ESTABLISHED 1884

WAYNE, WAYNE COUNTY, NEBRASKA, MARCH 20, 1913

$1.50 PER YEAR

HARMONY AT CITY CAUCUS

Full City Ticket Named Friday Evening at Well Attended Caucus of Waynites. No Opposition.

For Mayor, C. A. Chace.
For Treasurer, H. S. Ringland.
For City Clerk, J. M. Cherry.
For Members Board Education, T. W. Moran and Rollie Ley.
Councilman (short term) 1st ward, W. O. Hanssen.
Councilman (long term) 1st ward, John Gaertner.
Councilman, 2nd ward, Herman Lundberg.
Councilman, 3rd ward, J. G. W. Lewis.

The above city ticket was named as the unanimous choice of a largely attended caucus at the city hall Friday evening. Bad weather had no terrors for any who had the cause of the city at heart, and the attendance was representative of every class. The meeting was called to order by J. G. W. Lewis, as chairman of the caucus last year, and Dr. T. B. Heckert named as chairman and Harry Fisher secretary.

Mayor Kate was called upon to make a few remarks relative to the question of improving the light and power plant of the city, and he gave as his opinion, that after the knowledge gained by investigation had been sifted down and the needs and probable needs of the city weighed, that the economical thing to do would be to purchase new and modern boilers, place the engines we have in perfect condition, add an electric pump to present equipment and also make an addition of 25 feet to the top of the standpipe, to afford better pressure in the north part of the city. The estimated cost of this improvement would not exceed $6,000 or $7,000. In closing his remarks he thanked the council and officers and citizens for their loyalty to him during the two years last past, and pledged his support to any good man selected to carry forward the good work.

His remarks were well received, and before the meeting adjourned he was tendered a vote of thanks, by rising vote, for the efficient and tireless work he had done.

After nominating the above ticket the meeting adjourned and the citizens of the different wards met in caucus to name candidates for councilmen. In the first ward, where there were two places to fill there was a spirited contest with the final result as given above.

In the 2nd ward there was also a sharp contest between D. S. McVicker and Herman Lundberg. In the 3rd ward there was no one named against Mr. Lewis.

Only for the question of license, which will have to be settled at the polls, so far as the city ticket is concerned it might have been settled by "instructing the officers of the convention to cast the entire vote of the city for the nominees."

Death of Chris Bartels

Thursday, March 13, 1913, death closed the eyes of Chris. Bartels at his home near Carroll. He was born in Zahrensen, Germany, November 3, 1833, and attained the age of 79 years, 4 months and 10 days. On May 1, 1859, he was united in marriage to Anna Schradler, who, with seven children survive to mourn his death.

They came to America in 1882, locating first at Ft. Wayne, Indiana, and eleven years later with the family moved to the western part of Iowa, living near Arcadia first and later near Westside. They came to this county in 1893, and settled near Carroll where his three sons, Henry, Fred and Will now reside. The four daughters who survive him are Mrs. Anna Hofeldt of Coleridge, Mrs. Emma Peters of Verdel, Mrs. Hannah Goeman of Wayne and Mrs. Margaret Brockman of Arcadia, Iowa.

He was a lifelong member of the Lutheran church, a good citizen of his adopted country and his death will be mourned by many friends besides the wife, sons and daughters. The funeral and burial were held Monday at Carroll.

The members of the House of Representatives at Lincoln unanimously passed resolutions of sympathy for H. C. Bartels when they learned the sad news which called him from his legislative duties.

A Business Change

A sale was closed Wednesday whereby W. A. Hiscox becomes the owner of the Otto Voget hardware stock and business, and he will continue the business in the Voget building, carrying in the main the same line of stoves and hardware as the stock is now composed of. Mr. Hiscox is not a stranger to Wayne people, having lived in love with the place and moved here about six years ago. Nor is he a stranger to the hardware business having had previous experience in the line.

Mr. Voget came to Wayne about 20 years ago and has been in the plumbing and hardware business most of that time here. He started the business which he sold yesterday about six years ago. He is now in Germany, and the sale was closed by his sons.

Without Foundation

There is no foundation in fact in the rumor which has been afloat in this place for a few days that J. F. Barrett had sold his interest in the hardware business at this place. But we are sorry to say that Mr. Barrett has made arrangements which will result in his leaving Wayne before the summer closes. He has taken an interest in and accepted the position of a bank at his old home at Dunlap, Iowa, and will leave after school closes to take the management of the bank. The management of the hardware here will then fall upon the junior partner, Mr. Dally. Mr. and Mrs. Barrett have many friends in Wayne who will regret their departure, but will wish them well in their old home.

Madison Hopes For Mail Delivery

Our neighboring town to the southwest is expecting to be granted free mail delivery. They have had an inspector there and are of the opinion that he will make a favorable report and grant their request. Wayne is entitled to free delivery from the large volume of business done by this postoffice, but no one seems to care enough for it to start the ball rolling. In fact, the way the mails arrive here there is little doubt but that most of the business men would prefer to get their mails from the office rather than wait for a carrier to bring it to them.

Hoepfner-Schultz

Wednesday, March 19, 1913, at the M. E. parsonage in this place by Rev. Wm. Gorst, Mr. Ernest F. Schultz and Miss Lillian E. Hoepfner, both of McLain, were united in marriage. The bride and groom were attended by Wm. M. Galvin and Miss Martha A. Schultz.

Obituary

Laura D. Gorham was born in the state of New York on the tenth day of August, 1823, and died in Wayne, Nebraska, on the thirteenth day of March, 1913, being 89 years, 7 months and 3 days old. She grew to womanhood in the state of New York and was married to Mr. A. Sherman in 1843. To Mr. and Mrs. Sherman were born ten children, four of whom are still living, namely, Mrs. Eva Bowerman of Omaha, E. E. Sherman of Hagerman, Idaho, F. L. Sherman of Louisville, Neb., and E. B. Sherman of Wayne.

Some time after their marriage the Shermans moved to Illinois where Mr. Sherman died in 1863 and Mrs. Sherman was married to John Brooks in 1871 who died in Covington, Nebr., 1886, whither they had moved only a short time before. Since the death of Mr. Brooks his widow has resided in Nebraska and most of the time has been a member of the household of her son, E. B. Sherman, where she died.

Early in life she became a member of the First Day Adventist church to which faith she adhered her life long.

With the exception of some slight symptoms of the grippe from which she regarded herself as quite fully recovered, Mrs. Brooks had been in usual health up to Monday, March 10, when she suffered what seemed to be a slight stroke of paralysis. By Tuesday evening she had become unconscious and died at 8:30 Thursday morning, March 13th.

The funeral services were held at the family residence at two o'clock Sunday afternoon, March 16th, and the remains laid to rest in the LaPorte cemetery.

Kills American Eagle

Last week G. A. Wallace, one who lives on the Hanson place about eight miles southeast of Wayne went out with his shot gun and succeeded in bagging a large American eagle about a mile south of his home. The bird is a fine specimen and the plumage is good at this season of the year. The spread of wing was 6 feet, 8 inches from tip to tip, and the weight is about 13 pounds. He brought the bird to Wayne Monday and sent it to Omaha to have it properly mounted. These birds are seldom seen in these parts, and more seldom is there a hunter able to get within gunshot of one and bring him down. This will be a fine specimen if properly mounted for talons, beak, head and plumage are perfect.

City Politics At Winside

Last week a caucus was called to name two candidates for the council of the village of Winside and to D. J. Cavanaugh and Chas. Needham fell the honor of being named to places on the ticket. After due deliberation another part of the town asked for a division of honors, and another caucus was called, which convened last evening and after due deliberation this caucus also nominated the same candidates. This left no opportunity for a political fight, so it was proposed to have a friendly bout with gloves between several of the local heavy weights. Mat and gloves and ring were quickly provided for and a "spirited" contest was soon on that not only amused the spectators, but one which would have made a fortune had the picture man's machine been in working order so that it could have been taken down on a reel. It would not have been of a class that the censor would not pass, for no one was hurt.

Social Notes

One of the happy social events of the week was the banquet given by E. W. Huse and wife of the Herald in honor of those who took part in the contest which closed Saturday evening, the judges, the correspondents, the office force and his competitors. The idea of the entertainment came late to the hosts, and amid the closing hours of the contest there was scant opportunity for arrangement of details, yet, nothing could have been planned better. The snow blockade made it impossible for some to attend who otherwise would have done so. A splendid two-course luncheon was served to the two dozen guests who gathered at the Swanson restaurant, and after a social hour about the tables, A. R. Davis, acting as toastmaster started the real trouble of the evening, asking the Democrat editor to toast his "Newspaper Rival." Evidently looking for more trouble, the next seemed inspired to call upon Attorney F. S. Berry, to respond to the sentiment: "Newspaper Liars, with Variations." It is needless to say that the talk had to be fabrication pure and simple, except that part which referred to the variations, for all are well aware that the newspaper Annanias is defunct. He made a nice talk for one who really had nothing to talk about but the attorneys are schooled especially for such tasks. W. W. Burgess, who managed the contest, spoke on that subject, and of the origin of this method of reaching the public purse and of the development of the idea into a profitable business. J. T. House spoke to the sentiment "What Should Be Published" and talked entertainingly for the instruction of the two editors present and the correspondents. E. W. Huse was then called upon for a short talk after which he was congratulated upon the successful termination of the contest by the departing guests.

On March 17th, the Acme club enjoyed one of the most unique and delightful meetings of the season at the home of Mrs. Mines. Roll call was responded to with an Irish story. The ladies came decked out in Irish togs, the "wearing of the green" creating much merriment. Mesdames Mines and Jacobs both read interesting papers. After the program the dining room doors were opened and all were invited to find their places. The table decorations and appointments were appropriate to the day. The centerpiece consisted of a basket tied with green ribbon and contained Irish potatoes and Irish flags. Cob pipes also added their part. The favors were small candlesticks holding lighted green candles. All doilies were decorated in shamrocks and the table linen was also truly Irish. Mr. Mines having brought it from the "old country." Mesdames Mines, Jacobs and Duerig were hostesses at this delightful surprise dinner, which consisted of four courses. Those assisting in serving were, Misses Elizabeth and Margaret Mines. After dinner Misses Elizabeth and Margaret entertained the club with music as did also Mrs. Blair and Raymond.

Mrs. H. B. Jones delightfully entertained the U. D. club at luncheon Monday at 1:30 p. m. In harmony with St. Patrick's day, the color scheme in the dining room was green and white. The table linens and appointments were also green and white, the favors being tiny men representative of "Mutt and Jeff" which when opened revealed little green candies. After dinner the remainder of the day was devoted to Kensington. The next regular meeting will be with Mrs. Wm. Morris.

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hansen invited about thirty of their neighbors and friends to help them celebrate the fifty-first birthday of Mrs. Hansen. The evening was spent in playing games together with other amusements after which a delicious lunch was served. Informality and general sociability marked the occasion and the happy hours came to a close all too soon. The guests departed wishing their hosts many more such enjoyable events.

On Tuesday evening at six-thirty the Tuesday club and their husbands enjoyed an elaborate four course dinner at the hospitable home of Dr. and Mrs. Naffziger.

Covers were laid for fourteen. In view of St. Patrick's day the table decorations were in harmony with the occasion. The centerpiece consisted of white roses and maidenhair ferns, the place cards being in the form of shamrocks. After dinner the hours were spent in telling witty Irish stories and jokes. Mrs. Naffziger gave a short biography of St. Patrick and Mrs. A. R. Davis rendered a solo in her pleasing way, after which the remainder of the evening was spent in general sociability. A most enjoyable evening is reported.

The Bible Study Circle held a most helpful Easter service at Mrs. Griggs' pleasant home yesterday afternoon. Music was a feature of the program. Mrs. Harry Ferrel was a guest and spoke words of good cheer and help to all. The next meeting will be with Mrs. C. M. Christensen Thursday afternoon at two-thirty and all are cordially invited.

The Junior Bible Study Circle met at the home of Mrs. E. B. Young on Saturday afternoon, Miss Adams being leader in the helpful and inspiring lesson. The Juniors are certainly growing in interest. Several new members were added to the circle. The next meeting will be with Miss Hattie Crockett, with Miss Elizabeth Mines as leader.

