The Parcels Post—Will it Benefit?

It has come at last. It has been fought for and fought against—in the halls of congress. Some of those who were for it were thus for selfish purposes; and this was true of some of those who opposed the law. Now that it is the law, it is time for an adjustment of business to meet changed conditions. It will not help the express monopoly, that is sure—it may help the consumer and it may be detrimental to the retail dealer in the smaller places—that we think, in a measure, depends upon the dealer. Why the dealer of a small place may not use this method of delivery as well as the merchant of the larger place we cannot see. There will be one feature to contend with—the merchant of the larger place will endeavor to use the parcels post, and as a matter of defence the smaller dealer will have to use it also. They cannot succeed by opposing modern business methods. The old time stage driver opposed the steam railway, but he did not stop it. He should have learned to drive an engine and got on and rode with it.

The New York Evening Journal of last Friday devotes a page to an exhaustive article and reasons it out that the "country storekeeper" has as good if not better chance under the new law than the big department house. Here are a few paragraphs from their article:

If editors throughout the country and the storekeepers throughout the country will combine, if they will use the parcels post instead of opposing it, they will soon find themselves possessors of a new prosperity, and competitors on a real and a successful scale with the great mail order houses that have done so much injury of late years to the prosperity of the local merchant.

No mail order house can possibly succeed in a community as well as the local merchant, if the local merchant plans his business as intelligently and economically as is done by his big distant competitors. Hitherto the great mail order houses have had the advantage in buying and distributing.

Manufacturers were compelled to deal through jobbers and mail order houses. They could not reach the consumer direct.

But, with the parcels post and through the parcels post, and with the aid of the country newspapers and the country storekeeper, manufacturers hereafter will be able to deal direct with the consumer, and the great mail order houses will find that they have real competition—an excellent thing for everybody.

No little merchant can possibly carry the enormous stock carried by the mail order house. And being unable to carry the stock, under the old system, he could not deliver it. The mail order house had the advantage of sending their goods by freight at a low price.

If the farmer ordered something light that did not make it worth while to ship by freight, he increased his order by adding to it nails, or a plowshare, or something heavy enough to bring the weight of his shipment up to the minimum of freight shipping. He got the goods delivered very cheaply by the mail order house.

Under the parcels post, which will constantly improve, the light article can be shipped to the consumer at a minimum charge for shipment.

This will increase incidentally by tens and hundreds of millions annually the income of the railroads, although the presidents of such railroads, who are largely in the pay of express companies, do not realize that as yet.

With the parcels post working, the local merchant will have his catalogues instead of a great stock in trade. The manufacturer will advertise through the local newspaper, and create trade for the local merchant.

The merchant will have the catalogue. He will be the agent. He will be on the spot, knowing the citizens. He will know the quality of goods and be able to guarantee them. And he will be there to be questioned and to answer if the goods are not satisfactory.

The customer will come to him, give his order for the goods very gladly, and have the dealer make his profit, as he should make it. And the dealer will be able to have the goods shipped direct from the manufacturer, to his own individual customers, and the country dealer can have the goods sent, if he chooses, through the parcels post, with his own name fastened upon the parcel.

C. E. Society Elects New Officers

At a business meeting of the C. E. society of the Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening of this week the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Bernice Moler, vice-president, Ruth White; secretary, Henrietta Moler; treasurer, Paul Mines; chairman of the Lookout committee, Lucile Corkey; chairman of the prayer meeting committee, Miss Edna Neely; chairman of the social committee, Erma James; chairman of the music committee, Elizabeth Mines. It was decided to have a special rally of all the young people of the church on Sunday evening, January 12th, at which time a special program will be given, and talks by prominent young Christians in Wayne will be made. A mid-winter automobile trip to the home of Mrs. John Grier, a former member of the society, was also planned for Friday evening of this week.

A Record Breaking

D. A. Jones owns a Duroc Jersey sow which we believe has broken all records, smashed 'em, having given birth to 30 pigs in one litter the first of the week. If anyone knows of a bigger bunch of brothers and sister pigs let's hear about it. The mother is a three-year-old sow which Mr. Jones purchased from the Wm. Morgan herd, and her weight is about 500 pounds. She saved 13 of the farrow.

Mrs. C. H. Bright was at Randolph Wednesday, where she went upon invitation to give a talk before the Women's Club of that place on the Philippines and customs, a subject with which she is familiar and on which she gives an interesting and instructive talk.

Obituary

Mrs. Elvina Tongeman Hopp was born Aug. 14, 1863, at Gornaville, Iowa. When six years old she came to Nebraska with her parents and has lived in the state most of the time since. She died at her home in Wayne on the morning of January 1, 1913, after a few days of suffering from an abscess of the brain. Little apprehension was felt for her condition at first but later, when she became worse, Dr. Conley of Sioux City was called in consultation and they at once pronounced the case as fatal which it soon proved to be.

When Miss Tongeman was twentyone years old, she was married to Mr. Jacob Hopp, who still survives her. Besides her husband she leaves four children, Lola, Walter, Richard and Luella. One little daughter, Lily, having died some years ago. Two brothers, H. H. Tongeman, Winside, and J. W. Tongeman, Talmadge, and three sisters, Miss Anna Tongeman, Colorado City; Mrs. M. Barstler, Nebraska City and Mrs. L. Risser, Colorado City, mourn her loss.

Mrs. Hopp was a member of the Evangelical church near Talmage, Neb. Here she was baptized and confirmed when a girl, and has since lived in faithful obedience to its teachings and requirements. During her illness she manifested a resigned spirit. She humbly trusted in the love and power of her Savior. She lived for her family. Her children rise up to call her blessed and for them she faithfully wrought and in them she distilled noble qualities. Quiet and patient she spent her days at her home serving in the interest of those she loved.

The funeral services were held this afternoon at the Baptist church, conducted by the pastor. Tomorrow morning the body will be shipped to Osage Precinct, near Talmage, where it will be interred.

Sheriff and Marshal Take Joy Ride

Last Friday evening Sheriff Porter received an urgent invitation to get a load of brave armed men and come to the country home of E. Harringfeldt where the women were being held prisoners by a couple of desperados, who had been seen lurking in the neighborhood—the man of the house being away. The informant urged great haste, and stated, we are told, that the telephone wires had been cut. So Sheriff Porter secured the aid of chief of Police Geo. Minor and an automobile and driver and George says they only hit the high places between town and their place of expected encounter. When they arrived all appeared as usual, and the lady of the house came to the door in response to the knock of the officer, and was surprised to receive such a visit, as there had been no disturbance there, and the husband who had been away had returned. All being quiet there the officers started for the McEachen home, from whence it was said that the message came, to make further inquiry as to the reason of the call. But as they came to the schoolhouse they found most of the people of the neighborhood there, and the young man who had called the officer was invited out for an explanation. He thought when the interview ended that he was getting off pretty cheap if allowed to go free upon payment of the expense of the trip.

Special Meetings in Leslie Precinct

The M. E. church, south of Wakefield is enjoying two weeks of special evangelistic services, and the interest is growing each evening. The pastor, Rev. Burke, is being assisted by C. F. N. Clasen of Wayne. This church is one of the oldest in Wayne county and has had a long and honorable history as an effective agency for promoting the moral and spiritual welfare of the southeastern part of this county.

Births and Deaths

The year just closed has been a very healthy one. According to the birth and death reports filed with F. S. Beneshopf, who keeps the official record, there were 45 deaths, 23 of them being female and 22 male. Of 97 births reported 54 were girls and 43 boys. This is not the record for the county, but for Wayne and vicinity.

Perkins-Bruner

On New Years day at the home of the bride's mother, Mr. Erlon Perkins and Miss Edna Bruner were united in marriage, Rev. William Gorst, officiating. Only the immediate relatives and friends of the young people were present at the ceremony. The wedded pair were heartily congratulated by their many friends. The rooms were tastefully decorated in pink and white, and natural flowers. At high noon the wedding march played by Miss Hazel Whalen, softly rendered through the house, while the bridal party took their places under a beautifully decorated arch under which the impressive ring ceremony took place. After the ceremony a three-course wedding dinner was served by the bride's mother, assisted by the Misses Georgia Bush and Hazel Whalen.

The bride was dressed in a blue traveling suit with gloves and hat to match. The groom wore a suit of conventional black.

The bride has grown to womanhood in Wayne and is well known for her many accomplishments. The groom is a prosperous business man and is well liked by all who know him.

They were the recipients of many costly and beautiful presents. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Perkins left Wednesday afternoon for a short visit after which they will live on a farm northwest of town.

