HOSKINS THE STORM CENTER

The Village Marshal and a Number of Deputies and Vigilance Committee Mix With Brueckner Bros. in Bloody Battle Friday.

OFFICIALS AND CITIZENS WIN

The ill-feeling which has been harbored at Hoskins for some time between two elements at that place broke out anew last Friday evening when Fred and Paul Brueckner, who had been drinking, precipitated a row with the town marshal, E. E. Dana, who had been engaged from Sioux City to fill that important office, as the job had proved too strenuous for local talent to cope with. The Brueckner boys have frequently been in trouble and always when intoxicated, and there was a cordial hatred between them and the authorities of the village. They are genial young fellows when sober and have many friends who stay with them whether sober or not, and they have figured as defendants in several cases before the county judge. The Norfolk News of Saturday gave a complete account of the affair, from which we glean the following:

"An exciting chase took place in the main street of the town, during which flame and lead belched forth from revolvers in the hands of the marshal and a business man. The bullets were aimed at Fred Brueckner and Paul Brueckner, two brothers, and one of the bullets dug its way through the fleshy part of Paul Brueckner's right thigh. Just before the two Brueckners took flight there had been a fierce fight on the sidewalk with them on one side and the marshal and his friends on the other side, during which both Brueckners had been badly beaten up with clubs.

In the pursuit that followed the fight, featured as it was by the crack of revolvers, Fred Brueckner was finally subdued by Marshal Dana with a blow that felled the man and left him unconscious on the ground. Paul, though wounded about the head and shot in the leg, climbed into his buggy for a dash out of town and probably would have gotten away but for the fact that his team turned too quickly, upsetting the buggy and throwing him to the ground. Both men were then lodged in jail.

Trouble had been brewing for a long time. The feud had been frequently discussed at the village board meetings. Marshal Dana was employed because the town board considered him big enough to put the Brueckners in jail if occasion arose. Several business men of the town had been carrying guns for some time anticipating an emergency and Marshal Dana had made six heavy police clubs from the but end of billiard cues, and had distributed the weapons among men of the town. An old fashioned vigilance committee was to have been organized that night, with the avowed object of maintaining order. The authorities say that the Brueckners had defied the local officers of the law for months and had intimated that they couldn't be put in jail.

Fred Brueckner is 28 years old and rents a farm east of Hoskins. Paul is a Rosebud homesteader of Mellette county, near White River, S. D., and is about 25. He lives at odd times with his relatives east of town.

The little town of Hoskins with a population of less than 300 was topsy turvy over the exciting affair last night. Brueckner relatives, including about a dozen men, heard of the battle over the telephone. They came to the town in a body and the Hoskins authorities feared a jail delivery. Sheriff Porter came into the village on the late train and a number of deputies were sworn in for the purpose of checking any further disturbance.

A local physician made an inventory of the damages to the prisoner and found that Fred Brueckner's wounds consisted of a cut below the eye, four scalp wounds, one of them an ugly one several inches in length, an injury to the left ankle and a lump on the jaw and many bruises which have swollen his face out of proportion. In all, Fred Brueckner has about six cuts about the head and face.

Paul Brueckner had a bullet in his right thigh, two or three bad scalp wounds, a sprained ankle and a number of bruises."

Fred was able to come to the county seat Tuesday where he gave bond for his appearance and was allowed to return home. Paul is not yet able to appear, and as he was not in good running order—nor of the kind who would sneak away, he has been allowed to return home while his injuries are being cared for.

These two young men have kept officials and citizens of Hoskins in terror for a long time, and the fact that the organization of a vigilance committee was deemed necessary by officers and citizens makes it evident that the boys had earned their bad name. Outside of Hoskins and when sober they were genial, likable fellows, and when they realize, as they must, that no man, be he ever so able or powerful, can long stand against law and order they have the qualities of good citizens, and the Democrat hopes to see them take a sensible view of the situation, realize that while they may make a reign of terror for a time in their little circle that it is only to their discredit, and that outside of that small sphere is the world that will not tolerate such lawlessness and that they have now the chance to desist while they do not have to answer for the life of a fellowman which might easily happen in the course they are following. In fact it is for them to say whether or not they will make good for themselves and others or whether they will continue their hopeless fight until they fill a prison cell or a dishonored grave.

If the boys will let their natural selves rule, the Democrat believes they will be worthy citizens—if not, they and their friends must feel the force of a power greater than individual prowess and the disgrace that comes to those who persist in defying the law of the land.

Ex-Sheriff Mears, who has had dealings with the boys, Sheriff Porter and Deputy Chas. Riese, who has been in charge of the prisoners for the past few days agree that it is the drink that is in them rather than the Brueckner boys that makes the trouble.

A Farmer's Union

O. E. Wood of Lincoln is announced to address a gathering of farmers at the Strahan school house three miles west on Wednesday evening the 22nd, to which there is a general invitation.

Our informant did not make the object of the meeting quite clear, but his understanding was that it was to urge the organization of the farmers with a view of making a shorter cut between producer and consumer. Such object is worthy if honest and conducted along right lines. There is a line "margin takers" between the producer of farm products and the consumer who is taking too much from both and it is well to look to this elimination or control—and it is well at the same time to look carefully at the substitute offered and not accept something that proves to be merely a change method of means of exchange without saving to either. The consumer should be as much a gainer as the producer in a system which will eventually stand and be a benefit to all.

Wayne Choral Union

On Tuesday evening the Wayne Choral Union started out with a very auspicious opening, there being about thirty members signing the constitution. This number will no doubt be doubled inside of the next month.

Prof. Abernathy of Sioux City has been secured as leader and from the preliminary work done the first evening the chorus are sure of some good results under his direction, he sure gets the work out of a chorus and it is a pleasure to work under him. The chorus will start out with "The Prodigal Son," something worth while. All those wishing to join the Choral Union are requested to meet at the M. E. church next Tuesday evening, October 21, at eight o'clock sharp.

C. A. BERRY WINS POSTOFFICE

Democratic Primary at Wayne for Postmaster Unclears a Lot of Democrats, Some Never Before Suspected.

If one thinks the democratic party is not growing, he should attend a democratic postoffice primary. Before the election 250 votes was thought to be the outside limit as to the number of democratic patrons of the office who would take a hand in the election, and no one said that 300 would vote. But when the list was made up there were 316 who had sworn allegiance to the progressive principles of true democracy and enrolled for the war. Those who have thus publicly acknowledged their allegiance to the party of Jefferson, Jackson, Wilson and some lesser characters who have been placed in the president's chair will find a welcome to the party.

When the votes were counted out the result was not different from expected by many who had watched the trend of public opinion except that a few, if any, expected that Mr. Berry would score so great a lead over his competitors. The vote stood, Berry 196; Marsteller 65, Reynolds, 45.

There is no doubt but that the question of open or closed primary had weight in influencing some to vote for Mr. Berry who had stood for a democratic election at all times on the theory that as the office belonged to the democrats, theirs was the right to make the selection.

Mr. Berry seemed surprised at his running qualities—in fact almost scared, we are told. He expresses his appreciation of the endorsement given him, and says it is now up to him to make good which he will endeavor to do.

County Court Doings

On the 13th the appraisalment of the estate of Andrew Linn was filled.

Fred Brueckner of Hoskins appeared the 14th and gave bond for appearance on the 23rd, and his case was continued until that date. The bond was fixed at $200.

County Judge Britton has not been real busy the past week. He issued marriage licenses to Perry C. Owen and Carrie B. Shamus and married them on Thursday the 9th of October, 1913.

S. Temple was charged with selling or giving cigarette papers to a minor, by marshal Geo. Miner, and pleading guilty the minimum fine of $50 and cost was assessed and paid. The Nebraska law is now very strict in this regard, and no one is allowed to sell or give away or even keep in their possession, the "makins'" as the cigarette paper is called by those who use it.

In the case of the State vs. A. C. Denny and S. B. Browder warrants were issued and the defendants were captured at Emerson and returned to Wayne in default of the payment of bond and livery hire. They came here soliciting, and were not successful so tried a short cut to new fields, according to reports, and now they are not boarding at the hotel Boyd, but have quarters at the Porter house on the hill.

