DEMOCRATS OF COUNTY MEET

In Harmonious Convention at the Court House Saturday Afternoon the Wayne County Democrats Named Delegates and Committees

The meeting was called to order by J. H. Massie, chairman of the county central committee, and Walter Gaebler of Winside was elected chairman of the meeting and Jake Ziegler was named as secretary.

The meeting at once proceeded to business, and through the chairman a committee of L. A. Kiplinger, E. W. Cullen, W. D. Redmond, H. C. Bartels and C. W. Reynolds to nominate delegates to the state convention. They later reported the following list of delegates and alternates, and the report was adopted:

L. A. Kiplinger, H. C. Bartels, Walter Gaebler, Phil H. Kohl, J. H. Mitchell, Simon Strate, E. A. McDowell, Harry Tidrick, alternates; Ed. Wallace, J. H. Kemp, W. H. James and James Stanton.

The committee on resolutions presented the following majority report, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we point with pride to the achievements of the democratic national administration at Washington, under the leadership of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan.

That each and all of the democratic candidates for governor are duly qualified and without endorsing any particular man, we leave the choice to the voice of the people at the coming primary.

That we hereby endorse the congressional record of our representative, Dan V. Stephens.

That we fully appreciate the valuable services rendered to this district by Senator Phil. H. Kohl and Representative Henry C. Bartels.

The following resolution was presented by C. J. Rundell and rejected, after short discussion in which the opinion of the convention appeared to be that as Senator Hitchcock's election is not an issue this year it was not wise to inject his record into the campaign at this time:

Resolved, That the delegates to the state convention are hereby advised to oppose an endorsement of the course of Senator Hitchcock.

The committee on resolutions were J. H. Massie, C. J. Rundell, J. H. McCoy, J. H. Mitchell and W. H. Root.

C. J. Rundell read a minority report urging the necessity of the state convention going on record as favoring the amendment of the constitution so that the legislature might be free to enact some modern taxation methods into the law in place of our antiquated system of taxation, and his resolution also suggested a graduated land tax, exempting practically the small home owner—the sliding scale to be patterned after the income tax—the more land the higher the tax until it would become unprofitable to hold idle land for speculative purposes. Another resolution urged against our delegates to the state convention participating in any effort to commend the action of our senior senator. No action was taken on the minority report.

Before the convention closed, County Attorney Kiplinger was called upon for a short talk, and he gave one, complimentary to the national administration. Miss Wallace, democratic candidate for superintendent of public school was present, an interested spectator, but declined an invitation to address the convention.

The following were named as members of the county central committee, Walter Gaebler was elected its chairman and Jake Ziegler the secretary:

Hoskins, Geo. Weatherholt, Hoskins; Garfield, Geo. F. Drevsen, Hoskin; Sherman, A. E. McDowell, Sholes; Hancock, H. Tidrick, Winside; Chapin Sam Reichert, Winside; Deer Creek, J. F. Stanton, Carroll; Brenna, Dave Surber, Wayne; Strahan, W. E. Wallace, Wayne; Wilbur, W. H. Buetow, Wayne; Plum Creek, Gust Fest, Wakefield; Hunter, W. A. K. Neely, Wayne; Leslie, C. A. Killian, Wakefield; Logan, J. H. Mitchell, Wakefield; Winside, E. W. Cullen, Winside; Wayne 1st ward, R. P. Williams, Wayne; Wayne 2d ward, J. H. Massie, Wayne; Wayne 3d ward, L. A. Kiplinger, Wayne.

The following list comprises all who have filed in this county:

Senate, 7th district, Phil H. Kohl, Wayne, democrat.

State representative, 20th district, Grant S. Mears, republican, and R. R. Smith, republican.

For County Clerk, Chas. W. Reynolds, democrat.

For County Treasurer, L. W. Roe, republican.

For Sheriff, W. H. James, democrat; Geo. T. Porter, republican.

For County Attorney, L. A. Kiplinger, democrat; C. H. Hendrickson, republican.

County Superintendent, Mamie E. Wallace, democrat; Pearl Sewell, republican.

County Commissioner, 1st district, S. E. Auken, republican; Eph Anderson, republican.

County Commissioner, 3d district Simon Strate, democrat; Geo. S. Farran, republican.

Republicans in County Convention

The meeting was called to order by Grant S. Mears, chairman of the County Central committee.

Harry E. Siman was elected temporary chairman, and took the chair.

Forrest L. Hughes was elected for temporary secretary.

The call for the county convention was read by the secretary.

It was moved and seconded that the list of delegates returned to the secretary by the precinct committeeman be considered the delegates to this convention. The motion carried.

It was moved and carried that the delegates present cast the vote for Brenna, Hancock, Leslie, Logan and Wilbur precinct, they being not represented in the convention by delegates.

The temporary organization was made permanent.

It was moved and seconded that the Chair name a committee of seven to name the delegates to the state convention. The motion carried and the Chair named Dr. J. J. Williams, Elmer W. Closson, George S. Farran, A. N. Davis, Wm. H. Gildersleeve, Peter Brummels and Ed. Owen as members of said committee. Said committee reported the following list of names as delegates to the state convention: Fred S. Berry, R. R. Smith, E. W. Closson, H. E. Siman, Ed. Behmer, S. E. Auken, Eph Anderson, Ellis Hendrick and Judge A. A. Welch.

It was moved and seconded that the report of the committee on delegates to the state convention be adopted. Motion was carried.

The committee returned the following list of names as alternates: C. H. Bright, Geo. S. Farran, J. H. Porter, Herbert Lound, Sam Rew, Wm Gildersleeve, August Ziemer, L. J. Hughes and B. Stevenson.

The following named persons were chosen by the convention as precinct committeemen for the following two years: Ed. Behmer in Hoskins precinct, T. A. Jackson in Sherman precinct, Geo. W. Yaryan in Deer Creek precinct, Wm. Prince in Chapin precinct, Sam Rew in Hancock precinct, Jas. Baird in Brenna precinct, August Wittler in Strahan precinct, Jas. B. Grier in Wilbur precinct, Wm. L. Cunningham in Hunter precinct, George Berris in Plum Creek precinct, Amos Longe in Leslie precinct, Chas. E. Heikes in Logan precinct, Ernest Paulsen in Wayne First Ward, Geo. W. Lamberson in Wayne Second Ward, L. C. Gildersleeve in Wayne Third Ward and Henry Brune in Winside.

Mr. O. S. Spillman, candidate for congress from Pierce made a short talk before the convention.

It was moved, and seconded that the convention express its approval of the progress made by the different factions of the republican party to get together and unite. Motion was carried.

It was moved and seconded that the old county organization issue a call for the new committeemen to meet. The motion carried.

Adrian M. Newens at Normal

The announcement of a reading by Adrian M. Newens as the fourth number of the lecture course, caused a large audience to assemble in the chapel of the state normal school last Tuesday evening.

Mr. Newens is never a disappointment to an audience. Whether heard in "A Message From Mars," "The Sky Pilot", or "A Singular Life" his hearers are always delighted with the program.

At this time he repeated by request "A Singular Life" by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. The story is an interesting one, dealing with human life and real experiences and problems.

It emphasizes the great need in the world for the human heart touch that makes all men brothers. Eighteen different characters appear in the story and each was well represented by Mr. Newens.

His impersonation of Job Slip, the drunken sailor, Emanuel Bayard, the hero of the novel, Professor Carruth, the dignified theological instructor, the doctors of divinity who conducted the examination and refused to ordain the young minister, the indignation meeting held by members of the ladies' aid society, and various other characters were all excellently done.

A request has already been made to have Mr. Newens return to Wayne for an engagement in the lecture course of next year.

Will Make Trip to Germany

Chris Holst and wife, who live near Altona, are preparing to make a trip to his old home in Germany. They are to start from here August 9th and sail from New York on the 12th in the Imperator which will land them at Hamburg about seven days later.

Mr. Holst came to America about twelve years ago with but little money but plenty of health and willingness to work. He is a carpenter, and also a farmer. He made a few lucky land purchases and sales and cared for what he made, and is now so fixed that he feels that he can make a visit to his parents across the water and visit the scenes of his boyhood days. He married after coming to America, and the wife was born in this country, so that much that she will see in Germany will be entirely new to her. Their many friends here wish them a pleasant voyage and a safe return.

That Gypsy Band

A strolling band of so-called gypsies were here last Monday on one of their visits and made life a burden to all who would listen to their tale of woe or encourage them to tell a fortune.

They begged some money—possibly stole some more and soon departed. In the country east of here where they camped the sheriff was called to make them move on and they swore at him roundly, and after a time moved on.

At Emerson they stole a purse from one business man, but were caught and made to disgorge. They should be taken in hand by authorities and be made to wash up and go to work. When they come to town every door should be closed against them until they cease to find it possible to live such a life.

Off to Win at Tennis

Monday a number of Wayne's good tennis players went to Norfolk to participate in the Northeast Nebraska tournament, which is being played at that place this week. The Wayne bunch will also tell the players and people there what a big time to expect here at the state meet, which is to be here August 4 to 8. Among those who went we noted C. H. Fisher, Paul Harrington, Dr. Frank Gamble, Prof. F. M. Pile, James Ahern, Frank Morgan, W. E. Watkins and Dr. A. G. Adams.

Weatherby Reappointed Referee

Judge E. P. Weatherby, who has been referee in bankruptcy for many years, was re-appointed to that position for the ensuing year beginning August 1, according to an order received in the county clerk's office in the federal building today. The new order adds Wayne, Cedar, Dixon and Dakota counties to Judge Weatherby's district.—Norfolk News.

Mock Trial Held at The Normal

At the close of a strenuous week, at a time when the interest of the school is likely to lag because of unfavorable weather conditions, considerable spirit was put into life on the hill last Friday evening by the announcement of a mock trial.

A certain student, who up to July 17, 1914, had been known and recognized as an exemplary young man, was suddenly called upon the face a charge of theft, the particular thing stolen in this case being the love and affection of a young lady.

The warrant was served at noon Friday and the preliminary trial followed at once upon the campus. In accordance with the plan the offender was placed under $200 bond for his appearance at district court.

The session of the court opened at 8:30 on the evening of Friday, July 17. Attorney Kiplinger acted as judge, and, as far as possible, held lawyers, witnesses, jurors, and other participants in the trial to actual court room practice.

Charles E. Meeker and George Church were the prosecuting attorneys, and Vernon F. Wilson and J. M. Montgomery appeared for the defense. Ira McDonald was sheriff and Adlai Johnson, deputy sheriff.

A jury of eleven men and one woman was selected and the case opened. At the beginning Judge Kiplinger stated that the case promised to be one of a very sensational nature, and repeatedly warned the spectators that it would be necessary for the sheriff to clear the court room if they did not restrain expressions of merriment.

