HAS WAYNE MONEY TO BURN?

The Best Solution of Light and Power Question up for Careful Consideration.

Without knowing real reasons, and without time, opportunity or motive to study the questions, the editor has long been inclined to look upon the best type of oil engines as economical power producers and slight investigation tends to confirm that opinion. Yet so many questions arise in considering all phases of the matter—so many conflicting opinions and all positive, that no one should act for the city without careful investigation.

In reply to telegrams to Osceola, Arkansas, and Garden City, Kansas, where they are using oil engines of the size thought suitable for the needs of Wayne, we received the following replies:

"Our DeLaVerne oil engine very satisfactory. Expense of fuel oil fifth cost of coal. Other operating expenses the same. Engine more efficient than maker guaranteed.

J. W. LAMB,
Chairman Light Com.
Osceola, Ark., Feb. 12, 1913."

"Durability and reliability of oil engine equal to steam. Run oil engine on one-fifth the cost of steam engine. With good load factor economy would be much greater. This with oil at three cents gallon, slack coal $3.25 ton, both delivered.

Garden City Telephone, Light & Mfg. Co.,
Garden City, Kansas.
Feb. 12, 1913."

Mr. F. L. Weakley of Kansas City, representing the DeLaVerne oil engine, submits the following statement for consideration, relative to the situation as he sees it at Wayne. It is addressed to the citizens of Wayne:

"The writer has spent some time getting data as to the load being carried by the electric generators at your city power plant and from figures obtained from the electrician a definite statement can be made as to the possible cost of operating with one of our oil engines. The data obtained and the resulting calculations are submitted on a separate sheet in order that they may be checked by any one who so desires.

The voltage on the direct current machine is assumed at two hundred and forty volts and the amperage is given for each period during the run. The dynamo and belt efficiencies are assumed and in order that we may not be severely criticized in this regard, these efficiencies have been taken quite low, running from sixty to eighty-five per cent. The lightest load given is from five to

Kidney Troubles Can Be Avoided

You cannot afford to neglect the slightest kidney ailment—it's hazardous to do so.

The poisonous waste material must be separated from the blood and if the kidneys become weakened this is impossible.

That means a poisoned system. That's why neglect means trouble—the ailment becomes chronic and results in Rheumatism or Bright's Disease.

NYAL'S Kidney Pills

Assist the kidneys in their function, strengthen them and prevent the ailment from becoming chronic. They cleanse the blood and increase the circulation and supply the proper nourishment to body tissues.

They are a kidney medicine—intended for that and nothing else. Speedy and positive relief at 50 cents the box.

six o'clock a. m., and is taken at 50 amperes; the heaviest load from seven to eight o'clock p. m. at 400 amperes. The heaviest morning load given us was from seven to eight a. m., 250 amperes.

We still maintain our original position that our 130 horse power type "F. H." Liquid Fuel Engine will carry this load all of the time with the possible exception of the peak load for one or two hours in the evening. With proper handling and with good efficiencies on apparatus between the engine and switch board, the overload capacity on the engine will take care of 400 amperes for a short time.

The cost of operation for the period shown in the table is figured on the basis of Wyoming Fuel Oil at four cents per gallon F. O. B., Wayne, Nebraska, as quoted by the Texas Company, and we have been liberal in estimating the amount of oil per horse power hour. The total number of kilowatt hours shown in the table for the day is 849.6 K. W. Hr., as measured at the switch board. The amount of fuel oil figured for the day is 138.5 gallons at a cost of $5.54. The lubricating oil for the engine should not run over $1.00 per day, on this load and may run much less if properly filtered.

According to these figures our 20x34 1/2 single cylinder engine would handle your load the year around with the possible exception of a short season in which the amperage runs high one or two hours in the evening at which time the automatic steam engine could be used to help over the hill. The cost of the engine installed with all labor, freight and accessories can be estimated liberally at $10,700. The foundation and oil tank could be estimated at $1,200. The cost might run considerably below these figures under certain conditions.

After operating the plant as above for a year or two enough money would be saved over your present expense of operation to make the change to an alternating current system without having to ask the tax payers for more bonds or another oil engine could be bought to help carry an increase load. Our principle is to buy something that will come within the means of the city and which will put the plant on an earning basis such that further improvements can be made out of the saving and cost of operation.

You already know or should know what your present cost of operation is and from the above figures you can estimate what your probable saving would be with our equipment."

C. K. Gaynor was at the council meeting Monday evening with his estimate of the expense of various plans for the city, but his report was not in form to file, so we can only quote a few of his figures, as the report is not yet here. He estimates that to change to alternating system would cost $2,000 more than the old wire and material will be worth. For the city to pay difference on all motors now in use would cost $1,500. A new steam engine and three boilers, two of 100 horse power, and one of 60 would amount to $8,900. The necessary new generators, switchboard, etc., $3,700. A pump and motor to run same $1,500 to $2,000. A suitable building for housing all $3,000, making a total of a little over $20,000. This is making no allowance for salvage for old equipment except in the line matter. In his report he stated as to oil engines that those burning a heavy oil are economical to operate—more so than those that must have lighter oil. He thought that the steam plant which he estimated on would save one half in fuel over the present plant. The city might be bonded for nearly $20,000 if bonds were voted to the limit, and with this sum the new system could be installed, or with a little less sum, the oil engine could be installed with one engine, and the other changes be made from the saving between present cost and oil cost. If either of above estimates are correct as to saving it would be wise to adopt one or the other—provided, of course, that a better proposition cannot be found.

Social Notes

One of the most delightful social gatherings ever held in the M. E. church occurred last Saturday evening when the Workers' class, composed of twenty-seven young men, entertained the young ladies class, composed of a similar number. Covers were laid for eighty guests and both menu, table and decorating committees, did their work in the most commendable style. But this can always be depended upon when such young fellows as Campbell, Farrell, Fleetwood, Wright, Glen Gildersleeve, Johnson, Alexander and Jakobsen have the management. From 8 to 9:30 the young people were entertained with various games and recreations of the latest and most approved character under the leadership of Jakobsen and Sidney Johnson. Then came the banquet; carnations and red hearts in profusion covered the tables and in correspondence with the elegant decorations of the room, everything reminding one that the name of the social could be none other than St. Valentine's. Mrs. Ed Johnson, always a reliable and helpful friend of the young people, with the aid of Fern and Francis Oman, Byrdice Marsteller and Izzetta Johnson, served a two course menu in fine style. After dinner Carlisle Campbell very ably filled the position of toastmaster. His introductory remarks were well chosen and created both mirth and expectancy and no one was disappointed. Miss Iva French responded to the toast "Our Boys"; Clement Crossland "Our Girls"; Miss Edna Chambers "Hearts are Trumps"; Burret Wright "Diamonds Lead" and Dr. Gorst "The Knots to be Tied". Every speaker brought good cheer and merriment and when the hours had passed Miss Racheal Fairchild and Miss Olive McBeth, the teachers of these classes who were present and heartily joined in their festivities, had great reason to feel proud of their young people.

It being Ladies Home Journal day, the Monday club enjoyed a sort of burlesque on this popular ladies' magazine at the home of Mrs. Heckert. A full attendance was present and the papers presented, which were very amusing, were enjoyed and appreciated by all. Following is the program as carried out: Answers to roll call, "That reminds me—", "How I Won My Husband," Mrs. Moran; "When I Decide To Marry Again," Mrs. T. B. Heckert; "What Not To Tell My Husband," Mrs. Marsteller. Mrs. Heckert also favored the club with an excellent review on "The Peace of Solomon Valley." The meeting is spoken of as one of the best of the season. Mrs. Hess will be hostess next week.

The Minerva club and their husbands were entertained at the home of President and Mrs. U. S. Conn Tuesday evening when Dean Hahn addressed the assembly on "Social Conditions in New York". The lecture is reported to have been very interesting as well as highly instructive and was immensely enjoyed by those who heard it. About ten invited guests were also present. Prof. Lackey favored the club with a number of solos rendered in his pleasing manner. Light refreshments were served. The regular meeting of the club will be held next Tuesday at the home of Mrs. C. H. Bright.

The Acme club met with Mrs. Crawford Monday afternoon and had for its lesson "Late Research and Discovery"—Medical, Scientific, Economic and Commerce. Each member gave prepared articles on the subject which, together, brought out an interesting study. Mrs. Duerig will be hostess at the next meeting.

The Union Bible Circle met with Mrs. Whalen on Wednesday afternoon. The lesson study was one of the most important of the quarter, being "The Call of Abraham." The discussion was especially helpful and interesting. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Will Gamble, two doors west of the high school.

will be with Mrs. J. H. Kemp next Monday afternoon.

The members of the committee from the Senate and House who were in Wayne recently, P. H. Kohl and W. D. Redmond were entertained at dinner Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Conn. In the evening the same party was entertained at the home of Senator P. H. Kohl and wife.

Dr. Corkey Speaks to High School

On Wednesday morning Dr. Corkey spoke to the high school and delighted his audience as usual. He took for his subject "Winter" and in part said: "At first thought it seems that the great Creator made a mistake when He made winter, but serious thought teaches that it is a good thing, a blessing in disguise. In latitudes where there is a period of winter there is the progress of the world being made in literary, intellectual and nearly all other lines, while in latitudes of constant summer there is little or no progress. Winter—hardship and privation—in the lives of people makes men and women of them. Lincoln had winter in his life and it prepared him for his great work. You can all thank a kindly providence that you are not wealthy. Winter speaks to us of excellent things."

The Truth About Ireland

Tonight, at the Presbyterian church Rev. Alexander Corkey will repeat his popular lecture on "The Truth about Ireland." Mrs. A. R. Davis will sing before the lecture. The evening's entertainment is given under the auspices of the C. E. society and Miss Bernice Moler, the president of the society, will preside at the meeting. The tickets to the lecture are free, but a collection will be taken up in the interests of the C. E. work.

"I first became interested in Ireland when I was quite a small boy," says Dr. Corkey, talking of his lecture. "I used to think that a few square miles in an Irish valley was the entire universe. I have learned better now, but I still think that valley of my boyhood remembrances the most beautiful spot on earth. I have given my lecture on Ireland a good many times, but I always enjoy it myself. It is like a trip back to my early life."

At the Grace Church

Grace church was well filled last Sunday afternoon when Dr. Alexander Corkey unexpectedly arrived there and emptied his auto load of human freight into an unoccupied corner of the auditorium hardly big enough to hold the four men. Pastor Connell was in the midst of his sermon on the topic "The Utterance of Thy Word Giveth Light." It was a very helpful discourse and the people were much interested. The Sunday school regularly follows the sermon, but after a few moments counsel between the pastor and the superintendent, E. A. Gildersleeve, things were evened up a little by every man of the "load" being in turn ordered to the platform to make a speech—ready or not ready. Gorst, Classen, Corkey, Young, and when the hour was passed every one seemed to think they had had a good time. But what of it all? Little children have grown to manhood and womanhood since the organization of this church twenty-four years ago and are now among its active supporters. Youths of that day, now in middle life, stand in the foreground to bear the heat and burden of the day while many who nobly wrought then have been transferred to the Church Triumphant. But not the least joy about it all is to see such people, surrounded in the House of Prayer by a multitude of their own children, high browed, intellectual youths with true ideals of life—a band of youth that, either individually or collectively would grace any church or community in the country. These are some of the compensations for the sacrifices of years ago. Congratulations to Grace church.