A Guest.

Marriage

On January 1st, 1913, at St. Paul's Ev. Lutheran church at 11 a. m., Mr. August Kruse and Miss Martha Linke of Wayne, Neb., were united in Holy Matrimony, Rev. J. Kuhn, the pastor, officiating. The wedding was witnessed by a small company of the near relatives and friends. The groom is a prosperous young farmer and of splendid reputation, living about seven and one-half miles northwest of Wayne and the bride is well known and popular young lady of Wayne. They have bright prospects for the future. They will reside on the farm of the groom's father.

Following the wedding ceremony at the church the bridal party and relatives and guests to the number of about 35 went to the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Henry Linke, where an elegant 3-course dinner awaited the party. All enjoyed the reception, and extended hearty congratulations to the bride and groom.

The bride was handsomely gowned in a blue whipcord suit, while the groom wore the sober suit which so well becomes a man on this great event of his life. The bride's brother, Court Linke, was groomsmen and the groom's sister, Miss Minnie Kruse, was bridesmaid. Many beautiful and valuable presents were bestowed upon the worthy couple. A number of guests from out of town were present.

No Back Talk in Family

Frank Broekeimer and Freida Maier secured marriage licences from Judge Cowan at Stanton last week. It was strange romance which reunited the parents of each of the young people after a separation of many years which was unearched. Both of these young people are twenty-three years of age. The father of Frank Broekeimer and the father of Freida Maier were boyhood companions in Germany. Both came to America and lost trace of each other. To Mr. Broekeimer was born a deaf and dumb son; to Mr. Maier was born a deaf and dumb daughter. Both children were sent to the state school at Omaha. Through this fact the long lost friends became once more united and their reunion was brought to them by the betrothal of their children. Both of them are deaf and dumb and they are both well educated.

Governor Aldrich has announced the appointment of Rev. J. R. Gettys to succeed Dr. I. F. Roach as a member of the normal board of education. Mr. Gettys was pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of David City, Nebraska, during the Governor's residence there and is now located at Grand Island. He has a wide acquaintance in Nebraska, and his friends say he will be a man of influence and power as a member of the normal board.

Obituary

(By Her Pastor)

Martha Emily Babier was born near Florence Ontario, Canada, on the 2nd day of February, 1834, and died at Wayne, Neb., on the 29th day of Dec., 1912, at the age of 78 years, 10 months and 27 days.

Miss Babier grew to womanhood in her native Canadian home, and was married to Otis Dygert in 1852, at the age of 18 years. Not very long after her marriage she and her husband, along with her parents and other members of their family moved to Kansas where they lived several years just preceding the civil war and where they were much concerned about the fighting in the John Brown raids in the interest of freedom for the slaves.

A short time before the war they returned to Canada and a little later moved to Iowa, then to a homestead near New Castle, Neb., where Mr. Dygert died, leaving his wife and her only child, Matilda, who at that time was Mrs. Mark Stringer, and lived on a homestead just across the road from her parents. Some years after the death of Mr. Dygert, his widow became acquainted with Rev. Abel Potter, then a presiding elder in the United Brethren Church and they were married in 1873, at Elk Point, S. D. Mr. Potter died about nine months later and on the 12th day of December, 1875, Mrs. Potter and Norman G. Bentley were married at Elk Point, where Mr. Bentley was teaching school. After a year they moved to a farm near Canton where they resided until 1885, when they came to Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Stringer having preceded them.

At the age of eight years, Martha personally accepted the Savior in the home of her father, who was a minister in the Methodist Protestant church. A little later on she became a member. At the time of her second marriage she transferred her membership to the United Brethren church along with her husband. But on her marriage to Mr. Bentley she joined the Methodist Episcopal church at Canton, S. D., and her membership was transferred to Wayne on the 12th of March, 1885, becoming a charter member here.

In every walk of life this woman has been faithful to the noblest principles and the purest and best service. Never selfish, but generous almost beyond measure, she ever set herself to serve in the name of Christ. The present pastor of this church will never forget how that years ago her house grounds were a veritable flower garden and that for years no Sunday morning service was held without its bouquet or pot of flowers placed alongside the pulpit by these hands now cold and white in death. She used to say, "They are so pretty and they remind one of the goodness of God." Her daughter and son-in-law both preceded her to the Celestial City and the only near relatives remaining are her grandchildren, Mark, George, Otis and Caroline Stringer and Mrs. Alice Stringer Hensell.

Along with her husband of noblest faith and service in the kingdom of God, long since an Octogenarian, bows in sweet peace to the Divine will and awaits with brightest visions his own translation whenever it shall please the Heavenly Father.

More than four months this naturally strong physique has contended bravely against an insidious and distressing disease. But faith and fortitude have ever risen above all distresses and they have been months of sweet composure and confidence on the part of both Mr. and Mrs. Bentley.

Today the whole community is the debtor of both of these saints of God for pure and unselfish lives of unfailing and generous service and far unwavering friendship. Their memory whether in life or death will ever be a rich inheritance, and especially to the grandchildren.

Carl Richie, who moved from Wayne county to Eagle Butte, South Dakota, about two years ago, was here this week looking after his farm southwest of Wayne. While calling to keep in good standing at the Democrat office he told us something of the new country to which he went and which he likes very well. He is running a garage, and thus in driving, sees much of the country. They raise good crops of wheat and all other small grains, and potatoes do so well that they are not very valuable. A test of the soil and climatic conditions convinces him that they are in the alfalfa belt, and land that will grow that crop is bound to become valuable. He returned Wednesday.

At the L. M. Owen sale to be held at his place February 5th, horses will be one of the big features. They range in size from matched draft mares weighing upward of 3,000 to the span to a Shetland pony which weighs only about 300 pounds. The little folks have an eye on this pony, and all hope that their papa buys it. In addition to the horses of which there will be 30, there will be a dozen thoroughbred Shorthorn cattle, half of them young bulls, and 4 cows. Remember the date.

LOST—In Wayne, December 25, a lady's gold ring with opal setting. A liberal reward will be given for its return to Mrs. G. J. Hess, Wayne.

Prof. Ben F. Robinson was here from Bancroft Wednesday on his way to visit at Carroll and Stokes.

C., so as to be there at inauguration time—cause Pingrey wants to see a democratic president made out of a private citizen, and wants to know what sort of looking man it is who has the responsibility of naming a whole lot of postmasters in places like Wayne.

This year we have an early Easter. Lent begins February 12th and March 23rd is Easter. Easter has never been celebrated earlier except in 1818, when March 22nd was observed. But there is a claim that the day was then calculated wrong, as the day is reckoned from the movements of the moon, this might happen.

John Grimsley and wife entertained at a Christmas dinner in their elegant new modern home last week a party of neighbors, and we venture that all enjoyed the occasion and pleasant surroundings greatly. Among the guests were Henry Kellog and wife and their grandsons, Clarence Corbit and family and P. M. Corbit.

L. M. Owen is already beginning to plan for his big sale which is dated for February 5th. Though the sale is a month or more away. He is wise to do this, for too many farmers who are going to have a sale neglect a lot of details that are important because they do not have time the last few days and had not fixed things before hand.

C. W. Simon and wife of Omaha came to Wayne for Christmas this year, being members of the dinner party at Frank Martin's home, Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Simon being sisters. He is also related to the Laughlins. Mr. Simon came to Wayne county twenty-eight years ago and helped start the town of Carroll, establishing the first newspaper there, naming it after Horace Greeley's great paper, The Tribune. At that time Frank Berry was running the only store at Carroll, but soon after another store was established. But Wayne looked like a more inviting newspaper field, and Mr. Simon moved here and changed the name of the paper to The Journal. He later sold to W. S. Goldie and he in turn sold to some other man seeking the short cut to fame and fortune and Mr. Simon thinks that beyond a doubt it could be proven that both the Herald and the Democrat are direct descendants of the paper he started at Carroll. Mr. Simon is superintendent of tank wagons at Omaha for the Standard Oil Company, a position which keeps himself and an automobile busy all of the time.

There will be a meeting of the lovers of dancing at Carroll Friday evening to organize a club for future dances. After the organization is formed the music will start for the first hop of the new year.

Paul Henyon, who came here from Sterling, Illinois, to spend Christmas with Wayne friends and relatives, went to Bloomfield last Friday to spend a few days with his uncle, Charles Jeffrey, returning Monday. After visiting his sister here a few days he will return to Sterling where he is now located.

The holidays brought about a complete reunion of the Juhlin family at the parents' home in this city. In addition to the sons and daughters at home, John and Bert came from Kansas City and George from Randolph and the daughter from the farm just west of town. Bert left Sunday to resume his work at Kansas City.

