WAYNE'S GLORIOUS FOURTH

Celebrated in Royal Manner at Wayne by Largest Crowd Ever Gathered Here on Like Occasion. No Accidents.

12,000 TO 15,000 PEOPLE HERE

After a glorious celebration is over, when the crowd has dispersed and the splendor and excitement of a happy day has gone, it is hard on the next morning to make a pen picture of successes of the day, yet there were a few people not here who wish to know, there are many here who did not see it all—there was too much to be seen—too much to be heard, and while all might be summed up in the simple words, "the greatest ever," there are features worthy of more extended mention—worthy of better words of commendation than we can write.

After the morning salute to see that none overstept the band concert by the drum corps of veterans who were here to furnish music for the reunion and the Wayne band from 9 o'clock until 10 greatly pleased the early visitors. It might be well to add that the Wayne band presented a very nifty appearance in their white uniforms, and their work at the concerts and in the parade was of the highest character. Among the pleasing features of the concert was the baritone solo by Mr. Lane, "The Old Home Down on the Farm" with variations, which he performed in excellent manner, while the band accompaniment was smooth and soft, resembling a great pipe organ. Wayne should be proud of her band.

Then came the automobile parade with more than 40 automobiles decorated in all manner of pretty ways, a dozen of them out of town-competing for the prizes offered to the best decorated cars, Wayne not competing in this. The first prize was won by Oscar Johnson, who had his car decorated with farm products. A band of oats woven with red, white and blue thread went round the car, and then other grains and grasses made it look like a moving Logan valley farm. W. H. Gildersleeve was given second place. Chas. Weeces was the favorite for a place with many of the spectators, and it must have been on fine points that any won over him.

Of the other 37 cars in this parade one can make but few mentions, for all were good and showed evidence of faithful work. Mrs. Rollie Ley as the old woman who lived in the shoe and had so many children she did not know what to do was cause of much favorable comment. L. M. Owen with an imitation of the old "Prairie Schooner" with the familiar motto of other days changed to "Winside or Bust", with the grip strapped on behind was so suggestive that it was hard to convince the thirsty that he was not direct from the little city to the west. His car and motto intended no reference to the Winside and busted car reported the evening before. In fact the car was said to be no worse busted than the liquid load. The College was well represented in this parade, having nine cars trimmed in the orange and black—the colors of the school. It was the best automobile parade ever seen at Wayne up to that time, for Uncle Sam was in the lead.

The great parade of the day was that made by the business men in the afternoon. It was made up of cars representing some forty business concerns of the place, and every one was good. The Commercial Club led the parade with a street car running to Welcome street, carrying a full quota of help and a party of children. The conductor direct from the city knew how to manage the car. The motorman sounded his gong at all starts and obeyed the signals. At the railroad crossing the conductor went ahead to see that no trains were coming and signaled back to come ahead all the same as city men.

Next came the G. A. R. veterans. Then Wayne volunteer fire department, with neatly trimmed carts and wagons, and they won both prizes offered to lodge or society for best float. The band followed the firemen.

Next came Morgan's Toggery, real lively giraff cavorting about the street and switching a vicious looking tail and dodging the live light wires with its head. The animal wore a gay banner, declaring that any shape could be fitted with clothes at this man's shop. It was good enough to get first place in the comic class.

Fisher's lumber yard was next in line with a neat pony and cart and telling how to get pony votes. The Philco-Harrington lumber yard was next in line, with a display showing the fencing they sell and telling of other lines carried by them.

The Carhart Hardware followed next with a display of the household machines they sell. Following was a rig from Arkansaw coming all the way from the land of hard-times to buy hardware from Hiscox. They had the real mover outfit, except that "Bunt" could get no dogs to tie under the wagons. This won second in the comic contest.

The Gasoline Supply Co., moved along with a handsomely decorated wagon, such as they deliver their firewater from. C. A. Chace had the old Monitor reproduced, and the turret turned in all directions and the cannon whin gave salutes loud and often. The motto warned the world to look out for the Yankee cheesebox. The boat on which the turret was revolved was well designed. This won the second place in the patriotic class. Madison Brown followed with a float for his cleaning business. The Wayne Variety store had an excellent float proclaiming liberty from high prices to all of the people. It was a good advertising float, loaded with the variety goods sold by Mr. Nass.

To Orr & Morris Co., was awarded the first place in the patriotic class with a float carrying the dove of peace on the silent cannon, while at each corner of the float a horn of plenty was discharging its bounties for all the people. White predominated in the makeup of the car, and Uncle Sam was driving.

Chas. Hiscox had a well decorated binder to represent the harvest the implement men will get this fall. The German store had an excellent float showing the old method of spinning.

Jas. Ahern's float carried a handsome "liberty bell," made in splendid imitation of the old bell at Philadelphia, including the crack in the side. The judges gave this the first place as a business float. Then came Poulsen & Fortner with groceries, Gaertner & Beckenhauer with a splendid car showing a neatly furnished house. Beaman's Ideal Grocery with the Chace & Sanburn teas and coffees, following which came Run'ell, the grocer, with a good float showing Splendid Flour and the Folger teas, coffees and spices.

Next came a car of Filipinos in native costume, the outfit of C. H. Bright and wife, the Minerva club being the ones to have the credit for the fine display. It gave thousands of people an idea of our adopted brothers and sisters' style of dress and what will be necessary to wear to be in fashion when they visit the islands.

Blair and Mulloy with a float telling of their clothing business was chased along by a street car which carried the advertisement of Gaertner & Beckenhauer's furniture, a gray mule being the apparent motor power, but the mule had to step up to keep out of the way of the auto power which pushed the thing. Chas. Craven with a photograph float was followed by H. B. Craven with one representing his hardware business. Fanske the jeweler was in line of march with a neat car telling of watches and optical goods. S. R. Theobald & Co. had a fine display representative of the dry goods they carry. Felber the druggist was in line next, followed by the Central meat market showing which was neat and appropriate. Last, but not least, and good enough to be given second place in the business floats came Gamble & Center with a car representative of the clothing and furnishings they sell, and a young lady was throwing pennies out to the boys and girls who were following to gather in what they could from the sowing.

It was a display to be proud of, and pleased more people than any other event of the day.

In the morning the address by Rev. W. H. Seibert of Newark, N. J., was full of interest. He made a nice story of the history of Johnathan who wed Miss Independence in 1776, much against the will of the father or mother country but they wed just the same, and lived happily everafter, and the speaker said the union was of God, and what God hath joined together, let no man put asunder. It was an able and scholarly address.

The base ball game free to all was patronized by an immense crowd and Wayne was defeated by the visiting team from Randolph by a score of 4 to 6.

The evening was one of pleasure. It was the big time at the bowery dance; the happy hour for the little folks and the older ones too when the sky was red with beautiful fireworks. And best of all, it was safe and sane to such an extent that no one was hurt—no one had a fuss or a grouch. All were happy and voted the celebration at Wayne the biggest and best ever.

State Normal Notes

President Conn is attending the National Educational association at St. Paul, Minn., this week.

Superintendent E. S. Cowan spent the Fourth with his family at Albion. In the absence of President Conn, Professor Britell has charge of the work in astronomy.

Miss Alice Alwine W. Luers writes an interesting letter from Chicago, where she is continuing her work in the university this summer.

A. E. Nordgren, class of 1911 and recently elected to a position in the Wayne high school, was a visitor Tuesday.

Dr. A. C. Monahan, rural school specialist, department of education, Washington, D. C., will lecture before the teachers of the summer session on next Friday evening, July 10. Mr. Monahan is a man of national reputation and has lecture engagements in a number of states and with the best schools of the country. This will be the second number of the lectures and entertainment course of the summer session.

At convocation Tuesday morning Miss Killen gave an interesting talk, explaining in detail the new pictures recently purchased by the school. At a meeting of the board President Conn was authorized to spend $250 for pictures. These were selected by Miss Beechel in New York and will be hung in the auditorium and in Library and Science hall. Following is the list received: Dance of Nymphs, Corot; Choosing the Caskets, Barth; On the Tiber, Achenbach; Dante and Beatrice, Holliday; The Water Mill, Hobbema; At Grandma's, Artz; Captive Andromache, Leighton.

Last Monday morning at convocation the students had the pleasure of listening to a violin solo by Professor Johnson with Professor Alexander as accompanist.

Our Souvenir Edition

Many words of praise by letter and verbal have been received from those who received our souvenir supplement last week. All unite in saying that it was the best possible and that it was better than expected. Others have expressed regret that they did not realize the magnitude and scope of the work sooner and take advantage of the opportunity to have their business represented therein. There are still extra copies for sale, and many are ordering them to send to friends. If you think it good for Wayne help us distribute it. The price is 25 cents single copy, 3 for 50 cents, 8 for $1.00.

Robert Skiles Pulled

A number have remarked that it was an orderly crowd that assembled in Wayne on the Fourth. Some little excitement was created late in the afternoon by a rumor that Robert Skiles had been pulled. A reporter for the Democrat made an investigation and discovered that the story was in a measure correct as he with twelve other Odd Fellows were pulled forty-three feet by the Modern Woodmen in the tug-of-war contest.

THE OLD SOLDIERS REUNION

Veterans of Northeast Nebraska Entertained at Wayne Three Days With Music, Song and Speech

Thursday, Friday and Saturday were great days for Wayne. From the opening prayer by Rev. Richardson and the address of welcome by Attorney Berry until the curtain rang down at midnight Saturday night there was not an idle moment of day or evening. Commander John G. Grimsley responded to the address of welcome and L. A. Kiplinger gave an address Thursday morning. Thursday evening a most excellent musical program was presented, Mrs. W. H. Morris being in charge. The military band, the Normal quartet and other local talent aided to make it a happy evening for the old soldiers.