The principal witness for the prosecution was Miss Lucy Haversock, whose testimony was intended to show that the defendant was not dependable and that he was given to flirtation with other young ladies less attractive than herself.

The evidence of Miss Haversock was corroborated by several other witnesses, some of whom became somewhat confused on cross examination.

The fight made by the defense may be placed under three heads: First, the defendant was entirely innocent of the charge; second, the charges made in the complaint were true but the woman was the principal aggressor; and, third, he was insane at the time of the commission of the act.

In support of the last claim two quack doctors, Drs. Huntemer and Keekley, gave expert testimony, touching the mental condition of the defendant.

At eleven o'clock the evidence in the case was complete, the lawyers made their argument to the jury, and after explicit instructions from the judge the jurors retired. Following a few minutes of deliberation, Clyde Oman, foreman, handed in the verdict "guilty, but insane", and thus ended one of the most sensational trials that ever occurred in the social life of the state normal school.

Shut Off Your Water. Standpipe is Empty

Until further notice, water may be used for sprinkling from 6 to 8 in the morning and from 6 to 8 in the evening.

A special policeman will be put on and will shut off every one who does not comply with this rule. We are doing the best we can with the old pump, pumping 24 hours a day, still there are a lot of people who can't get water for cooking purposes and WE ARE WITHOUT FIRE PROTECTION.

It was never intended that the water was to be used for irrigation purposes, or that you should use a hose without the nozzle.

If your plumbing is leaking have it fixed at once, and so help us to help you. The fire whistle will blow tonight. Don't get caught with your water running, and don't kick if you do.

By order of the Council,
J. M. CHERRY,
30-2. Water Commissioner.

Candidate Berge to Visit Wayne

Hon. G. W. Berge, candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of Nebraska, is making a tour of this part of the state this week, and will be at Wayne, Saturday, July 25th, and will speak on the street corner or some convenient place at 1 o'clock, sharp. All interested in the campaign are invited to come and listen.

The Water Situation

The Democrat is requested by different citizens to call attention to the water situation. There is apparently plenty of water, but until the new pump can be installed the pumping capacity is not quite equal to the demand, and it is urged that all should be as careful as possible about the use of water, that there may be a supply on hand for use in case of emergency.

Your lawn may look dry, but unless it is a newly seeded one it will not kill in any weather we are apt to have. We know, for last year's lawns that went through without water near worked the wheels off the lawn mowers this spring, to keep them down.

Because there may be no law to stop you from wasting water there is no need to do so. Set your neighbor a good example, please, and play fair—or if necessary, be more than fair. The new pump will come soon—let us hope before we absolutely have to have it.

P. S.—Since above was written the city officials have issued an ultimatum. Good.

Dr. Corkey Resigns

Dr. Corkey, pastor of the Presbyterian church of this place, who had his resignation heralded in the Omaha and Lincoln papers more than a month ago now has it regularly before the church for action, which is to be taken next Sunday. Whether this early announcement in the papers was newspaper enterprise in giving events in advance or the receipt and acknowledgment of the resignation at this time by the church board was a delayed letter we know not, but the two records of the event are far apart. Be that as it may Dr. Corkey will find that it is with great reluctance that the church and community will part with him and his excellent family.

Married

At the Methodist parsonage on Tuesday morning, Mr. Glenn Hyatt and Miss Doris Farnam, both of Randolph. The groom is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hyatt of Wayne. The bride and groom left, by auto, at once for a short trip through Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hyatt accompanying them. Their home will be in Randolph.

School Opens September 7

The date of the opening of the Wayne public schools will be Monday, September 7. A report was current in some parts that the last day of August would be the first day of school. Superintendent Bowen gives us the correct date.

Obituary

Miss Elizabeth Ann Hemphill was born in Wheeling, West Virginia, May 3, 1838. She was married to James D. Slater in Muscatine, Iowa, June 5, 1856. To them were born five children, a son who died in infancy and four daughters, Mrs. Lamborn of Center Dale, Iowa; Mrs. Many of Chicago; Mrs. J. W. Rock of Niobrara, Nebr., and Miss Maud E. Slater of Chicago, all of whom are living and all but Mrs. Lamborn being present. Mr. Slater died in Wayne July 14, 1888. The funeral services conducted by Rev. Wm. Gorst.

Mrs. Slater passed away at the home of Mrs. Many July 14, 1914, just 26 years to the day after her husband. She had been a faithful member of the M. E. church for years, being a charter member of the M. E. church in Wayne. She lives in the lives of all who knew her.

The funeral services were held from the M. E. church at this place Friday conducted by Rev. H. H. Millard of Norfolk and the remains laid to rest in the Greenwood cemetery.

Modernizing the Mill

The Wayne roller mill has been shut down for a week past—but not idle, for Weber Brothers are overhauling the machinery and installing a new electric bleacher, so that when the wheels again begin to go round the flour product of the mill will be made white by the most approved modern method. Perhaps the flour will be no better than their best of other days, but it will be treated from start to finish in the best possible manner.

A 5-horse dynamo is included the addition, for which they will generate their own electricity. They estimate the improvement at $1,000 and it will no doubt be well worth the investment in economy of bleaching and improvement of their product.

Do your Christmas shopping early—buy your winter coal before it is frostbitten.

Mrs. Ed. Baroch went to Geneva last week to visit relatives and friends in her former home.

Mrs. Fox was here from Randolph last Thursday and Friday visiting her parents, Robert Skiles and wife.

Superintendent Cowan, who is teaching in the summer school here, went to his home at Albion for Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Leola Wallace came from Villisca, Iowa, last Thursday to visit with her cousin, Miss Florence Gardner a week or two.

Rev. B. P. Richardson was called to Pilger last Thursday to conduct the funeral of a young person brought home there for burial.

Last week H. B. Winteringer came from Davenport, Iowa, to make his home here with his parents, W. E. Winteringer and wife for a time.

Our penitentiary scandal has ceased to exist since the democrats secured control of the prison and began to conduct the affairs on a business plan.

Miss Ruth Sterling came from Iowa Monday to visit here and interview the school board at Carroll regarding the principalship of that school.

C. A. Kingsbury of Ponca was here Friday consulting his law partner, C. H. Hendrickson. He reports that business and politics are quite brisk at his home town.

Lynchings are less the first half of this year in the United States than any like period in the recent history. The fellows who said that the democrats would retard business perhaps had this in mind.

T. A. Craig was here Monday from his farm near Concord on his way to visit relatives at Waynoka, Oklahoma. He will also plan to stop at Guide Rock and Omaha on the way home, and expects to be absent a month.

The Burlington is ordered to erect a new depot at David City. Strange that the railroads never make a public improvement on their own property until they are compelled to. The commercial club of that place forced the fight.

Mrs. Val. Smith of Madison returned to her home Monday following a visit here at the home of Wm. Goldsmith and wife. On her trip home she was accompanied by Mrs. Goldsmith and son William, who will visit at Madison for a time.

Thos. Bell and wife, left Friday for their home at Leith, North Dakota, after visiting about three weeks with old friends here. They went from here about four years ago. While here they participated in a reunion of the Bell family that was enjoyable.

Last Saturday while playing about a stack and "slidin' down" Leo, the four-year-old son of Frank Weber and wife, had the misfortune to break his thigh. It was just a plain fracture, and appears to be put in proper shape to knit and make a good leg again.

Ben F. Robinson of Bancroft, accompanied by George Ward, a young man from that place, were Wayne visitors Friday. The young man was much pleased with Wayne at this his first visit. He is seeking an opening to learn more of the "art preservative," having already had some experience.

J. H. Foster has sold his residence in the central part of the city to W. R. Ellis, who is to get possession next month and will then move to Wayne. The consideration was $5,000. Mr. Ellis is now court reporter for Judge A. A. Welch and is a man of ability, and will be a welcome citizen to our city.

Mr. Wm. Wright was a visitor at Sholes Friday and Saturday.

Miss Pearl-Reise went to Winside last week to visit her grandmother.

Ed I. Ellis was at Dixon and Sioux City last week on business.

Mrs. W. L. Carter of Winside visited here last week on her way to Carroll.

T. E. Strauss, a Wayne carpenter went to Thurston Monday morning to do a job of building.

James Baroch, son of J. P. Baroch and wife, left Sunday evening for Lewiston, Montana to remain there for a time.

Miss Charlotte White went to O'Neil Friday, and from there goes to Neligh to spend a few days at the home of her neice. She will return in about two weeks.

Miss Anna Hanson of Carroll was a guest at the home of Henry Cozad and wife over Sunday, and Monday morning she went on to Blair to spend a week with friends.

Mrs. John Joy and daughter, Miss Rose who have been visiting at the home of her brother, J. L. Payne and with her son here, Jay Joy, returned to their home at Red Oak, Iowa, Thursday.

Wm. Fledge came out from Sioux City Friday, where he is working, to look after his farm interests here. He reports that crop prospects appear better here than nearer Sioux City.

David Nettleton and wife of Randolph were here Monday on their way by automobile from Craig, where they had been visiting, to their home. They were accompanied by W. H. Eby, Mrs. Nettleton's father, who was going to make a visit at their home.

Mrs. C. U. Keckley started Friday to visit her former home at Lebanon, Ohio. After school closes, Mr. Keckley will go to the north-western part of the same state to visit his home folks, and will there be joined by his wife, who with her relatives will join a party at a convenient lake for a few weeks of camp life.

Fred Sebald and wife were paid a brief visit from their son Otto last Friday. He was traveling through by automobile on business connected with his insurance work, he having the general agency for this state for an English company. He but recently returned from a trip to London.

One thing that is now worrying republican friends is to know how the democrats will manage to endorse the president's policy and also that of the senior senator, who is fighting the president. Why should they worry? The democrats have managed in the past to get along very well—even if they did not all see alike.

Millard Binney, editor of the Post at Fullerton, was here last week in the interest of the campaign of J. H. Kemp, who is seeking the republican nomination for governor. We have the assurance of the editor that Mr. Kemp is the very best that his party has in stock. This is a year when they need to put up their very best.

Miss Elizabeth O'Brien, who has been attending college here, went to Tekamah Monday to take charge of one of the papers there where she formerly worked, for a week or two, while the editor takes a vacation—whatever that means when applied to a newspaper man. After her release from the paper she will go to visit home folks at Springfield.

J. T. House went to Wausa Friday evening to spend a day at the chalet there, the entertainment being in charge of Rev. Frank Payton of Wellington, Kansas, who has for years been a warm personal friend of Dr. House, and it was especially to visit him that the trip was made. Rev. Payton made a brief visit at the House home the first of the week while on his way to Wausa.