Mrs. E. Cunningham was hostess to the Monday club this week when the subject of the lesson was "Australia." Mrs. H. H. Hahn gave an interesting map study on Australia and Mrs. C. A. Chace a geographical outline of this country. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Robert Mellor and will be Magazine day.

The Presbyterian Aid society held a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Alexander Corkey Tuesday afternoon and elected the following officers: Mrs. J. T. Bressler, president; Mrs. Robert Mellor, vice-president; Mrs. J. J. Williams, secretary and Mrs. J. Woodward Jones, treasurer.

The Shakespear club had no meeting this week, owing to the play which was presented at the college by Miss McBeth and the Crescent Literary society. The club will meet with Miss Stocking at the home of Mrs. J. J. Coleman next Tuesday.

The Minerva club met with Mrs. F. S. Berry Tuesday afternoon and had for its lesson a study in "Crime." Mrs. J. T. House was leader and handled the subject very ably. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. P. H. Kohl was hostess to the Auction Bridge club Tuesday evening. An extra table was invited and delicious refreshments were served. The club will meet in two weeks with Mrs. Rollie Ley.

The P. E. O. Sisterhood enjoyed an excellent business meeting at the home of Mrs. Hamer Wilson Monday evening with the newly elected officers.

Death of Mrs. W. E. Graves

Word came to O. E. Graves Saturday of the death of his brother's wife at Stockton, Illinois. Mrs. Graves had been in poor health for several months, and had but recently returned home from a hospital where she underwent operations for gottler which were thought would restore her to health. But such was not the case and another operation was undertaken at the home, and it is thought that she never rallied from the shock.

Jessie Lee Sellers was a daughter of Ed Sellers and wife of this place, and was but a few weeks past thirty years of age when the messenger came. She came with her parents to Wayne about twelve years ago, and soon after was united in marriage with W. E. Graves, who with three little children and her parents and brother, mourn her sad death. The body was buried at Stockton. When it was learned that another operation would be necessary, her father and mother went to her home and are yet there. The many friends of the stricken family extend heartfelt sympathy.

About twenty-five young people gathered at the home of John Munson Tuesday and gave Arthur Munson a hearty surprise, the occasion being planned in honor of his twenty-fifth birthday. The Use of Canned Goods

The assembling of a balanced line of Canned Goods is a greater task than most people realize and it would be impossible for the retailer to have a well balanced line were it not for the Wholesale Grocer. The retail Grocer must know enough about Canned Goods to know Good Goods when he cuts them. Beaman takes credit for knowing that the line he has offered you for consumption is the best balanced line of Nebraska.

This is a day of Specialists in all lines and you will find that they are just as necessary in the Grocery as with Doctors, Lawyers, Stock Raisers, etc., and to offer proof I will mention a number of Fruits and the State which produces the finest quality, the soil and climate has much to do with the flavor.

Cuthbert Red Raspberries (A Burbank special creation)—Eastern Canada and New England States. Lawton Blackberries—New Jersey. Pitted Red Cherries—New York. Strawberries—New York. Blueberries—New York. Bartlett Pears—New York. Pineapple—Hawaii. Peaches, Apricots, Plums and Grapes—California excels all states in the Union. White and Black Cherries—Hood River Valley Oregon.

The Specialist who is able to assemble, under one label, a complete line of fruits and vegetables each of the highest grade from the locality producing the best variety and flavor, and canned in the most flavor preserving way and sanitary method, must not only be able to know the packer giving the best efforts to packing of each article in regard to Fruit, Degree of Syrup; to bring out the best there is in the fruit, sanitation of canner, honest pack in quantity. The Specialist often makes his own demand from Canners and must see that his cans are filled properly. This at times forces him to go to the Cannery and see that his purchases are properly filled.

The goods that Beaman has sold you in the past two years has proven that the Specialist from whom he has bought has been one of the best in his line. He may not know good coffee when he sees it as that is a line for another Specialist.

Next Week's Edition will contain interesting items on Vegetables.

Fates appear against F. O. Martin, who recently moved onto the Clyde Oman farm. He had a $225 mare "die for him" last week, making the third good horse he has lost in the past nine months. The Pender people—the land owners in that vicinity—are said to be opposing any ditch for the proper drainage of their part of the country. It is not uncommon to see people oppose what is to their best interest just because the penny which it will cost looks so large to them that they cannot see the dollars back of it which it will return. Don't hold the penny so close to your eyes—it is blinding the vision from seeing the dollar pile.

The great harvester trust seems to have the fight of its life on its hands for existence. The man who is humbling the big concern is a northeastern Nebraska newspaper man, Will Green of the Creighton Liberal—but formerly an agricultural implement dealer. It is from him and through him that the government is getting its best evidence. Few of Green's best friends, had the slightest idea that he would be able to stir up the rumpus he has.—Pender Times.

The Senior class of the Ponca high school have made a very sensible move in deciding to wear the regulation high school caps and gowns at the graduation exercises this year. The caps and gowns are inexpensive and save the students and their parents quite a bit of money that would be spent in buying fine clothes for the occasion. The gowns will be grey—the color which has been adopted as the official for high schools. The class is to be commended for taking up this reform. It typifies the spirit of the age, says the Journal.

Report of Silage as Valuable Food

Nels Herman, one of the progressive farmers out on route No. 4, was in this week, beating the Democrat publishers by taking advantage of their special anniversary offer, and stopped to visit a few minutes after the business of the moment was over. We found out that he is one of the very few farmers near here who have a silo and we wanted to know how he likes it. He is of the opinion that he never made a better improvement on his farm. He put up a silo of 110 ton capacity last fall and filled it, using the corn from 14 acres of his poorest corn, some that he had to replant, and which would have made but little marketable corn had he husked it in the usual manner. But with the silo he secured 110 tons of the best of feed.

He began feeding ensilage the second of January to 50 head of stock, cows, young and old stock and he estimates that the silo will not be empty before the first of May, making four months feed for 50 head from 14 acres. He never had stock do better—and for milch cows he says that with alfalfa and silage he can produce the limit in quantity and quality at the minimum cost—the best cow feed he ever tried. He is feeding some corn with the silage, beginning with little and increasing until he is now feeding about 10 pound per head per day. The stock take but little hay.

He is also feeding on corn alone a bunch of about twenty steers. He reports that his cattle all eat the silage with relish and appear to be in perfect health.

Regarding the work of putting the crop up, he does not consider it expensive when the value of the stalks saved is considered. We hope to see many more silos in this county before fall. His neighbor, Henry Evans, has one and H. Worth will have one this fall, having already ordered.

Prize Winning Essay

A few weeks ago C. M. Christensen offered $60 in gold, as prizes to be divided among contestants for the best paper written by high school and college students on the subject, "Why Do Men Buy Life Insurance." Alfred Henry Lewis won first prize at the college and John Rockwell second. In the high school, Raymond Fox won first and Edward Jones second, while Hayes Main carried off the prize in the contest between college and high school. Below we give the essay written by Mr. Lewis and Mr. Fox:

By Alfred Henry Lewis—Normal School

The essential idea of the modern institution of life insurance is cooperation in the bearing of the losses incident to death. It is within the past sixty years that this vast business has been developed. Up to that time life insurance has been conducted as an experiment, and by only a few companies. Now there exist a large number of these corporations, carrying on a world-wide business on the basis of exact science. Upon investigation it appears that three most important causes of this development are the following:

The fundamental reason for a man's insuring his life is that of protection. In this day of modern appliances and conveyances, there is an ever increasing risk of loss of life. Perhaps, just at a period when a man is beginning to enjoy success and those around him to share in that success, his life may be suddenly cut short, entailing disaster to all dependent upon or closely associated with him. In order to prevent such calamity to those nearest and dearest he takes out a life insurance policy, the surest of all means for defeating the consequences of the dread enemy—death. With such assurance of safety to mother, wife or child, he can cheerfully perform the duties of his life.

A second reason for the purchase of life insurance is that of investment. If a man has a sum of money which he wishes to place in a reliable undertaking with the assurance that he may realize on this money at a certain future time, he buys an endowment policy containing these provisions. Endowment insurance usually provides also for the payment of an insurance indemnity, if the insured dies before the end of the endowment period. In this manner the insured is furnished a still safer and more satisfactory plan for the investment of his surplus. For this reason, endowment insurance is a wise investment, because it provides for the future of one who holds it.

Today a vast amount of insurance is being given as surety and as security. A man wishes to enter into a certain business but has not the necessary capital. He goes to a bank or to some individual and borrows the money, giving as security a policy made, or transferred, to the lender. In the event of his death before the payment of the obligation the insurance will cover the loss. The same plan is often pursued by one without other means in the purchase of a farm or other property.

Again, a manufacturing concern sometimes takes out a policy, payable to itself, on the life of its manager. This is done to reimburse the company for the loss that would be entailed upon it by the decease of one whose services by reason of his business ability are of commercial value. Thus, life insurance becomes a means for assisting the economic process in this day of vast enterprises.

These three general reasons, protection, investment and security, cover all the variety of transactions dealing with the uncertainty of human life. Does not the contemplation of them clearly demonstrate the value of life insurance? Does it not seem strange that men of sound mind and human impulses should pass by the opportunities afforded by this beneficent institution?

By Raymond Fox—High School

This question is one of the most important that is agitating the minds of people to-day. And well it should, for it ought to make every man, who has a family or any one dependent on him, not only in the United States but also in every nation of the globe, consider it deeply. Any man, who is not convinced that life insurance is a proper and necessary investment, should study these three main reasons why men buy life insurance.

First because life insurance is in reality nothing more than a savings bank. When old reliable companies, most of them organized before 1860 can withstand the trouble of those times, do you think they would fail in these peaceful, prosperous times? Even some banks are not as reliable as these, for do you not often read of banks closing their doors? How many old reliable insurance companies have you read about that failed? So you can plainly see that life insurance is a very good savings bank.

In the second place, life insurance is always regarded as business asset. If you have real estate, or money in the bank, do you find it hard to secure loans or other credit? Of course, not. The same principle holds good in the case of life insurance. For, since life insurance is the same as money in the savings bank, it upholds your credit. Any person loaning money will not hesitate to loan it to a person who gives a policy as a mortgage. Also certain policies, after running a specified time, yield certain dividends, to the holders. Is this not an asset?

The last reason, the one for which the most men buy life insurance, is for the protection of their families or those who are dependent on them for support. This is the main reason that mutual life insurance companies were formed.

Thus the common laborer, by the expenditure of a few dollars annually, is guaranteed that his family will be kept from poverty and the poor house.

Why should men, who have loved ones dependent on them, hesitate to invest a few dollars for their future benefit and happiness, when life is so uncertain? Many men make the excuse that they will buy insurance at some future time, but many families and homes are left destitute through that very reason. Many men buy insurance early in life for then the rates are cheaper and too they are protecting their homes.

Many insurance policies can now be so written that they are really wills, telling how their property should be distributed. A person in one of these policies, can make a provision for his wife and each of his children, dividing the money as he thinks proper.

If there is a mortgage on the property, he can take out a policy by which the mortgage is canceled by the company at his death, and thus the property is left clear to his widow. Thus many homes are protected annually by the foresight of the husbands in buying life insurance.

These reasons, for which men buy life insurance, are proved by the large amount of insurance sold every year. Also many widows and children are made happy annually by the wisdom of their husbands or fathers in investing in life insurance.

Rev. Jensen, pastor of a church at Lime Grove, referring to the death of two children at Hartington recently, lays the cause to Christians shirking duty. There is a lot of needless suffering because Christians and others shirk duty. Some is also caused as seems probable in the Hartington case, by a false pride. And lots of trouble is caused by an economic system which is not right. If our front sight was equal to our hind sight things would be different.

The Times has always been a friend of the Wayne Normal—even when the state was being 'soaked' in the purchase price—and we don't believe Mr. Graff's friends should cause that institution to suffer for an adequate appropriation now, just to get even with Senator Kohl for fighting Mr. Graff's confirmation for membership on the board of control. We are sure Mr. Graff isn't built that way and his friends who are advocating "getting even" should not take it out of the school.—Pender Times.