Rev. Moehring Addresses School

On Wednesday morning Rev. Moehring of the German church, addressed the high school students and teachers on the theme "Encouraging You in Your Language Work." Mr. Moehring very ably pointed out the value of German, Latin and French in that they develop the mind and help one to understand his own languages, as well as have a so-called practical value. He pointed out that in the mastery of languages the American student is behind the students of other leading nations. The speaker emphasized his message by relating a few anecdotes describing how handicapped one is who is not a master of more than one language. He said "in order to master your own language, study another." The individual attention and hearty applause given the speaker showed how thoroughly the message was enjoyed by all. Mr. Moehring's excellent address will stimulate more and better language work in the high school.

Wayne Council Proceedings

Wayne, Nebr., October 1, 1913. The city council met at the city hall in regular session, all members being present except Herman Lundberg. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

F. C. Zoll, city physician, and others were before the council and the matter of the city water was discussed. The standpipe had been cleaned and the mains all flushed, and the water is to be tested now from the pipes and also direct from the wells, the object being to determine the source of the infection. All reports have shown the presence of colon bacilli in the water but in none of the city water has there been found any typhoid germs, but the board of health and council do not propose to leave any question as to the purity of the water. A plan for screening the stand pipe is under discussion and action will soon be taken along that line.

The proposition submitted by the Sheridan Coal Company in regard to coal contract was on motion accepted and the clerk directed to notify the company and prepare contract.

Walter T. Savidge was granted license to operate a moving picture and vaudeville show in the Boyd annex building.

R. A. Clark appeared before the Council and submitted a proposition to utilize the exhaust steam from the power plant for heating purposes. On motion same was referred to a committee consisting of Councilmen Lewis, Hanssen and Lamberson.

The contract with O. S. Roberts for laying the flood water sewer was on motion approved.

A committee consisting of F. L. Blair, T. W. Moran, E. W. Huse and L. A. Kiplinger on behalf of the Commercial Club, addressed the Council and asked that the council grant the use of the City Hall to the band for the purpose of holding a series of dances, the profits if any after paying the orchestra to go to the band. It was suggested that this committee meet a like committee from the Fire Department and if they can agree on the dates, the number of dances (not to exceed 6 for each organization) and submit a definite proposition to the Council, and if within reason, it should be granted.

A number of insurance agents have failed to pay their occupation tax and the clerk was ordered to notify them that unless the same was paid before the next meeting of the council that action would be begun against them.

Nuss Buys Business Property

Monday J. C. Nuss concluded a deal whereby he became the owner of the store building now occupied by C. A. Berry, and now has possession. He does not yet know how soon he will occupy the place, as arrangements have not yet been made as to when it will be convenient for Mr. Berry who has a lease on the place, to vacate. The building was the property of Philo Graves of Wakefield. Mr. Nuss is to be congratulated upon the purchase, as by this means he ceases to pay a rent tribute for a place in which to conduct his business, and while it may not be much cheaper than renting it will be much more satisfactory.

High School Leaders Conference at Wayne

The High School Leaders' Conference of Northeast Nebraska will be held at Wayne this year. The program and date are now under consideration with the state Y. M. C. A., and the conference will probably be held some time in December. It is a distinct honor to a city and high school to entertain this conference and the local high school is enthusiastic over the fact that it was offered to Wayne.

Miller—Meyers

At the Catholic church at Randolph on Tuesday, October 14, 1913, occurred the marriage of Mr. Henry Meyers and Miss Lulu Miller both of that place.

The bride is a daughter of Joseph Miller and wife who formerly lived at Wayne where they are well and favorably known. The bride and groom passed through here Tuesday afternoon on the wedding journey. They will soon return and be at home in Randolph.

Social Notes

Miss Iris Griggs entertained a party of young folks last evening in honor of her friend, Miss Theresa Olson, who is here from Wausau as her guest. The young people spent a most happy evening.

The Junior Bible Study Circle will meet with the Misses Crockett Friday evening. Mrs. Lyman G. Lockwood of Hot Springs, S. D., a Sunday school association worker, will be present to encourage the girls in their beautiful work.

A large number of the ladies of the English Lutheran church of Emerson are here today enjoying the hospitality of the ladies of the same society of Wayne. They came at 10 o'clock and remained until the afternoon train.

"The Report of the Spies" was the subject considered at the interesting Bible Circle meeting Tuesday afternoon at Mrs. Donner's home. Many beautiful thoughts were advanced by the leader and enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Noah Williamson will entertain the ladies next week and a cordial invitation is extended to students and teachers of the Word.

Saturday evening, the 4th, at the home of Prof. Bright and wife there was a gathering of the members of the Normal faculty who have not yet taken the vows of matrimony, and all being young and carefree it was a most happy occasion. The guests were entertained at Royalty and the hours sped so swiftly by that ere they were aware the midnight hour had come and "the lights went out." The host and hostess are royal entertainers and served a delightful four-course luncheon before the guests departed.

There was a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Grandquist, seven miles southwest of Wayne last Saturday evening in honor of her nephew, Albert Paulson. About fifty guests were present, coming at eight o'clock much to the surprise of the young man. The evening was spent in games and social conversation, and it was near midnight when the guests had finished the two-course luncheon which the hostess served, and departed for their homes voting it an evening long to be remembered.

Last evening the Sons of Herman and their families met at their hall in this city and observed the 100 anniversary of the overthrow of Napoleon by the Germans and made it the occasion of a happy evening. There was speaking by Messrs. Nuss and Plepenstock that was both interesting and instructive, songs that were excellent by several singers, and comedies by the younger members. Then a substantial supper was served and a social hour or two passed. There was a large attendance, many of the farmer members coming in from the country. It is such gatherings that cement friendship, promote acquaintances and make life more worth living. Those who attend wonder that we do not take time to meet them more frequently.

Neely—White

Saturday morning at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Charlotte White, occurred the marriage of Miss Helen White to Mr. Arthur Neely, Rev. Alexander Corkey officiating. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only a few members of the family and the bride and groom left at once on the morning train for Omaha where they will visit a short time then go to their home at Sioux City, where Mr. Neely is in the employ of the International Harvester Co.

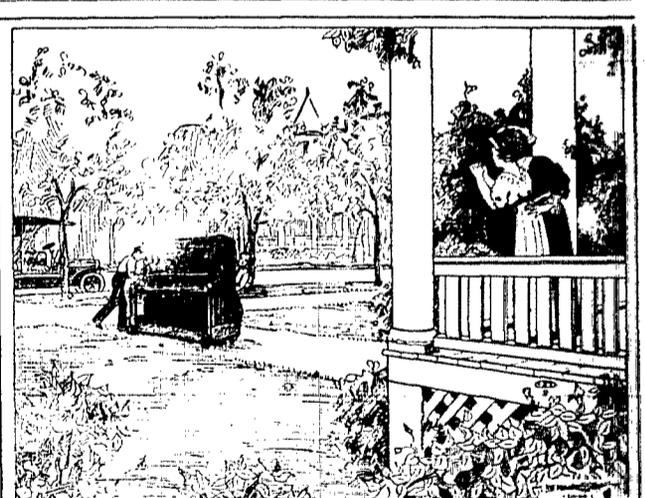

Both bride and groom grew to woman and manhood at this place and are highly respected by all and much loved by a large number of friends who wish them all of joy and happiness that falls to the lot of mankind.

New Barber Shop

By an old-time barber is what Homer Wheaton is starting in the basement of the First National Bank building. Homer frankly admits that he may not be up on present day terms for all of the fixin's but he has the tools to get the hair and whiskers with neatness and dispatch, and solicits patrons of other years and new comers to drop in—you're "NEXT."—ady.