Who now has a word to say against the policy of "Watchful Waiting?" No one except some one with big profits expected as a result of a fighting policy. Has this nation suffered any loss of dignity by refusing to whip a nation torn with internal strife until one of our 48 states would be more than a match for it? To fight Mexico would have the appearance of a big, rugged boy torturing a sick kitten.

The Ladies Aid Society of the German Lutheran church will have a bazaar Saturday, August 1, at the Vail building on Main street opposite to the Union hotel. They will serve ice cream and cake, and also have for sale many articles of worth for kitchen and garden wear and also for the children and babies as well as some fancy work. They invite you to come and see their offering. Remember the date.—adv. 30-2

Robert Bartlett, one of the Hartington Herald force was a caller here Sunday. He came over by automobile from Hartington with Editor Kelley of the News, and from here went to Sioux City to see Editor Stone of the Herald, who is in a hospital there, recovering from an attack of appendicitis.

Clyde Oman and family left Sunday evening for Billings, Montana. From there they go to visit at the home of Mrs. Oman's sister, Carl Wright and wife at Worden, and with them are planning an automobile trip to a lake a hundred miles away where they say the fishing is good, and there they plan to spend a week or more. It will be a jolly way to skip the hot weather now due in these parts.

Ella Flagg Young, the noted superintendent of public instruction at Chicago, declares that the children of foreign born parents in Chicago excel the American children because the latter are permitted too many pleasures. The result is that their minds are taken from their work and they are ever at automobiling, dancing, etc. There is much in what she says, but perhaps the children of native born Americans have some advantages in training that the others do not enjoy.—Aurora Register.

As to whether or not the special edition issued from Wayne paid or how well it paid we cannot tell. But this we do know—it has brought much publicity to Wayne through the splendid press notices given it, a few of which were copied last week. This week we notice that one of our exchanges has taken more than a column of the interesting matter from its pages, giving proper credit for the same. We are sorry the brother editor did not ask for the excellent cuts which went with the matter copied, for they would have been well worthy of a place in his paper with the copy used. Like the endless chain of letters, publicity of that kind keeps spreading.

While your Uncle Sam is pleased to be going after the trusts and monopolies, why not begin a suit against itself in the matter of the printing of envelopes at a price below cost, thus creating an added deficit in that department of several million dollars which multitudes are helping to pay and the favored monied few are enjoying the benefits of? There is no just reason why the American government should engage in job printing at a great loss, which the people generally have to make good, than that the government should sell groceries, dry goods or engage in any other form of competitive business. It is a rank injustice to the job printers, who are thus deprived of many millions of dollars of business in their line, because of an absolute impossible competition from the federal government. —McCook Tribune.

Miss Barge of Bloomfield visited between trains Monday with Mrs. A. J. Wendte while on her way to Rushville.

Miss Lillian Bowen, who has been here from Lincoln for two weeks past visiting at the home of her brother, Supt. Bowen, left Monday to spend a fortnight at Neligh. Miss Virginia Bowen accompanied her on the trip.

According to Secretary of State Wait the Bull Moosers will get second place on the ballot this fall, and the Republicans will have to get back down among the Prohibitionists, the Pop and the Socialists. Mr. Wait's ruling is based on the vote cast for president in 1912, when Wilson polled 109,000, Roosevelt 72,000 and Taft but 54,000.—Fremont Herald.

A number of the leading citizens of Stanton county are agreed that the county assessor's office is not necessary and they have prepared a petition to the county clerk asking that the question be submitted to the voters this fall with the intention of doing away with that office and return to the old method. The petition requires about 200 voters' names.

In Nebraska

The nation will be waiting expectantly for the resolutions to be adopted by the democratic state convention in Nebraska, because those resolutions will convey to the world the formation that either the friends or the enemies of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan are dominant in this state.

Long ago there was promulgated in New York, and circulated in Omaha, a decree to the effect that President Wilson and Secretary Bryan were not doing things properly, and that the Nebraska democracy must withhold any and all approval of the course being pursued by the president and his right hand man.

But there are now some few indications that the New York and Omaha cabal is troubled with chilly pedals. Indeed the cabal has withdrawn its decree as to President Wilson, and partially as to Secretary Bryan. Very graciously the New York and Omaha democratic guardians of the sugar, wool and Standard Oil interests have now given assent that the Nebraska democratic state convention shall be permitted to openly endorse and commend President Wilson, but in the understanding that the endorsement of Secretary Bryan shall be very mild.

On this subject The Telegram has a few plain words to say to the democrats of Nebraska. The Telegram is doing its full part in effort to bring about that magnificent harmony so essential in Nebraska this time. We are willing to do some magnificent forgetting in the interest of harmony. We are willing to withhold from the convention resolutions the burning words of condemnation which should there appear as touching the public records of some democrats. But our reactionary friends might just as well understand now as later that any attempt on part of the reactionaries to withhold from Secretary Bryan one iota of the praise so justly his due will be the signal for a fight which will not end until every tail feather shall have been plucked from the dove of harmony.

These plain words are not intended to be regarded as a threat, but rather as a plain statement of a deadly fact. Mr. Bryan's friends are not pleading for any special favors. They are demanding justice. And there can be no justice in any democratic convention resolutions in this state which shall not testify to the worth of the principles and the personality of the one man who dragged the democracy of Nebraska from the slime of the slough of error and despondency, and lifted it to the rock of good principles and success.

And so we say to our reactionary friends: Come on with your harmony!—Columbus Telegram.

The Case of Thomas D. Jones

Rejection of Thomas D. Jones as member of the Federal Reserve Board was urged because he is a director of the International Harvester Company, because he approves of its operations, and because he is an interlocking director. Since the committee on Banking and Currency had the opportunity to learn whether there are other and more serious objections, it is reasonable to suppose that it found none. A charge of violation of so ridiculous a measure as the anti-trust law in itself is no reasonable objection. The Senators who voted against confirmation of Jones for that reason are themselves supporters of laws which encourage violations of the Sherman law, and will encourage violations of the anti-trust laws now pending. Senators Nelson, Bristow, Crawford, McLean and Weeks are supporters, not only of protective tariff laws, but of the laws upholding franchise monopolies, patent monopolies, land monopoly and other trust breeding privileges. Senators Hitchcock and Reed differ with them regarding details of tariff schedules, but otherwise are probably in practical accord. If Jones did any wrong in taking advantage of the bad laws these Senators uphold then they are in the position of one who tempts another to do wrong. It is not for a tempter to denounce as a crime succumbing to the temptation he has offered.

If Jones is an upholder of predatory privilege then his appointment was unfit. If he is an opponent and possess the necessary ability to properly perform the duties of the office, then the appointment was a proper one, regardless of whether the charges brought against him be true or not. More than one sincere opponent of privilege has taken advantage of privilege-breeding laws which ignorant legislators insist on enacting in spite of protests. So, while it is possible that there are valid reasons for the rejection of the appointment, it does not appear that any intelligent effort was made by the Senate committee to find them.—The Public.

Bryan on Suffrage

Secretary Bryan's declared position in relation to equal suffrage is characteristic of the man. It was just such an expression as might have been expected from him when he found it time to make any declaration whatever on the question. Hence his strong and open stand in favor of extending the franchise to women probably surprises no one.

He leaves nothing to be inferred or conjectured, in which respect his course differs somewhat from that of the president. It will be recalled that when the women waited upon the president in a somewhat pre-emptory manner to seek his aid in the promotion of a federal suffrage amendment he declined to encourage them, although he did express some sympathy for the cause which they were seeking to promote. One could infer from what the president said to the women who visited him that he was for the suffrage in principle, and only differed with them as to the method in which it should be secured.

It was evidently the view of the president that it was through action in the various states that promoters of equal suffrage could seek to secure their ends, as it is the province of each state to regulate its own franchise privileges, a view that is eminently democratic. As a democrat he was not ready to sanction any course that would force upon an unwilling state any interference with its right of control to its own voting privilege.

In taking up the cudgel for the women, Mr. Bryan does not assume to impose any obligation upon his party. Possibly he looks upon this question as do many others, as entirely non-partisan, for it has so far remained purely non-partisan, which may account for the progress it has been making.

There are indications that Mr. Bryan speaks the prevailing sentiment of his state when he espouses the equal suffrage cause, for it seems to be taken for granted that the suffrage amendment will be adopted this fall.—Lincoln Star.

The Farmer in Politics

The farmers are commencing to get busy in county politics as well as taking an interest in the trend of our national affairs. It came to the attention of the editor within the last few days that an effort will be made by democratic farmers in this county to see to it that no blanks appear in the county ticket for the various offices and the current talk appears to point to Ben Baker from near Tilden, father of Dr. M. D. Baker formerly of this city as a candidate for sheriff. Mr. Baker is one of the old time citizens of the county well and favorably known and whose courage, rugged honesty and integrity as a citizen must naturally appeal strongly to the people throughout the county. Only a few days remain for the filing but it is expected that next week will bring forth filings of several prominent citizens for offices for which yet no filings have appeared. The names of C. S. Bridge of Norfolk and C. T. Sibley of Tilden are mentioned for county representative while the name of our fellow townsman who has built up a record as a banker of the highest merit and standing, Hon. M. C. Garrett, is being urged to file for state senator and our young farmer friend, Will Stork of Enola, for county treasurer. John Webster Rice, an excellent lawyer and formerly county attorney of Antelope county who now resides in Norfolk, being a member of the law firm of Kelsey and Rice, will be filed by his friends as a candidate for county attorney. Each of them as well as the candidates already filed by the democratic party are the kind of business and professional men upon whom all classes view with favor and will feel the better for having supported them.—Madison Star-Mail.

Why Not A Democrat?

The state railway commission is now composed of three republicans. Commonsense indicates that this important board be at least bi-partisan. The election of a democrat to the board would fix it more firmly in the confidence of the people. Will Maupin is a candidate for the democratic nomination for railway commissioner, and his election would strengthen the board very materially.

The Taxes of Others

Lincoln State Journal
The Nebraska constitution requires us to tax everything alike that can be said to have property value. A good many people think that this is a divinely ordained method of raising revenue, as natural and proper and inevitable as the down-hill course of a river. At any rate, a howl from the very foundations of society is raised at any suggestion of a change in the system.

Mr. James Smith of Adelaide, South Australia, a dry goods merchant, lately visited in Lincoln. How is he taxed in his progressive country?

He begins with an income tax. This tax extends downward till it touches incomes as low as about a thousand dollars a year, and the rate increases with the income. If you earn your income by your own exertions you pay one rate of tax. If you are living by the sweat of some other man's face, as on the income from an inheritance, you pay a higher rate.

Next he pays a rental tax. This is a tax levied according to the rental value of the place of business he occupies. No effort is made to assess his stock of goods.

