilled.

A Remarkable Fortress.

In the northern part of Madagascar is the most remarkable natural fortress in the world. It is occupied by a wild tribe who call themselves the people of the rocks. The fortress is a lofty and precipitous rock of enormous size, 1,000 feet high and eight square miles in area. Its sides are so steep that it cannot be climbed without artificial means. Within it is hollow, and the only entrance is by a subterranean passage.

Yes, Johnnie, a tariff commission is an invention to delay and perhaps eventually kill tariff reduction, and it is favored by both candidate Roosevelt and candidate Taft, therefore if you are not in favor of tariff reduction you should vote for one of these two men.

"Grandpa, did any one help you put down the rebellion?" asked little Willie admiringly.

"That sentence is not incorrect," said the professor, "but it sounds odd to the English-speaking ear."

It is a pretty hard campaign for the democrats this year, having to fight two republican plutocrat parties.

If anyone thinks that Wilson is the nominee of the bosses they will do well to watch the campaign closely for the next 30 days and see where the bosses line up.

A careful reading of the list of democratic nominees for county office does not show a man on the ticket for whom an apology is necessary. They are men well qualified for the office to which the people will elevate them.

Wayne merchants are planning a united move to let it be known what a desirable trading place Wayne is. In union there is strength. No where in this corner of Nebraska will you find larger and better stocks of goods—and now they propose to show the people.

Woodrow Wilson did the right thing in coming out in opposition to candidate Smith who is trying to be restored to the senate from New Jersey. Right because he is a citizen of that state and does not think Smith the man for the place—and he opposes Smith as a citizen, not as a political boss.

Roosevelt is against "free trade" and no one is advocating it; and no one knows what tariff schedules he favors. He once claimed to be a free-trader, and belonged to the Cobden Club, we are told, but he has never advocated a tariff reduction while in position to do anything about such reduction.

The Western Bohemian Fraternal Union is moving to increase their insurance rate 10c per $1,000 on each member per month. Suppose that the Modern Woodmen had made a like raise, instead of playing into the hands of the old line concerns. It would have increased their income greatly without the loss of membership or stopping the growth of the society.

How many of those who are now trying to throw dust in the eyes of the voters in regard to John H. Morehead's attitude on the Initiative and Referendum favored the law or voted for it, as did Mr. Morehead? To hear them howl now one would think that the democratic nominee had voted against a pet measure of theirs; instead, he evidently refused to help assassinate the cause by assisting to enact a faulty law.

Candidate Roosevelt is on record as favoring the present Payne tariff law because it is better than the one it supplanted. On that theory he would, if elected want the tariff raised, because he thought the law just preceding the Payne law was better than the law before that, and in every case the rates were raised. You have to study ancient history to really find what manner of tariff man Teddy is, and then guess some as to how much higher we would like to have the wall raised.

GRANT MEARS.

THE FARM LAWYER.

The landlord who furnishes supplies to enable a tenant to make a crop is entitled to a lien for the price for the supplies, and it is immaterial whether the tenant could or could not have had the crop without them.—Ferinian versus Nowlin, 120 S. W. 379.

A landlord is not liable for a nuisance created on the premises by the tenant during the tenancy and without the consent of the landlord.—Schlitz Brewing Company versus Shiel (Ind.), 88 N. E. 957.

A written contract has no binding force until it is either signed by all the parties or signed by one of the parties and accepted by the others.—McCaughey versus Schatzley (Ind.), 88 N. E. 972.

A husband may, except against his creditors, make a valid gift of his property to his wife.—Corbett versus Sloan, Wash. 90 Pac. 1025.

Every contract made for or about any matter or thing which is prohibited and made unlawful by statute is void.

RESTING DAIRY CATTLE.

Cows Need Good Rations Preparatory to Freshening.

In years gone by it was considered by the average stock owner that when a cow was dried for the period of freshening she did not need any great amount of rest and much less feed, says David Roberts, D. V. S., in Kimball's Dairy Farmer. Turning her to the straw stack or in a closely eaten pasture was the proper thing to do, but it has been discovered by those familiar and successful in handling dairy cattle that it is necessary to give a cow from six to eight weeks rest between freshening periods and also very important that a cow be fed

In a recent circular the Wisconsin experiment station emphasizes the need of dairymen using the Babcock test. The circular states that by it the greatest service has been rendered in making available to the dairy farmer a means whereby he can study the individual performance of his herd and thus weed out the inferior stock. The cow shown is imported Hayes Rosale of the station farm. This cow produced 85 pounds of butter in a year. She is a Holstein.

such milk producing ingredients as would be necessary to give her were she giving a heavy flow of milk.

If there be any reason why a cow should not be given a full ration of milk producing feeds it may be a short time before freshening, as a cow heavily fed is somewhat more apt to become afflicted with milk fever than one which has been fed sparingly.

We often lose sight of the fact that during the last few months of pregnancy the large, fast developing calf demands a great deal of its mother's strength and vitality. It is for this reason that the mother must be given extra care and attention instead of being turned out to a straw stack, as has often been the case.

Horse's Age Told by His Teeth.

The approximate age of a horse may be determined by the teeth. At about three years of age the central pair of permanent teeth in both the lower and upper jaws replace the milk-teeth. The permanent teeth can be readily recognized because they are much larger and whiter than the milk teeth. Thus at three years of age the horse has two large or permanent teeth in the center of the lower jaw and two small milk teeth on either side. At approximately four years of age the intermediate permanent teeth appear and at about five the corner permanent ones come in so that at five years of age the horse has a full mouth of permanent teeth. At six the cups, little holes in the center of the teeth, disappear from the center pair of teeth in the lower jaw, at seven from the intermediates and at eight from the corner teeth in the lower jaw. At nine the cups disappear from the center pair of teeth in the upper jaw, at ten from the intermediates and at eleven years of age from the corner teeth in the upper jaw.

The Best Breed of Hogs.

The old question about which is the best breed of hogs keeps bobbing up from young men or new breeders who want to get into the breeding of pure bred hogs. There is no best breed. All of the modern breeds are excellent, and you can take your choice with the full knowledge that any one of them will make good, with proper care and treatment. Type is vastly more important than breed. Select any breed you like, but get the proper type and breed what your customers want. When you do this it is not difficult to make sales.—Kansas Farmer

Here and There

If our protective system is not the "substantial" explanation of the abnormal increase in the cost of living in the United States, how does it come that British prices, under free trade, increased but 7 per cent in 10 years, while American prices, under protection, increased 34.3 per cent?

Coming nearer home, the difference in the cost of living in Detroit and just across the river in Windsor, Canada, supplies as with a striking definition of the real meaning of excessive tariff rates. Prices of foodstuffs, wearing apparel, and rents average from 20 to 25 per cent more in Detroit than in Windsor. And between the two cities there are but 2,561 feet of water—and the Aldrich-Payne tariff bill!

The Detroit man is "protected" and the Windsor man is not.