Government officials raided a pool hall at the Winnebago agency last week in search of intoxicating liquors, says a news item. E. H. Carroll the past week has been serving the people of Cedar county as commissioner, and from the proceeding of that body he has introduced a few business methods into the transactions of that body. His first move was to offer a resolution that no bills be allowed until audited and signed by all members of the board. Another good one was that demanding the bridge company doing business in the county to furnish a weight ticket for all steel used in the construction of bridges. He also refused to sign the bills for the building of bridges until approved by state engineer. His work thus far has been worth the effort to elect him.—Randolph Enterprise.

The editor of the Emerson Enterprise went out with some friends and their hired men the first of last week and cut a big bee tree—a hollow oak, and in addition stings enough to cure a severe attack of rheumatism. Trade checks used by Columbus merchants have been counterfeited and a considerable amount of the spurious checks are known to be in circulation. The job was evidently done by a regular manufacturer, the designs being perfectly cut by heavy machinery. If it causes abandonment by the Columbus merchants of the trade-check system of doing business they will all be better off.

The price of potatoes is said to have lowered this fall because of the removal of the tariff in spuds. Nebraska farmers in this vicinity who have to buy their potatoes will not object to that this year. One thing is sure, the removal of the tariff on potatoes will help the poor consumer as much as it injures the man who grows them. Perhaps it will so reduce the price as to encourage the manufacture of starch in the potato growing districts. We can remember when places no larger than Wayne counted a starch factory one of their assets if in a good region for growing potatoes but now the starch truss, has them all smothered.

The country merchant has the solution of the mail order evil at his command. If he will advertise his wares proportionately with the mail order house, make as prompt deliveries, cultivate his territory as thoroughly, and follow up carefully, he will be alright. The country merchant who is forced out of business by the parcel post and mail order houses comes mightily near indicting himself as a business failure. He can make his local newspapers equal in pulling power to the mail order catalogues if he will spend more time in studying up on the science of advertising and less bewailing, "modern tendencies."—The Midwest.

William Dierckling, one of the pioneer settlers of Dakota county, fell from a high scaffold on which he was working last week and was almost instantly killed, his neck being broken. District court convened at Pender this week with 106 cases on the docket. The Wm. Flege case will come up for some action, no doubt, as it has been opened for re-trial by the supreme court and will have to be tried at Pender unless the defendant shall ask for change of venue, as we understand the case. But it is not probable that the case will be tried at this term, but some decision may be made regarding it.

Henry Korff had more than his usual crowd of Sunday guests at his home last Sunday, as all the directors of the Farmer's Elevator were there with their families and Representative Bartels and family of Wayne and Wm. Bruggeman and family from south of Laurel and a number were out from Coleridge and from Hartington. It was a genial bunch and all present had a good time in several ways and were seated to two groaning boards of good things to eat prepared by Mrs. Korff and her two competent daughters. The Korffs all have the gift quite common to the German people of making everyone who enters their home feel as if they belonged there.—Coleridge Blade.

Want to Save Half Your Coal Bill?

How much money did you spend for coal last year?

Let us say you spent $40. If there was a way in which you could buy that amount of coal this year for $20, you would want to know about it, wouldn't you?

We can't sell you coal for half price, but we can tell you how to heat your entire home perfectly this winter at half the expense of last year's fuel.

With a FAVORITE BASE BURNER you can heat every room in your house comfortably on the coldest days, and do it with less fuel than is possible with any other heating stove.

WHY?

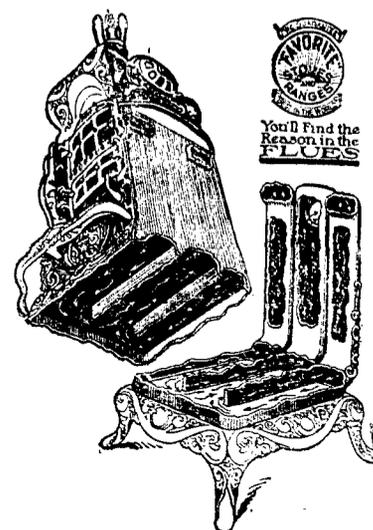

Because the Favorite is the only base burner that pours heat into the room from every square inch of its surface.

It gets every atom of heat out of the coal and throws it all into the home. None goes up the chimney.

Your home is warm and comfortable on blustery, icy-cold days when with any other base burner your wife and children would be huddling in a frozen group around an apparently inactive stove.

In the triple exposed flues you will find one reason why the Favorite is such a wonderful heating stove. There are many other reasons. Come and see us and we will tell you all about them.

Wm. Boll in Red Oak Sun Includes Some Interesting Descriptions About European Countries

Walzenhausen, Switzerland, June 16—We are again in the village where the relatives of Mrs. Boll live. It is a pleasant place on a mountain side and where quite a number of people from Germany and Switzerland come to put in a few days or weeks in resting and recuperating. Many of them are people whose stomachs have been put out of business by high living and some of them are always talking about their ailments, and how they are unable to eat this or that and what the doctors have told them to do and not to do. To people who have been through the mill and have recovered, it sometimes awakens a desire to open up and tell them one's own experiences in the stomach trouble line.

A lady and a gentleman, man and wife, sitting near us at our table, a day or so ago, were shocked when I told them jocularly that their stomachic grief was a matter of small moment. People who are sick like to be sympathized with. At the same time they are anxious for advice, which, after it has been given, is never followed. Indigestion and dyspepsia were supposed to be irregularities peculiar to Americans, people who are supposed to work little and live too high. But Europeans are similarly afflicted, though probably the per cent of the afflicted is not as great as in the United States. The aforementioned couple were anxious to know what remedy Americans applied when the stomach refused longer to perform its proper functions. They felt sure that America's supremacy in so many ways would extend in that direction also.

I told them I was not dispensing medical knowledge that I did not possess; that the lack of observance of the laws of health was probably as great on one portion of the globe as another; but the fact that a great many people were beginning to understand that the functions of the teeth extended beyond those of looking bad and pretty, or of aching or requiring filling, as found to be a promoter of human happiness. The person who thoroughly masticates all the food which enters his mouth, soup not excluded, will in time get relief. The act of mastication not only reduces the mouthful of food to a proper consistency to be deposited in the stomach, but it provides for a sure admixture of saliva, a fluid which is necessary to proper digestion.

The chief industry of Walzenhausen is making laces and embroideries. Some 30 factories are engaged in that business and in pretty nearly every home in the town work is done for the factories. A number of the factories are connected with wholesale houses in New York City. The town lies on a mountain side about 1200 feet above the Rhine valley, many square miles of which is visible, as is a large part of the lake of Constance and the German states of Baden, Wurtemberg and Bavaria and the province of Vorarlberg in Austria. There is only one level street in Walzenhausen. It extends for about four miles along the face of the mountain, which is indented with valleys or studded with ridges, so that this one road is serpentine throughout its entire length.

The paths leading from this street go up the mountain side and down on the other, and very few of them are of such nature as to permit vehicle traffic and many places deteriorate into a flight of rough stone steps. There is, of course, a wagon road nearly three miles in length which leads down into the valley, but people who wish to go in a hurry travel by means of a cable railway which makes a trip every half hour. On both sides the serpentine road is lined at greater or less intervals with a superior class of residences, hotels and business houses, but the ground is so steep that on the down side buildings showing three stories on the street have five stories in the rear. On the other side a house showing four stories in the front may have its back yard so it can be reached from the second-story windows.

The sides of the mountain contains many dwellings and there are meadows and woodland. In places the hay ground is so steep that it is a wonder how the work of mowing and raking and removing the grass can be performed at all to say nothing about doing it with comfort. The woodland consists of trees that have been planted at more or less remote dates, for no ground capable of producing trees is permitted to lie idle after the timber has grown large enough to cut. The trees are planted where it is too steep to handle hay.

Trees may be cut down by sawing, the workmen bracing themselves against stumps or other trees.

The town which lies at the foot of the mountain is named Rheineck. It was founded long before Columbus discovered America and celebrated the 500th anniversary of its incorporation about three years ago. An old castle, still in good state of preservation, is one of the noteworthy sights in the town. In the city of Romanshorn, some 10 miles away, Mrs. Boll and myself visited a church that has just been completed at a cost of $137,000, and it is said that the cost was about $250 greater than the estimate made when the building was projected. The church which is displaced by the new one was built in the 13th century and does not show its age so very much, wear and tear considered. But it had grown too small and could not be enlarged. It speaks well for the community that for over 100 years this old church was used in conjunction by both Protestants and Catholics.