Third, there is a tax on the land occupied by his store or home—not on the improvements, but on the land. If he had a factory instead of a store he would pay a license fee in lieu of the rental tax. In the country the only taxes paid are an income tax where a person's income falls within the scope of the tax, and a tax on the land.

South Australia, as we see, has got entirely away from the general property tax so sacred with us. It makes no effort to tax cook stoves, dishrags, currycombs and hair ribbons, as our system requires, and would consider such an effort the height of absurdity. South Australia gets along and is fairly content with itself, so it is obvious that a country can endure without the beneficent assistance of taxes on cows, calves, March farrowed pigs and promissory notes. South Australia blindly declines to consider a return to our splendid system.

Some Nebraskans may be surprised to know, indeed, that in taxation wisdom the states of the United States are in a class by themselves. Benighted Europe threw over the general property tax long ago. Nobody thinks of taxing the wooden shoes or the meerscham pipe of the Dutchman, or the ripening grapes in the Frenchman's vineyard. Yes, there are other ways of raising revenue than our Nebraska way. And none of the countries adopting the other ways shows any regrets, or any disposition to return to our blessed system.

An Unfair Decision

The decision of the supreme court of New York which declares it illegal for a christian science practitioner to accept money for services rendered, seems out of tune with the times. The decision is based upon the allegation that this is "commercializing religion." As a matter of fact the acceptance by a minister of the gospel of fees with which to sustain life, is no more a violation of the principle involved.

If grown men and women choose to treat their ills by the christian science method, it seems unreasonable that they should be deprived of the opportunity through the decision of a court. There is a certain liberty principle involved that ought to be given consideration. This is not an age when men and women should be compelled by law or court decree to mould their opinions in accordance with the views of the human being who sits on the bench.—Norfolk News.

If you believe in a tax on the sugar you and your family use instead of on the income of the man who receives more than $4,000 per year vote the republican ticket.

The move to conserve the water power of the state for school purposes, now well under discussion, we hope will not antagonize the liquor interests, who in the past have been taxed for that worthy cause. Why not try running our schools by water for a while and let the other drinks have a rest?

Under the policy of protecting the American meat producer, which our republican friends have always maintained was the way to build up a business, our exports of cold-storage meats into England has fallen off from $25,000,000 worth annually in 1906 to $75,000 worth in 1912. If that shows what protection is doing to one industry it is high time for free meat. A recent issue of the London Times commented editorially on the question as follows: "This is the most striking change that is at present taking place in the food-trade conditions of the world. It means that the once great export meat trade of the United States is now practically non-existent, and that unless the Americans take steps to increase their home production of this staple article of food they will not only cease to export but will become to an increasing extent rival buyers in the markets of the world with ourselves and other nations. We are also threatened with the same in the egg trade by the United States and Germany, both of which, instead of being able to supply their own demand for eggs, are now buying from Denmark and Russia and other countries from whom we have hitherto derived supplies."

Short News Notes

Meat is in the airship—let it stay up there—we'll turn vegetarians.

Threshing season is now here and crop reports are being proven true in most instances.

Candidates are beginning to flutter about the newspapers like flies around the molasses barrel.

Mediation is to be applied in settlement of the differences between the railroad employees and the railroad employers. Good.

The New Haven road officials must answer for their misdeeds. Civil action against the directors for about $100,000,000 misapplied money is under way at the demand of the minority of the stockholders.

Carranza has agreed to quit fighting and use diplomacy for a time. That is good, but he should look well to his laurels, for he will then be dealing with as great rascals as Huerta in some instances and some respects.

Ex-President Roosevelt is asking to be heard by the Senate foreign relations committee to tell what he knows about the Columbian affairs and why he is opposed to the proposed treaty. Well, if Teddy cannot get permission to tell the committee he might swear to a statement for publication in the daily press.

Secretary of the State Bryan has come out squarely in favor of equal suffrage in Nebraska. There are those who claim that he has made a mistake in so doing, but they have not answered his argument in favor of the ground he has taken. It is not a mere question of policy with Bryan, but one of justice.

Mr. Henney of New York is reported as replying to the invitation of Roosevelt for him (Henney) to accept the bullmoose nomination for governor of New York that he would not do so, and gave as his reason that he would not be a party to or connected with any organization which made unfair criticism of the administration of President Wilson. That if he was a candidate for the office at all it would be on the democratic ticket and no other.

It now develops that the great dry goods failure of the Claffin company which so amazed the people a few weeks ago was not a real failure of business as should be run, but the result of Morganized methods. Instead of the central organization furnishing credit to the chain of outside stores, they are furnishing paper for the head house to speculate on. The plan was to have the chain of store managers sign up and send in notes for the central plant to use as collateral and for sale. Criminal proceedings may be begun perhaps.

Monday Geo. Elin participated in an adventure that might have terminated worse. While cutting grain a few farms east of town an automobile came along the road beside of which he was working and the binder team of four horses became frightened and finally the driver lost control of them and in throwing the binder out of gear fell from the machine striking on his shoulder but safely behind the binder. Dr. T. T. Jones and Mr. Duncan were in the car, which they stopped and went into the field and attempted to stop the team, but they could not run fast enough, but they managed to turn them so that they headed toward the house, and were stopped after they had had their run without serious damage to themselves or the machine. The driver escaped with a slight bruise on the left shoulder.

Order of Hearing on Original Probate of Will

The State of Nebraska, Wayne County, ss.

At a County Court, held at the County Court Room, in and for said County of Wayne, on the 22nd day of July, 1914.

Present, James Britton, County Judge.

In the matter of the estate of John Liveringhouse, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of C. E. Liveringhouse praying that the instrument filed on the 10th day of July, 1914, and purporting to be the last Will and Testament of said deceased, may be proved, approved, probated, allowed and recorded as the last Will and Testament of said John Liveringhouse, deceased, and that the execution of said instrument may be committed and that the administration of said estate may be granted to Emma R. Liveringhouse as Executrix.

ORDERED, That August 12, A. D., 1914, at 10 o'clock A. M., is assigned for hearing said petition, when all persons interested in said matter may appear at a County Court to be held in and for said County, and show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and that notice of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this order in the Nebraska Democrat, a weekly newspaper printed in said County, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing.

JAMES BRITTON, (Seal) 30-3 County Judge.

Filed in District Court

J. M. Gustafson, administrator of the estate of John G. Gustafson, deceased, has filed an application for license to sell real estate, to be heard at the September term. Blanche Kingston has filed a petition asking a divorce from her husband of a little more than a year. Defendants name is Harry G. Kingston, and they were married at Omaha. Plaintiff claims non-support as the ample grounds, and charging the husband with forging his father's name to a note as her claim for asking to again be given her maiden name of Harrison.

Carrill Orr is away on a vacation.

Mrs. I. C. Trumbauer visited her sister at Emerson Saturday and Sunday.

Notice To Bidders

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals for extending the system of water works in the city of Wayne, Nebraska, according to the plans and specifications now on file with the City Clerk, will be received until 8 o'clock p. m., Tuesday, August 11th, 1914, at the office of the City Clerk, at which time the bids will be opened.

The City Council will proceed without unnecessary delay to award the contract for said extensions to the lowest responsible bidder, hereby reserving the right to reject any and all bids.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check or draft payable to the treasurer of the City of Wayne, Nebraska, for 5 per cent of the amount of the bid, to be returned to the bidder after the contract and bond is executed and approved.

Separate bids are required as follows:

- 1. 4327 feet of 4-inch cast iron water main at so much per lineal feet, 10 fire hydrants, 4 gate valves, 13 "T's" as specified.
- 2. 15 feet extension on top of stand pipe.
- 3. One Triplex pump about 500 gallons per minute capacity with one 35 hp. D. C. motor, direct connected or with belt.

The estimate of the City Engineer for the construction of the above mentioned extensions, is the sum of $7000.00.

All work to be done in a good and workmanlike manner and only the best material to be used.

Dated at Wayne, Nebraska, this 21st day of July, 1914.

Next week will be CALUMET WEEK AT YOUR GROCERS

Your Grocer has investigated the merits of Calumet. He knows the value of this economical, perfectly pure and absolutely sure Baking Powder. So he is demonstrating his confidence in Calumet and wants you to try this superior leavener.

A trial will cost you nothing if you are not satisfied. Simply deposit the purchase price—about half the amount asked for Trust Brands—only a mere trifle more than the price of Cheap Big Can powders. Use enough to leaven a baking or several bakings. Put it to a rigid test. See how evenly the bakings come up—how they stay up. Notice the fine grain. Notice how tender, how delicious. And notice too, how much longer they remain moist and fresh.

If you are not convinced Calumet produces better bakings and saves a substantial sum on baking costs, return what is left in the can and your dealer will refund deposit.

Received Highest Awards World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago. Grand Prize and Gold Medal Paris Exposition, 1912. Recommended by leading physicians. Used by Betty Lyle Wilson, baker of the President's Christmas Cakes, and by thousands of other competent cooks.

Olson Seeks Recount of Votes on License Question.

EGAN'S BOND IS APPROVED.

Paroled Convict Holds Up Band of Harvest Men—Lieutenant Governor McKelvie Goes to New York—Stock Curtie-Lake With Fish.

Lincoln, July 21.—Charles Olson of Newman Grove has appealed to the supreme court from a judgment of the district court of Madison county in a case where he brought action against the village board of Newman Grove to compel them to recount the votes held in the city election on the proposition of license to saloons.

Mr. Olson contends that the city voted on the proposition for and against license and that the vote was a tie, that the board threw out one vote against license, thus making the election one majority for saloons. He asked the board to recount the votes and turn over the polling books for inspection and they refused to do so. He also alleges that there are several votes cast for saloons which were cast by men who were not legal voters and gives the names of three of the parties.

Suit Over Treasurer's Bond.
The National Fidelity and Casualty company is appealing from a judgment secured in the district court of Douglas county by the Lion Bonding company in the sum of $225 for premium due as one of the sureties on the bond of the state treasurer of Nebraska. The state treasurer is required to give a bond in the sum of $1,000,000 and it has been the custom for the bond to be given to one company, which in turn divides the amount up with other companies so that the entire amount will not fall upon one company. It is set out in the case that the Lion Bonding company was one of the companies which held one-twelfth of the amount of the bond and the premium for such share was $225, which the company has refused to pay over to the Lion company, which sues for its share of the premium paid by the state for the bond of the treasurer.

Band of Harvest Men Held Up.
The harvest fields of Nebraska did not prove to be a good investment for about twenty-five harvest hands who were returning to Lincoln on a Rock Island freight train. At Martel, fourteen miles southwest of Lincoln, a negro and three white men entered the car in which the men were riding and at the point of revolvers relieved them of what money they had and their watches. The colored man was captured by the police later on in the Lincoln yards and his pockets were found bulging with watches. The men lost all the way from a few dollars up to as high as $15. The negro proved to be Charles Smith, a paroled convict.