More than $81,000,000 worth of gold, silver and copper was refined in the Omaha refineries during 1912, according to figures which have been collected by the Bureau of Publicity. This figure exceeds that of last year by more than $40,000,000. Gold was the leader with a trifle more than $19,000,000. Did you get your share?

Samuel Osler was at Wayne last week a guest at the home of Ed Ellis. Mr. Osler formerly conducted a livery at Wakefield, but has been at Gregory, South Dakota, for some time. He has purchased property at Carroll and will move back to Nebraska this month. He left for home Sunday morning where he will have a sale and get ready to return at once.

Fred Riese from southwest of Wayne was in last week and left a few "nubbins" of corn on exhibition at the Democrat office. This was picked from a field which he had to replant and for that reason it did not turn out as much per acre as some other corn, yielding about 30 bushels. But it was not planted until the 18th of June for the reason given above, and the longest ear brought in measured 13 inches in length and the shortest about two inches less. The corn is well matured and fairly well filled but could hold more corn on the tip of the cobs. But it shows the possibilities of this country when one realizes that it had less than 4 months in which to make a crop.

One hundred and sixty-one people committed suicide in the following manner: Poison, 56; hanging, 31; firearms, 44; and other means, 30. There were thirty-eight cases of accidental drowning. Only three people were killed by lightning, while one died by starvation. One died by being stung by a swarm of bees, while thirty-nine were burned to death. There were 438 cases of stillborn, while seven people died from excessive cold and six from excessive heat. One hundred and sixty-one died from the popular disease, appendicitis, and forty-five from alcoholism. Four died from measles and one from smallpox.

There were 26,697 births reported to the board during the year, against 10,402 deaths, showing that Nebraska is gaining in population from natural causes. Of these, 13,783 were male and 12,914 female. The number shows 26,563 as being white and 134 colored. The Americans take the lead, with 21,869, the Germans second with 2,040, the Scandinavians with 818, the British with 275 and the Bohemians 512. The number who did not know where they were at were 183. Douglas county stands at the head as having the most colored babies, with 52, while Thurston county stands next with 39. Lancaster takes third place with 17. According to the statistics no Irish were born in Nebraska last year.

Stehr Case Briefs.

The attorney general's office filed with the supreme court briefs in the case of Henry Stehr of Norfolk, who was convicted of murder in the district court, the charge being that he allowed his boy to remain exposed to the cold until his feet were frozen, from which he later died. Stehr asked for a hearing in the supreme court, which will come up later.

Briefs were also filed in the case of Allen H. Pruyn, convicted of killing Saloonkeeper Gorey at North Bend. He was convicted of manslaughter and has appealed to the supreme court.

Investigate Near-Beer.

The office of the pure food commission received samples of a near-beer which has been selling in temperance towns in some parts of the state as a temperance drink. The man who sent it wrote the commissioner that the stuff was represented to him as containing no alcohol. It shows every indication of being a pretty good representation of the liquid which made Milwaukee famous, and according to the commissioner, contains as much alcohol or more than the average bottled beer.

Veterans at Milford in Bed for Warmth

Commandant Teeter of the Milford soldiers' home came to Lincoln for the purpose of securing repairs for the boiler at the home. The grate broke and the institution is without heat. The old soldiers, who have been in the habit of going to bed in warm rooms, will have to submit to the cold sleeping quarters until the boiler is fixed. For once they will be allowed to stay in bed as long as they wish. It may be necessary to keep them there to keep them warm.

Department Leaves State House.

Abbott Gets Old Place.

Information was received at the state house that Professor N. C. Abbott, superintendent of schools at Plattsmouth, would be appointed superintendent of the school for the blind at Nebraska City. CANNING FACTORY BURNS

Martin & Nurre Plant at Blair Destroyed, With Loss of $100,000.

Blair, Neb., Dec. 23.—The Martin & Nurre Canning company's plant at this point was destroyed by fire, with a loss of fully $100,000, 40 per cent of which is covered by insurance. The buildings covered nearly a half block and only the office building was saved. Nearly the entire pack of sweet corn of last fall was on hand and the loss on that alone will be fully $40,000.

Until a few nights ago the company employed a regular watchman, but a dispute arose, since which time there has been no one to guard the property at night. As no fires were in any of the stoves in the ware rooms during the entire day, it is thought the blaze was of incendiary origin.

KILLED IN AUTO OVERTURN

Nebraska City Man's Neck Broken When Machine Upsets.

Dorchester, Neb., Dec. 23.—A. J. Denton of Nebraska City, head of the Denton-Kuhn Grain company of Kansas City, was instantly killed one mile west of here when the automobile he was driving overturned.

The accident occurred on a level stretch of road. It is supposed Denton was speeding and struck a slight obstruction, for the tracks showed the car curved sharply, left the ground, turned completely over and fell upon the driver.

Mr. Denton leaves a wife, who is now at Nebraska City. He was well known in this part of the state. He was about forty years old.

AMEND BILL IN MURDER CASE

Attorneys From Fremont Ask Permission of Court to Make Change.

Lincoln, Dec. 23.—Louis Rogers, through his attorneys, F. W. Button and Frank Dolezel, has made application to the supreme court to withdraw the bill of exceptions filed in the "sultcase mystery murder case," for the purpose of making amendments. They set forth by affidavit that it has been discovered that through oversight the certificate of the judge presiding at the trial settling bill of exceptions omits to indicate and describe the exhibits referred to. This is the Fremont murder case, in which the above attorneys have been cited to appear before the bar commission on disbarment proceedings.

CHECKING STATE'S BOOKS

First Time It Has Been Done Since 1866.

Lincoln, Dec. 24.—For the first time since 1866 accountants are going through the state's books for the purpose of obtaining balances on the amount of general fund vouchers issued and cancelled. The work has been brought up to 1902 and has already developed a number of technical mistakes and errors, which, if unaccounted for and unchecked in the treasurer's department, might have started state officials.

The work is a tedious task, according to Accountant Tulley, who is in charge, and must be carried through to the present before it is known how many warrants are still outstanding.

Architect Reports.

Burd Miller of Omaha, state architect, was at the state house and filed his report with Governor Aldrich. Mr. Miller goes into the condition of the buildings owned by the state and makes some recommendations for new buildings at some of the institutions, notably Hastings, Norfolk, Grand Island and the orthopedic hospital at Lincoln. He shows that some of the buildings now owned by the state are in bad shape and not worth repairing.

Former Nebraskan Killed in Oregon.

North Bend, Neb., Dec. 24.—A former citizen of this community, Herbert Hastings, met with sudden death at Portland, Ore., where he was employed as manager of a lumbering business. A car was "kicked in" on the switch, and Mr. Hastings seeing it would not stop at the desired spot, attempted to stop it with a handspike. The car caught and whirled it from his hand, the end striking him over the eye and crushing his skull.

Church at Hastings Dedicated.

Hastings, Neb., Dec. 23.—St. Cecilia's new Catholic church here, the finest in the diocese of Lincoln, was dedicated. The dedication mass was celebrated by Rev. J. Henry Tihen, bishop of Lincoln, and Archbishop Keane of Dubuque. Over a score of priests from Lincoln and Omaha participated in the ceremony and there were many visitors from the state.

Guard Office Hospital.

Captain Lon Kesterson of the adjutant general's department, while trying to crank an automobile, had three bones in his wrist broken and a finger also crushed by a flareback. The injuries are painful, but just to keep him company Adjutant General Phelps has developed a felon on one finger and the two have turned the office into a hospital.

1913—Write it that way now.

Did you resolute? and did you break it yet?

Will there be as many trees set out arbor day as were cut for Christmas trees?

The old year retired with an excellent weather record for the last eight months of the time, but it started in pretty gay a year ago. There can be no complaint of the new year yet, but it is young.

Governor-elect Morehead, has named several whom he will appoint to various offices once he becomes governor, and the men named are very satisfactory. You will find the list on another page.

The Pender Republic lays the evasion of law by the rich corporations to the aid of corporation owned federal judges. We think so too; but who has been naming corporation lawyers as federal judges for the past sixteen years? No one but the republicans.

It is reported that campaign expenses amounted to about one dollar for each vote cast. Those who voted for Wilson surely will get the worth of the money if he will keep right along doing as he talks now. It is a great satisfaction to think that the people will have a president this time.

They say the man who committed the "crime of '73" has never been apprehended yet. That may be, but the people who placed in such a person the power to act for them have had their punishment, and it is being inflicted even unto the third and fourth generation. The evil which men do lives after them—too frequently.