It may be said that no buildings are constructed of anything except stone and concrete. They are long on stone in Switzerland and in many parts of Germany, though brick and tile factories abound. Most of the material used in this part of Switzerland for the making of concrete and of macadamized roads is gravel taken from the Rhine valley. This gravel consists of very smooth and round pebbles ranging in size from a hazelnut to a goose egg, with no dirt and very little sand in it as it is lifted into cars by clam shell buckets and elevators. A great number of the stones in the gravel are flat, from the size and thickness of a silver quarter to that of a silver dollar, and one would not have to search ten minutes to get a quart of poker chips of almost any size from any good pile he might wish to explore.

Geologists say that all the circular or conic stones one finds received their shape and smoothness by having been rolled in streams of swiftly flowing water. How much water flowed over the countless myriads of pebbles which gave to them their shape in the Rhine valley, four miles wide and lying just below the window at which I am writing, would involve a computation for which there can be no starting point, and how much time was required to reduce the stones to their present state of perfection would perhaps mean the adoption of some rule as intricate as that which made the "light year" necessary in computing the distance intervening between fixed stars. It may be enough to say that the portion of the Rhine valley in sight is a delta which ages ago was part of what is now the lake of Constance, but instead of building jetties into the lake to promote navigation it has been found expedient to dig canals to permit of the free flow of the water into the lake and to prevent inundations, an undertaking toward which both Switzerland and Austria have contributed millions.

A few days ago we changed cars at a town having the hyphenated name of Arth-Goldau. We had an hour to visit. There is much of interest in the place, for the town of Arth is situated about 100 feet above the place which once was called Goldau. In 1506 the town of Goldau was covered up by a landslide from the Rigi mountain and 457 persons were buried 100 feet deep in the debris. The new town of Arth, its railroad tracks and yards, a fine depot, numerous houses, hotels, two churches, one a replica of the one destroyed in the slide, now make up the town. Boulders the size of ordinary business blocks are prominent features in the place, all of them being remnants of the great disaster.

On our arrival in the place we sought to obtain some particulars concerning the history of the town. The first person encountered was a little girl aged about six years. She knew the exact date of the disaster and all the particulars perfectly; but a few minutes later, while looking up some picture cards, questions were put to the person in charge of the news stand. The reply did not entirely coincide with the information imputed by the child, so there was some doubt. A little later, however, a tablet was found. On this tablet it said, "Down below, 30 meters (about 100 feet), are buried 457 persons, who were destroyed Sept. 2, 1806, at 5 p. m. by a landslide, with 300 dwellings and two churches." The information by the child was the most reliable of that given by the two inhabitants.

A few days ago I mailed a number of picture cards to different persons. After a they had been dropped into the mail box I had occasion to look for another Swiss stamp to mail a letter. In looking over the supply of stamps I found many more of the Swiss kind than I expected. Investigation showed that a lot of German stamps which I had left over after our visit to Germany had disappeared. The only explanation possible was that I had used the German instead of the Swiss stamps. The two kind bear some resemblance. Both are printed in red ink of the same tint a picture of Minerva, one labeled "Helvetia" and the other "Germania," though one might represent the queen of hearts and the other the queen of diamonds. But in the hurry of getting the cards ready to drop into the mail box it would be easy to mistake one for the other. Probably the cards went to the dead letter office.

Farmers' Elevator Prospers

The Coleridge Farmers' Grain and Live Stock association will hold its annual meeting Saturday. With a capital of $8,600 in two years they have not only raised enormously the price of grain in Cedar county, but have made for themselves undivided profits of $1,293.09, and a net profit on hand of $2,044.84, besides charging off this year $842.39 for depreciation on elevator and office fixtures. Besides their elevator now counted at $8,000, they have on hand grain, flour and feed, coal and hogs to the amount of nearly $6,000, cash in banks to the amount of about $1,300, bills receivable and due from grain companies about $3,000 and a new coal house worth $225. They owe for grain about $3,000 and two notes amounting to $3,000 more. Their total resources are now a trifle over $19,000. It's a mighty good showing for a young company—of farmers too, don't you know.—Cedar County News.

At a special election last week the democrats elected a member of congress to fill vacancy. The republicans made a hard fight for the place and their man was second in the race with the progressives third at the finish.

"Wall Street" does not like the pending currency bill, for the reason that "Wall Street" to a large extent, controls the business of the country by controlling its money. The bill takes the control of the money out of their hands and puts it in "Uncle Sama" where it belongs. The bill is statesman like and non-partisan measure and ought to pass promptly, says the Pender Republic, a republican paper.

We like the currency bill largely because of the elements that are opposing it. There is no more reason that the bankers—the big ones—should dictate the currency law of the land than that the railroads should say what the railway regulation should be—and there has been far too much of both banking and railroad legislation made by the interested parties for the good of the people. We hope to see the representatives of the people have more to do in making the laws regulating these things in the future than in the past.

The Pender Republic in its "Brain Storms" says that there are some rascals who are smooth enough not to get caught in their lawless work and wrong doing. Sure, and there is yet another class who premeditate things that they know would land them in the penitentiary first and hell afterwards who first build a law which will let them keep out of the pen, and they should know that they cannot escape the other place. The common thief who takes his chances on both places alike is a gentleman compared to the other class who first legalize the robbery, they contemplate.

The one comical thing about the attitude of the great big banking interests regarding the currency bill is their fear that the law proposed is a political measure, and they do not want the banking business in politics. Oh no. If there has not been as much politics in banking legislation now on the books and as much banking interests in politics in the past as at present we are not a judge. If there is any branch of business that has had closer grip on the politics of the land than the banking, tell us what it is. How was it in 1896? What did the banking interests then do in politics? What interests were in politics that doctored the legislation of 1873? What sort of politics were mixed with the banking in 1907 when they created a panic to enable the big interests to steal the Tennessee Coal & Iron company to be captured by its rival, the "Steel Trust." And now that the people wish to make such thieving impossible it is called politics by the such interests. The bankers are not greater than the government under which they exist and must never be allowed to become greater no more than should the railroads, the coal, woolen, cotton and hundreds of other interests.

Architect Plans New Building

J. H. Craddock of Omaha, who has been employed by the board of education as architect on the new building to be erected at the Wayne normal during the present year, was in the city Monday and went over the matter very thoroughly with President Conn, before completing plans and specifications to be submitted to contractors. The building will be of brick with stone trimmings, 82x130 feet in dimensions, three full stories in height and fire proof throughout. The architecture will be of the same type as that of the library and science hall. The entire building will be devoted to the purposes of administration and instruction, and will be attractively and comfortably furnished with direct reference to the needs of the modern school room. The cost will be $85,000.

On the first floor of the building will be located the administrative offices and registration rooms, also provision for the departments of civics and history, drawing and mathematics. The auditorium, 57x62 feet, occupies a large part of the second floor, and with the balcony, furnishes a seating capacity for 850. The departments of German, Latin, English, Elocution and Mechanical Drawing will have suitable quarters on the second floor. On the third floor, in addition to the balcony, provision is made for music rooms, shorthand and typewriting, society halls, Y. M. and Y. W. C. A., and Catholic club.

It will be a handsome structure in external appearance, supplied with all modern conveniences, and when completed will be one of the most substantial school buildings in the state. The next meeting of the board will be held at Lincoln on December 9, at which time the contract will be awarded.

NORMAL NOTES

Guy R. Nettleton, a student of the commercial department last year, is now employed in a bank at Sioux City, Iowa.

The game of football last Saturday afternoon proved an easy victory for the Sioux City high school, the score being 32 to 0.

President Conn and Professor Britell will have a part on the program of the City Institute to be held by Superintendent Bowen of West Point on October 18.

Miss Dayle Gainard, a member of the Junior class 1912, is now taking a special course in public speaking at Union college, Lincoln. Miss Gainard expects to return to Wayne for the summer session of 1914.