Investing in Water Power Bonds.
Senator Joseph Burns of Lincoln and William Richte of the state commission for the revision of the school laws called on Attorney General Martin to secure some idea what would be necessary to be done to permit the school funds of the state to be invested in bonds of water power companies. The attorney general could not give them much encouragement in the matter as the constitution will have to be changed before the state can do anything itself in water power development and it will take an act of the legislature to allow the funds to be invested in the manner the gentlemen would like to see carried out.

Stock Lake With Fish.
Deputy Fish Commissioner W. J. O'Brien and Deputy Game Warden Gust Rutenbeck have returned from Curtis, where they deposited six tons of fish in the lake at that place, and went to Thayer, where they will clean the lake of all undesirable fish and return the desirable kind to the place. Sending After Williams.

Governor Morehead has asked the governor of South Dakota to allow the sheriff of Pierce county to bring back to this state John Williams, who was in the Pierce county jail on a charge of stealing two mules worth about $300. Williams escaped from the jail and went north across the line.

Corporations Send Fees to State.
The Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company paid their corporation tax to the secretary of state on their several branches, $3,380. The Burlington Railway company sent in its fee of $2,500. The Omaha branch of the Standard Oil company sent in a check for $400.

Egan's Bond Approved.
The supreme court has approved the bond of Mitchell Egan, accused in Dawes county of stealing cattle and to whom a stay of sentence was granted by the supreme court a short time ago pending a new trial. Walter R. Kent and Charles F. Dargan are the sureties on the bond.

McKelvie to New York.
Lieutenant Governor S. R. McKelvie will leave this week for a trip to New York, Philadelphia, Boston and other eastern points. He expects to be gone until Sept. 1.

Body of Man Found in River.
Plattsmouth, Neb., July 21.—John Rainey found the body of a man on Speck's Island, three miles south of Plattsmouth. It had been in the Missouri river so long that it was impossible to identify it.

CROPS SURVIVE DRY WEEK

Despite Lack of Rain Corn Shows Wonderful Growth.

Omaha, July 21.—The crop and soil reports of the railroads for the week indicate that while there was little rain in Nebraska last week, even with the hot weather the corn crop was not damaged in the least, but instead made a most wonderful growth.

All agents express the opinion that this is a critical period for the corn and that rain would be of great benefit. However, in no locality have the leaves commenced to curl.

As to small grain, the reports continue entirely favorable. The harvest everywhere in the state is completed and threshing pretty well advanced. There are no changes made in the estimates of a couple of weeks ago, in the eastern, southern and northern portions of the state the average yield being around thirty-five bushels per acre, with many fields yielding much more. In the southwest corner of the state the average wheat yield is placed at eighteen bushels per acre.

The Northwestern's station report indicates a need of rain in many localities, but no damage done by dry weather up to this time. This report places the oat yield at around forty to sixty bushels per acre.

BELETED FILINGS RECEIVED

Secretary of State Adds Seven More Names to His Long List.

Lincoln, July 21.—Filings for office appeared in the mail of the secretary of state which, bearing a postmark of the eighteenth, in the opinion of the secretary, were entitled to be listed. One, however, bearing a date of Sunday, will have to be refused unless the applicant can show that the letter was mailed Saturday. This filing was sent in by E. F. Danker of Butte and was for nomination for representative in the Fifty-fourth district on both the Republican and Progressive tickets. The others, which bore postmarks of the eighteenth, were accepted, as follows:

H. Gordon Cross, St. Edward (Prog.); state senate Ninth district.

George C. Junkin, Smithfield (Prog.), petition for state senate, Twenty-first district.

M. J. Weber, Crawford (Rep.), Seventy-fourth representative district.

C. C. Crowell Jr., Omaha (Pro.), regent.

Nelson Hald, Dannebrog (Pro.), secretary of state.

Walter I. Fowle, Grand Island (Pro.), state superintendent.

OMAHA MURDER MYSTERY

No Solution Brought Out at Inquest by Coroner.

Omaha, July 21.—Unless one or more Italians give themselves up to the authorities and confess the murder of Peter Schroeder, Fred Schroeder and William Rapp, or evidence is unearthed tending to prove that some other agency outside the three men involved caused their deaths, Omaha's triple murder mystery may never be solved to the entire satisfaction of the community. This much was evident when Coroner Crosby, after examining twenty-five witnesses, adjourned the inquest into the deaths of the three men.

The police still remain unshaken in their belief that the men quarreled and shot each other to death. Several witnesses with rather uncertain stories will never believe other than the three men died at the hands of a person or persons unknown as yet, while besides their versions there are the alleged statements of Peter Schroeder and William Rapp that an Italian shot them.

Joy Riders Held For Larceny.
Tecumseh, Neb., July 21.—Two Tecumseh young men, Fred Ayres and Stewart Griffin, are awaiting examination in the county court on the charge of grand larceny. The men are charged with having taken the automobile of George Luckey of Cook when the machine was standing on the streets of Tecumseh and taking a joy ride in it. The men were bound over to the county court for hearing on Aug. 3, the bond of each being placed at $300. Griffin gave bond, but Ayres failed to secure it and went to jail.

Martin Makes Ruling.
Attorney General Martin holds that voters who are registered under one party can change their party affiliation at the coming city registration. The law allows voters in cities of less than 25,000 to change their party affiliation and he believes that cities above that number have the same right.

Editors Capture Omaha.
Omaha, July 21.—Editors from all over the state put in a strenuous day of "fun and frolic" in Omaha, guests of the publicity bureau. They were shown about the city in autos, played golf and had dinner at the Field club, after which they repaired to Ak-Sar-Ben den and were initiated.

Record Price Paid For Range Steers.
Omaha, July 21.—Huffman brothers of Tryon, Neb., sold a shipment of "fun and frolic" in Omaha as guests weighing an average of 1,331 pounds, at $9 per cwt., which is the highest priced open-range steers ever sold on the South Omaha market or any other market.

Jensen Elected Postmaster.
Cozad, Neb., July 21.—Hans Jensen received a plurality of the vote cast for the postmaster at Cozad. The vote was taken by order of the county central committee and only Democratic patrons of the postoffice were entitled to vote.

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Good Cattle Firm and Common Kinds Weak.

HOGS DULL, JUST ABOUT STEADY

Liberal Run of Sheep and Lambs. Trade is Dull at Opening—Prices Steady to Easier in Spots.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, July 21.—Cattle receipts were fairly liberal today, some 3,200 head arriving. The market for fat cattle presented no new features as compared with Monday. Salesmen experienced little difficulty in securing fully steady to possibly a little stronger prices for choice dry lot heaves, while the half fatted and more or less grassy natives that came in competition with the westerns were slow sellers at steady to possibly a shade lower figures. Grass fed cows and heifers were slow today and the trade sluggish, with prices ranging steady to lower on practically all grades. Veal calves were in fair request and quotably about steady, and there was a fair outlet and a steady market for bulls, stags, etc. There was a greater show of life to the stocker and feeder trade today than for some time past, and anything at all attractive found a ready sale at stronger prices and, while the medium and common grades were not so much sought after, they could be disposed of to better advantage than recently, at firmer figures.

Quotations on cattle: Good to choice heaves, $9.25@9.75; fair to good heaves, $8.80@9.20; common to fair heaves, $7.75@8.50; choice range heaves, $8.50@9; fair to good range heaves, $7.50@8.25; common to fair rangers, $6.50@7.25; prime corn fed heifers, $8@9; good to choice heifers, $7@8; good to choice cows, $6.75@7.65; fair to good cows, $5.75@6.50; canners and cutters, $3.50@5.50; veal calves, $7.50@11; good to choice feeders, $7.50@8; fair to good feeders, $6.75@7.50; common to fair feeders, $6.25@6.75; stock cows and heifers, $4@6.50; stock calves, $7@8; bulls, stags, etc., $5.25@7.65.

About 9,500 hogs showed up today. The trade was dull today, with prices just about steady with Monday. Bulk of the sales landed at $8.65@8.70, and a sprinkling on up to $8.95, the top.

Sheep and lamb receipts totaled 11,000 head. Trade in this line was dull today, with prices steady to easier. The best lambs sold up to $8.10. The market on fat lambs is now over $1 lower than on Tuesday of last week. Other markets have broken fully as much. Feeder sheep and lambs were in good demand at about steady prices. Quotations on range sheep and lambs: Lambs, good to choice, $7.90@8.10; lambs, fair to good, $7.75@8; lambs, feeders, $6.25@6.75; yearlings, good to choice, $6.15@6.30; yearlings, fair to good, $5.90@6.15; yearlings, feeders, $5@5.50; wethers, good to choice, $5.65@5.90; wethers, fair to good, $5.40@5.65; wethers, feeders, $4@4.50; ewes, good to choice, $4.65@4.85; ewes, fair to good, $4.50@4.75; ewes, feeders, $3@3.50.

Cigarette papers trailed in the manner of a "spinner" seem a queer bait for mackerel, but navy men have used cigarette papers with deadly effect in Dover bay. You can, in fact, catch mackerel with anything bright when they are on the run. Perhaps the best of all baits for them is a strip of skin cut from one of their captured brethren.

A piece of tin or lead foil is effective, and I once knew a man who came back from mackerel fishing without a vividly colored necktie that he rather fancied. It had made an excellent lure for the fish. Is it that the mackerel is conscious of his own brilliant coloring and therefore will take any bait with a gleam about it?—London Standard.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church
(Rev. Blessing, Pastor.)

Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The subject of the lesson will be "The Pounds and the Talents", Luke 19:11-27. Every Sunday school scholar should be present next Sunday to hear the announcements in regard to the Sunday school picnic.

Services every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The subject of the sermon will be "Let Us Draw Near", Heb. 10:22. When Jesus Christ came to earth He did not come to be a stranger to man, but to be his friend. For He says, "The Son of man came to seek and to save that which was lost". In the wonderful discourse of Christ's in the 10th chapter of St. John He brings out this near relation under the image of a shepherd and his sheep saying, "I am the good shepherd and I know my own and my own know me." Because Christ came to be man's friend, He often spoke to His hearers and said "follow me." He wished a personal contact, a closer relation. He instituted the Lord's Supper, that His faithful ones could come to Him, and know Him as "a friend that sticketh closer than a brother," thus we can well heed the words of the writer of the Hebrews "let us draw near with a true heart."

The Lord's Supper will be celebrated at the morning service. This will be the last Communion service in this Synodical year. As there are only four regular Communion services during the year every member should make it a point to be present. Do not forget the offering for benevolence. "God Loveth the Cheerful Giver."

The Ladies Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. N. J. Juhlin last Thursday, a very pleasant afternoon being spent. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Harry McMillan on Wednesday, August 5th.