Volume I, No. 1 of Maupin's new magazine comes to our desk a welcome New Year guest. It is a neat little magazine full of good and true things about our great state, and is issued from Lincoln. Brother Maupin has undertaken a great work for the state, and the measure of his success in making known to the world a lot of good truths about Nebraska will depend largely upon how loyally you support this home enterprise. Send a dollar and a half for a sample year.

Jimmie Elliott, of the West Point Republican, a member of that gang known as the panic boys, now predicts a Wilson panic that will resemble a gigantic cyclone. This same Jimmie said before election that if Wilson was elected a panic would immediately set in the next morning, so you see this is all the weight his predictions have. Why not be a man Jimmie, instead of a panic breeder? If there is a set of men in this great land of ours who can subdue the people by threats of a panic, why don't you join forces with the democrats and destroy this power like Andrew Jackson did?—Lyons Mirror.

The Pender Republic is having a "Brain Storm" or a nightmare over "What to do with Bryan." He appears very anxious to help Wilson shelve this gentleman from Nebraska. But we do not think Governor Wilson can ever worry and "cold-sweat" over Bryan half as much as the republicans have, and Bryan has no enemies in his party that the new president need bow to. The Republic's "Storm" implies that the bulk of the Wilson mail is a protest from democrats against Bryan's appointment as Secretary of State. So far, we have not noticed that Bryan has been asked to take a place, or hinted that he would accept a cabinet position.

Among The Churches of Wayne

Presbyterian Church

Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.
The subject for the sermon next Sunday morning will be "A New Year Motto". In the evening the pastor will begin a series of evening sermons on the fundamentals of the Christian faith. The subjects of the Series will be "God," "The Soul," "Heaven and the Way There," "Hell and who go There," "The Kingdom of God on Earth." The first of this series will be delivered next Sunday evening in the form of an introductory sermon from the text, "Awake thou that sleepest."

The hours for the Sabbath services are as follows: Morning worship 10:30, evening worship 7:30. Sunday school at 12 o'clock noon. C. E. Prayer meeting at 6:30 p. m. The afternoon service last Sunday afternoon was of more than special interest as the preacher was one of the "boys" of the neighborhood, Mr. Frank Klopping. It was somewhat embarrassing for the young man to face his former associates and companions, and his own father and mother, and preach a sermon to them, but he soon showed that he was no novice at handling the bible, and that his year of study in Chicago had enabled him to be very effective in his preaching. Mr. Ensign Young was also present and assisted in the music with his violin. All those present enjoyed the service greatly, and the community feels honored that it has sent one of its strong sons into the good work of the church.

At a meeting of the officers of the church held recently a vote of thanks was given unanimously to Mr. A. J. Ferguson for his gift of a beautiful eight-day regulator clock to the church. Mr. Ferguson presented the clock to the church as a Christmas gift.

Baptist Church

Rev. E. P. Richardson, Pastor
Sunday will not be our communion service, as usual. We postponed that service for one week. Sunday morning the pastor will preach from the subject: "In what Should we Glory?" We believe every Christian has something to be proud of.

All classes in our Sunday school are in good shape for work. A devoted band of loyal teachers adds an inestimable asset to our equipment for work. See that your children are in their places, and come with them. It sounds much better for a father to say "come" than to say "go" in speaking to his children about Sunday school attendance.

Clifford Penn will be the leader of the young people's meeting Sunday evening. The subject is "Consecration", a very fitting thought with which to begin the New Year.

On next Wednesday evening after our covenant meeting, the ordinance of baptism will be administered. We were highly pleased with the meeting Christmas evening. We followed Jesus as he ministered to the needs of homes in his day.

Our young people are planning for a delightful time on the evening of January 17th. An aggressive committee is in charge and we will do well to keep the occasion in mind.

We are always glad to greet strangers at our services.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church
(Rev. J. Kuhn, Pastor)

Our Christmas services were splendid and are said to be the best in several years.

We had quite a large congregation on last Sunday. There were a goodly number of strangers present. We are always glad to greet them.

Rev. Floyd E. Blessing, pastor elect, will preach the sermon on next Sunday. No doubt a large audience will greet him. Rev. J. Kuhn will spend a week at his home in Atchison, Kansas. He left on the 1st and will return in time to fill his appointments January 12th. He desires hereby, to express his thanks to all who in any way have contributed to make his stay here so pleasant and homelike. The increased attendance shows an appreciation of his presence and work.

At the preaching service on next Sunday an election will be held to fill the vacancies in the church council. At the same time the treasurer will make his annual report. Every member, if possible, should endeavor to be present.

A happy New Year to all, with increasing joys is the sincere wish of the present pastor.

Methodist Church

Rev. Wm. Gorst, Pastor
The January meeting of the Little Light Bearers and of the King's Heralds will be held in the League room Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, all children under fourteen years of age are invited to be present.

The subject of the sermon for next Sunday morning will be "Bible Methods of Killing Sin." After the sermon the sacrament of Baptism will be administered and people received into membership both on Profession of Faith and by certificate. Brother Frank Klopping will speak in the evening at 7:30. The Wednesday night meeting is growing in grace and in spiritual interests.

German Lutheran Church
Rev. Rudolph Moehring, Pastor.

There will be no preaching service at the Wayne church next Sunday as on the first Sunday of each month the pastor preaches at Windsor. The Sunday school will be held at the usual hour, and the following Sunday the preaching service will occur at 11 o'clock, as usual.

A New Time Card

A new time card will become effective here Sunday, but there are practically no changes in the time of passenger trains here, except that the Bloomfield branch train will not run to Emerson as a passenger train, but as a freight, and is not to carry passengers. The regular Sioux City passenger train now leaving here will make close connections at Emerson with the Omaha train, and one can arrive here at 6:15 in the evening instead of 9:25, thus avoiding a long wait at Emerson.

There is a change in the freight schedule, the morning train west being due out of here about 8:30, instead of 10:30 as at present. The east bound freight is also marked for an earlier hour, being due to leave here at 2:30 p. m. These freights carry passengers. The new cards are not yet here, so that the freight time cannot be given exactly. The passenger train from Sioux City will then bring Omaha passengers at 6:40.

Are You Afflicted With Piles?

This disease, whether acute or chronic, is easily and rapidly overcome by using Meritol Pile Remedy. Gives positive and permanent relief when all others fail, and we heartily recommend it to any sufferer.

What is Money Trust?

Mr. Morgan says there is no money trust, but if the state of affairs that he admitted does not reveal a money trust, it would be interesting to know what a money trust is.

Testimony before the Pujo committee shows that eighteen financial institutions in New York, Chicago and Boston by means of interlocking directorates have a voice in the management of 134 corporations with an aggregate capital of $25,325,000,000. It shows that J. P. Morgan & Co., the Guaranty Trust Company, the Bankers' Trust Company, the First National Bank and the National City Bank through 341 interlocking directors are allied with corporations having resources of $22,245,000,000.

The eighteen institution that have a voice in the management of $25,325,000,000 have 180 partners and directors. These 180 men hold 385 directorships in 41 banks and trust companies with deposits of $2,834,000,000. They hold fifty directorships in eleven insurance companies with total assets of $2,646,000,000. They hold 155 directorships in thirty-one railroad systems having a total capitalization of $12,193,000,000. They hold ninety-eight directorships in twenty-eight producing and trading corporations with a total capitalization of $3,583,000,000. They hold forty-eight directorships in nineteen public utilities corporations with an annual gross earning capacity of $428,000,000.

If these 80 men do not constitute a Money Trust, what is a Money Trust?

Who would underwrite the securities of a corporation that promised keen competition with any of the corporations within the sphere of influence of those 180 men? Would the banks and trust companies that they control lend money to such competitors? Would weaker banks be inclined to take the risk of incurring the hostility of the stronger banks?

The sole purpose of all these combinations is to control credit through the control of money, and whoever is master of credit is master of the commerce and industry of a Nation.

Bert Theobald and wife, who have been visiting his brothers here, left for their home at Lincoln Wednesday morning.

Sermon by Mr. Frank Klopping

The Presbyterian church was crowded last Sunday evening to hear Mr. Frank Klopping of the Moody Bible Institute. Mr. Klopping is a Wayne boy, having been brought upon his father's farm west of town, and attending Wayne High School. A year ago he decided to prepare himself for the ministry of the church and has just finished his first year of preparatory study. He has a good voice, a pleasing manner, and deep earnestness and sincerity which give promise of large usefulness in his chosen profession. Before his sermon a former classmate in the High School, Miss Edna Neely, sang the beautiful hymn, "Jesus is standing in Pilate's hall."

