The County Court Proceedings

Judge James Britton of the county court had several strenuous days during the past week fixing the penalty on those convicted of unlawful acts at Hoskins nearly four weeks ago. The first case tried to a jury was defended quite strongly and after the conviction the most of the other cases were allowed to go without the defense introducing any evidence, with the avowed intention of appealing to the district court, and five of the cases have been appealed and will no doubt be heard at the next term of district court before Judge Welch.

The following summary shows briefly what happened at court in the cases against the Brueckner boys of Hoskins who were tried in the county court last Thursday and Friday and Tuesday:

State vs. Fred Brueckner for threatened assault upon Henry Wetlich, a butcher at Hoskins. This case was tried to a jury and resulted in a verdict of guilty, the fine was $50 and costs.

The State vs. Fred Brueckner for resisting and abusing the village marshal of Hoskins was tried to a jury and resulted in a verdict of guilty. The court imposed a fine of $100 and costs.

The state vs. Fred Brueckner for assault and battery upon one, Wm. Stocker, a medicine salesman living at Stanton, Neb., was tried to the court. Fred Brueckner was found guilty and fined $15 and costs.

The state vs. Fred Brueckner for resisting and abusing the village Marshall of Hoskins was tried to the court, the court found the defendant guilty and assessed his fine at $100 and costs.

The state vs. Paul Brueckner for assault and battery upon Fred Ahrenschildt, the proprietor of a pool room at Hoskins, Neb., was tried to the court. The court found the defendant guilty and assessed his fine at $10 and costs.

The state vs. Fred Brueckner for threatened assault upon Otto Gruber, chairman of the village board of Hoskins was tried to the court. The court found the defendant guilty and assessed his fine at $15 and costs.

The state vs. Fred Brueckner was tried to the court and Fred Brueckner furnished bond for $500 to keep the peace.

All of the above cases except the last it is understood will be appealed to the District Court. Arthur Koenigstein and H. F. Barnhardt, attorneys from Norfolk representing the defendants throughout the trial of the above cases.

The state was represented by County Attorney Kiplinger, who was assisted part of the time by attorneys A. R. Davis, F. S. Berry and H. E. Simon.

A New Picture House

F. A. Nance has purchased of Frank Gamble the lot just north of the Blair & Mulloy clothing house and will at once begin the erection of a modern, fire-proof motion picture house. Mr. Nance informs us that the new building will be 25x120 feet, and have a seating capacity of 450. The plans adopted will provide for a neat lobby and ticket office in mission finish with lights and finish of green. A sloping floor will make it so that all can view the stage, which will be ample. There will be two rear exits to be reached by a sloping aisle. The building is to be one story in height, but the walls will be 18 feet, and there will be a basement about 25x30 for heating plant. It promises to make a neat addition to Main street.

Council Holds Special Session

The mayor called the city council in special session to consider a protest entered by several citizens of block 15, which is in the east part of the city, against the Hylo Oil Co. erecting their tanks on a part of that block adjoining the railroad. After hearing both sides of the question and a full discussion of the pros and cons the council ignored the petition, and so far as they are concerned the tanks may be located there. The question of location for the tanks of this company has been the cause of considerable controversy, and the company have been tempted to locate at some other town on this account.

New Station at Wayne

The new passenger depot at this place is now practically completed and it is expected that the Railway company will receive it from the contractor this week ready for occupancy. The work of construction has moved forward rapidly since the building was started in June except for some delays while waiting for material which has occurred several times.

The George J. Grant Construction Co., of St. Paul, Minnesota, were awarded the contract for the building, and the excavation was sub-let to A. M. Helt of this city. A. J. Selly of St. Paul has been in charge of the construction work from the start, and now has the satisfaction of seeing this commodious building completed and ready for the public.

The building is 102x30 feet, the walls of brick resting on a heavy concrete foundation. The floors are tile and concrete except in the office where there is a floor of hard wood. The roof is shingled with asbestos shingle, making a building which is practically fire proof. A spacious platform of paving brick surrounds the entire building, and a cinder platform has been constructed a block west of the building for the transfer of baggage and express between main line and branch trains.

The new building is divided into a baggage room on the west, then a lobby leading from it and the north entrance to the main waiting room which is a large room ample for the needs, with seating capacity for nearly fifty persons. From this opens the ladies' waiting room to the east, and the office opens from the west end of the main waiting room. From the main waiting room opens the men's lavatory, modern in every respect, and a like room for ladies is entered from their waiting room.

The furniture is now all here except the sofa and rockers for the ladies room and they have been shipped and are expected at any time. The seats for the two waiting rooms are here, a car load of them, and they are in keeping with other surroundings. All rooms and the platform are well lighted by electricity, and the entire building is heated by hot water from a plant in the basement. A platform scale is fitted into the floor of the baggage room. There is also a little room from which trainmen register and secure orders.

Arrangements are being planned by the Commercial Club and the railway company for an opening, when the public will be entertained. The date for this event is not known at this writing, nor has the program been completed but when it comes, be there.

Did Not Organize

There was another meeting at the Kloppling school house Tuesday evening when a number of farmers in that neighborhood met with Mr. Woods, who is trying to form an organization here of the Farmers' Union. From the reports that come to us the organizer could not answer questions to the satisfaction of his hearers upon cross examination. The farmers are wise if they take plenty of time to carefully investigate fully all there is to such an organization before paying a membership fee and pledging dues or lending it their support. Beyond doubt there are abuses and extortion and needless expense and in some cases too much toll exacted by middlemen between producer and consumer, and all should be interested in eliminating needless expense, and in doing so be careful that you do not make the elimination in the wrong place. In our opinion, it is not the retail dealer who is getting the cream—and we would like to see a closer relation between the merchant and his patrons that would be advantageous to both and a check upon the non-producer who speculates in a wholesale manner in the necessities of life. The man or men who are trying to corner food stuffs and the products of both farm and factory.

Wayne County Cattle

There are few places where cattle feeding is more extensively followed than in this county, considering the size of the county and its comparative youth as a settled farming community—yet we believe that in competition with the world, Wayne county cattle are going to win a high place. This week the editor visited the feed lots of M. T. Munsinger just at the north edge of Wayne, where he has more than 100 head of fat cattle in feeding, and a better finished bunch is hard to find. From this lot Mr. Munsinger is selecting a car of 15 head of pure-bred Polled Angus and dressing their hair up so that they will show what they are, and will enter them in the 3-year-old class at the International Stock Show at Chicago this month. Mr. Munsinger has entered these contests before, and made a good showing, and is confident that he now has better cattle than ever he showed before, and feels that he will have a car load there which will be hard to beat scored from all points. Among the bunch is one particularly fine animal with which he will perhaps make a contest for the championship in the class.

E. R. Ashley of Tabor, Iowa, an experienced man, is now here in charge of the work of fitting the animals for show. This bunch of steers will be a big advertisement for Wayne whether they secure first place or not, and it seems that here is an opportunity for our commercial club to do a little good boosting work. Why not decorate the car in which these cattle ride to market and furnish banners to be used on their stalls at the show? It will place Wayne on the map in the eyes of thousands of feeders who otherwise would never know that there is such a place. We do not know how much advertising matter will be allowed about the cattle at the show, but Wayne county people should not miss the chance to make the most of it.

Not all of us can go to the great show, but it will pay any one living here who likes to see good cattle to visit the Munsinger feed lot within the next two weeks, before this fancy bunch leave—for they will not come back—Wayne people cannot afford to eat such high-priced meats, for as Lew Genung used to say, that is "export" stuff—good enough for the people of Europe.

Accident at Class Party

Friday evening the Freshman class of the High School were entertained at the home of E. A. Johnson and wife with Miss Izetta acting as hostess. It was a Halloween party, so all pranks were perhaps in order, but something not on the program happened the first thing to make all else look rather tame. When the party entered the house in a body the boys were sent to a room on the second floor to leave their wraps, and in a room occupied by Mr. Briggs, a young man rooming there, there was a revolver, which Dale Rickabaugh grabbed up with a flourish, and before the flourish was finished, Bang! and a bullet went into the fleshy part of Frances Moran's thigh, and then they were done with the revolver. Moran was at once taken to a physician who probed in vain for the bullet, and dressed the wound, which is healing nicely, and Moran is able to attend school again. It is thought that the bullet fell out at once, as a bullet was later found on the floor. The young man with the gun says that he did not know that he even touched the trigger. The shooting was purely accidental, nor did Mr. and Mrs. Johnson know that the firearm was there. When it was learned that no dangerous wound was inflicted the young folks proceeded with their party, which but for this would have been one of the most jolly of the festive evening.

A Little Blaze

The firemen were called out about nine o'clock Wednesday evening and had a run to the home of Adolph Frederickson, where fire was discovered in an enclosed porch which was used as a sort of a store room. As the porch was concrete, which did not burn and was enclosed in fire-proof roofing which did burn, and the fire did not get within the house proper, the loss was light and is fully covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Social Notes

The Sophomore class of the Wayne high school had a Halloween party at the home of Miss Neta Foster Friday evening. The committee on decorations had the house very beautifully decorated in black and orange draped from the chandelier to all corners of rooms. The parlor lights were shaded in red and the other rooms in green. Black cats and Jack 'o' lanterns adorned the walls and two large class pennants were in evidence. Appropriate games were played, one in which Miss Elizabeth Parry received a box of candy as a prize. During the evening four ghosts appeared and frightened everyone. These were soon unmasked and found to be the Misses Laura Conover, Rue Rickabaugh, Alice Jinks and Pearl Hughes. About thirty the refreshment committee served a delicious supper, the class colors, blue and canary, being carried out in the menu. A very good time is reported.

The members of the U. D. club and their better halves gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reynolds last Friday evening to participate in an old-fashioned Halloween party. The rooms were appropriately decorated in Jack 'o' lanterns, black cats and witches, which altogether, presented a pretty appearance. Mrs. Wm. Morris, in the garb of a witch told fortunes, predicting many things for those who came to get a glimpse into the future. Guessing games and contests in harmony with the occasion furnished much merriment. A delicious luncheon, consisting of a Welch Rabbit and other dainties was served at an appropriate hour. A full attendance was present and report a most delightful evening.

Two of the Sunday school classes of the Baptist Sunday school were happily entertained Halloween night at the home of S. C. Kopp and wife in the north part of the city. Two of their daughters being members of the Christi-Opus class, who were joined by members of the E. Q. V. class, making a gathering of twenty-five or thirty young people. Messrs. Ernest Piplett and Homer Meade of Winside were out of town guests. Rev. B. P. Richardson, pastor of the church, was present for a short time and gave a short prayer. The evening was spent in games, which were enjoyed by all, and when the guests departed after, partaking of a delicious two-course luncheon, each one expressed the pleasure they had felt at being there.

It was a jolly stag party that gathered in the Model Pharmacy grill rooms Monday evening to do honor to our fellow townsman, Samuel Davies, it being a consolation supper won by Sam from Fred Blair during the automobile contest last spring. Mr. Blair was the host, and right royally did he entertain a party of six young men. On the menu were all of the delicacies of the season, beginning with oysters and chicken and ending with cream and cake after which the toast master took charge of the ceremonies and gave all an opportunity to orate. The event will long be remembered by those who participated.

On last Friday evening Mrs. A. A. Welch, who had been awaiting the arrival of a new Cedar Chest, was pleasantly surprised by a number of her thoughtful lady friends, who called to give her a miscellaneous shower. Towels, handkerchiefs, and many dainty bits of linen and needlework were given to her, each article being accompanied with an appropriate verse. A pleasant social hour was then spent followed by light refreshments and the ladies left their hostess feeling more than grateful to her thoughtful friends who had thus remembered her.

Miss Dora Lewis was the charming hostess to the Bridge club last Friday evening when, in harmony with the season, the home was appropriately arranged in Halloween style. Jack 'o' Lanterns were much in evidence and to add to the merriment of the occasion the members came in costume. Bridge was played, six tables being occupied. At a suitable hour Halloween refreshments were served. A very nice evening is reported.

The Monday club enjoyed a most interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. T. B. Heckert this week.

Roll call consisted of "Natural Curiosities of America." A paper on the National Park of America was read by Mrs. Kiplinger and Mrs. Beebe gave an excellent article on "What Women Should Know About Business" which was followed by a general discussion. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Marsteller.

Mrs. A. P. Gossard entertained the Bible Study Circle Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. J. G. Mines led the interesting lesson which was freely discussed by all present. The session closed with a vocal selection by Mrs. Lewis. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Dayton and all are cordially invited.

The Acme's met for their regular lesson at the home of Mrs. Mines Monday afternoon when the topic consisted of Domestic Science. An instructive paper on "Meats" was given by Mrs. J. T. Bressler followed by a general discussion. Mrs. Jacobs will be hostess to the club next week.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church entertained informally at the home of Mrs. Gamble Monday evening in honor of Mrs. Funston of South Dakota, a former Wayne resident. The hours were spent in sociability and visiting. Mesdames Phillee and Harrington were visitors.

The Eastern Star had a very good meeting last evening when Sister Roper of University Place conducted a school of instruction. This was followed by initiation exercises, two new members being admitted. Light refreshments were served.

The Wayne Choral union have taken up the rehearsal of their recital number "The Prodigal Son." After rehearsal Tuesday evening they were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson where a social hour was spent and light refreshments served.

V. A. Senter and family report a pleasant time at the Fred H. Martin home north of Wayne where they were entertained Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Martin are comparatively new people in this vicinity, this being their first season in this county, but they like it much here.

The Bridge club will have no meeting this week, owing to the absence of so many members who are in attendance at the Teachers convention in Omaha. Miss Helen McNeal will be hostess next week.

About eighteen couples tripped the light fantastic at the city hall last Friday evening when the ghosts were supposed to be walking. Nance's orchestra furnished splendid music and a delightful time was had.

