HUERTA QUILTS PRESIDENCY

After Many Months of Watchful Waiting Dictator of Mexico Resigns. Francisco Carbajal Appointed to Head Nation.

Dispatches from the city of Mexico in the morning papers tell of the resignation of President Huerta and its acceptance by the senate and chamber of deputies. This body named his successor, and installed him in office until a duly elected president can be named.

Thus is the policy of President Wilson being vindicated. It now looks more like peace with honor for our sister republic than it before has. The constitutionalists have all but conquered the forces that opposed them. They have agreed among the military leaders that none of the leaders of the army shall become candidates for the presidency, which shows an unselfish disposition. Nor should they be asked to accept what in the past has been such a dangerous position, for they have already risked much for their cause and their country. Let us hope that peace will soon be restored in this strife ridden land. A triumph to the policy of peace.

Rebekah I. O. O. F. Installation

Last Friday night District Deputy Mrs. Chas. Reynolds assisted by Mesdames Gustafson, McMillan, Lundberg, Lamberson, Sherbahn, Juhlin, Ley and Misses Clark and Burson installed the officers of Winside Rebekah lodge and initiated four candidates. Delicious refreshments were served by the Winside Rebekahs and the visitors returned feeling that they had been royally entertained.

Monday night the Wayne I. O. O. F. and Rebekah lodges held joint installation. The Rebekahs installed the following officers:

P. N. G., Lulu Hiseox; N. G., Nelle Gustafson; V. G., Alice Mabbott; Sec., Ida Reynolds; Tress., Pearl Ley; R. S. N. G., Jessie Lamberson; L. S. N. G., Carrie Murrill; L. S. V. G., Mary Sherbahn; Warden, Minnie Peterson; Conductor, Ruth Sherbahn; I. G. Mae Ellis; O. G. Geo. Lamberson; Chaplain, Flora B. Abbott. The officer installed by the I. O. O. F. were: P. G., P. C. Crockett; N. G., Guy Williams; V. G., P. L. Mabbott; R. S. N. G., John Wendte; R. S. V. G., Herman Midner; Chaplain, Walter Miller; I. G., Ed Murrill; O. G., Fleetwood; Warden, N. J. Juhlin; Conductor, Wm. Broschiet.

The I. O. O. F. served light refreshments which were greatly enjoyed by all.

Library Notes

At a meeting of the Library board Tuesday evening the following officers were re-elected for the year.

Dr. Green, president; Mrs. C. A. Chace, vice president; Dr. T. B. Heckert, Secretary.

President Green appointed committees as follows: Books and Periodicals, Mrs. C. A. Chace, Dr. E. S. Blair and Mrs. H. H. Hahn; Furnishing and Supplies, Dr. T. B. Heckert, Mrs. H. Ley and Mrs. Woodward Jones; Finance, H. A. Henney, James Ahern, and Mrs. Woodward Jones.

On account of the extreme heat it was decided to only open the library on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons and Saturday evenings during July and August.

New books placed in the library: "The Marryers," Irving Bachelor.

"I William and Bill," Grace Cooke.

"The Light of the Western Stars," Zane Gray.

"Barnabette," Helen R. Martin.

"Dorothy Dales School Rivals," Margaret Penrose.

"Dorothy Dales in the City," Margaret Penrose.

"Essays every Child Should Know," Legends Every Child Should Know," Hamilton W. Mabie.

"Wild Flowers Every Child Should Know," Frederick Wm. Stack. Librarian.

A. D. Lewis, Chiropractor, Arrested

Last Saturday A. D. Lewis, a graduate chiropractor, who has been practicing that method of relieving the afflicted here for several months past, was placed under arrest upon a complaint filed with the county judge on the 10th of July signed by Mabel Cleveland, osteopath. The paper charges said Lewis with unlawfully practicing medicine, surgery, laying on of hands, etc., without a certificate or permit from the state to do so. A hearing was set for Monday, but for the convenience of attorneys in the case, it was postponed to some date not yet fixed. W. L. Cunningham, Fred Utecht, A. H. Carter and Grant Mears are the persons named in the complaint as victims of this alleged illegal practice. L. A. Kiplinger, assisted by A. R. Davis and H. E. Simons are reported as prosecuting attorneys, and F. S. Berry is for the defense, and he it is said, is to be aided by an attorney to be provided by the association or school of chiropractors, who are said to be organized to fight such cases. Lewis is out and continuing his regular work, his bond being fixed at $200 for appearance.

In Iowa, forty years ago, perhaps, the "regular" physicians and the homeopaths were at war, one wanting recognition, the other opposing it, to save the people from being humbugged or killed except by one duly and legally recognized by law. The "little pills" won in time. Twenty-five years later the osteopaths had to make the same fight against the combined forces of the two schools of medicine. Now the Chiro. are up against the same fight. If they have merit in their work they will win, and one wonders if they will then join forces with the others to fight the recognition of the next change in the method of attempt to relieve mankind of the ills we endure. Law is good, but does not always keep pace with the times. Too many laws are made to protect some special classes rather than the masses. The public will watch with interest the development of this case.

The County Unit

Wm. Ritchie, Jr., was a Wayne visitor Wednesday on private business. He is a member of the commission named to investigate school systems in other states, and informs us that he has a bill framed to submit to the coming legislature embodying the county unit plan as the commission—or at least a part of the members—will recommend. The proposed bill would not in any manner effect the schools of such places as Wayne, and with some of the smaller towns the acceptance of the plan would be largely optional. It also provides for county option as to whether the old plan will be retained or the new one adopted. In fact, it appears to simply provide a method for the counties where a majority desire to change to do so, and provide for the proper regulation in the new method. We are glad the question is up, for good or bad it will cause a discussion and a new interest in our rural schools, and from that we will accept the best.

Democratic County Convention

Is called to meet at the court house Saturday afternoon of this week, the 18th, and the attendance should be large and representative. We have a democratic administration to uphold, both state and national, and it is not necessary to make any apologies for either. But it is the duty of every voter who believes in the principles of democracy to attend a convention of his party in the county and commend the good work of those to whom he has given a responsible position if it is pleasing, as it most certainly is right now, not only to democrats, but to citizens generally, and the Democrat would feel like extending this invitation to all to join with those who believe that we are nearer now to a government of, by and for the people than we have been since republican party was young and in the hands of men inspired by lofty motives. Come to the convention Saturday.

Hale-Isom

Thursday, July 9, at the court house by Judge Britton, Mr. Percy G. Hale and Miss Clara Isom, both of Allen were wed.

Preparing For State Tournament

A special meeting of the Wayne tennis club was held Tuesday evening at which definite plans were made for taking care of the state meeting. From all indications this tournament will be much larger in point of attendance than any tennis tournament ever held under state auspices. Letters from tennis players over the state have been coming in to the secretary's office until he can figure out 82 entries without counting any of the home entries. This means that the Wayne tennis club and Wayne people generally will be called upon to do their best in the way of entertainment to take care of the crowd. In addition to the players it is most probable that there will be a hundred or more spectators here each day to see some of the stars in action.

Among the big tennis stars of the state that will be here is Harry A. Koch of Omaha, Omaha City champion and state champion in 1912 and 1913. Harry Ellis and C. A. Davis of Beaver City, state doubles champions last year will be here to defend their titles. Tony Edmundson of Friend and Chas. Patterson of Arapahoe will be here to play. Patterson also will act as official referee of the tournament. Pasewalk and Durland of Norfolk will be here. Plattsmouth is sending Geo. Falter, Rev. F. M. Druiner, Harris Cook and Ray Larson. Druiner is the old northeastern Nebraska player. Coach Stiehm, the Nebraska University football coach has promised to be here. He is said to be almost as good at tennis as he is at making football teams. Being 6 feet 4 inches in height he is able to cover lots of territory. More than a dozen have promised to be here from Omaha including Spike Kennedy, the comedian of the Omaha court who plays a very fast game, John Madden, Buz Colpetze, Sam Burns, Dick Stewart, Larmon the 19 year old star who pushed Koch to a five-set match in the Omaha tournament, Cup Potter, Geo. Riley and Robt. Howe.

Definite plans are under way to finance the tournament and it is up to Wayne to get all the advertising possible out of this meeting by showing the visitors a good time during their five day stay with us.

Wayne is now getting lots of publicity out of this tournament and will get more during the tournament. Mr. Ross H. Chamberlen, Amateur Sports editor of the Omaha World-Herald, has written that he will be in Wayne the entire week during the tournament to report the same for his paper and the associated press. This will mean much to Wayne as a town from the advertising standpoint.

More Candidates

County Judge James Britton has filed by a non-partisan petition for the office of county judge. This is a place he has held for several terms and the satisfaction of his decisions are such that he is retained without opposition, and it does not appear that he will have any candidate to race with him this time.

George Porter, the present sheriff has his hat in the ring for the republican nomination as sheriff. Last time he had eight others in the republican primary race for the nomination, which he was so fortunate as to get. Now he is alone so far as we have learned. His party friends appear to be willing to stand back and let him have the field to himself. At this writing no democrat has filed against him.

Democratic County Convention

The democrats of Wayne county are called to meet in mass convention at the court house at 2:30 Saturday afternoon, July 18, 1914, to select eight delegates to attend the democratic state convention at Columbus, July 28, elect precinct committeemen for each precinct and transact all other business properly coming before the convention. See that your precinct is represented.

State Normal Notes

Miss Lois F. Corzine has recently been elected in the primary grade at Carroll. The primary department at Carroll will be in good hands next year.

President Conn returned Friday from the meeting of the N. E. A. at St. Paul. He reports a good program, but the enrollment for the session was not so large as it has been in previous years.

Superintendent E. S. Cowan selected Neva J. Orr for the intermediate department of the schools a Albion, and she has been notified of her election by the board. Miss Orr proved a very successful teacher in the training school during the past year and she will please the people of Albion.

The copy for the annual catalogue of the school is now in the hand of the printer and the bulletin will be ready for mailing about August 1. It will consist of about seventy-five pages, contain a description of the courses offered by the various departments, and give complete announcements for the year 1914-1915.

The third number on the entertainment course which is to be given by the Atpress-Misner Concert Company, promises to be one of the most enjoyable events of the summer session. Professor Allpress is a violinist of unusual ability. Mrs. Allpress, pianist and leader, and Miss Misner is highly recommended as a soprano soloist. The date is Thursday, July 16.

Dr. A. C. Monahan's visit at the normal and the addresses delivered before the school proved of great helpfulness to the teachers in attendance at the summer session. It was a great privilege to hear the question of the consolidation of districts and the county unit of administration discussed by one who has made a special study of rural school problems.

The large number present at the rural school conference conducted by Dr. Monahan last Saturday afternoon is an evidence of the interest of the school district officers of Wayne county in school affairs. It also showed the loyalty of boards of education to Superintendent Elsie Littell, at whose request the men assembled for the discussion of educational problems.

The lecture course committee was fortunate in securing Adrian M. Newens for the evening of July 21. Mr. Newens is acknowledged to be one of the best, if not the best, reader on the American platform today. The writer heard him in the "Singular Life" ten years ago, and he joins the lecture course committee in the request to Mr. Newens that he repeat here next Tuesday evening the reading of that great novel by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, in which he has delighted audiences in every part of the country.

The Cedar county delegation in the summer session, thirty-seven in all, were given the chapel period Wednesday morning for special program. Mr. Vernor F. Wilson, of Hartington, acted as chairman and proved a most excellent presiding officer. The program was arranged by Miss Frances Kelley of Hartington and was remarkable for its originality. The program opened with the singing of the Cedar county song. Then followed a reading by Mr. Hering; vocal solo, Mrs. Berg; reading, Miss Ropte; vocal solo, Ardath Conn; reading Miss Kelley. The closing number was unique. It was a pantomime in several scenes. It opened with a representation of the graduating exercises in a public school, in which a young lady received her diploma. Following this, the Wayne Normal, represented by a young lady in appropriate costume, held forth the advantages of coming to Wayne. The offer was refused. In the next scene his sweet girl graduate was a teacher of a rural school, beset with the trials and tribulations of incorrigible youngsters, disgruntled officers and irate parents. Again, came the temptation to her to come to the Normal, which this time was accepted. Her registration in the state normal school follows, the scene shifting to the close of the year, when on commencement day she receives from President Conn a diploma from the normal. Once more she is employed as a teacher in the public schools where now she is in complete mastery of the situation. Pupils and school conditions are ideal. The last day comes and the board of education and fond parents express unmistakably, in pantomime, their endorsement of her work. It was one of the best programs ever given by a county organization, and the Cedar county delegation is to be congratulated upon the success of its effort.

In District Court

A number of cases have been filed with County Clerk Hughes the past few days for the coming term of the district court.

Wm. Koepke, administrator of estate of Fr. tz Botel, for permission to sell real estate.

Alice Geary, through her attorney, T. P. Cleary of Sioux City, files a petition asking of Wm. J. Geary the sum of $64,000 for the support and education of children and as alimony. Mr. and Mrs. Geary were divorced several years ago, as we understand.

Ella Bodenstedt asks divorce from Herman Bodenstedt on grounds of nonsupport and other causes.

On Monday at sheriff sale the Norfolk building and loan association acquired title to a residence property at Carroll from Thomas C. Shafer, et al, for the sum of $400.

Tuesday W. B. Vail purchased in the same manner two properties in south part of Wayne, bidding $480.72 for the George Henderson property, and $1040.42 for the I. D. Henderson residence adjoining.

Hea-Hasse

At the German Lutheran parsonage in this city, Friday noon, July 11th, 1914, there was a quiet wedding at which the pastor, Rev. Rudolph Moehring, officiated, uniting in the lives of Mr. Giles Marshall Hea and Miss Caroline Harriett Hasse for life. The bride and groom are both residents of Freeport, Illinois, and came here to attend the family reunion at the Kiplinger home in this city, and here consummated a life union. The groom is millwright, the bride a milliner, and their marriage, we are told, is to be a surprise to their Illinois friends. The ceremony was witnessed only by the immediate relatives of the bride and groom who were here, L. A. and Mrs. Agnes Kiplinger and Mrs. Catherine Hea, mother of the groom.

Cartwright-James

At Winside, Tuesday, July 14, 1914, Rev. McConnell, pastor of the Methodist church of that place united in marriage Mr. Lester Floyd Cartwright and Miss Dora Bernice James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James of this place.

The bride and groom went to Norfolk on the evening train and after a short wedding trip will be at home at Wybach, where the groom is in business. Miss James has many Wayne friends who wish her well.

Last Thursday evening Miss Nellie Gustafson entertained her and a party of her young lady friends at a kitchen shower, and again on Monday evening a miscellaneous shower was given in her honor by Miss Geneva Dorsett. Many valuable and useful presents came with the good cheer and good wishes at these showers.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Slater Dead

Mrs. Main received a message telling of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Slater, one of the early settlers of Wayne, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. D. Many in Chicago, Tuesday. The body is to be brought here for burial, and is expected this evening. The funeral will be from the Methodist church Friday morning at 10:30, and Rev. H. H. Malord, of Norfolk, one of her old pastors will preach the sermon. Mr. Slater died here in July, 1888, and the wife's body will be buried beside of his in the cemetery which he was among the most active in establishing.

Masons and Stars Hold Picnic

Wednesday afternoon the members of the Wayne Masonic lodge and the Order Eastern Star held a picnic at the Bressler grove just north of town. They went out during the afternoon and spent the hours before supper in base ball, quoits, and other athletic sports thus working up an appetite which made the tempting viands provided by the ladies for the supper doubly tempting. More than 200 were in attendance and it was an event which will not soon be forgotten.

Sholes Board Grant License

There has been a bitter fight on at Sholes over the saloon question, and after thrashing it all out and trying many tricks the village board did what they had tried to do, and had their mind made to grant a license for a saloon. From their decision an appeal is being made to the district court, so the end is not yet.

In our report of the soldier reunion last week our reporter was in error in telling that the drill of the awkward squad was by A. J. Ferguson. It was Capt. A. J. Hyatt who was in command during the drill.

Some hot weather since last issue. Norfolk reported 101; Sioux City 100 and Lincoln about the same. We did not get official report from Wayne, but everybody is aware that no place holds anything over Wayne. It is the peer of any place within 150 miles.

Mrs. Amos Beckenhauer went to Sioux City Monday to spend the day with her sister, Miss Eugenie Palmer, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at that place last week. The young lady was quite seriously ill for a time, but is now on the way to recovery.

W. F. Auken and family left Friday to visit relatives at Rushville and Chadron, in the western part of the state, and Mr. A. is planning to go on to VanTassel, Wyoming and visit Wayne friends in that country. He is well acquainted with the surrounding country near VanTassel, as he formerly herded cattle in that country.

Henry Hollman was over from West Point last week to look after some matters at his farm northeast of this place, and visit a few of his many friends here. He reports that in appearance we have a little the best of the farmers in his county in the matter of crop prospects. They were blessed with too much moisture for a few weeks for the very best results. It came in too much of a hurry, and some of it was mixed with hail.

L. J. Courtright went to Sioux City Tuesday morning to look after the needs of Chas. VanNorman and family. Mrs. VanNorman is his daughter, and when they were called there by her sickness the last of the week they learned when they reached the place that they were quarantined for diphtheria and they could not enter. Report came that they are getting along well, and that Mrs. VanNorman is the only one who has the disease. The father wanted to be near and see that all was done that might be needed.

The state secretary of horticulture ask us to tell you that it is time to again spray your apple orchard. He is supposed to know. This is not much of a fruit country in this part of Nebraska, but it could be made to rank better if those having orchard would give it better care. In fact the law should compel it, for the neglect of trees on one place furnishes infection for other trees. In many of the states the orchard that is not properly cared for is condemned, cut and burned. They will no more permit a tree to breed insects and fungous to destroy other trees than they will allow small pox patients freedom of their place. If you have trees it will pay you to write to the state department for instructions as to their proper care.

This week, R. R. Smith, one of the well-known farmers living midway between Wayne and Carroll casts his hat into the ring for a place on the legislative ticket. Mr. Smith promises to let the voters know where he is to be found on questions of public policy in a later issue of the Democrat, and assures us that he will vote as he thinks will best serve the people who support him, and he will be willing at any time to let his position be known. It begins to look a little more like a primary campaign in this county than it has for the past month. There are vital questions at issue this year, especially for the legislature, and the Democrat wants to see a campaign of education which will enable the voters to select the candidate whose position on the issues is known and endorsed, and then expect him to work for their enactment into law at Lincoln.

Live School Questions Discussed

Two meetings were held at the normal chapel last week which were of great importance. Dr. A. C. Monahan of Washington, one of the government men who are employed in the interest of the general introduction of more effective school methods was engaged to speak on the subject at the various state normal schools in the state, and while here he was detained by those interested and the county superintendent, Mrs. Littell to speak to the officers and patrons of the schools of the county Saturday afternoon.

The meetings were deemed timely in view of the fact that the last legislature appointed a committee to study the school systems of other states and report the result of their study and recommend such change as to them appeared beneficial. This committee, it is known, will report in favor of a plan to change the present district organization to a county organization. That is, to make the county the school unit rather than the single school district. This is a question with at least two sides and it is well that it is thus brought to public attention now so that it may be discussed during the legislative campaign with other questions.

At the Friday evening meeting, which was more particularly addressed to the teachers attending the normal school, Dr. Monahan spoke mostly on the question of consolidation. He showed figures compiled by the government from consolidated schools in other states. These figures showed that it was a matter of economy in the way of expense in most every case, and that it was also giving better results in actual work accomplished.

He showed that wherever consolidated schools had been established there had been no move to again separate the districts into its original parts—that the expense was seldom any more, and that the pupils in the country schools were thus enabled to remain at home until they completed the high school course. Also that in many instances they had added to the regular course of study manual training, agriculture and domestic science, giving the pupils all of these advantages at home without extra cost to speak of—and frequently without extra cost. Some few consolidated schools have been in operation for thirty years or more, but the greater part of the number are of comparatively recent organizations.

Teachers and pupils can and will do better work where there are more than one teacher and the few pupils who usually attend a country school in the average district.

The meeting Saturday afternoon was attended by many of the school directors of the county and others who were not officers, but have a true interest in the schools of the county. Dr. Monahan was the speaker and was introduced by President Conn, who presided at the meeting. The speaker went over the question of school organizations quite carefully. He showed that the most of the schools of the different states come under either the district organization, such as we have in this state, the township organization, which prevails in many states and the county organization which is now so rapidly growing in favor. Of all of the states east of the Mississippi, said the speaker, but two have the district organizations, New York and Illinois. Nearly all of them at one time had this district plan. Missouri, for years on this plan has just changed. Iowa changed last year, and the new law is not yet fully in operation.

Some of the advantages of the county organization, as told by the speaker, were the equalization of the tax levy so that each district would share alike in the matter. Suppose a railroad runs through three districts in a county and misses the others—the three are rich in money to buy with, the others must get along on little. The county unite would divide such tax fund and also insure a uniform levy for the county, outside of the independent districts, which it is not planned to take the scheme should Nebraska organize as have most the other states.

There are numerous plans for county and township organizations, and which Nebraska will think best if the change should be made is hard to determine. In some states the governor appoints the county superintendent—but the most popular plan appears for a board of one from each precinct elected by the people to select their superintendent. In doing this, they frequently hire one not a resident of the county, and aim to secure a man especially qualified for the work. This is something that does not always happen when the people elect—although the result is better in recent years than in an earlier day.

At the close of Mr. Monahan's talk opportunity was given for questions, and they came thick and fast. Those requiring statistics to answer, the speaker referred to the department at Washington, as he did not have the figures at hand or in his head so that he could give them as sure authority.

There will be much opposition to the proposed change unless it is shown more fully than is now known what the proposed change would mean to the tax-payer and the pupil. There were those there who feel that it is a move to centralize the schools of the state under one head, and that far from the people—and this they oppose. They feel that it would be a mistake.

Some feel that the inauguration of such a plan would be used to establish educational qualifications so high that a common tax-payer could not hope to have a voice as an official in the affairs of school.

To the editors there appears to be much gained in the way of school efficiency in the next decade by adopting some manner of change from the single district unit—the most important of which would be the establishment of more consolidated schools. There are many places where the consolidated school is needed and wanted, but under the present plan of work there is small prospect that it can be accomplished. Where it is not desired the single district could be maintained. If tried and found good all would want it.

Superintendent Teed of Dixon county was present and was asked to make a talk. He told of many disadvantages of the present system as well as giving it credit for much of the good work it has done.

Our school system has done a wonderful work, and too much can not be said in its praise, but if it can be improved let us find out how and do it.

But it is safe to consider the ground well before you jump, and then when you are sure you are right, go ahead.