Mr. Klopping took for his text, Luke 2:7. "There was no room for them in the inn," and announced as his subject, "Crowding Out Christ." He made an earnest plea for larger room in the heart and life for Christ and His cause. Amongst the things which he described as instrumental in crowding out Christ in this day were carelessness, indifference, social indulgences of a godless nature, lack of family prayer. Above all else he attributed to ignorance, of what Christ could do for a man as the main reason why men crowd Christ out of their lives. "If I had known what Christ could do for me," he declared, amid intense stillness, "I would not have delayed so long myself in beginning the Christian life. He has enabled me to put sin out of my life and has blessed me in every way."

Speaking of carelessness, he urged Christians to be more careful in inviting friends and neighbors to church and declared that for several years he never had any invitation to surrender himself to Jesus although he lived in a Christian community. At the close of his sermon he made an earnest appeal to all who had not surrendered their lives to Christ to give him room, as His presence meant salvation and only Christ could save. In an after meeting which was held Mr. Klopping gave the story of his own conversion from infidelity and worldliness into the Christian faith. The text in the Bible which first arrested him in his careless life was Romans 6:23. "The wages of sin is death." He could not get away from the awful truth of these words, and in searching his bible by himself he found out the remedy for sin, and gave himself to God. After living for a short time as a nominal Christian and indulging in doubtful practices he finally decided to live a genuine Christian life, and his thoughts were afterwards directed towards the ministry in response to God's call to him in the providences of life.

At the close of the service a large number of his former associates and friends came forward and congratulated him on his progress, and thanked him for his very helpful sermon.

Mr. Klopping returns to Chicago after the holidays where he will continue his preparatory studies. After these are finished he expects to enter the McCormick Theological Seminary for the full divinity course.

A Good Report

Chance, S. D., Dec. 26, 1912.
Dear Sir:—Enclosed find an order for the Nebraska Democrat which we are always glad to get. Everything is fine out here, no snow and very mild weather. The coldest it has been was four below. Are expecting a good year next year as we had a lot of rain in October, so the ground is well soaked. The oats went 10 to 30 bushels, flax 2 to 12 bushels, corn as high as 30 bushels. Quite a few people came back this fall and also some new ones. Think there will be a lot of them coming in next spring.
Respectfully,
Adam Bastian.

A Doctor's Prescription to a Stingy Man

In the January Woman's Home Companion appears a story in which is related an account of a prescription given to an exceedingly stingy farmer by a doctor. The farmer took the prescription to the druggist. The druggist told the farmer that he could not fill the prescription and said to the farmer: "If you will read it yourself you will see why." Whereupon the farmer adjusted his glasses and read to his astonishment:

"One hired girl to be taken as soon as you can get her, and kept constantly on hand thereafter."

"A few new dresses that the wives of your hired men wouldn't be ashamed to wear, and a new hat and wrap to replace those you bought her last—thirteen years ago."

"All to be unctured with at least as much daily consideration as you bestow upon your cattle."

The Cement Show

Omaha, Nebr., Jan. 1—The most novel and interesting exhibition of cement products ever offered for inspection will feature the annual exhibition of the Nebraska-Iowa Cement Users Association which will be held in Omaha, Feb. 4 to 8. Ornamental designs, showing the possibilities of cement or decorative as well as useful purposes will dominate the exhibition in which dealers from all over the country will show.

The Cement Users Association will hold its annual convention at the same time, three days being devoted to the meeting.

There was corn on the market here Tuesday from sixteen miles northeast of Laurel, and one of the sellers told The Advocate man that he received three cents a bushel more than he could get on the road north of him, to which place he would have to haul eleven miles.

The above is from the Laurel Advocate, and it is not the first time we have heard that the Laurel people get a freight rate which enables their dealers to pay more for grain than dealers of other places can pay. If this be true there is an opportunity for our commercial club to get busy and see if the matter cannot be remedied.

In The Interests of The Country

(By Clyde H. Tavener)

Washington, Dec. 31.—How often do "the interests of the country" demand that J. P. Morgan organize a trust?

Mr. Morgan testified, somewhat airily, before the money trust investigation committee that he got busy every time it was "good business and for the interests of the country."

When Mr. Morgan's concern organized the illegal steel trust it took $29,000,000 worth of stock for its trouble.

In order that dividends may be paid upon this $29,000,000 every consumer in the United States must pay excessive prices for manufactured steel goods, because every family in the land uses in some capacity at least some of the products of this illegal Morgan steel trust.

How can it be figured that "the interests of the country" demanded that American consumers be thus gouged?

In order that dividends may be paid on the $29,000,000 of Morgan's watered stock, the men who work in the blast furnaces of the steel trust are forced to work 12 hours a day, seven days a week!

Did "the interests of the country" call for this?

Immediately upon the organization of Morgan's illegal steel trust, the price of barb wire to the American farmers was increased nearly one-third! And nails, sheet iron and many other products increased in price in like proportions!

Do the American people have such a thick growth of wool over their eyes that they will believe that any one of these things were brought about by Morgan for "the interests of the country?"

A Western Governor Who Trusts Convicts

In the "Interesting People" department of the January American Magazine appears an article about Governor Oswald West of Oregon, who likes to trust men. He let a life-term murderer out of prison long enough to earn money to pay off a mortgage on his father-in-law's home, the money having been spent to hire lawyers to defend him. Following is an extract:

"Out in Oregon there is a governor who believes in men—even though they have sinned against society and have been committed to the keeping of the penal institutions of the State. Oswald West believes in men to such an extent that sixty-two per cent of the prisoners serving time in the Oregon state penitentiary are out 'on honor,' as it is called. A considerable number of these are earning an honest living outside the prison walls, entirely independent of any prison discipline or oversight.

The rest are 'trusties' working for the State at other public institutions, or building roads without being guarded—frequently one or two hundred miles away from the prison, and often in thinly settled portions of the country where escape would be comparatively easy. And yet fewer prisoners try to get away under this system than in the old days when the guards stood by armed with repeating Winchester.

"One of Governor West's first experiences in trusting men was to release temporarily a murderer serving a life sentence, simply on his word of honor, in order that he might earn sufficient money to pay off the indebtedness on his father-in-law's home which had been mortgaged in order to raise money for his legal defense. About the middle of last January the man reappeared at the penitentiary after an absence of nearly a year. 'I'm back,' he said to the warden. 'The mortgage is paid.'

"When the present executive of Oregon came into office the State penitentiary had a reputation that was anything but enviable. Discipline was administered through methods that had long been outlawed in many penal institutes.

"Over one third of the prisoners were unprovided with work of any kind. Guards with loaded rifles watched every foot of the prison property, and went with each group of prisoners that was sent outside the prison walls.

"Governor West has changed all this. He has put every able-bodied man to work. He has removed most of the guards. Over 200 of the 450 men now under sentence at the Salem institution are outside the walls daily without guard of any kind, trusted to return at night and honor bound to do a fair day's work.

"When they betray his trust, as occasionally happens, he has been known to lead the posse that undertook their capture. One such escaped 'trusty,' whom he ran down after a hard chase, said to him as he took him into custody: 'Who are you, the sheriff?' 'No,' replied the executive, 'I'm the man to whom you lied.'"

It Is the Duty of Mothers

To Look to the Care of the Children's Eyes

Many pupils seem dull and do not like to study; it is hard for some of them to see what the teacher writes on the blackboard unless they sit in the front seats; all cannot sit in front, some must sit in back seats. What is the reason for this dullness?

Their Eyes

Look after your children's eyes and give them a better chance in school. Nervousness is often due to eye strain. I take special pains with children. You will find my optical office as quiet and home-like as your own home—no noise to disturb them. I have had 10 years of experience fitting children's eyes in Omaha. I do not under any consideration advise use of glasses unless positively needed. At Office Every Day Except Tuesday.

Present Chaplain of Penitentiary Will Be Deputy Warden

PHIL HALL ADJUTANT GENERAL

New Organization of Teachers to Be Formed—Regents Fortifying to Fight University Removal—Curry Dies From Injuries.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 1.—Governor elect John H. Morehead announced the following appointments to be made when he assumes office:

W. T. Fentao of Falls City, warden of the penitentiary.

Rev. N. T. Harmon of Lincoln, deputy warden of the penitentiary.

Rev. P. C. Johnson of Tecumseh, chaplain of the penitentiary.

Captain Phil Hall of Lincoln, adjutant general of state guard.