By not being "protected," the Windsor man pays $15 for a suit of clothes that the Detroit man will find it difficult to duplicate in quality for $25. What the Windsor man is escaping in this instance is the Aldrich-Payne tax of 44 cents a pound on good all-wool clothes, and the additional tax of 60 per cent of the value of the goods.

Ever Hear About This?

We want everybody in Wayne to know about Meritol White Liniment. It will do so much for pains of all kinds, rheumatism, sprains, etc. We have never sold a preparation that we could recommend more highly.

Some Testimony From Abroad

In Holland there are no import duties on food or raw materials, the sole protective element being a tax of 5 per cent on imported manufactured goods. In Germany there is a high duty and an excessive tariff on all the necessities of life. A household of six persons can buy $5.04 in Gelderland (one of the eastern provinces of Holland) the necessities of life which in Germany, just across the frontier, would cost $6.78. As a result a village of 4,000 inhabitants has grown up at Glanerburg, near the German frontier. There German manufacturers have built houses for a colony of their workmen, because they can live more cheaply and better across the frontier in the foreign country where there are practically no import duties.

Henderson--Gray

Married—At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gray of this city, Thursday morning, September, 19th, Mr. I. D. Henderson of Wayne and Miss Vera Gray. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. A. W. Ahrends of the Methodist Episcopal church in the presence of a few immediate relatives. The bride was dressed in a neat gray traveling suit and the groom wore the conventional black. After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served and the bride and groom left on the morning train for a short trip after which they will be at home in Wayne where Mr. Henderson is engaged in carpenter trade. Mr. Henderson is one of Wayne county's rising young business men and the girl whom he has chosen to be his bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gray of this city and a most attractive and estimable young lady. While attending school here and later teaching in the county schools, she has won many friends whose good wishes will go with her and her young husband for a long and happy married life.—Hartington Herald

Admit Tariff Increases Prices

When the German government introduced its tariff law of 1902, it published with it, as is the custom in Germany, a printed explanation of the reasons for its introduction. This official document, which squarely declares that import duties raise the cost of living, reads, in part, as follows: "Inland prices are raised, so far as a consideration of the circumstances of the last 10 years will allow us to judge, in proportion to the duties."

In precisely this way the tariff increases the cost of the necessities of life in the United States.

Nebraska Methodists Unite

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 21.—Consolidation of three Nebraska Methodist Episcopal conferences has been effected, according to statements made here by heads of the church, making the Nebraska conference, it is asserted, the largest in the world, with that of Philadelphia second and Rock River (Chicago) third.

Of the four original Nebraska conferences, only one, that of northwest Nebraska, voted to remain independent.

Big Surprise to Many in Wayne

Local people are surprised at the QUICK results received from simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Ad-Ire-i-ka, the German appendicitis remedy. Shulthies' Pharmacy states that this simple remedy antiseptizes the digestive system and draws off the impurities so thoroughly that A SINGLE DOSE relieves sour stomach, gas on the stomach and constipation INSTANTLY.

Farm News From Blaine County

Wm. Weber returned home last week from a visit with his family who are spending the season on the farm which they have in Blaine county. He brought with him samples of corn grown by his son on the place, and it shows up well compared with corn grown in this vicinity. They have from 25 to 30 acres of corn this year, and it is pronounced the best corn ever grown in the county, so far as could be learned. There is a reason, in the opinion of Mr. Weber. That reason is in the cultivation. They followed the Campbell system, and after corn is ordinarily laid up, they put 7-shovel Planet cultivator into the field behind a horse when the corn was large enough to hide a horse, and broke the surface crust, allowing the air to circulate through the surface. Mr. Weber estimates that this final cultivation made an increase in the yield of from 5 to 10 bushels per acre, comparing their field with fields on adjoining places that did not give this final cultivation. A comparison of the two fields of corn will convince any one that it payed to give this last cultivation.

Potatoes are a good crop there this year, but we do not know how extensively they were raised. It is a melon country, too, and they are not so badly bothered with boys robbing the patch as are some other localities, but they have other night prowlers that have to be reckoned with. The wolves, Mr. Weber says will enter a melon patch, and if not disturbed, will pick the ripe melons, and roll them to the edge of the patch and there eat them, leaving the rines only. They will take all of the good part and never molest a green melon. In that respect they are ahead of the boy—he cannot always tell a ripe melon.

One neighbor put two dummy men in his patch, but after a few nights the wolves got wise, and paid no attention to them. Another man strung a wire and a string about his melons, and hung bells on the string. When a wolf would attempt to go through it would ring a bell, and the wolf would immediately leave, in fact, from the way they started; they are probably going yet.

Mr. Weber is not expecting the folks home until they have the corn harvested and it is not yet dry enough to gather though they had frost there.

"Seeing the Wheels Go 'Round"

The Chicago Daily Press (Ind.), August 24.—The common, non-office-holding citizen does not stand to lose anything by reason of the Penrose-Roosevelt-Archbold controversy. He stands to win. He is learning a lot of things that ought to help cut him a fine eye tooth or two. He learns that from the Standard Oil standpoint much, very much, can be forgiven a politician so long as he is "sound on the tariff." Even the strenuous Teddy passed muster—though Archbold didn't like him—when Bliss assured him that T. R. would be "conservative on the tariff." The common citizen learns that Standard Oil is really a secret government department to which Senators and Congressmen report and from which they take orders. He learns that Standard Oil claims credit "for saving West Virginia to the Republican party in 1904." He learns that men who have been held up as models of civic virtue went to Standard Oil and came away with a fist full of $1,000 bills to be used to persuade the common voters of the country to vote against their own interest and in the interest of Standard Oil. And as Penrose "got it" in Republican Pennsylvania, so Bailey "got it" in Democratic Texas. And as Standard Oil works, so works the wool trust, tobacco, sugar, steel, beef and the rest of the trusts and railways. Millions of dollars are spent through political parties, lobbies, legislatures and secretly in newspapers to fool the people and fatten the trusts. All of which goes to show why "representative government" is so sacred and why real popular government is "dangerous." Meantime, let the quarrel go on and let the secrets of the trusts and the politicians be laid bare. It can't hurt us common folks and it may jolt some sense into us. We are seeing the wheels go 'round as we never saw them before.

How Alfalfa Grows Here

The last Thursday in July Roe & Fortner sowed a 3-acre tract just south of Wayne to alfalfa, and last week, just eight weeks later they cut the first crop of more than one ton per acre. The average height was 18 inches. That is boasting some, when more than a ton of good hay per acre will grow from seed to harvest in eight short weeks.

WATER WILL BEAR YOU UP.

Always Remember This and Learning to Swim Will Be Easy.

You can teach yourself to swim, and you can do it in an hour or less. I know plenty of people who have done it by following carefully these directions:

First and foremost, fix this thought clearly in your mind—the water will bear you up. It is fear and struggle that invariably send a person to the bottom. The best way to acquire confidence that makes for courage and fun is, go squarely and reasonably at it. Begin in still water; the old swimming pool on the farm is just the place. Wade out until your shoulders are covered, squat a little and get yourself wet all over.