Friday morning the rain caused the postponement of the automobile ride but C. W. Reynolds, who was in charge of that feature improved upon the original program by assembling his volunteers and capturing the old soldiers in the late afternoon and showing them about the city and a four mile country drive. The residence portion of the city was much admired by the visitors, and the college buildings were a revelation to many of the visitors who did not before fully realize what was being accomplished by the state in building a great school here.

At the afternoon meeting an excellent address was attentively listened to from Hon. W. V. Allen, with plenty of music on the program. In the evening Col. Ferguson was down to drill the awkward squad, which was followed by a campfire around which the old soldiers told of camp life more than 50 years ago, and recounted incidents of the battles in which they had been actors. Shiloh, Gettysberg and other great struggles where the armies of the north and south had met in deadly conflict, fighting as only Americans can fight, were told of. Songs by the children and music by the drum corps also had a place on the program.

At the business meeting an invitation was extended by Comrade Perrine of Wisner to hold the next meeting at that place. The matter of final location of the next meeting was left to a committee composed of Comrades Perrine, Wisner; Dowling, Randolph and Hyatt, Wayne. This committee will also name the officers for the coming reunion. At this meeting Department Commander Durrand, who came from the southern part of state, made a talk to his soldier friends which was much appreciated. Comrade Fox of this place sang for the boys, and a vote of thanks was extended to Wayne citizens in appreciation of the entertainment provided by them for the visitors. Thus closed what many of the visitors claim was the best reunion of recent years.

On another page will be found a complete roster of the soldiers who registered. About twenty of the visiting soldiers were accompanied by their wives.

Richard Reese who went from Carroll some months ago to visit his native home in Wales, returned Wednesday. He evidently had a good time, and it is a safe bet to say that he is glad to be again in his Nebraska home.

Martin Muth came down from Bloomfield Wednesday to visit at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Suhr. His little granddaughter, Lillie Wagner, who has been spending several weeks at his home, came down with him.

The latest on file for nomination for county office, are Eph Anderson, Wakefield for republican nomination for commissioner from the 2nd district and L. A. Kiplinger of this place who asks the nomination from the democrats for the office of county attorney.

Samuel Burdette Shively, of Laurel, is missing since July 4th, and his father, Bert Shively, is offering $100 reward for the first information received which will tell of his whereabouts. No cause is assigned for him to leave home, and it is feared that he has been overcome by heat and wandered away, but was well when last seen at Hatrington waiting for a train to bring him home from celeration there.

John Milton Livinghouse (By His Pastor)

John Milton Livinghouse was born at Goshen, Elkhart county, Indiana, July 5, 1846 and departed this life on July 2. When about twelve years old, he removed with his parents to Johnson county, Iowa, and later to Marshalltown, in that state where he grew to manhood, and where, on July 16, 1874, he was united in marriage to Emma Bonawitz, who survives him. Nine children blessed the marriage, two of whom died in infancy. Of the survivors, a son, Clarence Livinghouse, and a daughter, Mrs. Richard Auker, are residents of Wayne county; a son, Samuel Livinghouse, resides at Tilden, Nebraska, a daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Thomas at Alliance, Nebraska, while a son, Jno. Livinghouse lives at Des Moines, Iowa, and two daughters, Mrs. Jacob Jasper and Mrs. Albert Bastian make their homes in the Dakotas. He was one of a family of six, three of whom, a sister, Mrs. Mary Sagersdorf, of Lutdgen, Oregon, and two brothers, D. S. Livinghouse and William Livinghouse, of Madison, Nebraska, survive him.

In 1882, Mr. Livinghouse came to Nebraska, and after seven years of pioneering in Holt county, settled in Wayne county, where he continuously resided ever since, steadily following his life occupation of farming, in which he took a keen interest. He was a man of strong home attachments and very devoted to his family. But one order secured his membership, The Royal Highlanders, February 1902 he became a member of the Methodist Episcopal church at Wayne, consistently maintaining his connection therewith to the end.

The funeral was held from the late home Sunday morning, conducted by Rev. Meyer, pastor of the Methodist church, and was attended by a large circle of friends. The burial was at the Wayne cemetery.

The children named above and the two brothers were present at the funeral.

THANKS—We wish to express our thanks for the many acts of sympathy and kindness extended so freely to us in our hours of sorrow and affliction following the sudden death of husband and father.—Mrs. John Livinghouse and children and William and D. S. Livinghouse.

In The Outside World

In spite of the fact that American authority and respect are said to be at a discount in Mexico, and that our people have to appeal to British protection it might be well to note that the news reports state that it was the United States that saved the life of Sinclair Douglas, the Englishman under death sentence for assisting the federals. It is possible that some Americans have applied for protection to some foreign power—that is a common occurrence in any country. Any port in a storm is the idea. And it is stormy in Mexico.

In Mexico the differences between Carranza and Villa have been patched up. Carranza is still the chief—Villa next in power and supreme in northern Mexico. The Huerta forces are said to be in mutiny, and some of his deserting army are said to be threatening attack outposts of American troops at Vera Cruz.

John D. Rockefeller was 75 years of age Wednesday. It is time for him to begin to reform, and give away a lot of his wealth if he hopes to die poor enough to enter the Kingdom of Heaven, for it is easier for the camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to get past.

The progressive state convention in Iowa yesterday the fight was as to whether the wets or the dries should be the controlling faction in the control of the party. Now is the time for Teddy to come in with his big stick and tell them what the party stands for in the liquor fight.

The National Association of Real Estate Exchanges at a meeting at Pittsburg this week asked that all taxes be abolished on mortgages and that the interest rate be reduced to a maximum of 5 per cent.

David Starr Jordan of the Leland Stanford university was elected president of the Teacher's National Educational Association, which just closed its annual session at St. Paul.

Huerta's followers, the only ones who voted at the Mexican election again named him as their president.

Wednesday evening a select party of young people gave a dance at the opera house in honor of the Misses Davey and Hagan of Sioux City and Beech of Sioux Falls. A very pleasant time is reported.

Miss Edna Baylus, a graduate from the Wayne Normal, came Sunday from Sioux City to take a month of special work here in some branches.

Mrs. Wm. Gould and children came from Lyons Friday to visit at the home of Wm. Andresen and wife, her cousin, a few days and see a good celebration.

D. J. Valentine and family returned Monday from a visit at Bassett. Mrs. V. has been visiting there several weeks and the husband joined her there Friday.

Miss Mattie Shulteis is visiting at Denver, Colorado Springs and Boulder, Colo., leaving here Tuesday morning for a stay of several weeks in the Centennial state.

There is talk of having a 3-cent coin issued from the mints. It must be that the high cost of living is coming down—else there would be no need for such small change.

Wm. S. Baker and wife came down from Neligh to celebrate at the best town in northeast Nebraska and visit a day or two at the home of his parents, Wendel Baker and wife.

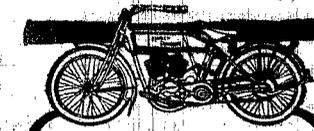

W. S. Dickerson and wife of Sioux City were here Saturday and Sunday visiting at the home of Mrs. Fisher and with other friends and greeting old acquaintances here.

Thos. Bell, who formerly lived at Wayne, but now claims Leith, North Dakota, as his home, was here to visit his brother, Theodore Bell and many friends and attend the old soldiers reunion.

I. D. Hendshaw and wife from Ames, Iowa, came last Friday for a two-day visit here with his parents, I. D. Henderson sr., and wife. He reports that he likes it well in the Iowa college town.

H. J. Graves from Norfolk was here for the 4th, visiting his son O. E. Graves just south of town. He formerly lived here and met many of his former neighbors and friends. He returned Monday.

O. E. Jacobson and wife of Sioux City were here to spend the 4th at the home of their friends, Victor Carlson and wife. Mr. Jacobson was formerly in the newspaper business at Sioux City, and paid us a fraternal call.

 W.M. BROSCHERT, Local Agent

Chas. Shulteis was here from South Dakota for the celebration.

Miss Christina Anderson returned to Norfolk Monday, following a Saturday and Sunday visit with home folks.

Roy Williams and wife of Alhurst, South Dakota came last week to visit at the home of W. J. McInerney and family a few days.

L. J. Courtright went to Lincoln Monday for a short visit and the wife left at the same time to visit home folks at Merville, Iowa, a few days.

Misses Edna and Menella Delaney from Emerson were here Saturday and Sunday to celebrate and visit their grandparents, R. P. Williams and wife.

Mrs. Blackmore from Bloomfield came to spend the 4th at Wayne and visit her sister, Mrs. Pannabaker. She was accompanied by Mrs. Rosmiller of the same place.

Mrs. Geo. Heady came home from Sioux City last week for a time. She had been there for treatment for a number of weeks, and is somewhat improved in health.

Mrs. S. B. Scace came Friday from Lusk, Wyoming to visit her son and daughter here, Homer Scace and Mrs. John Scofield. She has many friends and acquaintances here also.

Geo. Riese, wife and son from Chadron came last week from Iowa where they had been visiting the lady's relatives and spent Saturday and Sunday here, guests at the home of his brother, Chas. Riese and wife.

Otto Hoaglin was taken to Rochester, Minnesota, last week in a critical condition, with a cancerous growth in the stomach. He has some hope of staying the disease a few years by an operation if he survives it.

Mrs. H. J. Wright left Tuesday morning for Colorado Springs, where she will join her daughter, Miss Fontanelle, who has been at Grand Junction, Colorado, during part of the winter, and together they will visit relatives at the Springs.

G. H. Wallace and wife from Dell Rapids, South Dakota, were here the 4th to visit at the home of her parents, Dick Hansen and wife. They came by car and Anna and Harry Hansen, her brother and sister went home with them Monday.