The Helping Hand society will entertain their husbands and friends Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Adam Grier. Their meeting to have been held last week being postponed.

The Shakespear club met with Miss Nettie Craven Tuesday evening and took up the study of King Henry V. A good attendance was present and a good meeting held.

The Junior Bible Circle will meet with Mary Meyer at the Methodist parsonage Friday night and a fine time is expected. Acts 10, is the chapter for study.

The next meeting of the Westminster Guild will be held with Miss Bettcher at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kemp.

The U. D. club will meet with Mrs. Ray Reynolds for their regular meeting Monday afternoon.

The ladies of St. Mary's Guild are meeting at the home of Mrs. Pryor this afternoon.

The P. E. O. had a meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. M. S. Davies.

Mrs. C. A. Grothe will be hostess to the Minerva club next Tuesday.

 Cy Sitton of Carroll was among the few who fared well at the land lottery. We did not see his name among those that drew land, but the Carroll Index says he took his gun along and bagged 16 prairie chickens and 5 ducks. Why should he worry—most of the fellows who made the pilgrimage paid their own expenses and got nothing.
 Tariff and Currency reform place a blight upon business and cause a slump in the prices of stocks and bonds and other securities, but land values depend upon the ownership and upon the location. The Christensen land which will be sold Saturday, November 8th, is well located but its ownership must be changed. You will be lucky if you buy it for you will buy it at your own price.—adv.

 The statement is not contradicted that Lincoln is a city of home owners—to a greater extent than perhaps any city of its size in the country. And it is the building and loan associations organized and maintained there which are responsible for this condition. It is for the reason that a local association helps make a city of home owners that the Democrat has agitated the question with more or less regularity.
 Last Saturday afternoon Electrician Ed Merrill was up one of the light poles near the court house to change the lamp in a street light when the pole broke and fell with him. He was lucky enough to not land on the bottom, and escaped with a bruise of the right leg below the knee and something of a shaking up. He will not probably care to try a trip in a flying machine after taking this sort of a ride. The flying is all right if one don't light too hard.
 Roy Fisher of Winside went to Red Oak, Iowa, Monday to visit a few days. While at the depot here he told the Democrat man that he is planning to make an exhibit of Hampshire swine at the International stock show at Chicago the last of this month, if he can make his plans work out. Mr. Fisher has a fine bunch of these "Holstein" marked porkers, one may judge, from the fact that he captured nearly 100 ribbons this season at four or five state and inter-state fairs.
 D. A. Jones unloaded another car of stock hogs for his farms here last week. We venture the assertion that there is not another county in the state of anything like the size of Wayne county that will fatten as much stock as this county the coming season. To be sure the loss of hogs here has made it necessary to ship in more than usual this season, but the short crop in other portions of the state has made it easy to buy plenty not far from home. But prices have ranged high never-the-less.
 W. B. Patton's newest play "Lazy Bill" is proving to be the best comely success of the season, and in the quaint character of Dr. Bill Hale, Mr. Patton is a delight, and is making more new friends and admirers than ever before. It is a wonderfully satisfying artistic creation, and possesses all of the human qualities that are necessary to create interest and admiration. Good plays and good acting are so rare nowadays that everybody who cares for the stage at all should by all means see this meritorious performance at the opera house one night only, Monday, November 10.
 L. M. Owen purchased a car of good feeders at Sioux City the first of the week, and brought them in Monday morning. They are a fine bunch and when fed out will be something choice. Mr. Owen said they were the highest priced feeders he ever owned—but while he could have bought for fifty cents a hundred less than he paid for this bunch he considers that he secured the cheapest cattle, all things considered. He says corn is too high to throw into a hide over a bunch of bones and not much else—that those who grow cattle at least should start with some good blood, and that when the feeders let stock that does not show good breeding alone then will there be better bred cattle. He is right about it too.
 The land to be sold at Auction Saturday, November 8th, is owned jointly by C. M. and Wm. Christensen and the sale is made necessary by the removal of one of these gentlemen and a consequent dissolution of a partnership.—adv.

 M. D. Reynolds says:—
 This is to certify that I have been a great sufferer from Rheumatism since 1894. Contracted the disease while working with a snow plow on the railroad. For several years I have been obliged to use crutches a great part of the time. Having used three boxes of the Meritol Rheumatism Powders, I have thrown away the crutches and am now almost fully recovered. It certainly has done wonders for me and I heartily recommend it. M. D. Cleaned From Democrat's Exchanges

With plenty of booze at Emerson they are still boring for water. Some people are hard to satisfy.

The Lyons Mirror is thirty years old, and the present editor has presided over its destiny for 23 years of that time.

The A. O. U. W. at Creighton have recently made a growth of about thirty members, taking in a class of twenty at one time.

There are to be nineteen farmer institutes held in this state this month, and they will do much to improve farm conditions another year.

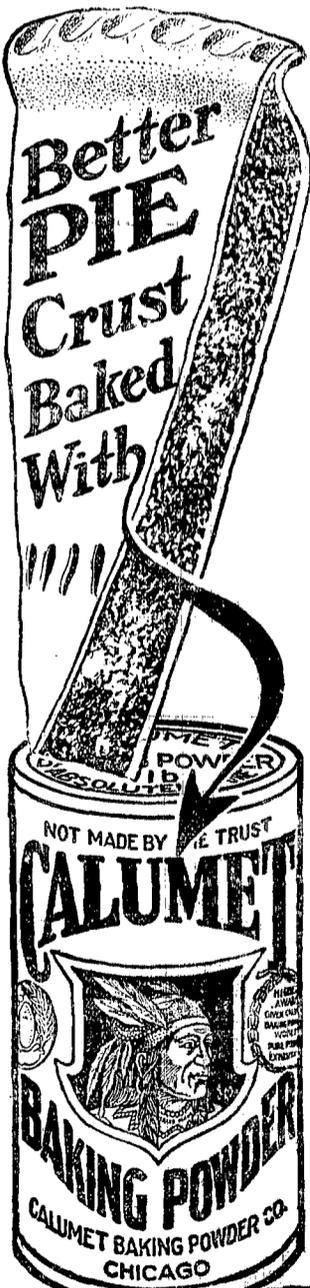

The Nebraska Government land lottery is history but the arrival of the Cabbage car in town only marks an important epoch in the history of Wayne.—adv.

The Randolph high school has a class of thirty in its normal training department. The state pays to high schools maintaining a normal training department $350 per year.

The system of landlordism means soil depletion and poverty. You can own your own home at your own price if you attend Christensen's land sale, Saturday, November 8th.—adv.

Edward Morris, of the Morris Packing company of Chicago, is dead. He was 47 years of age and thus in shortened years he paid the penalty of amassing a fortune which could not be written in less than eight figures.

Rev. Garret Janssen, who is conducting revival meetings at Hartington is said to not be making much headway. Ill health and bad weather have almost depopulated his meetings. He should advertise. If printer's ink won't bring them in to seek salvation they must have been fore-ordained to remain out of the fold.

Better cookies, cake and biscuits, too. All as light, fluffy, tender and delicious as mother used to bake. And just as wholesome. For pure Baking Powder than Calumet cannot be had at any price. Ask your grocer.

You don't save money when you buy cheap or big-can baking powder. Don't be misled. Buy Calumet. It's not economical—more wholesome—gives best results. Calumet is far superior to some milk and soda.

Superintendent Miller of Cedar county has visited 88 of the 112 schools in that county.

The income tax law went into effect Saturday, and the most of us can be thankful that it does not get into our pocketbook.

The merchant who wants the newspapers of his town to shout themselves hoarse calling out the early Christmas shopper, should remember that the early Christmas advertiser is the man who gets as much benefit as the early shopper.

Ludwig Kummerfeldt, 13 years old, was found dead at the edge of a creek Saturday afternoon, near Tilden, apparently having been seized with an epileptic fit and fallen head foremost, face downward, into five inches of water and thus drowned. His body was out on the bank.

Creighton is having an epidemic of small pox. There are a number of cases in town and no one knows how many are exposed. Business houses are fumigated, and houses quarantined. Neglect a month ago when the first cases were discovered is said to be responsible for the present condition.

There are so many accidents and chances in our lives that a wise man knows no more about tomorrow afternoon than a fool. But wise and foolish alike know that the value of the land which Christensen Bros. sell at the auction Saturday, November 8th will increase in value each year. Its increase helps only the man who buys it that day.—adv.

Corn husking is progressing fine in this locality and many farmers are nearly done. Another week of good weather and three fourths of the corn will be in the crib. The corn crop of Stanton county is better than last year and the price is twenty to twenty-five cents higher. Surely the farmers have no kick coming this year.—Pilger Herald

Yet Canada may ship her corn in free. The new Nebraska school law does not leave it to the school officers of a district to say how little school they shall have, but makes a certain amount at least mandatory upon the board. The length of school in the different districts depends upon the number of pupils. Where the school population is greatest there must be the most school, if they would get the state apportionment.

The editor of the Democrat did not dream that he was going to start a "brain-spasm" two weeks ago when he innocently suggested to the "Brain Storm" man of the Pender Republic that a postoffice election might bring relief to the monotony which Brother Hughes expressed feeling because there is no election in Nebraska this fall—but it did, one of the worst we have noticed for several moons.

Homer has a new system of waterworks just installed. They have a reservoir which when full, gives a 45 pound pressure in the business part of the city without the aid of the pump, and will throw water to a height of thirty feet. Some time when a fire starts and a lot of property saved they will realize how wise they have been in this move. They should now organize a fire company so as to have a head to take command in case of fire.

Over 76,000 people registered for land at the recent government lottery. Those most familiar with its district contend that almost none of this land is worth the cost of filing, but this registration shows the scarcity of land in the United States and the land hunger of her citizens. The wiser man will avail himself of the opportunity to buy the land adjoining Wayne which will be sold by Christensen Bros., and at the purchasers's own price, Saturday, November 8th.—adv.

With eggs selling at 25c per dozen in Emerson and from 30 to 35c in the cities—and over 8,000,000 dozen more eggs in storage now than at the same time last year, there appears to be something decidedly rotten in Denmark or all the eggs in cold storage are rotten. But seriously—just as long as the people allow the trusts to corner all the food stuff of the country, just so long will the prices of necessities sail beyond the reach of the average citizen.—Emerson Enterprise.

They are raising more alfalfa in the vicinity of Tekamah than they feed and shipping it out in car lots. This causes them to think they need an alfalfa meal mill there. That is possible; but here in this county the farmers have been importing alfalfa mills by the thousands, and they are daily grinding alfalfa, corn and other feeds and putting it into marketable shape in the form of cattle, sheep and hogs. The grinding power used is the nearest approach to perpetual motion that has ever yet been discovered.

The Time to Settle Down

The Wallace Farmer gives the following article on present day unrest:

"A boy never does much good in anything until he has settled down to his life work. While he thinks one day that he will be a lawyer, another day a doctor, another perhaps a preacher, and then concludes that after all he had better stay on the farm, he is not likely to do much. He will not work to much purpose until he has definitely fixed on his vocation in life and settles down. A young man in search of a wife is not likely to make such progress as long as he is undecided as to which one of two or three girls he will honor with a proposal, and ascertain whether the one thus honored consider it a real honor.

The farmers of the United States have been playing leap frog over each other for over a hundred years, in fact, ever since the Revolution. First it was from Pennsylvania to Ohio, or as it was then called "the Ohio," giving the impression of a great, undefined country. Then it was to Indiana, to Illinois, to Iowa, to Nebraska and Kansas, to Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, to Wyoming, Colorado and Montana, and of late years to Canada or to the Pacific coast or the inter-mountain state or perhaps Texas.

One time a farmer told us about a certain cow that he had. If he put her in a new pasture, after she had satisfied her appetite, she proceeded to take the range of the field, and then of the farm, going around and around near the fence. Then she had the strange delusion that any grass on the other side of the fence was a little better than that inside, and proceeded to break her way through the fence, leading the herd with her. "That cow," said the farmer, "is a nuisance."

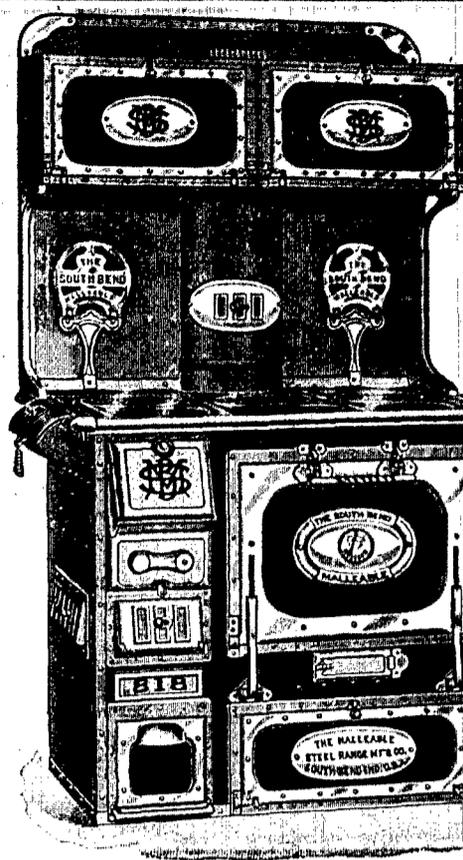

Farmers have been acting on about the same principle. One of the main objects of their moving was to secure greater value for the same or less money. We have come now to about the end of our tether. There may be some advantages, there may be some cheaper lands in the South, or lands of even greater value; but there are conditions attached—change of climate, change of crops, change of society. This holds true whether we go north, south, east or west from the particular state in which we may be living.