J. P. Munsinger has been here for a time visiting his cousin, M. T. Munsinger and family. Mr. Munsinger's home is at Nehalem, Oregon—out where the timber grows big and plenty of it. He is a son of the Mr. Munsinger in northeastern Kansas who celebrated his 100th birthday two months ago, and it was to attend this celebration that he came east. He has been visiting home folks and relatives in Kansas and Iowa since that time, and left here for home Wednesday. He recognized this as a good farm country.

H. Linke went to Charter Oak, Iowa, accompanying his little niece, Elizabeth Kurth, aged 8 years, who came to this country about five months ago from Germany. Her mother came with her, and it was to join her at Charter Oak, that the trip was made. From there they will soon begin their home voyage. The little Miss said that she liked America very much and would prefer to remain here. She attended school while here, and though in this country less than six months, speaks our language very nicely.

The Herald's subscription contest, which has been under way the past seven or eight weeks, closed Saturday night with the three leading contestants far apart, and well in the lead of others, so there was no question of standing. Anna Mae Thomas of Carroll won the first place and the automobile, with more than a million votes to her credit. Sam Davies of this place was a good second with over 600,000 votes, and Mrs. B. M. McIntyre won the watch with about half as many votes as Mr. Davies. There were seven other contestants who had given up hope of winning the prizes, but carried their work to the close for the commission. Sam Davies wears his diamond ring with becoming modesty and is grateful to his many friends who so joyfully stood by while his car went past—and for them he regrets defeat more than for himself, for he cannot now give them the hoped for auto ride.

On last Monday the pupils of the several schools of the county inaugurated a seed corn test. The seed to be tested were placed in "Rag Doll" seed corn testers and Wednesday of this week the testers were opened and seeds examined. Over two hundred pupils reported to the county superintendent on this test. This is a phrase of the public schools that should receive plenty of encouragement and Supt. Teed and the teachers throughout the county are to be commended in their effort to teach the school the value of selecting seed that will grow.—Ponca Journal.

We do not know who will be postmaster at Wayne in a year from now, but there is now an order out for a civil service examination to be held at this place for another clerk, and the one who passes will no doubt have to help "break in" the new postmaster. The postal regulation which says that employees shall work out eight hours per day is to be better enforced in offices of this size, and to comply with the rule there will have to be an increase of the working force. The examination is set for April 12, 1913, and application for blanks and information should be made to Miss Helen McNeal. If you want a job you will have to take the examination and then you may not get it—that depends.

"A Girl of the Mountains" which has created a most favorable impression throughout the country, will be the attraction at the opera house, Thursday, March 27th. Its tense-story, astonishing novelty, wonderful realization of western and eastern scenes and incidents, and the way in which it is done, provides an entertainment that holds the attention of the audience from the opening scene to the final curtain. The story deals with the fortunes of a young western girl, Nellie Bonn, who has been deceived by Richard Thurston. She realizes that infatuation is not love, and in a stormy scene informs Thurston that he has passed out of her life, that she is done with him forever. Nellie meets a young mining engineer, who loves her truly, and is loved in return. She accepts his devotion, and they become engaged, not, however, until she tells him of her past misfortune. She does this in a scene of great dramatic power. During the absence of her lover, Thurston reappears. He has discovered that he loves her after all, and tries hard to win her. She defies him. Her lover returns, and a hand-to-hand conflict, full of thrills and realism ensues. At this point "Swiftwind" an Indian, settles an old score, and the lovers are made happy. The play is in the hands of a very capable company, and a complete scenic production is promised.

The Living Wage

Young John has given 10 of the Rockefeller millions to set up a bureau of social hygiene. His special aim is to learn more about white slavery. And, of course, to stop it if he can. For merely learning about an evil is worth little unless what you learn teaches you what to do.

We think well of young John's motives. He might use the money to make more white slaves. Many sons of rich men do. Not only by personal profligacy. Indeed, least of all by that. For at worst a rich rake, in his short life time, can corrupt only a comparatively few victims—abused nature soon puts a limit to his debauchery. Far greater is the power of wealth by sordid greed to exert a pitiless economic pressure before which underpaid women in numbers yield perforce.

But are we so greatly in need of further information on this subject? Don't we already know enough to justify our doing something more than seek new data?

We know, for instance, that when we pay to a girl who wants to support herself by honest work a wage below a decent standard of living we establish a strain which sooner or later she cannot withstand. No bureau of hygiene is needed to make that clear.

We know that in many industries such a low wage standard now prevails. No bureau of social hygiene is needed to acquaint us with that fact. Its appalling presence stares at us on every hand.

We know that when we let speculators in land pocket the land values which society itself creates, instead of taking this increment for society's purposes, we add to the cost of living among the poor, doom them to herd in abominable tenements destroy the wholesome safeguards of privacy and thus raise up a set of conditions tending to make the social evil worse.

We're very glad to know that young John's conscience is sensitive to this great evil and that he is willing to spend his father's money in trying, however futilely, to straighten it out. He may in time be educated to wise, deeper action. And some of his coin may meanwhile do real good.

But if we really mean business in this thing it is time, don't you think, to stop waiting for private philanthropy, with its funds and foundations and institutes and bureaus, to prosecute superfluous inquiries or rig up palliatives and ourselves, collectively, go to the roots of the trouble.—Sioux City News.

The Ten Commandments

1. Don't lie. It wastes my time and yours. I am sure to catch you in the end, and that is the wrong end.
2. Watch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short; and a short day's work makes my face long.
3. Give me more than I expect, and I will give you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.
4. You owe so much to yourself you cannot afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt, or keep out of my shops.
5. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, never see temptation when they meet it.
6. Mind your own business and in time you'll have a business of your own to mind.
7. Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect. An employee who is willing to steal for me is willing to steal from me.
8. It is none of my business what you do at night. But if dissipation affects what you do the next day, and you do half as much as I demand, you'll not last half as long as you hoped.
9. Don't tell me what I'd like to hear, but what I ought to hear. I don't want a valet for my vanity, but one for my dollars.
10. Don't kick if I kick. If you are worth while correcting you're worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting specks out of rotten apples.

How Do You Cultivate Your Corn

In the Dairyman of last week, this very important question was asked and to a certain extent answered by one of the editors of this paper. But the Senior Editor wishes to add a word based upon his experience of last year as compared with all previous experience. Our method of cultivating corn has been by the ordinary riding cultivator with the usual pointed teeth. But we could not prevent the farm help from letting the teeth down too low and in some dry seasons we have been led to believe that the hired man did more damage to the corn than the drouth. Finally, in 1911, we took off the pointed teeth and attached a set of horizontal teeth ten inches long. These teeth would run along about two inches under the surface, and tear up three times the weeds that the old teeth would. But the main advantage was that they did not injure the corn roots and the hired man couldn't get them down more than two inches if he should try.

We were so well pleased with the effect of these teeth upon the growth of our corn that last spring we purchased another set and now we have two riding cultivators equipped with them. No more of these deep digging corn root destroying styles of cultivator teeth on the Hoard's Dairyman Farm for us. The horizontal teeth are infinitely superior to the others as weed destroyers.

We urge our readers who wish to do their corn its very best service to equip their cultivators with the horizontal teeth. They will pay for themselves ten times over in one season. Farmers are not aware of the damage they do to their corn by too deep cultivation. When the corn is eighteen inches high, its roots extend across the rows; that is, the roots of each row meet each other in the center.

Men Who Love Poor Cows

Last week the Democrat said it that would be worth a million dollars to Wayne county if it could but impress upon the farmers of the county the benefits of testing their cows. Right in line with this is the following taken from Hoard's Dairyman, showing that the fame of our ignorance and neglect is known abroad—also that we are not much worse off in this respect than numerous other states, but the sooner we get right the better for the farmer and all citizens of Wayne county. Read the report:

"The extent to which foolish and careless methods exist in dairying, as well as the utter indifference among farmers as to such methods, is seen in the report made in Bulletin No. 129 of the Nebraska Station. This bulletin is the result of an investigation into the number of cows in that state that do not produce milk enough to pay for their keeping. The number amounts to 200,000 out of 700,000, nearly one-third of all the cows in the state at large. Suppose these Nebraska farmers were compelled by law to waste their labor, and feed every year on a worthless third of all their cows? What a howl they would make against such an unrighteous law and such oppressive taxation. Yet like thousands of other farming communities in this country they submit to the rule of the poor cow and apparently rejoice in it.

Just one thing is at the bottom of such a condition, namely, cow ignorance. The great mass of those farmers never spent a full day in their lives in a study of what either a good cow or a poor cow means to their fortune. There is a woeful amount of this cow ignorance prevailing among farmers where you would expect better intelligence. The poor cow nourishes on ignorance, but you cannot keep her on the farm of the man who proposes to know what a cow is for.

Most of these Nebraska farmers are tied up with the Shorthorn grade cow. Wherever that breed prevails, whether it be in Nebraska or Wisconsin, there we find the poorest results in dairying. The best dairy districts of any state do not use that breed of cows. The farmers there have learned their lesson. You cannot make them use a poor tool when they can get a better one. But is a curious thing, this fascination that a poor cow has for the average farmer. He sticks to her, suffers for her, wastes his labor and fodder on her and bravely stubs along behind her, a most willing, blind and contented slave to all she demands.

Doing Chores

The blankets are awfully nice and warm these mornings when we hear the old clock go bing-g-g-g! bang!! It surely isn't time to roll out. The sleeping hours to a healthy body and a clear conscience are fearfully short, and then you know there was that party last night.

You probably were out longer than you thought. But 'tis chore time and—woff! how cold the floor is. Then from below the stairs comes—"Hey, boys! it's milking time." It's the same old song every day—doesn't it get tiresome? But, Mr. Dairy Farmer, what have you done to make it anything but tiresome? The same old round of milking, the same old cows, with the same old wish, way down deep in your heart, that you were everlastingly out of it. "Ain't it awful?"

But suppose some morning you wake up and make up your mind that you are going to be the best dairyman between Squaw Creek and the Harlem ranch. As you go about the chores that morning—presto! you had forgotten all about how hard it was, you were so busy planning that scoop on your neighbors. By the time you were through milking you had already made up your mind that there were no less than four of those old cows you are going to get rid of. Couldn't beat anybody at anything with those old cowbates in the herd. Then there were five or six promising young heifers there—hadn't given them much thought before. One of the boys thinks "Spot" is the best and another thinks that "Dot" will beat the whole bunch. You don't know just what to think and—"By George we'll get some scales and just weigh their milk and that will tell the story. Each of you boys milk your favorite cows now and we will see who is the best judge."

At breakfast your wife asks why you were so long pailing this morning, and every mother's son of you declares that it wasn't near as long as common. Why? You were playing the game. Everyone is interested in a good game. Men, farmer men, are nothing but boys grown up, but they have forgotten to play the game. They have thought all the time that only boys and the men away off somewhere else were the ones still in the game. Dairying is the greatest game on the farmers' boards today. The stakes are high and the innings sure. Learn the rules and play to win. Then chores—there won't be any. They'll be a part of the game.—Hoard's Dairyman.

The Storm

Last Thursday was the beginning of a storm which was of wide extent and unusual severity. Beginning with a gentle rain, before Friday morning a wet snow was falling, and this was soon accompanied by a strong wind and a falling temperature, though the cold did not become very severe, barely reaching the zero point in most places. Friday the conditions were blizzardy all day, and trains were delayed or blocked. The branch from here to Bloomfield suffered the worst, and was blocked by snow and dead trains until Saturday evening. The northbound freight stuck above Randolph Friday, and held the right of way against all traffic. Friday evening a snow plow and a shovel brigade were sent up this line to clear it. Saturday trains from the west were late, but the west bound train was not much late.

The storm was hard on stock that was out because of the rain followed by wind and snow. As a dry weather breaker it was most acceptable, and did a vast amount of good to wheat and meadows. The telephone company suffered a considerable loss, the lines carrying so much of snow that in many cases the weight broke the poles. A gang of men are now working out from here to replace broken poles.

The Tri-State Grain and Stock Growers' Convention has a standing committee appointed to study the purpose for which farmers borrow money. At the meeting of the Convention at Fargo, N. D., in January, the committee reported some interesting facts noted during the past year. A canvass of the farmers in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Montana, showed that of the loans desired 25 per cent were for buying livestock, 20 per cent for improving buildings, 20 per cent for general farm improvement, 5 per cent for fences, 7 1/2 per cent for renewing loans, 5 per cent for buying more land. It was also found that the interest rate varied with the kind of farming. Where grain farming prevailed the rate was high, and much lower in mixed farming sections.