DePew Bakery Changes Owners

A trade was completed the first of the week through the agency of Johnson & Duerig whereby J. C. Swanson becomes the owner of the bakery which O. P. DePew has so successfully conducted here for the two years last past and Mr. DePew is owner of a fine suburban property of house and six acres in the east part of the city. Mr. DePew's many friends will be glad that he is not to leave Wayne at present at least, for he is to remain with the new proprietor as head baker for a year at least. Mr. Swanson informs us that the help employed by Mr. DePew will be retained, so that the affairs will continue to move on in their well ordered way as before. The new proprietor is not a stranger here, having lived in this county for a quarter of a century and in Wayne for nearly one year. He recently purchased the Miner property and has taken possession of the same. He took charge of his new business Tuesday. The Democrat wishes him well in this venture, and cannot understand why he should not succeed.

We do not say that Rexall Rheumatic Tablets will relieve every case of rheumatism. No claim like that can be honestly made for any remedy; but we do say that Rexall Rheumatic Tablets are prepared from ingredients believed by successful physicians to be the best for relieving rheumatism, and that we honestly believe them to be the best ready-made medicine possible to obtain. The experience of those to whom we have recommended them justifies us in this belief, and gives us such great faith in their merits that we unhesitatingly guarantee with every single package that if they do not relieve we will gladly refund you the money you paid for them.

We have known cases in which they worked almost like magic and, therefore, we advise that you give them a trial entirely at our risk. While we are firmly convinced that they will help you and tend to relieve you from your rheumatic pains, yet we promise you that if you are not entirely satisfied, you can have your money back without question. ## Wide Awake

THE man with his eyes wide open to clothing possibilities and clothing prices orders his garments made to his individual measure to fit his personality. are worn by wide awake men. They are made strictly to individual measure from fabrics that are pure wool and each man has the opportunity of coming here and picking out exactly the pattern he prefers from an array of above 1500 exclusive weaves, including not only bright "checks" (as shown in our illustration), but more modest effects for the man who prefers them. These men have learned that my tailored clothes cost them not a whit more than they have been accustomed to paying for ready-mades. Does this hold a hint for you?

Why We Try to Keep A Sanitary Store

Last week I told you how impressions are formed about a store that is kept clean and in order. There was never a time when more was being said and put into effect of sanitary conditions as pertaining to food stuffs. Should it be necessary to have regular inspection trips made to the grocer to see that things are kept up to standard, or should you give your support to one who is trying to give you the best of Pure Foods that are taken care of in the "Ideal" way.

Here is what the Housewives of the east are forced to do.

To "Tag" Grocers

Each grocery store is to be duly investigated, tagged and classified by the National Housewives' League, according to Mrs. Julian Heath, president of the organization. It is the housewives purpose to conduct an investigation of all bakeries, groceries, meats shops and all other places where food stuffs are sold. Those concerns which are well conducted, clean and are selling pure food products are to receive a white sign from the league. According to Mrs. Heath, there is to be no black list or boycott system but the league will simply ask permission to hang their sign in places which have passed their inspection.

Should it be necessary for you to tag the grocers to separate the Sheep from the Goats? It costs no more to buy your Groceries of one who has: A Clean Store, Clean Goods and Clean Service.

Let the Merit System win and help me to "Grow-Sir."

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Zimmerman and family departed Monday morning for their new home in Idaho amid a host of good wishes from relatives and friends at the station. Many of Wayne county's families are leaving for new fields farther west, which fact we regret to report.

J. F. Barrett went to Omaha Tuesday to attend the state meeting of the hardware dealers. Omaha is becoming a great meeting place for these state gatherings. There is scarcely a week passes at this season of the year that they do not have some meeting. This week there are three.

Miss Maude Grothe returned to her school duties at Meadow Grove last Friday evening after a brief visit with home folks at this place. She reports that her parents, who are spending the winter months in the south, are very much pleased with that country and not very anxious to return.

Mrs. C. R. Paney and children, who live just east of Wayne, left Saturday to visit her former home at Tabor, Iowa. She was accompanied by her father-in-law, T. H. Paney, who makes his home with his son here part of the time, and spends part of the year with his daughters living at Tabor.

Miss Freda Kremke of Hoskins, who was engaged with Miss Dixon at dressmaking last winter went to Sioux City Wednesday to take a course at a school there in the art of cutting, fitting and dressmaking, for it is certainly an art to know how to convert the cloth into a stylish dress. Her father, Otto Kremke, accompanied her.

J. J. Tallman, who formerly lived here, but is now of Guthrie, Oklahoma, is greeting old friends here. He is now salesman for the National Stock Remedy Co. He has been away from here fourteen years, and while he finds many former friends, he finds many changes.

J. C. Spahr and wife, of Skidmore, Missouri, spent a few days visiting relatives of the same name here, returning Monday morning. Mr. Spahr is in concrete work at his home town, and was at Omaha attending the show of the cement workers, and came on for a short visit here before the season's work began.

Dr. E. S. Blair and wife were called to Sioux City Saturday to attend the funeral of a nephew, Master Blair Peters, who died at a Chicago hospital where he had been taken for treatment. The young man was 19 years of age, and had numerous acquaintances here, formed while visiting here with his mother, as he frequently did.

L. F. Holt, formerly of Randolph, was greeting his brother, Alex Holt, here Tuesday morning. Mr. Holt has sold his place at Randolph and was starting for the west to look for a location. His trip will include points on the Pacific coast of our own country and a run into British Columbia, about which country he has heard some flattering reports.

B. R. Atkinson, who for nearly a year past has been in charge of the Carroll Index, purchased the plant last week, and is now not only editor, but proprietor as well. Mr. Atkinson has handled the paper well for the former owner, Dr. Texley, and we predict that he can and will do better now that he has the interest of an owner combined with the love of the business which all acquire who follow the newspaper work for any length of time. The Democrat wishes the new owner continued success.

Geo. D. Thompson of Geneva, Iowa, was a guest at the home of Clyde Oman and wife the first of the week, being a friend of theirs in other days. Mr. Thompson was one of the surveyors who helped to survey the Bloomfield line north from this place, and he has not since visited here, so he certainly noted many changes in this country in the way of development. But we predict that the next fifteen years will see even greater development in Wayne county than the past twenty-five years have shown.

The funniest of all dialect Comedy dramas, "Ole Olson in Spiritland" will appear at the Wayne Opera house Tuesday, February 18th. The play is the latest and most up-to-date version of the Swedish dialect comedy and presents "Ole" amid new surroundings. His wit and humor permeates the piece during the four acts keeping the audience in a perfect roar of laughter and applause throughout the show. The supporting company is all that could be desired, and a large number of clever musical and advanced vaudeville specialties are given throughout the play. The regular house prices will prevail and reserved seats are now on sale.

Friday evening the patrons and teachers of this school district gathered at the school house for what was termed, "A Patron's Meeting." County Supt., Mrs. Elsie Littell and Prof. C. W. Bright of the State Normal were the out of town guests. A short program was given in which Mrs. Littell, C. H. Bright, Mrs. Schemel and Mrs. O. O. Hager delivered short addresses in which they showed cooperation needed between the parents and the teacher for the proper bringing up of the child. Some very good suggestions were given and it is hoped that some help was received by all through the meeting. In addition to the program a short time was spent in social enjoyment after which a lunch was served.—Hoskins Headlight.

It Was a Good Sale

We refer to the sale held by L. M. Owen last week Wednesday. We asked Mr. Owen to tell us about it because we had a curiosity to know. Our curiosity was stimulated by the advertising given the sale. When the date had been fixed, Mr. Owen began telling about the sale in locals. Every week he had some little ad about the coming sale. When he procured large bills and cards, and carried a half-page advertisement in both Wayne papers for two weeks prior to the sale.

The result was highly satisfactory. Two horses sold for $523; eight horses made an average of $223; and the entire bunch of 34 head, which included colts from suckling colts up averaged $150 per head, bringing more than $5,000. His young Shorthorn bulls sold at an average of $75 each. In fact, he reports that the entire sale was highly satisfactory. The sale day was clear and bright, but too cold for any to go who did not go to buy. Another thing that came to light was that some people did not attend the sale for fear of taking hog cholera to their herds, as the Owen farm was afflicted early in the fall. It does not seem possible that there is such a danger as no hogs were on the place.

Advertising in Medical Profession

Advertising is merely telling the public, in your own way, who are and what you have to sell. Every honest business should be open to advertisement. No one would think of sending to a mail order house for a set of teeth—yet many attempt to cure all diseases of the body, whether of the heart, stomach, lungs, or other organs from one common bottle of Patent Medicine. Some people seem to think doctors are necessary evils. They shun them as long as possible. This is not fair to the profession nor to the public themselves. It is just as necessary to know when to leave off medicine as when to begin. Don't try to be your own doctor any more than your own lawyer. Medicine is a life-long study. It is an education of itself to diagnose your aches. If you do not believe it take any "Doctor Book" and you will find that you have symptoms of every disease. Let us be just and fair. No doctor has any miraculous power. He can do no more than shorten the time and aid Nature in the process of repair. Have confidence in your Doctor. Don't employ him because he is a relative or friend, church or lodge member. Employ him because you are satisfied he is competent and will deal with you justly. Without health, the attainments of wealth, fame or glory are naught. It pays to keep health. It pays to use doctors for this end. Do not count them necessary evils, count them friends. It is my aim to make myself as proficient as possible and do my best for all who need my help.—adv. DR. S. A. LUTGEN, Phone 30. Wayne, Nebr.

Among The Churches of Wayne

St. Paul's Lutheran Church (Rev. J. Kuhn, Pastor.)

The choir are now in possession of new anthem books. At their request they were purchased by the Ladies Aid society. This is a praiseworthy deed. It means better music and a more interesting service. For this we are truly thankful.

Our services were quite largely attended on last Sunday. Being the first Sunday in Lent, the pastor preached an appropriate sermon for the occasion. The subject of the sermon was "Temptations and to gain the victory over them." The pastor took for his text: 1. Cor. 10:13. Our temptations were placed under the general heads, "The flesh, the world and the devil," as seen in the temptation of Christ, who was "in all points tempted like as we are." In like manner was our mother, Eve, tempted and all of her posterity. To overcome these temptations, divine aid is necessary. This comes in answer to prayer, by faith in God, and a faithful use of "the sword of the Spirit," which is the Word of God. The victory brings the highest happiness and "the crown of life."

Our Sunday school has adopted the "Little Prize System." This is designed to increase faithfulness in attendance and to secure an increase of membership. Already it is beginning to bear good fruit. There is much anxiety to make a good record.

The Ladies' Aid society meets on Thursday of this week at the home of Mrs. E. C. Tweed. At this meeting plans will be perfected for the Bazaar to be held on March 18th. From the present outlook this promises to be a very successful affair. The society is quite enthusiastic over it.

The services for next Sunday will be as usual. Sunday school at 10 a. m. and preaching services at 11. The sermon will be appropriate to the second Sunday in Lent. At this service a special offering will be given to foreign missions to be applied to our apportionment to Synod. A large attendance of all the members and friends is very much desired and welcome to the general public is extended.