Farmers should understand that the good land watered by the rain from heaven has long since passed out of the hands of the government, and largely out of the hands of speculators as well, and that there are no great bargains anywhere. It is time they learned that every state and every particular part of a state has its advantages and its disadvantages as well; and that the value of land in these states will largely be determined by the management of the owner. Prices may vary. They always have and always will; but value, that is, its producing power as measured in bushels or tons, is reasonably stable. The value as measured in dollars may not be stable, because prices, or the exchange value of farm products for dollars, may vary; but the intrinsic capacity for production is stable. There is a potential value that may be greater than present value; but that again depends on the ability of the farmer to realize this potential value.

As it is at present, we are scarcely farming at all. We are simply, like the prodigal son, marketing the stored fertility of the ages, which is more like mining than farming. There is an end to this. Our lands are wearing out more rapidly than people realize; else why should we, with the best soils in the world, get less bushels and tons per acre than any other civilized country except Russia and India?

It is time for us to settle down to farming. It is time for us to realize that the value of land depends more than anything else on the men who farm it. Prices may vary, but the value of land is reasonably stable and varies mainly with the manifest capacity and ability of the man who tills it.

Any of the states we have mentioned are good enough. The value the land will have depends on how well they are cultivated. When we become satisfied and believe that we are in a good pasture and that there is plenty of it, we will begin to farm in earnest. We will rotate our crops; will introduce live stock; will be fair and honest with the land. When we do this we will have abundant and genuine prosperity, no matter what political party is in power, no matter what competition from other countries there may be. We have the land, the climate and the market; and if we fail, it is because we are wandering, wavering, dissatisfied creatures, incapable of becoming good farmers.

To Improve Pretty Hair and Beautify Ugly Hair

Harmony Hair Beautifier, a delightful liquid hair dressing, is just what it is named—a hair beautifier. No matter how pretty your hair now is, it can be made to look even better by using Harmony Hair Beautifier. To those who mourn because the hair is stringy, dull, lusterless and homely, Harmony Hair Beautifier will prove a real blessing and pleasure. It seems to polish and burnish the hair, making it glossy, silky-soft and more easy to put up in graceful, wavy folds that "stay put." It overcomes the oily smell of the hair with a dainty, true-rose fragrance, very pleasing to the user and those around.

Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laboratories in Boston, where the many celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made.—Shultheis Pharmacy, Wayne.—adv.

David Rankin made millions in farm lands and said "No man who sells his farm today and engages in another business will ever have money enough to buy the farm back." Was he right? You set the price on the land which Christensen Bros. offer at auction sale Saturday, November 8th.—adv.

In the extreme southern part of Des Moines, where the town changes to the country, is a three-room school, where agriculture has been taught for a year and a half. The parents of most of the children live on five or ten-acre plots of land. Mr. Atchly, the principal of this school, started his agricultural work a little over a year ago. The start was so promising that the school authorities have bought for him two acres of land at $800 an acre. On these two acres he hopes next year to give each child a plot. Naturally, most attention will be paid to the raising of vegetables, fruit and chickens, for it is to this type of farming that the district is mostly devoted. An exhibit was made of the work in the fall and a large number of parents came to look it over and in the evening they talked over some of the problems of their school. They expressed themselves as much pleased with the start made in teaching agriculture, and said that they hoped to see more done next year.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded

Ralph Johnson was accidentally shot by Roy Beach at Creighton last week with a revolver which Beach did not know was loaded. The two were sitting in a car at Bristow where they are working on the section, and were looking at the revolver. It was unloaded at one time, but later Johnson, unknown to Beach loaded it, Beach again took it when it exploded. The bullet struck Johnson just below the lip and entered his mouth striking his back teeth which stopped its course. He was able to remove it himself. A number of his teeth were loosened and some were knocked out.

ALL A REPUBLICAN DEFEAT

Returns From Tuesday Elections Show That Democracy Has Lost Nothing in Popular Estimation the Past Year

While we had no election in Nebraska this year there has been a battle of ballots in several states and the returns show that the democratic administration at Washington has been endorsed more unanimously than any party in power has been favored the year following its accession to the presidency.

In New York city the fusion forces, which were favored by the progressive or democratic democrats won hands down, the plurality for Mitchell is placed at 110,000 in New York city. Tammany and Murphy have suffered an ignominious defeat at the hands of the combined forces.

Sulzer, who Murphy of Tammany succeeded in ousting from the governor's chair was placed in nomination by the fusion forces as a member of the assembly, from the 20th district, and elected by large majority. The political complexion of the next assembly is so mixed that it is possible that a fusionist may be elected speaker, and Sulzer's friends claim the honor may fall upon him.

In New Jersey James F. Fielder, the democratic nominee for governor won by a plurality of 22,000 over C. E. Stokes, the republican candidate.

In Maryland, where the fight was on the election of a United States Senator the people who for the first time in the history of the state had a chance to name a senator, elected Blair Lee, democrat by a large majority, his plurality being something like 80,000, and the legislature of the state is democratic by a large majority.

The democratic landslide in Massachusetts carried Walsh the democratic nominee through with a plurality of more than 50,000. There were four candidates in the field in the Bay state fight. The progressive candidate was second, the republican third in the race, and Governor Foss who is and who ran without a party was last and least. The republicans lost heavily in the next legislature, but may be able to control it.

You can't eat your cake and keep it too—you cannot slaughter the calves and eat veal and baby beef and at the same time propagate great herds of feeders to go onto the block at full maturity and full size—you cannot market your heifers and at the same time meet an increasing demand for beef. If good business common sense is not sufficient to protect the calves let us have a law to do so.

Our friend Albert Cummins, senator from Iowa, has a new currency plan. Albert is long on plans that never materialize. He springs a new one when something is about to be done that his owners, the interests, do not want finished—and if enough votes can be thus sidetracked Cummins has earned his salary for that month.

Will reforms never end while Wilson is president? There is now talk of stopping the pay of congressmen and senators who do not give their time to legislation when congress is in session. Why not?

The monied men who are hit by the income tax complain that this is a tax which they cannot hang onto the producer or pass on to the consumer—and that is simply minus II for the poor monopolist.

Sutton Bank Closes Doors

The First National bank at Sutton closed its doors Tuesday and the bank examiner, Floyd Seybolt, says the cause was due to defalcations of the president of the bank, M. L. Luebbon. This is said to be the first failure of a national bank in Nebraska in 15 years.

Blanche Worth entertained about a dozen of her friends at a Halloween party last Friday evening. The hours were spent in playing games and light refreshments were served.

The children in district No. 6 gave a short program last Tuesday afternoon which closes the school for the rest of the week. The teacher, Mary Williams, went to Omaha to attend the teachers' meeting.

Keep Wayne Clean

Our citizens should co-operate with the members of the city council in their effort to make Wayne a better, prettier and cleaner city. At this season of the year the temptation is to throw ashes out in the streets and allies, and while this is a violation of the city ordinance and could be handled by those in authority with an iron rule the council much prefers to have the citizens take upon themselves the duty of seeing that the ordinance is enforced so far as their individual ash pile is concerned. This rule is one that the editor has been violating for the past two years without knowing it and while he has had his ashes hauled away without expense to the city the alley has been used for dumping ground until convenient to haul out. Let's reform.

Teachers at Omaha

To tell the names of the teachers of our city schools who are at Omaha this week would be to name them all from Superintendent to Primary with the exception of two who have special work. They all went to see the fun and learn the latest and best methods of imparting knowledge.

Of the college force as many are in attendance as can possibly get away and keep the school running—so those who remain are doing double duty for three days. Among those who went were: President Conn, Registrar Redmond, Professors Hahn, Lackey, Coleman, Britel and Huntimer, the two last named being accompanied by their wives and the Misses Pier, Kingsbury and Beechel.

An Ideal Dairy Farm

With butter from 30 to 35 cents per pound and 20 acres of alfalfa fenced hog tight in two fields you can just imagine what you can do on the Christensen farm with 10 or 15 good milk cows and 200 head of hogs. There is a golden opportunity for this kind of a proposition at Wayne and on this basis the farm in question will pay good interest on a $200 per acre investment.

In the case of Harry B. Murphy at Sioux City this week, charged with violating the white slave law the jury failed to reach an agreement and were discharged last evening after being out 24 hours. It seems to be the opinion that Murphy was guilty, but that the jurors thought the penalty of the law too severe. The case will now go over to the May term, and Murphy is returned to jail to await that time.

Decision of Character

Decision of character is one bright golden apple which every young person should strive in the beginning to pluck from the tree of life.

Nice For the Teacher

Tommy had broken one of the school rules, and the teacher told him to tell his mother about it and also about the punishment he had received. She thought his mother might thrash him again. The next morning she asked, "Well, Tommy, did you tell your mother about your bad behavior yesterday and how I punished you?" "Yes, ma'am," said Tommy quickly. "Well, what did your mother say?" "Said she'd like to wring your neck," replied Tommy calmly.

A Lost Cigar

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan smoked large black and costly cigars. They were made of a particularly dark and fragrant leaf grown on his own estates in the Santa Clara province of Cuba. These cigars were very valuable and were highly prized by any of Mr. Morgan's friends who were lucky enough to get a few.

Here is a story as he told it himself: "One day I was going aboard my yacht in New York when I found I had nothing to light my cigar with. I stopped one of the men on the pier and asked him for a match, which he gave me readily. In return for his courtesy I handed him one of my cigars, which I think a good deal of. "He accepted it promptly. 'Thanks,' he said; 'I was just out of tobacco.' Then he broke it into little bits and began to stuff it into his pipe!"

Gave the Price

A wealthy New York syndicate determined that it would be much to the furtherance of some large plans in hand if it could purchase the New York Herald.

So a cable was sent to James Gordon-Bennett: "Please wire best price for which you will sell New York Herald." That evening the answer came: "Daily, 3 cents; Sunday, 5 cents." "JAMES GORDON BENNETT."

Where the Blame Lies

Governor Francis McGovern of Wisconsin tells this one:

"A representative of Illinois, who never lost an opportunity to expatiate upon the glories and material prospects of Chicago, was one day holding forth in his usual strain when he touched upon the part played by the railroads in that prosperity.

"Statistics show," declared the member from Illinois, "that 1,150 trains arrive daily in Chicago. These trains, run by some twenty odd companies, carry over 105,000 passengers. The railroads have undeniably been a strong factor in making Chicago what it is today."

"Whereupon a senator from New York smilingly interjected: "That's an awful charge to prefer against the railways!"—Lippincott's.

Painfully Frank

A somewhat parsimonious couple in Edinburgh invited a friend to dine with them on a Monday, and when the joint was laid on the table it proved to be the remains of Sunday's roast heated up, whereupon the guest remarked that this appeared to be "an' auld frien' with a new face." This, however, did not prevent his doing justice to the fare provided, and upon departing he said, "Well, good night; I've had an enjoyable evening, and you have always the consolation that it hasn't cost you much."

A Tale of the Three Cities

By CLARISSA MACKIE

At that point where the River Han empties into the great Yangtze are the Three Cities, each crouching behind its high wall. On the south bank of the Yangtze is Wuchang. On the north bank of the river and separated by the busy little Han are Hanyang and Hankow. Along the river front at the lower end of the city of Hankow are situated the foreign concessions, with their protecting warships in the stream.

There is a saying that whatever evil is plotted in one city finds effect in the second and is avenged in the third of the Three Cities.

It remained for Cecil Rollins, English agent at Hankow, and his American friend, G. P. Bardwell of Shanghai, to discover the truth of this adage. This story might never have been written if Rollins had not kicked his Chinese caddy one September day out on the Hankow golf course.

Of course Lan Ping had been often kicked by various masters, for he openly invited chastisement by his idleness and stupidity. Today he had failed to retrieve Rollins' ball when the sphere had sailed out of bounds, and only the aforementioned kick had aroused him from a squinting stare at the smoke hanging over the arsenal. Instantly, as though the kick had actually impelled him in the proper direction, Lan Ping trotted after the ball.

"Idiot!" fumed Rollins impatiently. "What else can you expect from a cross eyed Chinese?" yawned G. P. Bardwell.

Rollins lifted a blond eyebrow. "I'm not superstitious that way," he grunted. "Fact, combined with what is simmering yonder," Bardell nodded toward the city.

"Smoldering? Well, it's rotten hot out here, too!" ejaculated the Briton. "I don't mean that sort of heat. Your caddy is more absorbed in watching for the broth to bubble over than he is in chasing your golf balls."

"What broth?" "The revolutionary kind."

"Bah! Do you believe that rubbish? I had the notion you had lived in China long enough to take these local theatricals at their face value."

"I do. That's why I'm here now. Do you know, Rollins, I've more than a smattering of the language, and during the week I've been here in Hankow I've heard things. Man, things are going to happen right now—right here!"

"Eh? What? When? Blankety blank!" As these words exploded off Rollins' tongue he glared down at the lean and yellow hand that insinuated itself at his elbow. The yellow hand held the missing golf ball.

Even the self contained Bardwell looked disturbed when he realized that Lan Ping might have been standing there unseen for several minutes, long enough to absorb the meaning of what the foreigners had said. Not that much had been said on either side, only there are times when even a faint interest in secret affairs is highly imprudent.

This was one of the times, for China was on the eve of turning over and awakening from her long sleep.

The smoke hanging over the arsenal where half naked men worked day and night might be one indication of the stirring of the ancient empire.

The sun was setting and the gray of early twilight had clouded the golf course when the two friends gathered up their clubs and moved toward the stables.

"China never will wake up," yawned Cecil Rollins as he looked around for a Chinese to fetch his horse, but the stables were deserted, even to the very horses, as was proved when the two men looked inside.

"This is a bally fix!" growled Rollins. "Lan Ping, of course," was Bardwell's comment. "Come along, Rollins. We'll have to foot it in."