Nebraska will have another state teachers' organization if plans taken up at Lincoln are pushed to a conclusion. At the initial gathering there were present about two dozen educators from all sections of the state.

The organization will be along the same lines as the State Teachers' association, and it will be named the Nebraska Teachers' guild. Recent difficulties in the State Teachers' association relative to the location of the 1913 meeting and in which the Lincoln Commercial club was shown to have bought and paid for 1,321 votes are not at the bottom of the organization, according to statements of those who are behind the movement. Politics will be eliminated and school combinations of any kind are to be barred from the new born alliance. The following committee on organization was named: Superintendent Stewart of Sterling, Miss Walford of Pawnee county, Superintendent Clark of Pawnee, Superintendent A. G. Thomas of Kearney, Superintendent Munroe of Shelton, Superintendent Bowen of West Point and Superintendent Davis of McCook.

Fortifying to Flight Removal. Starting this week on a trip which will include the state universities of Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota, the regents of the state university, accompanied by Chancellor Avery, will begin to collect information for the settlement of the removal problem to be submitted at the coming legislative session. It is intended that phases of the removal question will be discussed with officials of all the institutions visited. The four state universities have encountered problems similar to the one likely to be threshed over at length at the coming session of the Nebraska lawmakers.

Justice Fined for Striking a Woman. Justice of the Peace John Lowe was fined $5 and costs in the county court on a charge of striking a woman. The complaining witness was Mrs. Himber, a female physician and wife of the justice's constable. The constable had been sent on a late night trip and his wife demanded of the justice that he tell her the nature of the errand. In the argument Lowe struck her a severe blow. The affray took place in the justice court room late at night.

Fifth District Legislative Contest. Papers in the first legislative contest to be officially brought to the attention of the secretary of state, were filed with that official. The contest is between George Wolf and George Van Horn of Fremont, the former a Republican and the latter a Democratic candidate for the senate from the Fifth district. Four hundred pounds of ballots from Dodge and Washington counties, which comprise the fifth district, were forwarded with the papers in the case.

Commission Denies 90-Day Continuance. The state railway commission denied the application of the city of Lincoln for a ninety-day continuance in the telephone rate case until the city might put an expert to work securing the physical value of the local plant, prior to the hearing on an increase in rates. At the same time the commission set the date for hearing arguments on a temporary advance in rates for Friday of this week.

Phone Company Bonds. The Platte Valley Telephone company has made application to the railway commission for permission to issue and sell $30,000 refunding bonds and the same has been granted by the commission. The company is located at Scottsbluff, and desires to pay off its present indebtedness and extend its lines.

Injunction Against Lincoln Union. G. A. Shaul, a contractor who is building the plant industry building at the state farm, secured a restraining order against the local plasterers' union to prevent it interfering with his workmen. The application for an injunction will be heard Jan. 8.

Curry Dies From Injuries. George C. Curry died at his home near Waverly from the effects of injuries received when he was thrown from a horse and rendered unconscious when the animal stumbled and fell on him.

Accused—Man Insane. Beatrice, Neb., Dec. 31.—Edward Buckley of Liberty, Neb., who was recently indicted by the federal grand jury and taken to Lincoln on the charge of sending obscene literature through the mails, has been found to be of unsound mind and will be brought here for a hearing before the insanity commissioners.

MORRISEY NAMED

Chosen Private Secretary by Governor Morehead.

Lincoln, Jan. 1.—Andrew M. Morrissy, Democratic candidate for attorney general at the recent election, will be private secretary to Governor Morehead.

Mr. Morrissy is a native of New York state, having been born in Livonia in that state about thirty-eight years ago. He came to Nebraska twenty-one years ago and settled at Chadron, where a year later he began the practice of law. He resided in Cherry county thirteen years and was county attorney a portion of the time. In September, 1911, he came to Lincoln and formed a partnership with F. M. Tyrrell for the practice of law. At the primary last April he was nominated by the Democrats of the state for attorney general, but was defeated by Grant Martin, the Republican candidate and present attorney general. Mr. Morrissy is a bachelor.

Upon being offered the private secretaryship by Governor Morehead, he severed his connection with the law firm of Tyrrell & Morrissy and will give his whole attention to the business of the governor's office.

A mistaken idea has gotten out regarding Dr. A. G. Adams. He is not planning to leave Wayne. His brother, Orlando Adams, is to move west, and the fact that the doctor has been advertising a house for sale was taken to mean that he was the one who was going, but not so. If you want a snag tooth yanked out or a hole plugged in a hollow tooth you will find the dentist Adams is still on the job.

Wm. Bauerkemper and wife of Minden, Iowa, came the first of the week for a visit at the home of their old neighbors, Henry Linke and wife, and happened to arrive here just in time to be present at the wedding of Miss Linke, an event of which they knew nothing when planning their visit. Weldon F. Crossland won the Rhodes scholarship last Thursday in the final contest or examination before the committee at Lincoln where the honor lays between the three Nebraska young men who had successfully passed the examination required. Sadie L. Walker, violinist, has applied herself to the study of the violin for the past ten years. Her first study in Berlin was done under Gustaf Hollaender, director of the Stearns Conservatory. J. E. Hufford of the Logan Valley poultry farm was one of the most happily surprised men in Wayne Christmas morning, finding in his stocking a new No. 5 Smith-Premier typewriter, a present from his two sons, Herald and John. The boys earned this machine as a premium for securing subscribers to the Saturday Evening Post and the Ladies Home Journal last fall. It took hustling, but the boys produced the goods, and while Mr. Hufford is proud of his machine he is much more proud of the fact that the boys have the necessary "get-up-and-get" to earn so valuable a premium in a month. It is to their credit that they earned the prize, and equally as much to their credit that they presented it to their father.

PRESENTING
The CELEBRATED ENGLISH COMEDY
AT
Wayne Opera House
FRIDAY EVENING Jan. 10

THE SUPPORTING COMPANY
The management is most happy to announce that each individual part has been placed in the hands of a competent player, particularly adapted to the role assigned, thus making this delightful play more realistic and true to nature.

THE SCENERY
The scenery for the entire production is in perfect keeping with the period—1742—elaborate and magnificent, depicting a correctness of detail of architecture of the early period of the 18th century, forming a most artistic background for the delicate blending of color in costuming.

THE COSTUMES
No other period than when George the II was the reigning monarch of England gives wider scope for an elegant display of costumes; powdered wigs, satins, laces, and courtly graces, all combined in bewildering effect, make a scene of glittering splendor.

ANTIQUÉ FURNITURE AND PROPERTIES
The Antique Furniture and Properties used have been constructed expressly for this production. They are of the design used in the period 1742, and are in keeping, thus producing stage pictures that are truly magnificent.
"By music minds an equal temper know."—Pope.

MUSIC
The Incidental Music and overtures between acts are in perfect harmony with the play. The musical selections are gems from the greatest composers, and under the direction of the accomplished concert pianist, JULIA HARTER MALLORY.

Geo. Montgomery, who has been in the hospital at Sioux City for several weeks, submitted to an operation upon his back Monday. He was suffering from a partial paralysis, and the operation was to remove portions of vertebra which were diseased and were pressing upon the spinal cord. At latest reports he is rallying nicely after the operation, with hope of recovery.

Miss Walker has been a pupil of the famous virtuoso, Fritz Kreisler, for the past three years. Kreisler rarely accepts any pupils, so that this signal honor conferred upon Miss Walker is a plain indication of her ability. At the M. E. church Monday evening, January 13th. The recital course tickets for the three remaining numbers will be $1.25 and student tickets 75c.

H. C. Bartels passed through Wayne this morning on his way to Lincoln to be there at the opening of the legislature. He thinks that he can do as much good for his county by being on hand a little before the show begins as he can after the session calls, and in this he is right. A lot of legislation is planned early in the session and before it is called. Senator Kohl also goes this week to get into the harness for the coming session.

At the last meeting of the board of education Miss Ann F. Anthony of Greenville, Illinois, was elected as assistant teacher in the commercial department. Miss Anthony is a graduate of the Greenville college in both the academic and commercial departments, and she has had several years of successful experience in school work. Miss Ruth J. Knutson has completed the advanced course of the State Normal School and will be granted a first grade certificate at the next meeting of the board of education. On the same day Miss Knutson received notice of election to three good positions in school work. She was offered the intermediate department at Coleridge, the intermediate department at Tilden and a rural school in Burt county paying $50 a month. Miss Knutson has accepted the position as teacher of the fifth and sixth grades at Tilden and will begin her work on Monday, January 6th.