Our Creamery—Is It Appreciated?

Last week the Democrat published a story of the creamery at the town where the editor was born, telling of the success they had made of a co-operative creamery there, and no sooner was it printed than the question came, why not write something of the Wayne co-operative creamery, with the confession of a business man that he feared that he had too long failed to recognize the value of the enterprise to the farmers who participate in the direct benefits or the merchants who participate indirectly.

We found A. P. Gossard, the efficient manager, willing to tell some interesting things about the creamery here and how there has been a fight against the centralized combine to maintain independence—and how the fight is still on. He told us a lot of creamery history so fast that we could not write it down, and that may have to wait for another time if it appears.

But we wanted a few of the points which tell why Wayne creamery is a good thing for the Wayne county farmers and why it is good for Wayne—for what is good for the farmer is good for the business men who do business with the farmer. We find, first that because of the ability to make better butter because of getting the cream in better shape, largely, and because of the direct selling of the product that the farmers of this vicinity are right now getting fully 5 cents per pound more for butter fat than the farmers who are out of reach of co-operative creamery influence, and that there is nothing the central plants desire more than to see co-operative creameries out of their way. Last week Wayne co-operative creamery paid 25½ cents for butter fat. Bloomfield paid 20 cents, and not only Bloomfield, but other places over the state. The report is that the creamery at Winside has at last come under control of the central plants or someone of them, and that this week the price of butter fat is but 20 cents. The fact that there has been no corresponding drop in the Elgin market makes it plain who is trying to secure the difference.

But you ask, perhaps, where does the Wayne business man come in? It is here, as it appears to us. In addition to the cream cans shipped to this creamery from neighboring towns, and there are quite a lot of them, some of it coming from as far as Fairfax, South Dakota, the farmers drive in here with cream from almost the border of the towns that are under control of the central buyers. Mr. Gossard tells us that he has regular patrons who come because of the better price from within two miles of Concord, the same distance of Wakefield; some patrons live but four miles from Pender and Wisner, three from Winside, and so on around the circle. Now it is of value to any business man to have the trade zone of the place enlarged by any legitimate process. All that can be drawn from outside of a circle that would cut half way between this place and a rival place is that much gain. If we add a circle a mile wide outside of the natural zone that would be half way between competing towns we are adding territory fast, for the larger the circle is in diameter the greater the territory, the greatness growing something in the proportion to the square of the diameter of the circle. Can't just remember all of that rule. But by it a ten mile diameter would be to 16 mile diameter as 100 to 225. That shows the value of increasing the distance between the trade boundaries of your territory. That is why the merchants of Wayne are or should be interested in maintaining a co-operative creamery here.

It is easy to see why the farmers who belong to the organization are wise in sticking together and not following after any temporary bait thrown out by the central plant, for if they can get the cooperative creamery here out of the way it means that they will have to take for their butter fat just the price the others get in nearly every other place in the state.

The creamery here is making an average of 1,000 pounds of butter per day, and 5 cents a pound extra on that amount means $50 per day, which is a very nice profit to be distributed among the patrons of the creamery every day. That is the way it looks to the Democrat, how does it appeal to you, Mr. Farmer and Mr. Business man? Do we appreciate our creamery, as we should?

A Good Farm Improvement
Chris Hansen, one of the prosperous farmers seven miles west of Wayne is starting the erection of a good, large barn, says Contractor Classen. The building is to have a main part 40x60 with 16 foot posts, to which will be added a lean-to 30x60 with 8 foot posts. The last part is to house a herd of 30 milch cows and is to have a modern, sanitary drainage and seepage way of concrete as well as a concrete floor. When finished it will be at a cost of $2,000 or more, but will be worth it, especially if Mr. Hansen is to keep a herd of thirty milch cows. And they will soon pay for such an improvement in the extra milk and butter fat they will produce when properly housed and cared for. The Democrat is glad to make notice of such improvement.

Mrs. E. R. Williams of Randolph was a visitor at the home of her brother-in-law here, Dr. J. J. Williams the first of the week.

Frank McDowell, wife and son from Omaha spent Saturday and Sunday on their farm northwest of town, visiting his brother-in-law.

A. T. Chapin, wife and daughter, Miss Tot of Winside passed through here Tuesday afternoon on their way to Canada for a short stay.

See our display of 98c hats worth $2.50 up to $4.00. Shirt waists at less than one-half price. Mrs. J. F. Jeffries, opposite the Herald office.—adv.

J. Murrill from Burkett is here visiting his son Ed Murrill and with numerous friends and acquaintances. He has been visiting at Cottonwood, South Dakota, also.

Chas. Yearick of Greeley, Colorado, came the first of the week for a short visit at the home of his nephew, W. Y. Miles and wife, much to the happy surprise of the family.

The C. E. society of the Presbyterian church will serve ice cream and cake on the church lawn Friday evening, July 24. Band music, cake and ice cream, all for 10 cents.—adv.

Chyle Murray of Sloan, Iowa, who came several weeks ago to visit his uncle G. A. Wade, and assist at the Democrat office through a rush of work, returned to his home Sunday.

Jack Bly, who has been operator on the Herald machine for the past four months, accepted a similar position at the office of the Cedar County News and with his wife went to Hartington Saturday.

Chas. Reynolds and family departed early Tuesday morning for Minden and other nearby places to visit the parents and relatives of Mrs. Reynolds. They will be absent about ten days, Chas. taking a well-earned vacation.

Mr. E. O. Gardner and daughter Lila, who have been visiting at Villisca, Iowa, and Nebraska City for the past six weeks, returned home Wednesday evening. They report intensely hot weather in the southern part of the state.

John Surber went to Sioux City Sunday afternoon to visit I. P. Lowry who is still confined at a hospital there, following an operation for appendicitis. He reports that he is on the gain, but that his case was so serious that he rallies slowly.

Mrs. Gehring from Stanbury, Mo., and Mrs. T. Meikle from Cleveland, Ohio, left for their homes Wednesday morning, following a visit here with their brother, Chas. Bagert. Mrs. Meikle first visited her sister at Stanbury, and on her way home will visit sisters at Chicago and a daughter at Detroit, Michigan.

Mrs. Warnick went to Rochester, Minnesota, Sunday.

Miss Harris of Ponca is here to visit her sister, Mrs. J.H. Wendte.

Mrs. Millhiser of Marshalltown, Iowa, who came here to visit her sisters, Mrs. John Liveringhouse and Mrs. Bonawitz at the time of Mr. Liveringhouse's death, left for her home this morning.

E. M. Chace and wife of Lincoln returned to their home last week, following a visit at this place where they were guests at the home of Mrs. Fisher and John and Miss Olga Alger, to whom they are cousins. They had not before met in about thirty years.

F. C. Ruegge and his sister, Mrs. Fricke of Tilden returned home Sunday evening following a visit here at the home of his son Chas. Ruegge and wife. Mrs. J. H. Gephart, a sister of Chas. Ruegge from Sioux City was also a guest at their home for several days.

S. D. Relyea and family autoed to Sioux City Saturday and spent Sunday there at the home of their daughter, returning Monday. He reports that they had a real pleasure trip with roads in excellent condition, barring a few short rough places and the dust when they got into the Missouri river bottoms.

Mrs. W. A. Hisecox, accompanied by Chas. Hisecox, went to Omaha this morning to visit W. A. who is at a hospital there. There is yet no marked improvement in his condition, and it had not yet been determined whether or not an operation would be considered necessary. It is to be hoped that he can soon come home.

The Indians are having a powwow at the Winnebago reservation this week, and it is a daily sight to see parties of them changing cars here on their way from the northwest of here to the big time. The braves and their families no longer treke across the country with their pony mounts. They travel by rail the same as the white man.

The editor was greeted at the depot Wednesday morning by an old neighbor, Sam'l Beveridge of Villisca, Iowa, who with his wife had been visiting her sons Chas. and Joe Reynolds, at Bloomfield, and were on their way to visit another son in the western part of the state. Mr. Beveridge is brother to the Indiana ex-senator, of whom all know.

L. J. Courtwright went to Sioux City this morning to visit his daughter, Mrs. Chas. Van Norman. He says that they are improving in health, but still under quarantine, and that unable to get out to get supplies they have been neglected by the authorities, and he was going to look after them and bring them back with him if quarantine could be raised.

C. H. Hendrickson has his hat in the ring, being a candidate for the republican nomination for county attorney. Attorney Hendrickson has been practicing law in Nebraska eight years, the three last past at Wayne, and two years of that time has been city attorney. He is a graduate from the Nebraska law department of the university, coming from southwestern Iowa to this state for his schooling and his work. He will have no opposition for the nomination, and in the campaign will have to try titles with the present county attorney, L. A. Kiplinger, who is the democratic candidate for the second term.

Thomas Shannon, who has been staying at the home of his son Dan at Carroll for the past four or five weeks, went to Sioux City Tuesday to visit a son living there.

Mrs. Davis and her son Wm. Davis from Blenco, Iowa, accompanied by Mr. Williams and family of San Jacinto, California, the lady a niece of Mrs. Davis, have been here visiting at the home of A. R. Davis and wife.

It is reported that Mrs. Delahoid, formerly of this place and later of Norfolk and Mr. Lowry who formerly conducted the Boyd barber shop were married at Norfolk two weeks ago, and are now making their home at Cainsville, Iowa. Both are well known at Wayne.

Leo Menuey of Stuart, who owns the building in which Bert McClary had the Wayne market has bought the stock and fixtures at the expiration of the McClary lease, and is in possession. He says that a market will be continued at that place, but arrangements are not quite complete yet as to by whom. He is not a practical market man. After investigation, Mr. Bohnert decided not to close the deal for the place.

Miss Iiah B. Ohlson of Stanton, who has been attending summer school at Norfolk, came over from that place Tuesday to visit Wayne friends at the normal and in the city. Miss Ohlson has taught several years at Stanton, and this year has listened to the voice of her many friends and entered the race for the democratic nomination for superintendent of school. She has no opponent of the same party for the nomination.

Mrs. L. C. Gildersleeve went to Rochester, Minnesota, Thursday morning to see her son, Donald, who has been there for the past two weeks, or with relatives near that place. It is thought that he will need to undergo an operation for appendix trouble. Last fall he was taken to Sioux City and underwent an operation, but conditions were such at that time that it was not thought best to remove the appendix, and he still has some trouble.

Marcus Kroger has shipped the first car of new wheat of the season from Wayne, and it is two weeks earlier than ever before shipped from this place. The quality was good, but the price is uncertain from day to day. There is a big wheat crop in this country already harvested, and to hold the market level there comes reports and contradictions of conditions in the Dakotas and Canada. One of the latest is that the wheat crop will be short in both places.

