TEACHERS MEET AT NORFOLK

Northern Nebraska Teachers Hold Great Meeting at Norfolk. Superintendent Kemp Favorite of Many for State Superintendent

MRS. LITTELL NAMED SECRETARY

The annual meeting of teachers from this part of the state at Norfolk last week made a record as one of the best ever held by the association. Able speakers presented questions of vital interest, and reading of the reports of the sessions leads one to believe that what was done was more with an eye to the good of the schools than for the direct benefit of the teacher, as has some times appeared to be one of the chief objects of such gatherings. The summary of the papers shows them to be along lines helpful to the general improvement of educational conditions.

There was an excellent exhibit of the work of the pupils of different schools showing marked progress in many lines of work. Wayne schools were well represented in this department. It is elevating and inspiring for a teacher to get out from the school room and meet others in the same great work and compare methods and results with a view of selecting the best for future work. So long as these meetings are held with this spirit they will aid in the improvement of school work. It would be a great thing for the schools, teachers and patrons to have gatherings of all classes more frequent.

Norfolk entertained their guests well, providing the best the city afforded for their use.

The friends of Superintendent Kemp of this city inform us that there was strong sentiment expressed by his friends over the district in favor of his becoming a candidate for the office of state superintendent. This of course, was on the side and entirely without the deliberations of the gathering, for they do not as an organization deal with such matters, if we understand aright, nor should they. When asked about it, Mr. Kemp said that he was asked by many of his friends to make the race, but that he could not then make a definite reply without more time. "It was so sudden!" The Democrat would indeed be glad to have our superintendent enter and win the race, for we believe him to be competent and in every way qualified.

The following officers were elected:

President, Superintendent E. S. Cowan, Albion.

Vice President, Superintendent L. J. Knoll, Randolph.

Secretary, County Superintendent, Elsie Littell, Wayne.

Treasurer, County Superintendent N. A. Housel, Madison.

Death of John Gustafson

John C. Gustafson was born in Sweden May 25th, 1850. He came to America in the year 1866 and settled near Galesburg, Illinois. In the year 1883 he moved to Wayne county, where he has made his home since, for some years living north of town, but about fourteen years ago he moved to Wayne.

Mr. Gustafson was at one time one of Wayne counties most successful farmers. He departed this life unattended in his room at the Drexel hotel, Omaha, March 26th, 1914, age 63 years, 9 months and 29 days. He leaves to mourn his death, his wife and five children, Mrs. Anna Cocklin, Oakland, California, John Gustafson of Sioux City, Arthur Gustafson, Hartington, Nebr., Misses Nellie and Hilda, of Wayne.

The funeral was at Wayne, where the body was brought Sunday afternoon, Rev. Blessing preaching the sermon. The Woodmen of the World, of which order he was a member, attending and acting as pall bearers.

Many friends regret his sudden death and join in extending sympathy to the family.

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to neighbors and friends who were so kind in our hour of sorrow.

Mrs. J. G. Gustafson and Family.

Chas. Bright returned the first of the week from a business trip to California.

Elks Hold Festival at Norfolk

With more than 200 Elks participating in the festivities at the fourth annual banquet of the members of that festive organization at Norfolk Friday evening the event marked a new "high water" scratch in the history of the lodge. A program calculated to make all happy was indulged in and a magnificent banquet was served by the ladies of the Trinity guild. After the program at the hall and the feast all marched to the auditorium, where entertainment was provided without stint.

One of the features of the occasion was the ovation given to our townman, Hon. Samuel Davies, who was escorted to a seat of honor in the box near the stage and amid the cheers of his brother Elks a handsome emblem pin of the order was presented to him in recognition of his many acts of loyalty to the order. Mr. Davies was called upon for a speech, and responded in his usual happy manner as soon as the effects of the complete surprise had ceased to overcome him. Sam is very proud of the token, and wants all who see the "elk head with diamonds set on the antlers to understand that it is not a bull-moose, for he does not train with that crowd of politicians.

The following from this place were in attendance:

Sam Davies, W. E. Watkin, Warren and Art Shultheis, R. Will, A. A. Welch, P. Samon, J. T. Baughan, Don Cunningham, M. J. Hefron, L. A. Kiplinger, J. M. Pile and Milo Gilkerson. The three last named were candidates for initiation, but they lived through the ordeal.

Gamble & Senter Win

In its last issue the Democrat offered prizes for the best and second best window display made in honor of the W. O. W. members who were to be here Tuesday. District Deputy Davis named three visiting members of the order, business men from neighboring towns to view the displays. They awarded first place to Gamble & Senter, clothiers, and second place to L. A. Fanske, jeweler, and to these two the Democrat will pay the prizes. H. B. Craven hardware, Cahart Bros. hardware, German store, general stock, Blair & Mulloy clothing and Poulsen & Fortner grocers also had displays which were given mention.

The Democrat made the offer as a stimulant to advertising, for we believe that next to newspaper advertising a window advertisement is the best investment a merchant can make for the cost if he will but suit the display to the occasion.

Our Gun Club Notes

Wednesday was the first meeting and shoot of the season of the Wayne Gun Club, and the men we saw headed south with guns and ammunition were not starting to the aid of Ville in Mexico, but going out for the opening shoot of the season. In addition to the shooting they held their annual election and re-elected their old officers—Geo. Miner captain and Walter Weber secretary and treasurer. The score given below shows the birds broken out of 25:

Fisher	17
Von Seggern	19
Walter Weber	15
Frederickson	18
Miner	14
Dally	13
Gilman Weber	8

John Loeback Breaks Arm

Last Saturday while on his way to Winside with a load of cobs from his home six miles southeast of that place John Loeback's team became unmanageable and ran with him and the load, and threw him down in front of the wagon, and before he stopped the team he had an arm broken. He was fortunate to escape alive from the mixup he was in.

Plenty And To Spare

One of our business men has been quite anxious to see all of his friends the past few days, having plenty to give to all who came—and it was a case where giving did not impoverish nor withholding enrich—foe and friend could be treated alike. It was V. A. Senter, and the mumps. He is reported better now.

W. O. W. CLASS INTRODUCTION

Visiting Woodmen From Northeastern Nebraska Join in Making Night of Entertainment and Instruction.

In spite of bad weather and mud which prohibited automobile travel, the class introduction held at this place by the Woodmen of the World on Tuesday night might be called a success. The visitors numbered from 150 to 200 from out of town, mostly coming on the evening train from Sioux City and points between here and there, with delegations from the west and the Bloomfield branch. That many who planned to come from the south and north could not come on account of weather was evident.

The opera house was well filled with an interested audience who came to hear the part of the program which was for all. The invocation by Rev. John F. Davis from Carroll, the address of welcome by L. A. Kiplinger and response by H. M. Eaton of Emerson, the tribute to the memory of the late leader of Woodcraft, Joseph Guillen Root, by W. S. White, past head consul of Iowa were all interesting talks. The music of which L. L. Alexander had charge was splendid. Rev. W. McCarthy of Wakefield pleased the audience with his reasons for becoming a W. O. W. Attorney Kingsbury of Ponca was called upon for a talk and gave a good one. Edward Walsh told lots of facts about Woodcraft in his talk about the jurisdiction of Nebraska, of which he is manager. Then came the drill by the Woodlawn Guards of Sioux City, which was pronounced by those who had never before seen this intricate floor work most excellent.

This closed the public session, and a banquet was served at the I. O. O. F. hall after which the candidates, some seventy or eighty in number returned to the opera house and saw the degree of protection given. This was by the Sioux City team, under direction of Capt. W. D. Spencer, and most effectively done, being exemplified upon two of the candidates for the entertainment and instruction of all. This meeting here will tend to strengthen the local camp and add to its membership, and Deputy Davis should be given much credit for the honest and faithful work he is doing in this district.

Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary

The fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. James Hiscox was fittingly observed last Sunday evening at the home of their son, W. A. Hiscox, where Mesdames C. W. and W. A. Hiscox were hostess at a six o'clock dinner given in their honor. About thirty guests were present, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Cook and Master Roy and Miss Nellie of Hastings; Mr. and Mrs. Kraft of Seward; and Mrs. Anna Springer of Fremont; and Miss Reeves of Madison. The color scheme, gold and green was carried out in the decorations of the rooms and table, ferns and joughills being used in profusion. The dinner was served in three courses by the hostesses, assisted by the Misses Nellie Cook and Mae Hiscox.

After a happy evening spent in conversation interspersed with music the guests departed, leaving many valuable gifts as evidence of their good will toward the guests of honor who have been permitted to travel life's journey so far together.

Plans for New Theatre

F. A. Nance of the Crystal has the plans for his new theatre building, and Wednesday went to Randolph with one set of the plans to submit them to contractors at that place. Wayne builders, we understand, also have plans on which to make bids. There is to be a pretty front and convenient arrangement from that starting point clear to the rear exit. There is but one objection that can be urged—it is too small, and we are sorry arrangements could not have been made for a building at least twice the width of the one to be built.

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Fifty years ago a bashful young man in Ohio, fresh from the fields of battle, led his blushing young bride to the altar and there pledged fidelity to the marriage vows. There is nothing unusual about such an event in itself, for similar occurrences are happening daily among us. But the interesting thing is that after half a century this couple, crowned with hoary locks, yet vigorous, after all to commemorate that wedding day. David Moler and Mrs. Harriett Shaver Moler are the fortunate people of such a rare experience. On Tuesday evening about forty of the neighbors and friends responded to the invitation to honor the occasion. As many of the G. A. R. members and of the Auxiliary Circle as were able to come, were present. Besides it was a time for a family reunion—two children, four grand-children and two great grand-children were there.

After a few moments' greeting Mrs. John Grier rendered a beautiful piano solo, followed by invocation by Rev. Richardson. Mrs. Leuers then most fittingly sang "When You and I Were Young Maggie".

Rev. Richardson, after a few words of greeting presented to Mr. and Mrs. Moler on behalf of friends, a tray containing eight pieces of the yellow metal, befitting the golden event, amounting to seventy dollars. To which Mr. and Mrs. Moler responded and fittingly expressed their deepest appreciation for this token of friendship. Miss Bernice Moler then most appropriately sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold".

After this an elaborate four-course dinner was served by the grand-daughters. It was now realized that something had been overlooked. It was the ceremony.

This was elaborately attended to—ring ceremony and all. After taking the vows and pledges, and some quibbling about the absence of an license or fee, Mr. and Mrs. Moler were ready to receive the congratulations of friends.

It was a delightful occasion, and a privilege enjoyed by all present.

Those out of town present were Mr. and Mrs. John Huff, Marshalltown, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Moler, Sioux City, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. John Grier, six miles west of Wayne; Miss Bernice Moler, Vermillion, South Dakota.

County Camp M. W. A.

Wednesday afternoon the Modern Woodmen of this county met in county camp to elect a delegate to the state camp. The four camps of the county were represented by delegates and an organization was made by electing H. E. Simon of Winside chairman and H. Garwood of Carroll secretary. The questions of rates and head officers were discussed, but no resolution passed. In the selection of H. E. Simon as delegate to the state camp and sending him uninstructed, the camp practically declared for a change of head officers, for Mr. Simon is well known to be a conservative insurgent. This meetings was to have been held at Sholes, but owing to road conditions making the trip by automobile as had been planned impossible and train service being such that the time at Sholes would have been either too short or too long a change was made. The Sholes camp had planned to entertain the delegates royally, and all were sorry of the road conditions. After the session closed the delegates and a few other Woodmen who were present were entertained at a supper at the Union hotel.

Dr. Lewis Not Killed

Last week we published the report which lacked confirmation of the supposed death of Dr. Lewis, who formerly lived at this place, and a brother of John S. Lewis of this place. Dr. Lewis is in Mexico, and had not been heard from for some time by his relatives here and in South Dakota. But a few days ago Mr. Lewis here received from Secretary Bryan a message saying that the consul at Tampico has been assured within the last few days that Dr. Lewis was safe and well. We are glad indeed to make this corrected report.

Don Cunningham was an Omaha visitor the first of the week.

Harry Cox Dead

Harry Cox, who has been seriously ill for a month past at his home in this place, passed away Wednesday afternoon. His trouble started with blood poisoning from a diseased bone in the leg, and other complications followed one after another until he was worn out. He was 34 years of age, and leaves a wife and two daughters, aged 4 and 6 respectively and no other near relatives in this part of the county.

The funeral is to be held from the M. E. church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, by the pastor and Rev. Richardson of the Baptist church. He was a member of the Woodmen of the World and the pall bearers will be from among the members of the camp. An obituary will be printed next week.

Wilson Wins in House

After spirited debate on the repeal of the toll bill in the house at Washington a vote showed that the repeal as urged by the president was an easy winner, the vote being 247 to repeal and 116 opposed. It has been known all along that the measure would carry, but the opponents hoped to gain delay. It was the fight of the interests against the people, and the interests lost, but never without a battle. The roll call showed that 52 democrats in the house voted against the measure and 54 republicans and progressives favored the repeal. Speaker Clark and house leader Underwood, opposed the measure, but they had no power to stop its passage. The president holds his strength by being right in the eyes of the people.

E. H. Carroll Dies at Randolph

E. H. Carroll, a citizen most widely and favorably known in this county, died at his home at Randolph Saturday night, and was buried Monday from the Catholic church, and was largely attended. He was an excellent citizen, a good neighbor and loving husband and father. He was but 52 years of age, a native of Iowa, and died of internal cancer for which medical skill could perform no cure. He held numerous positions of official trust in this and Cedar county and always was faithful to his public duty.

Assessors Hold Meeting

Last Saturday County Assessor Carter was here from Winside and met with the precinct assessors or most of them at least. Those present received their supplies for the season's work and instructions as to the valuation to be placed upon stock, grain, automobiles, etc. The following list was made out to govern largely, and help to establish uniform rates throughout the county:

Horses:—Under 1 year, $30; over 1 and under 2, $50; over 2 and under 3, $80; over 3 and under 12, $100 to $200; over 12, $50; stallions, $200 to $500.

Mortgages On and Off

Below are the figures filed by County Clerk Reynolds relating to the filing and release of Mortgages during the month of March in this county. Of farm mortgages 50 were filed amounting to $264,300.55, and 42 were released in an amount of $143,820.50. There were 14 city mortgages recorded valued at $11,900.00, and 12 were released, amounting to $9,508.92. Ninety chattel mortgages were filed in sum of $41,770.00. In this class 55 were released, totaling $53,650.70.

There is one or two manufacturing enterprises which it seems might be enlarged upon very easily in this county. The manufacture of grain and grass into butter, young beef, pork or mutton is not yet worked near to the limit. Our raw material is not all used, nor do we produce as much of that as we might easily do. $300 invested in a silo would pay big annual dividends on the investment.

Mr. and Mrs. Jens Hansen of Winside, who have been visiting relatives near Carroll are visiting at the home of Mr. Hansen's sister, Mrs. Joe Ellburg, south of Wayne. Mr. and Mrs. Hansen expect to leave soon for Denmark to visit the latter's relatives. They expect to be gone several months.

Joseph Erickson was breaking a colt last Thursday and the animal got in a lick that made it seem that the breaking was not all on one side. When the colt got tangled in the harness and down Mr. E. went to unhitch the traces when he was kicked over the right eye and received a cut which the doctor used six stitches to close. He finished the unhitching and then called a physician to dress the wound. Had the blow been an inch lower, he might have been like the Dutchman's blind horse which he said "don't look very good."

The Hand of Death.

The pall of gloom settled upon our citizens Tuesday morning when report spread that Mrs. Frank Pryor had passed to the great beyond.

Only a resident of Creighton for two short years yet in that time her sweet humility and unselfishness endeared her to all of her acquaintances.

Bessie Viola Heyer was born September 2, 1890, in Wayne county, Nebraska, and married to Frank Pryor May 12, 1912. To this union one child, Marcelline, was born.

The funeral was held from St. Ludgerus' Catholic church Thursday where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Father Windolph, and Rev. Father Kearns of Wayne read the burial service.

The out of town relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. Heyer, Henry Heyer, Esther Heyer and Mrs. Wm. Roberts of Gordon, Mrs. Margaret Pryor, Miss Margaret Pryor and Tom Pryor of Wayne and Leo Pryor of Chicago.

We have learned that Mr. Pryor's mother and sister will come to Creighton to keep house for the bereaved husband and father.

A Train Load of Stock

Last Saturday afternoon a train load of good stock left this station for Chicago. L. M. Owen had three cars of good white-face, short horn and black cattle which had been on a four month feed and looked like cattle that had more time in the feed yard. They averaged in weight 1370 and were an even bunch.

Henry Kloppling loaded three cars from his place, with an average weight of over 1400. In this bunch Mr. Kloppling had one yearling with which he expects to top the market. It weighs over 900 pounds and is a high grade Short-horn which he raised. Last year he sold the calf of the year before for beef at more than $80, and he expects this one to do better. Then there is another good one now at the cow's side. Such a cow beyond a doubt pays well for her care, and the wonder is that the farmers do not have more of them of some good breed. Of course a newspaper man is not supposed to know all about farming and stock raising but we do know that if the farmers will do it that inside of ten years this county can produce more than twice the amount of live stock it now markets and feed it all too, from birth until time for marketing. There is lots of land in the county not farmed, a lot more but indifferently cultivated, and then of the feed grown fully one-fourth is not utilized for feed. But best to finish the story. Roy Hurst added two cars of well finished cattle to the train.

Frank Strahan also sent a car of good horses from the Strahan ranch and barns to Chicago, D. A. Stricklin going in with the horses. Messrs. Owen and Kloppling went in with their cattle.

Mayors from many cities in Nebraska are naming delegates to the State Charities and Correction convention, which will be held in Omaha, April 23 to 26. More than 700 have been appointed as delegates to date and the number will easily reach 1,000 before the convention meets.

The Nebraska state horticultural society has members in more than seventy counties in Nebraska with the largest membership in the counties in the eastern part of the state. The object of this society is to help in all possible ways every person who is interested in trees, fruit, flowers and vegetable growing. The society desires to extend its membership so that every county in Nebraska will be receiving the benefit of the society's efforts and researches.

Luther Burbank's famous exhibit of the products of his fertile brain will be shown at the low cost of living show, which will be held in Omaha beginning April 16. Word received from Mr. Burbank stated that two car loads of exhibits will include all of his wonderful creations and will be of especial interest to everyone interested in agriculture and horticulture. Among the features which will be shown are his famous Rainbow corn, seedless plums, wonder berries, plumcot, a combination of the plum and apricot, and a full line of flowers and fruits. In this latter collection are 140 different specimens.

Henry Kroff, who represented Cedar county in the last legislature, has this to say regarding proposed tax legislation: "Taxation will probably be an important question before the next legislature. If the revenue amendment carries—which it certainly should—there will no doubt be an entirely new revenue law. But fully as important will be a new school law. The legislature appointed a commission who are now at work gathering suggestions for changes, and it is likely that all of the old law will be abolished and an entirely new law substituted. This was done last session with the insurance law. We now have an entirely new insurance code. Probably next winter new educational and new revenue laws entire will be formed. The school law is as important as the revenue law."

OLD FOLKS FIND NEW REMEDY RELIEVES ALL KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Drives Rheumatic Pains Away, Relieves Backache and Bladder Disorders After A Few Doses Are Taken

Sleep disturbing bladder weaknesses, backache, rheumatism, and the many other kindred ailments which so commonly come with declining years, need no longer be a source of dread and misery to those who are past the middle age of life.

The new discovery, Croxone, overcomes all such disorders because it removes the very cause of the trouble. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the little filtering glands and cells, and gives the kidneys new strength to do their work properly. It neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism, and makes the kidneys filter and spit out all the poisonous waste matter

The Nebraska State Agricultural college has had a representative in Humphrey the past week to test the Holstein cows belonging to Dr. Condon on milk and butter production. He returned to Lincoln Monday. The test was very satisfactory and demonstrated that Dr. Condon has some exceptional cows in his herd. All that were tested were admitted to the A. R. O. class, nine in all. One young heifer, twenty months old, which freshed over two months ago, is still producing at the rate of nearly two pounds of butter each day. The highest record of the herd is an old cow making nearly 3 1/2 pounds of butter in a day and eleven gallons of milk per day.

The Citizen's Relief Committee, which had charge of Omaha tornado relief fund made its final report March 23, the first anniversary of the terrible disaster. After the report the committee was dissolved, its work done. The report showed that $420,853 was received and expended in relief and restoration work and that the total expense of operation was $5,795, or less than one and one-third per cent. Not one suggestion of graft or misappropriation of funds has ever been heard and all but a trifle more than $5,000 has gone directly to the tornado sufferers. The report shows that $129,336 was expended for emergency relief, such as clothing, rents, food, furniture, etc., and $287,336 for restoration and rehabilitation of homes. This money, however, does not include that expended by various corporations and fraternal societies, which cared for their own people. Of the money distributed by the relief committee more than sixty per cent came from Nebraska and Omaha, a tribute to the unselfishness of our people. The report further showed that 2,200 cases were cared for by the committee and that 687 homes were restored by the same organization.

Farm Credit Conflict

When congress gets through with free tolls and the trust bills there will be another clean cut issue over the farm credit system the administration is pledged to provide. Senator Fletcher, author of the bill which has been pushed forward in the senate, has received a sharp letter from David Lubin which draws clearly the line of battle.

David Lubin is the American representative on the permanent committee of the international institute of agriculture. He was one of the earliest promoters of the idea of co-operative farm credit in the United States, and one of the first to investigate the various systems of co-operative and government credit in force in Europe. Mr. Lubin writes Senator Fletcher that his bill is not at all the sort the American farmers need or that European experience suggests.

Senator Fletcher's bill provides for the organization of land banks by men with money to lend. What Mr. Lubin expected was the organization of credit associations by farmers who needed to borrow. He finds the Fletcher bill a plan for mortgage banks by bankers, instead of being for co-operative mortgage associations "operated by farmers for farmers".

There is a wide difference between the two, a difference so wide that a compromise will be difficult. Mr. Lubin suggests what any careful mind must have seen from the first, that the subject should be proceeded with slowly. It is a large and complicated matter, and the country cannot afford to make a false start.—State Journal.

The District Oratorical Contestant

For the third time Wayne contestant wins a first place in the district contest. Russell Meyers is first in the humorous class and district contest. The following report of the meeting was taken from the Norfolk News:

Oratorical class:
First—Roy Carson, Madison, "A Plea for Cuba."
Second—Ethyle Beckford, Oakdale, "Spartacus to the Gladiator."
Dramatic class:
First—Grant McFarland, Stanton, "The Shepherd's Story."
Second—George Gross, Wisner, "The Death Disc."
Humorous class:
First Russell Myers, Wayne, "In the Toils of the Enemy."
Second—Vera Carson, Pilger, "The Debating Society."

Six gold medals were given out by the judges in annual declamatory contest of north Nebraska high school, which took place in the auditorium last Thursday night. Every seat in the theatre was filled at 8 o'clock when the program began. Twenty-three contestants from as many towns reported and the contest was not over until after 1 o'clock the next morning. The crowd—estimated at 600—remained in the theatre until the judges announced their decisions. The result seemed popular with the audience which included many delegations from various parts of north Nebraska who had come to Norfolk to hear their favorites battle for honors. The three winning first prizes will represent north Nebraska at the state contest.

Russell Myers of Wayne kept the crowd in an uproar with his first prize winning humorous story. Prof. C. U. Keckley of the Wayne normal, Miss Brown, head of the elocution of Morning Side college and Miss Howell, head of the elocution department of the state university, were judges in the oratorical and dramatic classes. Miss Howell and Brown and Supt. Price of Tilden, judged the humorous class. Prof. Gains of Fremont, had been expected to be one of the judges, but he did not appear.

The new officers of the declamatory association are: President, F. W. Kuns, Oakdale; vice president, Miss Mary Beck, Bancroft; secretary-treasurer, Cecilia Foster, West Point.

The association constitution was amended at the business meeting, by cutting down the number of contestants to twenty.

"Go-to-Church Sunday" at Presbyterian Church

The governor's recent proclamation urging all citizens to return to the habit of the fathers in regular attendance at divine worship every Sunday, and setting apart last Sunday, March 29th, as "Go-to-Church Sunday" for the state of Nebraska, added to the interest in the church services all over the state, and called attention to the remarkable spiritual wave which is sweeping over our nation, and strengthening the membership and influence of the Christian church in America. This tidal wave of religion is most felt, so far, in the east, but is moving westward, and the governor's proclamation is a sign of the times.

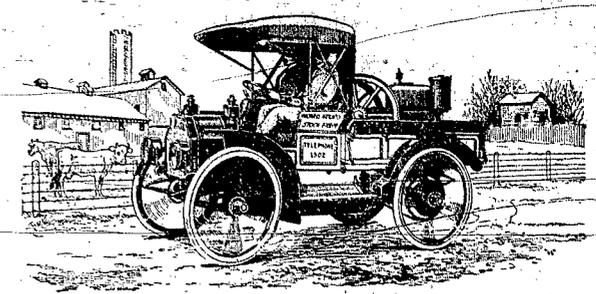

At the Presbyterian church there was a special anniversary service as the pastor begins his fifth year of service in Wayne, and large and interested congregations assembled. Before the sermon the governor's proclamation was read by Superintendent J. H. Kemp and the earnest words of the chief executive of our commonwealth were heard attentively, especially that part of the proclamation which declares that Nebraskans should not forget that it will avail little in the end to pile up material wealth if the higher interests are neglected as it doth not profit a man to gain the whole world if he lose his own soul.

The pastor began his sermon with a brief review of the work of the four past years, stating that 132 new members had been received during that time, 44 adults had been baptized in the name of Christ, and 40 infant baptisms had been celebrated. The number of weddings at which the pastor had officiated was 31, while 18 funerals had been conducted.

Taking for the text the words of Apostle Paul "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness," the minister showed the comparison between the Christian's life and a battle, a race, and a sacred trust, and declared that the ambition of the minister is to win approval as one who fights well the Christian fight, runs patiently the Christian race, and keeps faithfully the glorious gospel entrusted to the church of God on earth.

In closing the sermon reference was made to the fact set forth by Governor Morehead that we owed it to the coming generation to hand down the precious faith which has been preserved in the world since the time of Christ up to our day. "It is our duty to hand down our free institutions," declared the speaker. "It is our privilege to pass on the accumulated treasures of knowledge and material wealth, but as Governor Morehead says, these will not profit if the soul is lost and if we fail to hand down to our children the Christian faith which our fathers have bequeathed to us. This Christian faith is life's best treasure, and must be guarded above all else."

At the evening service the pastor spoke on the subject of Christ's Miracles, showing their philosophy and proving the fact of Christ's divine mission. He referred to present-day miracles wrought by the everpresent Jesus not only in the case of the soul, but also of the body. The modern Sadducees, like the gang of 19 centuries ago, not only dispise the wonderful works of Christ but even hate Him, and His church the more as these effects of Christianity are apparent.

Separate Tax Sources

Another taxation question. Two school districts lie side by side. Through one passes a railroad. This district is served no more by the railroad than its neighbor which may even lie closer to the actual station. The farmers of one pay as much in freights to the railroad as do those of the other. Yet in one district the taxes are made very much lower because the valuable railroad property pays so much. Not long ago the Hartington district recovered something between one and two thousand dollars on account of an error by which the railroad had paid its taxes to the wrong district. On one mile of railroad the company must pay much greater tax than on the next mile.

In one county, property is assessed at nearly its full value, in another it is assessed at only a small fraction. Hence that county highest assessed must pay much more than its full share of state taxes, and the county assessed too low, pays less than its share of state taxes.

In several states both of these sources of inequality have been removed by one operation.

They "segregate the sources of state and local revenue."

That is, property which pays local taxes pays no state tax at all, and property which pays state taxes pays no local taxes.

The railroads are assessed for state purpose only, and your land and house and horse and cow pay taxes only for the local government. Some states also collect the liquor licenses, the inheritance taxes and the taxes on telephone, telegraph and pipe lines, and on large corporations. This makes more revenue than is needed for state purposes, so a portion of it is returned to the local communities. In this way the inequalities of state taxes are removed and the benefit of corporation taxes are distributed. District 1 gets as much benefit of railroad taxes as district 2. This is the way the benefit of the permanent school fund and the school land leases is distributed in this state. Everybody gets a share of it.

Vote for the amendment which will unite the hands of the legislature—Cedar County News.

One of the secrets of a successful newspaper builder is to know what not to say—at least there is as much in that as in knowing what to print.

Study of a state map discloses that there are five counties in this state that have no railroad within their borders, Banner, McPherson, Logan, Keyapaha and Loup. Yet west of Antelope county is a tract as large as the state of New Jersey which has no railroad.

The astounding gall of some reform organizations is astounding. This paper is in receipt of an offer of a page of reformation per month—if we will purchase it at regular price and publish it free. That is not so worse after all for it requires no brain power—except to dig the cash with which to pay the bill for pulling the chestnuts out.

With two branches of the republican party fighting each other in Nebraska this fall as it appears they are going to do and as they should continue to do, it seems as though there might be a chance for the people to have an inning at the management of state affairs if they will but see to it that the special interests do not foist some of their henchmen to a place on the democratic ticket. Every democrat should be on guard to prevent such a calamity.

The people who failed to enjoy the blessing of the good roads we have had all winter for fear there would no be no moisture this spring may now make themselves miserable by mourning over the fact that the roads are not now in the pink of condition, but there is an abundance of rain for immediate use at least. It would be well to enjoy the blessings of the day and not worry of what might never happen—and what you could not help by worry if it did happen.

Pollock in telling of the hypocrite and his donation to charity with one hand putting a penny in, with the other taking a shilling out; so if one read the bulletin, No. 139, obtainable at Washington by writing for it, one can see where the great copper combine has with one hand given the people a dollar and with the other taken an hundred dollars from them. If you get the bulletin read between the lines as you read to see what it really means to their employees.

The Yankton, South Dakota, Herald is authority for saying that the Milwaukee road will build a new double-track line from Omaha to that place along the west side of the Missouri, and from Yankton extend the line north. This gives Ponca people hope of a road which has two terminals. But a glance at the map shows that they might well come into Wayne from the south if it is a direct line they are looking for with good country both sides of the track. A river route has some disadvantages in the matter of grading, but the local traffic along such a stream as the Missouri is all from one side.

Co-operative doctoring is a scheme which Dr. Richard C. Cabot is agitating. He would have a group of physicians—enough to secure specialists in the treatment of various diseases of mankind in the different ages. Each member of the patient's club which he would have organized to employ the other group should pay so much per month and have the benefit of the services as needed of any of the profession. The idea would be to doctor to keep well instead of to get well after you have the gout or other ailments. But the doctor while telling of other specialists makes no mention of Science, Osteopathy or Chiropractic. Why not take them all in?

There is more than one side to the parcel post law, and some phases certainly favor the local dealer in working territory close to home. Under a recent change, books, catalogue and the like are now classified for parcel post mail, and at once the catalogues houses commence to cry. One of them writes that under the old rate they might send a 9-ounce catalogue anywhere for 5 cent, but now it costs 11 cents to reach the distant parts of this country, and 12 cents to the Philippines. This means, that before they were getting the long haul at the cost of the short haul and the people were paying the deficit out of the general fund. Now they have to pay their own cost, hence the kick.

State Normal Notes

The Board of Education will meet at Lincoln on April 14.

Friday, April 10 and Monday, April 13 have been announced as days on which school will be dismissed for the Easter vacation.

A bulletin announcing the work of the summer session of 1914 will be mailed about April 10. Nearly all the members of the present teaching force will remain during the summer and a few special instructors added to the faculty list.

Superintendents Miller of Osmond, Tower of Wausa and Gulliver of Bloomfield stopped in Wayne last Saturday while returning from the Norfolk meeting. They each paid a visit to the normal and were especially interested in the work of the manual training department.

Calls from boards of education to fill positions of city superintendent, principal of high school, and teacher of grades are being received at the office. The demand for trained teachers is such that a graduate of a normal school finds no difficulty in securing a position in the best graded schools of Nebraska.

Monday and Tuesday were moving days, and with the assistance of fireman, janitors, students and grade pupils the property in the training school rooms of the old building was soon transferred to the gymnasium, where the training department will occupy temporary quarters pending the completion of the new structure.

The next issue of the Goldenrod will be a junior number. The class has elected Paul A. Becker as editor, and with a large staff of associate editors the April edition will be made to represent something of the thought, the enterprise, and the spirit of the class of 1915. It will contain a number of excellent half tones and will be increased to double the size of the paper at the present time.

Dr. J. T. House has accepted the invitation of Superintendent William Fleming of Lyons to deliver the address to the class graduating at that place on the evening of May 20. Dr. House gave the commencement address last year at Butte, when Mr. Fleming was serving there as principal, and the request for his services to act in the same capacity at Lyons is evidence that the address of last year was highly pleasing to the people.

The Physical Science club met in the laboratory of Science Hall Tuesday evening and rendered the following program: Talk, Fannie Britell; watchspring burning in oxygen, Bernice Patten; miniature volcano, Roy Clark; red and green paper, Anna Baer; experiment with gun cotton, George Church; photography of projectiles, Gertrude Gaehler; luminous Calcium sulphide, Minnie Bergman.

FOUND IN THE SNOW

A Rescue and a Romance

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Dell Pearson faced her father across the library table. Her face was pale and resolute, and her eyes shone strangely.

"Father," she said firmly, "you cannot make me marry Hugo Forest against my will. I am of age, and even if Cousin Fortescue did leave me $500,000 with the understanding that I was to marry the son of his old friend I would forfeit the money rather than marry a man whom I do not love!"

"Bravo, my dear!" smiled her father approvingly. "While $500,000 is not to be sneezed at in these mercenary days, still I'd rather have my girl marry a man who, though penniless, has very much the making of a man in him than a good for nothing gilded fool. Of course Fortescue has hinted that which ever one of the two beneficiaries under his singular will declines to marry the other, according to his stipulations, that one will forfeit his money."

"I am glad that my refusal to marry Mr. Forest will not affect his enjoyment of his $500,000," Dell sighed relievedly.

Mr. Pearson smiled dryly. His finger tapped an open letter under his hand.

"Your feelings are very creditable, my dear, and I am sure that young Forest would appreciate your position, only"—He hesitated such a long time that Dell became impatient and prompted him.

"Only?"

"Only, you see, Hugo Forest refuses to sell himself for $500,000. He expresses himself very delicately. You may read his letter, my dear."

"Well, it is settled, then, daddy. And I am glad that you are worth a few millions yourself so that I am not causing you any distress by going my own sweet way."

Mr. Pearson looked at her keenly.

"And if I told you that my millions had dwindled to a bare hundred thousand in the last year, daughter?" he questioned gravely.

Dell gasped faintly.

"Daddy Pearson—that changes the matter entirely—if you need it in your business?"—She suddenly faltered and blushed and hid her face on his shoulder.

"If you need it, I could marry him, father, but not unless you do."

"I wouldn't have you furnish me with money in that manner," said James Pearson, smoothing back the fair hair from her broad forehead and looking deep into her true, blue eyes.

"We can get along without the Fortescue money. And, besides, we forget that Master Forest has declined the honor!"

Della blushed scarlet.

"Of course! How stupid of me! Well, the incident is closed. And if evil times have fallen on the business, daddy, please tell me how to economize."

"I've thought it over. We must lop off all the motorcars save the limousine and your runabout. We must close up the house and lease it for a year, furnished, while I make that business trip abroad. When I return we will stop at a hotel until the year is up. Cousin Madeline will be glad to come on and chaperon you. I'd like to take you abroad with me, but I'll confess it would add mightily to my expenses."

"Don't mind; I've decided in an instant what to do with myself during your absence."

"And what is that, Miss Independence?" asked Pearson, kissing her pink ear.

"I'm going to Big Horn to pay a long promised visit to the Appletons."

Big Horn was a large town in Alberta, and the Appletons, who were Canadians and old friends of the Pearsons, welcomed Dell into the large family with a cordiality that brought tears to the girl's eyes.

"Now that winter is coming on you will enjoy all our snow sports," promised Alice as she lingered in Dell's room before going to bed that first night.

"We have a fine slide beyond the pine forest. Father had it built. It's a mile and a half to the bottom. Wait—until we have another heavy snowfall and a good freeze after it!"

"I can wait," laughed Dell, smuggling under the elderdown comfortable.

But when snow came the very next day she could hardly wait for Alice to finish her music lesson and give her a first lesson on walking with snowshoes.

So Dell, who was adventurous, put on the pretty white tobogganing costume of white angora which she had provided, tossed a white fox stole about her throat and, swinging snowshoes over her shoulder, set forth in the midst of the snowstorm.

When she was out of sight of the house, where no one could observe her ridiculous maneuvers, she slipped on the broad shoes and made her way on the crust of new snow among the pine trees back of the house.

The sport was fascinating. Dell quite forgot the lapse of time. The location was strange, and she took no heed, and presently she took a wrong turning, lost her bearings and came to an open tract of unbroken snow bordered on three sides by forest.

"I'll cross this field to the trees, and then I'll go home. Alice will be surprised to find how well I have learned by myself," thought Dell proudly as she skimmed over the snow with all an amateur's heedless enjoyment of the treacherous snowshoes.

Before she reached the forest the ground inclined sharply to a deep gully. Dell was upon the brink before she realized the danger. Then, it was too late. Her shoe caught in a half covered root, and she plunged down to the bottom of the gully, where she lay unconscious while the snow drifted silently over her like a pale blanket.

At dusk the Appleton home was in a frenzy of excitement. They had been searching for Dell Pearson for four hours, and no sign of her had been discovered. Mr. Appleton had telephoned to the mounted police and asked for assistance, and a searching party had set forth to look for the lost girl.

The little file of mounted policemen trilled out of the avenue and separated. The troopers, under orders from their captain, rode down to distant points on the road with the intention of beating back through the forest. Of course there was a limit to the distance the girl might have traveled, and the captain had taken this into consideration. For himself he had chosen the piece of snow covered country across which Dell had skimmed so lightly on her new snowshoes.

And so it was the captain of them all who came tearing up the avenue and into the Appleton home with a silent white burden in his strong arms. He had applied restoratives as soon as he discovered the girl, and she had opened her eyes upon him once and smiled drowsily before trying to resume her slumber.

Dell was revived, and before the captain departed Mr. Appleton insisted that he come to dinner the next evening.

He accepted the invitation, and it was not until he had departed that the Appletons looked at one another and laughed.

"We don't even know his name," they cried. "But he'll come all right," added young Tom Appleton sagely. "He's struck all of a heap with Dell. Any one could see that with half an eye! Jove, but he's a big chap! They say he's brave and has no end of medals."

The next evening Dell was well enough to come down to dinner, and it was with a faint stirring of interest that she awaited the coming of the captain who had found her in the snow. She remembered a dark, strong face bending above her own, and she had felt a strange confidence in him as he picked her up in his strong arms with a murmured word of pity and carried her home.

Dell was alone in the room when Mr. Appleton came in from the library, where he had been entertaining the captain since his arrival. Dell in her white evening gown looked very lovely as she arose and held out her hand to her rescuer. He appeared more of a giant than ever in his well fitting evening clothes, and she wondered a little as Mr. Appleton made the introduction.

"Dell, let me present Captain Forest. Captain, I am sure Miss Pearson will want to thank you for saving her life."

"Captain—Forest?" faltered Dell wondering.

"And—Dell Pearson? Is it possible you are James Pearson's daughter?" asked the amazed policeman.

"Yes—and—oh, dear, but it's very amusing," bubbled Dell.

"Permit me to say that it's not amusing to me. It's a serious matter," corrected the captain. "—I hope you didn't see that letter I wrote to your father."

"I did," admitted Dell as he came and sat beside her on the sofa, "and I want to tell you how much father and I liked the letter."

Captain Forest frowned and bit his lip.

"It was a hard letter to write," he said at last, "but if—I had known you first—well, pardon me, Miss Pearson, but I must tell you the rest another time."

Dell's heart was fluttering curiously. The remainder of the party had entered the room, and they were waiting the summons to dinner. There was a bustle of arrival in the hall and presently James Pearson was announced.

When the confusion of his greeting was over he explained that for business reasons he had been obliged to postpone his trip for another month, and he had come to join his daughter among the Canadian snows.

It was after dinner, while the men of the party were on their way to join the ladies in the drawing room, when Captain Forest laid a hand on Mr. Pearson's sleeve.

"Pardon me, sir," he said with his quiet smile, "I am wondering if I may retract the terms of the letter I sent to you."

"Why?" asked Pearson with Yankee directness.

"Because I've changed my mind," returned Forest.

"And you desire to marry for the Fortescue fortune?" rapped out Pearson with a twinkle in his eyes.

"Not exactly, sir. I wish to marry for love, and I'm afraid I'm going to get tangled up in that money after all," admitted the captain, "if I should be successful in my wooing."

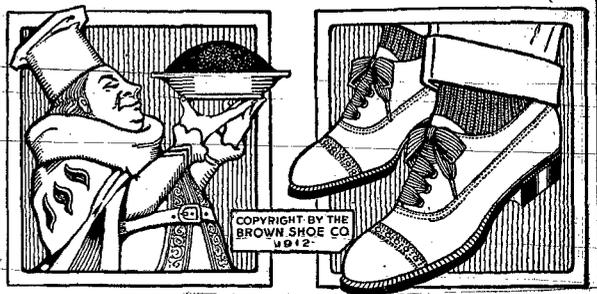

"Ah!" smiled Pearson understandingly, for he had read their telltale eyes across the dinner table. So it happened that the terms of the Fortescue will were carried out to the letter in spite of the fact that the interested parties married for love alone. And in addition James Pearson gained a son, such a son as he had always yearned for, and Dell won the man of her dreams, and Forest himself took to his manly heart his ideal woman whom he had found in the snow.

One-third of all the cows milked in Nebraska are milked at a loss. If you suspect that some of yours are among this third, keep a record of the number of pounds of milk produced by each cow. Determine the amount of butter fat each cow through the use of Babcock tester, which may be purchased for $5. Then you can spot the boarder, providing you know the cost of the cow's feed. Personal problems may be handled free through correspondence with the dairy department of the University farm at Lincoln.

Among The Churches of Wayne

Presbyterian Church
Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.

"Glory to Our King" will be the subject of the special Palm Sunday sermon at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning. In the evening the subject will be "Jesus Christ at His Best in His Prayers." This is the last of the special Lenten sermons.

Next week Rev. S. McComb, D. D., of Sioux City, Iowa, will be in Wayne to assist in special services during Passion week. A reception will be given to him by the men on Tuesday evening, and he will preach in the church on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. On Wednesday evening at the close of the sermon the annual business meeting of the congregation will be held to hear reports of the work for the year and to elect trustees and elders in place of those whose terms of office have expired.

On Friday evening after the special sermon by Dr. McComb there will be a reception of new members into the fellowship of the church and the Communion of the Lord's Supper will be observed.

At a meeting of the session held on Monday afternoon Mr. W. A. K. Neely was elected as delegate of the church to the meeting of Niobrara Presbyterian which meets April 21st at Wakefield.

On Easter Sunday, in connection with the morning service, the ordinance of infant baptism will be administered.

A contest to increase the attendance and membership at the Christian Endeavor meetings has been inaugurated by the society under the leadership of Mrs. Clason, the chairman of the look-out committee. Two sides have been picked, led by Ralph Ingham and Edith White respectively, and the losing side will entertain the winners at the close of the contest.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church
(Rev. Blessing, Pastor.)

Sunday School every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Regular preaching services in the morning at 11 o'clock and in the evening at half past seven.

The subject of the sermon for next Sunday will be "The Significance of Christ's Triumphant Entry into Jerusalem", Matthew 19:1-9. Shortly after Christ left Bethany, where He had raised Lazarus from the dead, He spoke to His Disciples, saying, "Go into the village that is over against you and straightway ye shall find an ass tied and a colt with her, loose them and bring them unto me." Obedient to the command of Christ, they brought the ass and colt, and not having a saddle, they took their garments and placed the Christ upon it. Then did He continue on His way, with a great multitude following Him; up and over the ridge, then gradually down the slope swept the long procession. Before them in all of their beauty and grandeur lay the fair city of Jerusalem. From the city there came a great multitude to welcome Christ. Thus, amid a great throng was the lowly Nazarene ushered into the city in triumph.

The subject of the evening sermon will be "The Thirst of Christ". Next Sunday being Palm Sunday, we will begin a week of services, so that we may properly observe Holy week. There will be no services on Monday or Saturday evenings. Tuesday evening the subject will be "The Handwriting of God", Daniel 5:5. Wednesday evening, "The Silent Architect", 1 Kings 6:7. Thursday evening, "Twice Born Men" John 3:5. Friday evening, "The Cross Triumphant", Galations 6:14. Friday evening, preparatory services will be held.

The ladies Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. Ole Lyngen next Thursday. A means of conveyance will be provided.

Catechetical class Saturday afternoon at half past two.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to our services.

The Value of Pure Breeds

Messrs. Reese & Son from Pilger were here this week shipping from this place to Hartington a Shorthorn bull about 18 months of age, for which they received $500. Thus we see that the pure bred stuff brings the cash. Here is another good sale for calves. John S. Lewis of this place sold three Shorthorn calves from his herd recently, aged respectively 13, 9 and 7 months receiving $535 for the three. Mr. Lewis tells us that he has several other good bulls at the farm—one especially which he thinks is a better animal than he has sold, and if given nurse cows and especial care frequently given to choice calves would outshine any. We believe, however, that his stock is really the better for not being crowded too fast. His stock traces back to the Choice Goods strain.

Baptist Church
Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor

Last Sunday closed our missionary year. In the matter of giving it marked our best year. It is a sign of a deepening spiritual life to see a church growing in missionary gifts and interest. The thing especially gratifying is the large number that shared in the giving to this work.

The Woman's Missionary Society report having paid in full their budget and they have heroically set their faces toward another good year.

The young people went beyond their pledge to special missionary work. The devotion and loyalty of the young people is inspiring to us all.

Next Sunday, generally recognized as Palm Sunday, will be our communion service. The communion address will be on "The Divine Companion." Read Luke 24:13-35 before you come to this service. We have planned three week-night services for next week, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. These will be prayer meetings, with an address of about fifteen minutes. After the service Wednesday evening, there will be a social hour. See the special announcement cards. Come and bring some one.

Sunday at 6:30 p. m. there will be a rally service of the young people. A splendid program has been prepared. Special musical numbers. Miss Belle McGee is leader. Every young person of the church and congregation is wanted at this meeting.

At 7:30 the pastor will preach on the subject "On the Heights with Jesus."

Let us make these mid-week services the time of getting into closer fellowship with Christ. Let it be a week of prayer for us.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh of the Bladder. It is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietor has so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Two Republican Committees Agree to Work in Harmony.

BOTH PARTICIPATE IN CALL

Names of Both Chairmen to Be Signed to Call for Convention When Issued. York Telephone Case to Come Up April 8.

Lincoln, March 30.—The two Republican committees fought out their differences at a meeting here and after a short argument came to terms and agreed to work in harmony.

Senator Frank M. Currie, chairman of the Taft wing of the Republican party, and Judge A. C. Epperson, chairman of the Roosevelt wing, expressed gratification over the result of the meetings.

The proposition, which at one time looked as if it would cause dissension, was who had the right to call the convention. The executive committees of both parties had agreed upon a plan for the joint calling of the state convention by both committees, but the Epperson committee instead voted for a plan which practically ignored the existence of the Currie committee.

They finally agreed to appoint a committee to confer with a like committee from the other committee and the two reported a plan which in substance allowed the Epperson committee to call the convention with the co-operation of the Currie committee.

After agreement as to calling the state convention by the Epperson committee had been reached and the meetings adjourned, it was thought best in order to meet all legal requirements that the same resolution which gave the power to the Epperson committee to call the convention with the Currie committee co-operating, should be adopted concerning the Currie committee, and thus both the name of Mr. Currie and Mr. Epperson would appear on the call, covering the point as to the legal right of either party to issue the call and prevent possible future court proceedings over the election of candidates of the party.

When the Currie committee met it did not take the members long to agree to the plan proposed by both Chairman Epperson and Chairman Currie for the committees jointly to issue a call for the state convention, and a committee consisting of Mr. Currie, A. W. Jeffers and Bert Mapee was selected to notify the other committee of their action.

Chairman Epperson, speaking to the progressive wing, pointed out that differences arising in 1912 which resulted in the split have now passed and that harmony should rule to the success of the party.

The convention will be held at Lincoln, July 28.

Better Horse Races Promised at Fair. With the adoption of a number of new rules, there are indications of a revival of interest in the state fair speed events this fall. A strong program is being arranged. The record made by any horse in a heat is no longer a bar unless the animal won the race. In addition, horses that pass through a season without raising an established record are allowed a second year. This rule allows "old timers to come back," as one horse man expressed it, and will encourage local horsemen to enter the competition.

Conflict in Statutes. A conflict in the statutes regarding the filing fee required of county judges is causing some trouble in regard to the fee to be paid. Section 2156 of chapter 30, provides that all county officers, which includes judges shall pay a filing fee of $5. Section 2209 of the same chapter, which is a part of the nonpartisan judiciary act, says that all candidates for office under this act shall pay a filing fee of $10. According to Secretary of State Wait the latter act will stand and county judges must pay $10 when making their filing.

Many Would Take Place. Over 200 applications have been received by the railway commission for the position of chief engineer which will be vacant April 1, because of the resignation of Chief Engineer C. H. Gerber. The commission will take time to investigate the applications and secure as good a man as possible. Some of the applications have come from New York.

Acres of Sorghum Increases. In Nebraska in 1913 there were 126,050 acres of land devoted to sorghum cane. The amount raised was 264,205 tons. The cash value of the crop as computed by the state board of agriculture was $1,585,158. In 1912 the acreage was 112,171, but the yield was 350,203 tons. There has been a steady increase in the acreage each year and the plantings have doubled since 1908.

York Phone Case to Come Up April 8. The final hearing in the York telephone case will come up before the railway commission April 8.

Dr. W. H. Deering Dead. Dr. W. H. Deering died here, aged fifty-five years, of heart failure. He came to Luskton from Plattsmouth in 1902 and in the '80s he represented Cass county in the state senate. In later years he was superintendent of the home for the feeble minded in Beatrice, and had served as head physician of the hospital for the insane at Norfolk and Lincoln.

STREET CAR STEPS LOWERED

Women of Lincoln Appeal to Lincoln Traction Managers.

Lincoln, March 30.—Pocket books of the men are not the only ones hit hard by the new styles in dress as sent out by the Paris designers and adopted by American women. The latest is the Lincoln Street Car company, which is changing all its cars so that the steps will be nearer the ground, so as to enable the women to climb on without accompanying embarrassment. The action was taken after a delegation from the woman's club had called on the street car company's officials and explained the predicament they were in and asked that the steps be lowered to meet the demands of the tight skirts, where the slit was not sufficiently grown to permit of the elongated step required to reach the desired landing.

CROWDS FILL EMPTY PEWS. Go-to-Church Sunday is Great Success at Omaha.

Omaha, March 30.—In spite of mud and the imminence of a rainstorm, Omaha's "Go-to-Church Sunday" was a huge success. Increases in attendance of from 20 to 100 per cent were noted at every church service, and the congregations at the morning worship were especially large, crowding many of the places of worship to their utmost capacity, and presenting audiences to some ministers bigger than they had enjoyed for many years.

Hundreds of men, women and children who had never been inside of a church, or who at least had not attended religious services for a long time, mingled with regular members at all the churches, and were made to feel at home by the ministers and churchmen.

TO MARK AUTO ROADS. Omaha Committee Recommends Graded Automobile Tax.

Omaha, March 31.—A marked road from St. Joseph, Mo., to Omaha is likely soon to be a realization. The good roads committee of the Commercial club has held its first meeting and decided to co-operate with the St. Joseph Auto club in marking such an auto highway. The committee recommends that the road come up on the Nebraska side of the Missouri river and also favors some system of a graduated automobile tax that would increase the revenue for the good roads fund in the state.

Marking of the Omaha-Lincoln and Denver transcontinental road was also considered. Auto excursions into the state during the summer are another feature under consideration.

Peace Reigns in Nebraska Mutual. Hastings, Neb., March 30.—The factional differences in the Nebraska Mutual Life Insurance company were straightened out, the insurgents, led by D. M. Ball, gaining control through the organized board of directors. J. M. Miller retired as general agent, but will remain vice president. Resignations of members of the rival boards of directors chosen three weeks ago leave the company with one board and peace again reigns.

Young Man Killed Near Oshkosh. Oshkosh, Neb., March 31.—Ernest Nichols, a young man who recently came here from Scottsbluff county with A. L. Lore, for whom he was working, accidentally killed himself on the Stroud place, ten miles north of here, while attempting to put a loaded double-barrel shotgun onto a hayrack. Both barrels were discharged, and he was instantly killed.

Thousand Delegates to Charities Meet. Omaha, March 30.—Mayors from many cities in Nebraska are naming delegates to the state charities and correction convention, which will be held in Omaha, April 23 to 26. More than 700 Nebraskans have been appointed as delegates to date and the number will easily reach one thousand before the convention meets.

Burbank's Collection Shown in Omaha. Omaha, March 30.—Luther Burbank's famous exhibit of the products of his fertile brain will be shown at the Low Cost of Living Show, which will be held in Omaha, beginning April 16. A telegram received from Mr. Burbank stated that two carloads of exhibits will arrive in Omaha April 13.

Widow of Engineer Sues Schuyler. Schuyler, Neb., March 30.—Belle Way, widow of John Way, assistant engineer at the city power house, who lost his life on Jan. 15 by his clothing catching in the machinery, has begun suit against the city of Schuyler for the sum of $10,000 damages.

Luther Abbott Dead. Fremont, Neb., March 31.—Luther Abbott, well known Nebraska boy, died at Colorado Springs from hemorrhage, a result of an operation for removal of a gold crown of a tooth from his lung three months ago. The funeral will be held here tomorrow.

North Nebraska Teachers. Norfolk, Neb., March 30.—The North Nebraska Teachers' association elected the following officers: President, E. S. Cowan of Abilene; vice president, I. J. Knoll of Randolph; secretary, Elsie Littell of Wayne; treasurer, N. A. Hovsall of Madison.

Humboldt Man Shoots Himself. Humboldt, Neb., March 31.—Robert Beutler, a young and prosperous farmer residing southeast of Humboldt, committed suicide by shooting himself. The cause of the deed is attributed to melancholy from brooding over

Social Notes

One of the most enjoyable events of the Minerva club year was the April first party given last night at the Henry Ley home. Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Ley acted as host and hostess, carrying out the plans as arranged and provided for by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ley, who are still at Long Beach, California. The rooms were beautifully decorated in smilax, sweet peas and the club colors—violet and gold. After the guests had assembled, Mrs. Rollie Ley read a letter of greeting from Mrs. Henry Ley, followed by a chain of post cards—sights of their sojourn in California with personal comments and original rhymes, making the views doubly interesting. Mrs. Elsie Littell then took up their travels into Mexico; into the old missions, through the forts on the border, etc. Mrs. House gave the musical selection "Moonlight at the Cliff", by Seiler (which was also sent by the Leys), responding to an encore with "A la Guitar" by Bossi. Partners were next secured and given a list of 12 masterpieces which were hung on the dining room walls. One of these paintings "September Morn", proved to be September in mourning. "Spring" was represented by a steel spring and so on thru the list. Dutch Boy menu cards contained the following list from which to order, were then passed:

Weenies Bacon Bologna
Fried Oysters Sauer Kraut
Hard-Boiled Eggs Cheese.

These were all provided but were made of candy and had been sent from California. Ice cream, cake and coffee were then served and after a most enjoyable evening the guests departed with many words of praise for the kind remembrances of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ley and the genial hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Ley.

The Minerva club met with Mrs. Britton. Mrs. Rennie was leader. The lesson was on Judiciary number two. Mesdames Keckley and Beaman gave an instrumental duet. Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis sang a solo. Mrs. Britton served a delicious two-course luncheon. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Hickman.

The U. D. club met with Mrs. J. H. Kemp Monday. Mrs. Harry Jones gave the life of the composer, Frederick Von Foton. Mrs. Fisher gave an outline of his opera, "Martha". Mrs. Green, who is visiting her brother-in-law, Dr. Green, was a guest.

The Early Hour club meets with Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Ley this evening. Mesdames Ley, Fred Blair and Mrs. Walter Weber will serve a six o'clock dinner. The evening will be spent in playing five hundred.

The Monday club will meet with Mrs. A. A. Welch next week. Roll call answered by "What I would like to see in Paris." Map study of France, by Mrs. Cunningham. Industries of France by Mrs. Hahn.

A number of ladies surprised Mrs. Main on her birthday last Monday evening. They gave her a miscellaneous shower. Dainty refreshments were served. The evening was spent in playing riddles.

The P. E. O. meets Monday evening with Mrs. Harry Fisher. Parliamentary drill by Mrs. Blair. How can P. E. O. help commercial club. Music, Mrs. James Miller. Roll call, civics.

The Junior Bible Circle will meet at the Gossard home Saturday afternoon, when the Wayne young ladies will entertain the Carroll Circle, which was organized but a few weeks ago.

The Acme club met with Mrs. Walter Weber. The lesson was on forestry. The club will meet next week with Mrs. Bressler and take up the study of pottery.

Mrs. William Mellor entertained the Bridge Whist club Wednesday evening. The club surprised Miss Edna Neely with a handkerchief shower.

Mrs. Fred Philleo was hostess at a Kensington Saturday afternoon. The ladies spent a pleasant afternoon. An elaborate supper was served at 5:30.

The Choral Union will give the orator "The Creation" on April 21. Mrs. Grace Clark DeGraff will sing soprano.

Hays Main entertained a few of his friends at supper Saturday in honor of his friend, Roy Cook of Hastings.

The Methodist Aid Society will have a tea and talk at the home of Mrs. Clyde Oman, Thursday, April 9.

300 Lice Or More on One Hen

is by no means uncommon. No one would expect to fatten a steer with that number of ticks, sucking his blood, but many expect the old hen to go ahead shelling out eggs while lice and mites are sapping her very life. We have counted over 2000 dead lice under a row of ten hens, on a roset board painted the night before with Loe's Lice Killer. This great killer does double duty—contact kills mites, lice, bedbugs, etc. about the rooster; the vapor kills lice on the chickens sitting over it. Put up only in airtight cans. A Genius

But a Genius In His Own Way

By EVERETT P. CLARKE

Ned Meacham was born to a singular career. As a child he was called Dombey, from Paul Dombey, the little boy in one of Charles Dickens' novels. It was not that he was especially spiritual, like little Paul, but was queer. He never took the same view of things as other children, never did things in the same way as other children. At an early age he displayed a fancy for impressing his playmates with tricks of sleight of hand. At fifteen he burned his hand so severely with phosphorus, which he used for a ghostly performance, as to leave an ugly scar. He would go to the shows of prestidigitators and repeat their tricks. By the time he was eighteen he was quite proficient in the art.

His next fancy was the stage, not as an actor, but inventing devices in the matter of stage properties. However, he became a personator of minor parts, and so odd was he in his methods that he soon attracted attention. His inventive powers coming into play, he soon became a feature, mingling singular impersonations with ingenious mechanical surprises. By one of his contrivances he blew himself into fragments before the audience, shortly afterward appearing to have lighted in a united live body in the branch of a tree.

One would suppose that Ned Meacham would have turned his faculties to account. But a genius is liable to tire of what he has accomplished, always desirous of striking out into new paths. As soon as Ned had put himself in a position where he might have commanded the manager almost anything he desired he left the theater for good and all. Miss Helen Beach was playing a part wherein she was to stab the leading gentleman of the company. Her part was a trying one and brought on temporary insanity. One evening just before the opening of the performance Ned was in the property room tinkering with a dagger he had invented wherein the blade, on striking an object, went back into the handle. Ned had made an addition by which blood appeared to spurt out like water from a spout. Hearing a commotion, he went outside and saw Miss Beach, who had become demented, reciting some lines of her part to the manager, whom she was about to kill with a pistol. Ned ran up to her, handed her his patent dagger and took away the pistol, crying, "Don't shoot him—stab him!" She adopted the suggestion, stabbing the manager with the spring dagger. Blood spouted over her and her victim, the latter falling in a stage death.

This saving of the manager's life laid the latter under a great obligation to Ned Meacham, and he would have done anything in his power for the young man. But what could he do for one who had been born unlike other persons? Ned thanked him and said that he was engaged on contriving an artificial leg that would step out of its own accord.

But just as the young contriver was about to perfect his invention the Boxer movement in China broke out, and Ned, desirous to go where no one else would have wished to go, got aboard a ship and sailed for the Flowery Kingdom. When he reached it the allied forces were advancing upon Peking to liberate the pentup embassies.

One day Ned went to the commander in chief—a German general—and volunteered to bring him such information of the city as he might require, but when Ned told him that he was a fourth rate actor from an American theater the general spurned him, telling him that when he wanted information of an enemy he would send a soldier to get it.

Ned, by no means discouraged, went to the commander of the United States forces and repeated his offer. The officer told him there was no reason why he should not go out, get the information and bring it in. The main features to be observed were such weak points as might enable the allies to gain entrance into the city.

Ned spent some time fixing up a few contrivances in the property line with which he had long been familiar. Indeed, it was several days before he was ready to go on his mission. When he sallied forth he wore a tight fitting garb to represent the devil, with a pair of horns, a tail and such other appendages as are presumed to belong to Satan. He was passed by the American commander's order from the Yankee boys' lines and walked briskly, swinging a cane, down the road. Slung to his belt was a case containing such articles as he needed, among others a pair of glasses for examining distant objects.

Meacham was seen sallying from the allied lines just before dark by an outpost of Chinamen. He had not gone far before he could see that they had their eyes on him, and as he drew sufficiently near for them to distinguish his peculiar appearance they showed signs of trepidation.

The superstition of the Chinese is equal to if not greater than that of any other race. Their most important acts are often determined by inferences they draw from burning bits of paper. With such men to deal with Meacham had but to move forward, spit a little ure and the whole outpost broke and ran.

The Yankee had by this means got within the Chinese outposts, but being at some distance from the city it was essential for him to proceed, which he did under cover of the darkness. Leaving the road, he walked in the fields for a time, directing his course to the dark walls of the city that loomed in the distance against the sky line. At times he would come upon a campfire with Chinamen lounging around it or eating their suppers. These he would go around, leaving the chattering Chinamen in his rear.

Suddenly he stumbled upon one of these groups where there was no fire and the men were asleep. He trod on a slumbering Chinaman. The fellow growled and sat up. Another who had been awakened lighted a bit of inflammable wood and held it in Meacham's face. The latter had a battery over his stomach and was well strung with wires. Closing an electric key, his eyes (or glasses he pulled down over them) shone with a brilliant green. The yell the man with the torch gave awakened the rest, and one and all took to flight.

Thus did Meacham work his way during the night toward the city. At midnight he was directly under the walls and as luck would have it near one of the principal gates. A drowsy sentry standing by the portals roused himself, and there before him stood Satan all aglow, leering at him. The apparition's eyes were red, but turned green, then a bright yellow. The sentry dropped on his knees and hid his face on the ground. Meacham, without waiting for him to finish his salaam, pushed through the gate and entered the city.

Meacham, after various adventures, found himself among the besiegers of the embassies. Being a nondescript, when not plainly seen, he was not noticed. When seen he had only to draw a fiery circle about him with his cane or put himself aglow or cause his hair to stand straight upon his head to send all who saw him as far away from him as they could get. In trying to get into the embassy lines he came very near being shot. Crawling near to a battery, he stood up. A ball snuz by his ear and he dropped. He was among the besiegers, but they did not understand English, and he cried out to the embassy force, "A friend!" This changed matters, and, showing himself to the Chinamen about him as an illuminated devil, he scattered them, then ran into the embassy lines of their enemies.

Meacham asked to be conducted to the American minister and told his story. He was directed, if he could make a return, to inform the allies that the besieged Europeans had held out as long as they were able and if help did not come at once they would be overpowered and murdered. Meacham, desiring to leave the city before daylight, departed immediately. An American soldier, who had done some scouting duty, led him to a point the besiegers had left uncovered and showed him the way to the gate by which he had entered. The Yankee passed the sentries by the same means he had used in entering, and found himself when dawn was breaking on the plain surrounding the city.

He now had some miles to go by daylight which rendered some of his devices useless and he was obliged to rely on others. He could no longer frighten the Boxers by illuminating himself, and this rendered his return far more perilous than his going. True, he was still Satan, but without Satan's terrifying methods. His route lay along the road by which he had come and it would now be useless to leave it, for he could be seen. He went on till he came to an outpost. They caught sight of him coming behind them and observed him wonderingly. He kept on and as he drew near some of the Chinamen fled, while others stood their ground. One more valiant than the rest called out something, which Meacham took to mean an order to halt. But the Yankee kept right on. The Chinamen raised a gun, and Meacham, uttering a loud "Ha, ha!" whirled his cane about his head, enveloping himself with smoke, which came from one end of it. Since the Chinaman could not see him he did not hit him.

The cloud of smoke drove off all but their brave leader and three other Chinamen. The leader stood firm; the others fell on their faces. Meacham still advanced. The man who opposed him could not shoot at him again without reloading. Drawing a knife, he received Meacham when he came up by thrusting it against his breast. Instead of hurting his enemy he was knocked back on the ground. Meacham wore a breastplate which, when the knife struck it, was charged with electricity.

The Chinaman was rising for another attack when his comrades clung to him to prevent his trying to conquer the devil. Meacham passed them with a sardonic "Ha, ha," and was not followed.

Soon after this escape he came upon a Chinaman who had been killed in a fight with a European outpost and concluded to cease personating the devil and turn himself into a Chinaman. Appropriating the man's costume, he went on without further trouble till nearing the lines he halted a Yankee picket in the American lines and was admitted to camp.

Meacham made his report to the commander of the United States troops and delivered to him the ambassador's message, which was forwarded to the German commander in chief.

"Mein Gott!" exclaimed the general. "Vat vill not these Yankees do? Dey don't know how to be soldiers, but dey do some things in a different way."

After the allies entered Peking Meacham returned to America. He was one of the pioneers among aviators and was killed by a drop of 10,000 feet.

W. H. Westover for Supreme Judge

Judge Westover—who presided at the spring term of district court held at Ponca this week, is one of the ablest judges in the state. He is judge of the 16th district and has held that position for 19 years and was elected without opposition, at the last election.

He was born in Delaware county, Iowa, March 19th, 1858, and his father who was a farmer, moved to Nebraska, near Lincoln, in 1869.

There Mr. Westover attended the city schools and state university until 1876. He taught school to pay his expenses and read law until 1879 when he was admitted to the bar and commenced practice in Butler county where he has always lived.

He served two terms as county attorney and was elected district judge in 1895. He was married in 1879 and has six boys and three girls and three of them are now at the state university.

His name has been mentioned in connection with the supreme judgeship. He is a pleasant gentleman to meet and would be an able man in that position.—Ponca Journal-Leader.

The Democrat has made some little inquiry regarding the size of man this candidate Westover is, and the reports are gratifying. First, he is a consistent democrat, believing that the people have rights before the law at least equal to that of a corporation; that a mere technical error not prejudicial to party making it ground for appeal should have but little weight in matters which might come before the supreme court. In fact, he has shown himself during the years he has been on the bench as one abreast of the times—that he is not living in the past—that he owes allegiance to no click or clan and administers law and justice in an impartial manner.

"Able and progressive," says one acquaintance who is not of his political faith. If these reports prove true the Democrat hopes to see him win a place on the ticket this fall and also on the bench of the highest tribunal in the state, that justice may be administered in an impartial manner by a court that is not in its dotage.

Koenigstein Files for Congress

Attorney Art J. Koenigstein of Norfolk has filed for the democratic nomination for congress from the Third Nebraska district. In a letter accompanying his filing papers he says:

"So persistent have requests come to me from every county within the district insisting that I make the race for the nomination, and that my nomination would have a tendency to reunite a rather disorganized party, that I feel it my duty, as a good democrat, to accede to the solicitation of my friends.

"If nominated and elected to represent this great district in congress, it shall be my aim to render honest and conscientious service, to assume and discharge, the responsibilities of the office honorably and perform my duties in the interests of the people as a whole, for, I believe that one serves the people best when such service is rendered in the interest of the common good.

"I expect to be nominated and elected on my own merits, without the aid of powerful financial interests, clique or faction. No promises have been nor will any be made. If I am the choice of the people, I go as a free man"

INTERNATIONAL Harvester manure spreaders have a score of good features in their construction. Each one is the result of careful field experiment. An IHC spreader is low enough for easy loading, yet it has plenty of clearance underneath. The rear axle is well under the load, rear wheels have wide rims and Z-shaped tugs, insuring good traction under all conditions. Frame, wheels, and all driving parts are of steel. Apron tension is adjusted by a simple device. Winding of the beater is prevented by large diameter, and beater teeth are strong, square and chisel-pointed.

International manure spreaders are built in several styles and sizes, low or high, endless or return apron, for small farms or large. Examination will show sturdiness of construction in every detail. Repairs, if ever needed, may always be had of the local dealer. Examine International spreaders at the dealer's. We will tell you who sells them, and we will send you interesting catalogues.

TRAPPING A CROOK

A Detective Story

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

It is generally supposed that we detectives have to deal exclusively with low grade criminals. Most of our small robbers are of that sort, but occasionally we run across either a gentleman or one who is very capable of personating a gentleman.

One of the dangers thieves and robbers encounter is being given away by a pal. It is singular how many cases there are of quarrels over the division of plunder taken by rascals who work together, and once a break is made among them it widens indefinitely. Revenge is always within reach by informing, though this course is liable to react on the informer.

One morning the mail brought my chief a letter, badly written and misspelled, informing him that Jim McFarland, alias Slippery Jim and several other aliases, would that evening attend as a guest a function to be given by one of the swells of the place, his object being to get away with certain articles of value. No description of Mr. McFarland was given—indeed, no other information than here mentioned. I was directed to examine the police records and the rogues' gallery with a view to discovering a biography or a photograph of the crook. But I found no mention of any such person, so I inferred that if the information received were genuine he must be a newcomer. I believed that it was genuine, for I could not see that anything was to be gained by sending in a false statement. Indeed, it was apparent to me that thieves had fallen out and honest men were likely to get their dues.

I must attend the function, but I must do so either without an invitation or the host must know that I am a detective. To secure admission as a detective would require taking the host into my confidence and as many others as he chose to confide in. These people would all be looking for the crook, and he would be scared away. I preferred to go to the ball myself incognito. Sometimes a guest will be known to the host, but not to the hostess, and vice versa. Therefore a person without an invitation stands a good chance to attend a function without being questioned. On this chance I relied. I got myself up as immaculately as possible, parting my hair in the middle in order to give me the appearance of a superlative gentleman. In the dressing room I made remarks upon the weather to several different men in order to give the impression that I was acquainted with them and went downstairs chatting with a man who seemed not averse to my advances. I refrained from going at once to salute the host and hostess, keeping away from them purposely while they were together so they could not compare notes concerning me.

I had not been long on the main floor when I began to scan the faces for my quarry, though I expected to find him, if at all, upstairs. I made frequent visits to the dressing room and after the guests had ceased to arrive and the upper stories were deserted took the risk of looking into rooms, sometimes opening the doors in order to get an inside view. In one of these explorations I opened the door of a room where a nurse was sitting beside a child in his crib. I apologized for making a mistake and withdrew at once.

Among the guests I noticed one who seemed to be receiving the lion's share of attention. I asked who he was and was informed that he was the Hon. Clifford Radcliffe, a younger son of a British earl. He seemed to be a quiet sort of person, listening to what was said to him rather than talking himself and not flattered by the attention paid him. While observing him I saw a man presented to him—one in fine clothes, but with a very ordinary face. His hair and beard were of a disagreeable shade of red. Edging near enough to hear him speak, I found that his accent was English. What especially struck me was that, while I could not be sure he dropped his b's, the word "have" sounded very like "ave."

While I am never disposed to jump at conclusions, this red headed individual seemed to me to look more out of place than any other of the guests. At any rate, I resolved to keep an eye on him. Considering that all were moving constantly, this was not easy. Some time after I had first noticed him I looked about for him, but did not see him. Thinking that I might catch him upstairs purloining, I went up there. Returning to my expedition of opening doors, "by mistake," I turned several knobs. On one of these entrances I was surprised to see the red headed man standing at a dresser. He had divested himself of his dress coat and had put on a sack. At the moment I opened the door, which I did softly, he was looking for something on the dresser. I recognized him by his reflection in the mirror. His eyes being lowered, he was not aware of my presence. Desirous of preserving this advantage over him, I closed the door without making the slightest noise, hurried to a telephone booth, which I had taken pains to locate early in the evening, and called for a couple of men in plain clothes to come to the house at once. They arrived in exactly four minutes. I met them at the door and directed them to wait there till I called for them. Then I sought the host. I found him chatting with the Hon. Clifford Radcliffe and, calling him aside, told him that there was a crook in his house and that I had called for the police to arrest him. I had caught him in a room upstairs and thought it quite probable he was there still. Would he go with me and either confirm or nullify my suspicions by having a look at the man?

He went with me, I calling in the two men at the door, and we all climbed the stairs together. As we reached the landing above the red headed man came out of the room attired in ordinary dress.

"Do you know him?" I asked the host. "No. I've been wondering who he is all the evening."

"Have I your permission to arrest him?"

"Yes. Can you do it without making a scene?"

"Certainly. We'll take him down the back stairway."

The man we were talking about on seeing us recoiled. At first he seemed disposed to go back into the room from which he had emerged, but reconsidered this move and came on toward us. I looked an order to my men to take him, and in a jiffy he was hustled to a rear staircase, down it and out through a door. I told the men that I would join them presently at the police station and they must not let him throw anything away, especially the bundle he carried under his arm. Then I went down the front stairs with the host.

We met the Hon. Clifford Radcliffe at the foot of the stairs. At that moment the man arrested shouted from the rear of the house, "You fools, you've spoiled"—A door was shut, preventing any more from being heard.

"What's the trouble?" asked Mr. Radcliffe.

"Only a thief in the house being taken to a police station," replied the host. "I'm thankful that his cry was not heard in the rooms."

"Indeed!" said the Englishman. "I've often thought what a fine chance thieves have to come into houses when functions are going on and steal."

"We've got this fellow, anyway. Going so early, Mr. Radcliffe?"

"Yes; I must be going. You Americans have been so kind to me since I came over that I've been kept up late every night since I arrived here. I bid you good night. I've already taken leave of your good wife."

"Good night, Mr. Radcliffe."

The Englishman went on upstairs. I remained with the host for a time to instruct him in what he should do on the morrow in appearing against the thief, telling him that we should probably find the man's bundle filled with stolen goods. I did not hurry because there was no occasion to hurry, and the gentleman with whom I was talking was constantly called upon with "Good night; have enjoyed your hospitality immensely." Finally, having said all I wished to say and apologized for coming without an invitation, I bade him good night myself and went up to the dressing room for my hat and overcoat. Then I left the house for the police station.

I sallied into the station puffing a cigar I had lighted, feeling that I had done a nice bit of work. The prisoner and his captors were waiting for me, as was the sergeant at the desk.

"Are you sure," said the latter, "that you hit the right man?"

"Why do you ask?"

"This man says he's a Scotland Yard detective come over here to take back a British crook wanted for murder."

"That's what I am," said the prisoner. "I'm 'ere to git Hedward Ammer-ton, charged with the killin' o' 'Oward 'Enderson in Lunnon. I 'ad 'im all right, unsuspectin'. I'd put on plain clothes and was goin' down to wait houtside for 'im when you butted in and spoiled my game. H'ave lost 'im now."

It was like being doused with cold water.

"Did you find nothing on him?" I asked.

"Not a thing except an evening suit in the bundle."

"Who was your quarry?" I asked the prisoner.

"The fellow as called 'imself Clifford Radcliffe."

I dashed to the phone, called up my host of the evening and asked if the Hon. Clifford Radcliffe was still there. The reply came back that he had gone, and I was asked if we had found certain missing articles on the man I had arrested.

Then I knew that I had made the blunder of my life. After the arrest of the man who was laying for him, the Hon. Mr. Radcliffe had had plenty of time to help himself to anything handy and walk leisurely away. Moreover, the arrest had given him a warning which he would surely heed. Indeed, I had spoiled the game of the man who had come over the water for him. The culprit made his escape and so far as I know has not to this day been taken.

When I reported the result of my exploit to my chief he paid me my salary to date and discharged me. I asked him if he didn't think it quite natural under the circumstances that I should have made the mistake I did. He replied that I was not hired to make mistakes, but to take advantage of the mistakes of other persons.

I was constrained to leave detective work for some time after this episode, but I afterward drifted back to it and when I did adopted for my motto "Go slow." So in the end my mistake was a blessing in disguise, for I now have the reputation of never clapping the bracelets on a person without being sure I'm right.

NO SLUMS IN NEW YORK.

Verdict of an Expert After a Search Through the City.

I have made an amazing discovery. It is the result of three days and nights of going to and fro in New York—sometimes alone and sometimes with a wise but not cynical detective. And the amazing and disconcerting discovery is this: There are no slums in New York.

You can find crime and criminals; you can find vice, poverty, drunkenness, disease, but you cannot find a slum—such slums as blacken and fester in Antwerp, Genoa, Naples, Paris, London and many another old world city. The reason is that you cannot have a slum without filth, and New York is a clean city. Neither crime nor poverty nor crowds make a slum. You must have filth as well, and that is what New York hasn't got. I looked for it east and west and north, from river front to river front. Everywhere, anywhere, were crime, vice, mean poverty. Everywhere thieves, rogues, outcasts, men and women isolated from their kind by sin or mere suffering, but no slums.

Dirt, of course, is relative, but the tenements—even the old nests of low houses lined with fire escapes—were habitable human dwelling places. And the night going detective declared he could show me nothing worse. I wanted to see the fetid caves where wretchedness lay moaning on garbage heaps, the windy garrets where it starved, and there were no fetid caves.

In the old streets, and the dingy courts of Paris you can still find hundreds of them; you have but to walk peeringly through the street of the Three Gates or the street of the Iron Pot; you have but to go into the suburbs that lie outside the fortifications—for year by year the centrifugal force that strds in every great agglomeration of human atoms has thrown Parisian begardom into that dreary circumference.

But in the washed and lighted underworld of New York there are no slums. There is not one slum that half deserves the name. Wretchedness all you please; hunger in the streets and on the housetops. It may be, but none of those gangrened holes of filth without which no real slum can exist.

I speak almost with the decision of an expert, for I spent many years prowlingly investigating the slums that rot and blacken the surface of Europe from Moscow to Lisbon.—Vance Thompson in New York Sun.

THREE EMPIRES.

Monarchies That Practically Sprang Into Being Overnight.

Prior to Jan. 18, 1871, the German empire, as we know it today, had no existence. Instead it was a jumble of kingdoms, states, duchies, grand duchies and principalities, all joined together by a like language and common political aspirations, it is true, but otherwise quite separate and distinct.

Then came the historic ceremony in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles. Paris had just been captured by King William of Prussia, and it was held to be a fitting time and place to proclaim him the first German emperor. Never since the dawn of history was an empire born more dramatically.

By a strange irony of fate, too, its birth took place amid the ruins of the French empire, itself the creation of a day, or, rather, to be strictly accurate, of a night. France went to bed on the evening of Dec. 1, 1851, a republic. When it awoke next morning it was an empire. During the hours of darkness Paris had been occupied by troops, and the prince-president had become Napoleon III.

Equally sudden and almost as sensational in its way was the birth of the modern Greek empire. After the yoke of the Turks had been thrown off in the war of independence the country became a republic. But the people soon tired of that democratic form of government and promptly proceeded to assassinate their first and only president. Then they settled themselves down to be ruled by him in a quite orderly and contented fashion.

High Cost of Living Again. Prosperous ex-German (on visit to fatherland)—Donner und bitzen, what are you givin' us? Forty pfennig for this sausage! When I went away a few years ago I used to pay only 20 pfennig.

Not Every Girl Can be an Operator

Every telephone operator must possess a pleasant, well-modulated voice, have good eyesight and hearing, and be of even tempered and amiable disposition.

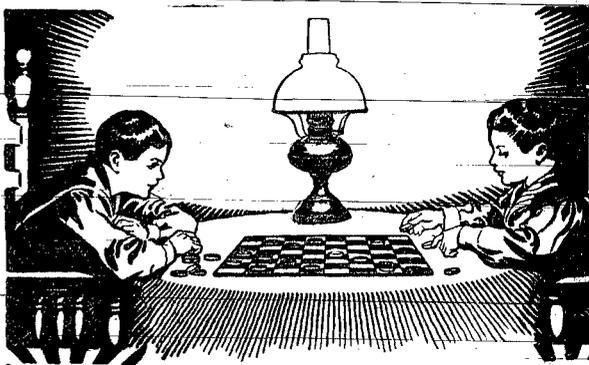

All candidates for positions as operators must take a thorough course of instruction before given regular positions. They are paid while learning.

Courtesy is Taught

Above all, every operator must be polite and courteous; she must also have poise and clear enunciation, and acquire speed and accuracy in her work. She is taught to assume that every telephone message is important and to treat all calls with equal dispatch.

Hoskins News

W. H. Stephens bought a new piano Saturday.

Dr. Salten of Norfolk was called in consultation in the E. A. Kort illness last Thursday.

Mrs. John Weatherholt and daughter returned to their home at Gordon, last Monday.

Rev. Gruber returned from Minnesota Friday and expects to remain here until summer.

Mrs. John Weatherholt's son of Beardsly, South Dakota, visited his mother and relatives here last Sunday.

Abe Dimsdale returned from his western trip last Friday. He reports good business in most of the Rosebud towns.

Mrs. Bessie Stanfield, a Norfolk nurse, has been in attendance on E. C. Kort, who has been suffering with pneumonia the past week.

Fred Krause had his eye injured by the overturning of a load of hay last Monday. A few stitches repaired the injury.

Frank Hart of Coleridge was in town Sunday and returned with a smile Monday, apparently well pleased with his prospects at Hoskins.

E. O. Behmer, our assessor of Hoskins precinct, went to Wayne Saturday to attend a general county assessor's meeting. Mr. Behmer expects to begin his work the first week in April.

At Monday evening village board meeting the following were appointed to act as a board of election for Tuesday, April 7: Judges, Aug Schultz, Carl Ave, Fred Buss. Clerks, Frank Phillips, Chas. Bruebaker.

A. C. Gant, representing the Nebraska Democrat and Wayne Herald was in town Monday soliciting business for a special souvenir edition. This edition to come out about May 1st. Mr. Gant met with considerable success; the farmers and merchants subscribing to show that we are not dead ones at Hoskins.

A Would-Be Democrat
The Nebraska Democrat needs a hustling representative at Hoskins. A subscription can increase the Hoskins paper to what a good county paper is entitled to. The above article was clipped from the Hoskins news in the Wayne Democrat. This writer knows that the Wayne Democrat can increase its subscription lots more by getting a good straight Democrat as a correspondent, than to have a would-be Democrat as they have at the present time. —Hoskins Headlight.

The Headlightener sarcastically calls us a "would-be-Democrat". For his enlightenment, we, through simple courtesy, inform him that this correspondent is of the Eve sex and disfranchised and if women ever gain suffrage we assure the Headlightener that we at least will never affiliate with the bloody shirt Democracy, and when did this little editor ever affiliate with any party? He having just recently discarded his knee pants and never voted in his life. Oh! what MORTALS we can be.

Miss Williams is on the sick list.

John Hansen is working for John Lutt this week.

Miss Williams visited the W. W. Evans home Friday.

Was Friday night dark enough for you? Yours Truly and a friend nearly got lost on an isolated mile road.

Jake Johnson and wife were very much surprised last Friday night. In spite of the disagreeable weather, all the neighbors called and insisted upon having a good time. The correspondent ate so much ice cream and cake that he was totally unable to find the road home.

The Bell boys had another chivari Thursday night. Dave Numrod evidently loved the noise for he kept the boys busy for nearly three hours. They intend to use the money for an ice cream social. One suggested beer but was told to dry up! Who says the Nebraska boys don't like a dry climate.

Imaginary Heart Trouble

Do you have pains in the region of the heart? Its terrible pounding alarms you? What is wrong? Do you believe these symptoms mean heart trouble? Organic diseases of the heart very seldom cause much pain. Nearly all of these pains are caused by some derangement of the stomach. Meritol Tonic Digestive is especially recommended for indigestion and dyspepsia, and for restoring the stomach to its normal functions and no more "heart disease". Mrs. J. W. Nunn of Winnebago was in town on business, Saturday.

Alex P. Carson is visiting at the home of August Johnson in Omaha.

Seth Anderson returned to Omaha Monday to again work in the C. B. & Q. depot.

Joe Hunter came up from Omaha Saturday to spend a couple of days with his mother.

J. Shumway came up from Lyons Saturday to spend Sunday with his son, H. P. Shumway.

Miss Hattie Erickson returned Wednesday from Magnet, where she visited Mrs. Fred Hallstrom.

Miss Tillie Anderberry, who teaches at Plainview, is spending her spring vacation with home folks.

Evangeline Fleetwood is enjoying a visit at her grandparents near Stromberg during the holiday week.

Oscar Peterson returned Monday to Orion, Illinois, after a two weeks' visit with his sister, Mrs. J. O. Johnson. Miss Hulda will stay for a longer visit.

Mr. and Mrs. N. N. Sackerson attended the funeral of John Gustafson at Wayne Sunday. Mr. Gustafson was the brother-in-law of Mrs. Sackerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson of Gothenburg and Miss Emma Westrand of Omaha visited at the home of the latter's brother, Frank, the fore part of the week.

J. D. Haskell went to Omaha Tuesday morning on business connected with Bellview college. Mrs. Haskel and Faith accompanied him to spend two or three days in the city.

Bryon Busby became the village postmaster Wednesday. Miss Gertrude Crowell remains as his assistant. Byron is a Wakefield boy and has the wishes of many friends for success in his new work. C. H. Merritt, retiring postmaster, has served the public most acceptably.

The funeral services of little Carroll Ekeroth were held from the home Wednesday afternoon. They were conducted by Rev. Kraft. Carroll was born February 28, 1912, being a little over two years old at the time of his death which was due to heart trouble. Mr. Ekeroth's parents, J. A. Ekeroth and wife and Alfred Sar and wife of Essex attended the funeral.

About seventy-five young men of Wakefield and vicinity held a meeting in the caucus room Thursday evening for the purpose of discussing the question of establishing a civic center for the young men. Dr. Henton was elected president, Guy Hunter vice president, Elmer Henry secretary and Robert Hanson treasurer. At a meeting of the commercial club Monday evening it was voted to appoint a committee of five to investigate the feasibility and advisability of the same question.

The annual meeting of the Niobrara Presbyterian Women's Missionary society was held in the Presbyterian church Thursday and Friday. Miss Bernice Hunting, who has been laboring among the Syrians in northern Syria the past seven years and who is now on her furlough, gave a very interesting talk about her work Thursday morning. The Friday morning session was given up to business, reports, etc. Friday afternoon Miss Hunting answered numerous questions concerning the customs and habits of the Syrians. In part she said that the missionaries are greatly respected by the natives especially as long as they wear their hats. This work is considerably hampered by the Greek Orthodox priest, who, whenever possible, do not allow the missionaries to enter the walled villages. However, the Christian religion is rapidly gaining ground and the number of converts increasing. Friday evening Dr. Farmer of Madison gave his excellent address, "The Triumph of Christianity." Mrs. Babcock of Lincoln, Miss Case of Omaha, and Miss Faith Haskel, synodical workers were present and participated in the meetings. Forty delegates from the Presbytery were registered. Mrs. J. G. Mines of Wayne was re-elected president for the ensuing year.

Henry Klopping's cattle sold at $9.20 in Chicago Monday, well toward the top of the market. The other loads from here were reported at $8.65 and $8.75 respectively.

August Haglestein has been on the sick list for the past two weeks but is now able to be up again.

Thomas Sundahl had quite a severe attack of tonsillitis last week but is much improved at his writing.

The 60-cent corn market started several of the farmers shelling and hauling their corn to market the past few days.

Charles Sellon shipped two cars of lambs to Omaha on the Sunday stock train. His son Roy accompanied the shipment.

Mrs. L. A. Grant was taken to Sioux City last Friday and operated on for appendicitis. At this writing he is getting along very nicely.

Mrs. E. A. Fritzson, our genial postmistress was taken to Randolph on Monday to have an ulcerated tooth extracted. She is now on duty again.

Charles Carroll from South Dakota, passed through town Friday evening in response to a message that his father, E. H. Carroll of Randolph was very low and sinking quite rapidly.

A three-horse team hitched to a manure spreader got the best of Warnie Classon one day last week, threw him off and ran through a 4-wire fence the second time before they stopped. The horses received a few scratches and the spreader which got into gear somehow received the worst damage.

School Notes

Willis Ickler entered the second grade this week.

Mrs. Ickler, Mrs. Meyers and Miss Martin were recent visitors. Remember the public school entertainment on April 17th at the high school.

The high school orchestra delighted the large audience at the declamatory contest at Norfolk last week.

Russell Meyers won first honors in the humorous class of the declamatory contest at Norfolk last Thursday evening. This entitles him to enter the state contest and it is confidently hoped that he will win there too. The state contest will be held about the middle of May and will be divided in three sections—oratorical, dramatic and humorous and each will be held in a different section of the state.

Wayne high school has won two second and two first places in the Northeast Nebraska contests in the last four years.

The Seniors have begun work on their class play, "The Touchdown" which is to be given near the close of the school. Schools will be out May 22nd.

Order of Hearing on Petition for Appointment of Administrator

In the County Court of Wayne county, Nebraska.

State of Nebraska, County of Wayne, ss.

To all persons interested in the estate of John G. Gustafson, deceased:

On reading the petition of A. E. Gustafson praying that the administration of said estate be granted to J. M. Gustafson as administrator, it is hereby ordered that you, and all persons interested in said matter, may, and do, appear at the county court to be held in and for said county, on the 21st day of April A. D., 1914, at 10 o'clock a. m., to show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted, and that notice of the pendency of said petition and that the hearing thereof be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this order in the Nebraska Democrat, a weekly newspaper printed in said county, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing.

Witness my hand, and seal of said court, this 30th day of March, A. D., 1914.

(Seal.) JAMES BRITTON, County Judge.

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Beef Steers Slow and Steady to Ten Cents Off.

HOGS 5 TO 10 CENTS LOWER.

Lambs and Ewes Steady to a Shade Higher—Fed Western Ewes at $6.45, Top for the Year to Date.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, March 21.—A very good run of cattle arrived today, about 4,000 head. The fat cattle market was a slow, draggy deal all day and prices were steady to a few cents lower than Monday. A bunch of choice 1,175-pound beefs brought $8.60. It was much the same with cows and heifers as with beef steers. Desirable heifer stuff, as well as the best cows, found a fairly good outlet, at not far from steady figures, but on the ordinary run of butcher stock the demand was poor, at shaded figures. Veal calves were in very fair request and not far from steady, but the market for bulls, stags, etc., was very dull and unevenly lower. The best stockers and feeders today sold about as well as Monday, but the general market for both stock cattle and feeding steers was like the fat cattle trade, weak to a dime off, and slow at that.

Cattle quotations: Good to prime yearlings, $8.25@9.00; choice to prime beefs, $8.40@8.75; good to choice beefs, $8.10@8.35; fair to good beefs, $7.75@8.00; common to fair beefs, $7.25@7.75; good to choice heifers, $7.25@8.00; good to choice cows, $6.50@7.35; fair to good cows, $5.75@6.60; canners and cutters, $4.25@5.50; veal calves, $7.50@10.00; bulls, stags, etc., $4.75@6.50; good to choice feeders, $7.05@7.90; fair to good feeders, $7.25@7.65; common to fair feeders, $6.50@7.25; stock cows and heifers, $6.00@7.50; stock calves, $6.50@8.00.