Flowers for Kohl

The State Journals report of the legislative doings contains the following.

Senator Phil Kohl of Wayne was almost hidden from sight Friday by a large bouquet which was placed on his desk. The flowers were accompanied by a note congratulating Senator Kohl upon loyalty to his friends. It was signed "Third District Democrats."

The floral gift is supposed to represent the gratitude of democrats of Senator Kohl's district over the defeat of the confirmation of Charles Graff's appointment on the board of control. All of the democratic representatives in the legislature from the Third district and all of the democratic senators from that district had asked Governor Morehead to appoint ex-Speaker John Kuhl as a member of the board of control. The governor appointed Charles Graff of Bancroft, and the senate refused to confirm any of the governor's nominees for the board. Senator Kohl had a hand in it, and therefore the floral display on his desk.

Some of the truck farmers are hoping that the tariff will be retained on onions. One would think they were strong enough to stand alone without protection.

Some people appear to place self first in studying the tariff question to such an extent that they demand competition in all they buy and protection with a big "P" on all the other fellow has to purchase from them.

Twenty years ago Grover Cleveland wrote to the author of the Wilson tariff bill, after that not overly good measure had been nullified by the "house of lords", known as the Senate, these words: "Tariff reform will not be settled until it is honestly and fairly settled in the interest and to the benefit of a long-suffering people."

Hon. Willis E. Reed is spoken of as a fit man to represent Uncle Sam as consul in the Argentine Republic. If these places are to be filled by men who have earned a place by work for the principles of progressive democracy and who are qualified to perform well the duties, then we believe that Mr. Reed should be recognized, for in both respects he has and would meet the requirement.

According to the "Barnstormer" of the Pender Republic, there will be no license fight at that place this year—not all satisfied to let the saloons run—but convinced that they can do nothing against them, therefore they suggest improvement in some other line—but with no hope of getting it. He wants laws enforced. That would be a good way to start something in Pender—something new.

Bradstreet's publication, like the physician with his hand on the pulse of the patient, is prepared to tell business conditions as well as the doctor can diagnose the condition of those in his care. And Bradstreet says "Spring trade conditions are healthy." House sales are smaller, but road sales larger, and weather conditions are the only ones that appear to make trade at all slow.

Our new secretary of state has already said something which has displeased the English press—that is that part of it which represents the aristocracy. Mr. Bryan has said that the recent victory for Ireland means home rule for that people in the near future, and home rule for Ireland marks the beginning of the final downfall of hereditary government—and that is casting reflections on the crown—don't yer know? We rather think that Secretary Bryan can lay aside the robe of office and make a speech as just a common American to an American audience without having to answer to the aristocracy of England for the same.

In the opinion of many who study economic questions and watch monopolies, the present legislature should not adjourn before several good measures are passed. Among them we note the public elevator and warehouse proposition. Another is the measure introduced by Senator Wm. Smith, providing for some uniform bridge plans—fixed by the state rather than the bridge companies. In another place the Democrat quotes some figures that will be of interest to any one who pays taxes to the bridge combine. The University removal should be provided for—that is a start should be made, and no appropriation should be made to further improve in the switchyard at present occupied. There are other good measures, but these are spoken of as among the important ones.

State Normal Notes

Miss Viola Marshall, territorial secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was a visitor Wednesday and addressed the students at convocation.

Special announcement of the summer session of 1913 will be made in the April bulletin. The term begins on June 2 and closes July 25th.

Mr. George Lehr represented the local Y. M. C. A., at the meeting of the State Association of the Young Men's Christian Association held at Lincoln March 13-16.

A teacher's examination will be held at the Normal on Friday and Saturday of this week for the accommodation of such students as are working for a county certificate.

Some of the young men in the class of college physics have constructed a detector for wireless waves which they have been able to "pick up" messages at a distance of a quarter of a mile.

The class in advanced chemistry have made such progress in the work that they will finish the required text in time to devote two or three weeks to a short course in household chemistry, or chemistry of daily life.

Mrs. W. O. Sand of Offerle, Kansas, was a pleasant caller Monday. Mrs. Sand, formerly Miss Jennie Mettlen, was graduated from the Nebraska normal college in 1894, and she was a student of that institution during its first year.

Remember the date of the Philomathean-Crescent literary contest Monday evening, March 24th. Students representing each of the societies will contest for cash prizes amounting to $40, and the program will consist of music, essays, readings, orations and debates.

Since the beginning of the year the Y. M. C. A., has taken up in the regular mid-week meetings a systematic study of social problems. The text followed is "The Gospel of the Kingdom" by Josiah Strong and the work is being done under the direction of Professor J. G. W. Lewis.

On the afternoon of March 14th the first of the preliminary debating contests was held in the chapel. Two teams will be selected this year, one to debate against the Peru state normal at Wayne, and the other to meet the Kearney normal at Kearney. The decision of the judges in regard to contestants will not be announced until March 24th.

Miss Rose Bartosh, training class of '11, employed in the intermediate grades of the Genoa schools, has been reelected for the ensuing year at a salary of $60 per month. Miss Bartosh has not accepted the position and may decide to return to the Normal next year and complete the life certificate course with the class of 1914.

House Roll No. 637, levying a tax of three-fourths of a mill upon the assessed valuation of the state for the maintenance of the state normal schools, passed the lower branch of the legislature last week without a single dissenting vote against it.

A large and appreciative audience greeted the Crescent literary society on Tuesday evening when, under the direction of Miss Olive M. McBeth, it presented the drama "Higby of Harvard." The characters had been wisely chosen and the various parts were well played. Charles Meeker as Watson W. Higby, a Montana mine owner; A. T. Cavanaugh, as Lorin Higby, a Harvard Graduate; Harry Gildersleeve as a dignified senator from Massachusetts; Miss Bessie Banks, as the senator's daughter; and Miss Mabel Banks, a charming widow and the sister of Senator Withrow; Miss Hazel Alyea, the chum of Nancy Withrow; Miss Gladys Geddes as Malvina, a widow from the West, much given to talking; and George Church, a butler, were all strong characters and played their parts well from beginning to end. For the success of the program much credit is due to the management of the Crescent literary society, to the young men and young women who had a part on the program, to Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. House and Mr. Rogers for excellent musical selections, and to Miss McBeth under whose direction the entertainment was given and who labored so willingly and so earnestly to make it a success.

WAS WAYNE COUNTY STUNG?

In Some Comparisons of Figures for Bridges Sold, This County Stands Among the High Notches.

The bill introduced by William H. Smith to regulate bridge specifications is stirring up the bridge forces and their county commissioner henchmen who are supposed to serve the people who elected them, in a manner that has not previously happened. Representative J. D. Hasik of Butler county is actively supporting the bill in the house, and has been writing to various counties to find out what he can regarding the charges that all is not square. He found that prices for the same goods differed in the different counties vary materially, and that his county was paying far in excess of two other counties which he investigated.

Reading the report aroused the curiosity of the Democrat and we find that this county, like Butler, was paying double price and more, in some instances, than other counties were paying.

Representative Hasik's comparison of prices is included in the following from the Lincoln Daily Star of March 6th, except the prices for Wayne county which are taken from records here:

Comparison by Counties

An interesting comparison of prices paid by different counties in Nebraska for bridge work has been prepared by Representative Hasik of Butler county, in order to show that the bids made by companies in that line of construction are not made on a cost basis. Mr. Hasik expected to submit the figures in the house during discussion of bridge bills, especially S. F. No. 43, by Smith, aimed at combinations of bidders. The bill was recommended for passage this afternoon when it came up. The bill provides that uniform plans for bridges must be provided in all counties and that the state engineer provide the plans. Before claims are allowed the work must be approved by the engineer.

The prices for 1912 for 8-inch steel piling per foot was 64c in Otoe county and $1.50 in Butler county. This county bought none in 1912, but the bid for this year for the same size is $3.00 per foot, in this bid the call is for double strength, so this may not be the same quality as the other counties.

Steel tubular piers were paid for in the same year on these varying scales:

30-inch—Otoe, $2.25 per foot; Gage, $3.70; Butler, $9.50; Wayne $8.00.

36-inch—Otoe, $2.75 per foot; Gage, $1.20; Butler, $13.50; Wayne, $11.10.

42-inch in Wayne county sold at $13.20 per foot.

The prices per foot on steel superstructures were as follows:

40-foot—Otoe $6.00; Gage $6.50; Butler, $10.50; Wayne $10.50.

In wooden superstructures the prices ranged thus:

16 foot—Otoe $2.45; Gage, $2.50; Butler, $3.75; Wayne, $3.75.

18 foot—$2.45; Gage, $2.70; Butler, $3.85; Wayne, $3.90.

20 foot—Otoe, $2.45; Gage, $2.80; Butler, $3.85; Wayne, $3.95.

Angle band rail cost 35 cents per foot in Gage county and $1.50 per foot in Butler and 75 cents in Wayne county. All other metal work was charged for at 2 1/2 cents a pound in Otoe, 3 1/2 cents in Gage and 4 1/2 cents in Butler, and 6 1/2 in this county.

Representative Hasik was in David City last Friday afternoon, attending a meeting of the Butler County Agricultural and Live Stock Association and the editor of the Press met him at the court house after the meeting of the fair association and in talking about the figures on bridges and bridge material which he had compiled Representative Hasik said: "I gathered these figures simply to expose the bridge companies and to show how unequal these prices are in different counties. Before we can stop this graft by the bridge companies we will have to have a state engineer or state highway commissioner draft uniform bridge plans and specifications for all counties in the state. Under the present system the county commissioners or supervisors are helpless, because one bridge company usually furnishes the plans and bids on same and sells bridge material in one county by pounds, in another county by feet and in still another by A. B. and C. classification. The only motive I had for gathering this data was to help Senator Smith's bill through, which will, if passed, stop these bridge companies from charging us more for bridge material than they charge in other counties."

The accepted bids for Wayne county this year average a little less than last year, but should they be so much higher than other coun-

Cedar in Opposition
Wm. H. Smith, a newspaper man who is in the state senate, has introduced a bill regulating the building of bridges. The bill, Senate File No. 43, is a good one as far as it goes, though it might go much further. It provides that plans and specifications for all bridges shall be furnished by the state engineer, uniform throughout the state, that the blanks for bidders shall be uniform throughout the state, so that it will be easy to tell who is the real low bidder. It requires county boards to transmit copies of all bids to the state engineer, so that any citizen may easily find out if his county is being stung. It provides that the state engineer shall check up the work if called upon so to do by the county board. It might contain a lot more but it already contains enough to cause a scurrying of the bridge men and a certain class of county commissioners to Lincoln to oppose its adoption. Cedar county even furnished a distinguished citizen for this purpose. We had one among the bunch.—Cedar County News.

Victor Johnson came from Red Oak, Iowa, Wednesday to visit his brothers here and at Bloomfield, and decided to go to Bloomfield first, so he was joined here by Gust A. Johnson for the Bloomfield visit. They return today.

S. E. Auken returned from Hot Springs, Arkansas, Wednesday morning, much improved in health and appearance by his six weeks in the bath houses of that famous resort. He thought it a rather cool reception here after having his potatoes all planted down there.

R. A. McEachen, who returned from a visit of several months in California about three weeks ago, has moved to Wayne, and is living in the east part of town. He reports visiting a few hours with W. S. Goldie while in Wilmington, and that Mr. Goldie is building up a nice business in his new home.

FOR SALE—At a great bargain, Must be sold before May 1st, 160 acres of good level land all broke, four miles from good town in Southeastern South Dakota. Guy Strickland left Sunday for Lincoln, where he went in response to a message asking him to accept a position with the Burlington railroad as an assistant engineer. He spent a year with Uncle Sam at Panama and has had other experience in his engineering work which with his education along that line and a great deal of natural ability, should make him a valuable assistant.

A new grocery store opens at Wayne Saturday, but by a grocer well known here, where he has previously engaged in the same line of business. C. R. Witter will open the doors of his new building on upper Main street, above 3rd street and invites the public to come and see the "Advo Grocery" where everything is neat and new. Mr. Witter has a neat room and a complete stock in his line. See his ad in this paper.