W. E. Baskerville and wife are here from Bellevue, visiting at the home of the lady's mother, Mrs. Gamble. Mrs. E. W. Ebert of Scotts Bluffs, another daughter, also came before Christmas and will remain for an extended visit. Mr. and Mrs. Baskerville return this week.

Mrs. Rev. J. A. Martin from Wausa was here this morning on her way to visit relatives at Armel, in eastern Colorado, and passed the time between trains at the home of Guy Williams and wife, she and Mrs. Williams having been both residents of the same place back in the Buckeye state.

Memories of Old Time Dairying

N. S. French writes from California to Hoard's Dairyman as follows:

Some of my many papers lately printed as a news item the fact that a yoke of large red oxen, well trained in all of the old haw-gee lore, had been added to the many attractions of one of the public parks of Chicago just to show the present generation how their fathers went to "Mill and Meeting" in the good days that now seem so very far away. Other cities might well follow this example; and if a real old time cart, with box and hay-rack went with the gentle oxen, the modern kids might have many a "safe and sane" ride, instead of the so-called joy (?) rides now taken in stolen cars. This starts the thought that possibly it might interest modern dairymen and women, (of course they must be included) to read something as to the many efforts made in the past to solve the problems which still loom large before a beginner with cows, where ever he may be. An exhibit of all of these old modes of doing things, once thought essential, would surely be a drawing card for a dairy show or a state fair were it possible to gather such an exhibit, which it may not be, as no written history tells when the first cow was milked, or the first butter made. So at the risk of seeming rather personal, I shall try to confine these papers mostly to personal recollections of the past seventy years.

I was born in 1837, on the slope of Mansfield Mountain in Vermont on a farm where about 20 cows were milked every summer, and "went dry," through the long, cold winter months. It was then generally supposed that the longer rest a cow had the better she would do when fresh.

I milked my first "easy" cow about 1844 or 1846, into a wooden bucket without a bale, the only handle being the rounded elongation of one of the fir staves which formed the sides. Before my tenth year had passed, I had my regular cows to milk. I could beat the hired man at teaching calves to drink, possibly because I had not the strength to kick them, or the voice to swear at them which he had, though he said that it was because my fingers were small and soft, while his were big and hard. At any rate he was very willing to let me do it, and as I was more willing to work than I have ever been since, we got along very nicely together. All of the utensils then used in the dairy or out of it were made of wood by the local cooper who was a very busy man, especially in winter. When the sledding was good, those interested would haul him clear fir logs to be split into staves, and black or swamp ash for hoop timber. Thin basswood boards were often used for staves for the barrels in which cheese was then packed, to be hauled by teams either to Boston or Montreal, the two leading markets for that section. There was some tinware but it was considered too expensive for common use, and the milk for cream raising, was mostly set in shallow tubs or in the still more primitive trough, tray or keeler as it was locally called, which was carefully hewn and hollowed out from the half of a clear hard maple log.

To properly clean and keep sweet all of these wooden vessels was no light job, and large bundles of coarse brushes were often used to scour them out, the same being cut at the proper season, and hung in the garret with many other "yarbs" then thought to be essential to the family health, and just the dreading of the awful taste of which often warded off many slight illnesses. White, sharp sand was also used for scouring, together with another thing known as elbow grease, a commodity that modern dairymen seem at least to me, to be far more saving of than were those busy workers of those far back but well remembered years. Special racks were also built to sun these many utensils when the sun shone, a plan that might well be followed now far more than it is; for with all the modern soaps, cleansers and disinfectants, pure air and sunshine are still entitled to the front rank.

As to average cleanliness, there were clean folks, and dirty ones then as now, but as far as I can judge, the most of these modern microscopic examinations of milk and its product, tend more towards telling what kind of dirt are in the milk than towards keeping all kinds out of it. All hay was then mown with a scythe, hauled in on an ox-cart, pitched on and off with a handfork, and the teats that were told of some of the crack hay-makers of those days were so large as to be almost unbelievable even then and therefore had best be left out entirely now.

The calves were mostly born in April and fed on skimmilk, or part skimmilk, as that was called which was only "sot" for 12 hours before removing the cream. After about July first, when cheese making usually started, they were supposed to live on pasture. Some of them really did live, but their growth was not very rapid.

As to prices, they varied some from summer to winter from market demand etc., but generally speaking far less than they do now, mostly because there was so little money in circulation to vary the prices with. People today have but little idea how few things the Vermont farmer of those days actually bought. Salt, tobacco, and, I blush to write it, rum for haying, were generally thought of as necessities that must be bought, though many go along very well by only buying the first of these. The best of sugar the farmer made often to sell; his sheep and flax, by the good wife's skill, clothed them all, and their feet were well shod by the traveling boot-maker, from his cow and calf hides that the village tanner had tanned at the halves. Each mountain stream furnished water-power for a saw-mill, and often other machinery; and here was often the country store that generally kept one or more teams on the road to haul away the country produce, all of which was taken at some price, "in trade." Butter rarely was figured at over ten cents a pound, nor under five cents; and cheese was from three to six cents while calves in the fall were virtually a legal at about $5.00 each. There was only one breed of cows known, that being a mixture of every known breed, together with some that were entirely unknown. The main thing desired was size, especially in the steers, the pick of these being early broke to the yoke, to work on the farm in summer and in the lumber camps in winter. Still there was one thing that has changed none from that day to this, and probably it never will, and that is human nature.

The Passing of the Farmer

There have been several essays published during the last few months written by the "high brows" in the eastern states discoursing on the "passing of the farmer." They declare the farmer who owns his farm and cultivates it himself is passing away and an entirely new order of things is coming in. In the future the land will be owned by the capitalist in the same way that a cotton or woolen mill is now owned. There will be a highly paid superintendent and the common farm laborers. They declare that the farm hand can no longer hope ever to own a farm on account of the high price of land and that being the case, he will never attempt it and either resign himself to become one of a class whose condition is inevitably fixed, or desert the farm and seek fortune in the cities. In other words this country is coming to the condition described by Ricardo, who said that the land must produce three profits, one to the land holder, one to the farmer—who in England is simply a superintendent—and one to the peasant laborer. These writers do not seem to be at all distressed over such an outlook, but rather look upon it as desirable.

It must be acknowledged that in recent years the drift has been in that direction, and if recent tendencies should continue for another twenty-five years we would have the condition in this country that Ricardo describes. But in Ricardo's own country the drift of late has been entirely the other way. In Ireland, in Scotland and even in England the small holdings have largely increased and the "peasant farmer" is becoming a land owning farmer cultivating soil owned by himself. If the money trust system which has been established in this country by Wall street and the republican party were to continue, the result might be exactly what these writers predict. But it is not "inevitable" as they assert. Great Britain, which has suffered from the system for centuries, is overthrowing it and it can never be permanently established in this country.—World Herald.

The single tax is destined to prevent the condition predicted above, if we can read aright the signs of the times. In England the revolt is general against landlordism, and in this country it will never be stronger than it is today, for the reason that the agitation now under way will tend to check the spread of large land holdings, because it will take from land its speculation value.

A Great School Reform

With other reforms in this age of reforms comes an agitation of the school question which is fast attracting public attention. Some of the leading publications of the day have taken up a fight for less book lore and more learning—education, and against the great rush which causes so much home study. The Ladies Home Journal in recent issues urges parents to unite in a protest or command against the pupils being compelled to study at home evenings. And they urge that the action be taken at the reopening of school next week.

Dr. Rouse of the First Congregational church at Omaha has introduced the following resolutions, which are published and commended by Omaha papers:

"1. Resolved, That studies shall never be pushed at the expense of the pupil's health. Good physical health is ultimately at the foundation of happiness, progress and prosperity. The over-anxiety of the teacher or pupil for intellectual attainment at the expense of perfect health is ignorance and not education.

"2. Resolved, That the training of the hand and the eye shall run parallel to the training of the mind. That school is only half a school that does not have manual training and domestic science. That pupil is only half educated, and that brain is only half developed that belongs to one whose hands and eyes are dull.

"3. Resolved, That the past shall not be exalted at the expense of the present. Once Greek and Latin opened the door to the storehouses of wisdom. This is not true today. English and German open the doors of the temples of learning. Yet so conservative are our educational methods that we follow methods that were timely only at least 100 years ago. A teacher recently spent an hour with her pupils in history upon Constantinople and never mentioned the Balkan war then in progress.

"4. Resolved, That the dull pupil shall have the best chance. I helped a blind man cross the street the other day, because he was blind. I did not help the man with eyes. We help the smart pupil and cuff the dull one.