Don't be the least atom afraid, even if a little water does get into your nose and ears; wade out a little farther until you are up to your chin, and now your toes will begin to leave the bottom of the pool. Do not be alarmed. This shows you that you are a little lighter than the water. Now lift your chest and with the muscles of your stomach breathe deep, stretch your arms out to form the letter T of yourself, stiffen your backbone and hollow your back as though suddenly you were a very important and dignified person. Your toes have come up to the surface now. Lean your head back freely as far as you can, keeping your mouth shut.

Lie back with absolute confidence, and there you are floating. Keep your backbone stiff, gently paddle with your hands, and you are swimming. Make toward the shore, of course. Then try it all over again. This time kick with your feet gently; strong strokes might turn you over and frighten you. Keep your balance and practice two or three times in straight succession.

The next thing that you will be learning is the "V" stroke. Kick out until both legs are like the letter V. Shut them together like the blades of a pair of scissors (which give a strong drive ahead), then—draw them up sideways like a frog and kick persistently out again. Then try making your legs go as if you were climbing up stairs. Always remember the water will bear you up, and the great and only difficulty about swimming will be out of your way.—Christian Herald.

BOTH WELL INFORMED.

An Interchange of Compliments Between Grant and Lee.

Toward the end of the war between the states the value of a well organized scout service came to be fully appreciated by the leaders of both armies. Perhaps no commanders of modern times were better served in this respect than General Grant and General Lee. Both were kept informed daily as to nearly everything that went on within the enemy's lines.

General Gordon related that one morning toward the end of the long conflict, when the Confederates, officers and men alike, were reduced to unpleasant straits for food, a captain from the Union headquarters went, under a flag of truce, with a communication to General Lee concerning the exchange of prisoners.

"General Lee," said the captain, with a smile, after delivering his message. "General Grant sends you his personal compliments and bids me assure you that he knows exactly what you had for breakfast this morning."

"General Grant must be misinformed as to this," replied General Lee, surveying the message bearer with a sad smile. "General Grant is a generous man, and if he had known with what a breakfast I had to content myself he would certainly have sent me half of his. But give him my compliments," he continued, with a sudden twinkle, "and say that although I do not know as to his breakfast I have full particulars concerning his dinner last night."

Use For the Thermometer.

"That new maid is a genius," said the young housekeeper. "She has even found a use for the cooking thermometer. Nobody ever used it to cook with. After I finished my course in the school of domestic sciences I bought a splendid thermometer because the teachers said I ought to. I paid $5 for it. It had a solid iron bulb and was warranted to stand any amount of wear and tear. In spite of my determination to cook by rule that thermometer was a white elephant in the kitchen until the new maid came. She uses it to crack nuts with!"—New York Times.

A Queer Slip.

The Duke of Wellington once made a queer slip during a house of lords debate on Ireland. In the course of his speech he mentioned that two clergymen had been murdered in Ireland. A noble lord on the other side of the house rose at once to correct him. "No, no; only one."

"Only one?" rejoined the duke. "Well, if I am mistaken I am sorry."

State Treasurer Brings Back Samples of Farm Products.

GROWN WITHOUT IRRIGATION.

Shippers Protest Against Revocation of Return Rate—Requisition Issued for Iron Company Head—Protecting Health of School Children.

Treasurer George and Secretary Wait were in Chase county last week to inspect and appraise school lands. They returned home and Treasurer George brought with him a sample of the different kinds of farm products raised in Chase county without the aid of irrigation and on land which can be bought from $10 to $20 per acre.

The samples were raised near Imperial and at an elevation of 3,281 feet. They consist of one sugar beet, weighing 21 1/2 pounds, which was broken off in pulling from the ground, so that only a portion of the beet was taken. There are also several ears of different kinds of corn, measuring from ten inches in length to fifteen inches. A few apples are in the collection, one of which measures ten and one-half inches in circumference. Wheat and oats in that county are still in the stack and little threshing has been done, but the crop is good and will make a good yield.

Protect School Children.

State Superintendent Delzell has issued a circular letter to the school district board of the state, in which he calls for a "conservation of the health of the children." He says:

"A start has been made in the right direction. The drinking fountain and individual drinking cup, the paper towel or individual towel are helps in the prevention of the spread of disease. The abolition of the waving of the germ infected handkerchief in the chautauqua or honor salute should be brought about. Honor could be bestowed as well by a wave of the hand or a small white flag, or better still, by a small American flag. The sweeping of a school room without oiled brooms, sweeping compound or an oiled floor is one of the ways to scatter disease germs."

Horse Disease Dying Out.

State Veterinarian Bostrom and E. T. Davidson of New York, expert in the service of the bureau of animal industry of the department of agriculture, declare in a report made here that the horse disease in Nebraska is dying out. They say that in some counties as high as 50 per cent of the animals affected are recovering and that the disease is less virulent in form.

Requisition Issued for Bridge Builder.

Governor Aldrich issued a requisition for J. R. Finkelstein, president of the Terre Haute (Ind.) Iron company, who is charged with having attempted to bribe W. N. Rodgers, a county commissioner at McCook, Neb. It is alleged Finkelstein offered the official $100 for his influence in awarding bridge contracts to the defendant's company.

Shippers Protesting.

A hearing was on before the railway commission in which shippers protest against the revocation of the return rate given by the railroads on returnable goods. It is said that in cases of where goods have been sold to the dealers that goods not sold are returned to the manufacturer at a reduced rate.

NEW METHODIST MINISTERS

North Nebraska Conference at Madison Closes With Appointments.

Madison, Neb., Sept. 24.—The north Nebraska conference closed with reading of appointments for next year.

C. M. McClirik, former pastor of the Olivet Memorial church of Chicago, was appointed to the pastorate of the Hanson Park church in Omaha. Rev. William Atack, who has been pastor of the church in Benson, is transferred to South Omaha, and Rev. J. Kirkpatrick appointed to the Benson church. Rev. F. M. Sisson was appointed to the Fremont church.

Treatment Fatal to Many Horses.

Red Cloud, Neb., Sept. 24.—A wide spread warning has been sent out from Red Cloud that practically all of the horses that have been vaccinated for the new disease are dying. Well posted horsemen say that a large number of animals have been vaccinated with the virus used in treating black leg in cattle and that all that have thus been treated are dead or dying. The disease itself is dying out in this vicinity.

O'Neill Switch Is Ordered Built.

The state railway commission has ordered the Burlington and Northwestern railroads to connect their lines at O'Neill by building a transfer switch. The action follows twenty years of effort to secure this connection, the first step being taken in the early 90s, when a bill looking to the accomplishment of that task was introduced in the state legislature. The legislature passed the bill, but the switch was not built.

University Registration.

At the close of the registration of students at the state university the books showed 1,642 names for the three day's work against 1,576 for four days last year. The old military fee of $1, which has been formerly assessed to students taking the drill, has been abolished and instead the dollar is charged as a library fee.