College Hill Notes

Fritz Handgartner is somewhat under the weather this week.

Dr. House gave a very interesting talk in chapel Tuesday morning.

The wearing of the green was strictly in vogue among the students Monday.

Miss Sarah Elkins has been visiting friends and relatives at Bancroft the past week.

Miss Majorie Bush visited Miss Gladys Bush at her home in Creighton last week, returning to Wayne Monday.

Miss Marshall, secretary of the national Y. M. C. A., arrived here Tuesday afternoon and is being entertained at Terrace Hall.

Miss Hazel Rogers and Irene Surber, who have been visiting at their respective homes the past week, returned Wednesday morning.

Mr. Rogers sang two choice Irish songs in chapel Monday morning for the benefit of a few members of the faculty and a number of the students, which were well received by all.

The Crescent program given by members of the society Tuesday evening was an absolute success. It was one of the best home talent plays given this year. The players were greeted by a well filled house, consequently the society will also be financially benefitted.

While the storm was raging last Friday evening the young ladies of Kingsbury Hall provided for themselves a very unique program in which a mock marriage was carried out. Good music was furnished during the entire evening. The bride and groom received numerous presents, were showered with rice after which the usual sherriver followed.

May Festival on May 9th.
Recent visitors were Mesdames Ley, Paulson and Brown and Miss Gaertner.

The high school orchestra gave an excellent half hour's entertainment this morning.

The Senior class play is being selected now and will probably be given about May 22nd. Commencement will occur on Friday, May 23rd.

Newly enrolled pupils this week are Fay Lauden in the second grade, Gavin Loudon in the fourth grade and Donald Walton in the fifth grade.

Hays Main is faithfully preparing to win honors in the oratorical class of the declamatory contest at Norfolk on Thursday evening, March 27th.

There was an abundance of evidence among the pupils that Monday was St. Patrick's day. One little girl, in the first grade on being asked by her teacher why she wore a green ribbon, replied, "Why because this is Kilpatrick's birthday."

Car of Horses Sold

This morning August Loberg was here from Carroll with a car of good horses which he purchased in that vicinity, and which he sold here to Chris Schinstock. He had some good animals, which were valued near the $300 mark.

W. O. Hanssen was at Omaha with cattle Wednesday, and today he has gone to Page to visit his brother and perhaps buy some cattle.

The foundation of DEAFNESS in later life are, in most cases, laid in childhood. Of 150 deaf mutes recently examined 59 per cent had adenoids or enlarged tonsils while of twenty-two mouth-breathers examined from one school, nineteen were marked cases of deafness. Place a drum against a building, when you strike upon it you get only a dull thud. Get it out where the air has equal pressure upon both sides and you have a clear resounding note. The same principal applies to the drum in the air. If the inner air passages are blocked because of throat or nasal troubles or the outer passage from hardened wax or foreign bodies, the result is deadened sound or deafness. My office is equipped with all the latest appliances for treating deafness and from the success I have had with the hundreds of cases treated I do not hesitate to offer my services to the public along this line. I also fit glasses and do all kinds of general practice. If you need my help I am here to serve YOU.

My Lecture on India

It Achieved a Result Beyond What Was Intended

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

When we of the wild west were beginning to put on a semicivilized garb a similar change of necessity came over the outlaws we had to deal with. The horse stealing industry was not as profitable as it had been and was better taken care of by those who had horses to lose. Wholesale robbery had become less lucrative, since more business was done by means of checks on banks and less with gold dust. The grub desperado was being transformed into the butterfly confidence man.

But before he ceased to be a desperado he began to devote himself to confidence games. In other words, he was both. We had one man in our region who was the most dreaded of the many who had terrorized us and was at the same time the most artful swindler. His real name was not known, though many of the names he used were on record with the sheriff. Therefore he acquired the sobriquet of "The Eel." He had an especial fancy for assuming different characters. He once made a fine haul by personating a capitalist out from the east looking over the ground with a view to establishing a bank. On another occasion he represented himself as an agent of the postoffice department. In this he was not so successful, for he was caught before realizing any plunder. But he did not hesitate to kill the man who caught him, and nothing was gained in the affair by law and order.

One day a man rode into town who said that "The Eel" was masquerading in the region through which he had passed as a Methodist minister. When asked how he knew the fellow was "The Eel," he said he had met the minister and at once knew him for "The Eel," whom he had seen.

I had done some work as deputy sheriff for which I had been commended and was asked if I would undertake the job of going out to try and bring in "The Eel," dead or alive. I think the preference was for dead, since alive meant a trial and a possibility of the prisoner's escape either by lack of evidence or an artful dodge. I signified my assent, determining that I would fight fire with fire. In other words, I would play a part, just as "The Eel" was playing a part.

I donned a black broadcloth suit and white cravat, intending to pass myself off for a missionary collecting funds for the board of foreign missions. We had had such a man among us recently, and I succeeded in getting some printed documents he had left behind him. These I read carefully in order to be able to talk intelligently on the subject of foreign missions. Mounted on the neekest looking horse I could find, my saddlebags filled with the printed matter, a Derringer pistol slung in each coat sleeve by an elastic cord I started out to find "The Eel."

I was obliged to travel fifty miles before I found him, but was not displeased to get so far from home that I would not very likely be recognized. Though I usually wore a beard, I was now clean shaven. I tracked "The Eel" to a town that was quite civilized for that region and found him at work raising funds for the ostensible purpose of building a church. He had been invited to stop with one of the most respectable citizens and was evidently on the way to make an excellent scoop.

I inquired as to those citizens who were most interested in "The Eel's" church building scheme and, selecting one, Abner Smith, called upon him, introduced myself as James Ridgeway, missionary in India, and, telling him that I had come among the people of the town to raise funds for foreign missions, asked his assistance. He replied that I had arrived at an inopportune time, since an effort had been started by the Rev. Mr. Swartout, who had also recently come to town to build a church. I suggested that Mr. Swartout and I might possibly work together, since we were both in the same service, and I would like Mr. Smith to bring us together. He consented and with the usual western hospitality invited me to be his guest during my stay in the town.

That same afternoon I was introduced to the Rev. Mr. Swartout, whom I at once recognized as "The Eel" by description of him I had secured before leaving home. He was a rather tall, sharp faced man, with black hair which he wore quite long. His eyes were a steel gray, and on meeting one of his own pretended calling he looked through it with a suspicion which though not noticed by others present was not lost on me. But I at once set about convincing the reverend gentleman that he had nothing to fear from me, especially in his church building enterprise, by offering to work with him in his own scheme.

"Let us first lay the foundation," I said earnestly, "by building a church for these good people. After the church is finished there will be ample time to do something in missionary work. For my part, I shall not attempt to raise any funds here, but will gladly remain for a few days and give you all the assistance in my power."

I could see his thought in his eye. At first he was disposed to get rid of me, fearing he might not be able to make a dupe of me. Then it occurred to him that he might throw upon my shoulders certain work for which he had not been educated. On the whole, was it not better for him to risk giving himself away to me and secure my help than to risk giving himself away to a number of persons?

"I shall be happy for your assistance, Brother Ridgeway," he said. "You, having lived in India, will be able to interest these people in a way that would be impossible for me and thus induce them to give freely to the building of a church, which, as you say, is the first step for them to take. A meeting has been called for this evening in the town hall of such as are favorably disposed to the work. I had intended to address them at length, but after a few preliminary remarks I will step aside for you."

"It will give me great pleasure to do what I can," I replied. "Meanwhile I will leave with you some leaflets showing what we have done in India and what we hope to do hereafter. You may be able to scatter them so that they will bear fruit."

Grasping his hand cordially—it was cold as a stone—I departed, breathing freely again when I got away from him, for I realized that should a knowledge of my game come to him he would send a bullet crashing into my brain—that is, if one of the Derringers in my sleeve could not be drawn quicker than the weapons he doubtless carried under his coat.

I resolved to keep my own counsel and continue to do my work unassisted. During the day I found a swift horse and hired a boy to have him at the hall ready for me before the meeting was over. That is the only preparation I made. At 8 o'clock, attended by my host, I sallied forth to give a lecture on missionary work in India, for a part of which I would draw on the material I had brought with me, and for the rest I would draw on my imagination. My colleague called the meeting to order, said that he had come among them in order to induce them to build a church, and I was surprised to hear him state his case remarkably well.

When he had finished he introduced me as a missionary just returned from India, and I began my lecture. Fortunately I have always had a faculty for making persons believe I know a subject on which I am ignorant and they helped me out, though seeing hundreds of faces turned toward me in sympathy for the poor heathen I could not banish a guilty feeling at the imposture.

After I had closed my lecture my colleague spoke a few words as to the duty of giving liberally that those present might have a place for worship and called upon several prominent citizens present to pass the hat. The collection was then poured on a table before the originator of the movement, who gathered it, tied it up in his handkerchief and put it in his pocket. I was watching him as he did so and was probably the only one present who detected the cunning, covetous look he could not entirely conceal.

While the meeting was breaking up I grasped "The Eel's" hand and told him that I would see him the next morning. He assured me that he would be happy to meet me, thanked me for my valuable assistance in the good work and hoped he might have an opportunity to reciprocate. I went down before he did by a back staircase into an alley, took off my clerical and appeared in plain clothes. My horse was waiting for me, and when "The Eel" appeared I followed him as he walked to the house of his host.

Owing to his unblushing effrontery, I presumed that he would get out of town with the plunder immediately after the meeting, and for this reason I had procured the horse. When he went into the house where he had been staying I knew he would either slip out during the night or remain in town longer for additional swag. Tying my horse to a post near by, I resolved on a night watch.

The last light in the house went out at 11 o'clock. Soon after 12 the front door opened softly and a man emerged. He made no sound in his steps, and I judged he wore rubbers. Growing from the sidewalk was a tree large enough for concealment, and I stood behind it. Wherever way the man went he must turn his back to me. I suffered him to pass only a few feet when I gave a quick sharp command: "Hands up!"

I saw him start. He dare not disobey. He put his hands above his head. I advanced, gripped his coat collar with one hand, my fingers pressed on his neck, and with the other I held the muzzle of my pistol against the back of his head.

Having him completely in my power, I called out to his host, who raised a window, and I asked him to come down. When he did so I told him what had happened and asked him to relieve his reverend guest of what he could find on his person. He drew forth the collection wrapped in a handkerchief, two small pistols, a 44 caliber revolver and a knife a foot long—strange belongings for a clergyman.

Well, we took "The Eel" to the mayor's house, where I stood guard over him till morning. The citizens of the place were so indignant at the swindle that had been attempted on them that they turned him over to a vigilance committee, who took the villain out and hanged him to a tree in the old fashioned way.

It is needless to say that I found myself very popular among the people I had served. They said I had earned the amount of the collection by my "very interesting and instructive lecture on India" and offered it to me. I declined, saying that it had been given for a church and must be so used.

I am happy to say that the edifice is now one of the principal buildings of the place.

Wall Street Wisdom

The Wall street journals are forever talking about the demand for increased wages regardless of "the value of the product," which is about as evasive a way of meeting a proposition as could be invented. They never attempt to tell what the value of the product of labor is, for they would meet with insurmountable difficulties in that direction. What is the value of the product of a fireman or engineer on a railroad? Will these journals endeavor to tell? The wage workers know that the value of the money they have been receiving for the last few years has been constantly decreasing, that is, it purchases less and less as the years pass by, and they can estimate accurately what the loss has been to them. Moreover the product of their labor has been increasing all the time for the engines are larger and the trains are hauling more freight with the same number of hands. According to Wall street papers, all wisdom is located there and never escapes from its precincts. One of them says: "The most dangerous threat overhanging every branch of business is that of legislation by politicians who take some sort of pride in admitting that they do not understand the intricate business processes for which they propose to legislate."

Members of congress are generally spoken of by these men as the scum of the ignorance of the whole country, whereas there are men in congress of the widest and most profound culture, in whose presence these speculators would appear as mites of the gutter. Most of Wall street could not pass a kindergarten examination in political economy and know as little about the science of government as a wild Sioux Indian. In a crowd of nine of them the question was asked: "How many members of the cabinet are there?" and not one could answer. There is no "intricate process" about stock gambling that a school boy could understand.—World-Herald.