Presbyterian Church

Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.

"Unused Possibilities" will be the subject of the sermon next Sabbath morning by the pastor. In the evening he will conclude his series of sermons on "Spiritual Fundamentals." The topic of the closing sermon will be, "The Kingdom of God on Earth," or "What Christianity is going to Accomplish in Society."

"Bulletins from the Temperance War" will be the subject of the C. E. prayer meeting on Sunday evening at 6:30 p. m.

The church service begins at 10:30 on Sunday morning, followed by the Sunday school at 12 o'clock. In the evening the preaching service begins at 7:30.

There will be preaching in the McEachen school house by Rev. Alexander Corkey next Sunday afternoon. The subject of the sermon will be "The Gift of a Sabbath Day."

Last Sunday evening the sermon on "The Fact of Hell" was listened to with considerable interest. After a brief prelude in which the speaker showed the rise and decline of a belief in purgatory, the teachings of Christ in regard to hell were set forth clearly, and the blessings of the doctrine established. Amongst the blessings which are brought to the world by the revealing of the fact of hell is the assurance that God is just. Men may do as they please, sin as much as they desire, but in every case they have to pay the price. The doctrine of hell also shows the value of Christ's work of redemption and deepens the love of the Christian for his Lord. In addition to this secret of the earnest Christian's interest in the worst of men is his belief in a sure doom for the wicked. This accounts for such lives as those of Maud Ballington Booth and Mrs. Alexander who look on the most degraded as worthy of all effort for they are still out of hell. In conclusion the minister said that a belief in hell takes all desire for vengeance out of the Christian's heart, and it is possible for him to understand the command, "Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but leave room for God's judgment, for it is written, 'Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord.'" Lynchings, feuds, revenge, unwritten law, episodes, murder and general debauchery result from the unbelief of men in Christ's teaching in regard to hell. Even if one doubted whether there be a hell or not it is certainly possible that there may be one, and just as we insure our lives and our homes on the possibility of fire it is well to be certain of missing the "unquenchable fire" by living a Christian life, especially since Christianity enables one to live a happier and better life in this world.

Baptist Church

Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor

Services were well attended and full of interest last Sunday. In the evening service one young woman publicly confessed her faith in Christ. A splendid spirit is manifested in all departments of the church life.

On Sunday morning at the usual hour the pastor will preach on the subject "The Acts of Jesus." In the evening the subject will be "I will follow Thee, but..."

The young people's meeting will be led by Mr. Clarence Linten. The subject will be the Temperance War. This will be a good meeting for you to attend.

A part of the opening exercises of the Sunday school will consist of a short missionary program given by one of the classes. A different class will give a new program each Sunday for a while. The present lessons will have to do with missions in China.

Our prayer meetings are exceedingly helpful, especially to the younger Christians. Last week we considered the difficulties in the way of becoming Christians. Next week the thought will be, "Our Helpers in the Christian Life."

On Sunday evening, a week from next Sunday, we are going to have a service especially for men. The ladies are invited and heartily welcomed, but we shall make the meeting primarily for men. A men's chorus will sing. Special music by men. The sermon especially suited to men. We would like to see the auditorium full of men. Remember the date.

German Lutheran Church

Rev. Rudolph Moehring, Pastor.

Next Sunday services will be as usual, Sunday school at 10 o'clock and sermon at 11 o'clock. In the afternoon the minister will preach at Winside.

The pastor wishes to call the attention of all the members of his congregation to that season of the "Ecclesiastical year" which we now have entered, Lent. Let us during Lent, more than at any other time, bow down at Calvary cross continually looking at our crucified Savior. To us there will be no joyous Easter time, no joyous celebration of our Lord's resurrection, if we do not now prepare our hearts for it by continually meditating on the bitter suffering and death of our Lord. These thoughts caused the pastor to preach a series of sermons based on the words of the dying Savior. Last Sunday, the first Sunday of Lent, the pastor delivered a sermon of Luke 23:34: "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

The pupils of the confirmation class now began to study the Lord's prayer according to the third part of Luther's Catechism and are showing much interest in their work.

Committees Visit The Normal

During the past week three committees from the state legislature visited the Normal and investigated the needs of the school for the next biennial period. On Thursday Representatives Fred Hoffmeister of Imperial and George W. Losey of Fremont paid a visit to Wayne, the former representing the committee on university and normal schools and the latter the finance committee of the House. Dr. Hoffmeister is an old-time friend of Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Senter and his visit in their home is one of the pleasant features of his trip through this part of the state. In the evening an informal reception was arranged by the commercial club, and, by the courtesy of Mayor Kate, the visitors were shown through the city hall and enjoyed a social hour with the business men of the town.

The special senate committee which came to Wayne on Saturday consisted of Senators Walter Keichel of Auburn, John F. Cordeal of McCook and J. A. Ollis of Ord. This committee inquired very carefully into the needs of the school and seemed greatly interested in plans for the future. The members of the committee, Senator P. H. Kohl and W. D. Redmond were entertained at dinner by President and Mrs. Conn, and in the evening they were guests of Senator and Mrs. Kohl.

Senator Cordeal knew Miss Elizabeth Bettcher when she was teacher in the high school department of the McCook schools and he was pleased to learn of her success as critic teacher in the Wayne state normal.

The committee left Wayne at 6:50 for Chadron and expected to visit Chadron, Grand Island, and Kearney before returning to Lincoln.

Representatives J. M. Gates of Sarpy, M. J. Murphy of Saline, and N. J. Anderson of Douglas, were the members of a special committee from the House that stopped off at Wayne on Monday evening and remained until ten o'clock the following day. They were accompanied by State Architect, Burd F. Miller, and later joined by Representative C. H. Bartels, who came down from Carroll on the morning train. This was the only committee that came while the school was in session. They were present at the chapel exercises, and upon being introduced by President Conn, each expressed himself as being well pleased with the excellent condition of the school.

In every case the legislators who visited Wayne were men of ability, broad minded, eager for information, and showing a desire to represent the state and to deal justly with the various institutions of the state. In addition to the request for maintenance, the Wayne state normal is asking an appropriation of $85,000 for a new central building to take the place of the old college building which has been declared unsafe by the state architect. Providing suitable quarters for such departments as are now housed in the old college building demands the attention of the present session of the legislature, and we feel sure that all who visit the Wayne institution and acquaint themselves with conditions are convinced that the need here is real and urgent.

State Conservation Congress

The Fourth Annual Nebraska Conservation Congress is called to meet at Lincoln, February 19th, 20th and 21st, 1913; the sessions of the congress and the privileges of the floor are open to all citizens of the state; there are no membership fees or dues. Many speakers of national reputation will be in attendance to discuss the problems connected with conservation and development of vital resources.

By the Governor of Nebraska, 200 at large.

By each member of the legislature, each mayor of a city, town or village council, each county board or governing body of a county or municipality, 10 delegates at large.

By each commercial club, 2 delegates.

By each Woman's Club, Agricultural, Civic or Educational Society or Club, 2 delegates.

By railways, manufacturing, industrial or commercial corporations, 2 delegates each.

By each religious denomination, 50 delegates at large.

Farmers' Institute organizations, Farmers' Clubs and similar agricultural organizations are invited to send accredited delegates on the basis of two for each such organization.

Send list of delegates and address for programs and further detailed information, the Secretary Nebraska Conservation Congress, Lincoln, Neb.

Will Wayne send any delegates?

Personal Talks With Renters

By Henry Wallace

I do not feel that I am presuming in addressing you as friend, much as that name has been abused when used in addressing farmers. I use it because, if you know anything about me, you do not need to be told that I have aimed for a quarter of a century to be the helper and friend of every good farmer and of every man who tries to be a good farmer. If I am a stranger to you, it will be my aim to show you that I am your friend, without directly saying so; for the essence of friendship is helpfulness.

You are a renter, farming some land owned by another man. It is no disgrace to be a renter. Most of the men who do business in the cities are renters, nearly all renting their places of business, and many of them their homes as well. The fact that they are renters does not affect their credit, nor their social standing. They rent because they believe they make more out of the capital by using it as working capital than by using part of it as fixed capital by owning their places of business. When they own their own homes, they regard them as luxuries, and not as capital. It is nearly always cheaper in the city to rent than to own the houses in which they make their homes. The house is always a place in which we live; a home is the life we live in the house. When you rent a farm, you usually rent with it a house in which you make your home, as well as the land with which to support the family and the home.

Now, it is not material at present whether the farm you rent is large or small, nor whether you pay rent in cash or in kind, nor whether the owner is a relative or a retired farmer or a speculator or a capitalist, or all of them. Nor does it matter so far as this letter is concerned whether the land is rich or poor, nor whether you pay high rent or a low rent, nor how much working capital you have, nor whether you began as a hired man and made your own money or inherited it, nor whether you have been in business and want to try farming—a back-to-the-lander. In any or all of these cases, the thing I want to talk over with you is your relation to the owner of the land and to the land itself. For in every lease there is a party of the first part (the owner), a party of the second part (the renter), and, not specifically mentioned, there is a party of the third part (the land).

This party of the third part will be here long after you are gone and forgotten, and will be for a while at least what you two fellows, who loom so large now, make it. It will record faithfully your virtues as farmers and your shortcomings, your successes and your failures. The land can not take its own part, but it can praise you by growing good crops, or after awhile condemn you by growing poor crops; and if you misuse it, after you are gone it will blast your reputation by growing weeds; or if you abuse it, by turning its gullied face to the heavens, praying for a farmer who is fit to farm it. Therefore, the thing for you two to do before spring opens is to get together on the farm; if possible, go over it, study it, and settle on a plan of farming this land that will enrich you and enrich the land also. It should not be hard to do this; and if the man who owns the land and intends to keep it for himself or for his children, is a retired farmer and has lived on the farm, and you are a newcomer, he can tell you a great deal about the land that you don't know, and that you should know. For most farms are like most people: You must live with them awhile before you really know them.

Nor will the wise tenant have much trouble with the capitalist who looks upon his farm as a permanent investment. He may not know much about farming, and but little about his farm, but your interest in it and his are the same, and he will be glad to consider carefully whatever you have to suggest in the way of crops and methods of cultivation. If you are really competent to handle his land, he will in time lean on you for counsel and advice.

Your greatest trouble will come from the speculator who holds his land for an advance, or from the owner whose land is encumbered and who wishes to sell. In either case you can rent only on a one-year lease. Neither of these last two classes will make any improvements that cost much money. You must appeal to their self-interest in whatever you do. In either case, they want the farm to look well-kept when a buyer comes around, and you can insist on their paying you for what you do toward that end, even when your outlay is merely labor at odd times. It is to his interest to have you as his friend, and you can make even the most selfish man see that.

But whatever sort of landlord you have, it is important that you get together on the best methods of farming.

You can not afford to look upon each other in any other way than as friends having interests in common. You can not afford to be strangers, or even indifferent to each other's welfare. The worst landlord is a better fellow than you think, when you but get next to him. If you look upon him as a hard grasping fellow, who wants to get all he can out of you, and he looks upon you the same way, it's a pity you ever got together, a pity for both of you, and a greater pity for the land itself. Take the first opportunity to have a long and friendly talk with the owner of the land. (I don't like that word "landlord," especially the last half of it.) Recognize the mutuality of your interests and the interest of the land itself. Do this, and you will feel much better throughout the year. The crops will grow better and you will have better luck. Possibly you won't get along well together for more than this year, but while you have to work together, do your best to make things pleasant and profitable. At any rate, you will find it profitable to discuss freely how you can make the most out of the farm you are to cultivate this year.