John Larison and family left Tuesday morning by automobile to spend the next eight weeks at Atwater, Minnesota. This place is in south-central part of the state and beyond a doubt there is some good boating and fishing near there for the town boasts of a boat factory.

Operator E. W. Johnson proved to be the most popular operator on this division of the "Omaha" and was sent to Omaha Tuesday to represent the operators of the line at the "Safety-First" meeting in that city Tuesday. He was relieved here by G. W. Dyke who came from Wakefield.

G. W. Green and wife of Inman came last week to visit at the home of the their son, Walter Green and family, and attend the reunion. Mr. Green being one of the soldier boys. He reports a nice time, as he was leaving for home Monday. The wife remained a few days longer.

Leslie Crockett, who has been spending several weeks at home resting and visiting returned to Lincoln last week. He did not rest at home all of the time, for he got into the harness at the Democrat shop and boosted on the booster edition in a manner that was appreciated by all.

Miss Mabel Johnson, accompanied by her brother Herbert came last week from their home in Cheyenne county and stopped at Wayne to visit friends, a guest at the Gossard home. The young man returns in a few days and the young lady goes to remain for a time with her sister at Belden.

Emil Weber was here from Laurel celebrating the 4th and visiting his brothers. He says that in the 35 years since he first began to celebrate at Wayne he never saw a crowd which equalled the one here Saturday in number, good behavior and good time. It was the best ever, in his opinion.

Wm. Meyers, who is troubled with asthma in this climate, went to Rochester, Minnesota, where he is better and where he is taking treatment for this disagreeable trouble. He returned a short time ago from that place where he spent a few weeks before, and felt so much better that he came home—but asthma is a peculiar trouble—now you see it and again you don't. It comes and goes apparently according to conditions of the atmosphere.

The Democrat for job printing. L. L. Way and wife were at Sioux City Tuesday coming home in a new car.

G. C. Whitney and wife of Grand Island returned home Tuesday, following a visit at the home of the lady's son, J. G. W. Lewis.

C. S. Conklin, wife and their son Darald from Creston, Iowa, were here to celebrate the 4th, coming up from the home of the lady's father, John McGuire, where they are visiting. Mr. McGuire was with them and passed a happy day, seeing many of his pioneer friends, for they were all at Wayne on the 4th.

Eugene Gildersleeve left Tuesday to accompany his daughter Fern to Rochester, Minnesota, to consult physicians there regarding the condition of her health, which is not the best. His nephew, Donald, son of L. C. Gildersleeve and wife, accompanied them for an examination. This young man it will be remembered was in the hospital at Sioux City last year for an operation, which could not be completed at the time—and he will submit to an examination to determine whether or not it will be necessary to have it completed. His was appendix trouble, but the appendix was not removed, but some tumors were removed as his first experience. Mrs. L. C. Gildersleeve accompanied them as far as Sioux City.

Peter Baker, who has been at Wakefield most of the time for several weeks assisting his son Wendel Baker who was so seriously ill, was home for the 4th. He says that the young man was indeed in a precarious condition, and is warm in the praise of Dr. C. C. Tomlinson, at whose home hospital he was treated. The operation for a tumor in the region of the appendix disclosed the fact that in addition to the tumor the appendix was affected, and when removed was found to contain a toothpick. Following the operation pneumonia set in, and for a time his chances were not the best to live to a ripe old age. Miss Hanks, a trained nurse from Omaha has credit for faithful service that helped to place him on the road to recovery as he now seems to be.

E. E. Alexander and F. C. Alexander of Oakland, Iowa, father and brother of L. L. Alexander of our city, were here to pay him a visit the 4th and also become members of the Wayne band for the day. The father was most agreeably surprised at Wayne, for the last visit before this was in 1881, when he came in a prairie schooner, and camped on the bank of the Logan. All there was to Wayne at that time was a few straggling shanties along where 1st street is now and a boundless prairie for miles in any direction with here and there a homesteader holding a claim down. Now he sees a thriving city of 3,000 busy happy people celebrating with 10,000 other prosperous citizens gathered in from surrounding country which at the time of his first visit did not have enough people within a day's travel of Wayne to be found in the crowd of Saturday had they all been here and in a bunch.

John Mulloy went to Fremont Sunday with his little son, who will remain there for a time.

Misses Quenie and Lorena Crahan came down from Bloomfield last week to celebrate at Wayne and visit friends here. They were guests at the home of J. H. Massie and wife during their stay here.

Mrs. Pryor of Creighton, came Friday from the east where she has been visiting and remained here with friends until Tuesday. She was much pleased with the entertainers here and met many former friends here.

It is no longer necessary to argue with a family about the necessity of a daily newspaper. The only question now is which one. With people who want a fearless, independent paper, one that will print all the news about all the candidates and about all public policies all of the time, the Lincoln State Journal is the one. A trial price of $1.00 for the daily and Sunday from now until after the November election will add thousands of new readers. The paper is not forced onto people through fakes and schemes, but is sold strictly on its merits. Every one pays in advance, and all papers are stopped when the time is out. You are directly interested in the things that are being done by the state and national governments. The Journal does not support candidates but prints the facts about all of them. Send your dollar now and get this real newspaper at once. Address, State Journal, Lincoln, Neb.—adv.

As The Argus Sees It

Gov. Morehead will undoubtedly be nominated again for governor and in all probability be elected. The candidacy of Metcalfe makes that result almost certain. Still, it was not Gov. Morehead's intention to become a candidate again. His wish has been for two years at least to be a candidate for congressman from the first district and he had every reason to think that were he successful in securing the nomination he would certainly be elected to congress. He carried the district by 3600 majority when a candidate for governor and it seemed reasonable that he could increase that vote. He consented to become a candidate for governor only after personal interviews, petitions and telegrams had persistently urged it. He had no intentions of accepting another nomination and did so only because of the apparent demand that he should again serve the people. His idea was that he could serve people better if there was no thought of succeeding himself at the close of his first term. Because he has served them well, he is asked to waive his objection to a second term and postpone his congressional ambitions. His official work has been that of a business man who knew no friend or foe, but felt that his duty was to serve the people. He is more of a successful business man than a politician. The demand that he again offer his services to the people comes from the people and is not partisan in any sense.—Albion Argus.

The world do move, and the cause of temperance grows. The city of Hartington, which derives its revenue from the sale of saloon license, is using some of their cash to install a sanitary drink fountain at a convent corner. This will be nice for the women and children and even the fellows who take some water in theirs will be better served.

Eighteen candidates have announced in Thurston county for nomination to the various offices within the gift of the people. Up in the good county of Wayne there appears to be less number willing to make the necessary sacrifice to serve the people. There are doubtless more and better positions here outside of the county offices than in Thurston county.

Waterbury had $100 fire in the hivery barn. The man who sleeps there left the lamp burning so he could catch the bedbugs quicker when they tried to drag him out of his cot, and something upset the lamp, either the dog or the bugs, and the poor fellow escaped clad only as he was when he came to earth, but they hunted around and got him a barrel to wear.

The second of the series of market weeks, inaugurated by Omaha business men, will be held in Omaha during August. Invitations will be sent to dealers in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota, requesting them to visit Omaha and be guests of the jobbers and manufacturers during the week. The first market week, held in March was attended by more than 600 dealers.

We were wondering why the city of Salem was allowed to burn $30,000,000 worth of property in a day, with the fire fighting force of so many cities to draw from, but a letter to the Albion Argus tells the story. Neglect of city officials to provide for ample water supply—that was all. But enough. Thirty millions worth of property sacrificed for neglect. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

An illustrated story of Nebraska, showing its business enterprise and agricultural wealth, will be published shortly in the National News, a publication of Chicago, which has a circulation in thirty-six states. The story will be profusely illustrated with Nebraska agricultural scenes. The story and photographs were furnished by the Bureau of Publicity. Perhaps it will almost equal the Democrat's Souvenir edition.

C. S. Hughes of the Pender Republic came back from Wyoming recently to let loose of his hold of the Pender postoffice, Mark Murray being his successor, and register a "Dying Kick" at conditions in general and Congressman Stephens in particular. He does not appear to be satisfied to let the democrats settle the postoffice question in their own way. If the old "he boss" is not going to name him as the republican have always permitted, he wants all of the people to participate in the naming, and not permit the democrats unaided to say who they want. There always was, and perhaps always will be trouble over the naming of some one to an easy position.

Suffrage Department

(Under the auspices of the Suffrage League of Wayne.)

The pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Hartington, Nebr., who is well known nationally as a lecturer, has made a vigorous answer to Mrs. Wm. Frost Scott, the author of an anti-suffrage pamphlet which was recently sent to him, and to several other "antis." In a letter to Mrs. Scott, he said:

"Dear Madam: You have mailed me three manuscripts from 'The New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.' I am ashamed of a woman engaged as you are in promoting principles advocated by the 'Brewers' Association,' the 'Distillers' Association,' by the saloons and the whiskey soaks throughout the United States.

"You are in bad company. Your accredited allies are the friends of the thugs, gunmen, burglars and prostitutes. The Scriptures say, 'Evil communications corrupt good manners.' The proverbs of all the world, ancient and modern, declare, 'You will know a man by the company he keeps.' The question of woman suffrage is not hurt much when an attorney like Hon. Elihu Root opposes it, an attorney who has been a lifelong corporation attorney, defending unscrupulous corporations. I should have thought something more of a 'College Woman's Opposition to Equal Suffrage,' if she had shown her courage by signing her own name. She must be ashamed of herself and of her college. I suspect her 'college' is the office of the 'New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.'

"Mrs. A. J. George has not advanced a single new argument against woman's suffrage. She repeats the old stock pleas of the ages, the pleas of archaic, plied trembling age. She is born too late. She should have been a member of Mohammed's harem or of Cardinal Ximenes' Inquisition that held that a woman had not intellect enough to have an opinion of her own.