Chas. E. Paul, former editor of the Enterprise, was operated upon in Sioux City last Wednesday morning for appendicitis. Mr. Paul had been doing some painting at the farm of his mother near Wakefield, recently, and fell from a scaffold, bruising him up severely and had gone to Sioux City to consult medical advice when the case of appendicitis developed and the operation followed. The writer received a card from Mr. Paul last Saturday evening stating that he was getting along nicely and would be home some time this week.—Emerson Enterprise.

G. R. Nunnally, one of the pioneer newspaper men of this state, so he told us, was a caller Wednesday, on his way to Norfolk where he expected to meet some money and clean clothes. He writes for numerous city papers, or used to, over the non-deplure L. G. Faust, M. D., for he is a graduate of the Annapolis school of years ago. In Nebraska he won the title of "Antelope Dick" claiming to kill a bunch of antelope that had been killed by the Indians. He admitted that in small matters of that kind such as telling of indian fights, etc., he won the reputation of being an entertaining preparator. He perhaps practiced what Abe Martin said by not being hampered by facts when talking or writing for entertainment. He was on his way to Columbus, and after a feed and two strong pulls at the city water faucet he started west with a tie pass for Winside, and expected to meet supplies at Norfolk.

State Normal Notes

Miss Iiah B. Ohlson, candidate for county superintendent of Stanton county, was a visitor Tuesday.

A. E. Hering and sister were called to their home at Wynot by a message announcing the serious illness of their uncle.

Mrs. W. E. Watkins delighted the students with a vocal solo at convocation Monday morning. It was Mrs. Watkins' first appearance at the normal but it is hoped that she will come again.

The Cedar county teachers expect to repeat by request the special program given at the chapel hour last week. This program will be given in the chapel on Friday evening, July 24.

Miss Jennie B. Adams, the efficient secretary in the office of state superintendent, spent Monday as a guest of the school. She left in the evening for O'Neill where she will visit the junior normal.

Upon invitation Mr. John Rockwell met the board of education of the Butte schools and returned last Saturday with a contract for the superintendency of the schools for the ensuing year. Butte is a four-year accredited high school and we congratulate Mr. Rockwell on being called to so responsible a position.

Miss Franc B. Hancock, assisted by the members of the class in domestic science, entertained the members of the faculty and their wives last Tuesday afternoon. A delightful hour was spent in social conversation, inspecting the equipment of the department, and in sampling the goods turned out by the students enrolled for cooking. A delightful buffet luncheon was served.

The Allpress-Miner concert given in the normal chapel last Thursday evening was fully up to the high expectations of the lecture committee and of the audience who greeted them. The company is one of real artists who put on their program with the ease and grace of the oldest professionalists. The program consisted of violin, soprano solos, and readings, and it is sufficient to say that every number was excellent.

A Minnesota Letter

Miss Myrtle Hutchings, in sending a subscription remittance from Marshall, Minnesota, adds a few items of interest to her Wayne friends as well as to all of our readers. She says we were so thankful for the Souvenir number, it was so nice and so natural. We have a nice country here, not so rolling as northeastern Nebraska, and crops are fine here this year. We have had plenty of rain and grain stands nearly shoulder high on the low lands, and harvest is just beginning and most of the corn is tasseling now. We had a dandy garden this spring.

"I see by the paper that you had quite a big time the 4th, and I suppose you will soon be having chautauqua. Chautauqua was held here in June, but did not attend for we are too far from town—6 miles from Marshall, which is about the size of Wayne, a very pretty town and a good market. We are only four miles from another town, a little berg of 300 people.

"Wishing you a continued success with the Democrat, I will tell all of my Wayne friends Hello."

Yours respectfully,
Myrtle Hutchings.

Crop Reports

But few reports have come in from threshing machines, but those that we have are quite satisfactory. Ted Perry threshed 40 acres of spring wheat this week that averaged 18½ bushels of good quality wheat. This was less than Mr. Perry expected a few weeks ago, before a few days of hot muggy weather put in on the bum—but it was three bushels per acre more than he estimated when he cut it. He also threshed out a field of oats that he has not yet got account of, but in quality they were good, and weighed near 40 pounds to the measured bushel. The yield will be above 40 per acre.

Henry Klopping threshed a field of oats last week and the quality is reported good and the yield at 54 bushels per acre. That is not bad.

Don't worry about the corn crop if it does not rain—you cannot help that—but one who has tried it, says that a boy, a horse and five-shovel cultivator set to run shallow kept going between the rows breaking the crust and forming dust mulch will add from five to ten bushels per acre to the corn yield. That is worth trying and now is the time to try it. Keep a boy or two busy and watch the result.

The hearing of the A. D. Lewis charge with practicing medicine and rubbing without license, is set for this afternoon before the county judge.

A PESSIMIST

He Was Converted to Optimism

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

Billy Bryce and I were inseparable companions, bosom friends. We were opposites in disposition, and I think such dissimilarity is one of the most effective of all causes of friendship. Billy was as cheery a chap as ever lived. I was inclined to be morose. Billy said nice things to people which he only half meant. I said gruff things to them that I didn't mean at all. I didn't need to understand Billy, because he always appeared amiable, but Billy needed to understand me, for I was constantly saying something disagreeable—why, I scarcely know myself, quite likely to cover up a liking for the person to whom I spoke. I was very dependent upon Billy for cheerfulness, and when he wrote me that he was engaged to be married it was a sad blow to me. I had had other friends who had married, and the friendship between us was never the same as before their marriage. I would go to their homes for Sunday dinner and be heartily welcomed, but it was always plain that the wife and children had supplanted me. I was a second, third or fourth consideration. Billy's letter indicated that he realized the change his marriage would cause in our intimacy and seemed intent on preventing it so far as possible. "I wish," he said, "that there shall be the same friendliness between you and Luella as between you and me. You shall have the freedom of the house at all times, whether I am at home or absent. You must not expect me to have the slightest jealousy for you. My fiancée agrees with me perfectly in this and, instead of having that jealousy brides are subject to for a bosom friend of her husband, will welcome you to the family circle as one of us."

This did not reassure me at all. I was supplanted, put down from first to second place. I knew Billy's optimistic disposition and also knew that he could not suspend a natural jaw. I wrote him that if he did not wish the lady he was to marry to freeze me out of the house he had better tell her that if she wished it he would never see me again. "That's just like you," he replied, "but you can't move either me or Luella with your pessimism."

Billy asked me to be best man, but I detest ceremonies and took care to be called away on a matter of business at the time of the wedding. But I sent a handsome wedding present. I was not so brutally frank as to tell Billy I had gone away on purpose to get rid of officiating at his wedding, but I told him that doubtless his bride would appreciate my wedding gift far more than she would me.

After the wedding Billy brought his wife to the city where he and I had always lived. The first time I met his wife I was surprised that he should have married a girl with a disposition so like his own. His wife grasped my hand cordially, looked at me with a smile on her pretty lips and a twinkle in her bright eye and said:

"Billy says you are awful grumpy, but we'll take that out of you, won't we, Billy?" and she looked at him knowingly.

My first call was short. I suppose I am prone to look out for trouble, but it seemed to me that Mrs. Bryce was a trifle too demonstrative. I was stricken with fear that instead of being jealous of me, as I had supposed, she might make Billy jealous of me, and that would be ten times worse than if she should freeze me out. I went away determined that I would not be drawn into any such danger. To be supplanted in first place with my friend was bad enough; to be placed at enmity with him would be harrowing. I resolved that I would not call on Mrs. Bryce again for a month at least.

But the very next day I was summoned to the telephone and heard the lady's cheery voice say:

"Is that you, Mr. Quimby? Come up to dinner this evening. We dine at 7. You needn't bother about evening dress if you don't wish to. Don't fail me. Billy has to go out, and I shall be all alone."

While I was trying to frame an excuse I heard a click, and that was the end of the one-sided dialogue. All that afternoon I was trying to persuade myself that there was no way out of the matter, but the truth is that in my heart I didn't wish to find a way out of it. I had no place to spend the evening but my club, and I was tired enough of it. I wished to bask in the light of Mrs. Bryce's cheerfulness.

Resolution is of no use where a pretty woman is concerned, and I could scarcely wait after business was over for the dinner hour. It came at last and was made welcome by Billy and his wife, Billy regretting that he was obliged to go out during the evening, but he would come home as early as possible. He was ever so much obliged to me for the favor done him of "keeping Lu from being lonely."

Just before dinner was served I saw a servant carrying a tray covered with dishes upstairs. I supposed Billy and his wife were alone in the house except for the servants and asked if any one was ill.

"A relative of Lu's," said Billy. "She's not ill, only bashful; doesn't like to meet strangers, you know."

Billy didn't more than half finish his dinner before he arose from the table.

"Sorry to leave you, old man," he said. "You'll excuse me, won't you? Lu will take good care of you. I'll try to get in before 10. Don't go till I come back."

I was left tete-a-tete with a pretty woman, and Billy had taken care to have a bottle of good wine on the table, so that had I not been sensible of the danger of the situation I should have rejoiced. I was somewhat reassured by a twinkle in Mrs. Bryce's eye when she kissed her husband goodby, for I began to think, after all, they had conspired to get rid of my belief that Billy's marriage would be a deprivation to me.

Whatever was their design, I fell into it. I did not fear for Mrs. Bryce, but I did fear for myself. She showed no disposition to go back on Billy by deed, word or look. It was I who in my heart envied my friend his wife.

Billy did not return at 10 o'clock or at 11. At half past 11 I tore myself away after having passed a delightful evening.

During the next week Billy and his wife were constantly telephoning for me. I found myself becoming infatuated with her and tried to keep away, but they wouldn't let me do so. Billy was as persistent as his wife and she as persistent as Billy.

A guilty conscience needs no accuser, and it seemed to me that Billy must notice my embarrassment, my shamefacedness. But he didn't. At any rate, he was as cordial, as jovial, as affectionate as he had ever been. And, as for being jealous of me, such an idea appeared never to enter his head. Indeed, he seemed to be constantly contriving to leave me alone with his wife.

I had not been introduced to Mrs. Bryce a week before Billy announced that he was called away on business and would be absent for about ten days.

"What!" I exclaimed. "Leave your wife so soon after your wedding?"

"What can I do? Business won't wait while a man is spooning with a new wife. Besides, Lu won't go with me."

"Indeed, I won't," said Lu. "I detest traveling. Besides, how would I amuse myself, shut up in a hotel, while Billy was attending to business? No, thank you. I'm comfortable here."

"There!" said Billy. "You see what marriage is. They're very sweet on you till they get you; then you discover that it's all put on."

His wife reproached him, but seemed to have difficulty in repressing a smile. Truly they were taking a great deal of trouble to make me feel that I had been a gainer instead of a loser by Billy's marriage.