The two men left the clubhouse and went down the road that led to the city. Off to the northwest where the railroad turned to the north there was a strange confusion of sounds. They had yet to learn that the first note of the revolution had been sounded. The locomotive whose shriek they had heard a short while before had found torn up tracks and met disaster beyond the city walls. Rebels were rejoicing over the wreck of the passenger train and the many victims of the catastrophe.

Darkness had settled over the road. Here and there a lamp swinging from its wooden post cast a feeble radius of light. Halfway down the road there crossed another road at right angles. This road, leading to Hanyang by devious ways, was darker than the road to the golf course. Just as they reached the junction of the two roads something happened.

At that point where the River Han empties into the great Yangtze are the Three Cities, each crouching behind its high wall. On the south bank of the Yangtze is Wuchang. On the north bank of the river and separated by the busy little Han are Hanyang and Hankow. "Smoldering? Well, it's rotten hot out here, too!" ejaculated the Briton. "I don't mean that sort of heat. Your caddy is more absorbed in watching for the broth to bubble over than he is in chasing your golf balls."

"What broth?" "The revolutionary kind."

"Bah! Do you believe that rubbish? I had the notion you had lived in China long enough to take these local theatricals at their face value."

"I do. That's why I'm here now. Do you know, Rollins, I've more than a smattering of the language, and during the week I've been here in Hankow I've heard things. Man, things are going to happen right now—right here!"

"Eh? What? When? Blankety blank!" As these words exploded off Rollins' tongue he glared down at the lean and yellow hand that insinuated itself at his elbow. The yellow hand held the missing golf ball.

Even the self contained Bardwell looked disturbed when he realized that Lan Ping might have been standing there unseen for several minutes, long enough to absorb the meaning of what the foreigners had said. Not that much had been said on either side, only there are times when even a faint interest in secret affairs is highly imprudent.

This was one of the times, for China was on the eve of turning over and awakening from her long sleep.

The smoke hanging over the arsenal where half naked men worked day and night might be one indication of the stirring of the ancient empire.

The sun was setting and the gray of early twilight had clouded the golf course when the two friends gathered up their clubs and moved toward the stables.

"China never will wake up," yawned Cecil Rollins as he looked around for a Chinese to fetch his horse, but the stables were deserted, even to the very horses, as was proved when the two men looked inside.

"This is a bally fix!" growled Rollins. "Lan Ping, of course," was Bardwell's comment. "Come along, Rollins. We'll have to foot it in."

The two men left the clubhouse and went down the road that led to the city. Off to the northwest where the railroad turned to the north there was a strange confusion of sounds. They had yet to learn that the first note of the revolution had been sounded. The locomotive whose shriek they had heard a short while before had found torn up tracks and met disaster beyond the city walls. Rebels were rejoicing over the wreck of the passenger train and the many victims of the catastrophe.

Darkness had settled over the road. Here and there a lamp swinging from its wooden post cast a feeble radius of light. Halfway down the road there crossed another road at right angles. This road, leading to Hanyang by devious ways, was darker than the road to the golf course. Just as they reached the junction of the two roads something happened.

At that point where the River Han empties into the great Yangtze are the Three Cities, each crouching behind its high wall. On the south bank of the Yangtze is Wuchang. On the north bank of the river and separated by the busy little Han are Hanyang and Hankow. Along the river front at the lower end of the city of Hankow are situated the foreign concessions, with their protecting warships in the stream.

There is a saying that whatever evil is plotted in one city finds effect in the second and is avenged in the third of the Three Cities.

It remained for Cecil Rollins, English agent at Hankow, and his American friend, G. P. Bardwell of Shanghai, to discover the truth of this adage. This story might never have been written if Rollins had not kicked his Chinese caddy one September day out on the Hankow golf course.

Of course Lan Ping had been often kicked by various masters, for he openly invited chastisement by his idleness and stupidity. Today he had failed to retrieve Rollins' ball when the sphere had sailed out of bounds, and only the aforementioned kick had aroused him from a squinting stare at the smoke hanging over the arsenal.

LAND OF MIRAGES

Death Valley and Its Treacherous Lures of Beauty.

WORK OF A GOOD SAMARITAN.

Beck, the Prospector, Who Has Made the Desert Bloom With Guideposts Pointing the Way to Water and Saved Many Men From Death.

In the American Magazine is an article about Lew Westcott Beck, who is known as the "good Samaritan of Death valley." He and his dog, Rufus, have saved many prospectors from a horrible death by making the desert blossom with guideposts showing the way to water. The following is an extract from the article:

"Time was when Beck was a plain prospector in the Cripple Creek country. He was in on the diggings at Leadville, and he panned around in Montana awhile. Likewise he rushed into the Big Horn at the time of the mineral strike there, but he never struck a lead that made him rich."

"Eventually he drifted down through Nevada and into Death valley, chasing rainbows. Wild rumors about 'Death Valley' Scotty's big find in that section electrified the country, and scores of prospectors rushed into the desert, expecting to make their fortune in a few days. Beck was among those present."

"There were several in Beck's party. They hiked many miles through the mirage land, finding nothing worth while and worrying constantly lest they exhaust their supply of water. For two days they sought water holes, and when out of water they went for hours with tongues swollen and lips parched from want of moisture. Then when death seemed inevitable they suddenly discovered a tiny stream trickling out of a canyon at the base of the Panamint mountains."

"When Beck returned to civilization he was a changed man. He had seen sands that were strewn with skulls, and that sight had put a big idea into his head."

"Come spring, and Beck made another trip through Death valley. At his side was a Newfoundland dog. The prospector carried a bundle of tin strips. They were signboards to guide the wanderers' steps aright."

"Each summer since then the prospector and his dog have made a journey to the land of the purple mist, piling up rocks and attaching signs to them, searching for lost travelers and incidentally keeping a lookout for a piece of precious metal. Once or twice Rufus has led his master to prospectors who, after long suffering from thirst, had fallen upon the burning sands to die."

"In signboarding the desert Beck has saved a number of thirst mad rainbow chasers and has also in remote districts stumbled upon the bleaching bones of dead men who may have found fortunes in the silver sulphuret district, but who did not live to tell the world about it. At one time he assisted at the burial of four men who died of thirst within two miles of a spring."

"The country that Beck traverses is the most arid section of the American continent—a dreary stretch of hundreds of miles of desert, dotted here and there with foothills, buttes, dry creek beds, chaparral, prickly pear and sagebrush. Springs are miles upon miles apart. Most of them are bitterly alkaline, and some are poison."

"On an ordinary summer afternoon the thermometer runs up to about 134 degrees in the shade out in Death valley, and the most unpleasant thing about it is that there is a dearth of shade. When man ventures out upon this trackless expanse the shimmering heat dazes him, the scarcity of water crazes him, and the mirage—treacherous, lying thing of beauty that it seems ever before him, flashing upon the canvas of his mind's eye a verdant valley, gorgeously green with growing things, fresh with flowers, wet with water and waiting to welcome him."

"He can see grassy hill slopes just ahead, and the mirrored lake appears to be just beyond some beckoning meadow. He follows on and on and afterward drains the last drop from his canteen. Then his throat becomes parched, his tongue cleaves to the roof of his mouth, and strange things pass before his eyes. The buzzards begin to soar over him, and the coyotes sit upon their hunkers and watch him chase rainbows until he pitches forward upon his face and closes his eyes upon a world that is too mysterious and merciless for him to linger in longer."

Song of a Little River. There's no music like a little river's. It plays the same tune (and that's the favorite) over and over again, and yet it does not weary of it like men fiddlers. It takes the mind out of doors, and, though we should be grateful for good houses there is, after all, no house like God's out of doors. And, lastly, sir, it quiets a man down like saying his prayers.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

The 1913 Rye Crop

Nebraska farmers devoted 159,817 acres to rye in 1913, according to the figures compiled by the state board of agriculture. The average yield per acre was 19.57 bushels and the total crop is estimated at 3,128,433. The market value, computing the yield at 60 cents a bushel, is $1,877,138.16.

With its hundreds of laughs, its quaint sentiment and dramatic intensity, W. B. Patton's newest play "Lazy Bill" is proving to be a play of remarkable drawing powers. The story of the piece is new and entertaining, presenting an entirely original thought in dramatic possibilities. The character of Dr. Bill Hale (Lazy Bill) as portrayed by Mr. Patton, in his own inimitable way, is one of the most quaintly original and lovable types he has ever given us. The part becomes alive with wit and humor, with a touch of pathos, and no one need be ashamed of the tears that will occasionally force themselves. The engagement here is announced for Monday, November 10, and as usual, Mr. Patton will be greeted by a large audience.—adv.

NEBRASKA NEWS

Curator Gilmore Objects to Wounded Knee Battle Films.

CHAIRMAN CLARKE RETURNS.

Spends Vacation in Cherry County and Comes Back to His Office Duties. Adjutant General Hall Goes to Davenport—Town Bonds Registered.

Lincoln, Nov. 4.—Curator M. R. Gilmore of the University of Nebraska, who witnessed the taking of the motion pictures by the government on the scene of the battle of Wounded Knee, has returned from Pine Ridge, where he talked with many of the survivors of the battle among the Indians, and they claim, as do others, that the reproduction does the Indians a great injustice and does not rightly represent the real battle between the soldiers and Indians.

In the picture the Indians are given all the blame for the massacre, when, according to Mr. Gilmore, the soldiers were the ones to blame and the reproduction of the fight the way it was taken by the motion picture company is a disgrace to the government under whose sanction it was taken. General Miles, according to Mr. Gilmore, is dissatisfied with the way it was taken.

Good Roads Program.

The good roads' associations of the state have outlined the program for the meeting of the members during the week of organized agriculture, Jan. 19 to 23. Governor Morehead will make an address. H. E. Fredrickson of Omaha will deliver an address on the Lincoln Memorial highway. C. E. Parlose of Minden will speak on "The Omaha-Lincoln-Denver Road." A. W. Richardson, author of the road drag law, passed by the last legislature, will speak on "Practical Road Drugging." A general discussion will follow these addresses. The meeting will be held at the state farm on a date to be determined.

May Establish One Power Plant.

Judge Kennedy and Henry Gerdes of the state board of control, Governor Morehead, State Treasurer George, Secretary of State Wait, Land Commissioner Beckman and Attorney General Martin went to the penitentiary to look up the proposition of furnishing more power for lighting purposes. The board is considering the proposition of moving the electric plant at the asylum to the penitentiary and combining the two plants so that all of the state institutions at Lincoln south of the state house can be given light from the one plant and also furnish light for the asylum.

Price Back From Irrigation Convention

State Engineer Price has returned from the state irrigation convention held at Bridgeport last week and reports the largest attendance in the history of the organization, over 250 delegates being in attendance. One important resolution adopted by the association calls for a change in the law, doing away with the present state board of irrigation and the appointment of a commission on irrigation, roads and bridges, to be appointed by the governor. One of the members shall be a qualified engineer, one a recognized good roads man and the other a practical bridge man.

Hall to Davenport.

Adjutant General Hall has gone to Davenport to look into conditions surrounding the militia company at that place and see if the people will not take enough interest in it to bring it up to standard. The Fifth regiment is now full, while the Fourth lacks but two companies to complete its number. A company is being considered at Omaha and also one at Lincoln. Applications are in for companies at Columbus, Madison, Blair and Western, and the town of Central City would like to have the regimental band of the Fourth regiment located there.

Big Teachers' Meeting.

State Superintendent Deitzel said that indications point to the largest gathering of teachers at Omaha this week at the teachers' association of any meeting in its history. The Kearney and Peru normal schools will close for the time and it is expected that the students will attend in a body from each place. Wayne and Chadron normals have not yet reported action to the state superintendent. Everybody on the program has notified the secretary that they will be present without fail and there is every indication of a most successful session.

Chairman Clarke Returns.

Chairman Henry T. Clarke of the railway commission returned from his vacation. The other two commissioners, who went to Washington to attend the meeting of the Interstate Commerce commission, will return in a day or so. Mr. Clarke spent his vacation at Red Deer lodge, in Cherry county, where he has membership in a hunting club which has a lodge on the lake of that name.

Town Bonds Registered.

Bonds of the town of Atkinson in the amount of $7,300 were filed with the state auditor for registry. They are divided into $5,000 for water bonds and the balance for sewer. Dorchester registered $5,000 electric light bonds and $15,000 water bonds.

Finger Bowls Barred in Omaha.

Omaha, Nov. 4.—An ordinance prohibiting the use of finger bowls in hotels and restaurants was passed by the city commission with a vote of 6 to 2.

APPRAISEMENT COMPLETED

Figures on Fort Niobrara Land Will Be Made Public Soon.

Omaha, Nov. 4.—Traveling Passenger Agent Gable of the Northwestern is just in from Valentine. At the government land office there he made inquiry as to when the appraisement of the land on the Fort Niobrara reservation would be completed, and when those who drew choosing numbers for land at the North Platte lotter would be permitted to make their selection.

Mr. Gable was unable to secure any definite information other than that the appraisement had been completed and that the figures would be made public probably during the present week. Mr. Gable is of the opinion that the party who drew No. 1 at North Platte is very likely to make a selection on the Fort Niobrara reservation in the event the appraisement is not too high.

FARMERS HOLD BACK GRAIN

Business on Omaha Exchange Lightest in Its History.

Omaha, Nov. 4.—With the grain exchange last week was about the lightest in the history of the organization, so far as receipts were concerned. Owing to low prices and in anticipation of advances, farmers held their grain back and but little stuff came to market. Omaha dealers held to a similar idea and forwarded only in limited quantities. About all of the stuff that moved went south and was put in on orders taken long ago.

While the figures on receipts and shipments for October are not complete, it is stated that they will fall considerably below the corresponding month of last year, which was one of the best that has ever been experienced by the exchange.