"A woman has as true a right to vote as any man, many women have more of a right. The curse of most women's lives is the liquor habit and the liquor traffic. That diabolical habit and that Satanic traffic have filled most women's lives with poverty, pain, anguish and indescribable misery. Women should have the right to vote against whatever has cursed her existence. The good christian men, the diplomatic, politic, prudent politicians of the Elihu Root type have not done much to remove and extirpate there or other flaring evils.

"All government is founded on personal rights which depend on a sovereign power to protect rights and redress wrongs. A woman's rights and protection are as sacred as man's. There is no sex in right or justice or truth. A woman is entitled to every immunity that a man is. She asks a simple act of justice in being permitted to vote. Her interests to her are as vital to her as man's are to him. Grant her what is her own—her right to defend herself. Woman's suffrage is an elemental question of self-protection. She has suffered most from man's inhumanity to woman. She should be granted the privilege of sharing humanity to man.

"Your association is looking backward. You are upholding ancient oriental ideas. The savage, the barbarian, the oriental polygamist, the Mohammedan dervish have ever believed woman inferior to man. Your association is behind the times. You are worshipping relics. You are adoring oriental skeletons. You are embracing dead man's bones. Shame on an association which holds a conception of woman which makes her a slave, the victim, the hapless creature of selfish, ignorant men.

This is the government of the people, by the people, and for the people. Are women not the people?"

Here is a piece of bluster from Carroll, Iowa, that is being used to bolster up the republican cause: "I don't believe there is a particle of danger of sending back a single democrat," is the prediction of the editor. Will some one tell us how many democrats are now in congress from that hidebound republican state? Volmer from the second district, did you say? Well, he is no more a democrat than the other democrat—although he has had a democratic label pasted on him. He belongs to the liquor interests of Davenport and the rest of the world. Of course Cummins may be sent back, and he too frequently poses as a democrat—and we all know that the Devil claims to be a good fellow.

Now that the government revenues under the first year of the new tariff law have proven equal to the expense—and no deficit has been created, another prop has been kicked from under the protective tariff plea for a high tariff.

There is nothing in the proposed trust legislation now pending at Washington calculated to hurt legitimate business—but the laws proposed tend to protect the people from the greed of monopoly better than they have been in the past.

The republican senators are fighting the pork barrel, after having fed at it for so, these many years. It is a sort of deathbed repentance, but it is possible that saving grace will work out their salvation. The vilest sinner may reform, we are told. We hope to see them make a record against "pork" that will confound them if ever they get in power again and try to do as they have in the past. If there be any appropriations proposed that are hog, we hope to see them cut out.

The 500 women who marched on the White House last week to learn the views of the president as to the suffrage question had no difficulty in finding out that the president rightly believes that it is a question that must be settled by and within the states. Nebraska is the place for the women of the state to work for their rights—we do not propose to have the power to regulate these things within our state granted at Washington. It is very probable that the women will be made legal voters in this state this year.

Viele Remains on Board

A dispatch from Lincoln says that because the law is so indefinite which is supposed to govern such cases as the one in which A. H. Viele is charged with being a party to the furniture sale for the normal while acting on the board the governor will not remove him. The law appears explicit enough as to elective officers, but an appointive office appears to be in the "twilight zone." Our laws should be more like the ten commandments—so plain that there can be no double read or doubt meaning.

Simon Geoman returned from Chicago Wednesday evening, where he went with three cars of cattle—50 head—which he bought of F. M. Griffith. He says the cattle cost him $138 ahead, and they sold at Chicago for $9.60, and weighed on an average of 1501 pounds at the Chicago stock yards, which would indicate that Mr. Geoman made a nice profit on the stock.

A Scotch Marriage

How a Man Was Caught in His Own Trap

By F. A. MITCHEL

It was a bright morning in the month of June. Miss Maryweather stood at a window in her city home and wondered why the world defers its annual begonia to the country till July, leaving out the most delightful month in the year for an outing. There was before her nothing but brick and stone houses, while from the street below came a confused clatter of horses' hoofs on the stones, trolley gongs, auto honks and other such city noises.

"I'm going to get into the country if I have to go by trolley," said Miss Maryweather. "After all, wouldn't a trolley ride be nice this beautiful morning? It certainly would, and that's what I'm going to do." And Miss Maryweather straightway got down some maps giving the environs of the city and marked out a route. "I'll go from here to Arlington, that's four miles; get a transfer to Hammondville, that's twelve miles in all, and from Hammondville back home. I can get back to Lincoln if I wish to, or I can go farther."

Not long after this soliloquy Miss Maryweather stood on the front stoop putting on a pair of white silk gloves and waiting for a trolley car. When the right one came along she boarded it. There was no vacant seat, but a handsome young man in a new spring suit gave her his seat, with a profound bow, which was interrupted by the starting of the car and threw him on to her lap. He apologized and thenceforth became a strap hanger till the car reached the crossing of the trolley line with another at Arlington. There Miss Maryweather alighted and took an open car on the other line.

It so happened that the young man who had given up his seat was going in the same direction. At any rate he boarded the same car, taking a seat in the rear where he could smoke. Miss Maryweather did not see him get on and did not know he was there. When the car reached Hammondville, which was little more than a trolley crossing, she was told that the cars ran at fifteen minutes' interval and "one" had just passed. So she concluded to walk and let the next car overtake her.

She had not gone far when she came to an attractive country place. The grounds were very highly cultivated, and there was a garden in which Miss Maryweather could see flowers of all kinds nodding under a light breeze in the sunlight. "I'd give anything to go into that garden," she said. "I wonder what kind of persons they are in there—whether they are so selfish as to wish to keep their flowers for themselves or whether they would like to have others enjoy them too."

Coming to the gateway, she saw a man cutting the grass and asked if there would be any objection to her going into the garden provided she didn't take any of the flowers. "I think not, miss," was the reply, "since you're alone. Couples sometimes come in here to spark, and Mr. Summers doesn't like that; but he hasn't any objection to other persons enjoying his grounds." Thus encouraged, Miss Maryweather entered the grounds and proceeded to the flower garden. There she regaled herself with her beautiful surroundings, wishing she might take even a single rose, but refraining. She had been there only a short time when she saw a man coming in through a rear gate. What was her surprise to see, when he came near her, the gentleman who had given her his seat in the trolley car. What a singular coincidence that this beautiful place should be his home.

"Beg pardon," she said. "The garden looked so attractive from the road that I couldn't help coming into it. But I asked the gardener if there would be any objection, and he said he didn't think there would." Now, this young man, Bob Shackelford, having been born rich and having nothing to do, was always searching for an adventure. He had been struck with Miss Maryweather's appearance when he had seen her get on the trolley car and, without any definite purpose, felt inclined to keep her in sight for awhile. He had therefore taken the same car as she to Hammondville, but when she walked on from there he had waited for a car to take him back to the city. When she stood looking into the grounds he passed on the car. Alighting, he saw her talking with the gardener and then enter. Naturally he inferred that she was not at home. The idea occurred to him to go around to the back gate, enter the place and personate its owner. Only a man of considerable assurance and confidence in his resource would have dared do such a thing.

"You are quite welcome, I assure you," said the young man. "I am very proud of my flowers, and nothing pleases me so much as to have others enjoy them."

"That is very nice of you. I don't wonder that you object to couples making use of your grounds. The gardener told me about that. He said since I was alone there would be no objection to my coming in."

"Did the gardener say that?" asked the young man, pricking up his ears. "Yes, and I don't blame you for feeling as you do about it."

"Did he say I objected to married?"—The sentence was not finished for at that moment a door of the house opened and the real owner of the place came out and made straight for the couple in the garden.

"I'm not the owner of this place," said Miss Maryweather's companion, "and have no more right here than you have. But don't be troubled. I'll make up a story, and all you need do is to assent to anything I say."

Miss Maryweather was by no means pleased by this avowal. She bit her lip, but said nothing. The young man might stand in the breach. When the owner came up he said:

"Beg pardon, sir, but these grounds are not open to the public."

"So the gardener told us, but he said further that you objected to your grounds being overrun by young couples who come here?"

"He spoke correctly," interrupted the other. "I am quite willing that any other class should enjoy my grounds. Are you a married couple?"

"Certainly," said Mr. Shackelford. "Perhaps there was something in Miss Maryweather's reception of this statement that excited the owner's suspicion."

"Do you vouch for the gentleman's statement?" he asked, looking at her searchingly.

Miss Maryweather looked at her companion and saw an appeal there that she would do her part to relieve them from the embarrassing position they were in. She yielded with a faint "Yes."

A change at once came over the owner's treatment of them. He plucked a number of roses and handed them to Miss Maryweather and bestowed a boutonniere on her companion. Then when they had thanked him for his kindness they departed in company. As they passed out of the front gate Miss Maryweather was naturally in no good humor. But she maintained silence.

"I'm very sorry," said Bob, "to have put you in a false position."

"Why did you come in there?" "I'm obliged to confess," he said, much rattled, "that I was—was very much attracted by your—your appearance and"—He broke down at this point and got no further.

"Leave me," said Miss Maryweather. "I have no acquaintance with you."

"Not till you have forgiven me." "Forgive you? Suppose we meet the owner of the place again, what kind of a position will we be in? You told him we were married, and I was forced to confirm what you said."

The remark put a new idea into Mr. Shackelford's head. He had acknowledged her as his wife, and she had acknowledged him as her husband before a witness. They were married.

"By Jove!" he exclaimed. "Well, what now?"

"Did you ever hear of a Scotch marriage?"

"No." "A Scotch marriage is one where a man and a woman acknowledge each other as husband or wife in presence of a witness."

"Oh, my goodness gracious!" "But don't concern yourself. Such a marriage will not hold in America. At least I don't think it would."

"You don't think it would? Do you mean to tell me that there is a probability that we are married?"