Pres. Wilson's Inaugural Address

Universal praise is accorded the inaugural address of President Wilson. Deservedly so. No inaugural address since Lincoln's has risen to so high a level. It really is very like Lincoln's. Think of Lincoln in the spirit of the revolutionary era of chattel slavery, and of Wilson's in the present revolutionary era of industrial maladjustments, and the similarity of the two is startling. There is the same poise, the same simple and direct phrasing, the same perception of principle, yet recognition of difficult conditions, the same charity, the same appeal to high motives and invitation to hard but fraternal work in clearing the way. Like Lincoln, President Wilson approaches his task as an idealist who is not a fool. Alive to the fact that the democratic ideal must be worked out, and not merely wished in, he sets himself to that working task.

To President Wilson's invitation for help from all who sympathize with the democratic ideal, there should be a cordial response and constancy in making the response good. If at any time he seems to be parting from the ideal, let us make sure it is more than seeming before we withdraw our confidence. Let there be no hesitation in denouncing his treachery, should he turn the Ship of State in another direction to make some hostile port. But not unless he does that. And may all of us at all times remember that strong headwinds sometimes necessitate tacking in order to make progress on the true course, and so remembering be considerate of mistakes that are not blunders and patient with delays that are unavoidable. Let us all be modest, withal, regarding our own inerrancy.—The Public.

When the preacher gets up in front of a congregation to preach he has a good congregation he thinks as an average if there are 200 people within hearing of his voice and they do not all listen and heed. When an editor in the average county seat printing office whittles a point on his pencil and begins to push it over the white paper he is making marks that will go into 1,500 to 2,000 homes, and come under the gaze of, not simply that many people, but that many families. Therefore, he should be very careful what he says—and the one who claims to be a business man should be equally careful not to have his say left out.

The Report of Senate Committee on Wayne State Normal Falls of Need of New Building

Some time ago a special committee was appointed by the state senate to visit the normal schools, and to report back to the legislature their condition, and needs for the next biennium. On February 1st Senators Ollis, Cordeal and Kiechel spent the entire day at the Normal, inspecting the buildings and familiarizing themselves with the general conditions of the school.

The following is only a partial report of the findings recently filed with the Senate by this special committee.

Lincoln, Nebr., March 10, 1913
Your committee selected to inspect the normal schools at Wayne, Chadron and Kearney, beg leave to report as follows:

WAYNE—"We found the original brick building to be wholly unfit for the purposes of the normal school although the crowded condition of the school necessitates its occupancy. The building was planned on the lines of a grade school house with class rooms on the first and second floors and living rooms in the basement. It was poorly constructed in the first instance and is now in a bad state of repair, if, indeed, it is not dangerous. Cracks have developed above and below nearly every door and window and the insertion of wooden braces has been deemed necessary to prevent the structure from collapsing. The building consists of a mere shell of brick of a very poor quality. It has no interior partition walls of any other material than wood and plaster. The music department of the normal school is in the basement. The model school occupies rooms on the first and second floors, while a large room on the second floor is used for classes in penmanship and bookkeeping. The stairways are of wood, and narrow; the floors are badly worn and the building is in such condition that the plastering is constantly falling from the walls and ceilings. The rooms cannot be kept warm in severe winter weather. The building is wholly unfit for the purpose for which it is used and should be demolished.

"The new building is a fine, modern, fireproof structure of brick. It is known as the library and science building and is 65x112 feet in ground dimensions and is virtually three stories in height. The library, which is on the ground floor or basement, is equipped with book racks for about two thousand books, which is all the school possesses. On the upper floor are class rooms including the biological, chemical, and physical laboratories and the departments of domestic science and agriculture. The equipment is meager throughout the school, consisting principally of the cheapest kind of wooden chairs, and home made pine tables. The work of the school is hampered by lack of adequate facilities in the way of suitable furniture, such as cabinets to hold equipment, tables for use in the biological and chemical laboratories, teachers' desks and students' chairs.

"The school is demanding the erection of a new structure, which it is planned to make the central building of the plant. If this session of the legislature makes a sufficient appropriation for such a building, the original brick building will be demolished and the model school and the department of education will be removed to the old brick building, and the class rooms which now occupy that structure, as well as the administrative offices, will be housed in the new edifice, which will also contain the chapel. It is planned, if the appropriation is sufficient, to use the materials in the old brick building to build an extension to the power house, which will make that building 56x83 feet, and to extend the walls of that building upward 12 feet and equip this room as a gymnasium. "The phenomenal growth of the state's normal schools evidences the fact of the necessity for their existence. That they have been potent factors in the development of our primary educational structure is apparent to everyone who has followed the course of events in Nebraska. The state should in the past have pursued a policy more liberal toward its institutions of learning. The only reparation that can be made at this day is for the legislature to provide for the present needs of established schools. It is earnestly recommended that the appropriation at this session be sufficient for the construction of the buildings required by our state normal schools. It is not economy—on the contrary it is the greatest extravagance, to so hamper them for lack of facilities that they cannot utilize to their fullest extent, the investment that has heretofore been made."

Baptist Church

Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor
Our Lenten prayer meetings this week have been deeply spirited. The attendance has grown each evening. This evening (Thursday), the subject will be, "Divine Friendship;" tomorrow evening, "The Secret of Sacrifice." The service lasts from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m.

Our missionary rally last Sunday was full of interest. Our budget is just about completed. The year closes the last of the month. All pledges should be in by that time.

Easter services next Sunday. The morning subject will be "Immortality."

The young people's Easter lesson will be led by Misses Herring and Alexander.

At 7:30 p. m. the pastor will preach. We are always glad to welcome strangers to all our meetings.

Prof. Davies will lead a strong song service Sunday evening.

Presbyterian Church

Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.
"Rise with Christ" will be the subject of the Easter sermon at the Presbyterian church next Sabbath morning. The service will be a combined service of the church and Sunday school and there will be exercises by the members of the primary department, and some other special numbers by members of the Sunday school. The service will begin at 11 o'clock.

There will be no Sunday school next Sabbath as the Sunday school will take part in the Easter services, beginning at 11 o'clock.

The C. E. meeting begins at 6:30 and the topic will be "The Lesson of Easter."

There will be a Festival of Song at the Presbyterian church on Easter day evening instead of the regular service. The choir will render the program. During an interlude the pastor will give a short talk on "Incidents in connection with the Resurrection."

The prayer meeting this week was dismissed in order that there might be an opportunity for all to attend the Missionary meeting at the Baptist church and hear the Rev. Dr. Groesbeck of China.

Last week Rev. E. F. Hammond, the pastor of the church at Norfolk, addressed the mid-week service at the Presbyterian church. There was a large attendance. The subject of the address was "Personal Work" and the speaker showed how practical and effective various forms of personal work were in connection with the up-building of the church and Sunday school.

The remarkable conversion and fruitful life of C. G. Finney was the subject of the sermon by Rev. Alexander Corkey last Sunday evening. He related in detail the religious awakening of Mr. Finney who was a skeptical young lawyer, but was converted in a way almost as remarkable as that of Paul, the Apostle. He at once took his place as one of the leading workers in the church in America and held this foremost place for fifty-four years. In some places the direct influence of his apostolic life is still felt.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church (Rev. J. Kuhn, Pastor.)

Many of our country people were kept away last Sunday on account of the almost impassable roads and the severe storm. Still, we had a good audience. The pastor preached a very interesting and helpful sermon, the occasion being Palm Sunday. Text: Matt. 21:5.—"Behold, Thy King cometh unto thee." These words of prophecy were literally fulfilled. God always fulfills His word. Often in their fulfillment, people are taken by surprise. This is because neglect in the study of His Word and in the keeping of God's commands. Jesus is our King and will visit us. This should give us great joy and gladness of heart. The kind of reception we should give should be a worthy one. We cannot know the time of His visit. We should, therefore, be in constant readiness for his coming. Then, and only then, will we have joy of heart and be able to join in the song, Glory to God in the highest.

On Friday of this week, being Good Friday, we will have special services at 10:30 a. m. After the sermon the preparatory services will be held. To these services every member should endeavor to be present. The Catechism class will be at the pastor's study at 2 p. m.

Easter Sunday will be observed with special services. They begin with the Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. The preaching services will be at 11 a. m. At this time the class in catechism will be confirmed. This will be followed by an appropriate sermon and the Holy Communion. At this service a special thank offering for general benevolence will be given to apply to the apportionment of Synod. At 7:30 p. m., the Sunday school will give an Easter Concert entitled "Songs of Victory." This promises to be very interesting. The offering will be for "Church Extension." You are invited to all these services. Come and join us in making this the most joyful day in the history of our church.

Miss Ada Stambaugh will entertain the Ladies' Aid society on Thursday afternoon of next week at the home of Miss Mary Swanson.

Methodist Church

Rev. Wm. Gorst, Pastor
We are expecting a great day next Sunday. The pastor will preach on the resurrection of Jesus in the morning and in the evening the Sunday school will assemble for a Choral service under the leadership of the S. S. Chorister, Prof. E. E. Lackey. In connection with this Choral service, four ladies will make five-minute talks on Easter topics.

The evening program follows: Choral Service by the Sunday school, Prof. E. E. Lackey, Director.

Songs by the School. Scripture Reading—Story of the Resurrection, Math. 28—Fauniel Senter.

Invocation—Mrs. A. P. Gossard. Solo—"The Palms" (Gonaud)—Willis Fleetwood.

Song by the School. Address, "Easter in Other Lands"—Miss Rachel Fairchild.

Quartette. Address, "Passion Week in Art"—Miss Edith Beechel.

Songs by the School. Address, "The Religious Significance of Easter"—Mrs. I. H. Britell.

The public is most cordially invited to all of these services.

An invitation will be extended at the morning service to unite in Church Fellowship.

The District Conference and the District Laymen's association will open their annual session at one p. m., Tuesday, March 25th, in this church and will continue until Wednesday evening inclusive, March 26. We expect to entertain about one hundred guests at lodging and breakfast Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, also Wednesday night and Thursday morning. Our guests will take their dinner and supper at the hotels and restaurant. An excellent program has been prepared and the community will have the privilege of hearing such distinguished speakers as Y. M. C. A. secretary Dennison of Omaha, Dr. Jenkins of Dakota Wesleyan college at Mitchell, President Craig of Morningside College, who also is a national representative of the Methodist Brotherhood, and probably Chancellor Fulmer of Nebraska Wesleyan University.

NEBRASKA NEWS

Gerdas, Kennedy and Holcomb New Board of Control.

SENATE CONFIRMS APPOINTEES

Selection of Judge Kennedy Leaves a Vacancy on the District Bench in Douglas County, Which Governor Morehead Is to Fill.

Lincoln, March 19.—Henry Gerdas of Richardson county, Judge Howard Kennedy of Omaha and ex-Governor Silas A. Holcomb of Custer county compose the new board of control appointed by Governor Morehead and confirmed by the senate.

Gerdas gets the six-year term, Kennedy, the Republican, the four-year term and Holcomb the two-year term.

Before announcing the appointments Governor Morehead held a consultation with a number of the senators, after which the Republicans of the senate decided at a caucus to support the appointees. While in Omaha recently Governor Morehead secured the consent of Judge Kennedy to serve on the board. His acceptance means the governor will appoint a district judge to fill the vacancy thus created.

The new board takes the place of the one recently appointed by the governor and turned down by the senate, composed of Henry Gerdas, Charles Gregg and Charles Graff.

Of the new board, Gerdas served in several sessions of the legislature and is a resident of Governor Morehead's home town. Judge Kennedy has become well known over the state by reason of his activity in connection with the juvenile court. Judge Holcomb has served the state as district judge, governor and supreme judge.

For a number of years he has been afflicted with rheumatism and his health has suffered severely. A few years ago he went to the northwest for a while, hoping that a change of climate would be beneficial to him. His hopes, however, were in vain. His friends say, however, he is sufficiently vigorous to make a useful member of the new board. He resides at Broken Bow.

The bills outlining the duties of the board of control are still pending, several in the house and one or two in the senate. It is expected the salary will be $2,500 or $3,000 for each member, who will be required to devote their entire time to the work.