Mr. R. L. Moore of Decatur, Nebraska, a student of the Nebraska Normal College in 1908-1909 is now instructor in forge work in the department of agricultural engineering, University of Nebraska.

The October number of the Nebraska Teacher speaks of the interest in the work in manual training at Hartington. Charles L. Culler, class of 1912, is director of manual training in the Hartington schools and we congratulate him upon his success.

Last Saturday evening the Crescent literary society was entertained by the Philomathean. A short program was carried out in the chapel, after which the young people repaired to the gymnasium where games were played and refreshments served.

Recently the fifth grade pupils of the training school were delighted to hear of Porto Rico from Miss Elsie Ford Piper, who visited that island last summer. Definite ideas were given them in the direction, distance and manner of going from Nebraska to Porto Rico. The size and climate of the island, its people, their food, clothing, homes, modes of transportation, means of livelihood and schools were all topics of intense interest. Some pictures are promised later, which will make an experience of value to the children in their study of North America.

Grades one and two of the training department in charge of Miss Edith Stocking were the guests of the school at convocation last Thursday, delighting the students of the normal with a dramatization of the "three little pigs." The pigs were represented by Donna Sonners, Neva Lackey and Mary Skiles. Irene VanNorman, Dorothea Erickson and Lyle Mabbott were the men from whom material was furnished to build houses, Mary Skiles being the only one of the three who built of brick and whose house stood the huffing and the puffing of the wolf who appeared in the person of Calvin Kopp. All of the interesting details of the story were acted out by the children, and the wolf's climbing down the chimney and falling into a tub of boiling water made a very exciting climax to the little drama. This exercise by the primary pupils was a part of the language work prepared under the direction of Miss Jane Green, a student teacher, and she and the class are to be congratulated upon the ease and naturalness with which the children performed their parts.

Norfolk City Clerk Arrested

Ed Harter, for years city clerk of Norfolk, was placed under arrest through his attorneys, Mapes & McFarland, accepting service for their client who is at Rochester, Minnesota, where he is to undergo an operation for gall troubles. He has long been afflicted and the pending operation is said to be the 16th. The charge under which he rests is "forgery" and "uttering forged papers."

The case has long been in the hands of the officials pending the result of a careful auditing of the books by an expert from Omaha. The expert places his defalcation at the sum of $2,000 which was done mostly by raising warrants illegally. After surviving numerous surgical operations Harter was elected city clerk at Norfolk in 1908 and continued to be re-elected to succeed himself until last spring, when the charges were made just before election and he was defeated.

The career of this man should be a lesson to municipalities in this state. It is not right to allow an official to conduct public business where public funds are in his keeping without frequent and competent investigation of conditions. It makes a temptation to "borrow" too great for some and the opportunity to steal too easy. Another thing—is it right and just for a city to employ a person to such an extent as to spoil his time for something else and yet keep him on pay that is not adequate. We should have less city officials at a higher salary and demand more of them. Our system of municipal government is not the best, and will have to be made modern soon or late, and the sooner the better.

Flooded the Court.

London Law Times tells a story of the late Lord Ashbourne, who as lord chancellor in presiding in the court of appeal in Ireland would occasionally make up his mind to bring a case to an end before the rising of the court.

A junior who was not conscious of his humor stood up to open what appeared to be a short interlocutory appeal. Lord Ashbourne after a sentence or two had been spoken interjected, "Now, Mr. —, why should we reverse the king's bench on a point like this?"

"My lord," rejoined counsel, "there are six reasons why the order should be reversed."
"Then," said the president of the court, "suppose we commence with your three best."
"No, my lord," said counsel; "I could not consent to that because I have frequently succeeded in this court upon my bad points."
Lord Ashbourne collapsed and for once was unable to have his own way in the court of appeal.

Increase Your Happiness by Telephone

The Bell Telephone ministers to the pleasure of millions by keeping them in touch with the world all about—near and far.

A letter is cold and bloodless. It lacks the human touch. Telephoning is almost like a personal visit.

Over the telephone you may hear the living, laughing voices of your distant friends just as if talking face to face.

Mrs. Carmichael of Harlan, Iowa, arrived last week to visit at the home of her brother, Dr. D. D. Tobias and wife. Tuesday the two ladies went to Sioux City to spend the day.

Mrs. Art Gustafson left here Tuesday for Hartington, they having decided to live at that place this winter, where Mr. Gustafson has work that will keep him there for the entire winter.

Gust A. Johnson and wife and their daughter, Miss Ellen, went to Sioux City Tuesday, and after a short stay there they go on to South Dakota, where they plan to visit at several different places.

Miss Elva McCaw of Omaha, who has numerous acquaintances here, was a guest at the home of Wm. Mellor and family Tuesday while returning from Carroll, where she had spent a week with a patient.

Chas. W. Reynolds and wife are at Lincoln this week, he as a delegate to the I. O. O. F. encampment and the lady as a delegate to the Rebekahs. Andy Chance and Geo. Roberts are also there as delegates from the I. O. O. F., of this place.

The Lincoln potato crop for 1913 sold for $4,031,855 according to the estimates of the state board of agriculture. An acreage yield of about 49 bushels to the acre. For the last five years the potato crop estimates have been a little higher.

H. F. Cunningham and wife of Bloomfield were visiting with friends at the depot Tuesday morning on their way to Lincoln where the lady went as a delegate to the Rebekah meeting, and Mr. Cunningham will attend the meetings of the I. O. O. F.

October 22 is officially set apart as "Petition Day" at which time it is expected that all voters will have a chance to sign a suffrage petition, which if signed by enough voters will give the men a chance to say whether or not the women of Nebraska may vote.

Mrs. Morehouse came down from Randolph the first of the week, where she has been for some time with her son, and stopped here to visit her daughter, Mrs. Walter Weber while on her way to Gasport, New York, where she will visit relatives and old friends.

Walter Weber and wife left Wednesday morning for Rochester, Minnesota, where the lady will consult specialists at the hospital there regarding her health, and take treatment if benefits are promised. Their many friends hope that she finds relief from her suffering.

Mrs. Guy Lewis was here last week visiting her aunt, Mrs. Pat Dixon, while on her way from Winner, South Dakota, where they have been living, to Wolfe Point, Montana, where Mr. Lewis preceded her and is engaged in the newspaper business.

Many sections of the state report excellent results achieved by the road builders, October 8-9. Volunteer highway builders responded to the appeal of Governor Morehead and gave their time and efforts to improving the highways. Governor Morehead joined the workers and assisted in fixing some of the highways near Lincoln.

L. M. Owen's new residence in the northwest part of town is moving toward completion at a swift pace. Foster & Son, who have the contract, say that the enclosing will be finished within a week ready for lath and plaster, and Mr. Owen has rented his farm to Earl Miner, and will move to Wayne in the spring and into their new home, which will be modern in every way and of convenient size. This is to be a valued addition to that part of the city.

They have fought the battle of "Wounded Knee" all over again for the benefit of the "movies." To be sure, some of those who took part in the original encounter were not present in person—but their spirit may have been hovering near. Buffalo Bill was there as stage manager, so to speak, and hundreds of people watched the game, and when the reels are finished thousands will see practically all of the leading details of that tragic encounter between the civilized and the savage warrior. The battle was fought December 28, 1890, near the Pine Ridge agency, and all of the Nebraska militia and many regular soldiers were sent into the vicinity, thinking that a general uprising was eminent.

Mrs. W. S. Elder left Monday morning to visit relatives at Des Moines and other points in Iowa. At Des Moines there will be a family reunion of the Kelley family of which she is a member, and she will be joined in the visit by a brother, Chace Kelley of Laurel, and the two will travel together from Wakefield.

Miss Anna Ardueser, who was the only one to take the examination for the position of postmistress at Belden must have passed a good examination, for she has been appointed to the place. It seems that the democrats are not all so anxious for office as it seemed that they would be. What they want is such regulation of corporations, trusts, combines and the money power as will enable a private citizen to live on the wages he receives for an honest day's work. If the people can simply have their share of the wealth they create they will not care especially for office.