"Not a probability, only a possibility. I'll see my lawyer about it as soon as I return to the city and let you know."

A trolley gong sounded in the distance, and when the car came along Miss Maryweather got aboard. Mr. Shackelford got on, too, and there was a continued quarrel between them, he defending himself as best he could from her attacks. When Miss Maryweather handed her his card and said he would call with his lawyer's opinion as to whether or no they were bride and groom, to which she declined to reply.

Miss Maryweather held on to the card and made inquiries as to the man it represented. She learned that he was rich, prominent socially, a member of the best clubs and considered by his friends a very good fellow. Miss Maryweather was in moderate circumstances and not in the social swim. From being very angry with Mr. Shackelford she began to think that it would be very nice to be his wife. He called the next day to say that his attorney was of opinion that a marriage to be good in law must be intentional. There had not been intentional, therefore was not valid.

Miss Maryweather tried to appear relieved. She apologized for her harsh treatment of Mr. Shackelford and hoped he would forget and forgive it. Indeed, she was so amiable that Mr. Shackelford was very much pleased with her. He went straight from her to a flower shop, where he ordered a big box of flowers to be sent her. This, of course, necessitated a note of thanks, in which the lady said that she would like to see the donor about their supposed marriage and from that time forward kept speaking of it as such till Mr. Shackelford began to wish it was a real marriage. Finally Miss Maryweather admitted to him that she had felt there was a singular bond between them ever since he had "so adroitly relieved her from a very embarrassing position."

By this time Mr. Shackelford, whose tastes were all for bachelorhood, began to see that he had been caught in his own trap. He remained away from the lady till she wrote him a note to say that she had confided the matter of their marriage to a lawyer friend, who had told her that there need be no trouble about it provided neither was disposed to make trouble for the other by claiming that it was a real marriage. She hoped Mr. Shackelford would never do that. This brought him to see her, and again under her influence. He never escaped from it.

Wayne County Public Schools (An Open Letter) Wayne, Nebr., July 7, 1914. My dear school officers: This letter is to announce a meeting of school officers, teachers, and county superintendents on next Saturday afternoon, July 11, at three o'clock, in the Chapel of the State Normal school to discuss the County Unit System of School Administration. Dr. A. C. Monahan, rural school specialist, Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C., will address the meeting. Other counties in this section of the state will be represented. You are aware that the last state legislature appointed a commission to investigate the conditions of the state and to formulate recommendations for the next state legislature to act upon. After an investigation of various state systems it appears to the commission that the County Unit would be a good thing for our state. The County Unit provides that instead of the local school boards, there would be one school board for the whole county, elected by the voters. This school board would levy taxes for the whole county, hire and place all the teachers, hire a county superintendent, select text-books, etc. Now after a law is passed it is too late to do anything except "howl". Let us decide whether it would be better to re-organize our system, lose our jobs, and give our schools into the hands of a county board than to continue under the present organization. Then we can tell our senator and representative how to vote on the proposition in time to do some good. I am making a special request that you come to this meeting; if possible, for I feel that the question is vital and that it ought to be widely discussed before becoming a law. Most sincerely yours, ELSIE LITTELL.

Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The subject of the Sunday school lesson for next Sunday morning will be, "Greatness Through Service" Mark 10:32-45.

Regular divine worship every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The subject of the sermon for next Sunday morning will be "Christ's Answer to His Own Question—What Think Ye of the Christ?" Rev. 4:7. Alfred Butler D. D. has divided the life of Christ into three periods. The period of obscurity; the period of popularity and the period of opposition. During the period of opposition, the Pharisees, Sadducees and Scribes sought to entrap Christ with hard questions, so that they might work his downfall. Upon one occasion the Pharisees had gathered together and sent a lawyer with a question to Christ to try Him. But their question brought them face to face with a question they could not answer for we hear Jesus say "What think ye of the Christ?" They put forth a feeble effort to answer but as many others failed. They say "the son of David." Pilate said He was "a faultless Man." The infidel Rouessau referred to Him as "a man of colossal dimensions of wonderful sweetness and purity of life." But no man can answer the question right unless he has felt the throbbing of the higher power within his breast. Therefore we turn to the answer of the Christ.

J. C. Nuss went to Grand Island Tuesday to attend the annual meeting of the association of Nebraska variety store men, of which organization he has been president for the past two years, and one of the active workers instrumental in its organization. One of the objects of the organization is to co-operate in buying and discuss the best methods of advertising and selling goods.

The ordinance compelling the hitching of teams should be rigidly enforced. It will save cost and trouble. The man with a team has no right to endanger life and property of other people, to say nothing of his own by leaving a team hitched loose to run at whatever happens to frighten them. A hitch weight and strap is a cheap investment—far cheaper than paying costs of a runaway or a fine for not observing an ordinance.

Farmers in Gage county have started the custom of gathering together each week to discuss current farm problem either at the office of their farm demonstrator or at the home of some member of the county farm management association. Some timely topic is discussed by the demonstrator, followed by a discussion on the part of the farmers. Such meetings are being encouraged by the Nebraska College of Agriculture, and any assistance that may be given is furnished.

Lloyd Thomas of Alliance was called to Wayne last week by the death of John Liveringhouse, father of Mrs. Thomas. He is proprietor of the Herald of that place. Among others called here on the same mission were Jacob Jasper and wife of Bridgewater, South Dakota, and Albert Bastian and wife of Armore, South Dakota, the wives being daughters of Mr. Liveringhouse. Mrs. Mileheiser from Marshalltown, Iowa, a sister of Mrs. Liveringhouse also came to attend the funeral.

The Busy Farmer

Just now he is cutting his second crop of alfalfa, and binding the early oats, having just laid the corn by because it was too large to work longer, in some cases. Corn prospects were never better in Wayne county, but as one farmer said in dismal tones—"It has no ears set yet." He should have faith that they will set, and that they will mature as the great majority of corn does in this county. If he has no faith he should not plant—but when it is planted look at the bright side as long as you can. There is trouble enough when it comes without borrowing. "Make hay while the sun shines." Figures Given by Board of Control on State Institutions,

STATE PAYS $28,590 MONTH.

Fourteen State Institutions Cost One Hundred and Seventy Thousand Dollars for Salaries in Six Months. Rural Carriers Hold Annual Meeting.

Lincoln, Neb., July 8.—Salaries of officials and wages of employees of state institutions, comprise from one fifth to two-fifths of the total maintenance costs at each institution, according to figures given out by the board of control.

The highest per capita is evidenced at the state tubercular hospital. There the number of inmates is low as compared to other institutions, save the institute at Milford. These three institutions are really in a class by themselves in this respect. At the Nebraska City school, however, Superintendent Abbott has succeeded in keeping the per capita down to $38.88, as compared to the $62.49 which is recorded at the Kearney hospital.

Of the more populous institutions, Superintendent East of the Beatrice institute for feeble-minded takes front rank with a maintenance cost of $16.66. Superintendent Baxter of the Hastings asylum, however, numbers considered, does better than that. With his nearly 1,200 patients his figure is set at $16.72. Both of the other asylums, with smaller number of inmates, run above that mark, although all three are keeping their costs down to a remarkably low figure. The state pays in the fourteen institutions under control of the board an average of $28,590 for the combined lot per month, or a total of $1,715,545.52 for the six months ending May 14.

Ruling in Baking Powder Case.

Food Commissioner Harman has decided the case involving the use of egg albumen in baking powder as the result of an exhaustive hearing held last April in which one baking powder company made complaint against another which it alleged was using egg albumen in its tests as showing the relative worth of their own production over that of any other make. The opinion is as follows: "It is the opinion of this department that white of egg or egg albumen as used in baking powder does not constitute an adulteration under the food laws of Nebraska and that when it is labeled as being present it is not misbranded."

County Treasurers Pay Up.

State Treasurer George is preparing to take up all outstanding warrants up to July 1, which amounts to $514,930. Receipts from county treasurers have been coming in quite rapidly within the past few days which enables the treasurer with the receipts from other sources to make the call. There is on hand about $80,000, while fees paid in from all sources make another $18,000. Counties reporting show Douglas with a remittance of $77,452 and Lancaster with another of $103,833.

Valuation Loss Shown.

The increase of over $1,000,000 which was made by the first thirty-eight counties reporting to the secretary of the state board of assessment has been cut down by the last eleven so that there is a loss for the forty-nine counties of $849,761. Douglas and Lancaster counties have not yet reported and it is thought that the increase in these counties will help to bring the valuation of the state up to somewhere near what it was last year.

Weldman Back From Panama.

Charles P. Weldman, former chief of the Lincoln fire department and for several years in charge of the fire fighters of the Panama canal zone, has returned to Lincoln. Reorganization of the zone department, placing the department under army officials, has resulted in the letting out of Mr. Weldman. He will visit in Lincoln for a few weeks.

Census of Penitentiary.

According to the monthly report of Warden Fenton of the state penitentiary there were 378 inmates of that institution June 30, as against 339 on May 31. Of these four are females. There were twenty-four commitments, twenty-two paroles, two discharged on parole, one death, two transferred and ten paroled.

Board of Control Raises Salaries.

The board of control has raised the salaries of three of the employees of the board. George Weidenfeldt, bookkeeper, is raised from $100 a month to $115. Mrs. Pearl Bemis will receive $75 a month instead of $65, and A. E. Howard is raised to $1,000 a year. He formerly received $80 a month.

Hotel Year Expires.

Colonel Phil Ackerman, hotel inspector, wants hotel, restaurant and other people who come under the jurisdiction of the state hotel examiner to know that the fiscal year expired July 1 and it will be up to them to send in their little $2 in order to be placed on the list of good hotel keepers for another year.

Rural Mail Carriers Hold Meeting.

One hundred members of the Nebraska Rural Mail Carriers' association held their annual meeting here. Officers elected were: President, J. C. Monknight; Seward; vice president, C. A. Morton; Cheney; secretary, E. W. Cleff; Humboldt; treasurer, W. J. Butler; Ewing.

ALL CORN IS FAR-ADVANCED

Tassels Beginning to Appear Much Earlier Than Ever Before.

Omaha, July 7.—With a bumper small grain crop practically all harvested the railroad men are beginning to predict one of the biggest corn crops ever raised in the state. The Burlington—after receiving reports from all of the agents of Nebraska summarizes the corn situation as follows:

"There are no unfavorable reports as to the condition of corn in Nebraska. In spite of the unusual amount of moisture the corn is generally clean and is far advanced for this time in July. In a few fields the tassels are beginning to appear and the critical period while corn is fertilizing will be passed with continued favorable conditions much earlier than in most previous years.

"The estimated conditions of corn made by station agents ranges from 100 to 115 per cent. With the amount of moisture in the ground the prospects for a large corn crop are exceedingly good."

As to the wheat yield, the Burlington places the amount per acre at the highest average in the history of the state.

BRIGGS CAPTURES GUNMAN

South Omaha Chief of Police Has His Picnic Interrupted.

Omaha, July 6.—Tony Hilton, an itinerant negro, shot a man through the hip and wrist in a wrangle at Plattsmouth. The wounded man was taken to jail too intoxicated to give his name. Hilton then made a race across the Platte river with Sheriff Quinton in pursuit, and when Dean Wall, eighteen-year-old lad, got in his way, Wall was shot through the breast and hands. Young Wall was brought to St. Joseph's hospital here and attended by Dr. Dermody, who says the young fellow has but a slight chance to live. One of the bullets passed through his lungs and another lodged in the liver. Dr. Dermody will operate in an attempt to remove the leaden pellet.

Hilton continued his flight to the north, where he ran upon a picnic party of which Chief Briggs of South Omaha was a member, and after a running fight Briggs captured him and turned him over to Sheriff Quinton.

NEW WHEAT ON THE MARKET

Two Cars Are Bought by Maney Milling Company of Omaha.

Omaha, July 7.—The first Nebraska grown wheat of this year's crop has arrived onto the Omaha market. There were two carloads of it, both coming over the Missouri Pacific from Brook, Nemaha county. It graded No. 2 hard and tested sixty and one-half pounds per bushel. The grade is the highest ever put on new wheat that has not gone through the sweat and the test is close to one pound above the average for new grain.

The two cars of new wheat come from fields that averaged a little better than forty bushels per acre. There was considerable bidding for the shipment and there were half a dozen buyers anxious to take it at 72½ to 73 cents, but the Maney Mills company bid it up to 73 cents and secured the entire shipment of 2,000 bushels.

SOME LOCO NOT POISONOUS

Dr. L. H. Pammel Tells Veterinarians Not All Varieties Injurious.

Omaha, July 7.—Eastern Nebraska has something to be thankful for in that while it has a loco weed that can scarcely be detected from the loco weed of Colorado and the other western states, it is not poisonous to animals. This was declared by Dr. L. H. Pammel of Ames, Ia., in his paper before the Missouri Valley Veterinary association in convention at the Hotel Rome.

Much attention is to be given this year to the study of the subject of vaccination of hogs for cholera. The afternoon program is to be given over entirely to this subject, and a veritable symposium is scheduled on the subject.

Citizen-Soldiers to Be Vaccinated.

All members of the Nebraska national guard, numbering 1,500 men, composing the two regiments which will report for duty in the maneuvers camp to be held at Fort Dodge, Ia., Aug. 10 to 19, are to be vaccinated for typhoid fever, according to an order issued here by Adjutant General P. L. Hall. The order is effective just before the men depart for Iowa.

Drowned Boy Is From Sioux City.

Blair, Neb., July 7.—The name of the boy whose body was taken from the Missouri river here was James Bushus, Jr., aged eight years. He was drowned by his tricycle sliding into the river at Sioux City on June 21. His father, James Bushus, arrived and the body was finally identified and was buried in the Blair cemetery.

Elk Creek Girl Run Over by Auto.

Tecumseh, Neb., July 7.—Miss Louise Hall, the thirteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hall of Elk Creek, was run over by an automobile on a crowded street corner here. Her greatest injury was the loosening of three ribs, no bones being broken.

The very last person I thought to see here."—London Citizen.

Carlyle and Ceremony. Thomas Carlyle and his wife were so wedding frightened that it is said to think of it. Replying to a letter of his describing his fantastic terrors, she wrote: "For heaven's sake get into a more benign humor or the incident will not only wear a very original aspect, but likewise a very heart breaking one. I see not how I am to go through with it."—T. P.'s Weekly, London.

Real Trouble. Knicker—What is the matter with Jones? Bocker—He has made so many excuses for being out late that now he has to make excuses for being home early.—Woman's Home Companion.

Suitable Match. "That girl has shocking ways!" "Maybe that's the reason she married an electrician."—Baltimore American.

Impudent Thieves. The report of Mexico is reported to be one of the smartest and most impudent thieves in the world. Brantz Meyer tells of an English traveler, who, within an hour or two, in the principal streets of Mexico, had first his hat hooked from his head by a line from an upper window, and was then accosted by three lepers who divested him of his coat. The three bade him wait, and within a few minutes one returned and banded him a pawn ticket.

"We wanted $30, not the coat," he explained. "Here is the ticket with which you can redeem it for that sum."—London Mail.

Among the rich finds in the Australian gold diggings the Joker nugget ranks among the chief. It turned the scale at thirty ounces and was sold for $600. In size and shape it resembled a man's hand, thick at the wrist part and tapering off toward the fingers.

The claim had been a good one from the first, and the owner did not have to work hard. One day he was reclining full length idly searching for nuggets when he caught sight of the Joker. He at once covered it with his hand and sat up, rather wondering how he would secure the treasure without being seen. If the find became known every man in the field would tramp to the spot and invade his claim and so prevent his working.

A man in an adjoining claim looked up. "Found anything?" he asked. "No. Seen the color; that's all. Pitch my coat over to me, will you? It's lying near there. I want a smoke." "Here you are, mate. But what's the matter? You look pale. Don't you feel right?" "I'm all right, only the sun is a bit hot."

He was struggling with an insane desire to laugh, but he got his coat over the nugget and seated himself on the top of it. Then laughter overpowered him, and he became hysterical. Those about him wondered, but thought the sun had affected him.

In a little while he gained his composure and decided to go to his tent. In lifting his coat he managed to take up the lump of gold, and no one knew that he had found anything. It was not until ten days had passed that the fact was noised abroad, and even then few knew the claim whence the Joker came.

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Fat Cattle Active and Steady to Stronger.

HOGS DULL, UNEVENLY HIGHER

More Advance on Sheep and Lambs. Market Strong to a Dime Higher. Market Fairly Active and Supply Quite Large.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Neb., July 7.—Receipts of cattle were again moderate today, only 2,000 head. In most respects the market today was a repetition of Monday's trade—active and strong on the desirable beefs, both light and heavy, and not more than steady for the ordinary run of short fed and warmed up steers. Some choice 1,500-pound beefs brought $9.15. Good fat cows and heifers found a ready sale at fully steady figures, while the grassy and not well fatted stuff was hard to move at very uneven figures. Veal calves continue in active request and fully steady, and there is a very good outlet and quotably firm market for bulls, stags, etc. Business continues very quiet in the stocker and feeder line and very few cattle are changing hands, hardly enough, in fact, to afford a very intelligent idea of the condition of the market.

Cattle quotations: Choice to prime beefs, $8.85@9.25; good to choice beefs, $8.50@8.80; fair to good beefs, $8.20@8.40; common to fair beefs, $7.40@8.10; good to choice heifers, $7@8; good to choice cows, $6.50@7.50; fair to good cows, $5.50@6.25; canners and cutters, $3.50@5.50; veal calves, $7.50@10; bulls, stags, etc., $5.25@7.65; good to choice feeders, $7.50@8; fair to good feeders, $6.75@7.50; common to fair feeders, $6.25@6.75; stock cows and heifers, $5@7.

About 7,600 hogs arrived today. The market was very dull today, although prices were from a shade to possibly a nickel higher than Monday's market. Bulk of the sales was made at $8.25@8.35 and tops reached $8.40.

Sheep and lamb receipts amounted to 8,000 head. The market for both sheep and lambs was quite active today and prices strong to a dime higher all around on both sheep and lambs. Most of the lambs sold at $9 today. Idaho wethers went at $5.55 and some ewes at $4.75.

Quotations on range sheep and lambs: Lambs, good to choice, $8.85@9.10; lambs, fair to good, $8.60@8.85; lambs, feeders, $6.75@6.50; yearlings, good to choice, $6.35@6.60; yearlings, fair to good, $6@6.35; wethers, good to choice, $5.45@5.70; wethers, fair to good, $5.35@5.45; ewes, good to choice, $4.50@4.80; ewes, fair to good, $4.25@4.50.

T. W. Moran arrived home Monday from his ten-day outing with other station agents of the Northwestern, and reports that they had an excellent time. According to the plan they were to see the most famous of the mountain scenery of the Rockies, and visit such cities as Denver, Salt Lake City and others, and have an outing of five days in the National Yellowstone park.

The bible study circle held a very interesting and profitable service at the home of Mrs. Lundwickson Tuesday afternoon. The lesson study in Mark 10 was ably led by Mrs. Abbott and followed by a prayer and praise service. A goodly number were in attendance.
There are indications which make it appear possible that oil and gas may be found near Fairfax, South Dakota. If there is a prospect there it is time for the Standard Oil crowd to hover round. But then no need to worry about them, for they probably know all about it, and if there is a doubt about it they will let some one else develop it and then they will plan to capture it if it proves of value.

LOUSE POWDERS
 are many, Lee's is the best buy. First, because a pound and a quarter for 25 cts. instead of the usual 15 ounces; second because it is suitable for most every town; third because complying fully with the insecticide law. Equally good for grown fowls or chicks. Especially fine for setting hens. You cannot raise chickens profitably unless kept free from lice and you need something that is economical and easy to use as well as effective. That's Lee's. Put up in round sprinker top cans. 2 1/2 lbs., 25 cts. and 50 cts. Sold by 10,000 dealers in U. S. and Canada. Write for free poultry books and pamphlets.

Stanhope took off his coat and threw it over the railing. Of course an officious usher had to worm his way through the crowd and request him to remove it.

As far as I could see, Stanhope was quite taken up with the show, but from the moment Marion Harper had come in Trev looked disturbed.

"I guess I won't stay," he said in a low voice to me when the curtain came down on the first act. "I've seen it before, you know, and I've got some work to do tonight too."

Stanhope heard him.

"I say, Trev, if you're going over to the diggings take my coat along, will you?"

He had put it back on the plush railing again, and there were several others with it. The usher couldn't watch all the time.

Stanhope turned his back at once and pushed through the crowd to speak to somebody he knew in a nearby seat.

"Cheeky lad, Stanhope," murmured Venables, but Trev picked up the coat and walked out without a word.

"Poor old Trev is hard hit," said I. "My, but Miss Harper is sailing pretty close to the wind!"

"To appear with that Latell, you mean?" suggested Venables.

"Umph."

"She's got queer taste to pick 'him out after a fellow like Stanhope."

"Or Trevis?"

Oh, no! Men never gossip.

I noticed that Marion Harper had risen and was making her way up the aisle, with Latell, looking rather crestfallen, following. There was a long intermission between the two acts.

I looked around for Trevis, but he had got out into the foyer.

He wore his own coat and carried Stanhope's over his arm. As he passed through the gate and refused the return check he told me afterward that the ticket man looked at him a little oddly, but he thought nothing of it until a commotion arose behind him.

The audience was pouring out into the promenade, and a man was struggling through the crowd shouting "Stop thief!" at the top of his voice.

Well, you can imagine the sort of a stampede that cry creates in a theater lobby.

Trev was so near the door that he thought he'd get out of the crush and let 'em fight it out. But suddenly his shoulder was seized by a uniformed employee of the house.

"Hold him! That's the man!" yelled the excited individual in the rear.

"He's got it on his arm."

"Got what?" gasped Trev.

"That's my coat, you rascal!" shouted the man and snatched away the garment Trev had been carrying.

The ticket taker came up then.

"I suspected him when he went past me," he declared, with the air of a Sherlock Holmes. "Bring Officer Brady."

"He's added to the usher. "There's too many of these fellows coming here to the Broughton."

"But I assure you this is a mistake," began Trev.

Then he saw a face in the crowd that turned his own scarlet, and sealed his lips as though he had been suddenly smitten with dumbness.

It was Marion. Her mother and Latell were behind her, and Latell was grinning. He appreciated the humor of the thing.

The comments of the bystanders would have scorched the self respect of a veritable thief. One woman declared he was "certainly a very villainous looking person," and an old gentleman suggested that "hanging was too good for these sneak thieves."

Trev, who couldn't get his eyes off Marion's face, saw Latell with a sneer whisper something to her. Instantly the red mounted in a sudden wave from neck to brow.

She favored her escort with a glance of scorn, and instantly pushed through the curious crowd.

"Marion! I implore you!" murmured her mother, but the girl did not, or would not, hear. She went straight up to the ticket taker:

"There is a mistake here," she said. "I know this gentleman very well. He is Mr. Trevis—Mr. Paul Trevis. It would be utterly impossible for him to have taken this—this person's coat," and she froze the excited man with a look, "except by mistake."

Trev recovered himself.

"Don't put yourself in any trouble, Marion," he said in a low voice. "It will be explained in a moment. Ah, here comes Stanhope now!"

The ticket taker had dropped the prisoner's arm. Stanhope saw his chum, but did not realize what was taking place.

"Hold on, Trev!" he exclaimed, pushing through. "Didn't you hear me ask you to take my coat over home with you? You forgot it," and he held the garment up.

The crowd began to laugh, and the coarsure individual who had caused the disturbance slipped away.

Then Stanhope saw Marion.

"Good evening, Miss Harper," he said with some stiffness.

But Marion and Trev had been looking into each other's eyes.

"I am afraid you will have to carry your own coat, Mr. Stanhope," she said lightly, the smile coming back to her face. "Mr. Trevis has just agreed to see mamma and me home. I really don't feel equal to sitting out the play tonight."

She had turned her back on Latell and did not even look at him again as she went out with Trev. But I reckon she had reason for so treating him.

Stanhope heard what Latell sneered half under his breath, however, and only the appearance of the tardy officer stopped another bit of excitement in the lobby.

Afterward Stanhope grumbled some over having to carry his coat himself. He didn't see any deeper into it than that.

NEGOTIABLE PAPER

Bills of Exchange, Bank Checks and Promissory Notes.

IN A CLASS BY THEMSELVES.

These Convenient Substitutes For Specie, Which May Pass From Hand to Hand as Readily as Coin, Differ Radically From Other Contracts.

We may speak truthfully of the strength of paper, yet how like a paradox it sounds! From childhood we have been accustomed to take frequent liberties with the flimsy material, to fold and read it according to our lightest whim, and now to speak of it as strong! But strong it is, and the business world of America is bound into a cohesive whole by the fibers of millions of notes, checks and drafts which pledge the honor and credit of its citizens.

In this brief article we shall attempt to define three kinds of commercial paper—bills of exchange, promissory notes and bank checks—that are all business contracts. They are contracts, however, as to which business convenience decrees that the form shall be just as important as the substance.

If I am hiring Regan the contractor to build my house and we fall out over our agreement the court will consider every possible point connected with the transaction in order to determine what our mutual intentions really were. But if I employ Regan to do the work and give him a promissory note in payment of his services, our rights, so far as that note is concerned, are largely determined by the exact form in which I issued it, taken in connection with the subsequent indorsements—that is, whatever written additions were afterward made to it in the course of business.

The vital feature of bills of exchange—or drafts, as they are generally called—promissory notes and bank checks is their negotiability—that is to say, they are a special class of contracts which are so framed and so favored by the law that if certain rules are adhered to they can be passed from man to man quite as freely and far more conveniently than actual cash.

An ordinary contract may be assigned or transferred from one to another. Thus if I have agreed to furnish a large factory with knitting machines, I may assign my right to be paid for doing so to Bogardus for a valuable consideration. Suppose, though, that I misrepresented some important feature of my knitting machines to the Success Textile company, which ordered them, and after I have transferred my rights in the contract to Bogardus they find it out. Under such circumstances the textile company can employ the defense of misrepresentation against Bogardus just as readily as they could against me, for he has simply stepped into my shoes and is in no better position than I would be had I remained a party to the contract.

Now, this is just where drafts, notes, and bills, or, as they are often called collectively, negotiable instruments or commercial paper, differ radically from other contracts. While still in the hands of the original parties who gave them birth they are subject to any defenses which one may have against the other, so that if Curzon gives a promissory note for $100, due in sixty days, to Plaisted and then finds that through mutual dealings Plaisted really owes him $500 he may at the end of the sixty days refuse to pay Plaisted the note and demand instead $400 from him. Suppose, however, that Plaisted has meanwhile sold the note to Rangely, who knows nothing of his debt to Curzon, can Curzon still set off Plaisted's debt and refuse to pay Rangely the note? Undoubtedly he cannot do so.

Such a case illustrates the distinguishing characteristic of commercial paper. Like a bird which has flown from the parent nest, it is freed from any defenses which the original parties to it may have, just as soon as it has been purchased, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, by some third person.

In every other form of contract the rule is otherwise: land bears its burdens from owner to owner, the assigned mortgage conveys no better title to the purchaser than the assignor had to give; but for the purely practical reason that in trade there must be some convenient representative of specie, which may pass from hand to hand as readily as actual coin, a general agreement and strength of custom among merchants bred the three forms of credit paper—the bill of exchange, the promissory note and the bank check—all of which travel, in the words of a great jurist, as couriers without luggage, and to all of which an innocent purchaser, for value, gets an absolutely clear title.—Saturday Evening Post.

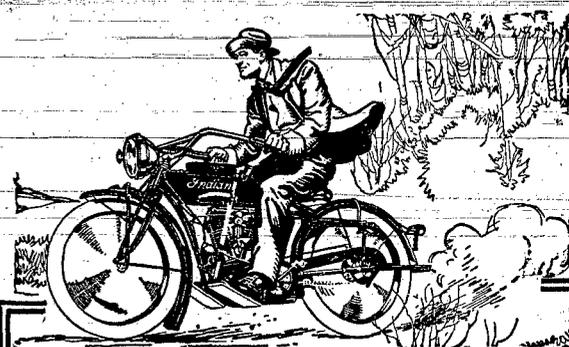

Deceptive.

The Pastor's Wife—What peculiar eyes young Ashley has. They always seem half closed. The Pastor—Yes, he has me guessing. I'm inclined to think he sleeps all through my sermons, but I can't catch him at it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

At the Game.

She (facetiously)—Foul! I don't see any feathers. He—Well, you could hardly expect to in this game, you know. These are picked nines.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ungraciousness in rendering a kindness, like a hoarse voice, mars the music of the song.—Pelham.

Give this machine the acid test of comparison at these three vital points:

Price — Equipment — Reputation

The Two-Sixty Standard Indian (illustrated) represents a motorcycle value decidedly in advance of the field today. A close examination will conclusively prove the 1914 Indian with 38 Betterments to be—price for price—quality for quality—an achievement in worth which successfully carries it beyond competition.

1914 Indian Motorcycle

equipment has been a true sensation. The Indian has nailed its flag of leadership higher up on the pole than ever before by evolving Motorcycle Electricity and putting it into efficient operation. All standard models are equipped with electric head light, electric tail light, two sets high amperage storage batteries, electric signal and Corbin-Brown rear-drive speedometer.

The Indian reputation behind every Indian machine is the greatest guarantee of reliability and sound construction that any motorcycle purchaser could have. The Indian has developed more genuine mechanical devices for the advancement of the motorcycle—including the famous, incomparable comfort feature, the Cradle Spring—Frame—than all other makes combined.

A NIGHT OF TERROR

Peculiar Experience With a Deadly Mexican Tarantula.

PENNERED IN A DARK BEDROOM.

The Trying Ordeal Through Which a Woman Tourist Passed in a Hotel at Vera Cruz—Awaiting the Bite That Meant Madness and Then Death.

The tarantula is much larger in Mexico than in Italy. His four pairs of fuzzy legs, his speckled bulging belly, his abnormally fat head armed with vicious nippers and equipped with eight eyes arranged in transverse rows, suffice to fill you with a wholesome desire to give him the right of way without ado.

Owing to the fact that he has an unwelcome habit of leaving his own realm in the tropical vines to make sociable little visitations to the corners of your bedroom it had always been my custom to search every nook and crevice of my sleeping room before retiring for the night. Twice had I seen native laborers, peons, in the agony of death due to a tarantula bite. So it was not surprising that this creeping thing headed my list of the many dangers to be shunned in Mexico.

I had just reached Vera Cruz from Mexico City, very tired, and decided to seek my room early in the evening, which, indeed, is the only safe and proper thing for an unaccompanied woman in Mexico to do. That part of the diligencias in which my room was located was evidently undergoing repairs, for a pile of timbers was included in the furnishing of my apartments. No particular reason occurred to me why I should investigate this lumber, and, little realizing that it might shelter lurking danger, I hung my weary head on the dirty pillow. But as I lay quietly dozing off to sleep I suddenly heard a soft little noise, which one might describe as a cross between a hum and a hiss.

As a precaution against the many venomous things that creep and crawl even in the well beaten paths of Mexico I had made a careful study of the arachnids, to which class the tarantulas belong. I recognized that soft unostentatious warning that announced a roommate as undesirable as one could well wish.

Cautiously I stretched out my hand to see if by chance there were some matches on the little stand near my bed, with the result that I knocked the unlighted candle upon the floor. That was enough for my mettlesome roommate; he had been personally insulted by the noise, and suddenly in the utter darkness, that black stillness which one feels in a strange room, I detected a sickening odor, the warning of the angry tarantula.

I strained my ears to detect the soft, characteristic click that the male, the deadliest of the species, employs as a fancy rill to his malicious song. My blood chilled as I heard his muffled hum-click, hum-click, hum—apparently not three feet away. I held my breath, incidentally my nose, and lay wondering how long it would be ere I should feel his big fuzzy feet sneaking up the side of my neck or before his soft woolly body would light upon my face. It was not at all comforting to remember that one of a tarantula's eccentricities is to find his way to a point on the ceiling directly over the object of his anger and then to drop unceremoniously upon his victim.

It was the only time in my life when I longed for the bliss of ignorance. Would to heaven I had not studied this hideous horror of the tropics! But I had. Moreover, I had seen the awful effects of his worse than fatal bite, whose work of destruction was mercilessly long drawn out.

If the bite of a male tarantula infects a large arachnid it throws the victim into a dreadful state of crazed nerves. The incipient stages of the poisoning are accompanied by accentuated melancholia, followed by a shattering of the mentality. On gradually absorbing the venom the unfortunate subject reels and raves in a mad whirl until he swoons from pure exhaustion. The tarantula, the graceful Italian dance so often described in musical literature, derives its name from this hideous poisoning.

All this and more darted through my mind as I lay there in the darkness wondering if I, too, were doomed to die like a diva. As the night wore on the buzzing grew less sedulous. I lay motionless during the thousand years till dawn, which came at last, a divinely soft, blue, shimmering shaft of light, which made things faintly visible. Cautiously I drew myself up to a sitting posture and craned my neck in a searching survey about my chamber of horrors.

There, in torture worse than mine, hung my fortunate, four of his legs plumed beneath the timbers. There he sprawled, a maimed but angry prisoner. His eight eyes winked me a militant "Good morning," and I forthwith returned the compliment with the slender shaft of my baton.—New York Sun.

The Easiest Way...
"I want the wages of a man; that's all I'm asking," said the "Votes For Women" orator.
"Then," said a man as he arose to speak, "I contend it isn't a vote that the lady wants. All she has to do is to get married."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Prefer loss before unjust gain, for that brings grief but once; this forever.—Child.

Order of Hearing on Original Probate of Will

The State of Nebraska, Wayne County—

At a County Court, held at the County Court Room, in and for said County of Wayne, on the 29th day of June, 1914.

Present, James Britton, County Judge.

In the matter of the estate of Claus Kay, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of John Kay, praying that the instrument filed on the 29th day of June, 1914, and purporting to be the last Will and Testament and Codicil of said deceased, may be proved, approved, probated, allowed and recorded as the last Will and Testament and Codicil of said Claus Kay, deceased, and that the execution of said instrument may be committed and that the administration of said estate may be granted to Rollie W. Ley as Executor.

ORDERED, That July 22, A. D., 1914, at 10 o'clock A. M., is assigned for hearing said petition, when all persons interested in said matter may appear at a County Court to be held in and for said County, and show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and that notice of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this order in the Nebraska Democrat, a weekly newspaper printed in said County, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing.

JAMES BRITTON, County Judge.

American Telephones Lead the World

If telephone rates are high and service poor, the use of the service is necessarily limited, but if the rates are reasonable and the service good, there will be liberal use of the telephone.

The European governments have had no incentive to maintain good service and reasonable rates, as have the private companies in America.

That is the reason Europe has only one telephone for every 150 persons, while in the United States there is one telephone for every ten persons.

Here are official telephone figures of the leading countries:

Winside Notes

(From the Tribune)

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Carter are preparing to leave shortly on a trip to Davenport, Iowa, and other points. The trip will be made to interview specialists in regard to Mr. Carter's neck trouble.

George King, a farm hand who has been working around here for some time, took a hasty leave about three weeks ago and with him took a mortgaged horse. Gerd Janssen, being the one upon whom the loss fell, located the horse at Humphrey, and the first of the week left for Humphrey where the secured a settlement, disposing of the horse to the proprietor of the dray line.

Dan Leuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Leuck of this place, purchased a new car last week and autoed to Winside Sunday to show his newly acquired acquisition to his parents. After removing all doubt in their minds, as to the qualifications of the car, by giving them a joy ride, he returned to his farm home near Wisner happy and satisfied that he had made a good investment. Henry Smith and Mr. Leuck accompanied him as far as Wayne.

Considerable excitement was aroused Tuesday on the depot platform when some small boy shouted, a fight! a fight! causing many of our venerable citizens to desert their respective posts and rush to the scene of battle. But to their disgust and disappointment 'twas no fight at all, but just a fellow from Wayne, who had come over for the purpose of taking on a few, but he overestimated the capacity of his youthful system with the result that he became groggy and uncertain on his feet. Collapsing suddenly he fell into the arms of our veteran marshal, T. A. Strong, who promptly gave him the best room available in the city hotel, which is located in the rear of the city hall. He was arraigned before Justice of Peace and charged with disturbing the peace and found guilty, but being unable to pay his fine, he was freed on condition that he leave town at once.

Wm. S. Jay, who was one of the pioneer newspaper men in this corner of the state, was a Wayne visitor this morning. He said that he used to hunt deer over this territory when there was nothing of human habitation from LaPorte to Dog Creek, and then some. He is one of the big Bull Moosers of the state, and if we read the signs of the times right he is out rounding up a herd of his kind in this part of the state. There is no doubt but they are here if some one will stampede them.

Guy Strickland, who has been at Honduras, in Central America, for more than a year past, is home for six weeks vacation. He is employed as a civil engineer by the United Fruit Co., of London, Boston and several other big centers. In fact it is one of the great corporations organized to handle the fruit business on a big scale. He came to New Orleans by water and thence home by train. He says that there are no manufacturers in that country, and if one is satisfied to simply exist he can live there at the minimum cost of living, for the needs are few and one can pluck the food needed from the trees. In their winter months the coldest weather is about 65 above zero.

A Seasonable Suggestion

CHASE & SANBORN'S Orange Pekoe Tea

The Best TEA for ICE TEA

BREW in the same manner as though serving hot, only make a little stronger, as the addition of ice will reduce the strength.

When cold, add a small quantity of lemon juice and allow a few thin slices of lemon to float on top.

Add sugar to suit taste. Use cake of ice large enough to keep it thoroughly chilled.

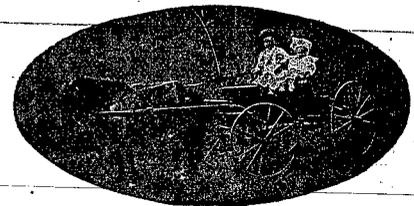

FOR LARGE QUANTITIES

use three ounces of tea for each gallon of water.

The Nebraska Democrat

VEAL CUTLETS WITH MUSHROOMS

Have a slice or two of cutlet cut thin; cut this out in even circles and press with the potato-masher till they are as large as a slice of an orange; fry these quickly; have ready chopped half a can of mushrooms or a quarter of a pound of fresh ones, and after seasoning both these and the cutlet cover the meat with them in a smooth even layer. Serve very hot, with creamed potatoes.