STOCK LOSSES ARE HEAVY

Many Cattle and Sheep Die as Result of the Recent Blizzard.

Omaha, March 17.—Train service is slowly straightening out after last week's blizzard, which tied up railroad traffic east and west, and resulted in freight trains being annulled and passenger trains delayed from one to twelve hours.

Passengers arriving from the west said the weather had so improved that the stockmen would suffer little or no loss hereafter, although sheep and cattle men sustained heavy losses during the storm.

Herds Wreck Due to Trainmen.

Sidney, Neb., March 18.—The board of inquiry which conducted the official investigation of the Union Pacific into the wreck between extra freight trains Nos. 504 and 501 at Herndon, in which five men were killed, reported that the cause was due to the failure of Engineer Herbert Cameron of No. 501 to observe the home block signal at Herndon and the failure of Conductor Ray Phillips and brakeman Charles E. Cradit of No. 504 to go back with danger signals and protect their train.

Engineer Blamed for Wreck.

Gothenburg, Neb., March 17.—Responsibility for the wreck on the Union Pacific at Gothenburg, which cost the lives of four persons and caused injuries to a score, was placed on John Weinberger, engineer of train No. 12, by a board of inquiry, which concluded its investigation and announced its decision.

Fremont Progressives Name Ticket.

Fremont, Neb., March 17.—Because the progressives were not consulted by the Republicans before the ticket headed by Mayor George Wolz was nominated, the Progressives held a mass convention and nominated a full ticket, headed by Arthur Truesdell for mayor. There are three tickets now in the local field, Robert Herre being the Democratic nominee.

Harvester Hearing Continues.

Omaha, March 17.—Four farmers testified at the harvester trust hearing in the federal building. INSURANCE BILL AMENDED

Placek Cuts Out Section With Regard to Rebates.

Lincoln, March 18.—The first fight on the insurance bill before the senate came on "section" 140, which provided, among other things, that the amount of insurance wherein the insured has accepted or secured, either directly or indirectly, any rebate or the premium or agents' commission, shall be reduced in such proportion as the amount or value of such rebate, commission or dividend bears to the total premium on such policy.

The fight started when Placek offered an amendment cutting out that section. Placek contended that the widow of the policyholder had a right to receive the full amount of the policy irrespective of rebates. Corder spoke against the amendment, as did also Kemp, Ollis and Dodge. After spending two hours and a half in the discussion the amendment of Placek carried.

REFUSED TO OBEY REQUEST

Dealer Testifies International Asks Him to Quit Competitive Line.

Omaha, March 18.—Back in 1903 a blockman of the International Harvester company told John Ford, an implement dealer of Earlring, Ia., to cut out handling the Acme binders, when he found an Acme on the implement dealer's floor. So testified Mr. Ford at the harvester hearing in the federal court room. Ford refused to cut out the Acme line. The blockman stayed around two days and then left town. Before he left, however, according to Ford's testimony, the representative tried to place the International harvesting lines with some of the other dealers in the town, but being unsuccessful Ford continued to handle the International lines along with the Acme.

STORAGE REPORT IS READY

It Will Recommend That Legislation Be Left to Congress.

Lincoln, March 18.—The committee appointed by the house to investigate the cold storage plants of the state and the high cost of living is at work on its report and will have it ready some time this week. The committee will recommend that the matter of cold storage legislation be left to the national congress, but it is also understood that the committee will recommend to the attorney general to bring proceedings against the Omaha Produce exchange, it being alleged that this exchange has to do with fixing prices.

Two New Regiments Designated.

Lincoln, March 17.—Adjutant General Hall has completed the plans for the reconstruction of the two regiments of the Nebraska national guard and the regiments will be known henceforth as the Fourth and Fifth Nebraska regiments. Colonel George A. Eberly, who formerly commanded the First regiment, will be in command of the Fourth, while Colonel Herbert J. Paul of the old Second will be in charge of the Fifth.

Public Playgrounds at Ravenna.

Ravenna, Neb., March 18.—As the outgrowth of several public meetings held at the school house it has been decided to establish playgrounds, tennis courts, etc., in different parts of the town the coming season. The ladies organized a civic league and expect to undertake several things for the uplift of the community, among other things to establish a park in the grove at the southwest edge of town.

Jury Disagrees in Waymire Case.

Beatrice, Neb., March 19.—The jury in the $15,000 damage suit of Brunke against Waymire was unable to agree and was discharged by Judge Pemberton. Last summer Brunke, who resides at Sterling, was severely injured when his horse became frightened at an automobile driven by Waymire, who resides at Adams, and ran away.

Senator Hale Still Ill.

Lincoln, March 18.—A letter was received from Senator Hale, who has been ill at his home in Norfolk for over a week, thanking the senators for the fine bouquet sent him and stating that he thought if he could only get back to the senate and get some of the "no" votes out of his system he would feel better.

To Muster in Band.

Major Birkner of the adjutant general's office went to Omaha, where he will muster in the new band of the Fourth regiment of the state guard. LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Beef Steers Lower and Trade Very Slow.

HOGS GENERALLY A NICKEL UP

Sheep and Lambs in Very Light Supply—Not Enough There to Test Values—Practically No Change from the Close of Last Week.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, March 18.—A very moderate run of cattle showed up today, about 4,700 head. Although the supply of beef was rather small, the market was slow and unevenly lower. Desirable light and handy weight beefs were steady to a little easier, while the heavier grades ruled weak to fully a dime lower. Only a very limited number of cows and heifers were included in the receipts, and while all classes of buyers seemed to be bearishly inclined, they were unable to force any material decline in values and for the most part prices were in about the same notches as on Monday. Demand for feeders holds up well and prices were firmly held for all desirable stock cattle and feeding steers.

Cattle quotations: Choice to prime beefs, $8.60@8.75; good to choice heaves, $8.30@8.60; fair to good beefs, $8.10@8.25; fair to choice yearlings, $7.50@8.40; common to fair heaves, $7.50@8.00; good to choice heifers, $7.25@8.15; good to choice cows, $6.80@7.65; fair to good grades, $6.00@6.75; canners and cutters, $4.00@5.75; veal calves, $6.25@9.25; bulls, stags, etc., $6.50@6.75; choice to prime feeders, $7.80@8.30; good to choice feeders, $7.60@7.80; fair to good feeders, $6.80@7.50; common to fair feeders, $6.25@6.75; stock cows and heifers, $6.00@7.25.

About 10,500 hogs arrived today. The market opened rather slow, but later becomes strong to a big nickel higher. The majority of the sales were made around $8.70@8.75, with a sprinkling of good lights and butchers at $8.80, and some prime light as high as $8.85, 10c higher than Monday's best price.

Sheep and lamb receipts were in very light supply, only 3,000 head being received. As a matter of fact there were not enough sheep or lambs here today to test values. There is practically no change in prices from the close of last week. Mexican lambs were good enough to bring $8.50 and some less desirable kinds went at $8.25. Fed western ewes changed hands at $6.20, and a bunch of aged wethers bro-150 $6.20. A few yearlings sold up to $6.75.

Quotations on sheep and lambs: Lambs—Good to choice Mexicans, $8.65@8.85; fair to good Mexicans, $8.35@8.65; good to choice westerns, $8.35@8.50; fair to good westerns, $8.00@8.25; feeders, $7.60@8.15. Sheep—Yearlings, light, $7.40@7.65; yearlings, heavy, $6.90@7.40; wethers, good to choice, $6.50@6.75; wethers, fair to good, $6.25@6.50; ewes, good to choice, $6.00@6.25; ewes, fair to good, $5.75@6.00; culls and bucks, $2.75@4.00.

Live stock is beginning to move out of Wayne county in well finished condition in considerable numbers. During the past few days Siemon Goeman shipped two loads to Chicago, which were on the Monday market. He had a car of hogs at Sioux City the same day, his boys going in with them. Carl Victor, Harder Bros. and Claus Ott each sent a car to South Omaha and Eph Beckenhauer and Andrew Stamm each sent in two cars from their yards. Prices are very satisfactory.

The Strongest Rubber in the World Don't Pay Tribute To A Tract. LIVE RUBBER BEACON FALLS BEBODDE CENTURY BOOTS are made of the strongest rubber in the world. They're made out of the best of rubber and have a special kind of construction that forms the highest grade rubber into the best quality of canvas duck by powerful hydraulic pressure instead of heat. As a result, they are not only stronger, but they are also more comfortable. Century Boots are made from the toughest compound known and will outwear the soles of the average rubber boot two to three times. Here we recommend again by putting a pair of Century Boots on the edge of the sole, making a connection so firm and lasting as to absolutely prevent breaking. It's not easy to find a good rubber boot by appearance, and even the dealer gets fooled occasionally. Here we offer the temptation to make sure you have the best. Buy your money by stocking up on a "cheaper" article on the reputation of some smooth salesman that "it's as good as the Century." They take chances on goods of doubtful quality when you can have Century boots, backed by years of success, at no greater cost! It has paid thousands of people who insist on having the Century. Beacon Falls Rubber Footwear is "always the best for the money"—best for wear—best for style and fit. Ahern's Rubber & Shoe Co.

CROP ROTATION FOR THE DAIRY FARM

As dairymen it is necessary for us to pause and consider the farm itself and how we can best produce the necessary feeds before we even come to the care and keeping of the dairy cow herself, writes H. O. Daniels. Following is a brief history of crop and soil conditions upon our Connecticut farm: Twenty-four years ago this farm did not produce hay enough to feed five cows, a yoke of oxen and one horse. Hay had to be purchased each spring. Upon attending farmers' meetings, interest was awakened, and we began to study the analysis of feeds and fertilizers.

The illustration shows the udder of a dairy cow that comes near to the ideal. It belongs to Valdesa Scott II, a pure bred Holstein, the first cow in the world to produce 40 pounds of butter in one week. Her record is 108.5 pounds of milk, 5.8% butter fat in one day; seven days, 656.1 milk, 41.87 butter fat; thirty days, 2,933.9 milk, 155.48 butter fat. Valdesa Scott II is owned by Bernhard Meyer, Finnerne stock farm, Finnerne, N. J. She has a daughter, Valdesa Ormsby De Kol, who has a two-year-old record of 23.73 pounds of butter in seven days.

So we bought standing grass and later on heard about the silo and put one in, growing the corn necessary to fill it. We were the laughing stock of all the neighbors, but with silage we made more milk than before and have since added more silos until we have today 375 ton capacity and plant thirty-five acres to corn.

We began by raising corn year after year on the same land. It was near the barn, and we did not want to haul the fodder so far, but after a time we found we were not getting as good results. A man who visited us suggested that we sow clover on the corn land and raise our corn somewhere else, and we finally decided to do it. We have tried clover for ensilage, and it is even better for feeding than when made into hay, especially the clover rowen or second crop. If the weather is wet and the clover hay cannot be cured put it in the silo. Clover silage will tide you over July and August, when the pastures dry up and the most critical period of milk production is at hand.

Twenty loads of stable manure on clover sod make an excellent foundation for the corn crop, and such sod will raise twenty-five tons of corn to the acre. After harvesting the corn we do not touch the land in the fall if the ground is level; if hilly we sow winter rye. We do not plow the land in the spring, but cut it all up with a cut-away harrow and sow two bushels oats, six quarts red clover, two quarts alsike and three quarts timothy with a drill. Lime is also used before sowing the seed and sown with a drill. This gives us in the second year a crop of out hay which is fully as good for milk production as mixed hay and a second crop of clover.

The third year we have a solid crop of clover. Clover is too solid a crop to go into the silo alone. It has not sugar enough in it to preserve it well, and we like to have some timothy in it, as that supplies the necessary sugar and supplements what the clover lacks. This clover sod is used for our corn crop, and in this way we plow up the entire tillable area every three years.

Remove the Horns.
 Horns on a dairy cow are a common source of serious injury, especially to udders belonging to other cows in the herd. Unless the cow is to be used for show ring purposes by all means remove her horns. This is most successfully done when she is a calf under three days of age. Simply clip away the hair surrounding the small buttons that are the future horns and rub on caustic potash until the skin bleeds slightly. If the work is properly done a dent can be felt in the skull after a few days, and no horns will ever develop. Dehorning of grown animals should be done in fall or winter, when there are no flies to bother the wound.—Farm Press.