No "Medical Trust" Wanted

President-Elect Wilson, in the course of an address to a gathering of social workers at the private house in Hoboken where he was a week-end guest, is reported to have said of the proposal for national supervision of matters of health and sanitation:

Most of the things you have spoken of are without political embarrassment. One that does have political embarrassment is the health department project. There is a fear in many minds that we are about to set up what has been called a "medical trust." It is very desirable to remove that idea. It is very desirable. There is nothing, except his religious convictions, with which the average citizen so deeply resents governmental interference as in matters affecting his health and the health of his family. Any sort of dictation about what measures he shall take to preserve or restore health the average man regards as an unbearable outrage.

Although Mr. Wilson went on to say that he had "never seen any serious proposal to put any particular school of medicine in charge of the national health," precisely such an intention was widely imputed to the measure most earnestly urged in the last Congress. Whether justified or not, these imputations were confirmed in the minds of thousands by the apparent unanimity with which medical societies of a particular school urged the passage of the Owen bill.

It is probably true that desirable measures of sanitation and disease prevention could be more effectively administered under national authority. But so long as doctors disagree so widely and violently among themselves it is impossible to expect the laity to accept any method of statement of disease as right to the exclusion of all other methods.

Anything that even looked like a "medical trust" would be widely and deeply resented by all sorts and conditions of citizens. The political party that makes itself responsible for any legislation which can be so constructed will have only its own folly to blame for its subsequent troubles. And it will have plenty of troubles.—Inter Ocean, Chicago, Ill., Jan. 28, 1913.

Does It Pay To Advertise?

The fact that the best business men of the country—the most ably managed corporations—all advertise will compell one to answer in the affirmative the above question. Not all advertising pays, however; but well-directed work will be rewarded. But the best returns so far as we know from an advertisement came to J. L. Payne, who two weeks ago instructed the Democrat to insert a local for him of a 40-acre place for sale adjoining Wayne. Saturday he came in and paid 70 cents for his advertising, and ordered it discontinued. Sold the entire piece to D. Macklin, from Iowa, who paid him $250 per acre for the well-improved 40—$10,000, total. It is not often that so small an investment turns so sudden and so large a deal; but it is one of the possibilities of advertising.

One of our local exchanges is authority for the statement that "boiled" shirts are going out of style—and a soft, comfortable garment to take its place. Yes, and the old-fashioned shirt that you had to put on and off over your head has almost given way to a garment which opens down the front and is donned like a coat.

About County Bridges

Last week the commissioners of this county did a wise thing when they finished their business Tuesday and went to Wakarusa to hear the talk on bridges. It was not possible for a representative of the Democrat to attend this institute, so we will do the next best thing, and quote the report of the bridge talk of Mr. Losh of Kansas, from the Cedar County News, as Mr. Losh spoke on the same subject at Hartington. To be sure what the News says as to raw material for concrete bridges does not apply here as in Cedar county, but other parts of the report apply to many a community:

Mr. Losh closed the program with a talk on bridges, illustrated with views shown by the stereopticon, and enriched with his observation of bridges around Hartington. Nebraska spends $4,000,000 a year for bridges and roads, at least $1,000,000 of which might as well be thrown in the creek so far as any good it does the taxpayers. This is not necessarily due to any dishonesty on the part of officials, but is the result of a poor system and the practice of petty politics. A large number of views were thrown on the screen, among the first being that of a "tin bridge" "the same sort of a thing as that one just north of this town, straight out the principal street toward the cemetery. I looked at it this afternoon. They are made up of the thinnest kind of steel, so thin that when a little rust forms on both sides you have only a sheet of tin between. The abutments on which it rests are not heavy enough to stand up long. And there is no reinforcement of the little concrete there is. Cracks already show all through it. One of these days it will go down and you will have a new bridge to pay for, and maybe a human life." With such sand and gravel as we have here we could have built a concrete bridge that would actually support a load, that would last forever and always be an ornament, and could have built it for less than the iron one is reputed to have cost. In addition to this, the money would have remained in the county, the cost of a concrete bridge being mostly for labor. Mr. Losh threw on the screen a multitude of pictures mostly taken in Kansas, showing steel bridges wrecked under light traction engines, and concrete bridges standing up under immense weights. A load of 180 tons in the middle of a forty-foot span gave it a deflection of 3/4 of an inch. He showed picture after picture of concrete bridges which cost less than the tin bridges which they had replaced, though most of the concrete bridges cost more than the tin ones to start. However, when one counts the cost of constant repairs and new wooden floors, and eventual replacements, the concrete bridge is much the cheapest in the long run. The methods of steel bridge companies leave much to be desired in most cases. Mr. Losh has helped to investigate a number of Kansas counties, and the result has been the return of large sums of money collected by the companies to which they were not entitled. Mitchell county got back $20,000.00, Smith county $40,000.00, Morton county $15,000.00 as the result of the activity of the state engineer's office. The Kansas office finds that concrete culverts can be built for right around half the price of corrugated steel tile for the same size, counting the cost of hauling gravel longer distances than would be necessary in the part of Cedar county most remote from gravel pits. In Kansas they find that they can profitably ship gravel long distances by rail, for the construction of bridges and culverts.

Looked at County Bridges

While here, Mr. Losh examined a number of bridges, county and city, and dug into the records a little, including the recently adopted contract with the Western Bridge and Construction company. This newspaper had the pleasure of an interview with him, and in future issues will take up some further details of the bridge business as conducted in Cedar county.

The following officers were named for the ensuing year: president, John M. Lammers; secretary, J. Albert Olsen; treasurer, A. Walz, members executive committee, E. W. Childs, M. K. Pollock, and W. A. Bowker. The ladies did not reorganize.

The demonstration of cooking by Mrs. Luckey and Miss Armstrong were given in the K. C. hall, and attracted good attendances on both days.

Wayne, Randolph, Pierce and Creighton are the four schools which will comprise the northeast Nebraska district of the debating league of the state. Prof. J. T. House was at Randolph last Friday evening to act as one of the judges in the matter of selecting the team at that place.

In telling of the farmers' institute at Hartington the Herald speaks of the school exhibit as follows:

"One exhibit which attracted a great deal of attention at the Farmers' Institute this year and which has never appeared before was the very extensive and excellent exhibit from the recently established departments of domestic science and manual training of the public schools. Considering the short time that these departments have been in operation, the exhibit was really remarkable and shows what is being done by our schools along these lines."

We are glad to note that our neighbors are getting real benefits from the new department of their schools. It is the coming practical feature of our school system.

The Carroll Index says that the pavilion sales at that place are growing in popularity, and a good thing for the town and the people. Same is true here, and when a system is established which helps all round, both sides—buyer and seller as the pavilion sales do, they are bound to become popular.

WAYNE MARKET REPORT

Following are the market prices quoted us up to the time of going to press, Thursday:

Table with market prices for Oats, Corn, Barley, Spring wheat, Wheat, Eggs, Butter, Hogs, and Fat Cattle.

One well informed man in regard to freight rates says that it is not the cost of the haul, but the cost at the terminals that makes our freight charge so high.

One thing to the credit of the parcels post is the letting out of $32,640,000 water in the stock of four of the leading express companies of this country.

Every day or two there comes to our knowledge something which makes us think how good it would be for Wayne to have a building and loan organization.

Randolph people want a wye so that freight may be transferred from one road to the other at this place.

THE STREETS OF NAPLES.

They Are the Workshops of the People in the Poorer Quarters.

The ancient city of Naples has always been more celebrated for its beauty and interest of its surroundings than for its own attractiveness or scenic advantages.

In the poorer and more populous quarters all handicrafts and occupations are carried on out of doors, and the streets are as busy as beehives.

All day long the rattle of wheels, the cracking of whips, the furious shouting of drivers, the jingle of the elaborately decorated harness, the cries of innumerable street hawkers, the playing of military bands as regiments march through the streets, fill the air with a not unpleasant and thoroughly Neapolitan din.

BREVITY APPRECIATED.

Japanese Courtesy Was a Bore to Both Oriental and Englishman.

Oriental courtesy takes up a great deal of time and on that account is not always appreciated in western lands.

"I used to live in Greenwich, and thence I attended to the Japanese naval office in the morning, then to the night school of the Goldsmith Institute.

"How were you getting on with your work today?" "I always answered him every small detail of my work at the office and the school.

"Why is your husband giving me such a troublesome question? You see, I often feel too tired to answer."

"She put me and said: 'My poor boy, you need not give him all information of your work. It is our custom to say 'How are you getting on?' and if you simply say 'All right' that will be quite enough."

"The next evening the old man put the same question to me. At first I rather hesitated because I thought such an abrupt answer might offend him, but I got courage at last when I saw his wife giving me some sign in her eyes.

Chilling Prospect.

It was in Lincolnshire, and the guard of the train at the preceding junction had been attentive to a gentleman whose luggage he noticed was labeled to an out of the way little station a few miles beyond.

"Well, sir, you never can tell. I have left several gentlemen such as you at this forsaken hole, but never picked one up. Goodness only knows what becomes of them, I don't."

Fixing the Guilt.

Following Tim, who was following a pair of horses, the owner of the farm noticed that the drills Tim had been running out for potatoes were strangely irregular.

"Faith, they are now," assented Tim, "but you should have seen them this mornin' before th' sun warped them."

Stupid.

"I wish I was half as beautiful as Miss Brown," remarked the fair Edith to Mr. Green.

"Well, you are, you know," replied Green thoughtlessly.

Then he wondered why she suddenly rose and left him.

Till the Smoke Rose.

In the third century there was an emperor of Japan who, mounting to the summit of a hill during a period of hard times and poor crops, observed that no smoke was rising from the clustered cottages in the valleys below him.

The Supercritic.

Provost Hawkins of Oriel college, Oxford, declares the Right Hon. W. G. E. Russell in "Edward King, Sixtieth Bishop of Lincoln," was never happy unless he could find some fault to criticize in the undergraduates who came before him.

"I observe, Mr. King," said he, "that you have never missed a single chapel, morning or evening, during the whole term."

He paused, but instead of a word of praise, which might reasonably have been expected, he continued severely:

"I must warn you, Mr. King, that even too regular attendance at chapel may degenerate into formalism."

Those Perfect Pairs.

"Now, Alice," said Mrs. P. to her newest domestic, "while I'm out just pare the potatoes and put them ready. I shall not be long gone."

About an hour later Mrs. P. came back from her shopping expedition, bringing the meat that was destined to accompany the potatoes to the dinner table.

Alice was calmly seated on the floor, around her a goodly collection of the delectable tubers.

"Good gracious!" exclaimed the horrified mistress. "What in the name of all that's wonderful are you doing?"

"Doin', ma'am?" replied the fair maid of all work. "Doin' what ye telled me, indeed. I've done the best I could, too."

Then she pointed to the potatoes. "I've pared off all of them, ma'am," she mumbled. "But, try as I will, I can't find a mate for this little beggar!"

Where the Apostles Fished.

The abundance of fish in the sea of Galilee is to this day the wonder of travelers. Most of the fishing done by the Syrians involves the use of nets probably identical in construction with those of the apostles, and the best evidence of the fishing having through the centuries been done with nets is to be found in the ease with which most of the fish may be delected with the help of any bait, natural or artificial.

OVERREACHED HIMSELF.

Napoleon and the Causes That Led Up to Waterloo.

In one way Napoleon possessed a defect similar to that of Frederick the Great. He provided no adequate staff to relieve himself of details.

It is likely that his intense desire to stand alone, in order to receive all the credit for what was done was the secret of his action.

Although undoubtedly the greatest military genius that ever lived, he overreached himself. This is shown in a single enterprise like the Russian campaign, but it is shown in the life as a whole.

He realized that the armies of the republic had been animated by a passion for liberty, equality and fraternity, but he could not understand that his aggressions upon other countries deprived his armies of this moral force and implanted it in his enemies and that no skill in strategy and tactics could long withstand it.

BOILING WATER.

Under Certain Conditions It's Just Right For a Nice Bath.

Water is a fluid simply because its particles, which may be compared to an aggregation of infinitesimal pearls, are kept separated by latent heat.

Outside heat applied to a vessel containing water causes the latent and applied heat both to act on the air contained in the water. Under such conditions pure water at sea level will boil at a temperature of 212 degrees F.

If the barometer pressure be thirty inches.

If, however, the vessel containing this same water be carried to the top of a high mountain or put under the exhausted receiver of an air pump it will boil before it reaches the temperature of 212, because the atmosphere has been taken away so as to allow the air contained in the water to escape before it becomes sufficiently heated to impart that quality to the loose particles of water surrounding it.

At a height of 18,000 feet on the sides of the Himalaya mountains water boils at a temperature of 180 degrees and under the exhausted receiver of the air pump at only 72 degrees.

This proves that boiling water is not always equally hot. It also tells us why it is next to impossible to cook meat, vegetables, etc., in high altitudes by the boiling process.-London Saturday Review.

Good Razors Possible.

There is a very common feeling that there is a certain element of chance in the purchase of a razor. It is sometimes expressed that "whatever price you pay you try your luck."

Occasionally one hears of a remarkable razor which holds its edge as if by magic, giving pleasure to its owner every day for half a lifetime, so that he would not part with it for guineas. So long as it is possible for one razor to be selected as a particularly good one it is evident that the hardening as carried out fails to impart the maximum efficiency to the majority.

The author believes that it is possible to harden every razor in a gross so that each one shall be truly a duplicate of the best. Whether it would pay to do so is a question which is outside his province -Shipley N. Brayslaw in Engineering Magazine.

The Gobi Desert.

The great desert of Gobi which is partly in China, partly in Manchuria, partly in Mongolia and partly in Siberia, is traversed by the oldest transportation lines in existence. It has a caravan route over which tea and silk laden camels have traveled toward Europe for 3,000 years, and yet from the time when Kublai Khan macadamized the road until the time when the Russian railroad paralyzed it by the competition of steam no one of the merchants who traveled over it turned either to the right or to the left to tell Europe and the accident of the wonders or the terrors of that unknown land.

Chaucer's Face in a Stone.

In a geological branch of the British museum the visitor is shown a wonderful specimen of natural imitation in a small "ribbon jasper." This stone, the material of which is not unlike that of other banded agates, has upon its surface a perfect miniature portrait of the poet Chaucer.

Every detail is startlingly correct. There are the white face, the pouting lips, the broad, low forehead and even the whites of the slightly upturned eyes. The attendants say that it is utterly impossible to convince even some of the educated visitors that it is not an artificial production.

Putting It Mildly.

She was only sixteen stone and three-quarters, so that when she trod on a banana skin she subsided very gently. A polite shopkeeper came out to assist her to rise from a box of his best new laid eggs.

"Oh, I do hope I have not broken them!" she cried.

"Not at all, madam," said the polite one; "they are only bent."-London Globe.

Time's Changes.

"You," said she as she came down the stairs leisurely pulling on her gloves-"you used to say I was worth my weight in gold."

"Well, what if I did?" he asked, looking at his watch for the third time in fifteen minutes.

"And now you don't think I'm worth a wait of two minutes."

The Turkish Fez.

The Turk's devotion to the fez is clearly explained by Duckett Ferriman: "The prejudice against the hat rests on a religious basis. If the ramaz (form of prayer) is rightly performed the forehead must touch the ground. The brim of a hat or the peak of a cap would prevent this."—London Globe.

Methodist Church

Rev. Wm. Gorst, Pastor

St. Valentine's Day, February 14th, from three to nine o'clock is the big Methodist day. Come at three and take in the afternoon program, mostly in the interests of the great Woman's Organizations of the church, along with music, vocal and instrumental, mingled with some high class humor. The district superintendent will be one of the speakers. Picnic and social in the basement parlors from 5 to 7:30. Prof. L. H. Britnell is the president of the evening and general manager. He and his lieutenants will assign tables to the various groups of families, friends, etc. at five o'clock. No table or space can be claimed or will be assigned before five. But people arriving with baskets, wraps, etc., can take them to the basement and lay them on any vacant tables or seats and men will be in waiting to properly care for them until five o'clock.

Notice carefully—The only item to be furnished to those attending the picnic and social hour is BLACK COFFEE. It can be had in the basement kitchen as free as water. But people must bring coffee pots and all other dishes, knives and forks, spoons, etc., that they want to use. It is very earnestly desired that all families having children in the S. S., whether they be Methodist people or not, will prepare their baskets. Bring all the children and have a good time.

The evening program also at 7:30 will be full and strong. If any should be unable to attend the afternoon service or the picnic, they may be able to attend the evening program. Only the capacity of the church building is intended to be the limit of those attending the evening program.

Next Sunday morning the pastor will speak on some lessons from the life of Abraham Lincoln and in the evening will discuss some characteristics found among the negroes. In connection with the evening service Olive M. McBeth will read an item in connection with the life of Lincoln.

Joseph C. Swanson to O. P. DePew, 5 1/2 acres in n e 1/4, 18-26-4, $5,000.

The American Economist has a queer line of protection argument, for it is the official organ of the protectionist. First, a reduction of the tariff will so reduce the price by letting the foreign product in, that home industry will be killed—but no sooner is the home producer buried than the foreign supply comes up with a bound to a price higher than the article sold for before the tariff was removed. When it does that we think there will be a resurrection of home industry—provided it is ever killed. To us it seems as though the freight difference between home and abroad will make a nice little protection to the home producer—provided, of course, that we can get an equitable freight rate.

Let's Look Them Over Together

During this and next week if you find yourself with a little extra time on your hands come down to our store and, whether you are ready to buy or not, lets take a look at the new goods and plan for the new clothes for spring and summer. We already have in stock a nice lot of the new fabrics and trimmings that will be most popular.

Start with the Ginghams. Not counting the apron checks we are showing three different values in ginghams. The Zephyr ginghams in 27-inch widths, all standard, such as Bates seersucker and Red Seals we are pricing this year at 12 1-2 cents. Next is a 33-inch fine Zephyr gingham in many very pretty patterns at 15c. Then the French 33-inch ginghams at 25c. Absolutely nothing but standard brands are offered you.

In the matter of Percales for waists and light house dresses we have taken no chances but have bought nothing but the standard Manchester cambrics, 36-inches wide, and though they cost us more than any ordinary brands we have put them on sale at 15c per yard.

Kindergarten cloth is one of the newer fabrics which you may have seen advertised. We have it in three colors at 25 cents per yard.

Our Egyptian tissues are the standard Lorraine tissues and are the best we know anything about. These come mostly in stripes and sell for 25c.

Several pieces of silk stripe Voile have been received. These are among the very best values that you will see in sheer materials for 25 cents.

In pure linen crash we are showing white, natural, blue and pink at 40c and 45c per yard.

The new Spring Worsteds that we have so far received are mostly wide wale in effect though some fine novelty stripes are already here for your inspection. The prices on exclusive patterns range from $1.00 to $1.50 per yard.

Several new pieces of Embroidery have been added to our nearly complete stock during the last week. Many of these are the plain or Convent edges and especially good narrow Cambric Embroidery for trimming undermuslins. These are priced from 5c to 19c per yard.

John Krei and wife left here Wednesday morning for their new home at Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Mr. Krei has been a resident of this county for the past twenty-five years and is held in highest respect by all who know him. He still retains a farm near Wayne and property in the city. Sioux Falls was for many years the home of Mrs. Krei, and she has children living there, so for a time at least they will make that their home.

Washington Political News

By C. H. Taverner

Washington, February 12.—Few persons realize the far reaching importance of the fact that the United States will soon have an income tax on its statutes.

First of all it means that millionaires will, for the first time since this nation has stood, bear a fair proportion of the burden of taxation.

It is estimated that one hundred million dollars will be raised annually by taxing incomes. This will mean that that amount of taxation is to be taken off of the things that the people must have in order to live and placed on wealth.

Under the system of protection as played in this country, nearly every penny of the money necessary to run the government, maintain the army and navy, construct public buildings, etc., is raised by taxing the things the people eat, wear and use. The only thing that protection does not tax is wealth. A man with a fortune of ten million dollars has not been required to pay a single penny of tax to the national government. This seems almost unbelievable, but it is true. The man working on the section for one dollar and fifty cents per day, with a family of five children, is at the present time actually contributing more to run the national government than the millionaire bachelor, too proud to marry and raise a family.

The United States of America is practically the only one of the great nations where such a condition exists. Nearly every first class nation on earth levies either an income tax or an inheritance tax. We have neither.

Why have we never been able to place an income tax on the statute books, is the question that naturally arises. Here is the answer: High protectionists have prevented the passage of an income tax law, because they knew that the more money the government collected from taxing incomes, the less excuse there would be for a tariff tax. To take protection away from the tariff trusts is to interfere with their monopolies. And how could the tariff trusts gouge consumers without having monopolies of American markets?

The American people are paying annually about $80,000,000 more for their cotton goods than they ought to pay, because of the iniquitous Payne-Aldrich tariff law. The 63rd Congress is preparing to interfere with this robbery. There will be a big downward revision on all kinds of cotton goods.

The cotton schedule of the Payne-Aldrich law carries an average duty of about 53 per cent. This means that every article of cotton cloth and every piece of cotton yarn that comes through the custom house, has 53 per cent added to its foreign price. And on cotton goods that does not come through the custom house, but is manufactured in this country, the 53 per cent added just the same by the home manufacturer.

When the tariff on cotton goods is reduced one-third or one-half of the present rates, this article so much used by women and children, may be had at prices more nearly representing the actual value of the goods.

Attention Farmers

Produce infertile eggs. Prevent loss from bad eggs. The loss to the farmers of the United States from bad methods of producing and handling eggs is estimated at $45,000,000 annually. It is also estimated that $15,000,000 to his loss is due to blood rings.

Every dollar of this loss from blood rings is directly preventable on the farm. Blood rings are a certain stage of chick development in the egg. Heat develops the germ until it becomes a blood ring.

Blood rings often develop in the nest and in an unheated room in the house during the hot summer weather. Blood rings cannot be produced in the infertile egg. Infertile eggs are eggs laid by hens that are not allowed to run with a male bird.

Farmers are urged to adhere strictly to the following rules in handling their poultry and eggs:

Keep the nests clean, provide one nest for every four hens.

Gather the eggs twice daily. Keep the eggs in a cool, dry room or cellar.

Market the eggs at least twice a week.

Sell, kill or confine all male birds as soon as the hatching season is over.

Cause for Study

Judge Welch came to Neligh last Monday for the purpose of hearing the case of the state against Wm. Weigand who had signified his intention of pleading guilty to the charge of stealing chickens from Henry Dressler, a neighbor. The prospect of remaining in jail until the April term with an uncertainty ahead of him, caused him to take this step. Upon his plea of guilty, Judge Welch sentenced him to an intermediate term in the penitentiary of from one to ten years. Immediately the sentence was pronounced, Weigand broke down and wept bitterly, seeming to just come to a realization of what it meant to him. He begged piteously for mercy and the Judge taking into consideration the destitute circumstances of his wife and child and the fact that it was his first offense, changed the sentence to a fine of $100 which means about forty days in jail. He will be arrested again as soon as his sentence is served on another charge.—Neligh Register.

And meanwhile what of that wife and child? When will we wake to our responsibility to such men and their helpless wives and children? What are the causes that made this man a thief? Why should this poor child be condemned to such a life as present circumstances make for it? Is there no good in this man? If there be even a grain of good were it not more important that our state spends its money developing that good than in making a criminal of him, a charge upon public charity of his unfortunate wife and child? When will we come to realize that the human breed is in as much need of bureaus and departments of study and education, of care and treatment as are the hogs, the cattle, the horses upon which we spend so much?—Norfolk Press.

The Folks Are With You

Editorial in the Cleveland (Ohio) Press: There was a time when the gamblers in Wall street, arrogant with the power that control of the country's credit gives, could by a threat of panic bring Uncle Sam to his knees in terror. That was in the days when the producing millions had very little to do with the men who constituted the government—in the days when government was run as a private and select affair through Standard Oil's payroll from 26 Broadway; from the Philadelphia offices of the Pennsylvania railroad; from Jim Hill's offices in St. Paul; and from Harriman's headquarters in New York and San Francisco, aided when necessary by lesser overlords here and there.

Those were good old days for the money kings, for the people were as docile and unsuspecting as sheep at the shearing.

And they surely were sheared. Thank heaven, times have changed! Twice since the election of Wilson the Wall street zinc has been rattled and the Wall street powder flashed in stacy imitations of financial thunder and lightning designed to scare him into abandoning his progressive pledges. Wilson hasn't scared worth a cent. He has just stood pat and smiled.

The pressure may increase until his mettle is desperately tested. The forces of privilege are formidable when focussed. Our history is strewn with the wreckage of men who have dared the money power. One man, even though clothed with the mighty authority of the president of the United States, can't do much unless loyally backed up by the masses of his fellow citizens.

This is to inform you, Mr. President-elect, that the home folk are with you and will stay with you as long as you fight for them. Nobody relishes even the threat of a panic, much less the serious possibility of one. But the plain people know that there isn't even the ghost of a reason for a panic now, except among persons who are afraid of justice.

If a panic should be manipulated they will grit their teeth and go through with it, cost what it may. And they will help you to make certain that those who are responsible for it are gibbeted as high as Haman and twice as dead.

Improving His Farm

John Vennerberg, who lives three miles northeast of Wayne, is this week erecting a new chicken house, 12x32 feet, and he tells the Democrat that when it is completed, or as soon as practical thereafter, he will raise the standard of his flock, and grow some one breed of pure bred birds—and his preference now appears to be White Rocks. A little later he will tear down a part of his house and rebuild better and larger. The Democrat is glad to note this evidence of prosperity on the part of Farmer Vennerberg.

Obituary

Caroline D. Starr was born at Springfield, Ohio, on October 30, 1837, and departed this life at Chicago, Illinois, on February 5, 1913, aged 75 years, 3 months and 6 days. While a child her parents removed to Rock Island, Illinois, where she grew to womanhood, and where she was married on August 6, 1865, to Joseph A. Gray. She and her husband continued to make their home in Rock Island for a number of years and six children were born from this union. Of these, four survive, two daughters, Mrs. Emma Dysart of Winside, Nebraska and Mrs. Lucy J. Wollenhaupt of Chicago, Ill., and two sons, Harry A. Gray of Chicago and Frank W. Gray of Los Angeles, Cal. In 1883 the family came to Wayne county and settled on a farm southwest of town. Her husband, Joseph A. Gray, died on December 5, 1891, and in the following year Mrs. Gray moved to Wayne where she made her home for a number of years. For some time past she has lived in Chicago with her daughter, Mrs. Wollenhaupt, where she resided when the end came.

She was a woman whose health in later life never was very robust and in recent years she has been quite frail.

While residing in Wayne she united with the Presbyterian church with which she retained her fellowship until her death. She was an earnest Christian, letting her light shine and revealing by her life the inward work of grace on her heart. As a wife and mother she was true, loyal, self-sacrificing and loving, and her wide circle of friends appreciated her worth and character. Having finished her work, and kept the faith, she awaited the call to the higher life in patience, and was ready when the summons came.

I know not, Oh, I know not, what joys await us there

What radiance of glory, what light beyond compare.

For so He giveth his beloved sleep.

Funeral services were held at the home of Henry Ley Saturday morning at 10:30, conducted by Rev. Alexander Corkey, assisted by Rev. Wm. Gorst. Interment was made in Greenlawn cemetery.

A Coming Profession

As far as our knowledge goes, the city of Sumter, South Carolina, is justified in claiming that it has introduced a "new and coming profession." Through the secretary of its Chamber of Commerce, that enterprising community of ten thousand people has announced that applications will be received for the office of city manager of Sumter. From the brief summary of the requirements for this office, we gather that the applicant should be competent to oversee public work, such as paving, lighting, water supply and so forth, that an engineer would be preferred; that he must state what has been his previous experience in municipal work, that he will have complete administrative control of the city, subject to the approval of a board of three elected commissioners, and that he will hold office long as he gives satisfaction to the commissioners; that his work will be purely that of an expert; and that he will be free from political control; finally, although local conditions and traditions will be taken into consideration, local citizenship will not be necessary.

The announcement concludes by designating this as "a splendid chance for the right man to make a record in a new and coming profession; since this is the first time that a permanent charter position of this sort has been created in the United States." Scientific American.

Wareham postoffice has joined the silent majority, and is no more. Uncle Sam took the sign down the first of the present month. The business will be handled from Randolph by rural carrier, the patrons of the office having all put up mail boxes. Nothing has caused the death of so many inland postoffices as the rural delivery. It has no respect for the age of its victims. One of the first offices established in Iowa, was recently put out of commission by the rural man.

The Randolph Times chronicles the death of a valuable bull dog at that place last week. Our columns would have been too short to have told of all the dogs and pups and curs that have gone to dog heaven from Wayne in the past few weeks. There has been quite an epidemic of poison among the dogs here, and with the worthless curs a number of highly prized animals have got the bait.

My Friend Pat

A Story of Colorado and the Emerald Isle

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

When I was prospecting in the gold fields of Colorado and had made what I believed to be a strike I put some gold dust in one pocket for expenses and specimens for assay in the other, and started on foot down the mountain for Denver. On the way I fell in with a young Irishman, very rugged, with a bundle tied up in a red bandanna handkerchief and a short pipe in his mouth, at which he was pulling lustily.

"Good mornin' to you," he said cheerily.

"Good morning, Pat," I replied. "How did you know my name was Pat?" he asked.

"By your brogue?"

"Is it very broad?"

"No; but broad enough to give you away as a resident of the Emerald Isle."

"Northern Irish, is it?"

"I suppose so. What are you doing out in this country?"

"Oh, I came to dig for a fortune."

"And having made it you're going back home to enjoy it?"

"What made you think I've made my fortune?"

"Oh, by your eminently respectable appearance."

"Well, now, that's lucky!"

"Why so?"

"Because I'm sadly in need of a loan, and since I've made a fortune it'll be safe for you to favor me."

I laughed at the Irish wit, and the way the young man had caught me in a trap. I was feeling somewhat set up, for I believed I had struck a fortune myself. Besides we gold seekers in those days were prone to help one another.

"How much do you want?"

"Enough to take me to Ireland—a matter of $100."

"I can't do that much for you, but I might spare $50 to get you to New York. Couldn't you make up the rest in some other way?"

"Half a loaf is better than none."

We went on to Denver together, and I was greatly amused by his humor and an original way he had of viewing things. I sold my mine for enough to make me independent for life and got a few hundred dollars for a first payment. By this time I had become so friendly with my traveling companion that I advanced him the whole sum needed to take him to Ireland. I believed he had made the fortune nearly all gold hunters make, and since I had been one of the few fortunate ones I was ready to give him a tiny bit from my bonanza.

"Where'll I send it?" he asked.

"You needn't send it at all. As soon as I get that deal closed out I'm going to Europe, and I'll see you there."

"Well, you'll find me on the estate of the Earl of Ballygarach. At any rate, inquire there for me."

"A tenant of his?"

"No."

"What's your place there?"

He hesitated, and it seemed to me he was trying to invent a reply, so I gave him a shake of the hand and said goodby. I felt sure I was making a loan that would never be repaid, but I'd had to invent stories myself about my hole in the ground in order to obtain means to keep on digging, and I wouldn't have thanked any one to question me too closely. As I turned away from him I saw a peculiar look in his eye.

"Why do you look at me in that way, Pat?" I asked. I had always called him Pat, though his name was John Curran.

"I can't make out why you're lending me this money. Unless you give me your address, that I may return it, or your promise to see me in Ireland I refuse to take it."

"All right; you have my promise to see you in Ireland."

"Don't you go back on me by not coming," he added, and we parted.

The sale of my hole in the ground was conditional, and some months elapsed before the purchasers had satisfied themselves that the property was what I claimed for it. Then, after all, I was obliged to take a good deal of the stock in the company that was formed in part payment, but this didn't trouble me, for I had great confidence in the value of the mine. Indeed, my stock eventually became many times more valuable than the cash payment. It was a year after the sale before I found myself independent to do what I liked, and I set off on a tour around the world. My course was eastward and took in England as my first landing place. I had always a desire to visit Ireland and, after seeing England to my heart's content, crossed the Irish channel. But I regretted feeling obliged to hunt up my debtor. I didn't need the money I had loaned him, and I didn't believe he would be in condition to pay it. To tell the truth, I had no idea I would find him on the estate of the Earl of Ballygarach or that I would find him at all. This opinion was not based on the belief that he was dishonest, for he had an expression that invited confidence, but on the fact that necessity knows no law, and his necessities had probably forced him to invent all he had told me.

After visiting the principal cities in southern Ireland I worked my way northward and one day brought up at a little town near the estate of the Earl of Ballygarach. I rode out to the place in an Irish two-wheeled cart and, stopping at the manor house, asked the butler if he could tell me of a man on the estate of the name of John Curran, who about a year before had returned to Ireland from America. The servant gave me a blank stare, then led me into a reception room, invited me to be seated and went away.

Presently he returned and said that the earl was not at home and he was the only one who could give me the information. Missy desired that I should make myself at home—in the library if I liked—till his lordship's return. Since I was not averse to nosing among books I assented.

An hour passed in this way, when the butler entered and said that luncheon would soon be ready and asked if I would like to go to my room. Though I didn't like such trespassing, I was not averse to being entertained by an earl and his lady, so I followed the man upstairs. What was my astonishment on entering the room assigned me to see my baggage there.

"How did this come here?" I asked.

"Missy sent to the inn for it, sir."

I brushed up a bit and went downstairs again. The butler announced luncheon and led me into the dining room. I was received there by a very pretty young woman, who said to me:

"My husband will not return for an hour or two, and, since he does not like to have any one who calls during his absence turned away, I have taken it upon myself to make you at home. He is very fond of Americans and would never forgive me if I let one of them go away without some entertainment."

I protested that I had only called to learn of the whereabouts of one John Curran, whom I had met in Colorado, and the lady replied that the earl would give me any information in his possession on his return. She entertained me delightfully at luncheon, doing everything in her power to make me feel that I was welcome. Her voice was sweet and sounded still sweeter from the rich brogue of an Irish lady. She expressed great interest in America and kept me telling her of the country, the people and our customs. Just as we were about to rise from the table there was a sound of wheels without, the front door was thrown open, and a man stalked into the dining room.

Great heavens, he was Pat!

The moment he saw me he advanced and, grasping my hand, gave it a vigorous shake, saying:

"You've come at last, have you? I vowed that if you didn't come soon I'd go back to America to find you." Then, turning to the lady, he added:

"This is the gentleman I've been looking for."

"I supposed he was when he asked for John Curran, who had come from America a year ago."

"Well, I'm John Curran myself," added the host, "and I was Earl of Ballygarach when we were trading together in Colorado, though I didn't know it. When I went out there were three lives between me and the title, but two of them had died, and I had heard that the third, my uncle, was very ill. I was trying to get home, but I didn't know what I should find here. I might find an estate waiting for me, and I might not be able to repay your loan; but, by Jove, old man, that was a queer thing for you to do—letting me have that money to get home with."

I said something about his honest countenance, but my conscience was not clear, and I didn't help the matter much. So I made light of the whole matter, mentioning the spirit that animated men who lived in new countries, their respect for the softer sex and their harshness with anything unmanly. Lady Ballygarach was much interested in this account of a people she had never mingled with, though I fancied that it was because her husband had been one of them.

The earl then asked where I had put up, saying that he must send at once for my luggage, but his wife informed him that she had sent for it, whereupon he commended her highly and declared she was a trump.

The earl kept me a guest several weeks, during which he entertained me royally. He told me that he was a younger son in another branch of the family; that his father wished him to enter the army, but, having no fortune and being in love with the girl who was now his wife, he had preferred to go to America to seek his fortune. While away his father and his older brother had died, and his uncle, the earl, a bachelor, had fallen ill. The death of his father and brother had left him with no one to call upon for funds, and, as he had before told me, his uncle would not have helped him if he had asked for help.

I confess the change in him was so great from when I had known him in the gold diggings that it seemed strange to address him by his title. I was struggling to get it out and had advanced as far as Lord Ballygarach when he broke in upon me:

"Never mind that. Call me Pat. I became so far Americanized while in your country that these flourishes on a man's name sound ridiculous."

"Do you object to your title, Lady Ballygarach?" I asked.

"Not a bit of it," her husband replied for her. "What woman would?"

During the rest of my visit I called the earl Pat.

I became so fond of Pat that I found it difficult to tear myself away from him. He had had just the experience to make a man of him.

When I left him it was with the promise that he would return my visit in the land where we had both been poor. He did so, and my success as a miner enabled me to return his hospitality in kind to my own home.

State Normal Notes

The Scandinavian club has announced its first program for the evening of February 20th.

A game of basketball was played by the Normal and the Wayne high school on Wednesday evening of this week.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public to be present at the program to be given by the Crescent literary society tomorrow evening.

The Christian associations held a union meeting Wednesday evening. Miss Lingle was leader and Miss McBeth gave stereopticon views of the Passion Play.

To meet the demands of advanced students Professor Hickman has just organized a class in School Hygiene. This subject is in the list of requirements for a city state certificate.

New registrations this week are Miss Anna E. Vequist of O'Neill, and Miss Hannah L. Chingquist of Stanton, Iowa. Miss Vequist has just closed a term of school and comes to Wayne to work for a higher grade of certificate.

The officers of the Alumni association held a meeting last Saturday and made further arrangements for the reunion which is to be held during commencement week. Dean Hahn will act as toastmaster at the banquet.

Under the skillful management of Miss Killen, their class advisor, the Sophomores are planning a class function on Thursday evening, February 13th. A banquet will be served in the domestic science department and several members of the class will respond to toasts.

Mr. F. E. Marrin, who acted as physical director at the Normal during the football season, has recently been elected to a responsible position in the Nebraska military academy at Lincoln.

Assistant State Superintendent, Anna V. Day, was a pleasant caller Thursday. She gave an address to the students at convention and spent the forenoon inspecting the work of the school.

Faculty and students regret the resignation of Earl Lewis, who has served the normal for two years as superintendent of buildings and grounds. He expects to begin work with H. B. Craven the middle of February. Efficient, courteous, faithful and trustworthy, Mr. Lewis has proved the right man for the place and we bespeak for him a large measure of success in his new business relations.

There are those who can see no way to move the state university to the state farm without spoiling the farm for the purposes of an agricultural school; and at the same time practically stopping the growth of the university for a period of three to five years during the time the change is being made. On the other hand there are those who can see no economical way of giving the proper amount of room for needed new buildings where the school now is without an enormous expense, and a handicap to the school during the time the new buildings are being constructed. This is true, the state school cannot be made adequate and modern without an expense, and from this distance it appears that the wise thing for the legislature to do is to look to future needs and start in right on a plan which will, when finished, meet the probable need for a generation or two. If it is best to have more room than can be obtained in Lincoln, move to the farm, and when the change is completed, let the state dispose of the Lincoln holdings and apply the proceeds. Get on the right track for future needs and how to the line. And now, please don't bother us for awhile, for we have great questions to settle here at Wayne: the light and power question is before us in serious aspect, and the questions of who will be the next mayor and who the coming postmaster will have to be met.

The funniest of all farce comedies, "Ole Olson in Spiritland," will be presented at the Opera house next Tuesday evening, February 18th, by Carl M. Dalton and his talented company of entertainers. While the play is an old one, it always pleases, and this season it has been entirely rewritten and a large number of feature specialties added, including Bob and Ada Davis, known as the whirlwind dancers, who sing and dance all the latest and best ragtime compositions. Special scenery is carried for each and every act and many of our theatre goers will remember the Spiritland part of the show which is as weird and entertaining as ever, and always sends the audience away in a pleasant and mystified frame of mind. If you enjoy a good laugh, good music, clever specialties, better get your seats early as Dalton always packs the houses.

Supreme Court Sends Back Case of Laurentz Nelson.

IRRIGATION CASE IS DECIDED.

Man Held by Sheriff of Cass County Will Be Turned Over to Montana Officials—Training Now Required of Food Inspectors.

Lincoln, Feb. 12.—The supreme court handed down a few opinions, among them being a case appealed from the district court of Douglas county, wherein Laurentz Nelson, who had been injured by a car of the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company, had sued the company for damages. The history of the case shows that after evidence in the case had been introduced a motion was made that the court render a verdict for the defendant on account of inefficiency of the petition and evidence. Whereupon the plaintiff asked leave to withdraw a juror and the court granted the same. The juror was withdrawn and the jury was then discharged and the case set for a new trial. Afterwards the defendant moved the court to vacate and set aside the order allowing the juror to be withdrawn and setting the case for new trial. Same was taken under advisement and later motion was sustained. The case was then dismissed according to defendant's motion. The supreme court reverses the lower court and sends the case back.

Another Case.

Another case was one in which the Platte Valley Farm and Cattle company, also doing an irrigation business, had been sued by one of its water tenants, Elmer D. Peden, for damages because of a refusal to allow him water for irrigating his crops, resulting in damage to the same. There was some controversy over the time in which the water rent was paid, but the court decided that as a contract had been made to furnish the water at a certain time the time of payment was not sufficient cause for refusal of water and rendered a verdict in favor of Peden. The company appealed and the supreme court sustains the lower court in its judgment.

Bigamy Charge Made.

The governor of Montana filed with the governor of Nebraska an application for a requisition for the return of W. H. McDonald, wanted in Cascade county in that state on a charge of bigamy. The complaint against McDonald was made by wife No. 1. The second woman in the case was Miss Ella Hawkins of the same county. Sheriff Quinton of Platte county is holding McDonald in custody and will turn him over to the sheriff of Cascade county, the application having been granted by Governor Morehead.

Training Now Required.

Food Inspector Harman has issued orders that all pure food inspectors must take a course in training at the state farm sufficient to enable them to distinguish microbes and other animals of that nature should they encounter them on their travels, and also to supplement that course with instructions under the eye of Chief Chemist Redfern before they can hope to draw any salary from the state.

New Guard Company.

A new company of the national guard will be mustered in at Grand Island as soon as the adjutant general can get time to go down for the purpose. The application for muster contains the names of over sixty young men of that city.

Telephone lines are being built, and steps are being taken to urge the building of a railroad through this section. ### Blanket Pin Causes Horse's Death.

Wauson, Neb., Feb. 12.—John Becklund, a farmer, was driving home from a neighbor's when the horse became uncontrollable and started at breakneck speed. ### Captain Wilhite Dead.

JOSEPH A. SHOEMAKER

South Omaha Man Who is Now General Manager of Denver Stock Yards

Promoted from the position of traffic manager of the Union Stock Yards of South Omaha to the general management of the Denver Stock Yards is the enviable record of Joseph A. Shoemaker, who for five years has acted as traffic manager in Nebraska's great stock yards. Mr. Shoemaker has a wide acquaintance in Nebraska, having traveled extensively through the stock raising sections of the state. Much of the success of the South Omaha yards is due to his indefatigable efforts in building up the territory. Mr. Shoemaker believes thoroughly in state development and always was foremost in any movement that tended to increase stock production in the state of Nebraska.

GENERAL HALL IS CHIEF

Head of National Guard Will Be in Charge of Police at Fair.

Lincoln, Feb. 10.—Adjutant General Hall will inaugurate a new system of creating officers of the national guard of the state, which ought to go a long way in making the guard a more efficient organization. He believes that simply because a member of the guard is a good fellow is no reason why he should be commissioned an officer unless he has other qualifications. "An officer should have some natural ability to command in order to make him a successful officer," said the adjutant general. "Every officer in the guard from now on must pass an examination as to his fitness. This examination will not be rigid or hard to take, but will show whether the officer has real military caliber."

General Hall has been appointed chief of police at the next state fair. Each company will be notified that they will be given an opportunity to select about three members of the company to act as special police at the fair.

COMPLAINS ABOUT SCHOOLS

Attorney General Tells Complainant What to Do in Matter.

Lincoln, Feb. 10.—Attention of Attorney General Marlin has been called to several school districts in the state where a marked coolness exists toward the public schools and where parochial schools are being used as instruments to root out the activities of the former institutions. Complaint to the effect was brought to the state legal department, in which it was stated that in a prosperous central Nebraska district the school directors refuse to keep up the school house in such a way that children may attend sessions held there.

Advice of the attorney general was to the effect that the man himself should make the needed repairs and put in his bill to the school directors and if they refused to pay it to seek a writ of mandamus through the district court.

York Stores Burn.

York, Neb., Feb. 10.—About 4 a. m. fire was discovered in a store occupied by Charles Shreck with a general stock of electric supplies. This building, together with a clear store and the Singer Sewing Machine company's store, was a total loss. Damage was estimated at $40,000. On the south a two-story brick structure, occupied by the Bar Furniture company, was almost completely destroyed. Its loss on stock is estimated at $15,000 and damage to the building $10,000. The buildings and stocks were only partially insured.

Beats Wife and Then Cut His Throat.

Lincoln, Feb. 10.—Through fear or remorse, Joseph A. Watts of this city cut his throat after having attacked his wife with a billiard cue and inflicted two severe scalp wounds on her head. The assault took place in one of the bedrooms of the home in the presence of their five-year-old twins. Watts will live, but he is still very weak from loss of blood.

Peru to Have Water Bond Election.

Peru, Neb., Feb. 10.—At a recent meeting of the town board of Peru it was voted to submit a waterworks proposition to the town on Feb. 24. The estimate was made by Surveyor Startevant of Holdrege, and speaks $20,000 as the amount of bonds necessary to cover the expense of an adequate system with a tower reservoir.

For misapplying $50,000 of the funds of the Audubon National bank of New York, David S. Mills, the bank's former president, was sentenced to serve seven years in the federal prison at Atlanta. Harry Brown, member of a Chicago fire insurance adjusting firm, was named as a "booming agent" for incendiary fires by witnesses examined by state's attorneys inquiring into the "arson trust." A private who had deserted from a battery of Russian artillery at Kiev, killed his corporal and fatally wounded three other officers. The deserter was shot and killed by one of the wounded officers. Men, women and children were thrown from their beds, hundreds of persons driven in terror to the street and window glass shattered when a bomb was exploded in a building at Chicago, occupied mainly by Italians. The Irish home rule party won a notable victory over the Unionists in the election of a member of parliament for Londonderry. The victory of the home rulers gives them a majority of the members of parliament from the province of Ulster.

FATAL FIRE AT HASTINGS

Woman Burned to Death in Trying to Save Baby Son. Hastings, Neb., Feb. 5.—Mrs. Menno Lay was fatally burned when trying to rescue her fourteen-months-old son from a fire in her apartments in a rooming house. After being forced back several times by flames, she ran through the fire and picked up the charred remains of the boy from the blazing bed, and herself afire from head to foot, went with it to an adjoining room, where she fell unconscious. The mother's brother-in-law, Dick Lay, rescued five-year-old Florence Lay, her daughter, and jumped with it from the second floor, both escaping serious injury. The fire started from Mrs. Lay's attempt to kindle a fire with kerosene. The boy was dead when picked up by the mother.

GRAIN RECORDS ARE BROKEN

Omaha Exchange Has the Biggest Month in Its History. Omaha, Feb. 4.—January was the biggest month in the history of the Omaha Grain exchange. The receipts were approximately 7,000,000 and the shipments 5,000,000 bushels of grain, including wheat, corn, oats and barley. In the matter of corn, it is anticipated that February is going to be a better month than January. Owing to a good deal of the corn not having thoroughly dried out, the receipts and shipments were not heavy. Now the corn is in prime condition and the shipments are coming in at a lively rate. Most of the corn is going south, large quantities being for export and still larger quantities for the plantations and for milling.

BROOKLYN TABER NACLE BIBLE STUDY ON ABRAHAM, THE HEBREW.

Genesis 12:1-9—Feb. 16. "My will bless thee, and make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing."—Verse 1. ABRAHAM is one of the greatest characters in history. God's promises made to him constitute the foundation of faith for Jews, Christians and Mohammedans, although many of them are not aware of the fact. The Jews are Abraham's descendants through Isaac and Jacob; while Mohammedans represent especially Ishmael and Esau. Christians profess to have become heirs to the chiefest blessings promised to Abraham's Seed, by becoming joint-heirs with Christ Jesus, whom they consider the antitype of Isaac.

The New Testament claim is that the Church of Christ is the antitype of Rebecca, Isaac's wife, and joint-heir; and that Christ and the Church, as the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, will be God's agency in blessing the nations. But much of the New Testament teaching was lost during the Dark Ages. Christians forgot that they were called to be joint-heirs in Messiah's "In thy seed shall all be blessed."

Only now are Bible students getting back to the teachings of Scripture. Only now are we learning the true import of St. Paul's words, "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the promise." God's call to Abraham. Abraham's birthplace was Ur, one hundred twenty miles north of the Persian Gulf. His father Terah was a heathen. Polytheism prevailed—the worshiping of many gods. From Ur, the family migrated to Haran, about five hundred miles in the direction of Palestine. There Abraham remained until Terah's death.

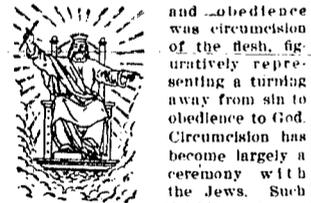

God's dealings with Abraham, according to St. Stephen (Acts 7:2, 3), began while he was in Ur. God called him out of his evil surroundings, to be the founder of a new nation, holy and obedient to God. The migration from Ur to Haran took the family away from the idolatrous scenes of the metropolis to pastoral life. In harmony with the Divine call, Abraham, then seventy-five years old, his wife Sarah, and his nephew Lot, with their flocks and herds, moved to Canaan after the death of Terah.

Abraham's Great Faith in God. Abraham was full of faith. This feature of his character especially endeared him to the Almighty, who, because of it, styled him His friend. The Bible does not claim that Abraham was perfect. The reverse of this is declared—"There is none righteous [perfect], no, not one." (Romans 3:10). None measure up to the glorious image of God represented by Adam. Abraham was not the friend of God because of his great education, nor for his wonderful intellectual powers. Nevertheless, he had intellectual powers. The fact that he was a very rich individual, that he was a good manager. His skill as a lender was shown when Lot and the wealthy Sodomites were taken captive by Chedorloamer. Abraham promptly armed three hundred and eighteen of his servants, pursued the victors and recovered the spoils.

But it was not for his skill as a general that God loved Abraham. The special quality that God esteemed in him is repeatedly mentioned in the Bible as having been his faith. "Abraham believed God." Children of Abraham. Abraham's children, from God's standpoint, include only those who have faith in God. The original evidence of this faith and obedience was circumcision of the flesh, figuratively representing a turning away from sin to obedience to God. Circumcision has become largely a ceremony with the Jews. Such faithless circumcision entitles them to no special Divine favor. But all Jews who still trust in the promises made to Abraham will soon be recipients of marked evidences of Divine blessing through Messiah, who soon is to set up God's Kingdom.

St. Paul explains that all true Christians become the Spiritual Seed of Abraham—heirs of certain spiritual promises, as the natural seed are heirs of certain earthly promises, not yet fulfilled. As the natural seed must maintain circumcision to mark their separateness from the Gentiles, so the Spiritual Seed must have circumcision of the heart—separating them from the world and from sin, marking them as "peculiar people, zealous of good works."

We exhort both Jews and Christians to honesty and faithfulness—obedience to God; the one class, that they may inherit the Heavenly promises; the other, that they may be ready for the inheritance which will be theirs as soon as the Heavenly, Spiritual Seed of Abraham shall have been completed by the First Resurrection.

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Fat Beeves Dime Higher--Stock Cattle Free Sellers.

HOGS TEN TO FIFTEEN HIGHER

Liberal Run of Sheep and Lambs Opening Trade Very Slow--Prices Steady to a Little Lower Than Monday--Demand Fairly Active.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Feb. 11--A very fair run of cattle arrived today, about 5,800 head. This makes 11,700 head for the two days. Trade in beef steers was active and a little stronger today. The two days advance on cattle amounts to fully a dime and making prices all of 25¢ to 40¢ higher than ten days or two weeks ago. Inquiry for cows and heifers was lively and the market strong for anything at all useful in the way of butcher or canner stock. In fact there has been a broad demand and a strictly healthy market for the stock for some time and prices are as high as any time during the season. There was no let up in the demand for stock cattle and feeding steers and, although fresh supplies were of very fair proportions, everything at all useful sold readily at the recent established high level.

Cattle quotations: Choice to prime beeves, $8.00@8.25; good to choice beeves, $7.60@8.00; fair to good beeves, $7.25@7.60; fair to choice yearlings, $6.75@7.25; common to fair beeves, $6.50@7.25; good to choice heifers, $6.25@7.00; good to choice cows, $6.00@6.60; fair to good grades, $5.50@6.00; canners and cutters, $5.75@5.90; veal calves, $5.50@9.00; bulls, stags, etc., $5.00@6.25; choice to prime feeders, $7.25@7.75; good to choice feeders, $6.75@7.25; fair to good feeders, $6.50@6.75; common to fair feeders, $6.00@6.50; stock cows and heifers, $5.00@7.00.

Hog receipts amounted to over 18,000 head. Notwithstanding the fact that receipts were heavy, the market opened fully 10¢ to 15¢ higher, and closed fully 15¢ up. The bulk of the offerings moved at $7.75@7.85, with the best ones going at $7.90, fully 15¢ higher than the best price Monday.

Nearly 16,000 sheep and lambs were received today. Trading was very slow, although there seemed to be a fair outlet for the bulk of the offerings at prices mostly steady to a little lower than the general run of sales Monday. Several loads of prime lambs went at $8.80, and two or three bunches of fat western ewes sold for $5.50 and some choice ones at $5.75.

Quotations on sheep and lambs: Lambs, good to choice, $8.50@9.00; lambs, fair to good, $8.35@8.50; yearlings, light, $7.35@7.70; yearlings, heavy, $7.00@7.35; wethers, good to choice, $6.25@6.50; wethers, fair to good, $5.85@6.25; ewes, good to choice, $5.50@5.85; ewes, fair to good, $5.25@5.50; cull sheep and bucks, $2.75@4.00.

Mrs. Anderson will join him in a short time. William Anderson accompanied his brother to assist in getting him located. These young people have lived in this vicinity for a number of years and have many friends here who will be interested in their prosperity and welfare.

The sympathy of many friends are extended to Mrs. L. D. Dysert this week on account of the death of her mother, which occurred at the home of a daughter in Chicago last Wednesday. While Mrs. Gray had been sick for some time and Mrs. Dysert momentarily expected to hear of her death, yet when the news came last Wednesday afternoon, the shock and realization of the loss of her dear mother was none the less keen. The pain of her departure is great, but the joy of the influence of her life and the fragrance of her sweet memory are greater. Mrs. Gray was a resident of this county for a number of years, and so they brought her back from Chicago and tenderly laid her away to sleep until the resurrection morn, in the Wayne cemetery beside the husband who preceded her to the grave over twenty years ago.