Something Personal About Dairying

Because the editor of this paper believes that this county is a natural home of cattle, and that it is most admirably adapted to dairying—and more than that, he believes that dairying is one of the greatest sources of agricultural wealth to such a community. Brought up in the great dairy belt of Iowa, and by parents who came from a dairy district in the state of New York it is a branch of work with which I have become quite familiar. In northeastern Iowa, when they had exhausted the soil for wheat production, which happened about the same time that the demoralization of silver knocked the bottom out of the price on all manner of farm produce, there were enough people there who knew what the cow would do for a farmer and a farm-to-blaze the way for a great dairy industry.

The first start was a cheesefactory—for the creamery was then unknown—and in that day the refrigerator car was not dreamed of and the railroad not yet built in Clayton county, so the transportation of butter during the summer season, which was the only season in those days when they pretended to make butter or cheese either, was not an easy proposition. A farmer, versed in cheese-making started the enterprise, and a year or two later, two brothers, expert cheese men, and men with lots of hustle, bought the plant and gave a new stimulus to the enterprise. They induced the farmers to keep more cows and in a year were getting milk from about 150 cows, and Strawberry Point began to get on the map. Then came the creamery, and when in 1876 the award of the first prize for the best butter made in the world came to a little country creamery three miles from this town the dairymen of New York, who did not know that butter fit to eat could be made outside of Orange county, began to take notice. The free advertising which came to that section of Iowa as a result of this unexpected (by the eastern dairymen) award was the making of the dairy business there.

Creameries sprang up at every cross-roads, so to speak, and the farmers bought and raised cows, but with much indifference as to the quality if it was cow. Too many small creameries did not prove profitable, and it was found to be better to haul the milk more miles and have less creameries, and so they began to thin out, and in a few years more than half of them were eliminated. Then a little later there were not to exceed two to a township—one of those in the home town was sort of company, or partially co-operative concern, with some preferred stockholders getting most of the cream profits while the milk producers got the skim milk back for their hogs and most of the exercise incidental to caring for the cows, milking and getting the milk to the creamery. Soon after this it became truly co-operative and has developed into the largest whole-milk creamery or butter factory in the world. It now cares for the milk from the average of 3,000 cows, and more than 600 people are employed daily night and morning to milk these cows. There are 320 farms from which milk is furnished for this creamery. On some of these farms as many as 40 cows are kept. Last year the average paid for milk was almost $13,000 per month. This was really paid for cream, for the skim milk was hauled back to the farm for calves and pigs.

With all of their experience there in the dairy work they are now just beginning to test their cows individually for butterfat and know which are the cows to keep and raise the heifer calves from. They have been making good money without this knowledge and were so well satisfied that it had not occurred to many of them to think that they could do better. But the last issue of the home paper gave some of the results of the tests of milk between patrons—for all milk received at the creamery there is tested and paid for according to its worth. The average test for the year was 3.53, which means that for each pound of butter 3 gallons and 1 pint of milk was required. The highest test was 5.13 which was just a gallon less of milk to the pound of butter. The lowest test was but a trifle over 2. Between two patrons one month record was taken. One brought 1,000 pounds more milk than the other. But his pay check was considerable less than the man with less milk. This demonstrates the value of good cows and proper feeding.

Before the days of tests some of the patrons stopped at the pump with their milk cans, and it was first detected by a crude test applied several years ago, but nothing real conclusive, so spies were set to watch suspected places and evidence secured. One man thus caught did not want to go the penitentiary for that was the penalty, so he began to act queer, and his friends thought him insane, and he was so adjudged and sent to the asylum, here he remained six or eight months and was discharged cured. At any rate he was cured of watering his milk. Another man high in church circles, as was the first one was, was detected by the test to be furnishing thin milk, and because he had a family of young children and an invalid wife who was a real Christian he was given opportunity to make a money settlement quietly and continued to be a patron of the creamery—but he doubtless paid more than he had been paid for water. But under the present system of testing every man's milk the man who pays for hauling water is fooling his money away, for they now have a system of hauling milk to the factory by contract, each man paying the same price per 100 pounds whether far or near to the creamery. Each of the twenty-five or thirty haulers has his route to cover daily, rain or shine—good roads or bad.

It is nearly 50 years since the first dairy venture started in northeastern Iowa, and they have been a long time getting to their present happy and prosperous state, but they have the satisfaction of knowing that it has paid its way every year and a little more. To start here now to give more attention to dairying would be far ahead of where they started then. There are many things now at hand not then known. The first creameries of that country set the milk in great vats and skimmed it—then a little later in the deep pails with a glass in the side to show how deep the cream was. Now the separator gets all of the cream and does it quickly. Markets are better and transportation far in advance of those days.

When a person looks back and sees the wrecks of co-operative concerns of like nature in the past forty years, he wonders that the demoralization of Strawberry Point has survived, missing the rocks of jealousy and selfishness which have ever been used by organized graft to defeat any organization that had for its object the retaining for the producer the largest part possible of what he made, and there is but one answer that tells the cause of their success—they stuck to it. The central fellows tried to get in the field—but the local organization stood fast. The separator people tried to sell machines to members of the association but they stuck to the whole milk creamery. At times inducements were offered that looked for the time better than the home organization, but they had the good sense to stick together, and in doing so have been great winners. Their butter commands a price from 3 to 5 cents above the daily market quotations, and is a ready seller, and the producer absolutely gets every cent that the consumer pays except a small commission and the railroad freight. I cannot see in the light of the experience of the co-operative creamery at my old home, how the member of a truly co-operative enterprise any where would for an instant waver in his loyalty to his own enterprise, for to do is to put feed into the mouth of the combines that are exacting more than their share of the fruits of labor without due compensation.

I have not written this rambling review of forty years of the dairy growth at my old home just to hear my head rattle or tell what I know, for it is little enough that it would take to tell that, but if it shall help to create a sentiment that will tend to the betterment of conditions here and start more of our farmers to investigate the benefits that will come from intelligent dairying its mission will be fulfilled.

Bixby in his Daily Drift in the State Journal makes up the following lines which contain at least as much truth as poetry, for there is no place where an even temper and sweet disposition are as valuable when as working about the cows of a dairy, and it will pay the farmers who have cows to remember that fact:

And so the hired man somehow
Must heed this wise beehof,
"Speak gently to the erring cow
That kicks you through the roof.
Unless your touch be soft as silk,
Unless you check the snort,
The cow that gave a pail of milk
Will miss out by a quart."
Speak gently when you go to pail
The dear old brindle pet,
And when she swats you with her tail,
Forgive her, and forget.
By being kind you gain a toll
Of splendid butter-fat
And, having perfect self-control,
Great profit comes from that.

Comments On Souvenir Edition

Below we publish a few of the many favorable press and personal comments made of the Wayne Booster edition sent out two weeks ago, that home folks may know of its reception abroad:

The two Wayne papers, the Herald and Democrat, got together in a brotherly sort of way and last week issued a very creditable souvenir of Wayne and Wayne county. The edition was put out in magazine form and consisted of sixty-four pages of cleverly gotten up matter pertaining to the city and county. It is printed upon good book paper and contains many excellent illustrations of buildings and scenes throughout the county. The man who handled the portrait end of the business must have been a hustler for the face of nearly every man—business, professional and political—of prominence in the county appears upon the pages of the souvenir edition. Of the many booster editions that have come to the Journal-Leader exchange table the Herald-Democrat number is the best. It is a boost for Wayne and Wayne county and the publishers show a commendable spirit of co-operation on this matter that could be copied with profit by the merchants of Wayne; not mentioning the newspapers of the neighboring towns. —Ponca Journal-Leader.

This week the booster edition, published by the both Wayne papers, the Herald, edited by E. W. Huse, and Democrat, edited by Gardner & Wade, will reach thousand of readers in this county, in this state and in other states. The resources of Wayne county will be heralded abroad. This is the first step ever undertaken in this line, and it is a big one. The editors of both papers deserve great praise for undertaking such a task and the many people about the county, who co-operated in the production, should not be overlooked. It will prove very interesting to Winside people and former residents as many business houses and homes are pictured and described besides a number of farmers, who are engaged in handling and breeding high grade stock. Mr. Gant, the manager, has worked hard in making the edition a credit, it would be putting it mildly if we would say it is the best we have ever seen. —Winside Tribune.

"A souvenir edition for Wayne county" was issued jointly last week by the Wayne, Neb., Herald and Democrat. It is in the form of a book, the pages of which are about half the size of the ordinary newspaper pages. The contents were compiled for the publishers by A. C. Gant, and there is abundant evidence that he did his work well and capably. The edition would be creditable to a town much larger than Wayne, and is a revelation of the facilities of the Wayne newspaper offices for doing fine printing. The matter is well arranged, the illustrations profuse and handsome, and the press work excellent. The resources of the county at large, as well of the city of Wayne, are exploited, and altogether the edition is splendid advertising material for the Wayne newspapers and for the community in which they live. —Sioux City Journal.

The Wayne County Booster paper issued by the Wayne Democrat and Herald and edited by Aylett C. Gant, formerly of The Press, is perhaps the finest of the many illustrated papers issued under the plan of the year as outlined by the Nebraska Press association. There are sixty pages of well written stories calculated to spread the gospel of Wayne county opportunities. The mechanical work is excellent and the illustrations almost perfect. That Mr. Gant did it is enough to convince Norfolks it was done right. It looks like a financial success but its gotten up at a considerable expense and the chances are the publishers will make no fortune out of it. It is, however, a credit to Wayne, Wayne county, Nebraska and the men who are responsible for it. —Norfolk Press.

Mrs. E. E. Funston, St Lawrence, S. D., says on a postal: "We were much pleased with the Souvenir Edition, but fail to find how much you ask for them. We may want to send some away, if you will let us know how you sell them." The omission of the price was an oversight which we have endeavored to correct in later issue of the Democrat. Single copies 25c; 3 for 50c; 8 for one dollar. If those who wish them mailed from office to different people furnish addresses and postage it will be done.

F. E. Moses of Pasadena, California, in writing adds to his letter the following: "The Souvenir Edition is at hand and you certainly deserve great credit for the artistic work put upon it. Please except my thanks for the same." Dr. G. T. Rumbaugh, a friend at Villisca, Iowa writes: "Received your paper and Souvenir Supplement this morning. Thank you for them—they are both something to be proud of. The paper read like the old time Letter."

Farmer and Business Man

The Fremont commercial club about five months ago organized a farmer's section. Under the auspices of the club and its farmers' section, a meeting was held for the farmers Saturday, June 27. The particular subject discussed at this meeting was hog cholera. Dr. C. M. Day, field veterinarian, and Dr. J. H. Gain, chief of the veterinary department of the Nebraska Agricultural College were present. Dr. Day spoke on sanitation and general hog cholera work in Nebraska—what to do and how to do it to prevent the disease getting a foothold in a herd. He also explained the use of serum and virus, when and how these remedies should be used.

Dr. Gain told how serum and virus were manufactured and what might be expected from the proper use of these remedies. After the meeting in the hall Dr. Day gave a practical demonstration of the use of the syringe in injecting serum and virus and held a post-mortem on a pig that had been given virus some days before. He showed how to tell hog cholera by an examination of the internal organs, explaining how and where they were affected with the disease. One thing was evident—the farmers were interested. A more busy time for farmers could hardly have been selected. The late heavy rains made their presence in the corn fields necessary in many instances. There were present, however, a hundred farmers, who paid close attention to what was said. This is the first hog cholera meeting to be promoted by any commercial club in Nebraska.

Fourteen states were represented last week in the annual meeting of the Missouri Valley Veterinarians meeting, and nothing of special interest was done, says the report of the Omaha publicity committee. If that be true the doctors had better stayed at home. They might have vaccinated a pig or cured a case of colic if they had stayed on their job.

The National Educational association at their annual meeting declared in favor of equal suffrage and equal pay for like work—not only as to teaching, but all along the line.

The Carroll, Iowa, Herald says that the democratic party without the support of the liquor interests could not carry a single county in Iowa. We believe that the democratic party of Iowa would have been stronger at any election in the past ten years without the support of the liquor interest. The fact that the liquor interests claimed to affiliate with the party kept a lot of men who believe in the tariff doctrine of the party from voting with it.

The Cuming County Democrat speaks in an appreciative manner of the friendly spirit in which the West Point boosters were received on their recent trip. Sure they were, and it was a good advertising stunt—and one that should pay them well—but we would be willing to bet that one could take half of the money the trip cost and use it in newspaper advertising and bring a crowd down on West Point such as they never saw before. That trip expense must have been above the $1,000 mark, and they had a lot of fun. But if the same people would put the same cost into printer's ink they would see double the results.

There is some agitation going on among the tax payers of the state about the many commissions in activity in the enforcement of the state administration. It should be remembered that nearly of all the various commissions had their origin under a former republican administration and it must be said to the credit of Governor Morehead that he was the first to take the initiative to unite two of the largest of them into one as a means of curtailing expenses as well as increasing efficiency. We refer to the oil inspection department which was merged with the food commission, much to the benefit of the taxpayer and the service. Our oil is no longer inspected at Sioux City from the shady balcony of a hotel, for the man now has work enough to keep him on the job and is not tempted to fail to do his duty, because that kind of an official can no longer draw his pay. Under the present administration and the combined commission both the department of oil and food are receiving better attention than ever before, and a comparison of the present administration with that of other years is much to the credit of the officials we are now under.

Nebraska is destined to be a great manufacturing state as soon as the energies of the state are set to work developing her natural resources. We have no low priced fuel—we have no lumber, iron or zinc or other metals. But we have a soil which when properly cultivated produces great crops of grain, hay and roots. These products may be profitably made into beef, pork, butter, cheese, eggs and poultry. We could also produce much product for a canning factory. Condensed milk could be put on the market from Nebraska if some community could assemble enough cows within a small territory to make work for a plant large enough for profitable occupation. We now ship much of our condensed milk from the Pacific coast country. We ship grain and hay out in bulk when it could be sent out as beef, pork, butter or cheese at a far less freight cost and greater profit. It takes labor to do these things, why not do the work here instead of sending the raw material away and paying freight, commission and two or three profits to some one to get it back?

 Warm weather and warm hearts, better than cold weather and cold hearts.
 A cool church? Yes, Fans? Yes, we have them, too. Room? Yes and it will be kept for you. Coats? Very few.
 The pastor is glad to keep hearing so many encouraging things about the children's sermons. Won't you give your boy or girl a chance to hear the sermon Sunday by sending, or better, by bringing him or her to church?
 We had forty present at the young peoples' service Sunday evening, and a meeting of intense interest. Miss Ruth Knutson leads next Sunday evening. The orchestra plays. "Faithful in Little Things", is the subject. Be faithful in attendance.
 "The Story of a Bad Boy", will be the sermon for the children Sunday morning.
 "Christ's Work for Humanity" will be the subject of the regular sermon. It will be a somewhat new treatment of an old text, Jno. 3:16.
 The warm weather seems to have had a good effect upon the mid-week prayer meeting. Our attendance is good, and the spirit of the meetings were never better. Spend an hour with us next Wednesday evening.
 Our northeastern association meets at Tilden August 28-30. The chautauqua closes the day before. School begins the week after, in most places. We ought to have about twelve delegates. The Tilden people need the inspiration of a large attendance.

 The Sunday school leaders have planned a picnic next Thursday afternoon. A committee on arrangements has been appointed. They will likely ask you to help. Do your utmost to aid in this affair for the children. Remember one day you were a child, and nothing meant more to you than an outing. We shall need things to eat—picnics create large appetites. We shall need things to ride in, we shall need older people to help the children have a good time. We need the hearty, active help of every one. The age limit for this outing is three weeks to ninety one years. If younger or older, we cannot take you, but if within this limit, you are invited.

 Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The subject of the lesson will be, "Blind Bartimaeus" Mark 10:46-52.
 Regular divine worship every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The subject of the sermon will be "Zacchaeus, the Son of Consolation," Luke 19:1-5. Possibly you have been with a party of people who were going to explore some deep cavern—the Mammoth cave, or the Catacombs of Rome. If so, you know how the party stood out in the sunlight, and the attendant who knew the journey to be made, passed among the party and put into the hand of each a lighted candle. How useless it seemed: how pale and colorless the little flame appeared in the gorgeous flood of sunlight. But as the procession moved along; one after another entered the dark cavern's mouth; one after another lost the splendor of daylight, in the hands of each the feeble candle light came out brighter in the darkness and by and by the whole party was walking in the dark, holding fast their candles as if they were their very life, totally dependent now on what seemed so useless only a short time before. How true is this scene to every day life, for amid our enjoyments there comes dark days, trials and temptations, causing people to grow dispondent. But is there no consolation in life? Look to the little man of Jericho, Zacchaeus and there we see a son of consolation.
 There will be union services in the evening at 7 o'clock.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL
 Miss Nellie Soules went to West Point Tuesday to visit relatives.
 Mrs. Corzine and daughter Lois went to Carroll Tuesday for a short visit.
 M. E. Blair was here Tuesday and Wednesday the guest of his brother, F. H. Blair.
 Chas. Mulloy of Fremont was here the first of the week visiting his brother, John Mulloy.
 Mrs. Mary Murphy came from Wakefield Tuesday evening to visit at the home of her son, Chas. Murphy.
 Mrs. Wm. Gillispie came Friday evening from Omaha to visit at the home of her brother, Chas. Murphy and wife.
 All summer dress goods are priced at extra bargain prices in Orr & Morris Co's., clearance sale this week.—adv.
 Frank Stewart, who has been one of the railway bridge men living at his place, has moved to Norfolk to enter another line of business.
 Mrs. Claus Rock from Chalco returned home Wednesday morning, following a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claus Beck, to whom she is a sister-in-law.
 You can afford to buy embroideries, for your next season's use, at the prices Orr & Morris Co., are offering them for in their clearance sale this week and next.—adv.
 "Home Made" and "Holsum" bread from The New England Bakery, Sioux City, are equal to the best home made. Beaman sells more every week.
 Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Berry went to Jackson Tuesday to be present at the marriage of Miss Barry of that place to Dr. Frank Hughes Lally of Dennison, Iowa, Wednesday morning. The bride is a niece of Mrs. Berry.
 Mrs. H. C. Ruan went to Blair Tuesday to visit home folks and to send to Wayne some of the things needed in starting to house-keeping, for they have secured a part of the house occupied by G. A. Wade. Mr. R. is machanic at the Puffett & Renneker garage.
 W. C. Martin started Tuesday for the west, with a ticket in his pocket that would carry him to Vancouver, British Columbia. We are not anxious to have Mr. Martin leave Wayne, and perhaps when he has made the rounds and investigated conditions this will still look to him like the best place.
 If someone wants to purchase a good farm close to this city, where they have all the very best of school advantages, church privileges, in fact the conveniences of the place at his door, we can tell him about it and the owner. The place contains 160 acres, has fairly good improvements, is a desirable place and will be priced right on reasonable terms. The present owner has good reasons for offering it for sale.
 Sam'l Houghton reached home Tuesday evening from a visit with friends in the east. He had been as far as the state of New York, and stopped in Illinois on his return. He made a daylight trip through Iowa, and says that he never before saw such crop prospects in that state. The same condition prevailed in Illinois, and New York was not much behind. There is every prospect of the greatest crop harvested in this country now in the making.
 The traveling man who is something of a ventriloquist was along here Tuesday having his sport with the "rubbers" of the place. He carried on a conversation with his double voice, asking and answering questions of an imaginary tramp on the trucks of the passenger coach. He learned that the fellow got on at Sioux City and was going to Norfolk if he was not put off at Winside. He had quite an audience of spectators peering under the coach to see where they could find a reserved seat when they went broke and had to travel.
 "One of the old-time farmers of Gage county who was skeptical about the farm demonstrator proposition when it was first mentioned has been converted and is confessing his faith to all the world," says the Beatrice Sun. O. H. Liebers, the county demonstrator, upon a visit at his place told him that there was smut in his oats. The farmer laughed at the idea, but a little later found that his crop was cut short from this cause. The next season the demonstrator secured permission to treat part of the seed. The remainder was left untreated. A recent examination showed that the untreated portin was damaged 30 per cent.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church
 (Rev. Blessing, Pastor.)
 Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The subject of the lesson will be, "Blind Bartimaeus" Mark 10:46-52.
 Regular divine worship every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The subject of the sermon will be "Zacchaeus, the Son of Consolation," Luke 19:1-5. Possibly you have been with a party of people who were going to explore some deep cavern—the Mammoth cave, or the Catacombs of Rome. If so, you know how the party stood out in the sunlight, and the attendant who knew the journey to be made, passed among the party and put into the hand of each a lighted candle. How useless it seemed: how pale and colorless the little flame appeared in the gorgeous flood of sunlight. But as the procession moved along; one after another entered the dark cavern's mouth; one after another lost the splendor of daylight, in the hands of each the feeble candle light came out brighter in the darkness and by and by the whole party was walking in the dark, holding fast their candles as if they were their very life, totally dependent now on what seemed so useless only a short time before. How true is this scene to every day life, for amid our enjoyments there comes dark days, trials and temptations, causing people to grow dispondent. But is there no consolation in life? Look to the little man of Jericho, Zacchaeus and there we see a son of consolation.
 There will be union services in the evening at 7 o'clock.
 The Ladies Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. N. J. Juhlin on next Thursday afternoon.
 The mid-summer Communion service will not be held until the last Sunday in this month, July 26.

Filing Mill at Lincoln Is Working In Best of Order.

SOCIALIST OUT FOR GOVERNOR

George C. Porter of Scottsbluff Presents Filing—W. M. Thompson Asks Fee For Aiding In Pure Food Prosecution—Rail Men to Des Moines.

Lincoln, July 14.—Eight more candidates for office sent in their filings to the secretary of state.

John A. Robertson of Joy, who served in the last session of the legislature as a Democrat, has filed by petition for renomination to represent the Twenty-fourth district in the senate at the next session.

E. E. Musil of Hayes Center, a Republican, would like to secure the nomination for representative on the Republican ticket from the Seventieth district. This district was represented in the last session by Fred Hoffmeister, a Democrat.

L. Olson of Emerson wants to get on the Democratic ticket as a candidate for representative in the Twenty-first senatorial district, represented in the last session by Jack Grace.

William L. Davidson of Champion wants the nomination for state representative from the Seventieth district, the same one which Mr. Musil, above mentioned, wants to represent.

Will Brookley, who served in the last senate and who lives at Edgar, is represented in the filings by a petition of his fellow Democrats, who want him to run again. He hails from the Nineteenth district.

George C. Porter wants to be governor of Nebraska. He lives in Morrill, Scottsbluff county and is a Socialist.

James A. Woodcock of South Platte City filed for the Socialist nomination for congress in the Third district.

W. C. Thorne of Glenwood filed for the senate from the Twentieth district as a Progressive.

Switching Case.

The railway commission will have to have another session on the College View switching case, the supreme court having remanded the case back for rehearing. The case was one in which merchants of College View, a suburb of Lincoln, asked the railway commission for an order reducing switching rates between that place and Lincoln. The fight was for Lincoln freight rates, the railroads being required to absorb the switching charges between the two towns. The commission granted the application and the railroads appealed direct to the supreme court, which now remands the case back to the commission for another hearing.

Applications For Boys' Encampment.

Three counties that did not secure representation last year at the boys' school encampment at the state fair have forwarded lists of delegates to Secretary W. R. Mellor. These counties are Keith, Howard and Phelps. The boys' school feature has received commendation from educators in all parts of the state. The boys secure practical instruction in agriculture, horticulture, farm machinery, athletics and farm marketing. All railway fare in excess of $5 is paid by the state board of agriculture. Each county is entitled to two delegates. The county superintendent in each county directs the examination of applicants.

Investigates Raspberry Pie.

State Chemist Rodden, who went to Peru to investigate the cases of supposed ptomaine poisoning at the normal school, came to the conclusion that the cases were intestinal poisoning. Eleven girls were taken ill after eating raspberry pie, purchased from a restaurant in that city. One girl was taken with convulsions. Investigation could bring out no evidence that the pie was made from berries which were stale, although all who had partaken of the pie suffered from the poisoning. The woman who made the pies and her son testified that the pies were made from fresh berries.

Interest In Better Babies Contest.

Interest in the better babies exhibit at the state fair is again becoming intense. Entries close Aug. 17 and many requests for blanks are being forwarded to Secretary W. R. Mellor at Lincoln. There is no limit to the number of entries, but the blanks are so arranged that an examination of these entries and a checking of the measurements will reduce the actual number to 200 entries.

Rail Men to Des Moines.

Rate Export U. G. Powell, Railway Commissioner Henry Clarke, W. W. Richardson of the Beatrice Creamery company and others left here to attend meetings of the interstate commerce commission in Des Moines, where the question of rates is to be taken up in which Nebraska is interested.

Thompson Wants a Fee.

W. H. Thompson has filed a voucher with the state auditor for $50 for services performed for the state in the case brought by the food commission against Mike Svantner, a St. Paul butcher, who pleaded guilty to selling cholera hogs to customers. He was fined $500.

Auditor Denied Insurance—Rehearing.

The supreme court has denied the application of State Auditor W. B. Howard for a rehearing in the insurance cases, involving the constitutionality of the new insurance law.

NEBRASKA MAKES HIT

Foreign Editors Take Notice of State's Opportunities.

Omaha, July 13.—"Nebraska was a revelation to me. I was surprised at what I saw in the state. Nebraska offers opportunities that are far greater than I ever anticipated." This statement was made by E. W. Bodell of Chicago, a member of the party of foreign editors who recently went through Omaha on their way to Colorado, where they were entertained by a promotion company.

The editors were entertained in Omaha during a stop of a few hours. At a luncheon they were told of Nebraska's opportunities and facts and figures were given which proved that Nebraska was far ahead of the states which they were going to visit.

Mr. Bodell's opinion is shared by many of the party who have written to the bureau of publicity expressing a sentiment similar to that written by Mr. Bodell.

Nebraska is gradually being recognized in the east.

CROP CONDITIONS ARE GREAT

Remain Perfect Throughout Various Parts of State.

Omaha, July 14.—Crop reports of the railroads for the week indicate that soil conditions in Nebraska continue to remain perfect, that the small grain is practically all harvested and that corn is making a wonderful growth.

Last week was by no means a dry one, according to the reports to the Burlington. Everywhere there was an abundance of moisture and in many localities more than needed, the rain being the heaviest over the country back from the Missouri river 100 miles or so.

As to the wheat, the Burlington crop report has this to say: "The harvest is practically over and no one is disappointed in the yield as threshing progresses, the crop turning out better than was expected."

CLASH WITH HARVESTERS

Two Hundred Try to Hold Up Freight Train at Columbus.

Omaha, July 14.—Out at Columbus the Union Pacific had a little clash with 200 or so harvesters, who insisted on handling a freight train into Omaha. The men occupied the cars and insisted upon giving the train crew orders to pull out and "beat it into Omaha." Instead of doing so the local police were appealed to and the company employes residing in Columbus called upon to assist.

Finally the harvesters were pulled from the train and given their choice to pay railroad fare or walk out of town. Eighty-six of the men bought tickets and came on to Omaha and the others scattered out into the harvest fields to hunt for work, of which there is plenty out a few miles from town.

MARTIN GERING IS DEAD

Western Nebraska Pioneer Passes Away in Washington Home.

Gering, Neb., July 14.—Martin Gering, for a quarter of a century a prominent citizen of western Nebraska and one of the founders of the town of Gering, which bears his name, died at Washington, where he has lived since retiring from business two years ago. He still retained numerous interests in this section. He was a native of Germany, coming to Pennsylvania prior to the civil war. He served in the Fourth Pennsylvania cavalry. He was seventy-three years of age and leaves a widow and one stepson, Edison Gering, a business man here. Burial will be in Arlington National cemetery, Washington.

Youth Held For Stealing Jewels.

Beatrice, Neb., July 14.—Vern Perry, sixteen years old, was arrested at Wymore on the charge of entering the home of E. W. Clancy of this city and stealing diamonds valued at $300. He has confessed to the theft of the jewels and says that he sold some of them at St. Joseph and some at Omaha. Sheriff Schalk will accompany the boy to these cities to see if he can recover the stolen property. The boy was in possession of some of the jewels when taken into custody.

Little Girl Bitten by Rattlesnake.

Tecumseh, Neb., July 14.—Little Loretta Burch, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Burch, who live six miles southeast of here, while at play with other children in the yard, picked up a rattlesnake. The reptile wrapped itself around the child's bare arm and embedded its fangs in the arm three times before it fell to the ground. Hasty treatment was administered and it is thought there will be no bad results.

Tornado Does Damage In Gage.

Beatrice, Neb., July 14.—A small tornado passed through a section of country east of here, doing considerable damage. A large silo on the W. H. Rayle farm was blown down and several buildings at the Robert Delist farm were destroyed. Shocks of grain were scattered in every direction and corn badly twisted and broken down. Half an inch of rain fell during the storm.

Two Painters Fatally Hurt.

Omaha, July 14.—Harry Nickum and Tom Sherwood, painters on the new Nicholas street viaduct, were both probably fatally injured when a scaffolding upon which they were working broke and precipitated them to the ground. Both men suffered injuries to their spines and broken ribs.

Federal legislation to be substituted for the "blue sky" laws of the various states and the elimination of private banks were expressed in resolutions adopted by the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks at the closing session of their convention at Atlantic City.

President Wilson will make no nomination for the federal reserve board in place of Paul Warburg of New York until the senate takes definite action on his name. Mr. Wilson expects thus to place the responsibility on the senate for leaving the board incomplete.

Seventeen months from the time he was admitted to a Pittsburgh hospital Beverly Jacobs of Charleroi, Pa., was discharged with eighty square inches of new skin. Jacobs while employed in a mill was frightfully burned and his father and nine young friends gave the cuticle which saved his life.

Optimistic views of business conditions were presented to President Wilson by Henry Ford, the Detroit manufacturer, during an hour's conference at the White House. Mr. Ford told the president he saw no evidence of any sort of business depression and said that in his opinion business was getting better all the time.

Differences between Governor Cole Bleese of South Carolina and the war department at Washington have resulted in the governor's determination to refuse North Carolina and Georgia state troops permission to pass through South Carolina on their way to the proposed joint militia encampment at Augusta, Ga., next month.

Give this machine the acid test of comparison at these three vital points:

Price — Equipment — Reputation

The Two-Sixty Standard Indian (illustrated) represents a motorcycle value decidedly in advance of the field today. A close examination will conclusively prove the 1914 Indian with 38 Bertraments to be—price for price—quality for quality—an achievement in worth which successfully carries it beyond competition.

1914

equipment has been a true sensation. The Indian has sailed its flag of leadership higher up on the pole than ever before by evolving Motorcycle Electricity and putting it into efficient operation. All standard models are equipped with electric head light, electric tail light, two sets high amperage storage batteries, electric signal and Corbin-Brown rear-drive speedometer.

The Indian reputation behind every Indian machine is the greatest guarantee of reliability and sound construction that any motorcycle purchaser could have. The Indian has developed more genuine mechanical devices for the advancement of the motorcycle—including the famous, incomparable comfort feature, the Cradle Spring Frame—than all other makes combined.

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

A 10 and 15c Advance in Cattle, Top Beeves at $9.75.

REACTION IN HOGS--5c OFF.

Fair Receipts of Sheep and Lambs and a Healthy Demand From Both Packers and Feeder Buyers—Prices Are Firmly Held, Idaho Range Lambs Bringing $9.20.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, July 14.—Another small run of cattle, about 1,500 head, sent values up another notch or two, and best beeves reached $9.75. This is the highest price of the year to-date and was paid for both heavy and light beeves. Prices were fully 10@15c higher than Monday and 50@75c higher than they were ten days ago. Cows and heifers have shown fully as much advance as beef steers and although there is very little trading in stockers and feeders the tone to the market is very strong and the demand active.

Quotations on cattle: Good to choice beeves, $9.25@9.75; fair to good beeves, $8.75@9.25; common to fair beeves, $7.75@8.50; prime corn fed heifers, $8@8.50; good to choice heifers, $7@8; good to choice cows, $6.75@7.75; stock cows and heifers, $5@7; stock calves, $7@8.

Hog receipts were tolerably liberal, 11,200 head, and this gave packers a chance to cheapen up their droves. Bids and sales were generally 5c, and in some cases 5@10c, lower than Monday all around. Tops brought $8.75 and the bulk of the trading was around $8.50@8.60. On last Tuesday tops sold at $8.40 and the bulk went at $8.30@8.35.

Sheep and lamb supplies were of moderate proportions and there was not much change in the market. Demand was good from both packers and feeder buyers and everything sold in good season, Idaho range lambs going at $9@9.20.

They Sang The "Doxology"

At the banquet of the Illinois Suffrage Association the evening after the supreme court decision, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt was telling of the Wyoming jury of six men and six women, who were locked by the sheriff in separate rooms to consider their verdict in the case of a man on trial for his life—how the men had ordered drinks and cigars and cards and had made ready for a night of their own kind of deliberation—how from the women juror's room had come the sound of a voice uttering a prayer for guidance in reaching a right verdict—and how six voices had then been lifted up in the doxology. "And we women," continued Mrs. Catt, "are going to write the Doxology into the constitution of the United States. We don't accept enfranchisement as a right, but as a duty. The middle west has this day opened the door into the great east. Ohio will come next, and next year we are going to bring you New York."

A gust of cheers greeted this. It died away when Mrs. Trout the president of the Illinois Suffrage Association, lifted her hand and said very gently, "shall we sing the Doxology?" Every woman at the long speaker's table, every woman in the throng on the floor of the banquet hall, and every woman in the crowded balcony rose and with head bowed, sang "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow."—The Chicago Herald.

Nebraska Ranch

This ranch consists of 640 acres, 170 acres is second bottom and in the valley of the Republican River, and is actually worth all I ask for the entire tract. This ranch is one and one-half miles from Haigler, in Dund county, Nebraska. The improvements consist of two houses, barns and other necessary buildings all in fair condition. Ranch all fenced and cross fenced. Two good wells and windmills. The 170 acres of bottom land is in good state of cultivation, balance rolling to rough, but well grassed and good pasture land. There is some outside range adjoining. Price $8,640. Terms.

300 LICE Or More on One Hen

It is by no means uncommon. No one would expect to fatten a steer with that number of "ticks" sucking his blood, but many expect the old hen to go ahead shelling out eggs while lice and mites are sapping her very life. We have counted over 2000 dead lice under a row of ten hens, on a roost board painted the night before with Lee's Lice Killer. This great killer does double duty—contact kills mites, lice, bedbugs, etc. about the roosts; the vapor kills lice on the chickens sitting over it. Put up only in airtight cans. The sale at over 10,000 towns.

Neligh merchants are to have a "Dollar Day" the 18th, when each and every business house will make a special offer of exceptional value for a big round dollar. They are planning there to beat the catalogue houses out of the business they have been getting.

Willis E. Reed of Madison will probably enter the race for attorney general, and if he does should get the nomination. He has served the party faithfully for years and is an industrious, close law student, who has made a reputation in the North Platte country that should commend him to the people of the South Platte.—Crete Democrat.

At Randolph the city is figuring on installing an additional pump for protection to property in case of a break in the pump. We will feel a lot more safe here at Wayne when a second pump is placed here, as soon will be. The cost of their proposed improvement will be about $2,500. They are trying to find a legal way of raising the money without issuing bonds.

A junior agricultural short course will be held in Madison county this coming November to which delegates will be sent from Madison, Pierce, Wayne and Stanton counties. The program will be under the auspices of the county superintendent. Lecturers will be sent from the Nebraska College of Agriculture. Very good but Wayne should have such a course of her own. It would pay.

"Religion and Drink" is the title of a new work that comes to our desk from Burr Printing House New York, and Rev. Dr. E. A. Wasson is the author. He appears to oppose prohibition from the scriptures. Religion of the Bible, he contends, relies on character rather than coddling and trains the moral sense to freely choose the good and reject the bad. The work may be had in cloth at $1.25 by addressing the author at Newark, New Jersey.

In various towns in Nebraska the grocers, meat market men, dry goods men, dry goods merchant, hardware merchants and others are using parcels post to advantage in developing business. They use their local newspapers in advertising goods that can be sent by mail and inviting orders for them by mail or telephone, giving assurance that goods ordered will be sent in first mail. David City merchants have done some advertising of this sort and find their parcels post business growing nicely, says the Press.

At Fairbury, says the Butler County Press, over 100 boys have become members of the Fairbury Commercial club styled the junior commercial club. The object is training the boy mentally and physically and incidentally keeping them out of mischief and giving them wholesome association for leisure hours. Military drills are given, athletic sports and contests provided, health talks are given and opportunity is open to the boys to share in the work of civic development and improvement which is engaged in by the senior commercial club. Perhaps the boys can help our commercial club.

The Outlook and T. R. have separated and hereafter each will do business on their own hook and in their own way. The colonel will not suffer any by the change while the Outlook will have an opportunity of once more resuming its place as one of the independent critical publications of the day. During the past five years it has steadily degenerated into a mere mouthpiece of Roosevelt until it bore his personal stamp as clearly as the Commoner or LaPollette's do the mental features of the personalities behind them. The Outlook is altogether too valuable a magazine to be swallowed up as the political organ of any one man, however large he looms in the public eye, and its publishers and the public are to be congratulated in its escape from thralldom.—Norfolk News.

Something About Single Tax

F. E. Moses who has been reading up on the tax question and likes to see both sides of a question given a fair hearing sends us a copy of the reports from British Columbia in the New York Evening Post, which claims that the single tax is not doing permanently all that is claimed for it. They claim that while its effect was good it created a boom that has left a sag in good times which is now being felt. The start was too swift to keep the pace to the end of the race is the impression given from reading the article which fills the greater part of a page. Below are a few paragraphs from the Post: The present situation in Vancouver seems to be as follows: The city is gradually recovering from the wild times of 1911 and 1912. A good volume of business is being done in staple lines, and in many ways the city is better for the passing of the boom. The more substantial business men do not hesitate to say so. Vancouver's future is assured, and after the inevitable depression the city will go forward as before, and upon a safer, saner, and sounder basis. Meanwhile, however, speculation is at an end. Thousands of people have left the city, and there are said to be in greater Vancouver not less than 3,000 empty houses. The points of greatest interest is the financial aspects of the Vancouver plan. Until 1914 the increase of land values in Vancouver was sufficient to provide the revenue needed without increase of the tax rate, but for 1914 the rate has been increased from twenty to twenty-two mills, and a further increase is probable. More revenue is certainly needed for improvements that must be made before many years, and the city is now considering the question of future sources of revenue. One thing, however, is certain: confiscatory taxation of land values will find little support in Vancouver. All that has been tried is a limited form of single tax under which land has been subject to a rate of taxation actually lower than that which prevails in many American cities. Concerning the work of the so-called single tax unlimited, by which is meant such taxation of land values as would appropriate the whole of the ground rent for the use of the government, the experience of Vancouver furnishes no information whatever.

Boosting that Boosts

We hear a great deal nowadays in regard to boosting one's town country or state. A lot of hot air and bombastic oratory is foisted upon the public concerning co-operation among members of a community, and the good the community will derive from it. All this is good in its place and necessary. We are of the opinion, however, that there is a more effective way to boost one's home community—by spending money at home. It is said that "money talks" if so, let some of us close our jaws for a time and let our money do the talking for us.

Let your dollar march into a business house, plank itself upon the counter and say: "Good morning, Mr. Merchant, I am John Jones' dollar—soon to be yours. John had a notion that he would send me to a Chicago catalogue house, but I am glad to say he changed his mind. He considered this question from every angle and, being a reasonable man, saw that he could not shout, "Boost for Neligh" and send his dollars to Norfolk, Omaha and Chicago, or elsewhere, for goods he ought to buy at home. He saw that what he was building up by his boosting talk he was tearing down by his spending out of town. He realized that no community could be built up by such tactics on the part of its people.

"Then again, Mr. Jones is a believer in the 'Golden Rule.' He said to himself, 'now I am in the merchant's place, or the banker's place, or any business man's place. What would I want the people of my town to do—talk or buy?' My presence here, Mr. Merchant, is evidence of the conclusion he reached.

"So Mr. Jones formulated a set of rules which he is going to follow in his spending hereafter. If everyone would follow Mr. Jones' example there would be some real effective boosting done for Neligh. Here they are, Mr. Merchant:

First—I am going to spend my dollar at home.

Second—I am going to endeavor to find what I want in my home stores.

Third—if the merchants of Neligh haven't exactly what I want, I'm going to give them a chance to order it for me.

Fourth—Not until every effort possible has been made to buy at home first, will I send my money away.

Sixth—Our home merchants stand back of the town, therefore they stand back of me for I am part of the town. Therefore I'm going to stand back of them.

Seventh—I shall let my money talk for me.

"Now Mr. Merchant, just stick me in your pocket. Chautauqua is coming, the county fair will soon be here, taxes will soon have to be paid, and you will need many more like me to aid you in your support of public enterprises. I'm glad I'm not to be sent to Chicago."

Let money talk in this way and a bigger, better Neligh is assured.—Neligh Register.

A Calamity Year

Our political friends, the enemy, have been quite busy in the recent past predicting calamity, and here it comes, according to a few news items picked from our exchanges, which in some instances would appear more consistent if they would make their news and editorial columns agree more fully:

Senator F. M. Simmons of North Carolina is quoted as saying on the floor of the senate that of 300 cotton mills in his state not one of them is in suspension, nor is one of them running on less than full time that he can hear of. The manager of a number of the largest mills stated that it had been one of the best business years he ever knew.

A banking report from St. Paul says that June bank clearings in that city show an increase of $10,226,790 for June this year over the corresponding month last year. A great calamity, that.

Mineral Point, Iowa, paper admits that the free trade in wool is disappointing. Last year it was selling there at 18 cents, now it is 22 cents a pound. More calamity for the man with sheep.

The Kansas wheat crop is 60,000,000 greater than ever before—that will spell calamity for "bleeding Kansas."

In Indiana the common people are buying an average of 150 automobiles a day. That looks as if calamity had struck the home of the vice president.

Down in New Jersey, where they thought putting the sewing machines on the free list was going to make the Singer people, employing 10,000 people, shut up shop. For twenty years before they have closed at least one month in the summer to make repairs. This year they announce that owing to the demand for their product they can shut down but one week. Too bad.

—Ex-President Roosevelt has forgotten the panic of 1907, when he and the republican party were running a panic so all of the people had to pay extra tribute to the Wall street gang. When a man with money in a bank supposed to be solvent could not have his check cashed—when the checks drawn on the treasury of the United States could not be cashed at the leading banks of the land—he must have forgotten or he would not stoop to cry "calamity" now. Then it was that they had to suspend the criminal and civil laws of the country and allowed the banks to violate the law.

In New Hampshire, one of the senators reports that he is unable to learn of a cotton mill or paper mill in the state that has closed. In fact, we believe that the President was right in his prediction of a wave of prosperity such as we have not previously experienced. It is to be hoped that it will not be like the republican prosperity of six years ago.

Some weeks ago the Democrat made mention of the pending complaint of patrons of the Wynot branch of the "Omaha" because of the slow train service, and the question has at last come before the railroad commission who having heard the evidence on both sides takes the customary 30 days to decide. The editor of the Dakota City Eagle recently made a trip of 50 miles over the line, and was five hours on the road. The railway officials professed inability to make schedule time, and the only solution they offered was to make the time schedule of the trains longer, so that they could be on time, but would be no earlier in. The patrons want at least one train each day that does not carry hogs, we judge from reading the account of the hearing.

Half a Million Matches a Minute

It will take just about a minute to read this advertisement.

While you are reading it, nearly half a million matches will have been struck, burnt and cast aside, in this country alone.

That gives you an idea of the extent to which matches enter into the everyday life of the American people.

Of the hundreds of different brands of matches made and sold in the United States, there is but one best.

It is called the Safe Home Match. It is made by the Diamond Match

Company. It is a safe match for the home.

Safe Home Matches light easily, but not too easily. They are safe—safe and sure.

The sticks are extra long and extra strong. Safety again!

They are non-poisonous. Safety once more.

They cost no more than other brands of matches. As a matter of fact, they cost less, because every Safe Home Match is a match.

SECRET OF THE PARIS HAT.

The Magic but Deadly Needle That Holds Its Spirit.

An American milliner seeking to learn what it is that makes the Paris hat so bewitching sought work in Paris and found it easily enough in one of the largest exporting houses, a name to conjure with. One afternoon saw her seated upon a bench with gay, chattering companions who radiated joy and sparkle on every side of her. Deft fingers flew with chattering tongues, confusing her by the bewildering creations called into being with breathless haste.

When night came the loneliness she dreaded did not come, so filled was her solitude by thoughts of all she had seen and heard, and so hard did her brain work to digest all the wonders. Would she, could she, in two months grasp the "something" and take it home to America, and in so doing reach another stepping stone in her career? The following morning found her seated upon her assigned bench. She had been told to come at 8 o'clock, and every clock and watch said 8—but she was alone. In half an hour her companions of yesterday began to stray in casually. Dull of eye and listlessly they came. No hubbub laugh, no gay chatter filled the room, and what was more surprising, no work was attempted. Some great calamity must have occurred! The whole nation must be suffering death and facing calamity. Questions failed to bring forth answers, and the puzzle grew. Were all her dreams to vanish with the night? The "house" must have fallen was her final thought.

Around 10 or 11 o'clock the party broke up for dejeuner, and with their return came a breath of the spirit of the afternoon before. Increasing gaiety and brilliant ideas grew with the hours, and the wonder of it was more and more inexplicable. The mornings were one long torture, the afternoons a joy. One day all was revealed. A tiny hypodermic needle filled with the stuff that dreams are made of is the spirit of the Paris hat!

The workers until sufficiently "doped" cannot work, cannot produce, and listlessly idle the morning hours till hypodermic needle and absinth cure the gay, chattering designer, who brings forth the joy giving Paris hat— Jessie Belyea in National Magazine.

CLAY'S FIRST SPEECH.

It Began In Confusion, but Ended In a Brilliant Triumph.

Henry Clay as a young man was extremely bashful, although he possessed uncommon brightness of intellect and fascinating address, without effort making the little he knew pass for much more. In the early part of his career he settled in Lexington, Va., where he found the society most congenial, though the clients seemed somewhat recalcitrant to the young lawyer. He joined a debating society at length, but for several meetings he remained a silent listener.

One evening after a lengthy debate the subject was being put to a vote when Clay was heard to observe softly to a friend that the matter in question was by no means exhausted. He was at once asked to speak and after some hesitation rose to his feet. Finding himself thus unexpectedly confronted by an audience, he was covered with confusion and began, as he had frequently done, in imaginary appeals to the court, "Gentlemen of the jury."

A titter that ran through the audience only served to heighten his embarrassment, and the obnoxious phrase fell from his lips again. Then he gathered himself together and launched into a peroration so brilliantly lucid and impassioned that it carried the house by storm and laid the cornerstone to his future greatness, his first case coming to him as a result of this speech, which some consider the finest he ever made.

Knights Templars.
The name "Knights Templars" was first assumed by a semi-religious, semi-military order founded in the twelfth century for the commendable purpose of protecting the scattered and disbanded crusaders. At first they were merely Knights, but after they were assigned quarters at the palace in Jerusalem called Solomon's temple they became known as Knights of the Temple, or Knights Templars. The ancient order finally became so powerful that it was suppressed in the fourteenth century, and the continuity or identity of the modern with the ancient one of the same name has been warmly disputed.—Philadelphia Press.

Story of a Church Sign.
In New York city alone more than 150 electric signs are used by the churches. Perhaps the earliest illuminated church sign was a cross placed over St. Augustine chapel. In lower Manhattan, nearly forty years ago. Again and again Bowery mission and settlement house workers have met men and women who have testified that the flaming cross on St. Augustine's was the instrument that turned them from evil lives.

Dividing the Circle.
Ancient Chaldeans divided the circle into 360 equal parts because they thought that there are 360 days in a year. They could not prove that the earth turns on its axis 365.256431 times while going around the sun once.—New York American.

Her Choice.
"Can he sing well?"
"Well, I'll tell you. He offered to sing the baby to sleep the other night, and his wife said, 'No; let her keep on crying.'"—Cleveland Leader.

OUR BATTLESHIP MASTS.

Perilous Perches For Range Finders Strapped to Their Tops.

A smudge of smoke on the horizon, then two skeleton towers of steel lattice-work just above the sky line. A battleship! A United States battleship! Why? Because United States battleships are the only ones that have masts of latticed steel tubing—towers that look as if they were meant to train crimson rambler-roses and a hundred or more feet high.

Fighting tops are obsolete in the United States navy. The men who occupy the nests at the top of the masts nowadays are unarmed. Their sole usefulness to the ship consists in finding the range for the gunners down below.

The towers are made of the latticed steel so they will remain upright although riddled with shots from an enemy's ship. Shells may pass through the network of tubing until every strand is severed and still the tower will stand.

The old style steel masts with a single support could be cut in two and sent crashing to the deck with a single shot from the enemy's gun. The new masts are used as wireless towers and for searchlights and signal platforms as well as for range finding.

The range finders, usually three men, pass canvas belts around themselves in action. Otherwise they might be thrown far aboard by some sudden lurch. The top of the "wastebasket" mast is like the lower end of a clock pendulum when it comes to swaying. The ship lurches over just a foot or two maybe, the mast six or a dozen feet.

When the guns are firing below the concussion sets the steel tubes vibrating like a suspension bridge with a crowd crossing. Sometimes the vibration is so strong that the range finders can't work. Then the guns are stilled for a minute.—Kansas City Star.

HUSBANDS IN WILLESDEN.

They Mind the Babies at Home While the Wives Go Out to Work.
Willesden is a perfect paradise for a certain type of husband. There is no need for him to go out to work; his wife will see to that. All he need do is stay at home and mind the baby. He has a job for life and practically nothing to do.

The Gilbertian arrangement is due to the peculiar industrial conditions of Willesden, where there are many laundries and factories and female labor is much in demand. Although it is cheaper than male labor would be at the same class of work, the wages are good, considering that only five days a week are worked in the laundries, the women not being required on Mondays. As much as from 20 to 30 shillings a week can be earned, £1 being a common wage, even for girls.

Consequently the women rule the industrial world of Willesden. The positions of man and wife are reversed. There is no need for the man to go to work. Not only would he be unsuitable for the job, but the labor and the wages would not suit him.

Therefore a working girl, when she has saved sufficient money and thinks of marrying, looks around to find an eligible man, whom it would be her duty to keep in after life. He must know how to bathe, dress and feed a baby; how to amuse it and what to do when it has convulsions other than rolling it on the floor or slapping it on the back. If he can do all this the girl proposes, is accepted (if she is strong enough to work), and the knot is tied.

When the children grow up they are packed off to the laundries or to one of the biscuit, incandescent mantle or cedar pencil factories that abound in the neighborhood, and their wages go to swell the family income. As for father, he continues his congenial task of warming the baby's milk and performing other little duties.—London Cor. Philadelphia Ledger.

Such Is Life.
A little childhood, a little play,
A little brushing of tears away,
And then comes youth, happy and gay—
Such is life.
A little youth with golden dreams,
A little vision in fitful gleams,
Till manhood's prime—so it seems—
Such is life.
A little taste of full grown power,
A little glory for an hour,
And then the fading—a withered flower—
Such is life.

A little bending beneath grave cares,
A little frosting of white hair,
Then death slips in, so unawares—
Such is life.
A little darkness, then the dawn;
A little terror, but soon 'tis gone,
Oh, heavenly peace, the victory's won!
Such is life. —Oscar Reiser.

Full of good common sense is the suggestion in the Journal of the American Medical association on how to be beautiful. "For giving the face a good color," the expert says, "get one pot of rouge and one rabbit's foot. Bury them two miles from home and walk out and back once a day to see if they are still there."

American Rates Lowest in the World

Here are the actual prices paid for service per telephone per year in five leading European countries having government ownership, taken from official reports and translated into American money:

Austria	$24.96
Belgium	39.95
France	28.61
Germany	22.69
England	32.60

The average is $29.58 against an average of $30.45 charged by the Bell System in America; but remember, in Austria $1.00 will buy what requires $2.00 in the United States in payment of wages and the purchase of necessities; in Belgium the ratio of prices as compared with the United States is about $1.00 to $2.32, in France $1.00 to $1.48, in Germany $1.00 to $1.50 and in England $1.00 to $2.28.

When the efficiency of the service is considered and when the relative cost of producing the service is computed, American telephone rates are by far the cheapest in the world.

Winside Notes

(From the Tribune)

The force of Greek laborers, who have been working in the local railroad yards the past few weeks, were moved to Apex Monday and will go over the track in that vicinity.

Mrs. Gust Bleich and sons, Gordon and Virgil, returned Thursday evening from Williston, N. D., after a month's visit with relatives. Miss Maybell Jamison, a cousin of Mrs. Bleich, returned with them.

Paul Gherk and Martin Weyerts went down to Sioux City the fourth to see and shake hands with their old friend, Barney Oldfield. Martin says Barney had changed considerably since he knew him.

Miss Fread Schmidt of Altivesta, Kansas, visited with the Robert Graef family over the fourth. Miss Schmidt is the daughter of Henry Schmidt, who formerly resided near Winside and moved to Kansas eight or ten years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery Stockham and Mr. Stockham's mother came from Randolph to spend the fourth with relatives and friends. Mr. Stockham's mother remained in Winside for a visit with old neighbors and is a guest in the Martini home.

Mrs. Roy Fisher returned from Sioux City Thursday evening where she was operated on for appendicitis. Although not entirely recovered from the effects of the operation, Mrs. Fisher will be able to resume her duties in the course of a few weeks.

George Manion formerly in business in Winside but now located at Marshall, Minnesota, was in town Tuesday shaking hands with friends and former business associates. He was over at New Castle visiting his parents, going from there to Sioux City, where Wylie McClusky joined him on the trip here. The trip was made in his auto.

Many Winside folks will be surprised to learn that Clyde Ecker, a former Winside boy, is editing the Independence Monitor at Independence, Oregon. The edition presents seven column-six pages of all home print and a nice lot of ads. The following item is taken from his publication: The Monitor takes pleasure in adding to its editorial staff in the person of Mrs. Nina B. Ecker, mother of the editor, who will be associated with him in the editing and managing of the Monitor. Mrs. Ecker has been a gifted newspaper writer for many years and will contribute her valuable services in the making of the Monitor.

A very peculiar and painful accident happened to little Worley Benschopf last Friday while delivering milk about town. The milk was being hauled about in a little wagon, made go with one foot while with the other he knelt in the wagon, and in some manner the back wheel ran upon the back of the leg and a wire staple, which was used to hold the wheel on, penetrated just above the heel close to the chords. The position of the wound caused considerable alarm and a physician was summoned, who immediately applied drawing applications. At present he is getting along nicely and blood-poisoning is no longer feared.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Larson and son, Clarence, went to St. Paul Thursday for a two week's visit with their daughter Mrs. H. Yetterberg.

Mrs. Gehrke left Tuesday evening for a three weeks' stay at Hot Springs, S. D. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Singpiel and her sister, Mrs. A. G. Zuhke of Bancroft.

Miss Ella Shellington went to Omaha Saturday to meet her uncle, E. H. Harrison and family, going from there to Des Moines by auto to attend the republican state convention, to which Mr. Harrison is a delegate.

Miss Kate Carpenter, who has been visiting relatives at Coleridge the past two weeks, returned home Monday. She has accepted the position of teacher of Clear Creek school near Coleridge for the coming year.

Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Ryden left Monday for their new home at Jamestown, N. Y., visiting at Omaha, Des Moines, Rock Island and Chicago, enroute. Rev. Ryden has accepted a call to the Grace church at Jamestown.

The neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ring pleasantly surprised them Thursday evening. Well filled lunch baskets were carried with them and after a pleasant hour and a bountiful surprise the bridal pair were presented with a rocker and a purse of money.

The Redpath-Horner Chautauqua closes a five day program here today. All entertainments have drawn large crowds, beginning with a lecture by Dr. Cyrus S. Nusbbaum. All lectures have been full of inspiration and of real help to the community. Growing out of Mr. Kean's practical lecture a movement is on foot to have a supervised playground. A committee of ten is making plans to carry out this project. Mr. Butin delighted his audience with his whistling solos and imitation of the birds. The musical programs without exception, have been splendid and entertaining. On the whole the Chautauqua in Wakefield has been a great success this year. The community realizes that they are getting a clean, wholesome and elevating program for a moderate sum when they let the Chautauqua into their town. Let's boost Chautauqua for next year!

Between Bugles

A Salt Water Romance.

By MATTHEW WHITE, JR.
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

The dressing bugle had sounded some time since, but Dorothy still stood looking out over the sea. She was thinking how unfortunate it was that dinner on shipboard always robbed her of a view of the sunset. She was a good sailor and consequently had no excuse for taking her meals on deck.

"Still, if this were the only thing I had to worry over," she reflected, "I might indeed be a happy woman."

And this was why Dorothy Shaw was a mystery to all her friends. She refused to be happy, though rich.

"Try it yourselves," she would reply to their expressions of incredulity. "Have so much money left, you that your every movement is followed by reporters. If you happen to order a different paper on Friday from the one you bought on Thursday you are certain that you will read in it of them on Saturday that you have decided to give a million to the campaign fund."

She felt that she could trust no one. By sorry experience she had learned that wealth was a bait few could resist, and "How much does he or she want now?" was her first thought on the advances of every new friend she made.

Finally in desperation she had taken passage in a slow ship under an assumed name, but even so was beset by the constant fear that some one on board would have seen her picture in the papers when her uncle left her the fortune which was her nightmare. That was an additional reason why she liked to linger on deck after most of her fellow passengers had gone down to array themselves for dinner.

"Oh!"

The exclamation was forced from her by a sudden gust of wind that took her tam on its wings and blew it straight across the gap of lower after-deck that intervened on the Alcinia between the first and second cabins.

The next instant she smiled and barely refrained from applauding. A man standing well forward on the deck had stretched out his hand and caught the truant bit of red worsted as it went whizzing by him.

A half minute later and the two were standing on the neutral territory of the deck below, for Dorothy had descended in order to meet him halfway in restoring her property.

"I'm very much obliged," said she. "Not at all," said the man.

He was tall and straight and had the clear blue eyes that Dorothy preferred above all others.

She was about to turn back when the other exclaimed:

"Look; there's a whale! He's just spouted. He'll come up again in a minute, if you care to watch. See, where my finger points."

Dorothy certainly did care to watch. In all her crossings she had never seen a whale. Now she was rewarded with a fine view of a large specimen.

As it happened, this one kept on in the direction of the steamer for awhile, and after each spout she felt she must wait and see the next one. And then her companion seemed to know a good deal about the creatures, which he imparted in a voice which possessed for Dorothy an indefinable charm.

Voices were a sort of hobby with her. She often declared that this was the one point on which she was not thoroughly patriotic—she could not bring herself to admire the average American accent.

But this stranger's voice puzzled her. He looked and dressed like one of her countrymen, but he spoke with neither the western burr, the southern twang, the Boston affectation nor the New York flatness.

She did not know until some weeks later that he was English born, but had come to the States as a young fellow hoping for better opportunities to make a living than his mother country afforded him. He was returning to England to claim a sum of money left him by an uncle.

The dinner bugle sounded, and the man, as if reminded by its notes that he belonged in a different atmosphere (the second cabin is called to meals by a pebbled bell), lifted his cap and walked away.

For the remainder of the voyage Sherwood Roberts hung over the back rail to gaze into the swirl of waters surging out from the twin screws and curse the fate that had led to his meeting this pretty woman on the present trip instead of on the one he expected to take a few weeks later.

"I might as well be a thousand miles away from her as in second cabin," he muttered between clenched teeth. "Idiot that I was for coming this way. And to think that within ten days I could lay a fortune at her feet. And the conventions won't even permit that I send her a note to say that this is positively my last appearance in poverty. But perhaps I'll meet her in London."

He never did, however, although he haunted Hyde park and the fashionable hotels after his claim to his uncle's property had been established and he had come into the possession of that which enabled him to dress three times a day.

"I wonder now," he would sometimes ask himself, "if I had put my pride in my pocket and borrowed enough on my expectations to come over first instead of second, would things have turned out differently? She looked as if she didn't mind so very much my having detained her to talk about whales."

"Wonder if"—

But what was the use of wondering anything about a woman he would probably never see again?

So this Englishman who had lived so long in the States that he could not keep away from them re-embarked for his adopted country in a first cabin deck room and tried to be happy in spite of a handicap that he couldn't forget.

During the first night out it came on to blow great gusts. Roberts lay in his berth late, debating whether to get up or not, when suddenly something shot through his open port and hit him squarely in the face.

It was soft and red, with gold threads running through it, and—"Great Scott!" ejaculated Roberts, starting up in his berth. "Her tam!"

Surely there could not be two of them—at least, he hoped there couldn't. But how had it come into his cabin?

It could not be possible that she knew he was there and had taken this means of apprising him of her presence? Why, she had scarcely spoken half a dozen words to him in her life.

But the cap was hers unmistakably. He fondled it foolishly for a minute or two and then got up and proceeded to dress with all speed, or at least with as much speed as was consistent with the rolling of the vessel.

All day he haunted the ladies' room and the decks, almost deserted on account of the storm, and had begun to read the cards affixed beside each stateroom door when he suddenly remembered the foolishness of this plan to find a woman whose name he did not know.

"This is simply maddening," he told himself after a day of fine weather and still no sight of the tam's owner. "At this rate she will escape me again."

Then he betthought him of a brilliant expedient.

He took a pen and wrote the following notice:

Found.—A lady's red tam, shot with gold. Owner may have same by applying at cabin 23 between bugles any evening.

This he affixed to the bulletin board in the companionway and that night dressed a half hour before the first bugle sounded so as to be in readiness to receive company during the period named.

But nobody appeared that evening nor the next, and now there were only two days left on the voyage.

He had passed a half hour of impatient waiting in the stuffy stateroom on the third day of the notice, and, quite discouraged, threw open his door to go to dinner, when he stepped squarely into the person who had emerged from her room just opposite in the narrow entryway.

"I beg your pardon," said Roberts, and then he fairly gasped as he realized that the other person was the lady of the tam.

"I have something of yours," he blurted out—"that red tam you lost once before."

The girl's cheeks suddenly took on the hue of the cap that hung over Roberts' berth.

"Oh," she said, "was it your port I flung it into? I didn't know. It started to blow away again that first morning, and I thought I was tossing it into my own cabin."

"And you've been just across that five foot space," Roberts rejoined, "while I've been ransacking the ship for you—to restore the tam," he hastened to add. "Didn't you see the notice on the bulletin board?"

"No. This is the first I've been out since the storm. It left me with a nasty reminder of the shaking we all received. I'm so glad to be on deck again! Did you have a pleasant trip on the other side?"

"Jolly fine," answered Roberts.

But he wasn't thinking of the other side at all when he said it, but of the woman he had lost and found again.

Unconsciously they had walked to that part of the deck where Dorothy had been standing when the tam blew off on the voyage over.

"I suppose I must pin the cap in tightly this time," she remarked. "You won't be there to catch it if it flies off again." And she glanced over at the second cabin.

He looked up at the one she was wearing.

"That's a very pretty tam," he observed irrelevantly. "I trust it is skewered in tightly."

Whether she read this inner meaning, she gave no token then, but suggested that it was high time they both went down to dinner. The next night was the dance, and after the final two-step she reminded him that in the morning there would be the bustle of landing.

"And I haven't relieved you of that tam yet," she added.

"I shall miss it very much," he replied. "And you won't need it now the voyage is over."

"Yes," she said softly, her eyes fixed on Nantucket light, toward which they were swiftly cutting their way. "I suppose it has served its purpose, but I don't want to lose it again."

Roberts knew she wasn't thinking of all the words implied, but he was quick enough to seize at the opening, and—well, before they faced the customs officers on the pier he knew where to take the tam.

But he always forgets to carry it with him when he calls, and when Dorothy one evening said "Yes" to a certain question he asked her she added, "This is a desperate step to take to regain possession of a little old red tam-o'-shanter."

LINED WITH SPIDER WEBS.

One Has to Cut One's Way Through the Roads of Paraguay.

The roads of Paraguay are about five yards wide throughout, and the trees meet overhead at a height of some eighteen feet, thus forming a tunnel of very uniform dimensions. In the clear parts of the tunnel—that is, where it is not choked up with the giant nettles—it is full from roof to ground of enormous spiders' webs stretching clear across the road, the big trees usually being chosen as anchorages and the total clear span being thus more like eight yards than five.

The main cables or framework of the nets are composed of five or six strands of thick yellow web and are almost as strong as cotton thread. The rest of the net is made up of single and double strands of the same stout material, which is as sticky as it is strong. Every yard or so of these nets extends across one's path, making it necessary to hold a cutlass or a fairly stout stick at arm's length in front as one walks.

The makers of these troublesome but picturesque obstructions are large, highly colored, gaudy looking spiders with bodies that look as if they were about to explode, they are so blown out and glossy.

At intervals in some more open space where the sky is visible one will notice a different kind of web, far more irregular in shape, but far larger than the others. Not content with the space available in the tunnel, these webs are stretched in complicated mazes from the ground to the very tops of the surrounding trees, with clear spans frequently twenty or thirty yards from one tree to another.

From these main cables smaller ones extend to the ground—a drop of fifteen or twenty yards—and the spaces in between are filled up with a mass of webs spun in all directions.—Wide World Magazine.

SIRIUS, THE DOG STAR.

It Was Given Its Canine Name by the Superstitious Egyptians.

The giant sun, the bright star Sirius, is now called the "dog star" from the very ancient and curious custom of personification. The great nations of remote antiquity personified every activity of nature—that is, compared them to living men or animals.

They didn't know a thing of any law of nature, so they said that motion is caused by living animals, because only animals have the inscrutably mysterious power of moving themselves. No wonder the ancients were astonished to see an animal move itself. And the wonder has vastly increased now, for the ablest scientific man cannot possibly see how an animal is able to move.

The overflowing of the Nile was the chief event in all of Egypt. Without this pouring of water over the land once each year, the valley would be a desert. The Egyptians at a certain period in their long history noticed that when they first saw the star Sirius early in the morning before sunrise the Nile river began to rise and pour over the banks. They personified Sirius as a watchdog, watching the sun and the Nile and the land of Egypt, its people, destiny and harvests.

The Egyptian name of the Nile was Sirlis, and the faithful dog watching in the sky was finally named Sirius. Centuries later their horrible religion taught that it was necessary to murder or sacrifice a dog to the star Sirius to secure its aid in growing grains and herds. This terrible habit of slaughtering animals to propitiate imaginary gods descended to the Greeks and Romans. The Romans named the stars near Sirius the constellation Canis Major (the great dog).—New York American.

Ministers and Ambassadors.

The first minister plenipotentiary from the United States to England was John Adams. Thomas Pinckney of South Carolina became the first minister to England under the constitution. The United States continued to be represented by ministers until 1893, when Thomas F. Bayard of Delaware became the first American ambassador to the court of St. James. The first British minister to the United States was George Hammond, who was appointed in 1791. Lord Poncefote became the first British ambassador to Washington in 1893.

He Fell Right In.

His wife—I met our maid Anna just now on the street and she pretended not to see me—Her Husband—You ought to point out to Anna the improbability of such conduct. His Wife—But how can I? You see, she had another girl with her, and it was quite evident she didn't want her friend to know she was working for a woman who wore a two dollar and fifty cent hat.—New York Post.

Peace With a Punch.

"Here, what's all this row about?" asked the copper breathlessly.

"Why, this woman is collecting money for the peace society, and when I refused to contribute she knocked me down," explained the meek looking man.—Buffalo Express.