Swapping Horses.
 It may be right to deceive a man in a horse trade, but if you want to secure a permanent customer it is mighty poor business to use such methods.—Professor W. M. Wilson, State College of Agriculture, New York.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

A disinfectant should be used in the barn from time to time. Remember that cleaning the stables means more now than it used to.
 No matter how well bred a cow may be she cannot produce milk at a profit when given only a maintenance ration.
 Dirty stalls cause much sickness among the calves.
 Make your stock reach maturity without being stunted. If an animal is worth keeping at all it is worth keeping well.
 The silo is a time saver when it comes to feeding a large number of animals.
 Many farmers will let the steer trample $100 worth of feed into the mud rather than spend $25 for a feed rack.

BROOD SOW MANAGEMENT.

Feeding Methods That Result in Strong and Healthy Litters.
 To produce strong, healthy litters it is not only necessary that the sows be fed correctly upon feeds that furnish sufficient muscle, bone and energy making materials, but that they be handled wisely during the period of gestation.
 The mother sow needs food for three important purposes—first, for her own maintenance; second, for growth on her own body and, third, for the nourishment of the fetal pigs. Corn lacks muscle and bone formers and in addition is too concentrated—not bulky enough for breeding swine. Tankage, meat meal, linseed oil meal, skimmilk buttermilk, bran, oats, middlings, shorts, soy beans, clover and alfalfa are the logical supplements to corn in the middle west. At the Iowa station we have found that most excellent rations for gilts carrying litters are:
 First.—Corn, 88 to 90 per cent; meat meal or tankage containing 60 per cent protein, 10 or 12 per cent.
 Second.—Corn, 75 per cent; finely cut clover or alfalfa, 25 per cent.
 Third.—Corn, 80 per cent; oats, chopped clover or alfalfa, 10 per cent; meat meal or tankage, 10 per cent.
 For old sows the proportion of meat meal or tankage can be cut down practically one-third to two-fifths and still get excellent results.

Stronger, healthier litters having more hair, more color and more bone have been the result whenever we added a suitable protein and ash supplement to corn. When we selected our supplements wisely we also got cheaper pigs. At present prices for purchased protein and ash supplements, meat meal and tankage are our cheapest sources.
 Above all things, excepting the food supply only, an abundance of exercise is most important. All classes of pig-

The Tamworth hog is a bacon producer and with the Yorkshire is considered the best breed for that purpose. These breeds are distinguished from the so called lard hog in that they are more prolific, better foragers and, it is said, are less susceptible to cholera and other swine diseases. Bacon breeds are the result of methods of feeding and breeding. They grow rapidly in size, but do not lay on fat like the lard types. Their large size, with long and deep bodies, indicates their bacon producing ability and capacity to easily carry large litters. The boar shown is a good specimen of the Tamworth.

nant animals do well only when abundant opportunity for exercise is allowed. The general tone and vigor of the mother is reflected in the offspring. The better the general health and condition of the dam the stronger and more vigorous the young. Range on pasture is perhaps the best of all. Allow the sows to follow cattle for awhile, but be sure to remove them when they tend to become clumsy and heavy. Scatter the feed over the ground, such as sheep oats, soy bean hay, etc., and let the sows gather it. Feed on the side of the field opposite the sleeping bunks. Allow hay in racks, the eating at which is conducive to light exercise. Shut the sows from the houses in the middle of the day rather than allow them to huddle up and snooze peacefully. Schemes to induce exercise cost little, yet the returns are considerable.

Warmth, dryness, ventilation and sunlight are the essentials of an ideal hog house. Such conducive conditions can be secured with a little forethought. Good dry bedding is needed and to be kept dry must be changed regularly.
 Laxativeness of the bowels is highly desirable, as constiveness is a menace. Plenty of exercise combined with laxative feeds such as tankage, oil meal, bran, alfalfa, hay, etc., will largely solve the problem. However, if it does not work before farrowing an emergency remedy of an ounce of epsom salts per hundred pounds of hog will help considerably.—Professor J. M. Eppard, Iowa Station.

The Horse's Stable.
 A stable where manure will freeze during the night is no place to keep a horse. Keep the stable clean and dry or you may have thrush attacking the horse's hind feet, which should never rest in foul, black liquid or wet manure.

BROOKLYN TABERNACLE
 BIBLE STUDY ON THE ANCIENT WORTHIES.

Hebrews 11:1-19—March 30.
 "Our fathers trusted in Thee; they trusted, and Thou didst deliver them."—Psalm 22:4.
 THE broad foundation of St. Paul's dissertations on faith is found in the first verse of this Study—"Now faith is the substance of things hoped for," etc. As water is not a solid upon which our feet can travel, except it be congealed into ice, so belief, in the ordinary sense of the word, must be solidified into faith, to carry us to our goal.

True faith seeks for a positive Message from God, and diligently endeavors to find it. Then it becomes an evidence, or proof, of things invisible. By such faith in God's promises, the two spies brought back a good report of the land of Canaan. Their companions, lacking that faith, brought back an unfavorable report.
 By faith Abel offered God a more excellent sacrifice than did Cain. Abel's faith, no doubt, resulted from an endeavor to appreciate what sin is and why the death penalty had come. From this standpoint, he offered animals, typifying the "better sacrifices" by which reconciliation will be effected between God and humanity.

The story of Enoch's translation is vouched for more than once; and by faith we may accept it. There is no record as to where he was taken, except that he did not go to Heaven. (John 3:13.) God may have protected his life throughout these centuries to illustrate how human life could have been prolonged by Divine Power, had God not placed the curse of death upon the race of mankind.

Noah's faith manifested itself in his building the ark, when there was no apparent excuse for so doing. Rain was unknown until the Deluge. (Genesis 2:5.) God blessed his faith, and made him a channel of blessing to his family.
 The Faithless Not Acceptable Now. St. Paul makes a sweeping statement—"Without faith it is impossible to please God." A person, then, is pleasing to God in proportion to his faith. Surely here we have an incentive to growth in faith, since God's people desire to please Him.

Faith is not unlike easy with all mankind. Some can crystallize their faith in God's promises into what is practically absolute knowledge, on which they dare do anything. Many have less faith, yet are children of God. These needs must pray, "Lord, increase our faith," and be encouraged by the rewards of faith given to others. There are others, however, to whom faith seems absolutely impossible. They cannot believe anything beyond their five senses.
 Are these to be debarred from Divine favor to all eternity, because they cannot please God? This is not the teaching of Scripture. The Bible teaches that under Messiah's Kingdom "the knowledge of the Lord shall fill the whole earth," reaching all classes. It will not depend upon faith. The way will be so plain that even a simpleton need not err in his endeavor to know the Truth.—Isaiah 35:8.

Abraham Looked For a City.
 Summing up (verse 13), St. Paul declared that all these noble characters died in faith, without having received the things promised. So strong was their faith that they were content to be pilgrims and strangers. They sought a better, a heavenly country—"A City which hath foundations, whose Builder and Maker is God."
 Did St. Paul mean that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob wanted to go to Heaven? Were they looking, as the Church is looking, for a place in the New Jerusalem—Messiah's Kingdom? Surely not our thought. They had no Heavenly promises to think about. They had no Word of God to even suggest a change of nature from human to spirit being.

All of their promises were earthly—"All the land that thou seest, to thee will I give it and to thy seed after thee," etc. To our understanding, the country for which they looked is the Paradise of the near future, when the blessing of the Lord shall supplant the curse of sin and death. This is the country which God purposes shall be the inheritance of humanity in general, when brought back into harmony with the Divine will, during Messiah's reign.

"The City which hath foundations, whose Builder and Maker is God" is the New Jerusalem, which eventually is to come down from God. But that will not be a literal city. The passage describing it is symbolical. The New Jerusalem will be the Messianic Kingdom, the center of government for the reorganized social order of earth.
 The faithful Ancient Worthies will be representatives of the invisible Messiah. (Psalm 45:16.) These waited for the promised resurrection under Messiah's administration—a city symbolically representing a government; as Washington, the United States.

Advertiser Sells Cheaper

The far sighted merchant is not so much concerned in getting big profits on individual sales as in getting a big volume of business at reasonable net profit. He realizes that if he is to reach out and get and hold business he must get the volume of business so he can sell on a smaller margin.
 The larger the volume of business the more the selling cost is reduced, because every concern could do far more business than they do with the same selling force. Salesmen's salaries and other expenses do not materially increase as the sales increase. It is really astonishing to know how the selling cost diminishes as the sales increase. One business man who had watched the effect of his advertising upon his business for a number of years said his advertising increased the sales to such an extent his selling cost was reduced to one-fourth of what it was before, and after adding the cost of advertising his selling cost was still less than one-half the previous selling cost. This is the experience of every merchant who has advertised his business as it should be advertised.

The merchant who increases his sales and the volume of his business buys more goods and in bigger quantities than the smaller merchant and thus gets a bigger discount. The producer can manufacture cheaper if he manufactures in bigger quantities. He is thus naturally going to give a better discount to the bigger merchant who buys in bigger quantities, thus enabling the manufacturer to manufacture in bigger quantities.

Now doesn't it stand to reason that the man who through judicious advertising sells more goods, buys his goods at a bigger discount, and reduces his selling cost one-half could sell cheaper than the man who never advertises. He can and he does.—Ex.

Advertising Methods Adopted By An Enterprising House

That Wayne is fast becoming metropolitan in the methods of advertising used by our merchants to call the buying public's attention to the many splendid values which they are offering, also that the wide-awake firm of Aherns are keeping up with and just a little ahead of the times in an advertising respect is again practically demonstrated by what is perhaps the most elaborate system of advertising ever attempted by any business house in this section, namely, the giving away of the beautiful Claxton Parlor Grand Piano which is now on exhibition at their store.

In a recent interview with Mr. Ahern regarding this decided innovation in advertising, Mr. Ahern stated: "We are giving away this piano to encourage new trade and to bring our store and goods to the attention of every buyer in our community. The plan we are using in giving away this piano is equitable and fair to all, simply this, every person buying one dollar's worth of any thing in our store will receive a coupon good for 100 votes. The person returning to us by Sept. 1st the largest number of votes will be given the piano absolutely free of all cost. No favors will be shown. Our reputation for 'square dealing' assures our customers of that fact. In addition to the Piano we will give gold watches for second and third prizes and silverware prizes to the one turning in the most votes each month. The particulars and rules are published elsewhere in this paper."

This three hundred dollar Claxton Parlor Grand Piano is surely a present worth having and we predict a very "merry race" for votes during the next few months. —Adv.

Loudon Bros., of Carroll have bought from Oscar Waldo, the livery business he has so successfully conducted at the Goeman barn, and took possession Wednesday. The new proprietors recently sold their business at Carroll to H. Edwards. Mr. Waldo will remain here this season and care for his Percheron stallion, the same as last season.

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. Gorst will be sorry to learn that he is to leave Wayne early next month for the west, going to Wyoming where they have a son and also land interests. He is given a vacation until the time of the annual conference, and he has richly earned a rest, and all hope that a change of work and climate will prove most beneficial.

Weather Notes

The fellow who always planted his peas and potatoes on Good Friday and had green peas and new potatoes on Decoration Day, back in Iowa, would have missed out this year, had he remained in that country—but he is dead and sends no word back as to climate.

The ground hog must have seen his shadow again. His six weeks were up Sunday, but you would never guess it from the thermometer.

All who are going to plant potatoes on Good Friday this year, hold up your hand.

A high wind and falling temperature all day Wednesday resulted in a drop from above freezing point to zero in 24 hours.

There are exceptions to all rules—for instance, an early Easter and the same kind of a spring—well there are no symptoms today.

Last Friday the rural route men missed the first day of the winter on account of bad weather.

WAYNE NORMAL CHAMPION BASKETBALL TEAM

The State Normal school basketball five established a wonderful record this season, winning every game on the heavy schedule with the exception of one. The Sioux City Y. M. C. A., administered the one defeat, the collegians losing by one point. The quintette won from every five of note in northeastern Nebraska, and by defeat of Pierce, Neb., champion high school team, claim the championship of this section.

The Wayne Normals scored 283 points to opponents' 167. The success of the team largely was due to the coaching of Edvard J. Huntmer, head of the department of manual and physical training. Scores of the games follow:
