MRS. LAUMAN INSTANTLY KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

While Returning From Sioux City With Wife and Daughters, Rick Lauman's Auto Turns Over—Crushing Mrs. Lauman to Death

Early Friday morning the citizens of Wayne and vicinity were shocked by the news of a terrible accident of the evening before, which resulted in the instant death of Mrs. Rick Lauman, Mr. Lauman, wife and two daughters, Mrs. F. A. Nance and Miss Bessie, and Paul Mildner had gone to Sioux City that day, and left there about eight o'clock in the evening to drive to their home three miles east of Wayne. Coming out of Homer they started on the wrong road which took them into a stretch of hilly road, and while coming down a steep hill with a sharp curve at the foot of the decline, the brakes failed to work properly, and, in an attempt to make the curve at too high a rate of speed the car struck loose dirt at the edge of the road, skidded and turned over at the roadside, pinning Mrs. Lauman beneath the car with the steering wheel at her back, crushing her instantly. Mr. Lauman was also caught beneath the car and held until it could be raised, but was not seriously injured. The three occupants of the rear seat were thrown clear of the car, and escaped with some bruises of minor importance.

Of the life history of this excellent woman whom all so deeply mourn, the pastor of the Baptist church where the funeral was held, gives the following:

Mrs. Elizabeth Lauman was born near Milwaukee, Wis., September 27, 1865, and met her death between Emerson and Sioux City, Thursday evening, June 19, 1913, being aged 47 years, 8 months and 23 days.

Her mother, Mrs. Pond, died when her daughter was but six years of age and thus early her life was deprived of the greatest help a girl has, that of a mother. When seven years old her father and family came to Clay county, Iowa, and soon moved to Sioux Rapids, the same state. September 4, 1883, she was married to Mr. Rick Lauman and after two years the couple moved to Wayne county, Nebr., where they lived until her death. Into this home were born five children, all of whom are living and are present today. The oldest child, Mrs. J. E. Sweet, resides in Council Bluffs while the other children, Mrs. Ella Noakes, Mr. John Lauman, Mrs. Effie Nance and Miss Bessie Lauman, all live in the neighborhood of Wayne.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides the five children and her grief stricken husband, also five brothers and three sisters, some of whom were unable to be present at the funeral.

Mrs. Lauman was a woman who had always enjoyed good health and strength and vitality for many years. Death came to her not through the natural process of disease, sickness and suffering, but suddenly by accident. She was a woman of sweet, quiet Christian character. She was received into membership of the Baptist church of Wayne several years ago. Her life has reflected honor to the name of her Lord and Savior since. In her heart there dwelt a Christian love and faith, which were revealed in her words and deeds. She studied her Bible and loved its teachings. She was religious without making much public display of it; she was quiet and patient and loving and true.

Her realm of greatest service and influence was in her home. She lost her life in the lives of her children, seeking first their welfare, then her own. Their joy was her joy, their success was her success, their sorrows and troubles were hers, too.

The benediction of her quiet, useful life, rests especially therefore upon the children and her intimate acquaintances and its quality and spirit makes a continual appeal to them. The memory of its loving service, will make it easier for them to do right and harder to do wrong. Her beautiful life will "call them to brighter worlds and lead the way." With the inspired writer we say, in closing this obituary, "Blessed are the dead, who die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; for their works follow with them."

The funeral was attended by many who desired to show sympathy for the afflicted family and pay tribute to her memory.

Many relatives came from out-of-town to mourn at her grave, among them being three brothers, Almon Pond, Fairview, S. D.; Hobert of North Dakota and H. Pond of Marcus, Iowa; Robt. Jones and wife, uncle and aunt, of Pingar, Iowa; D. Siefken, R. Siefken and wife and Ellen Siefken of Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munger and Wm. Munger of Pilger.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to publicly thank the many neighbors and friends for the many acts of kindness and sympathy extended to us in this the hour of our great affliction and sorrow.

Rick Lauman and family.

A Good Road Idea

S. D. Relyea makes a good suggestion for road improvement. It is that our automobilists attach a road drag to their cars when joy riding and thus make the streets of Wayne the best of any in Nebraska. This would help them to keep within the speed limit and do a really good work while at play. Will some one loan Mr. Relyea a drag, not too heavy as his car is not of the highest power.

With this suggestion it might be well to make a note of the information which came at the same time, that August Hanson, who has a good farm five miles north of Wayne is said to have the best kept roads about his place of any farm in the county, and he uses his car almost exclusively for motor power in dragging the roads which belong to his place. This proves that the suggestion made by Mr. Relyea is practical. Early in the spring J. M. Roberts reported that he had used his car for power in dragging the private road leading into his home on the Clark ranch with good success, but we do not know that he has continued the work.

The farmers of Thurston county appear to have a growing interest in the work of the county demonstrator which they engaged last spring. James F. Coupe, who was engaged, conducts an interesting department in the Times at Walthill, and the demonstrations are attracting much attention. The work of testing to see what may be most profitably grown on the different soils of the county and the best method of marketing the crop are two very important questions with which to deal.

Commercial Club Meeting

At the executive committee meeting Tuesday evening there were committee reports from numerous committees named by the club at a previous meeting. Sixteen new names were added to the club list, and more are promised for next meeting. There should be more—many more—in our opinion. The circle should be enlarged. A commercial club in a community like this should have on its roster not only the business and professional men of the town, but also those of the country tributary to Wayne. The farmer and stock grower should be as much interested in the development of this community as the merchant, and he is whether he knows it or not. But, of course, this is only a matter of opinion, and has no value except as it finds favor with, and meets approval of others.

At the Tuesday evening meeting the committee on road improvement reported the engagement of a man and team to work when needed. And the work is being done. Arrangements were started which will result in some new territory being taken in.

The matter of better sanitary conditions in some parts of the place were considered, and the question of automobile speeding within the city limits were under consideration, and there is a sentiment favoring a more rigid law enforcement as to speed and lights, etc., before some one is hurt. A committee was named to go out after some new enterprises for Wayne. There is to be another meeting of the committee next Tuesday evening to take up some unfinished matters and adjust them. One question is the matter of co-operating with the old settlers in their annual picnic and securing an exhibition of the bird men.

Tennis News

The home tennis tournament for the Bankers cup, which is emblematic of the city championship in singles is now on. There are 20 entries in this event and some lively matches are looked for. - J. H. Pile drew a bye.

All contestants should see their opponents and get busy at once as it is desired that the tournament be finished by July 10th. Please do your part. COMMITTEE.

Hagland—Englert

Wednesday, June 25, 1913, at the Baptist parsonage, by Rev. B. P. Richardson, Mr. Elmer Hagland and Miss Kathryn Englert were married. The young folks departed on the afternoon train for the west and will visit Denver, Colorado Springs and other points of interest in the "Centennial State," after which they will be at home on the groom's farm six miles east of Wayne. The groom is a prosperous farmer of this county and the bride one of the successful teachers. The Democrat joins their many friends in wishing them well.

Addition To Sale Pavilion

The Wayne Stock Sales Pavilion company has purchased from the old Speed association the barn which they erected on the old fair grounds a number of years ago and the building is being placed on the pavilion lot south of the shed containing the stalls and pens. This will give the pavilion people ample room for a large number of more stock entries. At some of the sales last winter there was not nearly room enough to house all of the stock offered, and it had to be left outside until taken to the ring.

Mrs. L. M. Owen Entertains

Last week many lady friends of Wayne and vicinity received the following unique invitations:

Dere Frend:— All the laydes here about air gon' to convene and jine in a partie up to my house on the afternoon of Wednesday, June 25, at 2:30 p. m.

I hope you kin come. If so, please ware your sun bunnet, caliker dress and apern. We don't want any city fixin's if we kin help it.

It's goin' ter be a gennywine country frolic. Your affectionate, Mrs. Lou Owen.

This union of the sunbonnet ladies of Wayne and the rural neighbors of Mrs. Owen was a most happy occasion.

One of the interesting features of the afternoon was a guessing contest. The ladies were asked to guess the number of grains of corn contained in a glass can. This was won by Mrs. Laughlin. The prize awarded was a real live spring chicken.

The large front lawn shaded by the house from the afternoon sun, tempted the ladies to outdoor sports. Two base ball teams were organized. Bases for a temporary diamond were marked by bean bags and—yes—they "played ball." Interesting features of the game were the brilliant pitching of Mrs. U. S. Conn, the "Kelly slide" by Mrs. Lackey and unqualified success of Mrs. Kohl as catcher. Umpire, Mrs. James Britton declared the playing to be the most scientific and up-to-date she had witnessed this season.

The ride out by automobile and the strenuous exercise made the delicious two-course luncheon doubly enjoyable.

Mrs. E. S. Blair sang "I Stood on the Bridge at Midnight" in a most charming manner. Out of town guests were Mrs. C. A. Strong of Pine Grove, California, and Mrs. J. J. Ryan of Sioux City. The guests departed about six o'clock, indicating their hearty appreciation of Mrs. Owen's idea so successfully carried out of a "gennywine country frolic."

Wayne Council Proceedings

(As Reported)

At a meeting of the mayor and council, according to a report to the Sioux City Tribune of June 21st., an ordinance was passed calling a special election for July 1, when the question of Sunday base ball will be voted upon. A resolution was passed prohibiting the advertising of anything objectional to any great number of people, upon any of the public grounds of the city. This action was taken following a protest from church and other organizations of the city against the use of base ball suits bearing upon the back a beer advertisement. The suits were furnished to the local team by a local saloon man and had upon the back the beer ad. A meeting of the base ball organization was held this morning and it was decided to remove the advertisement. It is said the church organizations will raise money to pay for the suits. According to the above, which was printed under a Wayne date line there are yet some people eligible to membership in "Teddy's Annanias club" or else entitled to a stall at Norfolk. Wayne people have had their little contest over Sunday base ball, and while the vote was favorable to the Sunday game there has been no Sunday ball here yet, and very little any other day.

New Bank For Winside

Frank Weible and son, Fred, returned from Lincoln Tuesday morning, where they completed making arrangements for the opening of a new bank, to be known as the Farmer's State Bank. Articles of Incorporation are being drawn up and a meeting will be held shortly for the election of officers. The bank will be open for business between the 1st and 10th of July. Fixtures and stationary will arrive in a few days. The new bank will occupy the front part of the Frank Weible General Merchandise store for a time.—Winside Tribune.

Shut Up

The merchants of Wayne will close their stores at noon on the day of July 4th, that all may properly celebrate where best suits them. All will take due notice and buy accordingly, before too late. By Order of Committee.

Off to the War Again

Friday a special train will leave Omaha bearing 160 veterans of the Civil war now living in Nebraska, who took part in that little skirmish at Gettysburg fifty years ago. This is to be a picnic—fifty years ago it was no picnic. Below we give the names of those reported from this corner of the state, and who are known here:

Burlington Cunningham, Bloomfield; James Jeffries, Oakdale; James Wylant, Dixon; J. T. Boar, Coleridge; W. Burge, Pilger; Robert Sneath, Wisner; Day Beck, with, Henry Beasham, Neligh; David Blesh, Oakdale; N. N. Gillette, Creighton; El. Hooker, Hooper; James Mitchell, Stanton.

The Democrat wishes all of these soldier men the time of their lives. The survivors of two mighty armies meeting on the field of their most deadly battle half a century after the event is something very unusual in the history of this old world. It is estimated that there will be 40,000 old soldiers from the two armies at this great reunion, but not all those who attend took part in this great combat.

"Sweet Alice Ben Bolt"

The local talent engaged in this little operetta which was presented at the opera house Monday evening acquitted themselves with credit considering that they were given but two or three rehearsals—but the audience was not very numerous. The Commercial club, in whose name it was given, did not appear to know that they were being thus honored, and were not active in filling the cash drawer in the box office. In fact, a large number of Wayne people are weary of having some one come in here and draft people for a "home talent" entertainment in the name of some worthy enterprise, working under a contract which gives the promoter the big end of the profits, and this fact was in evidence Monday evening. The club realized about $12 and the promoter of the play said that she lacked a little of paying her expenses while engaged in the work, instead of making $75 or $80 as she expected to do.

Last evening Mrs. Frank H. Wilson of Winside entertained in honor of Miss Rachael Andreen of Lexington, Mo., at the home of Mrs. Hamer F. Wilson. Bridge Whist was played, the guests occupying six tables. Mrs. Harry Fisher and Miss Andreen were awarded prizes. Miss Florence Berry and Eva Mellor presided at the punch bowl. Dainty refreshment were served at an appropriate hour.

W. R. Gillett left this morning on a tour of inspection in the northwest part of the state.

Would Be Kidnapper Jailed

Following a rather dramatic episode at Wakefield in which a would be kidnapper, a distraught mother, an officer with a revolver and an angry mob figured conspicuously, Moses Llywellyn is confined in the county jail under a $500 peace bond which he is not able to furnish and where he will probably remain until the first day of the fall term of district court.

Moses Llywellyn, whose Biblical cognomen seems to have been incompetent to save him from the way of the transgressor, first came into the lime light about a month ago, when, on complaint of his wife, he was arrested at Randolph and put under bonds to keep the peace. He was brought to the county seat and locked up in jail, but last Friday, no one appearing to prosecute him, he was released.

In the meantime, his wife was preparing to leave Randolph with the five children, the custody of whom had been given her by the court, and, when she had gone as far as Wakefield, she was overtaken by the man who attempted to kidnap two of the children. The mother complained to the authorities at Wakefield, and as soon as the matter became known, an angry mob gathered and would probably have lynched the would be kidnapper, had not cooler heads interfered.

Fortunately, County Attorney P. F. O'Gara arrived at this interesting juncture, and, at the point of a revolver, put Mr. Llywellyn on board the Hartington bound train and brought him back to the county jail. The wife followed later and filed a complaint against him and the court put him under a $500 peace bond with the requirement that he furnish two responsible sureties. Not being able to meet this condition, the prisoner remains in the county jail awaiting trial.

It developed in court that this unfortunate couple had never been legally married. The man is a suspicious looking and acting individual, but the woman appeared to be a person of some gentility and education.—Hartington Herald.

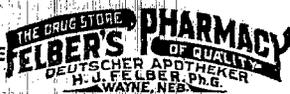

On Tuesday evening the vocal students of Professor Abernathy of Sioux City gave a recital at the home of Mrs. Ed A. Johnson. Besides the students, numbering nine, about 35 guests were invited. Excellent vocal music was rendered by each pupil and at the close of the program Prof. Abernathy graciously favored the audience with a vocal solo. Misses Florence Berry and Izetta Johnson presided at the punch bowl. Miss Nellie Baker of Carroll was the out of town pupil present. After the program a social hour was enjoyed and the guests left feeling that they had spent an evening of rare enjoyment.

At high noon today at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. Thomas Rawlings, Miss Sarah M. Herrington and Mr. Erwin A. Froyd were married by Rev. H. H. Bowen of Daytona Beach, Fla., the impressive Episcopal ring ceremony being used. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white crepe-de-meteor made en traine and carried a bouquet of bride's roses with a shower of lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Edna Froyd, sister of the groom, Miss Stella Butler of Arion, Iowa, and Miss Hazel Williams of Ponca, all of whom wore gowns of pink silk. The groom was attended by his uncle, Mr. E. E. Collins of Hartington, immediately preceding the bridal march Miss Hazel Adair of Sioux City sang "I Know a Lovely Garden" by Hartlett and the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin was sung by a chorus of fourteen young ladies. The house was made beautiful with palms, ferns and cut flowers and a soft pink light was shed throughout the rooms by means of dainty pink lanterns. Following congratulations an elaborate two course luncheon as served to a large number of relatives and friends. Many beautiful and costly gifts were on display in an upstairs room. The bride and groom have grown up in Wakefield and are highly esteemed by all. Both are graduates of our high school and also of the state university. They will live in Galva, Ill., where the groom is resident engineer in charge of a grade reduction on the main line of the Burlington.

Hoskins News

(From the Headlight)

Miss Mabel Longnecker of Albion came Friday for an extended visit at the E. G. Evans home north of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Wichert and son and Thomas Evans and wife of Norfolk were guests at the Potal home east of town Sunday afternoon.

Word was received here last week that a baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leslie of Iowa. Mrs. Leslie was formerly Miss Emma Wegner and was principal of our public school here two years ago.

Miss Ruth Rohrke entertained fourteen guests about the age of fourteen in honor of her fourteenth birthday Tuesday afternoon from 2 till five o'clock. The time was spent in social games and music and at 3:30 refreshments were served. All the guests reported a most enjoyable afternoon before leaving.

The sad news of Miss Lillian Leslie formerly of this place but now living near Olewain, Iowa, was received here the first of the week. She was going out to the barn with a revolver to kill a cat which was catching chickens, and in some manner she fell and the gun was discharged. The bullet went just below the stomach and came out at the tenth rib. She is still living and the attending doctor stated that chances are for her recovery. Her many friends are wishing for the above statement to be true.

New City Boiler Here

This morning's freight train set out the car containing the new boiler ordered for the city light and pump station, and the work of installing is to begin forthwith, and it is probable that within a month there will be boiler power plenty for all needs here. The work of rebuilding the smaller of the old boilers is nearing completion.

Wm. House was at Foster and Pierce on business this week.

Mrs. Mary Bannister left here Wednesday evening for Gordon to visit a daughter at that place for a time.

The operetta at the opera house Monday evening is said to be one of much merit. Home talent, too, for the base ball fund.

Simon Goeman has purchased of other heirs their equity in the livery barn on 1st street, subject to the approval of the court.

T. T. Williams of Lincoln has been visiting his brother, Dr. Williams here and a brother at Randolph before moving to Little Rock, Ark., where he will make his home soon.

Wm. Moratz and family have moved to Norfolk where he has purchased a pool hall of which he took possession last week. They have been residents of Wayne a little more than a year.

A rain is asked for most earnestly by one and all. Corn is making most satisfactory progress and the weed killing is easy. Pastures, meadows and small grain will be benefited by rain, is the general verdict. Of the numerous showers Sunday evening none reached Wayne and immediate vicinity, but showers were not far away in every direction.

Where a Rainbow Touches the Earth. In every country in the world rainbow folklore declares that some object of value may be found where the ends of the beautiful arch touch the earth. In Suabia the ends are said to rest on bowls of gold; in Hungary, that cups of silver will be found at the spot where they come in contact with the earth. In Switzerland it is said that a shoe cast over the rainbow will come to the ground on the other side filled to overflowing with gold. In Bosnia it is said that if iron or other base metal happens to be at the spot where the bow touches the ground it will be instantly transformed to pure gold. In many parts of Germany, Poland, Russia, Belgium and Holland it is said to be a golden key that may be found at "the end of the bow." In Portugal and Spain they speak of the "silver hen" having her nest where the bow rests, and in Norway it comes to the ground at a spot where a golden bowl and a silver spoon are hidden. In many of the chief European countries it is said that water touched by the rainbow will cure fits and insanity.

He Paid for the Boots.

According to an old French tale, a number of shoemakers argue the question, Which one of them is the most meekly submissive to his wife? To the one who is least so the host offers to give the best pair of boots in his shop. If any one claims the boots and fails to prove his claim he must pay double price for them. The boots are claimed by a man who declares that he is not afraid of his wife. The man who offered the prize is somewhat taken aback by the man's confident manner, but he determines not to let his boots go without an attempt to save them. "The boots are stiff, I think," he said. "Take this grease with you to soften them, but put it inside your waistcoat, so that my wife may not see it." "Oh, no," was the reply, and the grease was hastily pushed away. "No; my wife would be frightful mad if I should grease my waistcoat." Then the other promptly decided that he must pay double price for the boots.

Her Eight Daily Meals.

Somerset, in England, is rich in names for the intercalated meal. In "Red Letter Days" Mrs. Andrew Crosse gives a delectable sketch of her old nurse, a Somersetshire woman, "who lived to be nearly a hundred. She used to say that folks should take their meals regular. All her life she had eaten a dew bit and breakfast, a stay-bit and dinner, a mornmet and crummet and a bit after supper—eight meals in all."

Moisture of the Eye.

The moisture of the eye is genuine solvent. Many persons have gone to bed troubled with a foreign substance in the eye and have waxed in the morning to find it gone. In many cases of this kind the foreign matter has been dissolved by the moisture of the eye.

Not What She Meant.

"I think the baby has your hair, ma'am," said the nurse girl, looking pleasantly at her mistress. "Gracious!" exclaimed the lady, glancing up from her novel. "Run into the nursery and take it away from him. What will that child do next?"

MRS. LAUMAN INSTANTLY KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

While Returning From Sioux City With Wife and Daughters, Rick Lauman's Auto Turns Over Crushing Mrs. Lauman to Death

Early Friday morning the citizens of Wayne and vicinity were shocked by the news of a terrible accident of the evening before, which resulted in the instant death of Mrs. Rick Lauman. Mr. Lauman, wife and two daughters, Mrs. F. A. Nance and Miss Bessie, and Paul Mildner had gone to Sioux City, that day, and left there about eight o'clock in the evening to drive to their home three miles east of Wayne. Coming out of Homer they started on the wrong road which took them into a stretch of hilly road, and while coming down a steep hill with a sharp curve at the foot of the decline, the brakes failed to work properly, and, in an attempt to make the curve at too high a rate of speed the car struck loose dirt at the edge of the road, skidded and turned over at the roadside, pinning Mrs. Lauman beneath the car with the steering wheel at her back, crushing her instantly. Mr. Lauman was also caught beneath the car and held until it could be raised, but was not seriously injured. The three occupants of the rear seat were thrown clear of the car, and escaped with some bruises of minor importance.

Of the life history of this excellent woman whom all so deeply mourn, the pastor of the Baptist church where the funeral was held, gives the following:

Mrs. Elizabeth Lauman was born near Milwaukee, Wis., September 27, 1865, and met her death between Emerson and Sioux City, Thursday evening, June 19, 1913, being aged 47 years, 8 months and 23 days.

Her mother, Mrs. Pond, died when her daughter was but six years of age and thus early her life was deprived of the greatest help a girl has, that of a mother. When seven years old her father and family came to Clay county, Iowa, and soon moved to Sioux Rapids, the same state. September 4, 1883, she was married to Mr. Rick Lauman and after two years the couple moved to Wayne county, Nebr., where they lived until her death. Into this home were born five children, all of whom are living and are present today. The oldest child, Mrs. J. E. Sweet, resides in Council Bluffs while the other children, Mrs. Ella Noakes, Mr. John Lauman, Mrs. Effie Nance and Miss Bessie Lauman, all live in the neighborhood of Wayne.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides the five children and her grief stricken husband, also five brothers and three sisters, some of whom were unable to be present at the funeral.

Mrs. Lauman was a woman who had always enjoyed good health and strength and vitality for many years. Death came to her not through the natural process of disease, sickness and suffering, but suddenly by accident. She was a woman of sweet, quiet Christian character. She was received into membership of the Baptist church of Wayne several years ago. Her life has reflected honor to the name of her Lord and Savior since. In her heart there dwelt a Christian love and faith, which were revealed in her words and deeds. She studied her Bible and loved its teachings. She was religious without making much public display of it; she was quiet and patient and loving and true.

Her realm of greatest service and influence was in her home. She lost her life in the lives of her children, seeking first their welfare, then her own. Their joy was her joy, their success was her success, their sorrows and troubles were hers, too.

The benediction of her quiet, useful life, rests especially therefore upon the children and her intimate acquaintances and its quality and spirit makes a continual appeal to them. The memory of its loving service, will make it easier for them to do right and harder to do wrong. Her beautiful life will "call them to brighter worlds and lead the way." With the inspired writer we say, in closing this obituary, "Blessed are the dead, who die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; for their works follow with them."

The funeral was attended by many who desired to show sympathy for the afflicted family and pay tribute to her memory.

Many relatives came from out-of-town to mourn at her grave, among them being three brothers, Almon Pond, Fairview, S. D.; Hobert of North Dakota and H. Pond of Marcus, Iowa; Robt. Jones and wife, uncle and aunt, of Pingar, Iowa; D. Siefken, R. Siefken and wife and Ellen Siefken of Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munger and Wm. Munger of Pilger.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to publicly thank the many neighbors and friends for the many acts of kindness and sympathy extended to us in this hour of our great affliction and sorrow.

Rick Lauman and family.

A Good Road Idea

S. D. Relyea makes a good suggestion for road improvement. It is that our automobilists attach a road drag to their cars when joy riding and thus make the streets of Wayne the best of any in Nebraska. This would help them to keep within the speed limit and do a really good work while at play. Will some one loan Mr. Relyea a drag, not too heavy as his car is not of the highest power.

With this suggestion it might be well to make a note of the information which came at the same time, that August Hanson, who has a good farm five miles north of Wayne is said to have the best kept roads about his place of any farm in the county, and he uses his car almost exclusively for motor power in dragging the roads which belong to his place. This proves that the suggestion made by Mr. Relyea is practical. Early in the spring J. M. Roberts reported that he had used his car for power in dragging the private road leading into his home on the Clark ranch with good success, but we do not know that he has continued the work.

The farmers of Thurston county appear to have a growing interest in the work of the county demonstrator which they engaged last spring. James F. Coupe, who was engaged, conducts an interesting department in the Times at Walthill, and the demonstrations are attracting much attention. The work of testing to see what may be most profitably grown on the different soils of the county and the best method of marketing the crop are two very important questions with which to deal.

Commercial Club Meeting

At the executive committee meeting Tuesday evening there were committee reports from numerous committees named by the club at a previous meeting. Sixteen new names were added to the club list, and more are promised for next meeting. There should be more—many more—in our opinion. The circle should be enlarged. A commercial club in a community like this should have on its roster not only the business and professional men of the town, but also those of the country tributary to Wayne. The farmer and stock grower should be as much interested in the development of this community as the merchant, and he is whether he knows it or not. But, of course, this is only a matter of opinion, and has no value except as it finds favor with, and meets approval of others.

At the Tuesday evening meeting the committee on road improvement reported the engagement of a man and team to work when needed. And the work is being done. Arrangements were started which will result in some new territory being taken in.

The matter of better sanitary conditions in some parts of the place were considered, and the question of automobile speeding within the city limits were under consideration, and there is a sentiment favoring a more rigid law enforcement as to speed and lights, etc., before some one is hurt. A committee was named to go out after some new enterprises for Wayne. There is to be another meeting of the committee next Tuesday evening to take up some unfinished matters and adjust them. One question is the matter of co-operating with the old settlers in their annual picnic and securing an exhibition of the bird men.

Hagland—Englert

Wednesday, June 25, 1913, at the Baptist parsonage, by Rev. B. P. Richardson, Mr. Elmer Hagland and Miss Kathryn Englert were married. The young folks departed on the afternoon train for the west and will visit Denver, Colorado Springs and other points of interest in the "Centennial State," after which they will be at home on the groom's farm six miles east of Wayne. The groom is a prosperous farmer of this county and the bride one of the successful teachers. The Democrat joins their many friends in wishing them well.

Addition To Sale Pavilion

The Wayne Stock Sales Pavilion company has purchased from the old Speed association the barn which they erected on the old fair grounds a number of years ago and the building is being placed on the pavilion lot south of the shed containing the stalls and pens. This will give the pavilion people ample room for a large number of more stock entries. At some of the sales last winter there was not nearly room enough to house all of the stock offered and it had to be left outside until taken to the ring.

Mrs. L. M. Owen Entertains

Last week many lady friends of Wayne and vicinity received the following unique invitations: Dere Friend:—

All the laydes here about air gon' to convene and jine in a partie up to my house on the afternoon of Wednesday, June 25, at 2:30 p. m.

I hope you kin come. If so, please ware your sun bunnit, caliker dress and apern.

We don't want any city axin' if we kin help it. It's goin' ter be a gennywine country frolic. Your affectionate, Mrs. Lou Owen.

This union of the sunbonnet ladies of Wayne and the rural neighbors of Mrs. Owen was a most happy occasion.

One of the interesting features of the afternoon was a guessing contest. The ladies were asked to guess the number of grains of corn contained in a glass can. This was won by Mrs. Laughlin. The prize awarded was a real live spring chicken.

The large front lawn shaded by the house from the afternoon sun, tempted the ladies to outdoor sports. Two base ball teams were organized. Bases for a temporary diamond were marked by bean bags and—yes—they "played ball."

Interesting features of the game were the brilliant pitching of Mrs. U. S. Conn, the "Kelly slide" by Mrs. Lackey and unqualified success of Mrs. Kohl as catcher. Umpire, Mrs. James Britton declared the playing to be the most scientific and up-to-date she had witnessed this season.

The ride out by automobile and the strenuous exercise made the delicious two-course luncheon doubly enjoyable.

Wayne Council Proceedings

(As Reported)

At a meeting of the mayor and council, according to a report to the Sioux City Tribune of June 21st., an ordinance was passed calling a special election for July 1, when the question of Sunday base ball will be voted upon. A resolution was passed prohibiting the advertising of anything objectionable to any great number of people, upon any of the public grounds of the city. This action was taken following a protest from church and other organizations of the city against the use of base ball suits bearing upon the back a beer advertisement. The suits were furnished to the local team by a local saloon man and had upon the back the beer ad. A meeting of the base ball organization was held this morning and it was decided to remove the advertisement. It is said the church organizations will raise money to pay for the suits. According to the above, which was printed under a Wayne date line there are yet some people eligible to membership in "Teddy's Annanias club" or else entitled to a stall at Norfolk. Wayne people have had their little contest over Sunday base ball, and while the vote was favorable to the Sunday game there has been no Sunday ball here yet, and very little any other day.

New Bank For Winside

Frank Weible and son, Fred, returned from Lincoln Tuesday morning, where they completed making arrangements for the opening of a new bank, to be known as the Farmer's State Bank. Articles of Incorporation are being drawn up and a meeting will be held shortly for the election of officers. The bank will be open for business between the 1st and 10th of July. Fixtures and stationary will arrive in a few days. The new bank will occupy the front part of the Frank Weible General Merchandise store for a time.—Winside Tribune.

Shut Up

The merchants of Wayne will close their stores at noon on the day of July 4th, that all may properly celebrate where best suits them. All will take due notice and buy accordingly, before too late. By Order of Committee.

Off to the War Again

Friday a special train will leave Omaha bearing 160 veterans of the Civil war now living in Nebraska, who took part in that little skirmish at Gettysburg fifty years ago. This is to be a picnic—fifty years ago it was no picnic. Below we give the names of those reported from this corner of the state, and who are known here:

Burlington Cunningham, Bloomfield; James Jeffries, Oakdale; James Wylant, Dixon; J. T. Boar, Coleridge; W. Burge, Pilger; Robert Sneath, Wisner; Day Beckwith, Henry Beasham, Neligh; David Blesh, Oakdale; N. N. Gillette, Creighton; E. L. Hooker, Hooper; James Mitchell, Stanton.

The Democrat wishes all of these soldier men the time of their lives. The survivors of two mighty armies meeting on the field of their most deadly battle half a century after the event is something very unusual in the history of this old world. It is estimated that there will be 40,000 old soldiers from the two armies at this great reunion, but not all those who attend took part in this great combat.

"Sweet Alice Ben Bol"

The local talent engaged in this little operetta which was presented at the opera house Monday evening acquitted themselves with credit considering that they were given but two or three rehearsals—but the audience was not very numerous. The Commercial club, in whose name it was given, did not appear to know that they were being thus honored, and were not active in filling the cash drawer in the box office. In fact, a large number of Wayne people are weary of having some one come in here and draft people for a "home talent" entertainment in the name of some worthy enterprise, working under a contract which gives the promoter the big end of the profits, and this fact was in evidence Monday evening. The club realized about $12 and the promoter of the play said that she lacked a little of paying her expenses while engaged in the work, instead of making $75 or $80 as she expected to do.

Last evening Mrs. Frank H. Wilson of Winside entertained in honor of Miss Rachael Andreen of Lexington, Mo., at the home of Mrs. Hamer F. Wilson. Bridge Whist was played, the guests occupying six tables. Mrs. Harry Fisher and Miss Andreen were awarded prizes. Miss Florence Berry and Eva Mellor presided at the punch bowl. Dainty refreshment were served at an appropriate hour.

W. R. Gillett left this morning on a tour of inspection in the northwest part of the state.

Would Be Kidnapper Jailed

Following a rather dramatic episode at Wakefield in which a would be kidnapper, a distraught mother, an officer with a revolver and an angry mob figured conspicuously, Moses Llywellyn is confined in the county jail under a $500 peace bond which he is not able to furnish and where he will probably remain until the first day of the fall term of district court.

Moses Llywellyn, whose Biblical cognomen seems to have been incompetent to save him from the way of the transgressor, first came into the lime light about a month ago, when, on complaint of his wife, he was arrested at Randolph and put under bonds to keep the peace. He was brought to the county seat and locked up in jail, but last Friday, no one appearing to prosecute him, he was released.

In the meantime, his wife was preparing to leave Randolph with the five children, the custody of whom had been given her by the court, and, when she had gone as far as Wakefield, she was overtaken by the man who attempted to kidnap two of the children. The mother complained to the authorities at Wakefield, and as soon as the matter became known, an angry mob gathered and would probably have lynched the would be kidnapper, had not cooler heads interfered.

Fortunately, County Attorney P. P. O'Gara arrived at this interesting juncture, and, at the point of a revolver, put Mr. Llywellyn on board the Hartington bound train and brought him back to the county jail. The wife followed later and filed a complaint against him and the court put him under a $500 peace bond with the requirement that he furnish two responsible sureties. Not being able to meet this condition, the prisoner remains in the county jail awaiting trial.

It developed in court that this unfortunate couple had never been legally married. The man is a suspicious looking and acting individual, but the woman appeared to be a person of some gentility and education.—Hartington Herald.

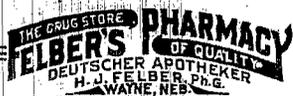

On Tuesday evening the vocal students of Professor Abernathy of Sioux City gave a recital at the home of Mrs. Ed A. Johnson. Besides the students, numbering nine, about 35 guests were invited. Excellent vocal music was rendered by each pupil and at the close of the program Prof. Abernathy graciously favored the audience with a vocal solo. Misses Florence Berry and Izetta Johnson presided at the punch bowl. Miss Nellie Baker of Carroll was the out of town pupil present. After the program a social hour was enjoyed and the guests left feeling that they had spent an evening of rare enjoyment.

Dr. Stueck, an Alaskan missionary has planted the flag of his country and the cross of his religion on the summit of Mt. McKinley in Alaska. His observations show that himself and companions attained a height of 20,500 feet. They were three weeks making the climb, and claim to have reached the summit of the highest peak of this mountain, and were favored with good weather while at the summit so that they could look down on the several other peaks of this great mountain.

The wind work still continues regarding the extension of the Omaha road from Wynot to Niobrara. Some are for it and some oppose it. It would give Sioux City a short route into the Rosebud country. The country through which it would have to build is said to be very rough, so it is possible that nothing would be gained by the new road on freight expense, for it is frequently less expensive to take freight 100 miles around a hill over level road than 35 miles over the hill.

"I have four or five bull snakes on my farm that I know of," said one of The Eagle's farmer readers. "I consider them valuable property, and won't allow them to be killed. The bull snake keeps down the rattlesnakes and live on field mice and gophers. He is a blessing to the farmer. Yet just because he is a snake the hired man will stop his work, leave his team where it may run away, and spend a lot of time killing the friend of all field crops. Whenever I see one of these great big golden backed snakes in front of my mower or disc I stop my team and hurry him out of danger. The gopher is threatening the alfalfa fields of Nebraska now because the farmers have allowed the bull snake to be killed on account of the general prejudice against all reptiles. It has been a costly mistake.—North Nebraska Eagle.

NEW TRUST ORGANIZING

Congressman Tavenner Tells of Organization and Growth of Mail Order Combine. It Must Be Killed

Washington, June 24.—So silently and insidiously that the great public is as yet almost unaware of its presence, a new trust is extending its tentacles out over the country. It is the mail order trust. Already its strangling grip is tightening about the million small town and country merchants who are the backbone of national prosperity.

The mail order trust has capitalized women and child labor. It has capitalized prison labor. It has capitalized misfortune. It has capitalized vice. It has turned all these things into dollars—dollars which should have found their way into the tills of the country merchant, instead of flowing into the trusts Wall street hoard.

One mail order house recently increased its capital stock from $500,000 to $40,000,000. A new $10,000,000 merger of mail order houses has been formed. Wall street financiers, including the Morgan banking firm, has had charge of both these financial operations. Still another mail order house, with 63 acres of floor space, made a net profit of $17,000,000 last year.

It is evident that the greedy eyes of the great mail order financiers are turned upon the entire retail business of the United States outside of the great cities. It is also plain that a gigantic trust is rapidly forming. The small retail merchant is facing ruin. That the grip of the octopus is already being felt is shown by the population statistics. Nearly 7,000 small towns lost population in the census of 1910. It is declared that something must be done by immediate legislation, or the parcel post will not be the complete blessing it ought to be. It is asserted the solution of the problem will be in the form of a heavy tax on mail order business. This tax would, it is contended, tend to stop the expansion of the mail business, and to reduce its present formidable size. The money thus collected would be spent for road building or other local improvements in the districts which contributed to the mail order houses.

The small retail merchant is the prop of distributed prosperity, and the growth of the mail order trust serves no common good. Here is a principle which works out: "If you spend your money where you get it, you will be able to get it where you spend it."

Through a systematic advertising campaign, the mail order capitalists have sought to poison the public mind against the small merchant. The people have been told that there are too many merchants, and that their retail methods are wasteful and costly. But I would point out the other side of the question.

The Chicago vice investigation showed that 50,000 women employees of mail order houses are existing on starvation wages, many of them being driven by poverty to lives of shame. The mail order houses are the great distributors of prison-made goods. They are the exploiters of misfortune, buying much of their goods at bankrupt's sales.

But who makes an interest in local affairs and has a hand in the upbuilding of communities? Whose goods are assessed for the taxes to pay for local improvement? Who, when the crops have failed or the strike is on, and there is no cash to send away, extends the credit which enables the community to live? The local merchant and not the Wall street owned mail order house.

We want cheapness, a lower cost of living. That is what we are all working for. But we do not want it at the expense of the women wage slaves of Chicago and of the million little merchants of this country.

S. Taylor has installed an engine with which to water his berry patch. He was a little late making this improvement, but with it he is bringing on a crop of the later berries, but the first pickings of what should have been the first pickings, were not very much in evidence. Next season he will be ready to keep the berries wet from start to finish. The Democrat predicts that the investment made in engine and pipe for this water will prove a good one.

Mrs. Henry Whitney of Battle Creek was here last week, a guest at the homes of Mesdames W. A. Hiscox and G. J. Hess. Misses Winifred Reeves and Ruth Wright from the same place were also guests in this city.

Omaha Tennis Tournament

The acceptance of Gustave Touchard of New York to compete in the national clay tennis championships, which will be held in Omaha July 21 to 27 adds greater interest to the events, which have already attracted national attention. Besides Touchard, tennis champions from all parts of the United States will come to Nebraska. The championships will be held on the courts of the Omaha Field Club, which are conceded to be the best clay courts in the world. The fact that three of the four championships have been held here proves the worth of the Omaha courts. Nebraska will be strongly represented in the play. Competitors from Nebraska cities are assured from Newman Grove, Albion, Madison, Hartington, Walthill, Allen, Norfolk, Wayne, Pender, Wakefield, Alliance, Arapahoe, Plattsmouth, Grand Island, Fremont and Lincoln. The postoffice has received instruction (a) to the new C. O. D., feature of the parcels post law, which is effective July 1st.

Charges on packages will be collected from addresses on and after that date, provided the amount on a single parcel does not exceed $100. The fee for collection will be 10 cent in parcel post stamps to be affixed by the sender. This fee will also insure the package against loss to the actual value of the contents not exceeding $50.

The sender will get a receipt showing the amount collected, the amount also appearing on tag attached to the package. The addressee will receipt for the package on the tag, which will serve as an application for a money order.

C. O. D. parcels may be accepted for mailing by rural carriers and will be delivered by city and rural carriers. Such packages will not be mailable either to the Phillipines or to the canal zone.

Talk about the Montgomery Ward proposition—a "Chicago" Doctor has them faded a mile—and then some. He—Dr. Edmondson—has been operating in this vicinity. As an idea of the magnitude of his business, it might be stated that he presented $3200 worth of notes to a Pender bank for discount. He got $150 from one prominent Cleveland township farmer—in advance—mind you to cure them of stomach trouble.—Pender Times.

WHEN FARMERS GET TOGETHER

Some Observations on Co-operation Near Home and Elsewhere

Written for Nebraska Farm Journal by Frank G. Odell, secretary Nebraska Rural Life Commission.

Denmark is a little country smaller than the state of Nebraska. Its soil originally was poor. There is little land in Nebraska so poor as that of Denmark was to begin with. The farmers of Denmark were burdened with all the difficulties incident to a semi-feudal system of land ownership and tenancy. They had at the beginning absolutely no community spirit in the business sense. They were serfs in all but name. The very existence of the nation depended on the farmers getting together. Because of their necessities they got together and now they furnish an object lesson to the world.

All great successes are due to co-operation. In no phase of life is this more significant than in agriculture, but men rarely combine their efforts, either in the accepted business sense or in the wider sense of co-operation until pressure forces them to it. Get that into your consciousness. It is worth remembering.

The farmers of Denmark got together. Like all co-operators, they began in a small way with the local community. While they achieved social success, they soon discovered it was a long road to the market and that there were many men between them and the consumer, all exacting a profit in the handling of their products. They saw that great success depended on getting together in a national sense. The farmers of Denmark now are among the most prosperous in the world. They also are among the most progressive. They ship their butter to England, sell it through their own stores, under a guaranteed brand, and control the English butter market. The fertility stays on the land and the soil is increasing in productive power.

Then they got into the bacon business. Englishmen are strong for English products. There is no race of men who are so strong in their pride of race as the English. They have been specialists in the swine game since Gurth the swineherd had his argument with Wamba the jester in the days of Richard, Couer de Lion. It took a powerful object lesson to break the English prejudice for English pork but Denmark did it by appealing to the English appetite.

Danish bacon is not cheaper than English bacon. On the contrary, it brings a higher price in the English market than the British product. Why?

The Danes did little specializing for themselves through their co-operative system of production and selling. They put the best bacon in the world on the London market in quality which is always uniform, cured to suit Johnny Bull and sold by the organization of the producers directly to the consumer. They overcame British prejudice and won. Now they control the bacon trade of England as they control the butter trade. Incidentally, they have brought about a revolution in English farming and Hodge, the English farmer, is selling his whole milk to the city customer by parcel post instead of selling butter against the invincible competition of the Danes. That means another type of dairy cattle on English farms.

Hodge no longer raises bacon hogs as he once did. He grows a special type of swine and sells young pigs for roasting to the city market. These changes in type of livestock on English farms have made necessary a radical change in general agricultural practice in Britain. All of which goes to prove that co-operation is far reaching farther than the local community; farther than the country in which it originates. Its influence extends to the ultimate market and affects the policies and the prosperity of farmer competitors wherever they may be.

And now for the lesson which I read in the agricultural history of the Danes:

I spent a most profitable day in May at the convention of the farmer grain dealers of Kansas at Larned. About 100 representatives of farmers' elevators were present in the first annual convention of that body. It struck me as somewhat odd that in so progressive a state as Kansas they should have arrived at the first annual co-operative convention only in the year of grace, 1913.

There are about 180 farmers' elevators in Kansas and they have their own troubles. They have to fight with the powerful combination of "line elevators" which for years has controlled the grain trade. They have to scrap with the railroads for elevator sites, side tracks and for cars. They have to deal with commission men at the terminals who are not always as scrupulous as they should be.

They have to watch inspections, shortages, mixing of grain at the terminal and a score of other devious practices, all of which makes it a man's-size job to be the manager of a farmer's elevator. But they are willing.

I discovered one striking illustration. A farmers' elevator, organized in Kansas six years ago with $10,000 capital, has paid 300 per cent in dividends in five years. It has more than 100 per cent surplus now on hand, from which it is declaring a stock dividend of 100 per cent to the original stock holders, doubling their original investment. That's about 80 per cent per annum. Pretty good testimony for the co-operative movement, don't you think?

But the odd thing about the Kansas situation is that there are but 30 of the farmers elevators in the state association out of the 180 in the state. And I wondered why these sensible men who had seen the advantage of getting together in their own communities cannot see the advantage of getting together all over the state for their mutual benefit.

The same situation, relatively, prevails throughout grain growing territory. In Nebraska about one-half of the co-operative elevators are members of the state association, though that organization has been demonstrating its benefits to farmers for 20 years. And for this, as for all evidences of human imperfection, there is a reason; I discovered some of the reasons at Larned:

A farmer is just like any other man. He is chockful of prejudice. He ought to get some of it out of his system. You must have some measure of faith in men to succeed. There are other men in your neighborhood who are just as honest and just as intelligent as you. Get together and talk it over a little.

I discovered at Larned that some of the farmers' elevators in Kansas have men on their boards of directors who are tight-wads. They are not willing to pay enough salary to the manager of the elevator to get a competent man. Some of them want to butt into the manager's job occasionally and run things themselves. A manager who is not big enough to run your elevator is not the manager you want. And a director who is not big enough around the hatband to see this truth is not a good man to have on the board of directors. Such a man would not last 30 minutes on the directorate of a bank or a railroad.

I learned also that a lot of the local elevator associations are staying out of the state association, because it costs $10 a year for the local elevator to join the state association. A co-operative association which cannot see more than $10 worth of benefit a year in co-operation for an entire community of farmers needs fixing somewhere.

But notwithstanding these inherent difficulties the co-operative movement is daily justifying itself and saving millions yearly to the farmers of the grainbelt. Just how fast it will grow depends on such men as read this little story and determine they will not voluntarily class themselves with the narrow obstructionists.

The National Association of Managers of Co-operative Elevators holds its third annual convention in Milwaukee, June 26-28. After this article is printed there will be just about time to call your board of directors together and send your elevator manager to this convention. He has earned a vacation if he is a good manager. If he isn't a good manager you ought to fire him and get a good one. It will pay any elevator association to send its manager to this convention for the increased business efficiency he may obtain by contract with the men who are making good. And it would be worth while for the directors to attend also. Get together and talk it over.

And it will pay you to have your elevator company join your state association. The bankers all are in their state association. Likewise the grain dealers, the lumbermen, the merchants, the barbers and the bootblacks. When we farmers get hep to the value of organized effort we will cut some ice every month in the year.

FRIDAY, JUNE THIRTEENTH

Did You See Repeated Mention of the Hoodoo Day and the Hoodoo Date in Dailies? Here is What it Meant.

BY DAVID GIBSON
Editor of Bank Note Magazine in Sioux City News.

A money panic, carefully planned by Wall street bankers and beset which 1893 or 1907 would have seemed prosperous times, has been nipped in the bud.

The panic, well under way, stopped when Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, acting with full approval of President Wilson, announced that the United States treasury was prepared to loan country banks $500,000,000 to paralyze the Wall street gamblers.

The money trust inquiry probably will be reopened. And there will be no feast on the carcasses of dead business.

There is positively no doubt that Wall street deliberately mapped out a panic to throw some of its enemies into bankruptcy and to give tariff and currency reform a black eye.

For three months paid representatives of New York banks have been traveling around the country, spreading alarm and dropping hints to companions in luxurious Pullmans.

Trust owned newspapers have been following them up and seconding the motion by announcing a coming shortage of money and a country-wide stagnation of business to result. All this time, prosperity was on a sounder basis than ever before. Crops, steel production and exports had broken all records. The stock market refused to respond.

Wall street sulked—then planned a panic. It sent forth its agents to scare business men.

Then it began to hoard gold until the money market was almost cornered.

New York banks announced that money was scarce at the same time their vaults were bulging. One of the loudest of the howlers had reduced its loans and increased its deposits by weakening securities, until it had increased its stock of money nearly $20,000,000.

The bankers began to refuse loans. Their allies in other big cities followed them. There was a shortage of credit, but no shortage of money.

Country banks and business concerns all over the country couldn't get money. A great western railroad with over 7,000 miles of tracks was thrown into bankruptcy because Wall street refused to loan it $3,500,000—a loan that this road had often floated without difficulty.

Such was the situation on last Friday the thirteenth.

It threatened to be a second Black Friday on the New York stock exchange.

A panic started. The stock market was almost in chaos; many good securities had already reached lower prices than during the panic of 1907.

Three weeks of this would mean bread lines, factories closing down and banks suspending payment of deposits.

Then came the official announcement that the bankers no longer had to look to Wall street. The United States treasury would, if necessary, issue up to $500,000,000 in emergency currency under the Aldrich-Vreeland act to meet any crisis.

This meant a federal war against Wall street.

There was no need of the money after it was offered. One threat was enough.

New York banks suddenly "found" millions, and dumped them on the loan market. The high call loan rate, dropping from 3 to 1½ per cent, was cut in two in a few hours.

One New York bank reduced its rates for time money, offered to lend freely of its surplus reserve of $28,000,000, and in one day bought $7,000,000 worth of commercial paper; the day before this bank had been the loudest calamity howler about a money shortage.

Weaving a Tangled Web

Protected manufacturers of Pennsylvania and elsewhere are trying to make congress believe that the tariff has enabled and induced them to pay their workers good wages.

At the same time they are sending delegations to Harrisburg and other state capitals to tell the legislature that enforcement of proposed factory legislation will compel them to close, since they are unable to pay such wages as these laws are designed to force them to pay, a barely living wage, as a rule.

Are they lying to Congress, to the state legislature, or to both?

With all of the care exercised to get a sugar bill that will make free sugar the makers of the new bill came very near overlooking a joker which would have placed a duty of 2 cents a pound on refined sugar. Thus is the 'invisible government' ever at work to save to itself the power to rob the people.

The United States are (or is) losing population to Canada at a rapid rate, which causes us to wonder why? It certainly cannot be the climate. Is it the system of taxation, direct and indirect? That might have something to do with it. There are not many poor people who like to be burdened with taxes while those able to pay escape.

At last the great state of New York—the Empire State—has a governor. For years past there has been a tool in the governor's chair in that state doing the bidding of the boss of one or the other of the great political parties. It is to be hoped that the people will stand by the man who is now standing by them. Hail to the governor.

This George W. Perkins, who on the witness stand admitted in a modest way which he has that he thought his was the head out of which first came the idea of the International Harvester combination. Yes, and he was the big end of the Roosevelt boom a year ago, and a president with such a power behind him before election and owning him and the office after election would have a vast deal of regard for the rights of the people if they went contrary to the combine.

The Senate lobby charges made by President Wilson have been one of the moves which has done much to show to the people the hand of the 'Invisible Government' which has been in charge of the affairs of this nation to a greater or less extent for the past fifty years. The hand of the sugar combine, so long invisible is shown to have been at the helm much of the time steering the legislative ship into troubled waters. When all of the truth is known there is no doubt but that the hand of the oil trust will be discovered, apparently pouring oil on the turbulent tide, but in reality making smooth sailing only for themselves and their fellow pirates.

The Shame of It

See that Morse, the fellow who was pardoned out of the federal prison at Atlanta that he might die in peace, has just been elected to the presidency of a big Hudson river steamer line. Meantime many a poor fellow truly sick in spirit and body languishes in the same prison for some offense ridiculously trivial as compared with Morse's speculation. Justice can make out to see a little when one has sufficient lucra to secure an oculist for her.—Humphrey Democrat.

Fatten Your Farm

A contributor to the current issue of Farm and Fireside writes: "A tendency exists among many farmers to burn up all corn-stalks, loose straw, clover-chaff and superfluous roughage about the place. But it is too expensive. Every time an acre of stalks is burned twenty-one pounds of nitrogen goes into the air and will cost you $3.50 to buy back again. Wheat or oat straw from an acre contains about twelve to fourteen pounds of nitrogen and cloverchaff three times this amount. One can easily figure from these deductions what a reckless loss to the farm is a fire in the chaff-pile or stalk-field. The cut-away and disk harrows will chop these bulky materials up ready for the plow where they can be turned under. If you want to fatten the old farm stuff it with organic matter

NEBRASKA NEWS

Legislative Expenses Total High for 1913.

HOUSE SPENDS $104,509.

Senate Overruns Legal Allowance of Employees, While House Stays Under the Limit—Railway Commission Hears Telephone Protest.

Lincoln, June 25.—The late state senate with a legal allowance of slightly over half the number of employees allowed the house, spent 70 per cent of the amount expended by the lower body for payment of its help, according to a legislative summary just prepared by the state auditing department. The house, with an allowance of forty-nine employees, spent $21,358 for salaries, while the senate with a legal allowance of forty-nine employees spent $21,505. The latter amount of course included payment to about sixty-nine employees which the senate took unto itself during the session.

The total expense of the senate was $50,673, while the total expense of the house was $104,509. Of the difference of nearly $54,000 between the two bodies, the sum of $41,300 represented salaries and mileage of the sixty-seven members which the house possessed in excess of the senate membership.

Incidental expenses of the senate with its thirty-three members footed up to $7,338, while the house with its 100 members expended $11,629 under this item.

Telephone Hearing. Consolidation of the competing telephone exchanges at Straung and Grafton under the conduct of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company provided the railway commission with an hour's work in hearing the details of the transaction. A different problem than has been presented in other cases was brought to the officials in both of these cases. The people asked, for relief from double service, according to the commissioners, and were also willing, according to their petition, to pay slightly increased rates in order to have their prayer granted. The reduced rates brought about by the competition were boosted enough to guarantee a safe return, but with the understanding that the patrons could protest at any time they saw in either rate or service delinquencies.

Will Start Suit. Cass county stockholders of the one-time Woodmen Fire Insurance company of this city are preparing to institute suits against the directors of the company for recovery of profits which they allege were not equitably divided when the company reinsured with the Fidelity Phoenix company. Attorney Robinson of Plattsmouth was in the city in consultation with the state insurance officials regarding the matter. Former Governor George L. Sheldon, former Mayor Armstrong of Lincoln and Colonel C. J. Bills of this city were numbered in the directorate list of the company.

New Insurance Company. The Prairie Life Insurance company of Omaha made application to the state insurance department for a permit to do business in this state. The company is capitalized at $500,000 and is offered by M. M. Heptonstall, president and treasurer, and F. R. Jones, secretary. Thomas W. Blackburn is counsel for the new company. The insurance authorities will pass upon the company within a short time.

Grosvenor Heads Commission. Members of the new tax commission met in the office of the governor and organized by electing J. H. Grosvenor of Aurora, chairman; C. W. Sears of Omaha, vice chairman, and E. B. Gaddis of Lincoln, secretary. The meeting was in the nature of an executive session and matters of general importance relative to organization and starting the work were discussed. Anthea Visits Capitol. For the purpose of collecting data reported to the state railway commission by the public service corporations that operate in Omaha, County Auditor George Anthea spent a couple of hours in consultation with the experts of the state body. The results gleaned by him are to be used in the assessment returns of the present year.

Harman Appoints Hansen. Because of the press of duties that kept him here, Food Commissioner Harman delegated his predecessor, Neils P. Hansen, to represent the department at the State Pharmaceutical association, which is to hold its sessions at Norfolk.

Estelle Suit Appealed. An appeal from the district court of Dodge county was made by the Omaha Daily News. The case is one in which Judge Lee S. Estelle of Omaha had secured a judgment of $25,000 against the paper for slander.

Phone Co. Objects to Assessment. York, Neb., June 25.—The Lincoln Telegraph and Telephone company has given notice of an appeal from the board of equalization, which raises its assessed valuation from $153,522.75 to $285,284.50, to the district court, which convenes Nov. 10.

Senator Mallery Weds Miss Willis. Sidney, Neb., June 25.—Senator Earl D. Mallery of Alliance and Miss Kathryn Willis were married at the residence of the bride's parents at Dalton, Neb. Rev. Mr. Hagerman of the Presbyterian church officiated.

WHEAT IS IN GOOD SHAPE

Superintendent Kelso of Kansas and Nebraska Lines Finds It So.

Omaha, June 25. Superintendent Kelso of the Nebraska and Kansas lines of the Rock Island, with headquarters at Fairbury, is not inclined to believe that small grain has been materially damaged by the warm and dry weather of the last ten days, excepting perhaps in western Kansas. He has just completed a trip over all of the lines west of Omaha and, summing up the situation, says: "In my judgment, take the entire country from Omaha to Phillipsburg, Kan., for 245 miles, conditions are quite satisfactory. I think it is safe to place the average yield at eighteen bushels per acre for wheat. West of Phillipsburg the crop will be short. Over the country from Phillipsburg east to Fairbury the yield may not exceed fifteen bushels per acre. However, east of Fairbury and all through southern Nebraska conditions are very much better and many of the fields will run as high as twenty-five bushels."

INDIAN SEEKS RELEASE

Writ of Habeas Corpus Asked for by John Walker.

Lincoln, June 25.—Thomas Walker, a Thurston county Indian, has applied to the state supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus, releasing him from the state penitentiary, where he contends that he is being unlawfully held. Walker was given a commutation of his thirty-year sentence last December by Governor Aldrich. One of the conditions of the act was that his entire period of service in the pen would amount to ten years. Now Walker alleges that he is entitled to his good time and that the former executive exceeded his constitutional authority when he provided such conditions in the commutation order. Walker was convicted on the charge of second degree murder. He is alleged to have killed another Indian with whom he had a quarrel over several ponies. He was received at the prison in April, 1906.

TRIES TO MURDER WIFE

Aged Pleasanton Man Then Cuts His Own Throat.

Kearney, Neb., June 24.—After attempting to murder his wife, because she would not tell him where she had put the pie that was left from dinner, Henry Peters, seventy-nine years, took his own life by cutting his throat at his home at Pleasanton.

Mrs. Peters, who is seventy-seven years old, was knitting in the dining room with her back to the pantry when Peters asked her if there was any pie left from dinner, to which he received a negative answer, which evidently angered the old man. Grabbing a knife from the pantry, he stepped behind his wife and slashed her throat. She ran to a neighbor's to summon a doctor, who arrived in time to stop the flow of blood. The town marshal was called and upon entering the house found Peters dead, his throat having been badly lacerated by a dull pocket knife. Mrs. Peter will live.

PROGRESSIVE WOODMEN

Perfect State Organization to Be Known as Progressives.

Omaha, June 25.—Progressives, as they choose to call themselves, representing several state camps of the Modern Woodmen of America, have perfected a new organization, to be known as a progressive body. Officers were elected as follows: President, F. C. Nicholson of Nebraska City; secretary, W. D. Wood of Omaha; treasurer, C. H. Puls of Omaha.

To Talk Troubles.

False tuberculosis tests on cattle shipped from Illinois into Nebraska and other western states will be the chief topic discussed by state veterinarians, who gather in Omaha, June 30 to July 2, for the sessions of the Missouri Valley Veterinarians' association. Missouri, Iowa, South Dakota and Kansas stockmen have had as much trouble as this state in this connection and it is planned to take some steps at that gathering looking to a concerted settlement of the difficulty.

More Petitions Received.

Two more petitions asking for a referendum on the Nebraska City armory bill were received by the secretary of state. The names now in number sixty and Deputy Secretary of State Marsh is beginning to wonder if the enemies of the measure, which was enacted at the late session, expect him to keep close accounting of the petitions until the required 26,000 names are filed with the office.

To Improve Capitol.

Bids for the $20,000 improvements to be made in the fourth story of the state capitol building are to be submitted Thursday. Bids will also be asked for at the same time for the work of installing an elevator in the building. The latter improvement has been lacking for many years and its absence is commented upon daily by people who visit the building for the first time.

More Disturbers Held in Omaha Jail.

Omaha, June 24.—A dozen more men alleged to be members of the Industrial Workers of the World, were jailed by the police for making incendiary speeches and otherwise disturbing the peace at Jefferson square, a small downtown park. A large crowd witnessed the arrests, but although threats were made no effort was made to interfere with the police.

"The Wonderful Statute" It is a beautiful piece of work. It is a work of love. The young artist hopes to win a wife with it. His sweetheart's father tells him if he succeeds in producing a statue equal to the sculptors of Greece, he can have his daughter and twenty thousand dollars. The statute is pronounced perfect. It is accidentally broken. His sweetheart herself poses as the statue, and, by a clever trick, induces her father to give his consent to the marriage to the young artist. The picture you will see at the Crystal Friday night, tells all about it and shows Miss Lillian Walker in a very classical and attractive role. T. A. Ladder of Praise—Miss Britell's Class. Song—Mrs. Rennick's Class. Song—Miss Birtell's Class. Exercise—"Little Flowers by little folks. Song—Miss Jewell's Class.

An offering amounting to $15 was taken for Student Aid. This sum goes into the fund known as Children's Fund which is loaned to our young people who are preparing for life's work. This fund keeps growing with each year's offering and with the payment of loans so that last year 2108 students were aided out of it to the extent of $55.86 each on an average thus enabling many to acquire an educational fitting for life's work.

At the evening service Mrs. Phillips gave a talk on the preparation for teaching and Mr. Hendrickson gave a talk on the preparation for Law. Dr. Blair had a paper prepared for the Medical profession but was called away, professionally, and did not get to read it. The pastor closed the services with an appeal for thorough preparation for life's work. At this service the Epworth League cabinet-elect were installed into office as follows: President, Forrest Hughes; first vice-president, Miss Elsie Merriman; second vice-president, Carlyle Campbell; third vice, Hattie Crockett; fourth vice, Bessie Marsteller; secretary, Sidney Johnson; treasurer, Frank Roe; pianist, Ensign Young; chorister, Prof. Alexander. This cabinet we trust, shall lead on our young people. The retiring and incoming cabinets met at the parsonage last Friday evening for a review of last year's work and to plan for the coming year. Much of interest was discussed and acted upon and after a social half hour we separated, feeling in the deep of the soul a better bunch of young people we never saw and the prospects for a good year in the work never better. Next Sunday evening the Epworth League service will be led by Miss Bessie Marsteller. Subject "The Price of Power." After next Sunday the league will hold its meetings on Friday nights for two months. Let all our young people rally for this summer's work.

The Discovery of God" will be the subject of the pastor's sermon next Sunday morning. Because of its far-reaching consequences this is man's supreme discovery. Come, hear about it Sunday morning.

Sunday evening at eight o'clock we have planned for a joint meeting of the B. Y. P. U., and the preaching service. There will be no 7 o'clock meeting. The young people will have charge of the service. The topic for discussion will be, "Our Nation's Glories and Perils." Mr. Shirley Sprague will be the leader. Prof. Davies will have charge of the music. Opportunity will be given for all to take part. At the close of the service, the newly elected officers of the society will be presented to the audience.

Our prayer meeting Wednesday evening will be our monthly covenant meeting. It is our best meeting of the month.

On Saturday evening of this week the Ladies' Missionary society will serve ice cream and cake on the church lawn from 7 to 9:30. You will enjoy being present, we believe and the ladies will enjoy your presence too. Mr. Elmer Rogers preached at the Stamm school house last Sunday afternoon. They report a splendid time. There will be no preaching there next Sunday. The entire church deeply sympathizes with Mr. Lauman and family over their loss of wife and mother. We commend them all to our Heavenly Father's love and care.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church
(Rev. Blessing, Pastor.)

Sunday school at 10 o'clock. The attendance last Sunday was very good, but we can make it much better. Do not feel that the Sunday school is not important, for it is very important. If you want a church you must have a Sunday school.

The subject of the sermon for next Sunday morning will be "Playing the Man." There are a great many people in this world who believe that being honest and fair with their fellow men, does not pay. They do not think that honesty is the best policy, thus they are continually seeking to get the better of those with whom they deal. But there comes a time in their lives when they are brought to realize that dishonesty works not for their good but rather for their sorrow. At same time they will be brought face to face with a problem in life, which they will not be able to solve by their dishonest policy. This is what happened to the irreligious man Joab and at that time he was made to see that it is much better to play the man, for he says "Be of good courage and let us play the man." The first Sunday in July we will hold our regular mid-summer communion. Each member should make a special effort to be present at that time, for it is right that we should partake of the Lord's supper each quarter for spiritual strength and help.

The Ladies' Aid society will not meet until the first Thursday after July the fourth.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who desire to worship with us.

Why Hogs Root.

Some people hesitate to pasture alfalfa because they fear the hogs will do destructive rooting in the field. Except after a shower, when the hogs like to play in the upper half inch or so of moist soil, hogs will do no destructive work in an alfalfa field, provided they have plenty of range and are supplied with the proper mineral elements of their food. A hog roots deep in the soil for the purpose of getting certain elements that are not supplied in his regular ration. If these elements are supplied in abundance and kept constantly in supply, no danger to the alfalfa field should be apprehended from this source. Every grower of hogs keep constantly before his hogs a mixture designed to furnish these missing food elements. One of the best, and at the same time least expensive, is had by mixing with a bushel of ashes four quarts of salt and a couple of quarts of coppers.

If a little hypo-sulphite of soda should be added, it will aid digestion, but is not actually necessary.

A hog that has free access to such a mixture as this provided he has plenty of range will not do destructive rooting in the field.—20th Century Farmer.

The Iowa legislature last year put a krimp in the bridge graft of the county commissioners and the bridge companies. The state engineers who are now out going over the state examining bridge contracts find plenty of evidence of looseness in the bridge letting. One county where the commissioners said they had bought material for three bridges, the experts found iron on hand for twenty bridges and no money to put them up. But the balmy days for the bridge trust are over in Iowa and their days are numbered in this state.

THE GINSENG INDUSTRY

A Wayne Citizen Has Ginseng Garden Demonstrating that this Valuable Plant Thrives Here. Eight Beds of Different Ages.

When the Democrat last week suggested the idea of intensive farming as one means of making much wealth for this county and spoke of growing bulbs and other plants of high market value we did not think that such a field was cultivated here at all, and were therefore surprised when it was suggested that we visit the ginseng patch of H. J. Luders, which is thriving within three blocks of this office.

About five years ago Mr. Luders commenced the work of experimenting with ginseng in a modest way, as he did not care to go to great expense until he had tried it out. He now has eight beds, each 8x12 feet in size, all within a shaded enclosure, 16x40 feet. This fall will be the first crop of roots he will harvest, and he thinks it a conservative estimate to say that he will have at least $75 worth of roots. Besides this he estimates his seed crop will be worth half as much as the root crop and now that he has the younger plants coming on he says it will be easy to continue to secure an annual income of more than $100 from this little patch 16x40 feet.

His total outlay thus far in labor and material for shading, estimates at $75. To show the rapidity with which these plants increase in bearing he stated that his first crop of seed was but seven seeds—the year following about 150, and last year 18,000, which will be worth for planting this fall from $1.75 to $2.25 per 1,000. The present prospect is for at least 50,000 seed this season and from 12 to 15 pounds of dried root, which will bring at least $6 per pound. Mr. Luders is planning to enlarge his patch this fall, using the seed gathered last fall and now that he has a start it will be easy for him to add to the patch with but little expense. He paid at the rate of about $17 per pound for the seed he bought to start with.

There are well authenticated instances of this industry returning in five years a crop of roots valued at upwards of $20,000 per acre besides the seed gathered during the three years of seed bearing. At Wausau, Wisconsin, the roots from one third of an acre at the age of five years sold for $8,061. There is an extensive garden at LeRoy, New York, but there they had for a season or two some form of a blight to fight off. Also near Joplin, Missouri, is a great garden.

The plant is a native of this country, growing wild in the timbered lands of nearly all of the northern states east of the Missouri river. It will not thrive except in the shade. Its value as an article of commerce has greatly increased as the native supply was exhausted by the constant digging to supply the demands and extermination which followed the clearing of the great forests of the northeastern states. The "Seng" digger as the name was applied to people of the timbered country where the plant used to thrive who went out in the fall to dig the roots has almost ceased to be known, because of the practical disappearance of the wild plant. Those who have given the matter study claim that the demand far exceeds the supply and that the price has advanced from $1.50 or $2.00 per pound to from $6 to $7.

Thus one can see that farming 320 acres of land is not the only way to make a living from the soil—in fact it might be said to be one of the least profitable of occupations, investment considered. There is money to be made in cultivating certain plants which are classed as weeds by the farmers. Smartweed properly harvested and cured has a value on the market far greater than alfalfa, and it will grow as freely in many places as famous hay crop. Let us study our possibilities and profit by the study.

Stock Shipments

Tuesday there was quite a rain of stock out of Wayne. Messrs. Jas. Finn and L. D. Bruggeman had a mixed load for South Omaha, a sort of a feeder to see how the market is, and one or two other cars came down the branch. Eight cars were loaded here for the Omaha market; four by McEachen—all good ones; W. B. Gildersleeve sent in a car of fat ones; John Sals had two cars mixed cattle and hogs and Jas. McIntosh a car of fat hogs. There have been shipments nearly every day for the week and had they been grouped in one item it would make an item of considerable importance.

The Wayne Chautauqua Program
August 24 to 30

First Day, Morning—Services will be held in the various churches.

Afternoon—The chautauqua opens. A grand, sacred concert by the Strollers Male Quartet. Chancellor Bradford was a preacher before he became a church educator. Today he ranks as one of the great men of his church.

Evening—Music by the Strollers. And they're gone.

Dr. Mitchell takes the man Job as an example for his 20th Century in business, in politics and in all the world's activities. He calls this address "Job, or the World's Ash Heap."

Second Day, Afternoon—A great event this afternoon for the real music lovers. The Chicago Artists. Mr. L. H. Weir, Field secretary of the American Playground and Recreation Association, that great institution of which Roosevelt is honorary president and Jacob Riis is honorary vice-president, will discuss the problem that is very close to the hearts of the mothers and fathers. He will talk about recreation and how to live.

Evening—The Artists. It is their full program.

A grand man who denounced his religion, gave up an inherited fortune and almost everything that was dear to him for the sake of the truth. Frank J. Cannon's father was second in authority in the Mormon church. Senator Cannon, the son, one of the greatest of its leaders. Today, in a kindly way he is telling of the failure of the Mormons to "keep faith with the people."

Third Day, Afternoon—Rogers & Grilley, two "old" favorites of the chautauqua. An entertainment and musical program combined.

Virginia Brooks, the leader of one of the greatest vice crusades of the century, will tell of her work in West Hammond.

Evening—A grand time with Rogers & Grilley. Harp solos and stories. A versatile, lively number.

Fourth Day, Afternoon—The Neapolitan Grand Opera Singers, headed by Mario and Trevette, the favorites of the 1912 chautauquas. An eight-piece orchestra and six Grand Opera stars from Naples.

Father Cronin believes that too little attention is paid to the selection of the things we read.

Evening—A grand concert-recital by the Neapolitans. Six great singers—a magnificent orchestra—a perfect evening of good music.

Fifth Day, Afternoon—A thirty-minute musical prelude by the Gretchen Myers Company, featuring Gretchen Myers, soprano; as well as Senor Carmen Fabrizio, violinist; from the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

This is a great business age. The man of the business affairs is the ruling giant of the period. Nels Darling is a business talk specialist who will interest women too.

Evening—Hear Gretchen Myers and Senor Fabrizio, violinist, in full program tonight.

The chautauqua is bringing a man all the way from Philadelphia to discuss the school question. Professor Lewis is principal of the William Penn High School in his home city and one of the most progressive school men of his day.

Sixth Day, Afternoon—We have about reached the climax in music. The sixth company comes this afternoon—the Symphony Four.

Sylvester Long is known to you. His lectures come in the class commonly called "inspirational." He has several themes—every one a masterpiece. This afternoon.

Evening—Music! Music!! Music!!! Symphony Four again.

Elias Day is generally regarded as the most finished artist in his line that has come into the chautauqua in recent years, and here is your chance to hear him.

Seventh Day, Afternoon—And now the last day. Today is your last chance to attend the chautauqua this year. The Italian Marine Band will play this afternoon.

Dr. William A. Colledge comes on this afternoon. He is a scholarly Scotchman who has traveled much, the editor-in-chief of an encyclopedia. Former head of the English department of Armour Institute.

Evening—The grand closing. A full concert by Signor Vinci and the Italian Marine Band. The big last night.

Longeor—Finkhouse

Thursday afternoon, June 19, 1913, the pastor of the M. E. church united in the holy bonds of matrimony Mr. Guy Longeor and Miss Sophie Finkhouse, both of Pilger. They will make their home at Winside for the present, near which place they will reside on a farm when spring comes.

Old papers for sale at this office.

Summer Diarrhea

June, July and August are the dreaded months for the babies. About one-half of the infant mortality occur during these months of bowel trouble and of this number nearly one-half are taken during the month of July. This is because we have a more continuous high temperature without the cooler nights and mornings. The chief factors are age, heat, improper feeding and unhygienic surroundings. The chief cause is the food, and the exciting cause of irritation from decomposition or fermentation of food left in the stomach or intestines. Every child needs plenty of fresh air, proper food (which also includes regularity in feeding) and cleanliness. The cities have Fresh Air camps, Seaside homes and Play Parks for their children. We can have an abundance of fresh air in our own yards. It is better to underfeed than to overfeed during the hot months. Be careful about giving the child under five years any of the fresh vegetables and fresh fruits, sparingly if at all. A daily sponge bath of soda water is not only cleaning and cooling, but helps to allay nervous excitement and restlessness as well. If the child shows signs of acute diarrhea it is best to consult a physician at once for time is valuable and a few hours lost may mean the child's life.

James Harmon went to Wausa Wednesday evening to visit a son who resides there.

Mrs. George Hardy went to Hartington Wednesday to visit her parents for a few days.

A. E. Laase went to Sioux City Wednesday to bring a car home with him and two if possible to get them.

Wm. Christensen and family left Wednesday for Harlan, Iowa, to visit home folks and be present at the marriage of Mrs. Christensen's sister which takes place there today.

George A. McEachen and wife went to Bancroft Wednesday to be present at the marriage of their friends, Miss Pearl Erwin of that place and Mr. Lawrence Seaton of Lincoln.

John Gaertner left Wayne Monday with a car of his belongings for his new home in Montana. His has long been a familiar figure in Wayne where he has served, the people well as a citizen and city and school official.

Park Shipley comes today from New London, Iowa, to visit at the home of his daughter, Mrs. T. B. Heckert. He is accompanied by his brother, Elmer Shipley of Ohio, who is visiting relatives in this state and Iowa.

W. P. Daugherty and wife left Wayne Wednesday for their old home at Griswold, Iowa. They have been residents of this place about one year, and now return to the place which was home to them for many years.

Some farmers are famous for grumbling. After complaining of the dry weather for a week we heard one complaining about the mud when he came to town after the rain Tuesday. Wonder why some people are never satisfied?

Carl Baker and family accompanied by his father and mother, Wendel Baker and wife, autoed to the home of his brother, William Baker, near Neligh Sunday. They report the young man and wife at Neligh well and happy, with good crop prospects.

Coleridge won a game of ball from Bloomfield Monday by a score of 4 to 1 which makes nine consecutive winnings for Coleridge. Looks as though Wayne was needed in the district with a team to stop the continuous round of victory for the Cedar county town.

Miss Ethel McGinty of Huron, South Dakota, stopped here to visit at the home of her uncle and aunt, J. H. Massie and wife, the first of the week while on her way home from Spaulding, where she has been attending the academy, and finished the course there.

A scissor grinder by the name of L. B. May lost his purse of $281 at Norfolk the other night. He forgot and left the money in the bed, and after he had been gone a while thought of it and rushed back, but the sheets had been taken to the laundry and no one had noticed the money. And the purse has not been discovered.

J. C. Ecker, who had been visiting his wife and children at this place for two or three weeks, left for Polson, Montana, Sunday where he expects to invest in some land. M. H. Boyle accompanied him to look over the country. In Mr. Boyle's absence, Mrs. N. B. Ecker will edit the Progress and look after the interests of the paper.—Estacada Progress.

W. S. Ridgell, who is chief deputy fire commissioner, wants all to be very careful about starting fires between now and the night of July 4th and at all other times. He wishes that we might have a sane fourth. He does not profess to believe that it is necessary to make a big noise with fireworks when our national birthday comes round. Just be glad that we are free from British rule, etc., to which we might add the sentiment of gladness that the trusts have not yet got the whole earth.

J. T. Leahy has traded his drug stock, fixtures and business to Dr. A. G. Adams, who took possession the first of the week, and announces his intention of continuing the business, placing a competent pharmacist in charge. We are glad to report that Mr. Leahy is not planning to leave Wayne, but will make this his headquarters while engaged in real estate business. He has had some interest in the real estate line for a time, and now that he is free from the other business proposes to devote his time all to the land business.

Prof. I. H. Britell gave the commencement address at Coleridge this spring, and so well did he please those who heard him that the M. E. pastor asked him to come and preach from his pulpit last Sunday, while he was away. This talk must have pleased, also, for on this trip he was engaged to again visit Coleridge and deliver a Fourth of July oration.

Postmaster McNeal went to Omaha the first of the week to participate in the republican love-feast when the bull moosers were invited to come right up and take a place on the mourners bench—which they did not do. Mr. McNeal says they had a most splendid time and that he met many old friends and enjoyed the outing very much. The ex-vice president made an excellent speech.

Rev. Swartz of Sioux City supplied the pulpit at the Carroll Baptist church last Sunday. In an interview while at the station, Rev. Swartz said he was pastor of the church here and preached at Carroll when there were but three Baptist families in that vicinity, and there is now but one of those people living at Carroll. He remembered Wayne better as a place about the size of the present town of Carroll.

Ralph Clark has purchased the X-Ray incubator factory building and storage sheds, and is moving his garage there, beginning today. This building and the adjoining sheds will give him some much needed room for his growing business, and will make for him when settled therein one of the largest and best-garage buildings in the state. He will have ample storage room for cars for winter overhauling and in a practically fireproof building.

Chris Thompson and Ralph Clark went to Omaha Tuesday and came home in a 1913 model Cartercar, of latest pattern and design, driven by a 40 horse power engine. On the way home they encountered plenty of mud, but that appeared to make no difference with the car. It came just the same. His car is equipped with self starter and all latest appliances and if Mr. Thompson is not proud when he steps into it it will not be because he has got a poor car.

The regular meeting of the Bible Circle on Tuesday was well attended. Mrs. Wm. Fisher was hostess. The lesson study conducted by Mrs. Scofield was a review of the studies for the quarter on "Joseph." It is hoped that an unusually large number will be present next week when the meeting is with Mrs. McConnell, one half mile east of the high school. Conveyance will be provided for those wishing to ride. Meet at the German store. Every one is invited.

The W. C. T. U., held a most interesting mothers' meeting at the home of Mrs. George Porter last Friday afternoon. Mrs. Philleo gave a talk on self control and self denial, suggesting that the earlier children are taught these fundamentals the better for themselves and society at large. We also had a recitation by Rose Blakemore and a reading by Iva Burris, a normal student and also by Mesdames Wright and Britton. There were ten members and eight visitors present. As usual, Mrs. Porter served refreshments. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Kiplinger, subject "Patriotism."—Com.

A rainfall of more than an inch here Tuesday morning made all feel good in this vicinity, and put a stop to the talk that the small grain was ruined. So near as we can find out by diligent enquiry, there has never been a brighter or better crop prospect in Wayne county at this season of the year. True the season appeared a little slow, but since it got started there has been no lost time. Winter wheat is fine, spring wheat the same, oats are liable to be short straw, but some one said when we get the big oat straw in this country we get less oats. Oats are not heavy producers here at best. Alfalfa is good, and first cutting had nice weather for harvesting. Other hay crops good, and pastures not overly large and rank, but plenty to keep cattle looking and doing well. Corn is almost perfect stand and no replanting that we have heard of which proves that it pays to properly care for the seed. The chance for killing weeds was never better, and corn is said to be much cleaner than usual. The Democrat has increasing faith in this part of Nebraska as a great garden spot, and believe that in the future as in the past we will 'always get a rain at least one day before we actually have to have it to save the crops.'

Mrs. Mary Sullivan came down from Bloomfield this morning to look after business affairs and visit a few of her many Wayne friends. She was for many years a resident of this county.

At the Fairbanks republican get-together banquet at Omaha where the ex-vice said he was willing to forgive all progressives who would come back, he is reported to have affirmed that the republican party is not dead, which will be good news to those who want to save funeral expenses. Here is the reported assertion: "I hold that a party born in the brain and consequence of Abraham Lincoln was not born to die." It is quite fair to assume that he said "conscience."

Burr Cunningham of Bloomfield was greeting friends at the station here Wednesday morning as he was starting for Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, to stand where he stood fifty years before, but this time not to face an enemy, but to greet those who were then arrayed against him as friends. Mr. Cunningham was a member of the 19th Indiana Infantry, and the regiment was of the first brigade of the first army corps and in the first days' fight. They captured some of the enemy under Archer that day, but in the afternoon, new troops drove the northern soldiers back, and Mr. Cunningham, who had been slightly wounded in the morning, was again shot, this time in the leg, which interfered with his retreating activities, and he was taken prisoner. But the Johnnies had their hands full without looking after wounded prisoners, and he took the field parole, which, with his wounds, kept him from the fight the other two days, and that may be the reason he was here this morning, for they shot very reckless there the last two days of that fight as they did on the first day. Mr. Cunningham says he is going this time to see if he can scrape up an acquaintance with the fellow who shot him in the leg.

J. H. Chichester, who went to Hot Springs, Arkansas, about two weeks ago, returned this morning. He is troubled with rheumatism and was not improved by the baths.

Mrs. Nettie Conover left this morning for Conrad, Iowa, in response to a message announcing the death of her brother which occurred at that place Wednesday morning.

Randolph could not carry on a celebration July 4th because they could not secure a ball team to meet the home team on that date. Seven thousand essays on "Know Omaha" were turned into the Bureau of Publicity by the school children of the city in the competition for the best essay on the advantages of the metropolis. Many of these essays contained much valuable information regarding the state and showed that the Omaha school children are beginning to realize the advantages of the state. The teaching of Nebraska and Omaha have been made part of the common school courses and shows that Omaha schools are progressive.

Senator Fred Volpp of Scribner is said to be a candidate for the nomination for governor a year hence. Other democratic possibilities are said to be Hon. Geo. W. Potts of Pawnee county, one of the leaders in the last session of the legislature; ex-speaker John Kuhl of Randolph and C. W. Pool, state labor commissioner. Governor Morehead's campaign statement that he would be a candidate for but a single term is doubtless the cause of so many possibilities at the present time.—Seward Independent-Democrat.

Our supreme court has rendered a decision on another important case. At district No. 34 in Dixon county the opposing factions have been skidding a schoolhouse about from one location to another in the district to the disturbance of the peace of the patrons, and it was finally sent back to the sight on which it was originally built on a mandamus order, and the supreme court has said that the mandamus was properly issued. If the mandamus had not had the o. k., of the court the school house would have been moved again, regardless of the justice of the case. But technically the school house is all right.

"Nebraska's editors are the liveliest bunch that I have seen in my travels through the country," said H. M. Armbricht, president of the Mobile, Ala., Chamber of Commerce. "Their scheme to get out a 'booster' edition for the state beats anything that I have heard of and I know that it will do a world of good. As soon as I get back to Mobile, I am going to suggest to the Alabama Press Association to follow the lead of the Nebraska association. Just think of 200,000 copies of papers going to all parts of the United States during the same week, all boosting Nebraska. Any state that has that sort of backing, can't help but go to the front. I understand now why Nebraska is being heard from all over the country.

The annual school meeting for the school districts of Nebraska will be held on the last Monday of June, which this year occurs on the 30th. It is important in every district that the interested patrons turn out to these meetings and see that the interests of the education of our children are protected and advanced. It is little short of criminal if we stay away and leave these vital matters in the hands of those who are simply endeavoring to hold down their taxes. The children of the present day are to be the home builders of tomorrow and it is these homes of which our nation is composed. If our children's education along right lines is neglected, then our nation will suffer. What are a few paltry dollars in tax compared to these more important matters.—Wynot Tribune.

Consolation for Pedestrians

The Spirit of Andy Jackson

(Columbus Telegram)

That good spirit appears to have come back to earth, and to be now abiding with Secretary McAdoo, the treasury member of President Wilson's cabinet.

Early in June the wolves on Wall street began to boldly boast that they had the stock market on the run, and that within thirty days money would be very scarce, and the whole financial fabric would be as panicky as in an October day under a republican administration. Then came this sterling Secretary McAdoo and said some things to the Wall street wolves. A friend of the editor of The Telegram was in Washington early in June, about the time when the Wall street crowd was in greatest klee over the impending financial panic. This friend was in touch with some persons very close to the secretary of the treasury, and from them he secured a very dramatic account of a meeting between the secretary and the Wall street crowd which was promoting the panic. We are not permitted to reproduce the exact conversation, but we are authorized to present the following as the substance of that conversation.

Secretary McAdoo—"I desire to say to you gentlemen of the street that this threat of creating a money panic has gone about far enough."

Spokesman for the Bears—"How can natural conditions be overcome? There is no way to avert the trend of natural conditions, and they all point to very low prices, and very dear money."

Secretary McAdoo—"If the country shall have a money panic at this time it will be an unnatural panic, brought about by you gentlemen and your associates. There is no sign of financial trouble on the sky, only as you people create the signs. I warn you that if you carry this thing a little farther I will protect the public at any cost. I will issue one hundred million dollars of emergency currency tomorrow, and deposit it in the national banks of the country, if you do not instantly quit this panic-making business. If that shall not be sufficient to restore confidence, and to give plenty of money to all legitimate channels of trade, then I will issue a half billion dollars of emergency money. My view of the situation makes it my duty to go to any extreme to protect legitimate trade from panics or panic scares engineered by money gamblers."

And that killed the panic then and there. The financial sky is now free from clouds, and the country may with confidence anticipate that the marvelous crop prospects, the healthy condition in manufacturing circles, together with the hand of an Andy Jackson at the helm of the national treasury, will soon carry the nation and its people to an era of general prosperity greater than they have hitherto enjoyed.

It is a glorious privilege to be a democrat in these days of Wilson, Bryan, McAdoo and Daniels.

Rates on Feeding Cattle

At a meeting of the Western Trunk Line Committee, held in Chicago, two weeks ago, the western roads agreed on a rule with reference to freight rates on feeding cattle, which will probably prove satisfactory. It will be remembered that feeding cattle, takes 75 per cent of the rate on fat cattle.

Some time since a number of the railroads put in a rule to the effect that the full fat cattle rate would be charged on feeding cattle, and the expense would be refunded on receipt of a statement signed by the shipper to the effect that the cattle were feeding cattle. Shippers were very much displeased over this rule, requiring, as it would, unnecessary annoyance and delay in securing the refund to which they should be entitled. Protests were made by the Corn Belt Meat Producers' Association, and at a meeting of the trunk line committee as noted, a change in the rule was made and feeding cattle will be billed at the fat cattle rate, but upon execution of a signed statement by the consignee that no portion of the stock is for immediate slaughter, the delivering agent shall correct the billing and collect charges on a basis of 75 per cent of the fat cattle. The consignee's certificate to be attached to the billing and reported to the accounting department. In other words, at the time of paying the freight the shipper will make the required statement and when this is made, he will pay only 75 per cent of the fat cattle rate. This rule should work smoothly. Feeders should see to it, however, that ignorant agents do not compel them to pay more than 75 per cent of the fat cattle rate on cattle shipped in for grazing or feeding.—Nebraska Journal Leader.

Order of Hearing on Original Probate of Will

The State of Nebraska, Wayne county, ss.

At a County Court, held at the County Court Room, in and for said county of Wayne, on the 17th day of June, 1913.

Present, James Britton, County Judge.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob M. Ross, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Mrs. Delilah Ross, praying that the instrument filed on the 2nd day of June, 1913, and purporting to be the last Will and Testament of said deceased, may be proved approved, probated, allowed and recorded as the last Will and Testament of said Jacob M. Ross, deceased, and that the execution of said instrument may be committed and that the administration of said Estate may be granted to Delilah Ross and Wilber L. Ross as executors; Ordered, That July 9, A. D., 1913, at 10 o'clock a. m., is assigned for hearing said petition, when all persons interested in said matter may appear at a County Court to be held in and for said County, and show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and that notice of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this order in the Nebraska Democrat, a weekly newspaper printed in said County, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing.

Minnesota and So. Dakota Farms

—Located in—

THE CORN BELT, THE GRAIN BELT
—AND THE RAIN BELT—

I have gone to considerable expense and trouble to get a list of real bargains in farm land, located where crops never fail. Land that is producing just as good crops as Wayne county land. Land that can be bought for one-third to one-half the price of Wayne Co. land. Southwestern Minnesota and Southeastern South Dakota is the place to invest your money. Take a trip with me and I Will Refund Your Money if conditions are not just as I represent.

Here Are A Few of the Special Bargains

I Have Listed

160 Acres—Nice level land; all broke and in crop this year; every foot can be farmed; 4 1/2 miles from a good town. A bargain at $42.50 per acre.

A Mother's Scare

By EDITH V. ROSS

Mrs. Jaeger was not an educated woman; but, her husband having many years before started in the soap boiling business and built up a large manufactory, the family were wealthy. Two children came to the Jaegers, a boy and a girl. Their parents gave them an excellent education, and they were both very fond of reading. There was a library in the place where they lived from which they constantly drew books. Tom Jaeger read a great many works of fiction that have long ago passed out of date and are only now read by those who value them chiefly for the pictures they give of a former time. His sister, Ruth, was more modern in her taste.

Mrs. Jaeger was an ambitious woman and desirous that both her children should marry well. That meant that she proposed to watch them to make sure that they made no unfortunate entanglements. One day, there was a ring at the telephone and Mr. Jaeger answered the call.

"Is Tom in?"

"Well, what is it?"

"Tell him Evelina's here."

Whoever was at the other end of the wire was evidently in a hurry, for the receiver was dropped, and Mrs. Jaeger was cut off from further inquiry.

"Who was Evelina?" Mrs. Jaeger was at once seized with a sudden terror. She had never heard her son speak of her, and this call for him to come and meet her boded trouble. She said nothing to him about the call—not she. If the young woman were bold enough to telephone to the house for him she could not help it, but unless he should reply to the call himself it would avail nothing. Nor would Mrs. Jaeger say anything about the matter if he were getting entangled with a girl she would not let him know that his secret was hers. Nothing would feed the flame of love so much as opposition.

But what was her consternation when a few days later there came another ring at the telephone, and Ruth was called for.

"What is it?" asked the mother.

"David Copperfield has just come in."

There was the same click that had followed the announcement that Evelina was waiting for Tom, indicating the same hurry. Was it hurry? Did not this go-between shut off the phone that there might be no opportunity for the person receiving the message to ask questions? David Copperfield?

Never had she heard her daughter mention any such person, and Ruth talked of all her friends freely. If the fond mother feared for her son she was in terror for her daughter. But Mrs. Jaeger treated the matter with the same caution she had practiced in the case of her son. She would set a watch on Ruth, but would not put her on her guard by telling her that she had stumbled upon this secret affair.

Mrs. Jaeger did not consider it practicable to shadow her son, but she had a maid whom she bribed to watch her daughter. Never did Ruth go out but this young woman found some errand to take her out also. One afternoon she came in from shadowing the young lady and reported that she had seen

Ruth go up the steps of the library at the same time with a young man whom she appeared to be much pleased to meet.

"Aha!" said Mrs. Jaeger. "It's the library where they meet. And they have been bounding me for a subscription to buy books. Their cozy alcoves are just the places for young people to meet and flirt."

Mrs. Jaeger was called up again, and her son was inquired for. This time it was: "Tell him I would like to see him about Evelina. There's another man waiting!"

Some one other than the speaker butted in, and the sentence was not finished. But Mrs. Jaeger had heard enough. Heaven grant that the other man would get the girl away from

Tom and he would be saved a misadventure.

The good lady's patience was beginning to wane. She was drifting toward a point where she would not be able longer to keep her knowledge a secret from her son and daughter.

Despite her watchfulness she could get no further information of either of those clandestine affairs. One afternoon her son and her daughter were talking together in her hearing.

"I'm through with David Copperfield," said Ruth.

"And I'm through with Evelina."

She was due at the library a week ago.

"I'm glad you two have got through with your beloveds. I've been worried to death about you. I've known all about these meetings at the librar-

ry. First I got a telephone message that Evelina was waiting for Tom there, and the next message was that this Mr. Copperfield was waiting for Ruth at the same place. Who are these persons anyway? I've never heard nothing about them before."

Tom and Ruth looked at each other and would have burst into a laugh had the speaker not been their own mother. As it was Tom said:

"Mother, Evelina is a novel written by a young girl about a hundred years ago. 'David Copperfield' is the name of one of Charles Dickens' books. The librarian, Sue Young, whenever a book

we want is out holds it for us when it comes in and notifies us over the telephone."

"Well, I am mightily relieved," responded the fond mother.

SAVED HIS CABLE TOLLS.

A Clever Ruse at Home Gave Him the Information He Wanted.

A wealthy merchant in Paris who does an extensive business with Japan was informed that a prominent firm in Yokohama had failed, but the name of the firm he could not learn. He could have learned the truth by cabling; but, to save expense, instead he went to a well known banker who had received the news and requested him to reveal the name of the firm.

"That's a very delicate thing to do," replied the banker, "for the news is not official, and if I gave you the name I might incur some responsibility."

The merchant argued, but in vain, and finally he made this proposition:

"I will give you," he said, "a list of ten firms in Yokohama, and I will ask you to look through it and then tell me, without mentioning any name, whether or not the name of the firm which has failed appears in it. Surely you will do that for me."

"Yes," said the banker, "for if I do not mention any name I cannot be held responsible in any way."

The list was made. The banker looked through it and as he handed it back to the merchant said, "The name of the merchant who has failed is there."

"Then I've lost heavily," replied the merchant, "for that is the firm with which I did business," showing him a name on the list.

"But how do you know that is the firm which has failed?" asked the banker in surprise.

"Very easily," replied the merchant. "Of the ten names on the list only one is genuine, that of the firm with which I did business. All the others are fictitious."

THE HUMAN FACTORY.

Its Machinery Develops With the Intellect That Directs It.

A human being is a kind of factory. The engine and the works and all the various machines are kept in the basement, and he sends down orders to them from time to time, and they do the work which has been conceived up in headquarters. He expects the works down below to keep on doing these things without his taking any particular notice of them, while he occupies his mind, as the competent head of a factory should, with the things that are new and different and special and that his mind alone can do; the things which, at least in their present initial formative or creative stage, no machines as yet have been developed to do and which can only be worked out by the man up in the headquarters himself, personally, by the handwork of his own thought.

The more a human being develops the more delicate, sensitive, strong and efficient, the more spirit informed, once for all, the machines in the basement are. As he grows the various subconscious arrangements for discriminating, assimilating, classifying material, for pumping up power, light and heat to headquarters, all of which can be turned on at will, grow more masterful every year. They are found all slaving away for him, dimly, down in the dark while he sleeps. They hand him up in his very dreams new and strange powers to live and to know with.—Gerald Stanley Lee in Atlantic Magazine.

The German Empire.

The German empire was constituted as at present Jan. 1, 1871. After preliminary negotiations during the course of the Franco-Prussian war the parliament of the north German confederation (with which Baden, Hesse-Darmstadt, Bavaria and Wurttemberg had recently allied themselves) in an address dated Dec. 10, 1870, requested King William of Prussia to become German emperor. All the sovereign princes of German states and the three free and Hanseatic towns having joined in offering the imperial crown, the proclamation of William I. as emperor was made at Versailles Jan. 18, 1871. The first reichstag was opened at Berlin March 25, and the imperial constitution was adopted April 14, 1871.—Philadelphia Press.

Not So Serious.

A doctor who had been summoned hastily alighted from his carriage to find a woman awaiting him on the doorstep, but without the anxious look he expected in the circumstances. "I understand," he said, "that your boy has swallowed a sovereign. Where is he?"

"Oh, sir," was the reply, "I'm glad to tell you we made a mistake! It wasn't a sovereign; it was only a half-penny!"—London Mail.

A Good Excuse.

"Now, then," demanded Luschman's wife the next morning, "what's your excuse for coming home in that condition last night?"

"Well, to tell you the truth, m' dear," he replied, "none of the hotels would take me in."—Philadelphia Press.

A Big Difference.

Their Love Letters

By EDITH V. ROSS

It is quite remarkable that so volatile a sensation as love can settle into so humdrum an affair as married life.

Nevertheless the two conditions are very different, and there is no doubt that love before marriage is like the wind playing upon the strings of a harp, now bringing forth low, sweet sounds and now the wildest strains. It is not only the greatness of these changes, but the suddenness. Take the case of Gus Pickering and Sara Travers for instance. They met at a bar dance and flew at each other as if drawn together by a pair of thousand volt magnets. Two days later they did not speak to each other when they met. In three more days they were engaged. Then they, living in different towns, began that voluminous letter writing which never has been and never can be equaled by any other correspondents than lovers. The letters that passed between them varied daily from one to five, the one representing ordinary conditions, the five when Gus wrote something Sara did not understand.

Alas, the day came when Gus perpetrated a joke in one of his letters that Sara did not understand, and she slapped his letter right back at him. Had he not been proud of his joke the affair might have passed like their thousand and one other spats. As it was, Gus wrote that since Sara had thought proper to return one of his letters she might return them all.

To this Sara replied that she was not so silly as to leave him in possession of her letters and if he wished his own the first thing for him to do was send every scrap she had ever written him. To this Gus replied that, since a great deal of gush had been written by both, perhaps it would be well for them to make an exchange. To this Sara agreed and said she awaited the return of his "gush" and would thereafter be careful how she wrote any more of it to any man.

A number of very short and pointed notes passed between them as to which should first return the other's letters, and no headway was made. Then Gus proposed that they should compromise the matter. "Certainly," was the reply. "I'm ready for a compromise." "Well," Gus answered, "what shall the compromise be?" "Why, you send back my letters, of course; then I'll send back yours."

About this time an acquaintance of Gus' was sued for breach of promise. This put an Eden into his head. He had been making love to a girl he didn't know much about and he would not be surprised if she should sue him for breach of promise. If she did all that "gush" he had written would be read in open court. He fancied the guffaws of the lawyers, the jury and the spectators. It is very easy for a man to work himself into a panic, especially if he feels that he is in the hands of a woman who is ready to turn upon him. Gus climbed from one improbability to another till he fancied the girl he had thought he loved wouldn't scruple to do anything for revenge. And how could any one take a greater revenge than by giving up to be read to the world such expressions as "my own sweetest, dearest, darling Puss!" Ugh! How could he have been guilty of such folly anyway?

He thought of a great many ways to get his letters into his own possession, but there was a weak spot in all of them. Finally he proposed an exchange through a mutual friend. "Very well," was the reply. "We'll both give them to Madge Walker. She'll give you yours and me mine." "I'm no such fool," he wrote, "as to place any confidence in one of the female sex. The go-between must be a man." This brought another check to the proceedings.

Finally it occurred to Gus that he might take Sara's letters to her and get his own in exchange. Singular, wasn't it, that he had not thought of this before? He wrote the girl he had wildly loved that he would take her letters to her and secure his own, after which there would be a parting between them that would last forever.

The spring was coming on, and the crocuses had already come up. The birds had begun to build their nests. These two haters who had been lovers agreed to meet in a wood back of the girl's home. Each appeared, bringing a huge bundle of letters. They met on a stile.

"Don't you think you owe me an apology?" said Sara.

"What for?"

"Why, that horrid thing you wrote me that caused all the trouble."

"What did I say?"

"Why, you said—you said that—I can't remember what you said."

Gus thought he saw a tear standing in her eye. Dropping his bundle, he went to her, put his arms about her and kissed her.

But the letters. So engrossed were they with their makeup that they went away and forgot both bundles. Then along came uncouth boys, who, seeing the packages, took out and read a few of the letters. Not finding them interesting, they played football with the packages for awhile, then left them on the ground. That night a great storm sprang up, and the love letters of Gus Pickering and Sara Travers were scattered all over the county. For months kind friends were returning them from every quarter, and every return was not only mortifying, but heartrending.

A Road Improvement

The business men and farmers of Wakefield vicinity have easily and quickly disposed of the sandy stretch of road lying one-half mile north and one-half mile east of town. Early Monday farmers with between 15 and 20 team and wagons and between 40 and 50 business men with their shovels, were ready for work. During the day 400 loads of clay were hauled and deposited on the aforesaid sandy road. The work was completed Wednesday, a half mile of heavy road being converted into a road as hard as rock. This greatly facilitates the hauling of heavy loads to and from town.

Gildersleeve two, Frank Erxleben and Fred Wolters each one, making eight cars. Mr. Berres and son went with the shipment.

Normal 5--Allen 1

The ball game between the Allen team and the Wayne Normal yesterday afternoon was a good game and several innings were played before anyone got over the home plate. But the Normal finally began to find the ball and when the end came the score was 5 to 1 in their favor.

George Shaw of Los Angeles, who formerly owned a farm just north of the college site, came this week to visit Wayne friends and relatives in the county. He left here more than twenty years ago, and had not visited here for the past five years. He spent a time in Iowa before coming here. Wednesday evening he went to Carroll to visit his daughter, Mrs. George Roe. He will again visit Wayne before going to his California home.

The Kaleidoscope.

Have you any idea what a wonderful thing a kaleidoscope really is? Did you ever catch yourself wondering how many different kinds of patterns could be formed by the little bits of colored glass which the instrument contains and which adjust themselves with such remarkable facility when the instrument is turned in the hand? A calculation has been made by a noted mathematician which we are sure will astonish readers. He shows that a kaleidoscope containing twelve bits of glass may be turned rapidly enough to make ten changes a minute day and night for ninety-one years and forty-nine days without exhausting the different combinations or the possibilities of getting a new figure on the next turn. If the number of pieces of glass be increased to twenty, a calculation shows that 462,880,809,576 years would be necessary to go through all of the changes of which it would be capable. The holder of the instrument turning all the while so as to get ten changes a minute and working day and night those millions of years.