Labor Federation Executive Council Adopts Resolution.

To bring about cooperation of the laboring man and the church with an idea of uplifting the dissolute class of laborers was the sense of resolutions adopted by the executive council of the Nebraska Federation of Labor at Omaha.

T. W. Parker of Lincoln, president of the federation, brought up the subject, expressing his desire for cooperation with the churches, the best medium of social service to the laborer.

"We want to uplift the union laborer in every way," he said, "and while uplifting all, we want to take from the ranks of the drunkards all the laboring men possible. We desire to place them in a position to care for their families and bring about a better position for them in the estimation of the general public."

The executive committee passed resolutions asking the state Nebraska to employ only union carpenters in the building of public buildings.

CATTLE THIEF ARRESTED

Charles Montgomery Arrested by Stanton Sheriff at Lexington.

Stanton, Neb., Sept. 24.—Sheriff Stucker arrived in Stanton with his prisoner, Clarence Montgomery, who is charged with stealing thirty-five head of cattle from the pasture of J. H. Benne, a cattleman living just north of Stanton. He sold the cattle to a Winside butcher for $900 and was arrested at Lexington just as he was getting ready to start for South Dakota in his automobile.

Udall to Waverly.

Dr. G. W. Udall, head of the veterinary department of the New York state veterinary college at Cornell university, arrived in Nebraska for the purpose of making an examination into the horse epidemic in this state. He went at once to the agricultural college, and immediately answered a call from Waverly. From there he will go to Manhattan, Kan., to make an investigation in that state. He will, however, return to Nebraska later and make a more thorough study of the disease.

Exceptions to Report.

Exceptions to the report of Referee Holcomb in the South Omaha fire and police commission case were filed with the supreme court. It is set forth that the findings of Judge Holcomb are not supported by sufficient evidence and that the new law is invalid. It is also set forth that in the case of the state of Nebraska against Thomas Hector and August Miller to compel the calling and holding of an election in South Omaha in April, 1912, the district court of Douglas county held the law to be unconstitutional.

Application Dismissed.

The state railway commission has dismissed the application of R. W. Rawlston of Lexington, who asked for an order compelling the South Omaha Stock Yards company to furnish better hay and not discriminate against the small shipper. The opinion was written by Thomas Hall of the commission and declares that the fault is not with the stock yards company, but with the commission firms.

Mattley Outlines Position.

W. S. Mattley, candidate for senator in the Twenty-third senatorial district, residing at Ausley, in Custer county, sent notice to the secretary of state that he would vote for the candidate for the United States senate who received the indorsement of the voters at the primary.

Omaha Patrolman Shot by Robber.

Omaha, Sept. 23.—Patrolman Oscar Knutson was shot in the groin by a robber, whom he caught breaking into a saloon at Twenty-fourth and Leavenworth streets. Although the wound is serious, Knutson will recover. The thief escaped.

North Nebraska Conference Near End.

Madison, Neb., Sept. 23.—The north Nebraska conference is holding one of the best attended sessions of its history in this city. The end of the meeting approaches with renewed interest in the church problems discussed.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the star attraction at the opera house tonight. This play never grows old, and no matter how often one has seen it, he likes to go and take the children. We have witnessed it almost annually since a child, and while it is not now as new as it once was, it is full of interest yet.

John Gettman and wife were here from Carroll Tuesday for a farewell visit with their sister, who with her husband, Henry Witten, left Wednesday morning for their new home at Douglas, Washington. "Hello" is a great word in the United States. From Telephone Statistics just received we learn that this country uses more than twice as many telephones as all the rest of the world combined. In this country the telephone is used instead of telegraph. In foreign lands where they have a lower telegraph rate than here, that means of communication is used much more than here.

Two Wayne county Hampshire porkers won first and second prizes at the Interstate fair at Sioux City last week. Of all that's good Wayne county can produce the best and when we fail to reach the top we have not done our full duty. We predict that within ten years from this date the agricultural products of this county can be more than doubled—and if it can be it should be and doubtless will be.

E. P. Sweet and wife of Omaha came Saturday to visit at the home of Mrs. Sweet's parents, R. Laughman and wife, just east of Wayne. They had been enjoying a vacation with friends near Bassett, and Mr. Sweet had spent several days hunting ducks and chickens. He says the ducks were plentiful but chickens almost impossible to get. He returned to Omaha the first of the week while his wife remained for a longer visit.

Henry Klopping, who has been buying cattle in the west is the first man to find a straw vote that favored anyone except Wilson so far as we have read. He tells that a train was voted in western Nebraska on which the Colonel had 112 followers and Wilson 34, and only 4 were found favorable to the president. This shows, as does every poll, that the Taft vote in the west will not be large enough to make a good showing, and it is no doubt for that reason that Taft followers in Nebraska are advised to vote for Governor Wilson.

Harry Tidrick is starting the sale season with a Poland China sale at his farm southeast of Winside on Thursday, October 10, when he will sell 20 head of fall and 7 head of spring Poland China boars. He has been breeding this stock for several years, and his neighbors know its worth, and are anxious to buy, but as he has more than he thought they would want to purchase, he decided to invite a crowd in with his neighbors and clean up the bunch all at once. He is also adding Durco Jerseys to his herd and will have his first offering of these at this sale, five head.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Sept. 24.—Nearly 9,000 cattle arrived today. Receipts for the two days total about 23,000 head. Nothing new developed in the market for corn-fed cattle for the very good reason that there were practically no corn-feds on sale. Desirable western beef steers or choice feeders were not very plentiful today, the offerings consisting largely of in-between kinds, not especially attractive as either beef or feeders. Trade was slow from start to finish and the bulk of the business in both beef steers and feeders was done at prices 15 to 25c lower than last week. Cows and heifers were also pretty close to a quarter lower than a week ago.

Nearly 37,000 sheep and lambs arrived today. Notwithstanding the large supply and unfavorable reports of the general trade at other markets, local business held firmly to a steady basis, and possibly a little stronger when compared with Monday. A bunch of Mexican lambs sold for $6.90, and a shipment of western lambs at $7.00. A bunch of feeding yearlings sold as high as $5.40.

KING OF FRUITS.

To Eat a Durian You Must First Overcome Your Sense of Smell.

The east furnishes in the durian one of the strangest of fruits. It has been called "the king of fruits, as the orange is the queen," but there are many who entertain no liking for it.

There is this difficulty about the durian. Its consumption presents the same obstacle to enjoyment as a ripe cheese. To eat a durian one must first overcome one's sense of smell. The odor of the durian suggests limburger cheese, onion sauce, brown sherry and other incongruities. It has also been compared to the smell of a limekiln in full operation.

The Malays are excessively fond of the fruit, and those Europeans whose sense of smell is not overdelicate contend that the durian is like rich buttery custard flavored with almonds.

A British officer at Penang once dined a member of parliament about to leave for home. Among other delicacies an overripe durian was placed upon the table. The guest, on being pressed to partake of it, declined, with this remark:

"It may have been very good last season, but if you will excuse me I would rather not venture on it now."