Jacob Wingert was here from Bridgewater, South Dakota, Tuesday and Wednesday, coming down from Randolph where he came the day before to be present at the marriage of his niece, Miss Lulu Miller, of which we tell elsewhere. Mr. Wingert brought along samples of the corn they grow in that country this year which looks good—says his corn will yield about 50 bushels per acre. Wheat threshed out 20 to 25 bushels per acre, and all are happy and prosperous. He reports that other Wayne people in that vicinity are well and doing well. Many friends were glad to greet him during his short stay here.

Allan people are putting on a six-number lecture course this season. Soon a lecture course and a chautauqua will be as common as the traveling dramatic companies used to be, and not worth much more, but they have a better organized system of providing against financial loss to the promoters. It is up to the people to demand good talent and not be bound by a contract which gives the concern a sure return of expenses and wages with a chance of also taking all of the profits. Once a thing becomes popular and fakes are ready to adopt the name and profit by a popularity honestly earned.

Fred Stone from northwest of Wayne went to Omaha Wednesday accompanied by his son, Master Glen, to visit relatives and look at some Holstein cows that are for sale near that place. Mr. Stone says that good Holstein cows are high in price—perhaps too high for him but he thinks he can afford to look at them at any rate. He has the nucleus of a herd now at his farm, a bull and several cows, and he wants to add a little new blood. He has one 1,500 pound cow that is giving 30 quarts of milk daily, and he thinks it will pay to have more of that kind—gets more for the feed than if a common cow eats it.

Our Democratic Senator

The senator at Washington sent there by the people of Nebraska to represent them appears to think that he is the representative of the bankers. He is attempting to halt the onward movement of the currency bill on the plea that it is a matter of such importance that we should go slow and dally along with the measure—that he does not fully understand it and wants time to improve the bill and look at it from every conceivable angle. It is an important measure, and it should be made a law with all possible speed for that very reason. The currency question is now a paramount issue and to neglect or oppose it leaves the democracy of the representatives who does so open to question.

Andrew Jackson was a great soldier, but the fact that he throttled the money power and gave the people the right in law to control their own money was a greater victory than ever he won on the field of battle. And this we know—the proposed currency law will take the control of money and credits largely from the big banking and trust companies and place it in control of the people and the man who opposes it will be counted against the people and for the money power. This is the time when men must show where they stand and if they do not stand right they will have to stand back. The currency measure is of equal if not greater importance than the tariff and in the opinion of thousands of loyal democrats he who opposes it is not true to the people.

The Democrat for job printing.

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Best Beef is Steady, While General Trade Lower.

HOG VALUES UNEVENLY LOWER

Fat Lambs Slow but About Steady.
Muttons Steady to Strong—Trade
Active—Feeders Fairly Active.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha,
Oct. 14.—A moderate run of cattle arrived today, about 7,600 head. The low corn fed heaves here sold at about steady prices, a bunch of very choice 1,450-pound heaves going at $9.20, or as high as any heavy cattle have sold so far this year. Good range heaves did not sell a great deal different from Monday, but the medium and common grades were very slow sale and generally fully a dime lower. It was the same way with cows and heifers. The best grades were slow, but about steady, while the general run of butcher and canner stock was a dime off and very dull. Business in stockers and feeders was very sluggish and prices were mostly all of a dime lower than Monday.

Cattle quotations: Choice to prime heaves, $9.00@9.25; fair to choice yearlings, $8.50@9.00; good to choice heaves, $8.75@9.00; fair to good heaves, $8.30@8.60; common to fair
heaves, $7.75@8.25; good to choice
heifers, $6.50@7.50; fair to good cows, $6.75@6.25; canners and cutters, $3.25

ers, $6.00@7.10; common to fair feeders, $5.00@5.50; stock cows and heifers, $5.00@7.00; choice to prime grass
heaves, $7.00@8.25; good to choice
heaves, $7.00@7.50; fair to good grass heaves, $7.00@7.50; poor to fair grass
heaves, $6.25@7.00.

About 6,000 hogs were received today. The market was very slow to steady with heavy hogs selling at prices equivalent to 5c lower, and lights 10@25c off. The bulk of the heavy hogs went at $8.05@8.15, while lights sold around $7.75@8.00.

Sheep and lamb receipts amounted to 28,000 head. The market on killing lambs was quite slow today, but prices were about steady with Monday. Some good lambs brought $7.00, top for the day. Trade in mutton offerings was active and prices were steady to strong. Fat ewes sold up-around $4.25@4.30, and a string of wethers brought $4.70. Feeders were fairly active and prices show little, if any, change from Monday, or the latter part of last week.

Quotations on sheep and lambs:

The matter of securing copy for a country newspaper has been greatly simplified in the past few years by a number of booster organizations that will furnish a list of coming attractions at their home towns with detailed account of what is to be, free of charge to the editor, and these advance notices are becoming more numerous and more in advance all of the time. We have one in hand now telling what is to be in the fall of 1914. Then it comes back to the summer of the same year and on down even to the next January and even some that are in the future as near as next month. To use it all would fill two column of the paper all about one town, and then there are others—and next week there will be another news letter. It is no trouble to get copy.

Walter will start out soon with a strong theatrical company, playing only one night in a place, giving that popular drama, "Mad Love." They will make a date for Wayne Thanksgiving night. He is also planning to run a picture show here this winter.

Something unusual happened near Niobrara last week. An old white mule died. Few of us ever heard of the death of an old white mule, and it has been generally supposed that they simply dried up and blew away. We once heard of the almost death of a pair of these animals—up in North Dakota. The owner had worked them all summer on his ranch, and was going where it was warmer for the approaching winter, and said to himself the old mules was not worth the cost of taking them out, and I will leave them for winter and the covotes—which he did—but the mules just naturally wintered themselves, and were there to greet him when the spring came. But this Niobrara mule had a good excuse to quit for it was bitten by a rattle snake and died as the result. This loss almost stopped work on the canal for power which is being dug up in that country as it evidently took half of the working force on that project away, for the account of the death says they secured a horse to take the place of the departed and the work is being pushed to rapid completion. In our opinion the work is being rushed just enough to make a claim of holding this power which belongs to the people and which should never have been given away.

On Friday morning the Juniors gave the following program: Piano duet by Edna McVicker and Anna Giese; a paper on Chemistry by Loretto Croghan; some experiments by Mary Lewis and Earl Lewis. Observations and Suggestions by Hester McNeal.

The Wayne-Pender Game

The Wayne high school football team proved an easy victor over the team from Pender in the game last Friday on the local field. Five touchdowns and two goals by the Wayne team made the score 32 to 0. The teams were evenly matched in weight, but the Wayne team showed superior training and swept the Pender team off their feet almost at will. Munsinger, Wayne's big full back, made great gains through Pender's line, making the first touchdown on a twelve yard plunge through tackle. Miner, Wayne's right half made two touchdowns, Mildner, left half made one and Captain Sears, playing in quarter, made one.

Wayne worked the forward pass successfully for good gains and Pender completed a couple good passes. Rately, Pender's quarter back, gained much ground for his team, but the Wayne defense proved too strong for them. It was a good clean game and when Wayne plays a return game at Pender in a few weeks the score will probably be closer.

Advanced Land Values

Under the above head the Wallace Farmer, which we recently quoted in an article explaining a position which they took on unearned increment and the farmer, which R. R. Smith of this place had answered. In the last issue of the Farmer they again explain their position, and as the taxation question is coming to the front, and especially the single tax idea on which this question hinges the Democrat is glad to give it space. A more just system of taxation has got to come and it is well to be reading and studying the question. Wallace says:

"Under the above title Mr. Smith of Nebraska, criticizes an article which appeared in Wallace's Farmer some time before, on 'the central township school,' in which we suggested that, inasmuch as land had advanced on an average 11.8 per cent per annum for the last ten years, 'those who have been enriched by this unearned increment could well give one-tenth part of that increment to making the country a more desirable place in which to live, and the rest would then be easy.'"

He does not believe in a central school, and says: "There is no such thing as an unearned increment," that while land has advanced in price in the last ten years, this is of no value to the farmer unless he sells out to a speculator; that if he wished to continue farming, he would then have to buy at the advanced price.

As we have often remarked, a good many of the misunderstandings among men arise out of a misunderstanding of the meaning given to words. Perhaps we were a little careless in using the words "money" in the sentence: "The farmers in the cornbelt have the money."

Let us try to state the facts exactly as they are. The government officials estimate that land in the west has advanced 11.8 per cent per annum for the past ten years. Whether this is exactly true or not does not matter. We all agree that land has advanced in price; and that land owners have become comparatively rich, not only during the last ten years, but twelve or fifteen years.

We believe it may be stated further; in fact, we think there will be no dispute about it; that farmers have become richer through the advance of land the last fifteen years than they have by farming in the last thirty. Land has at least doubled in "price" since the beginning of the century. It may not have advanced in "value" to that extent, for value is determined by the amount of dollars it will furnish from year to year, while price is determined by what the land sells for in the market. Money is the measure of both value and price. When we said "the farmers of the corn belt have the money," we did not mean that they have the currency, although the reports from banks in Nebraska and elsewhere indicate that they have large deposits in them. Now this increase in the value of land has not as a general rule come from their own exertions. It has come simply because there is no more good land watered by the rains of heaven to be bought by government prices.

The increase in population and the wearing out of our agricultural lands have brought us to a point where, in average years, our production of many products which we used to export barely equal our consumption. Under these circumstances, the prices of both of land and land products necessarily advance. Our suggestion was that the farmers use one-tenth of this advance—which has come to them as a gift—for the better education of the children in the community, and in general to make the country a more desirable place in which to live.

It is true that the farmer has not money in the sense of currency. Neither would he have it in bonds or mortgages or other form of investment. The farmers of the west are vastly richer than they were ten years ago. They are abundantly able to build better schools, have better homes and better roads, and thus make the country a better place to live in. In doing so, they will have more happiness, more of the joy of life, more comfort. By so doing they will be better farmers, and not have to work fifteen hours a day. When farm life becomes better worth living, with less drudgery, there will be more satisfaction in it, and people will not flee from it to look for comfort in towns and cities, because they did not find it on the farm. In saying this, Wallace's Farmer is not attacking the farmers, but suggesting one of the ways of helping to secure a more satisfactory farm life. When it ceases to make suggestions, pointing out the defects in farm life, it will be less worthy of the confidence of the farmers of the great west.

Bryan's Lectures

(Elbert Hubbard in Philistine)
War and Peace—It is somewhat a curious fact in psychology that the newspapers which berrate Bryan because he is giving Chautauqua lectures are the very ones that aver his services at Washington are mox, nix and nil.

If the crabbed critics with their inky seizures were consistent, they would be glad that the Secretary of State at times turns his work over to John Bennett Moore, admittedly a tried and able man, and gives himself and the country a vacation.

Bryan had his limitations—only a few of us are perfect.

But giving occasional lectures reveals the power of the man and not his weakness.

In the first place, people are willing to pay to hear Bryan preach. This cannot be said of several persons I might name.

In the second place, a public speaking is a collaboration with the auditors. The man who gets most out of a speech is the one who gives it.

A speaker always gets a lot of things straight in his own mind which before the speech he never knew he knew.

It is the custom to smile at a Chautauqua audience, but the truth is, no audience you can gather in America possesses quite as much phosphorus as does a Chautauqua gathering.

The individuals who patronize a Chautauqua are neither patrician nor plebeians.

They represent the people of property. And people of America who work and who do not use strong drink, all have property.

They are home-owners, and often automobile-owners. For be it known the auto has changed the Chautauqua complexion. People don't "camp" now—they live at home and ride.

A Chautauqua now gathers its audience for a radius of forty miles, regardless of the price of gasoline. The frivolous seeker after frills is not there, unless by accident.

In a Chautauqua audience you see the mothers in Israel, and the men of purpose. These are the folks who have ever fought freedom's battles. These are the spiritual and mental descendants of the people who gathered to hear Abraham Lincoln debate with Stephen A. Douglas.

For our Secretary of State to meet such people and hold converse with them is a good thing for them—and a better thing for him.

Bryan is hired by us to perform certain duties, and how can he know what we want unless he keeps in mental touch with us?

And that the thing pays is something for which we should all rejoice.

Anything that doesn't pay needs disinfecting. The simple fact is, the impeccable editors who berate Bryan for mixing with the people would hiss ganderwise, if he stayed at home and grubbed at his desk.

Then they would say: "What 'ell does he know about music? He never gets out among the peepul."

In representing the cause of a World's Peace to the people, William J. Bryan is doing a great and unique service.

That he has been big enough to select able men to look after his work when he is away, and thus give him needed leisure to extend his influence, is to his credit.

That Bryan was an orator has always been admitted, but that he was an executive has been proved only within the last few months. And the man who proved it for us is Woodrow Wilson.

Bryan is right—what this world needs is Peace. War, violence, repression, strife, have been tried since the days when Egypt was supreme. Peace! But why cry Peace! When there is no peace.

TWO GREAT STARS.

Sirius is the Brightest of All, and Canopus Comes Next.

The results of that instrument of precision, the meridian photometer, are that Sirius is seven-tenths of a magnitude brighter than Canopus, which easily teaches that Sirius is brighter than any other star.

Canopus, next in brilliancy, is visible from all that portion of the world south of north latitude 37 degrees, since its declination is south 53 degrees and 53 is the complement of 37.

It therefore never rises above the south horizon of any point 37 degrees north. The latitude of this observatory is 34 degrees 17 minutes; hence Canopus rises very nearly 3 degrees above the watery wastes in the Pacific sea. Its low altitude makes it much fainter than higher Sirius, as the light must traverse layers of dust and water vapor near the earth's surface. Still it is magnificent, especially when standing over a calm ocean surface.

Canopus has no parallel that the highest power telemicroscopes—that can be made are able to measure. This is one of the most overwhelming facts within the entire range of human experience. This means that if one goes to Canopus with the most powerful telescope ever made, turns and looks back this way, the base line, the entire diameter of the orbit of the earth—185,764,000 miles—dwindles to a minute point too small to be measured by any microscope. Some idea may be had of the immensity of the universe by thinking of this fact during each spare minute. Better to so think than to waste the precious moments.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American

Uncle Sam's Antecedents.

A reader asks how the name Uncle Sam came to be adopted for the imaginary genius who directs the destinies of this nation. The answer is very simple. "Uncle Sam" is merely a popular expansion of the letters "U. S." Albert Matthews once wrote a forty-five page monograph to prove this, and he showed that the expression went back to the year 1813. James Fenimore Cooper in "The Prairie" in 1827 spoke of "the well known initials that have . . . gained for the government of the United States the good humored and quaint appellation of Uncle Sam."—New York Post.

Right to the Point.

Some months ago excavations were being made for new tracks on the line of a certain railway. At one point a nearby resident obtained permission to remove a quantity of turf to resod the premises, the section foreman being instructed to notify the excavating "gang" when the resident should have secured all he desired.

The foreman's report is as follows: "The man that wanted the earth has got it."—Exchange.

"Keeping It Out of the Paper"

The Democrat editor has many times been accused of suppressing that which certain people are pleased to term news.
The past week in a neighboring town, a young man went wrong. We looked in the paper of that town expecting to see an account of this young man's down fall, as it had appeared in the daily papers. But not a line about the young man could we find. And we knew why at once. A heartbroken wife or relation had gone to the editor and asked him to "say nothing," and the editor had listened and the tears had won the promise from him. We have gone through the same thing ourselves many times. An editor is only human. He has his likes and his dislikes; he loves and he hates; his strength between love and duty is just like that of the average citizen. We remember one case in particular. We had let a certain thing go by unmentioned, because a tearful mother bowed down with her cross, had come to us and begged the favor. A big headed man jumped us about it and called us a coward for so doing. Some times afterward the shadow fell across this man's threshold, and he came running and begging us to "say nothing."
"Yes," we replied, "but don't you remember how you called us a coward for keeping still?" "I know," he replied, "but I was wrong. It is different now."
There are things an editor can't suppress. There are other things that he can forget with propriety. And as far as we are concerned, we would rather lessen the grief of a parent than to throw out a morsel for the vulgar gossiping public to feed upon. We would rather wipe away the tears of a mother than to "have nerve" enough to join a heartless crowd of flying tongues and sink the iron deeper into her tender soul. So when in this neighboring paper we failed to find what we wanted, we made no comment. But deep down in our heart we admired that editor and liked him better because he had a heart that was tender, and he would rather listen to the jibes of an unfeeling public than to the sobs of a heartbroken mother and wife. Just think this over and see if you don't come to the conclusion that we are right.—Humphrey Democrat.

Gas Turned On

Arthur McQuayle of Newman Grove, prescription clerk in the Fleming drug store, and Prof. Johnson, a violin instructor of Wayne, were almost asphyxiated last night when Johnson failed to turn the gas jet completely off just before retiring. An open window, it is believed, saved the lives of the two young men.
The men have a room in the Snyder rooming house, Norfolk avenue and Ninth street. McQuayle retired early and Johnson came in late. He turned out the light.
Both men were restless throughout the night and owing to a bad cold, McQuayle did not notice the odor of gas.
Johnson slept but little and both men found it difficult to arise in the morning. It was then that the open jet was discovered.
The room was filled with gas. Both men suffered from pains in the head throughout the day but recovered fairly well not withstanding their narrow escape.
Johnson comes to Norfolk once each week. He always shares the room with McQuayle. McQuayle denies that Johnson blew out the gas.—Norfolk News.

News Notes

Mexico is having a great big time. The president had 200 members of that congress arrested by the soldiers because they signed a resolution asking what had become of one of their number who had been spirited away supposedly by executive order. This has been a strength to the faction which is in rebellion against the Huerta government. A new election will probably be ordered.

Friday night in a rough sea the ocean liner Voltorno burned to the water edge in mid Atlantic and not far from where the Titanic went down. Of the near seven hundred passengers and crew on board about 136 were lost. The wireless brought a dozen ships to the assistance of the unfortunates, they coming from 80 to 150 miles to the scene.

A great storm has wrecked the city of Nome in Alaska and caused much loss of life and property on the shipping and inhabitants of that extreme northern part of Uncle Sam's domain. The storm was in the form of a gale which caused the sea to wash away the greater portion of the beach at Nome. Nome is uninhabitable except for the gold found there, and the Americans and others will try to live any old place for that yellow dust.

Timothy L. Woodruff, prominent politician of New York, is dead. Was struck with paralysis while making a speech at a progressive political rally in New York two weeks ago, and died Sunday night. He was 55 years of age.

Jack Johnson has become a citizen of France, and has forfeited his bond of $30,000 on which he gained his liberty pending a trial for violation of the white slave law. It is cheap enough to be well rid of him even if we had not got the $30,000; but it is a handicap on France. No one needs such a black brute as a citizen.

It is claimed that a new land has been discovered in the Arctic ocean, in latitude 81 north and 104 longitude east. 'Tis too far north to interest many people. The alleged discovery is by a Russian and as it lays north of Siberia it may do as a place of banishment to particularly bad men from that land.

Herbert Johnson, who has been spending the summer on his farm in Cheyenne county not far from Sidney returned to the home of his parents northeast of Wayne this week. He was favored with a good corn crop this year for a new farm.

It is reported that on account of the kick at Sioux City about smoke the M. & O. railroad may move their shops over to South Sioux City. Of course the citizens of this side of the river will not kick about the smoke if they can get the enterprise to locate there, and then when the wind is right to blow it back over Sioux City they will not be able to make an ordinance fence against it. It is hard to smoke a railroad out of doing something to you if they want to.

Among The Churches of Wayne

Methodist Church

Rev. C. L. Myers, Pastor

Mr. Schwitzer of University Place, representing the Y. M. C. A., gave a most excellent address at the close of the morning service.

The beautiful morning brought out a splendid audience. Come again next Sabbath.

A class of girls and boys was graduated yesterday from the primary department to the main Sunday school. The children of these classes have made a most enviable record. We welcome them to this advanced relation.

The roll of the Epworth League seems to be lost and we would greatly appreciate it if the members would write their names on a paper and hand them to the leader next Sunday evening in order that a new roll may be made.

We would like a large number of men to join our Brotherhood class in the Sunday school for the study of God's Word.

The W. C. T. U., will meet with Mrs. Wm. Wright at 3 p. m. Friday. All ladies interested are invited.

The usual Wednesday evening prayer meeting. All are invited.

Monday and Tuesday the pastor was in attendance upon the district Ministerial meeting at Norfolk, Wednesday at Geneva to conduct a funeral.

The sermon on Christian Activity Sunday morning was not finished on account of a lack of time. The following is a brief outline. To repeat the order "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread" would mean a great turning to the Lord.

The value of results depends upon the motive. The Gospel has not suspended diligence. "He that worketh not neither shall he eat." No distinction should be made between work commonly called secular and spiritual "Whatsoever ye do do all to the glory of God."

To have no business is to violate the precept of the text, Rom. 12-11.

Don't be diligent in trifles. If you have a lawful calling don't be slothful in it.

Have a job and stick to it. Build air castles but build them into convictions, then act.

Life is too short, you can't afford to fail.

Cabinet meeting of the Epworth League Tuesday evening, October 21 at the parsonage.

Next Sunday morning the subject for consideration will be "Just a Man" and in the evening "The Half-Way House."

Presbyterian Church

Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.

There will be no preaching services at the Presbyterian church next Sunday, either morning or evening, on account of the Synod meeting at Omaha. The Sunday school will meet as usual at 12 o'clock and the young people's meeting will be held at 7 p. m.

By the invitation of the session of the church Dr. W. W. Tait, of Randolph, will deliver a series of lectures on the Temple of Solomon at the church on November 12-13-14. These lectures are illustrated with a model, showing exactly what the temple was and the various rites, in connection with the Temple service.

The social evening at the church last Friday evening was a great success. A large number of the Normal students were present, and the program as announced was carried out. The "speech" by Mr. L. A. Kiplinger and the "song" by Miss Helen McNeal were especially enjoyed. The high school orchestra, under the leadership of Mrs. Murphree, rendered a number of selections during the evening. The orchestra is accompanied by Miss Fern Oman as whistler, and she was called out for a special whistling number. Refreshments, consisting of cocoa, cake and wafers, were served at the close of the program.

"Ought Christians to go to law with fellow-Christians" will be the theme of the mid-week service at the church next Wednesday evening. The Scripture reference is Corinthians, Chapter 6.

Rev. Alexander Corkey and Mr. David Cunningham will represent the local church at the Synod meeting in Omaha this week. They expect to return next Monday.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church

(Rev. Blessing, Pastor.)

The pastor will use as his subject next Sunday morning "A Christian Neighbor." People are prone to think of a neighbor only, as one next door to them, one in the immediate vicinity of their homes, but this is a limited meaning. The true meaning of neighbor is one in need—physically or spiritually. Webster says a neighbor is one entitled to neighborly kindness. How strange—this old world would be if we would not extend the spirit of a neighbor beyond the immediate vicinity of our homes.

We were more than pleased to see the interest taken in our first evening services, let us strive to keep it up. The subject for next Sunday evening will be "The Accepted Publican."

Choir rehearsal next Friday night, all members are requested to be present. I will begin my catechetical class one week from next Saturday, October 25th. Will meet all members of both classes in the church at three o'clock. All who wish to be prepared for intelligent church membership are invited to attend these classes. The ladies aid society will entertain the society of Emerson at the parsonage next Thursday. All the ladies of the church and friends are invited to attend. The Synodical meeting held at West Point was a splendid and edifying session. We were very much pleased to have two members of our church present. Next year the Synod will meet at Allen. Arrow collars and shirts at Morgan's shop.—adv. 40-3.