"5. Resolved, That education shall be practical and vocational. A girl gets a so-called 'finished' education in a high school, or a college, or a 'finishing school' when in reality she has not begun to get an education that will make her a happy companion for a happy man. She cannot make a simple dress. She is not trained in domestic duties. She knows nothing about getting up a simple and wholesome and inexpensive meal. She knows nothing about proper preparations for motherhood. Yet four-fifths of the happiness of the race depends upon these primary elements of a finished education.

"A young man who had been three years at boarding school and four years at college, and taken a post-graduate course, said 'I wish for God's sake some one would tell me what I can do.' If a man is going to follow a trade he ought to prepare for it. If he is not going to follow a trade he ought all the more to know one.

"The idea that 'mental training' comes best in the study of something that you do not like and have no use for is an exploded theory. The best training comes for what one takes a real interest in, and what one is going to make use of.

"6. Resolved, That no books shall be seen on the street. That a girl of 14 or 16 should spend the hours till 10 or 12 at night at the study table at home is a crime against youth, as much or more than child labor in the shops. No farmer would treat his colt as some of our teachers treat their young, ambitious pupils.

"7. Resolved, That it shall not be considered that true instruction is given till interest is aroused. Interest anyway—instruct if you can, this is the true order and law of education."

Comment

(Yosemite Shield)

The age-long call for human brotherhood is sounding throughout the length and breadth of the land as it has not sounded since the Nazarene walked the hills and vales of Galilee. We have come to know that man is a threefold being—physical, mental and moral. We have come to know that the physical part of man must have first consideration.

Food, clothing, shelter—these are the corner stones of civilization. After man has subdued nature, and after he has supplied himself with food, raiment and shelter, he begins to develop the second function of his being which is capacity to think, to understand, to know. Following healthy physical and mental conditions the soul is developed, and we have the perfect man with body, brain and soul. Man cannot have a brain until he has a body, and physical and mental wellbeing are necessary for the development of the moral function.

No teacher of men ever recognized these facts more clearly than Christ. He believed and taught that men should have opportunity to develop their physical beings. He was a wage worker in days of slave economy, and he understood the struggles of the poor. He was constantly removing obstacles to easier and better modes of living; he healed the physical body oftener than he committed any other one act. He contended against those who made it difficult for others to earn the necessities of life with which to maintain their physical beings. He believed in and taught the scriptures, and we can imagine him saying: "Knowest thou not the Scriptures say, 'Thou shalt not sell the land for ever?'" "Knowest thou not the Scriptures say, 'Thou shalt not take a mortgage on mill stones?'" "Hearken unto the voice of the people." To Caesar, who made war all over the earth, he said, "Peace on Earth;" he said, "The laborer is worthy of his hire," to masters who enslaved labor; he said, "Do unto others as ye would have them do unto you," to ruling aristocrats who had no thought of the welfare of the masses; he denounced the rich when the rich were powerful enough to take his life; he taught that title to land should not be given forever when that was the practice; he taught that the implements of the laborer should not be mortgaged when such practice was in vogue; he denounced usury when by that method the masters enriched themselves. These were the things for which Christ was crucified—because he attacked the established order of things, and not because of his religious views. Rome was not then concerned over religion. There were as many Gods in Rome as there were colors in Joseph's coat, and they were all freely worshiped. It was not until Christ's teachings began to interfere with the right of the rulers to live upon the product of labor that he was condemned by them.

The church and the preachers ought to understand better the social program as outlined by the Nazarene—that his mission was not so much to glorify and serve God as to save and serve men. The church accepted the theology of Jesus but rejected his politics and economics. For hundreds of years the church dominated the world, driving the people through fear and superstition, into service of a vengeful God with never a thought or care of Christ's economics. History refers to this period as the "dark ages." Utterly forgotten were the rights of the individual to build and maintain his physical being; the fact that the human stomach is the corner stone of civilization was not known, or ignored; with single purpose the church pointed to mansions in the sky which might be inhabited, forgetting the hovels on earth which were inhabited. But the old order changeth. We have already enjoyed the dawn of a new and better day, and soon the noon will come. It has taken full two thousand years for us to comprehend that Christ's mission was to better conditions on earth rather than conditions in heaven; to enable man rather than to glorify God—and for these things he prayed, "Give us this day our daily bread," and "Thy Kingdom come on earth."

Surely these are the fundamental things in life. The word "life" was ever on the Master's lips. He taught that life is everlasting, and his purpose was to make life better, better here, now. Prayer was not his only weapon. The average professional theologian depends too much on prayer. By men's deeds, rather than their prayers, shall ye know them. The liquor seller will never be prayed from behind the bar the brewer will never be preached off his beer keg. So long as a bushel of corn made into meal sells for but sixty cents, and so long as another bushel made into whisky retails at ten dollars, and so long as our laws permit them to make and sell liquor, the distiller and saloon keeper will ply their trades. These are economic and not religious problems. The saloon and the brothel are not pleasure resorts; they are simply problems of bread and butter. Prostitution exists because a living wage is denied the millions of women who must support themselves. If there was no profit in the liquor traffic no man would make or sell it. Men will never be sobered by prayer or preaching. They can be sobered by giving them something better than alcohol—give them opportunity, work, love, companionship, a home, culture, art, music, literature, education, means of life. And here is the Master's splendid program for this great work:

Thou shalt not sell the land forever.

Thou shalt not take a mortgage on mill stones.

Thou shalt not exact usury.

Hearken unto the voice of the people.

Peace on earth.

Love thy neighbor as thyself.

Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you.

Such was the political economy of the Nazarene.

J. B. Fitcher, a well known Madison county farmer was instantly killed last week while out with an automobile. He was trying to avoid a rut in the road, just at the approach of a bridge when the car skidded, missed the bridge and went over a twelve foot bank, killing the occupant, who was alone, instantly. Those who saw the accident were soon there to aid him, but he was beyond the need of help.

Alfred Rosenquist was a caller from Wakefield last week, and contracted for sale bills for a joint sale to be held January 21st on the Henry Hanson place about nine miles southeast of Wayne, and about the same distance southwest of Wakefield. Frank Jones will furnish part of the stock for the sale. Both of these good farmers have the Minnesota fever, and have bought places in that state. There will be an advertisement of the sale next week.

D. Haines, in sending subscription to the Democrat from Page, where he went last spring, says that he is about to leave Nebraska, and will locate southeast of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and concludes with the saying that "this (Page) is no country to farm in. Tell all the boys in Wayne county who can stay there, for they will find no better place." This man evidently knows for he has tried this county and some others.

J. B. Selders, who has been farming on the Michael Kelly farm four miles south and 3 1/2 east of Winside is going to move to Van Tassel, Wyoming, in the early spring, and will have a sale of stock and implements at the place on Wednesday, January 8th. His advertisement in this issue will tell you of the excellent stock he has to sell. Some people wonder why a man going to that country to farm will sell his horses and stock and buy again when he gets there, but the answer is easy—it takes a year for horses to become accustomed to the climate out there, and some die before they become acclimated. The altitude there is greater than here, and horses, cattle and sheep do not do well as a rule when making the change on the cars in a few days.

Wayne is not simply a holiday trade town, large as was the holiday business here. Several business men remarked after the Christmas trade was over that it would doubtless be quiet now for a time, and Saturday morning one remarked that he did not expect many people in that day, but when the middle of the afternoon arrived we failed to see but that the crowd was about the same as the preceding Saturdays, and they were big days. The facts are that Wayne merchants have a permanent and well established trade, and it is growing. Persistent advertising, good goods and honest dealing is the policy which will win. In addition to this we want to go on record as being of the opinion that in the great majority of instances the home merchant can and will sell you a better bargain than the city merchant. You may not be able to buy as cheap a grade of goods from the local merchant, but you invariably get a better bargain—better value.

When the Norfolk business men learned that the Carlson's Breeders Review was to leave that city and be published from Moline, Illinois, the Commercial club took a hand in the matter of retaining the paper at that place, and raised a fund of $10,000 to induce the paper to continue to have Norfolk for its permanent home. Wonder how that would work if some common newspaper threatened to leave. Chances are that some of them could get a bigger bonus to leave than to remain. Mr. Carlson has started on his trip to the south in the interest of the magazine, and will visit the southern states, Cuba, Zealand and Australia. There will no doubt be some valuable letters from this able editor. Oscar A. Rundquist will be the business manager, and will move to Norfolk at once and take up the work. Norfolk business men did a commendable act when they stepped in and made it possible for this magazine and its able editor to remain in Nebraska.