The durian is as large as a man's head and is covered with sharp spines. It grows upon a large tree, somewhat similar to the walnut. When ripe it falls, and if it should strike any one the chances are that it would inflict damage. The natives, knowing the danger of a blow from a falling durian, stretch nets under the trees in populous places so that the fruit may be caught as it falls. —New York Sun.

Tariff Tax Always Added To the Cost of Articles

In France, Italy, and some other European countries a part of the municipal revenue is raised by duties on goods entering the towns. At the gates of such towns there is an official who collects this tax, and it is found that the difference in prices of articles purchased outside of the towns and within the towns is in nearly every instance exactly the amount of the duty. The same happens in trade between nations.

SON OF REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIER VISITS WAYNE

Incidents in the Pioneer Life of Nelson Moore. Among the Last of Sons of Revolutionary Soldiers.

Nelson Moore of Hordville, Nebraska, visited at Wayne Sunday, a guest at the home of his cousin, E. O. Gardner and family, and it was an opportunity to refresh memory as to some of his varied life history, which may be of interest, for he is one of the very few, if not the last one now living who is the son of a soldier of the Revolutionary war. One hundred and fifty years is a long period of time to be covered by two generations only.

King Moore, father of Nelson Moore, enlisted in the American army in November, 1779, and was then but sixteen or seventeen years of age, and served three years and seven months private and gunner, serving under Capt. Henry Burbeck and Col. John Crane. The records do not tell in what battles he took part, and he did not state in his application for pension which he was granted in 1818. He enlisted from West Point, New York, and from the family history we learn that he served as a drummer boy before that date, though probably not enlisted, as there is no record in war department of such service. He died at the age of 75 years in Chautauqua county, New York, leaving a wife and several children, of whom Mr. Moore is now sole survivor.

Nelson Moore was born in Chautauqua county, New York, April 12, 1830, when that country was an almost unbroken forest. At six years of age he was left fatherless, with two children in the family yet younger than he, and several older, but none old enough to help the mother much in the battle for a living. He says that he stayed a part of the time among relatives, and at an early age began to make his own way. His first work as freighter was hauling stone from the quarry to places where they were to be used in the construction of the first railroad in western New York, the old Erie road. Later he hauled the rails for use on that road, from the lake where they were shipped by water.

Railroad building was not then the science that it is today, and instead of hauling their own iron rails to the place where they were to be used, by their own power over the new track they had the work done by teams, hauling as far as 40 miles and stringing them out by the grade where the track was to be built. Then a gang of track layers were put out here and there to lay the new road. The grading was done by men with shovels, wagons or carts and by men and wheelbarrows for very short hauls.

At the age of 25 he left his native state, and journeyed by boat, rail and team to southern Minnesota, where he entered a piece of land, and later relinquished and went further west in the state, where he contracted for a fine farm and paid all he had—about $1,000 on the place. From here he went to Clayton county, Iowa, to visit a brother, and was there when the Pike's Peak gold fever broke out. He married in March, 1860, to Sophia Gardner, who with five children, is yet living. He with others fitted out and started for the land of gold. He spent seven years of the time between 1860 and '70 freighting on the plains and in the mountains, no venture in his line too hazardous to undertake.

He hauled wood and supplies for the government, at one time being engaged with a train of about forty wagons and more than 300 oxen for the motive power. The freight rate in those days for mountain hauling, was $1.70 per 100 pounds per 100 miles, and he made trips where the gross pay for the freight—amounted to $14,000 or over. He told of one little contract which he had with the government hauling wood across the Platte river during very cold weather. The stream was frozen partly over, but the channel was open in the middle. Six or eight yoke of oxen were strung out to each wagon so that some of them would be on good footing all of the time and with the drivers clinging to the ox-bows when they were going through the open water, the wood was moved.

Here he demonstrated to his satisfaction that whiskey was of no real benefit to a man, and he never used it in all the hardships he went through. But for this work he had to furnish it to those who worked, and they kept fires on either bank of the stream and both coffee and whiskey for the men, and those who used the coffee stood the work more hours a day than those who drank liquor.

In 1868 he sold part of his outfit, and with the other part returned to northeastern Iowa, buying a farm in Delaware county the following year which he settled down to improve, and remained here until sometime in the late '80's when he moved to Coleridge, which place was their home until they moved to Lincoln about three years ago, and are now planning or return to Lincoln or Coleridge for the remainder of their days.

At the age of 82 Mr. Moore is well and spry, and no one guesses within ten or fifteen years of his age, having always enjoyed almost perfect health, his only sickness being blood-poisoning resulting from an accident which cost him part of his left hand. As a result he went to a hospital and had the arm amputated near the shoulder and rallied to his usual good health, although upward of 75 years of age when the arm was lost.

Once only, and that after an absence of 38 years did he visit his native state, and then those whom he found of his boyhood days none were in a physical condition that compared with his, and when asked about it would tell that no one grows old in the west, and we think the saying is in a measure true.

Inured to hardship from his youth, he spent a large part of his life on the frontier amid privations that only the rugged could withstand, he is today apparently in perfect health, and one of the few people now living who can tell from personal knowledge of the men who fought for national independence from British rule.

In politics he has always been a republican, and is yet, but says that if he lives until November he will vote for Woodrow Wilson, for he does not think the candidates named by the other parties represent republicanism. While at Wayne he contracted for a modest tombstone to be placed on the family lot in the cemetery at Coleridge so that it will be there to mark the last resting-place of himself and worthy wife when they shall have closed their eyes to earthly scenes. So it is that after a life of wandering Coleridge is selected as the place that to them seems the most like home, and there they want to be taken when the end comes.

Military authorities and big game hunters are much interested in a new rifle sighting system that is designed to eliminate the necessity for estimating distance and adjusting sights in long range shooting.

Of the Remington negative angle system, as the invention is called, Sir George Greenhill, a noted English ballistic expert, said in a recent lecture: "The new system proves that since the origin of firearms our method of sighting in active service rifle firing has been wrong. The invention is likely to bring about a revolution in the art of shooting."

In brief, the system utilizes the well-known fact that the apparent size of an object decreases as the distance increases. The user of the negative angle sight is instructed to sight at a point the height of the object under it. If the arm were the army rifle and the target a man, the point of aiming would be about 5 feet 6 inches below the man's feet. With the regulation ammunition, as furnished for the army rifle, the negative angle system will insure hits on the mark target at all ranges from 100 to 825 yards, which is an increase of about 300 yards over the range of the present battle sight.

At first it would appear that some trouble might be met in sighting. However, no difficulty whatever is found in aiming at a point 5 feet 6 inches below a man's feet, particularly as the man is conveniently on the spot to afford a gauge, very much like a foot rule photographed with another object to indicate comparative heights.

The new system is the invention of H. Ommundsen, an Englishman, who won the King's prize at a recent English national shoot, and who has been high up in the same contest on several other occasions.

That the system is applicable to all kinds of game shooting with a rifle is evident, as to do away with guessing at distances must inevitably help the hunter to increase his field averages.

At the tournament of the New Jersey State Rifle Association last week the negative angle system was given a rigid test and conclusively proved its value and utility.

More Seed Corn Experience

Aug. Hohneke of Hoskins was here Friday, returning from a visit to a farm which he has near Randolph. He is one of the good farmers who has for the past six or seven years made a practice of getting his seed corn early and caring for it properly. He had gathered a few ears from the edge of the field while on his way to town and left one of them with Phil H. Kohl, who now has it hanging in his window. Mr. Hohneke tells us that this is from seed of his selection from a start he bought about six years ago, and that in that time he has worked a gradual improvement in the corn by selecting his seed early and always picking for a certain type of ear, his system of selecting being very much like that described in this paper last week. He grows a yellow dent corn and the seed is so nearly pure that he never finds an ear with a white cob. He has about eight or ten bushels of seed already selected for next year and he will have no trouble about a stand of corn.

Among the parent political reforms and the equal of any in its help toward independent voting was the adoption of the "Kangaroo" ballot, as an eccentric Iowa friend used to call the Australian ballot. It disfranchised the old gentleman who thus named it, for he could not be persuaded to enter a booth and vote on the "foreign" ballot; but it did and yet helps many a man to vote his convictions in spite of the political boss if a voter so desires. By the way, it was not a republican legislature that placed this law on the statutes of Nebraska. Like many good laws it came in spite of the republicans and politicians.

WAVES OF LIGHT.

They Vary In Length and on That Account Vary In Color.

OUR SUNLIGHT IS PURE WHITE

The Arc Light Is Its Closest Rival, With Its 10,000 Candle Power Per Inch—The Way a Human Being With X-Ray Eyes Would Be Handicapped.

Light travels at a speed of 186,000 miles a second. The source of all light, except the light from fireflies and their kin, is a substance raised to a temperature sufficient to set up waves in the surrounding ether. Light waves vary in length between 1-33400 and 1-65000 of an inch, the first being extreme red and the second being extreme violet. Rays of white light have a length of 1-45000 of an inch. The sun is a great mass of white hot matter.

In an arc lamp it is the white hot particles of carbon floating between the two electrodes which produce light. In the incandescent lamp it is the hair-pin filament inside the glass globe which, when heated by electricity, gives off light waves. In gas and oil lamps light is produced by the heated particles of carbon in the flame above the wick or mantle. The eye can stand without tiring a brilliancy of about five candlepower per square inch of surface. The ordinary candle flame gives from two to three candlepower per square inch, while the sun at zenith gives 600,000 candlepower per square inch. The arc light ranks next to sunlight, with 10,000 candlepower per inch and the best tungsten filament incandescents give about 1,000 candlepower.

The prism shows us that white light is composed of a happy blend of all the colors of the spectrum. The sun gives the only pure white light, with the arc lamp a close second, and the metal filament incandescents taking third place. Sky light, such as comes from the north on a clear day, is bluish white. Gas mantles give a greenish light, open flame a yellow light and kerosene an orange light.

In the dark no color exists. The color of light depends upon the length of the waves. The light source which we know as red gives off only waves of a length to produce that particular color. A body appears red because its surface absorbs all the other waves and reflects the red waves back into the eye. A thing looks black when it is capable of absorbing all the colors at once.

Light rays, being in active motion, produce heat when they meet with resistance in their path. This is why black clothing is warmer in summer than white clothing, the resistance being on the surface of the white clothing and nearer the skin when we wear black.

The eyes have only a certain range, weak enough at best. As we all know, there are times when all appears black to us and yet animals can see. The trouble is the faint light rays move too slowly to be registered on the human retina. The X ray has proved beyond a doubt that there are light rays which move too fast for human eyes to register. This light penetrates books, wood, paper and even human flesh.

With the X rays to assist our eyes we can see the bones in our arm without bothering to remove our shirt. But a man with X ray eyes would be sadly handicapped in this world, for he could see nothing but solids, such as earths and metals, and would be unable to see a board fence at all. To us all is darkness beyond what our eyes will register.

Light rays themselves are invisible. When they move through the ether alone our eyes cannot see them; consequently all is total darkness. But when they meet with the resistance of our atmosphere, producing heat, they register on the retina, and behold, we can see. As the atmosphere thins rapidly as we go upward, so, in proportion, the air resistance diminishes, and consequently the heat of the sun seems to grow less. This explains why the tops of very high mountains are always covered with snow.—New York Press.

We cannot string out telephone calls for a day or even for an hour. We must give immediate service. We must have wires ready at all times—a separate pair of wires for each party who desires to talk.

We cannot use all our property all the time—the public demands that we must have lines constantly in reserve to meet unexpected needs.

LEASING RAMS TO IMPROVE SHEEP

Immeasurable improvement in local flocks has resulted in various sections of the country where high class rams have been leased for service by their owners, writes G. H. Dancy in Country Gentleman. A "typy," prepotent male will exert a marked influence in bettering the character of the progeny as regards quality, conformation and constitutional vigor. S. M. Cleaver, secretary of the American Delaine Merino association, who at present resides in Ohio, has leased his stock rams according to this plan for the past twenty-five years. Formerly when he lived in Pennsylvania his sires were important in improving the quality of the local sheep breeding industry along Merino lines. One of the stock rams would remain with a flock for twenty days. During the height of the breeding season Mr. Cleaver charged $2 for each ewe served by the ram, while during the early or the very late periods of the season, when his males were not in such keen demand, he charged only a dollar.

These rams were individuals of outstanding merit, such as the average small operator could not afford to purchase, yet by this efficient system of public service he could temporarily obtain an excellent flock header with which to cross and mate his ewes. Mr. Cleaver usually maintains eight or ten stock rams that he uses in service in his own flock, besides leasing them to the sheep owning public. In 1910 his rams bred thirty-eight flocks in five different states, while last year the males were used in service in twenty-seven flocks. Olan Tangy, one of the best Merino rams on the Cleaver farm, served 276 ewes of six different flocks during 1911. Gold Coin is another of the Cleaver stock rams that formerly were instrumental in bettering the quality of the progeny of many Merino flocks.

With reference to the greatest need of the American sheep breeding industry Mr. Cleaver remarked: "American sheep need better form and conformation; they produce enough wool under existing conditions. What they lack are the essential vigor and vitality that characterize the foundation stock of the older countries. In some of the breeds highly marked flocks are producing wrinkles out of all proportion to their usefulness. The wrinkle is only an indication of a dense fleece, and where it is developed to an exaggerated condition it reacts as a strong drain on the vitality of the animal. In some cases the tendency is to breed for bumper wool production to such an extent that the sheep must yield more wool than they are able to support. "Recently I saw a ewe that had produced hardly more than enough mutton for a healthy man's dinner. She was of a delicate and frail type and conformation, yet she was positively loaded with lustrous wool. In her case conformation and vigor had been sacrificed for bumper fleece production. The fleece was the product of intensive operations in selecting and mating."

Growth in the Teat Duct.

Sometimes wartlike growths are found high up in the teat duct or at the upper part of the teat, around the edges of the milk cistern of the udder, says Dr. A. S. Alexander in the Farm Journal. These can not safely or successfully be treated by use of a teat bistoury. It is unwise to slit through an obstruction unless it is at the tip of the teat. The new method is to dissect out the growth or tumor. Afterward antiseptics are used daily and the wound left open, allowing the milk to ooze and drip away without milking until the inside wound is healed; then the outer wound is closed with sutures, disinfected and painted with iodoform-collodion or bandaged with surgeon's plaster.

The Intelligent Horse.

Every horse carries an index to his temper and intelligence in his face. The teachable, tractable animal is broad and flat between the eyes, the bony ridge of his face dishing slightly from the point where the face narrows toward the nostrils. His ears are well set, sensitive and far apart, with a well defined ridge of bone extending across the top of the head between them. Always feel for this ridge when judging a horse. The eye should be large, clear and bright, with a prominent ridge of bone along the inner and upper edge of the socket.

Ensilage For Sheep.

Ensilage for sheep has long been condemned, but in the west feeders are beginning to find out that if the corn is well ripened and properly ensiled it is a most valuable food to finish fattening sheep after the crops are gone.

Dairy Notes.

If the pasture is not available silage or a good soiling crop will be absolutely indispensable.

Muddy and unclean stable yards are always sources of loss because of their insanitary condition.

In selecting the dairy stock that you will put upon your farm first choose the breed and then the type.

The cow that does not pay her board should be permitted to find a boarding place on somebody else's farm.

GERMAN POSTOFFICES.

A Sarcastic Writer Frees His Mind About Their Methods.

The postoffices in Germany are peculiar institutions, says F. Harris Deans in the Wide World Magazine. They are a farsighted people, the Germans, and they allow for expansion. If there are any postoffices in the country of less than three stories, I must have overlooked them. Every floor is divided into about four departments, and every department has about a dozen offices.

In some of the smaller towns where business is not very brisk the staff consists of one official. You have to make an appointment with him if you want to be served. Entering on the ground floor you run round and tap with your money at every pigeonhole until he answers. You then ask him for a stamp, whereupon he orders you to go to No. 1 pigeonhole and wait there till he comes. You wait patiently for about five minutes and then he pops his head out of No. 3 and wants to know if you've gone to sleep. When you ask for a five cent stamp he says, "Oh, I thought it was a penny one you want," and instructs you to try at No. 7. At No. 7 he probably discovers he has run out of five cent stamps and you have to go to windows No. 3 and No. 11 and get two two cent ones and a one cent.

By this time you are getting quite friendly, and when you ask him where the telegraph office is he will probably get out his guidebook and hunt the place out for you. He may even offer to take you there himself, as he's the telegraph clerk as well and has got to get there anyhow in order to attend to you.

The Germans themselves when they go to buy a stamp make a day of it and take their lunch with them. It is quite a pretty sight to see the mother and a group of children sitting on the stairs, eating their bread and sausage and wondering whether father will remember them when he comes back with the stamp.

A CHEMICAL FURY.

Fluorin is a Rigid Gas That No Substance Can Resist.

Curiously enough, although that fury of the chemical world, fluorin, raises the deuce, generally speaking, it exists peacefully in company with calcium in fluor spar and also in a few other compounds.

Although fluorin was known a good many years ago, it long resisted the efforts of chemists to isolate it—that is, to prepare it in a pure state unaltered chemically with other substances—for the instant the compound containing it was torn apart the free fluorin attacked and combined with whatever substance composed the vessel containing it.

Fluorin is a rigid gas that nothing can resist. It combines with all metals, explosively with some, or, if they are already combined with some other nonmetallic element, it mercilessly tears them away from it and takes them to itself.

In uniting with sodium, potassium, calcium, magnesium and aluminum the metals become heated, even to redness, by the fervor of fluorin's embrace. Iron filings slightly warm burst into brilliant scintillations when exposed to fluorin. Manganese does the same. Even the noble metals, which at melting point proudly resist the fascinations of oxygen, succumb to this chemical fury at moderate temperatures.

Glass is softened at once and water ceases to be water by contact with this gas, which, combined with its hydrogen, at the same moment forms the acid, glass dissolving hydrofluoric acid and liberates ozone.—Harper's Weekly.

Look not at thistles eating flesh, but look at them suffering punishment.—Chinese Proverb.

MARK TWAIN BESIEGED.

Absurd, Impudent, Touching Requests Were Always Pouring In.

Mark Twain paid for his celebrity in the amount of "freak" mail received by him, according to Albert Bigeow Paine, his biographer, writing in Harper's Magazine.

"He was in a constant state of siege," says Mr. Paine, "besought by all varieties and conditions of humanity for favors such as only human need and abnormal ingenuity can invent. His ever increasing mail presented a marvelous exhibition of the human species on undress parade.

"Young men wrote requesting verses or sentiments to be inscribed in young ladies' autograph albums. Young girls wrote asking him to write a story of his life to be used as a school composition. Men starting obscure papers coolly invited him to lend them his name as editor, assuring him that he would be put to no trouble and that it would help advertise his books. A fruitful humorist wrote that he had invented some 5,000 puns and invited Mark Twain to father this terrible progeny in book form for a share of the returns. The list is endless. He said once:

"The symbol of the race ought to be a human being carrying an ax, for every human being has one concealed about him somewhere and is always seeking the opportunity to grind it."

"Letters came queerly addressed. There is one envelope still in existence which bears Clemens' name in elaborate design and a very good silhouette likeness, the work of some talented artist. 'Mark Twain, United States,' was a common address. 'Mark Twain, Somewhere,' mailed in a foreign country, reached him promptly, and 'Mark Twain, Anywhere,' found its way to Hartford in due season.

"Then there was a letter (though this was later; he was abroad at the time) mailed by Brander Matthews and Francis Wilson, addressed 'Mark Twain, God Knows Where.' It found him after traveling half around the world on its errand. In his answer he said, 'He did.' Then some one sent him a letter addressed 'The Devil Knows Where.' This also reached him, and he answered, 'He did too.'

"Surely this was the furthest horizon of fame."

Scientific Language.

"No wonder," said a poet, "that no one cares to read the works of Haeckel, Darwin, Spencer, Huxley and so on. These men have much to say, but they don't know how to say it. They have never taken the time to learn to write." He drew his notebook from his pocket. "When Professor Thompson," he resumed, "hit on a new variety of cathode rays, he announced his discovery in these terms: 'Of an orthocathodic character, a defectible fluorescent excitant; of a paracathodic character, a defectible fluorescent nonexcitant; of a dincathodic character, a nondefectible fluorescent nonexcitant; and so on for forty or fifty pages.'"

He Certainly Liked Oysters.

A mighty oyster eater figures in the "Physiologie du Gout." "While I was at Versailles," writes Brillat-Savarin, "I frequently met M. Laperte, who was very fond of oysters, but complained he could never get his fill of them. I resolved to satisfy him for once and invited him to dinner. I kept company up to the third dozen and then allowed him to go on alone. He swallowed oysters steadily for more than an hour, and I had to stop him after the thirty-second dozen, just as he remarked that he was beginning to enjoy his treat. We dined, and Laperte acquitted himself with the vigor and appetite of a man who had long been fasting."—London Chronicle.

Literal Surgery.

"Did the surgeon, when consulted, write that man he was going to sew up his heart with gold wire?" "No, he didn't write; he wired him."—Baltimore American.

THE HORSEMAN.

To fatten and fit up farm horse stock for sale is not a difficult task.

Handling colts from the start obviates breaking and substitutes training.

For horses doing a considerable amount of road work there is no grain equal to oats.

A properly trained horse will stop as soon as anything goes wrong with the harness or his shoes.

The supply of good 1,500 to 1,800 pound work horses is always behind the demand.

Don't feed carrots too liberally; they are a laxative. Cut in slices so they can be chewed up.

If you find it necessary to change the horse's feed, cut the amount down for a time.

FLAVORS OF BUTTER.

Control of Bacteria Essential in Preparing the Cream.

The flavors of butter are the result of bacterial fermentations in milk and cream, and the kind of flavor depends upon the fermentations that predominate, writes J. Michels in the Country Gentleman. In practically all milk and cream there are half a dozen kinds of bacteria, each producing a different fermentation product. Some of these bacteria produce a bitter flavor, others a rancid, fishy or oily flavor, all being objectionable. The ideal butter flavor is produced by the lactic acid bacteria, the kind that sour milk and cream and the only kind that are desirable in making good butter.

The problem with the buttermaker, then, is how to get rid of the objectionable bacteria or how to obtain an exclusive development of the lactic acid bacteria as possible. If the following suggestions are carried out carefully little if any trouble will be experienced from undesirable bacteria:

First, get clean milk and cream and handle them under clean conditions. The cleaner the conditions under which the milk is produced and handled in the manufacture of butter the less trouble there will be from undesirable growths. Second, since milk and cream always contain some objectionable bacteria effort must be made to suppress these as far as possible during the ripening of the cream. This is best done by adding lactic acid bacteria to the cream in the form of pure cultures, usually spoken of as starters.

Another aid in controlling the objectionable bacteria in cream is to avoid too high or too low ripening temperatures. As a rule from 65 to 70 degrees F. will give the best results in ripening

The Holstein cow Valdessa Scott IL recently completed a seven day record, in which time she produced 656.9 pounds of milk, 33.50 pounds of fat, 4.875 pounds of butter, 80 per cent fat. She has also completed a thirty day record, producing 2,293.9 pounds of milk, 131.616 pounds of fat and 164.27 pounds of butter. This wonderful cow was bred by B. B. Hardy, Owosso, Mich., and was born Feb. 26, 1904. She is owned by Bernhard Meyer of Riverside farm, Finderne, N. J.

cream. Strong flavors are liable to develop at high temperatures, and bitter and musty flavors are likely to develop at low ones. Higher ripening temperatures have the further objection of injuring the texture of the butter.

The best flavored butter is obtained by ripening or souring cream until from 5 to 6 per cent of acid has been developed. When the acidity goes beyond this point the lactic acid bacteria become very feeble, while some of the undesirable forms become relatively strong.

It is for this season that the flavor of butter always suffers when the cream is oversoured. A large amount of the butter that is made during the summer months is injured in quality by oversouring of the cream.

All cream should be strained before being churned. This removes the possibility of white specks in the butter, which usually consist of curd or dried particles of cream. The butter should be churned until the granules are about half the size of a pea. When larger than this it is difficult to remove the buttermilk and to distribute the salt. When smaller some of the fine grains are liable to pass out with the buttermilk. The percentage of water in the butter is also reduced.

In washing the butter one washing, in which as much water is used as there was cream, is usually sufficient. Too much washing removes that much desired, delicate flavor of the butter.

Colic In Horses.

As to the treatment for colic in horses, give in ordinary cases a pint of raw linseed oil, one ounce of turpentine and one ounce of laudanum or half to one ounce of fluid extract of cannabis India, rectal injections of soapy warm water and glycerin and lose no time in getting the trained veterinarian if the attack proves obstinate. The less home treatment given for enteritis and stomach flat the better will be the chance of success in professional treatment.

MIXED GRAIN FOR FATTENING HOGS

A subscriber who has a bunch of shoats weighing about seventy five pounds asks for information concerning the cheapest grain mixture that can be used in making rapid growth and large gains, says Iowa Homestead. He says that barley is worth 45 cents a bushel, rye 68 cents, corn 70 cents and oats 30 cents, while oilmeal sells for $2 per hundred pounds.

This is a combination of feeds that should enable a good feeder to get good gains on a bunch of healthy hogs. Oilmeal, at the figure mentioned, is very high in price, and during the summer season while grass is available we cannot recommend it very strongly, because it would be an easy matter to throw away the entire profit of a feeding period by using too much oilmeal.

A mixture composed of equal parts of barley, rye and corn, with the grains fed whole and soaked for twenty

The quality of Berkshire grades and crosses is unusually high, says H. T. Morgan in the Country Gentleman. They have long been recognized as profitable killers, cutting out good hams, tidy shoulders, extra good backs and loins, with a high proportion of side and belly cuts. In fact, many Berkshire grades are almost ideal bacon hogs. The demand both for foreign and domestic markets is for lighter, leaner meats, finished at earlier ages. Berkshires are right in line with this demand, as they will stand liberal feeding, and come to market at eight or ten months in prime condition for slaughter without being overfat.

ty-four hours, will be found to be palatable, and we believe it can be fed advantageously once or possibly twice a day. It will increase its palatability if one part of oilmeal is mixed with ten or twelve parts of this combination. As barley and rye are richer in flesh forming constituents than corn these help to balance the ration and lessen the necessity of adding high priced concentrates. If a grinding outfit is available we believe it will pay, and pay well, to grind the barley and rye, in which case it can be made into a thick slop and fed to good advantage in that way. It might be practical also to grind oats and use a combination composed of equal parts of barley, oats, rye and corn, but in some instances objection is raised to oats, owing to the fact that the hulls often irritate the lining of the throat and induce a great deal of coughing. Because of this many successful swine breeders do not advise the use of oats under any circumstances. Whether the grain is soaked whole or ground and fed in the form of slop, we would not in either case advise using the mixture alone, but would recommend feeding a little dry corn at least once a day.

If these hogs have access to grass it is not necessary to feed heavily on grain during the next two months unless it is the intention to finish them for market as early as possible. They ought to do well during the next few weeks on good grass and two pounds of grain a day each, and on this ration they ought to make gains amounting to very nearly one pound daily each.