BRANTLEY MUST FACE TRIAL

Accused "Fake" Physician Put Under Bond in Memphis.

Omaha, Nov. 4.—Dr. E. H. Brantley, arrested in Memphis, Tenn., on a charge of sending "fake" medicine advertisements through the mails, must come to Omaha Nov. 17 to stand trial. His bond was fixed at $4,000.

The alleged scheme to defraud was known as the Electro-Oxygen company, which was represented as a cure for almost every ill the human flesh is heir to.

Changes Opinion About Funds.

When the courts ordered State Auditor Howard to pay Insurance Commissioner Brian's salary and the other expenses of the office, it ordered them paid and did not go any farther. However, Auditor Howard, when the vouchers for the insurance department for salaries came to him drawn on the general fund of the office instead of the cash fund, as has formerly been the case, held them up. Mr. Howard claims that the salaries of the examiners must be drawn on the regular cash fund, which is derived from fees collected for examining insurance companies, and that salaries have nothing to do with expenses of the office. The first opinion of the attorney general given in the matter authorized the auditor to pay out of the general fund, given on Oct. 20. He revised his opinion after talking with Mr. Howard and made it cover the cash fund.

Prize Packages Legal.

The tin whistle and the pewter monkey scored a touchdown against Food Commissioner Harman in the district court of Lancaster county when Judge Stewart declared as unconstitutional the law, which prohibited the placing of prizes in packages for sale. The case was one in which Nick Arrigo and Michael Indivino, a couple of Italian fruit dealers, had been arrested for selling packages of crackerjack containing prize premiums in violation of the gift enterprise law. The case was hustled through from one court to another as rapidly as possible as a test case in order to get a decision. It will probably be carried to the supreme court.

Gage Farmers Buy Holstein Cows.

Beatrice, Neb., Nov. 4.—At a meeting of the Gage County Crop Improvement association, Farm Demonstrator Liebers reported that a number of progressive farmers in Gage county had subscribed funds sufficient for the purchase of a carload of Holstein dairy cows. Mr. Liebers will leave in a few days for Wisconsin, where he will purchase the cattle, which will be shipped to Gage county. Farmers in this locality realize that in order to make the dairy a paying proposition on the farm, they must have the best stock with which to do it.

Range Land Suffers by Prairie Fire.

Valentine, Neb., Nov. 4.—The prairie fire which swept a large tract of country, starting about seven or eight miles north of Valentine, swept in a southeasterly direction, burning across a part of the Niobrara reservation and into the settlements about eight miles east of here. It destroyed the barns of Ranchers Jelly, Groom and Stoner, as well as burning a great deal of hay. The loss was considerable, as the fire swept over valuable range until it was put out.

More Cash on Hand in State Treasury.

The report of State Treasurer George shows that there is a greater balance in the state treasury at the close of the month of October than at the time the last report was made, Sept. 30. The end of the last month shows a balance from all sources of $649,323.04, while the September showing was $624,589.55. The receipts for the month have been $457,604.21 and the payments $432,871.02. The cash on hand is given at $5,485.13 and the money on deposit as $643,837.86.

LIVESTOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Native Beef Lower and Good Feeders Strong.

HOG MARKET ABOUT 10c LOWER

Fat Ewes Steady to 10c Higher. Fat Lambs Fully Steady—Good Demand for Feeders—Market Strong and Active.

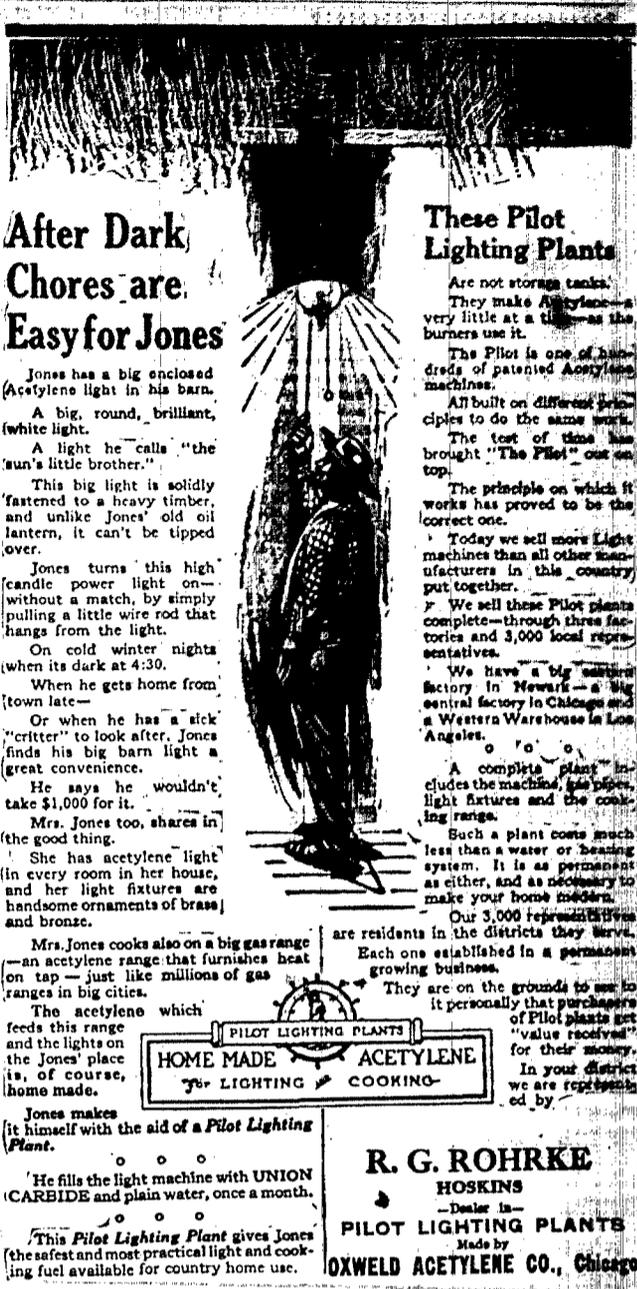

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Nov. 4.—Cattle receipts amounted to about 6,500 head today. The corn fed cattle market was dull all day and unevenly lower. Even the good yearlings apparently did not look attractive to buyers, while long fed heavy beefs were hard to move at prices 15c to 20c lower than last week. As far as western range beefs were concerned it was a steady market. Cows and heifers were not very active sellers, but prices showed very little change as compared with Monday. Business in stock cattle and feeding steers was reasonably active and while desirable yearlings and light weights were perhaps a little stronger, the ordinary rough and heavy grades were slow to a little easier.

Cattle quotations: Choice to prime beefs, $8.80@9.00; fair to choice yearlings, $8.50@9.50; good to choice beefs, $9.35@9.75; fair to good beefs, $8.00@8.30; common to fair beefs, $7.50@8.00; good to choice fed heifers, $6.50@7.50; good to choice grass heifers, $6.35@7.25; good to choice cows, $6.20@6.60; fair to good cows, $5.25@5.75; canners and cutters, $3.50@5.25; veal calves, $6.50@9.75; bulls, stags, etc., $5.25@6.85; choice to prime feeders, $7.50@8.00; good to choice feeders, $6.90@7.40; fair to good feeders, $6.40@6.80; common to fair feeders, $5.75@6.35; stock cows and heifers, $4.75@6.75; choice to prime grass beefs, $7.60@8.00; good to choice grass beefs, $7.30@7.60; fair to good grass beefs, $6.85@7.25; poor to fair grass beefs, $6.00@6.75.

About 7,800 hogs showed up today. The market was very slow and prices declined fully a dime. The bulk of the supply went at $7.50@7.65, with a top of $7.70. Pigs declined 10c to 25c. Sheep and lamb receipts amounted to 17,000 head. The moderate supply of fat stuff was cleaned up at prices fully steady on lambs and steady to 10c to 15c higher on ewes. The local trade is on a higher basis than at Chicago. There was a good demand for feeders today and prices in general were regarded as strong to a little higher.

Quotations on sheep and lambs: Lambs, good to choice, $7.25@7.50; lambs, fair to good, $6.75@7.25; lambs, culls, $5.00@5.75; lambs, feeders, $5.50@6.50; yearlings, light, $5.25@5.65; yearlings, heavy, $4.85@5.25; wethers, good to choice, $4.50@5.00; wethers, fair to good, $4.50@4.75; wethers, feeders, $4.00@4.40; ewes, good to choice, $4.35@4.60; ewes, fair to good, $4.00@4.55; ewes, feeders, $3.25@3.40; cull sheep, $2.00@3.00.

The auctioneer in charge of the Christensen sale Saturday, November 8th tells us that he remembers when his father traded a quarter section of land in Wayne county for a pair of plug horses and he is still a young man. The quoted land values in Wayne County today may sound high to you but your children will wonder how you ever made your figures.—adv.

After Dark, Chores are Easy for Jones

Jones has a big enclosed Acetylene light in his barn. A big, round, brilliant, white light. A light he calls "the sun's little brother."

This big light is solidly fastened to a heavy timber, and unlike Jones' old oil lantern, it can't be tipped over.

Jones turns this high candle power light on—without a match, by simply pulling a little wire rod that hangs from the light.

On cold winter nights (when it dark at 4:30. When he gets home from town late—

Or when he has a sick "critter" to look after, Jones finds his big barn light a great convenience.

He says he wouldn't take $1,000 for it.

Mrs. Jones too, shares in the good thing.

She has acetylene light in every room in her house, and her light fixtures are handsome ornaments of brass and bronze.

Mrs. Jones cooks also on a big gas range—an acetylene range that furnishes heat on tap—just like millions of gas ranges in big cities.

The acetylene which feeds this range and the lights on the Jones' place is, of course, home made.

Jones makes it himself with the aid of a Pilot Lighting Plant.

He fills the light machine with UNION CARBIDE and plain water, once a month.

This Pilot Lighting Plant gives Jones the safest and most practical light and cooking fuel available for country home use.

These Pilot Lighting Plants

Are not storage tanks. They make Acetylene—a very little at a time—as the burners use it.

The Pilot is one of hundreds of patented Acetylene machines.

All built on different principles to do the same work. The test of time has brought "The Pilot" out on top.

The principle on which it works has proved to be the correct one.

Today we sell more Light machines than all other manufacturers in this country put together.

We sell these Pilot plants complete—through these factories and 3,000 local representatives.

We have a big central factory in Newark—a big central factory in Chicago and a Western Warehouse in Los Angeles.

A complete plant includes the machine, gas pipes, light fixtures and the cooking range.

Such a plant costs much less than a water or heating system. It is as permanent as either, and as necessary to make your home modern.

Our 3,000 representatives are residents in the districts they serve.

Each one established in a permanent growing business.

They are on the ground to see to it personally that purchasers of Pilot plants get "value received" for their money. In your district we are represented by

An Expression of Appreciation

To the many friends who came so loyally to the assistance of our brother, L. P. Walker and family, in their seige of typhoid, we wish to tender our sincerest thanks and appreciation.

We are obliged to take this means, as many who came were unknown to us.

Wayne surely will be remembered by us for its whole souled, generous hearted people.

Especially do we thank Rev. Corkey, E. B. and Mrs. Young and Mr. Beaman for their many and varied acts of kindness and assistance.

We wish to add that our brother has said many times that he owes the recovery of himself and family, not only to the constant care, but also to the spirit of kindness so generously shown by the people of Wayne. Truly may it be said "Cast your bread upon the waters."

At Casper, Wyo., the Standard Oil company has commenced construction of the largest motor spirits and oil refining plant in the world. It will be completed early next spring and will have a capacity of 80,000 barrels of the two products daily.

Secret tests recently made by the third division of the Atlantic battleship fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Usher, are said to have disclosed the fact that the Panama canal virtually has nothing to fear from the fire of an enemy's fleet.

President Wilson received by express a fine, fat possum. "I am an old slave-time darkey," wrote Joe Farrow of McFarlan, N. C., the sender. "I heard that someone sent you a sweet potato the other day. Here is a possum to go with it."

Clifford Brillhart, professor of oratory, and Howard Thompson, student, both of Pontiac university, were drowned while duck hunting on the city reservoir at Greenville, Tex. They fired at the same ducks simultaneously and the recoil capsized the boat.

After clinging to the side of a capsized rowboat two miles from shore in Lake Michigan for several hours, William Raddigan, keeper of the Lawrence avenue city water crib, Chicago, was drowned when he was washed from the craft by the winds and waves.

A climax in the fight for better moral conditions in the town of Hullett, Wyo., reached a sensational climax when the office of the Hullett Globe, a weekly newspaper, was dynamited. The building was badly wrecked, but no one was hurt and the plant was unharmed.

After serving about four years, Charles L. Warriner, former treasurer of the Big Four railroad company, was released from the Ohio penitentiary. He went to Cincinnati, where he proposes to resume his residence temporarily. Later he expects to engage in fruit farming.

Women in governmental affairs scored another victory when Mrs. Crystal Eastman Benedict, a leading suffragist of Wisconsin, was added to the staff of the new federal industrial commission, which is about to take up a study of the causes for unrest in the United States.

The body of John Sobozak, nine years old, who had been missing from his home since June 14 last, was lifted in a steam shovel being used in excavation work from a gravel bank at Cleveland. The coroner expressed the opinion that the boy had been buried accidentally in a bank of white ash.

About twenty-five tons of gold which lies in the United States treasury in Wall street, New York, is being counted by nine men sent over from the treasury department at Washington. Between 2,500 and 3,000 tons of silver also is being counted, as well as several million dollars in bills and a few tons of nickels and coppers.

Among The Churches of Wayne

Baptist Church

Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor
Special series of sermons to be given at both services:
Morning Theme—"An Inventory of Faith." The Fundamentals of Christian Belief.
Nov. 9—"What We Believe About the Bible."
Nov. 16—"What We Believe About God."
Nov. 23—"What We Believe About Christ."
Nov. 30—"What We Believe About Salvation."
Dec. 7—"What We Believe About the Ordinances."
Dec. 14—"What We Believe About the Future."
Evening Theme—"Men Who Lost Out." Men of Yesterday with Lessons for Today. Portraits from the World's Greatest Gallery.
Nov. 9—"The Homesteader who lost his Home."
Nov. 16—"The Prince who lost his Property."
Nov. 23—"The Giant who lost his Strength."
Nov. 30—"The King who lost his Crown."
Dec. 7—"The Leader who lost his Chance."
Dec. 14—"The Fool who lost his Soul."

Special music at each service. A hearty welcome to everyone. Good audiences and interest last Sunday. Four young women, college students, publicly accepted Christ at the evening service. This is life's supreme decision for any individual.

Thirteen ladies went to Wakefield last Friday to attend a meeting of the missionary society at the home of Mrs. Kimball. They report a splendid meeting.

The different pastors, at their regular meeting last week, seemed united in the belief that it would be well to have a simultaneous evangelistic campaign, by all the churches, under the direction of the pastors. Each pastor holding his own meetings. The services to begin Nov. 30, and last as long as thought advisable. If the membership of each church would rally to this special effort, there is no reason why two weeks of such a campaign may not result in great good to all of us.

"The Christian Home Life," will be the subject of the young people's meeting for Sunday evening. Mr. C. E. Sprague is leader.

We are especially anxious that all our members respond to the special services of the next few weeks. Each one contributing some measure of personal work.

Presbyterian Church
Rev. Alexander Corley, Pastor.

"A little child shall lead them," will be the subject of the sermon at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning. The ordinance of infant baptism will be administered. In the evening the first of a number of preparatory sermons for the Simultaneous Campaign in Wayne will be delivered. The subject of the first sermon will be "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?"

The morning service begins at 10:30, and the evening service at 7:30. The Sunday school meets at 12:00 noon, and the C. E. prayer meeting at 6:30 p. m.

The Ladies' Aid society will give a tea on Wednesday afternoon next, November 12, at the Manse. All the ladies of the church and congregation are invited.

Luther Day was fittingly observed at the Presbyterian church last Sabbath. In the morning the pastor preached from the Reformation text, "The just shall live by faith," showing that the work of Luther was not original, but his glory was in re-discovering the salvation which the Apostle Paul had preached to men. In the evening a large congregation, which taxed the seating capacity of the auditorium, assembled to hear the address on the life of Martin Luther by Rev. Rudolph Moehring, of the German Lutheran Church. Before the sermon Mrs. Watkins sang a solo most pleasingly, after which Rev. Myers of the M. E. church, introduced the speaker. Mr. Moehring's address was a masterly presentation of the intensely interesting life of the apostolic Luther. The address was made exceptionally forceful by the fact that Mr. Moehring as a boy, lived amid the scenes in Germany where Luther fought out his battles, spending several years at Erfurt. At the close of the service a number of Germans in the congregation congratulated their fellow-countryman in his own tongue on his address, and everyone expressed pleasure at the new insight given into the life and labors of the world-famed reformer.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church
(Rev. Blessing, Pastor.)
Sunday school at 10 o'clock. We are pleased to note the interest and the increase in the Sunday school, but we would like a greater increase. Let every member make it a point to be present each Sunday for both Sunday school and church services. We must know how to care for our souls, therefore let us learn all we can.

At the morning service the subject of the sermon will be "A Heavenly Vision." We read in the first epistle to the Corinthians that "ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price." But how easy it seems for man to forget this great fact. Though man forgets the love which God has for him, God never forgets the value of man's soul. Amid the period of man's forgetfulness, there is sent to him by God a reminder. A heavenly vision comes to remind him of his lost love.

In the evening the sermon will be based upon the third letter, of the seven letters to the churches in Asia. The subject will be "The Confessing Church."

Choir rehearsal will be held at 8 o'clock Friday evening at the Parsonage.

The Ladies' Aid society met last week at the home of Mrs. Elvin Johnson. Most of the ladies were present. A very helpful and enjoyable time was spent. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. F. E. Sederstrom on Thursday, November 13.

The Ladies' Aid will hold their annual bazaar on the 6th of December.

The Catechetical class will meet Saturday afternoon at half past two. If there are any who have not enrolled in the class who would like to do so, we would be pleased to have you.

Methodist Church
Rev. C. L. Myers, Pastor

A fine program was given Sunday afternoon by the King's Herald and Light Bearers.

To increase the power of the church increase the power of the individual.

The Woman's Missionary societies announced for the 7th, meets the 4th, with Mrs. B. F. Corzine.

Make a deposit in Heaven by spending something on a neighbor. The weekly Bible Study Circle is a good place to refresh yourself with the Word of God.

All work is easy when you have both strength and will.

The W. C. T. U., is one of the world workers for the good of men. If any Leaguer failed to be present last Sunday evening he missed a great treat. Prof. Britell's address was inspiring.

Do nothing, say nothing, be nothing. That is the way to be free from criticism.

A different arrangement is being made concerning the Scouts. I was misinformed concerning the situation here.

Hard work is a sure cure for the discouraged.

We hope to have the church warm for next Sunday.

Sunday being temperance Sunday in the Sunday school the pastor will preach on that subject both morning and evening.

By mistake some one carried away from the church three weeks ago a fine copy of the Word. The owner would like to have the same returned to the parsonage.

German Lutheran Church
Rev. Rudolph Moehring, Pastor.

Services will begin at 11 o'clock a. m. Sunday school before services.

C. E. Society Elects New Officers

At a recent meeting of the C. E. society of the Presbyterian church the following officers were elected: Miss Edna Neely, president; Miss Lucile Corkey, vice-president; Miss Ruth White, secretary; Paul Mines, treasurer. The following were elected as chairman of the committees: Prayer meeting, Miss Henrietta Moler; Lookout, Miss Nell Gustafson; Social, Miss Lucile Corkey; Music, Miss Elizabeth Mines. The weekly prayer-meeting of the society is held at 6:30 p. m., every Sunday in the lecture room of the church.

Keeping the Name Before the Public

That is one of the things necessary in every successful business that is legitimate. Wanamaker said that no one who pretends to be in business should fail to have their name and business mentioned in some manner in every paper sent out. It need not always be much, perhaps, but to allow the opportunity to pass of 1500 papers going broadcast in the territory tributary to your place of business without speaking a word to these people indicates that you are not overly anxious to invite them to come and see you.

L. P. Walker and family have sufficiently recovered from their recent sickness to be able to travel and Mrs. Walker and children except the youngest have gone to the home of her parents near Hartington to visit while convalescing, and Mr. Walker went Tuesday to visit his folks and old friends at Gibbon. He was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. A. M. Price, who has been here for a time assisting in the care of the sick. The youngest child went with Mr. Walker and his sister. As soon as Mr. Walker has regained strength sufficiently to work he will return to Wayne and to his work.

The country newspaper man is as a rule fairly intelligent on most questions, but about four-fifths of them have a habit of distributing a bunch of foreign advertising for which they do not receive a penny, and for which those who do not receive pay do not get an adequate rate; then the editor wonders why it is that he can get no foreign advertising. He may write for the business and wonder that he does not get it, when if he will turn to his patent pages he will discover that he is carrying the advertisement all the time—carrying it at about half rate, too, and letting the other fellow have the half. If one will take time to look over a bunch of country papers he will find that the patents carry advertising which should bring the publisher not less than $300 per year, and in addition to that he is paying a good round price per page for his ready prints. The Democrat was solicited not long ago to buy a patent sheet, and we figured that to do so would cost us $800 per year in price paid and loss of control of our foreign advertising, and we declined.

Farmers Protest Brueckner Case

The following appeared in the Norfolk News Monday tells that there is a sentiment with, as well as against, the defendants in these trials. We hope to have report of the meeting if held:

Feeling between the farmers living in the vicinity of Hoskins in Wayne county, and citizens of the little town is running high over the sensation caused by the arrest a few weeks ago of Fred and Paul Brueckner, during which one of the brothers was shot in the leg, badly beaten and the other injured by officials who claim the brothers resisted arrest. A mass meeting at Hoskins or somewhere near Hoskins is being arranged for this week. A petition of three pages, already signed by more than 100 farmers is being circulated. Some Wayne county farmers have quit work to take sides in the affair. Three cases against Fred Brueckner in the court of County Judge James Britton at Wayne have been decided unfavorably to the Brueckners. Four more are to be disposed of commencing next Tuesday.

The petition is addressed to the county commissioners and it objects to the "multitude" of suits brought against the Brueckner brothers by Hoskins authorities and asks that the county commissioners, at their next meeting refuse to honor the expenses incident to the prosecution of the cases against the Brueckners.

The mass meeting which will probably be held in the Hoskins town hall is called for the purpose of condemning the methods used by the Hoskins officials in arresting the two brothers, it is said. It is known that the farmers living east of Hoskins are back of the mass meeting movement.

So far as we can learn the above item must have been one imposed upon the News, at any rate there is no report of the petition to the board, and so far as the cost proposition is concerned the fines assessed above will more than meet the costs when paid. Nor was there any other manner in which the case could well have been handled. To be sure action might have been taken before a justice at Hoskins, but with the feeling which prevailed there, could there have been an impartial jury selected? It is doubtful if either faction or their friends were in a state of mind to render an impartial verdict. The law of the state provides that the county attorney must bring action in such cases, and the unanimous verdict of guilty, whether given by either jury or court shows conclusively that it was time to act. If Hoskins officials have exceeded their authority in this matter and in making arrests it is a matter for another action and should be investigated if there be any charge or evidence to show such to be the case. But unless the citizens wish constant repetition of such scenes as took place at Hoskins last month, we can see no other course than the one followed. The law must be respected, and the authority of officials, then if officials exceed their authority they should be compelled to answer, but not by violent resistance, but rather before an impartial judge. Law must be enforced or anarchy will prevail.

Locaters Must Know Land

North Platte, Neb., Nov. 3.—A ruling of the interior department promulgated by Judge James W. Whitten, who was superintendent of the Fort Peck land opening, is expected to cause as much consternation among the locaters of Montana and Nebraska, who have no knowledge of the reservation, as a bomb exploded in an army camp. This ruling says that each party who receives money from an entryman to locate him on a claim must make affidavit that he has traveled over the land and has a knowledge of its topography. The government proposes to protect settlers and this ruling will preclude any possibility of the home seekers being uncooled.

Late News Notes

President Huerta must resign the presidency of Mexico without loss of time and must not leave as his successor Gen. Blanquet, his minister of war, or any other member of his official family or of the unofficial coterie whom he might be expected to control.

This ultimatum from Washington was conveyed to President Huerta through his private secretary, Senor Rabago, by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires, acting under instructions from the state department. Senor Rabago presented the memorandum of his chief late Sunday, but up to Monday evening President Huerta had returned no answer and as far as had been known had guarded its contents from almost all of his officials and intimate counselors.

Since the above report was in type it has been greatly modified. The communication sent from Washington to Mexico was not an ultimatum, but a note giving the view of the situation as seen from Washington. It is a newspaper story started on a suspicion that certain elements wish might be true. There is no doubt but that there are selfish commercial interests that would be glad to see war come, for what they could make out of it.

The dissolution of the harvester trust is almost a foregone conclusion. This monster monopoly has been on trial, and it develops that two families now practically control the machinery business of this country through their sale agents, who number about 50,000. Competition is practically dead in farm machinery, and the price is dictated by the combine except as to machines for foreign shipment. Evidence showed their competitor was making an average of about three machines a year, while the trust was selling more than 100,000.

If True, How Shall We Escape Having had a typhoid scare at Wayne which has amounted to nothing more and which we hope will not, we give the following taken from the Norfolk News, which shows how hard it is to eradicate the typhoid bacilli, and which tends to show that that particular bug is hard to kill. The Democrat contends that pure blood is the most effective germicide, and the person who eats proper food, drinks clean water and breathes deeply of pure fresh air has little to fear from microbes, germs or any kind of old bacilli: Clean Hands

The hopelessness with which the average small boy goes at his daily enforced task of "scrubbing up" may, perhaps, be justified after all. A scientific observer, the Journal of the American Medical Association reports, has just made an interesting experiment which shows how hard it is to get ahead of the industrious bacillus which causes typhoid fever. Even the most careful hand-washing showed very disappointing results. This observer, after dipping the right index-finger in a solution containing typhoid bacilli, proceeded to carry out measures of cleansing as follows:

1. Rinsed in cresol solution. 2. Then hold the finger under the tap, rinsing first in cold, then in very hot water. 3. Washed very carefully in about 0.5 c. c. of sterile water, in a watch-glass, and plated the whole of the water used for this purpose. Result: Three hundred and thirteen colonies of Bacillus typhosus on the plate. 4. After the washing in sterile water mentioned, the tip of the finger was thoroughly soaked in absolute alcohol, allowed to dry, and the washing in sterile water repeated. The "washings" were again "plated." Result: Four colonies of B. typhosus. After that what right has the average small boy to feel that his hands and face are really clean even after the most painstaking application of soap and water. But this is not the worst. The same observer finds that even when the hands are thoroughly rubbed on the towel, while the danger of infection from the hand is lessened, the towel becomes a source of peril. The sort of accident that may happen even then is shown by another observation:

On Sept. 26, 1912, 100 c. c. of soup freshly prepared from the "stock pot" was placed in a china bowl, no attempt being made to sterilize the bowl or to cover it from the air. The tip of the experimenter's right index-finger was allowed to come in contact with a solution containing typhoid bacilli. The china bowl was then lifted in such a manner that the infected finger came in contact for a moment with a contained soup. The soup was left at room temperature with free access of air and dust to the open bowl. Bacterial examination showed that typhoid bacilli were present apparently in pure culture, numbering 15,600 per cubic centimeter. If this is the case, speed the day when we shall have competent and thorough supervision over all places where food is prepared for public consumption. An eastern railroad has provided for systematic inspection of all its employes on dining cars and the example probably will be followed by others. Social clubs and similar bodies are declared to be lax in this connection. It is a matter that ought to receive greater attention in the future than it has in the past. Building Air Castles Some dreams never come true—others go beyond expectation—Chicago, for instance, and the place told of below are quite different. "Some time since we published an interview with a leading Winnebago chief in relation to a new town to be started at Emerson. The facts, which are being developed, show that the chief told the truth. There is to be a town, and a big one, immediately started at Emerson, under the auspices of the St. Paul and Omaha Railroad on a section lately procured from the Winnebagoes. Speaking of this project the Dakota City Argus of last week says: "A first class business man of Sioux City accompanied two millionaires to Emerson last week. When they got there the two capitalists said they were greatly pleased with the outlook and thought the St. Paul company was wise in negotiating with the Winnebago Indians for a section of land there, to be devoted to town purposes. They thought a town there would have, in five years from now, 5,000 inhabitants." Ponca Journal, October 19, 1882. Taxes Due Saturday The taxes for 1913 will be due and payable Saturday, the first of November. After December 1, the personal taxes will draw interest at the rate of ten per cent, and if not paid before February 1, distress warrants will be issued and the sheriff will, if necessary, levy on anything you have to collect. Interest does not accrue on the real estate taxes until May 1, when it commences to draw 10 per cent also. The real estate on which taxes remain unpaid for 1912 will be sold for taxes at the treasurer's office on Monday, the third day of the month. This tax business the way we run it in this state is a continual round of pleasure. The assessors start out April 1 and stay out, most of them, more or less of the time till the first of June, charging up time to be paid for by the taxpayers. Meanwhile, commencing April 1, also, the county clerk and his deputies are drawing salaries for getting the tax books in shape. Nothing has been assessed yet, but they check up the real estate transfers for the preceding year. If John Smith has sold the northwest of fourteen to Pete Jones, John would not want to be assessed that quarter. So that has to be done. Then there are the mortgages. They have been made or paid in large numbers and they have to be checked up according to the records. Finally, the assessors get through making their schedules. The county assessor has to get these all into shape for the county clerk, who then takes them and figures up from each man's schedule just how much he should pay for the county road, the county bridge, the soldier's relief, the state general, the county general, the state university, the district school and the various other funds. He puts all this down in number of big books, after he has figured out each individual case, and on the first day of November he must have these books ready to turn over to the county treasurer. And usually, in most counties, the county clerk and his deputies are kept busy about it. Then the treasurer has to figure up the total of each man's taxes when he comes in to pay them, or send the sheriff out after him if he fails to come. It's a big expense and the cause of very great inequalities. One county's land pays about four times as much state taxes as does another's which is more valuable; one precinct pays twice as much county taxes on its cattle as does another whose cows are better maybe, and all that. Probably a more cumbersome, expensive and generally mistaken system of taxation could not have been devised. And there is a constitutional amendment to be voted on next fall to change it. Anyway, we have them to pay, and as we started out to say, taxes are due Saturday.—Cedar County News.

Preparing For the Stock Show Preliminaries for the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago, Nov. 29 to Dec. 6, have been completed, entries are being tabulated and the ground work laid for the best display of food animals and draft horses ever congregated in America or elsewhere. Entries largely outnumber those of previous years and the galaxy of purebred and fat live stock to be assembled may never meet in the competition arena again. Construction gangs are busy increasing show facilities, buildings are being enlarged or altered to accommodate the expansion of the exposition and unsurpassed accommodations will be furnished both exhibitors and spectators. In consequence of impending shortage of beef, pork and mutton, producers all over the United States and Canada are devising ways and means to expand production and on this account unusual interest is being taken in the 1913 exposition. The imperative lesson of economy in production will be taught forcibly and effectively, by the men who are now engaged in adapting their methods to changing conditions. New feeding and breeding problems will be presented in the stage of at least partial solution at this gathering. The 1913 International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago will be so dissimilar from previous events of the same nature that both those seeking instruction and diversion will be well rewarded by attending. Our Best Seller We are selling more of Meritol Eczema Remedy than all the others put together. This large sale is due to the fact that it is a preparation of unusual merit, made expressly for one purpose, eczema in its various forms. How about your subscription? The Commoer Through the columns of The Commoer Mr. Bryan meets the attacks of those who are opposed to Democratic reforms, as well as the clever misrepresentations made by the organs of the "special interests." As an exponent of the plans and purposes of the national Democratic administrations, The Commoer is of unusual interest to all progressive citizens. Mr. Bryan's signed editorials give a timely discussion of public questions and are interesting and valuable to all students of governmental affairs. It is a big 32 page monthly. Besides supplying the best political and general matter, it has interesting home, fashion, farm, cartoon and other departments. A carefully prepared report of the work of the various members of the President's Cabinet is especially interesting to each tax payer. The subscription price is $1.00 a year. Many of our readers are already Commoer subscribers; many others may desire to be. To make it convenient as well as inexpensive for our readers to send subscriptions to The Commoer, we have arranged with Mr. Bryan to furnish his paper to our readers, at a special low rate. Only $2.00 pays for a full year's subscription to this paper and a full year's subscription to The Commoer. If already a subscriber to either paper your expiration date will be extended one year. Brotherhood Elects Officers There was a meeting of the men of the Presbyterial church on Friday evening last at the home of Mr. L. A. Kiplinger. During the first part of the meeting Mr. F. G. Philleo presided, and Mr. A. R. Davis gave an interesting review of Winston Churchill's last book, "The Inside of the Cup." He outlined briefly the plot of the story and then gave extracts, showing the ideas put forward by the various characters in the book. After the review there was a spirited discussion by a number of those present in regard to the teachings and the value of the book in the solution of problems which the modern church has to meet, especially in the larger cities. Following this part of the program Prof. Keckley, of the State Normal School, favored the company with several readings which were much enjoyed. In the election of officers for the brotherhood during the ensuing year, the following were chosen: L. A. Kiplinger, president; F. G. Philleo, vice-president; F. E. Gamble, secretary and treasurer. At the close of the program refreshment were served and a social time enjoyed. A Story Every Day A story a day for the 365 days of 1914—that is part of what you get by subscribing $2.00 for The Youth's Companion's new volume. The fifty-two weekly issues of The Companion will contain at least 365 stories, and all the other kinds of good reading that can be crowded between two covers—the best advice on athletics for boys, articles on dress and recreation for girls, contributions by famous men and women, suggestions for the care of the health, etc. For the year's subscription of $2.00 there is included a copy of The Companion Practical Home Calendar for 1914, and all the issues for the remaining weeks of this year, dating from the time the subscription is received. If you want to know more about The Companion before subscribing, send for sample copies containing the opening chapters of Arthur Stanwood Pier's fine serial of life in a boys' school—"His Father's Son." With them we will send the full Announcement for 1914. THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, 144 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass. New Subscriptions Received at this office. Green's Opinion We do not have much sympathy with President Thomas of the Kearney normal school in the latter's difficulties with the state normal board. We know this gentleman to be a doublecrosser of the first water and if the Supreme Court had not reversed itself on the normal board question it would have been a pleasure for the writer to have placed the rollers under that slippery gentleman. We do not know anything about the school masters' row but we do know that the gentleman at Kearney is an oily politician and can blow hot and cold in the same breath. We notice also that some of the names signed to the protest from Kearney are of men who a few years ago could not find words in their vocabulary to express their contempt for the political head of the Kearney Normal.—Creighton, Liberal.

The Wrong Ghost

The Required Sacrifice

By LILLIAN WENTZ

"There it goes! See!" whispered Dick Addison in his companion's ear. Findlay strained his eyes through the darkness of the upper gallery and saw a gray formless shape drift slowly past and disappear in the shadows at the end.

Dick's hand tightened on Findlay's elbow.

"Now, skeptic, what do you say to that?" he breathed hoarsely.

Findlay shook his head.

"She has me guessing," he admitted ruefully.

Dick laughed. "What did I tell you, old man? You may flatter yourself you are some ghost hunter, but the Addison ghost has walked for 150 years, and the mystery has never been solved."

"Did your father ever see it?" asked Findlay thoughtfully.

"You forget that my father inherited Roseland from a distant cousin, who had quarreled with his few remaining relatives and through some freakish fancy chose my father as his heir. That is why my experience with the ghost dates back to three months ago, when I came down to occupy the old place."

"And you have seen it how many times?"

"About once a week. I had quite forgotten the old story of Dorothy Addison, who had told a wicked lie and so won the man she loved from her lovely rival. It is said that Dorothy was very unhappy in her married life and often bewailed her sin. Tradition has it that the curse of unrest will not be lifted from her poor spirit until some Addison rights a wrong or makes some great sacrifice for another."

"So your distant cousin did nothing toward that end," mused Findlay. "Did he leave any direct heirs?"

Dick Addison hesitated. "You know, I was at college when father inherited the place, and I wasn't deeply interested, but I have since learned that Cousin Amos left an adopted son, who had married against my cousin's wishes and was therefore disinherited. But father understood that the son was a rich man, had made a fortune in the west, so that he really was not losing much when the Addison home came to my father. It's a tumbledown old place, as you can see, and, except for some good old furniture and the family portraits, isn't worth repairing."

"Why don't you hunt up this adopted son of Amos Addison and see if he doesn't need the place?"

"Do you mean that, Sam?"

"Yes. If investigation shows that the adopted son and his family are comfortably fixed, why, I suppose, the place could be left to the bats if you wished, but if not— He stopped and laughed in an embarrassed way.

"Yes?" asked Dick eagerly. "If you owned it what would you do, Sam?"

"I would never close it up. There are too many homeless wretches in the world to justify that. But I am preaching now, Dick. I know it would be a great sacrifice for you to give up the ancient home of your family to a man who was but an adopted son."

"Sacrifice! If I should find him, Sam, perhaps that is the sacrifice that is required to lay the ghost of pretty Mistress Dorothy!"

"Perhaps it is." Findlay was laughing when he stopped short and pointed to a little door. "Where does that lead to, Dick?" he demanded sharply.

Dick stared for an instant. "Oh, the door? Why, to some attic chamber, I believe. I've never found a key to fit it, and I'm not anxious to investigate any more dust holes, thank you."

The two young men returned along the picture gallery and swung around into the corridor from which the bedrooms opened on either side. Findlay's room was the first on the right hand side, and he had his friend good night and entered.

Sam Findlay went to the window nearest the wall of the picture gallery. On the other side of that wall hung the pictures, and in this corner near his window was the little door that had no key.

He pulled open his closet door and held the candle high over his head. The closet was placed beneath a flight of stairs, for the ceiling slanted sharply.

His closet ran underneath the spiral stairway leading to the attic chambers. It was near the locked door that the apparition had vanished. He smiled as he turned away.

"It is a gentle ghost," he murmured. "Her little feet cannot disturb my slumbers, no matter how many times they run up and down the stairs!"

At that moment there came a sound, so slight that it was hardly more than the rustle of a leaf; then another sound, a little croak.

That was all. Findlay tried to persuade himself that he had mistaken a scampering mouse for a light footfall, but he knew that the sound was nothing else but a footstep on the spiral stair.

And the door that led to the spiral stair had no key!

He blew out the candle and went to bed in the great carved four poster that Aunt Chloe had polished and rubbed until the pineapples that surmounter the posts shone as they had not done for many years.

It seemed like five minutes afterwards, but it was really half an hour later, when Dick Addison awoke him with a quick shake.

"Sam, there's something queer doing outside," he whispered. "Get on some things and come down into the rose garden with me."

Findlay was out of bed in an instant, and presently the two young men stole softly in slippers down the corridor to where a door opened on to the upper balcony, that ran across the front of the old house.

"By Jove, this door is unlocked, and I fastened it before I went to bed!" whispered Dick.

Findlay said nothing, for his thoughts were busy with the sounds he had heard on the spiral stair.

Down in the tangled garden Dick led the way through dark paths bordered with tall hedges of box, pungently sweet in the night air. At last they came to the remains of the rose garden. It was enclosed in a circle of boxwood and was entered by a small opening.

As they squeezed through the narrow opening Dick clutched his companion's arm.

"What do you make of that?" he whispered.

Findlay stared over his friend's shoulder, and well might the two stare at what met their astonished gaze.

The faint crescent of a moon threw a feeble glow over the rose garden and disclosed a pale gowned form fitting here and there among the riotous bushes. The form was plucking roses of every color until the slender arms were laden.

They followed her silently and from the shadow of a great oak tree saw her glide up the steps of the veranda and thence up the stair to the upper balcony, where she vanished.

"Mistress Dorothy's ghost," muttered Dick dazedly.

"Not that, my friend, but a ghost just the same," said Findlay gravely. "Come. Let us rouse Aunt Chloe and Uncle Joe and make them tell us who is occupying the attic chambers of your house."

"What do you mean?" demanded Dick. But he went with Findlay, who explained his suspicions as they went toward the cabin at the rear of the old mansion, where the two ancient negro servants slept.

But there was a faint light showing beneath the window curtain here, and in response to Dick's loud summons the door opened and disclosed two fully dressed and much frightened negroes.

"Oh, Marse Dick, what am de matter?" quavered Chloe, her eyes rolling fearfully.

"Am de house a-fah?" croaked Uncle Joe craftily.

"The house isn't a-fah," said Dick dryly, "and the matter is that I want you to explain how it happens that the attic chambers are occupied without my knowledge and consent."

At this the two servants burst into loud lamentations, and finally Aunt Chloe sobbed out a confession.

It appeared that the adopted son of Amos Addison was really his own son, by a secret marriage, and the young Amos, who had been disinherited because he had followed his father's example and married against the wishes of his family, had for awhile prospered in the west, where he had made a fortune and lived happily with his young wife and little girl.

About the time of old Amos Addison's death young Mrs. Addison died and left her husband with the little daughter, Rose. Her fortune now pursued young Amos; and by the time his daughter had been educated he was a poor man, broken in health and ambition. His one desire was to die in the home where he had spent his boyhood.

Rose brought him there, knowing that the house was empty and unused save for the two servants, Aunt Chloe, who had been his nurse, took care of him, and Uncle Joe waited on him as well, for Rose had secured work in Richmond and only came down at weekly intervals.

The arrival of the master of the house, Dick Addison, threw all their plans into great confusion. Amos Addison was still quite helpless, though improved in health under the care of Aunt Chloe, who was famous in the locality for her knowledge of simple medicines. Since Dick's arrival Rose had made but few visits before this one, when she had risked discovery to gather roses from the garden for her father.

It was the next day before Dick Addison and his friend met Rose Addison and her father. Then it was that Chloe produced the key to the little door and admitted them up the spiral stairs to the clean, airy rooms under the roof, where the old servants had removed many things to make their one time master comfortable. They found Amos Addison the wreck of a once ambitious man, but Dick would not hear of apologies for their unconventional occupancy of Roseland.

"I am the intruder," he said generously. "The place would never have been accepted by my father if he had known the truth, and now I shall not lose a moment before transferring the property to its rightful owner."

"And I predict that the ghost of Mistress Dorothy shall walk no more!" cried Sam Findlay, with a glance at Rose Addison's beautiful face.

Rose blushed beautifully as her dark eyes met the blue ones of the northerner.

Dick Addison saw the exchange of glances and chuckled to himself.

"If it wasn't for Sally Markham I'd be jealous of Sam. But for a ghost hunter I must say that old Sam has outdone himself this time, for my cousin is certainly a rose."

HORSE WISDOM.

The pedigreed sire has been the power in building up size and draft-form in our American stock of horses.

Early and thorough training makes gentle, safe and tractable horses.

If the fetlocks are kept clipped and the horse's legs are kept clean scratches will never bother.

There are too few good colts raised on the farms. This should not be. Don't leave this important industry to the horse breeders alone.

In breaking a colt remember that it is an easy matter to overload and ruin him by causing him to balk.

Sprained tendons and joints are often the effect of long grown hoofs continually tamping on solid floors.

PROFIT IN BIG MULES.

Growing Demand For Animals Produced From Draft Mares.

Raising mules for a definite purpose offers an excellent opportunity to the man who will give the business the attention it deserves, says the National Stockman.

Not so many years ago the raising of mules was a slipshod industry, most of them coming from inferior mares that failed to produce good horse colts or that were bred on the not much to lose plan by indifferent owners.

Of late years, however, better mares have been sent to jacks, and as a result we have better mules today than ever before.

Mules increased faster in value during the decade 1900-1910 than did horses.

To produce good mules it is necessary to get away from the old idea that the meaner and the smaller a mule the tougher.

Mules that are topping the market today come from strictly high class mares of good size. The big draft mare produces an excellent heavy mule, and the 1,200 pound standard bred mare produces a mule well liked by many because of his high quality.

The mule's reputation is based to a considerable extent on his stamina and long wearing qualities. Therefore high finish, which is generally considered as an indication of quality, is of great importance in a mule.

He gets his indications of high quality largely from his dam and from his feed. It takes a big jack to get big mules from any mare. He should be the best obtainable.

There is no reason why the next few years should not see as great an increase in the mule industry as has the past decade. Of course we can never have as many mules as horses nor even half as many because of the way in which mules are produced.

But we can and should have many more. For an unskilled and careless teamster they beat a horse every way. They are not naturally mean or stubborn or vicious. The bad ones are made so by carelessness or no training. They don't get hurt. Every mule is a worker and fit for work all the time. Thus they are popular and growing in popularity all the time.

THE MILKING GOAT.

Toggenburg Breed Noted For Milk Producing Qualities.

The goat as a milk producer has long had a recognized place in Europe. There are some breeds of goats that are very heavy producers of milk. Goat milk is white in color and contains 4 1/2 per cent butter fat on an average and somewhat more casein or albumen than cow's milk. The fat is so minutely divided that it does not rise readily as cream. It is claimed that when milk from these milk goats is properly drawn and cared for there is no offensive odor connected with it.

Pure bred milk goats are very scarce in this country. The department of agriculture several years ago took up the matter of introducing goats of these special milk breeds and a bulletin entitled "Information Concerning the Milk Goat" was published by the department of agriculture in 1905.

Those interested in the importation of milk goats from Europe have found it extremely difficult to secure stock. The Toggenburg breed of milk goats which is raised in the Toggenburg valley of Switzerland has been bred there for centuries. This is a very hardy breed and probably has been introduced into the United States more extensively than any other milk breed.

Some individuals of this breed have produced five, six and even seven quarts of milk daily. The period of lactation in the milk goat is about five or six months. They usually produce two kids at the birth. The period of gestation is five months, as with sheep.

Infectious Abortion. Cows lose their calves (abort) from a variety of causes. However, infectious abortion is very prevalent in the dairy herds of this country. For this reason take no chances. Isolate immediately every cow as soon as she shows signs of impending abortion. When she aborts burn the calf and its membranes. Clean up and disinfect all discharges. Wash her hind parts with a 3 per cent solution of creolin. Keep her out of the herd until all signs of discharges have disappeared. — San Francisco Veterinary College.

Feed the Cow.

A cow cannot give a full flow of milk unless she is provided with feed from which to make the milk. It is wrong to expect something for nothing.

Just a Final Word in Regard to THE LAND AUCTION SALE

Saturday, November 8, 1913

ON THE FARM — AT 2:30 P. M. — ON THE FARM

OUR REASON FOR SELLING

The land to be sold is owned by us jointly, Wm. Christensen holding a contract for deed for 60 acres from C. M. Christensen and we are dissolving the partnership and have agreed upon this manner of sale, it being the FAIR THING FOR ALL PARTIES.

YOUR REASONS FOR BUYING

The land is good. It's location is ideal. It is a regular shaped farm comprising the three east forties. It is all fine, tillable land. It is a beautiful home-site. It is in Wayne county. It is close to Wayne, the best town in Northeast Nebraska, with its good markets, citizens, schools and churches. It will never sell again for so little. It can be bought on favorable terms, and AT YOUR OWN PRICE. It means a Profit, a Security, a Competency and a Beautiful Home for some man. ARE YOU THE MAN?

If your neighbor buys the land he gets the benefits. If you do not you get the regrets. Better attend the sale. ON THE FARM

Sholes Items

Hans Tietgen drove to Hoskins Sunday morning.

B. Stevenson was at Norfolk on business last Thursday.

Miss Elva Randa returned to her home at Niobrara last Saturday.

Chas. Sellon and wife were at the county seat Tuesday afternoon.

M. L. Halpin has two sisters here from Norfolk, for a few days visit.

Miss Etta Selentine of near Belden was a passenger to Wayne Thursday.

E. LaPlant is enjoying a visit from his mother who is here from Sioux City.

Mrs. B. Stevenson and Mrs. LaPlant were at Randolph Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Alice Goudgell has been visiting at the homes of the Root boys the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. McDowell and son, Erwin, went to Walchill Tuesday to visit friends at that place.

Emil Tietgen of the firm of Tietgen Bros., made a business trip to Calhoun Tuesday, returning the next day.

It is early in the season but nearly every day we hear of some farmer who is through husking corn for this year.

Last Thursday afternoon about ten Highlanders with three wagons and shovels hauled dirt and filled in the barn of Mrs. Lanberg.

Mrs. Kearstead goes from here to Bloomfield then back to Magnet for Friday night and will visit Carroll and Randolph next week.

A class of new members will be shown across the Highlanders draw-bridge this Friday evening when a full attendance is expected.

E. W. Leisy and W. H. Root attended the regular meeting of the Logan Valley Encampment No. 49 of Laurel last Tuesday night, going over in the latter's car.

The picture show and dance Friday night was not as well attended as usually as Hallowe'en parties were quite numerous throughout the neighborhoods adjacent to town.

The pranks performed by the small boys and some of the older ones on Hallowe'en night were the main issue. A painted sign nailed to the Closson elevator at a height of at least thirty feet from the ground, bearing the head lines "Information Bureau" is causing the greatest comment.

The Odd Fellows of Laurel are just putting the finishing touches to a fine brick opera house with lodge room, kitchen and banquet rooms on upper floor. This structure is of Sioux City pressed brick 48x120 feet and will cost $30,000. It will be ready for dedication early in December which demonstrates in a small way what Odd-fellowship is in northeast Nebraska.

Mrs. Kearstead, president of the Rebekah state assembly of Norfolk made her first official visit to the Sholes lodge Wednesday. A special meeting was held for her that evening which was enjoyed by all present. Following the meeting a reception was tendered her at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Root. A number of musical selections by the Odd Fellows quartette and others were greatly enjoyed. Light refreshments were served.

Winside Notes

(From the Tribune)

There is a move on foot to purchase a new lamp for the railroad company to use at the depot.

Mr. and Mrs. Pockrandt autoed over from Laurel Sunday and visited their son, Carl, who is employed in the depot and also visit other relatives. Mr. Pockrandt returned home in the evening while Mrs. Pockrandt remained until Monday afternoon and returned by the way of railroad. Mrs. Herman Fleer, her sister, accompanied her as far as Wakefield.

During the absence of agent Hartson, who was away on a fortnight's vacation, Winside and vicinity residents had to put up with the sauciest gink this side of the Jordan. From the way he succeeded slipping an extra fare over on some of our folks was too much for us. Hartson arrived home in time to prevent a rail serenade.

A complete surprise was planned and carried out on Mrs. Frank Tracy Tuesday evening, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. The evening pleasures were in charge of Mrs. Tracy's sister, Mrs. McCabe. The popular game of high five furnished amusement for the evening. At a seasonable hour the guests enjoyed a very tasty three course luncheon. Mrs. Tracy was presented with a Mexican drawn work lunch cloth.

Last Friday evening proved to be a night of big doings for the Danes in Winside and vicinity, when a number of families gathered at the Opera House, bringing with them music and eatables galore. Dancing and social visiting furnished amusement for the evening and at midnight all enjoyed a sumptuous banquet. The early hours of Saturday morning saw the guests all departing for their homes avowing the event one long to be remembered.

The Woman's club held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. A. H. Carter last Thursday afternoon with fifteen members answering to the roll call. The afternoon was spent in studying incidents in connection with the history of Rome, Mrs. E. H. Simon being leader. After the lesson a Hallowe'en luncheon was served by the hostess. Mesdames Robert Morrow and Henry Brune were guests of the Club. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. D. J. Cavanaugh with Mrs. C. E. Shaw as leader.

Chester LeRoy, 2 years, 10 months and 19 day old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Anderson passed away at the home of his parents fourteen miles northwest of Winside last week. He was sick only six hours. Relatives and the attending physician are at a loss to state the cause of his death. The fact that he had eaten a number of apples the morning of the day of his demise leads them to think that the cause may be traced to that origin. The little one was born in this county and spent his short life here. Besides his parents, he leaves four brothers and one sister to mourn his untimely demise. The entire community extends condolences to the bereaved in their hour of sorrow. The funeral services were held at the home Saturday afternoon conducted by Rev. C. E. Connell, pastor of the M. E. church. Interment was made in the country cemetery close by.

Wakefield News.

Mr. and Mrs. George Knaggs sold the lot and half north of their residence the first of the week to Charles E. Johnson for $450.

H. H. Childs and H. W. Willits went to Page Wednesday evening after George Childs' automobile. Miss Lottie Childs will return with them.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Emil Utemark, Saturday, November 1, a daughter. To Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wolter, Wednesday, November 5, 1913, a son.

Prof. and Mrs. Lundak are in attendance at the State Teachers' Association at Omaha this week. Mrs. Lundak will visit in Lincoln and Fremont before returning.

The Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church will give an oyster supper in the church parlors Tuesday evening, November 11, from 5 to 8 p. m. Everyone is cordially invited.

About eighty guests attended the Hallowe'en party in the Presbyterian church parlors Saturday evening. The usual stunts, typical of Hallowe'en eve, were participated in with much merriment. Light refreshments were served.

Miss Frances Mitchell returned Friday from a month's visit with her sister, Mrs. Thos. McGinnis of Raleigh, N. D. Miss Mitchell left this morning for Bellevue where she takes charge of the boarding department of Bellevue college.

The foot ball game between the Wayne Normal second team and Wakefield High School teams Tuesday afternoon was one of the best of the season. It was a hard fought game all the way through. The only touchdown was made by Wakefield in the last quarter on a forward pass. The score was 7 to 0.

About thirty-five ladies surprised Mrs. Johnson Tuesday afternoon, the day being the seventy-fifth anniversary of her birth. Rev. Kraft gave a short talk fitting to the occasion and in behalf of the guests presented Mrs. Johnson with a purse of money. Delicious refreshments were served by the guests.

At a meeting of the Wakefield Drainage District association Friday afternoon the contract for the engineering work and survey of an eleven mile ditch was let to the Towl Engineering Co., of Omaha. The preliminary survey will be made within the next thirty days and work will be begun on the ditch early in the spring.

The first number of the lecture course, a musical treat, will occur at the Auditorium Friday evening, November 7. The committee have been fortunate in securing for their opening number, Carl Steckleberg