I spent every evening at Billy's house during his absence. I made one sticky effort to miss an evening, but Mrs. Bryce asked me what in the world she would do alone. I asked her if the relative Billy had mentioned as being with her would not be a companion for her, but she said that person had gone the same day as Billy.

By the time the ten days of Billy's absence had gone—and they seemed but half a week—I had so far given my heart to his wife that I dared not meet him. I asked Mrs. Bryce when she expected him, and she said not for a couple of days. But when dining with her I heard a key in the latch of the front door and knew that my bosom friend—now my bosom enemy—had returned. He ushered in a lady who I noticed resembled his wife. She came up to me smiling and put out her hand.

"I am Mrs. Bryce," she said. "We have all been playing a game. Billy thought it would be a good joke to introduce you to my sister, Edith, as his wife. He said he thought it would break the formality of your coming under the new conditions. I kept out of the way till Billy concluded to be absent for a while; then I went with him."

"And you are the relative to whom a dinner was carried upstairs?"

"I am."

"To tell the truth, old man," Billy broke in, "you were getting so devoted to my wife that I thought I'd better—"

"William!" protested she who had played the part of his wife.

This was a great bouleversement both for me and Edith. So long as she had been the leading lady in a play she had not scrupled at anything, but now that she must be herself again she began to show signs of embarrassment. I was too stupid to see that this plot had been intended to take proper care of me in the loss of my friend by giving me a wife. I confess I was at a loss to understand why they had thought proper to play such a joke on me, but I did not refer it to its true source.

We had a merry dinner together which was only marred by Billy, who could not resist the temptation to gape me for my devotion to one whom I had supposed to be his wife. His taunts were only appreciated by himself. His wife tried to frown him down, his sister-in-law looked daggers at him, while I looked silly. However, the dinner at last ended. Billy and his wife went upstairs ostensibly to rest after their journey, but really to leave me alone with Edith.

I put an end to the embarrassment attending the joke that had been played upon me by proposing to Edith that since she had played the role of wife so well she had better be a real wife. She assented. Mr. and Mrs. Bryce were the next day informed that the play had ended in a reality. Billy enjoyed his joke hugely, declaring that it was the only way I could have been saved from a lonely old pessimism.

Rats Don't Eat Safe Home Matches

When a fire occurs and no one knows what caused it, the average man is apt to say: "I guess it was rats. They eat matches, you know."

Rats don't eat Safe Home Matches. They can't be made to eat them. That has been proven, time and again.

Safe Home Matches are made of ingredients which, although non-poisonous, are obnoxious to rodents.

Safe Home Matches light easily, but not too easily. They are safe—safe and sure.

The sticks are extra long, and extra strong. Safety again!

They are non-poisonous. Safety once more.

They cost no more than other brands of matches. As a matter of fact, they cost less, because every Safe Home Match is a match.

POINTS THAT SHOW QUALITY IN CATTLE

In judging fat steers of the beef breeds, either grades or pure breeds, the one selected to head the line should be that animal which is capable of converting a given amount of food into the largest number of pounds of the best quality of beef—in other words, the one which represents the largest profit to the farmer, says the Iowa Homestead.

According to Professor H. R. Smith, this means good size for age, outward indications of thrift and gaining capacity, such as depth of body, fullness of heart girth, etc.; early maturing and rapid fattening qualities usually associated with the low set, blocky build and wide, short head, and finally an animal which when slaughtered will yield the highest percentage of dressed beef with fat and lean nicely marbled

Hereford cattle are unequaled as rustlers. They will go farther for a bite to eat or a drink of water than any other breed. While adverse conditions are not to be invited, yet
the best of countries have off years, and when these off years come we want a breed that can maintain itself through a drought. Herefords will find and consume more waste feed on a farm than any of the thin skinned breeds that have to have their feed served to them in warm barns. Herefords will outstrut any other cattle.

and a carcass particularly well developed in those parts which command the highest price.

As these cuts—the prime rib, the sirloin and portehouse steak—come from the back much emphasis is given to width and fullness behind the shoulder, the well sprung rib, good width of back and loin and thickness of covering over these parts. Next in importance come the wide, level rump and fullness in the thighs which yield the round or plain steaks. Excessive bone, as indicated by coarseness about the head and prominent hips, is not desired. Neither is it desirable to have with that high condition of flesh so much sought in beef cattle great lumps and rolls of tallow just underneath
the skin which necessarily mean a loss to the butcher.

Professor Smith says in judging breeding cattle of any of the beef breeds the same inherent fattening tendency and the same meat carrying capacity must be seen, for there is a law in animal breeding called "like begets like." But, while breeding cattle of the beef breeds must show their product and reveal to the touch its character, a condition of flesh so high as to impair reproduction is not to be encouraged. Offspring is expected from them regularly, and there must be indications in both sexes of a capacity to reproduce true to type.

While the same general term as described for the fat steer is sought in breeding cattle of the beef breeds, there must be with that form certain strong indications of breeding ability.
This is shown in the sire by the wide,
masculine head; the short, thick neck, with the well developed crest and moderately heavy fore quarter. In the dam there is wanted effeminacy as revealed by refinement of head, neck, closely knit shoulder and somewhat smaller bone throughout. In judging the different breeds some attention is also given to what is known as breed character.

These, according to this scientist, are some of the principal qualities to be observed in rating beef cattle as they appear in the show ring.

Alkali Sickness a Myth.
Sick cattle in the plains states are often said to be "alkalied"—that is, injured by the alkali in the water. The South Dakota Agricultural college kept cows for two years and a half on water from a well so strong in alkali that its owner dared not use it for his stock. It did not affect their milk or condition, and when killed their vital organs were healthy. Something else must cause the trouble called "alkali sickness," except where cattle drink from pools made abnormally strong by evaporation.—Farm and Fireside.

Worms In Sheep.
Intestinal worms in sheep come from pasturing grass that has been used by sheep for years and especially such land that lies along a river or pond or that is low and wet. Gasoline is the remedy. The dose is a tablespoonful in four or six ounces of new milk, repeating the dose several times at intervals of two or three days.
Lambs take less in proportion. Generous feeding is imperative.

IN THE DAIRY.

During the summer the cows enjoy the cool nights. If a good pasture lot near the barn can be provided for them time will be saved in the morning, and the cows will do better.

Not one cow barn in a hundred has enough windows. Sunshine is amply provided by nature, and it's a shame to shut it out of the stable.

The watering tank should be well covered, except where the stock are allowed to drink. It keeps the water cleaner and cooler.

It's a mistake to try to make a profitable animal out of a ratty scrub.

Skim milk is such a valuable feed that the separator is a necessity on every dairy farm.

FARM WORK HORSES.

A Little Care Will Help Greatly In Keeping Them In Condition.

Summer is the hardest season on the farm horse. By July you can see this very plainly if you will observe the horses that are tied at the hitch racks around the public square or along the side streets on a Saturday afternoon.
writes a correspondent of the Farm Progress. Their hair looks bad; there are marks on their backs and shoulders, and the hair is gone where the tugs have rubbed during the plowing.

Many of them are thin and bony, and their manes and tails look as though they had never known a comb or a brush. At the same time you notice these evidences of hard work and lack of care you will see other horses that have been worked just as hard that are in good working condition and spirits.

An irritable, nervous, high-strung man will worry a team thin in a few weeks. I used to plow across the fence from one of these irascible individuals with a keen, high pitched voice. His squalling and yelling actually worried my own team when we would be working but a few rods apart. You could hear him for a mile squalling and beating them. His mules would be thin and weary looking by the time he got

I believe that the general purpose horse is the most satisfactory grade of horse for general use on the farm. For this reason I raise Percherons and have found them a very good all around horse, writes an Iowa farmer. I begin to break my colts when they are three years old or a little more, always putting them alongside of a steady horse.
I give my work horses hay and oats with a little corn and let brood mares and colts run outside all day even during the coldest weather in winter. When the colts are six months old I wean them, giving them a ration of hay and oats. In raising horses I have found that the most profitable returns are received from only the best grades of colts and aim to raise nothing but good horses. The horse pictured is a Percheron grade.

his crop in, and a mule cares about as little for that sort of a thing as any animal you could name.

Jerking the line, pulling the animals back suddenly upon their haunches, swinging them sharply around at the end of the row and slapping them constantly with the heavy lines will irritate and worry a team far more than an occasional tap with a whiplash.

Hammering their legs with the back of a currycomb and brush while grooming them, beating them around in the stalls to make them "stand over" and shoving them over in the stall by "hunching" them with the knee will worry them down. Slamming the harness on as roughly as though you were throwing it on a wooden horse is another trick that will not make a horse comfortable.

Sheep Management.
If the flockowner does not dip his flock to free them from ticks or lice he is wasting time and feed without getting profit. When he does not try to avoid parasites in the flock, does not change them to new pasture occasionally and allows them to drink from old stagnant water pools, he will be forced to learn through loss that he is not doing the right thing. In many cases such loss is attributed to "bad luck," when in reality it is nothing but mismanagement. The proper management of sheep needs to be learned like any other business.

Save the Good Heifers.
One of the greatest mistakes we have made in the past years is not raising our good trade heifer calves.
Now the demand for good cows is greater than the supply. When well bred grade two-year-old heifers sell for $75 to $100 it would seem we could market some of our surplus feed to good advantage through this channel.
Instead of sending so many thousand dollars to other states each year and buying something they want to get rid of.—J. P. Manson, Illinois.

SAVING THE PLAY

Actors Are Often Called Upon to Exercise Quick Wit.

SOME CURIOUS EXPERIENCES.

Rose Eyttinge Once Extemporized the Entire Part of Lady Isabel in "East Lynne"—How John Brougham Made a Hit Without His Leading Lady.

Quick wit has saved many an embarrassing situation, turned many a seemingly disastrous failure into success.
Politics, literature, courtesy, all are served by quick tongue and ready word.

Actors, as well as business men, have special use for quick wit, so often do they need help out of a difficulty during the play. A college performance was saved from wreckage by one of the young actors.

One of the cast, a boy easily upset, had just given his line, "All I need is an advertisement," when half of his stage mustache fell off.

"Oh, no," said the ready youth beside him, seeing his embarrassment;
"what you need is a hair restorer."

And under cover of the laughter the victim had a chance to recover himself.

It was surely the same readiness that enabled Rose Eyttinge to go through one of the most extraordinary experiences any actress ever had. In San Francisco she was once asked to fill Mary Anderson's place at short notice, appearing with the local stock company. The play was to be "East Lynne." By singular chance, no prompt book could be found, nor could they secure a copy of the novel. Miss Eytinge protested that it would be impossible for her to play, as she had never so much as seen the piece. That fact they refused to believe. Moreover, to add to her difficulty, though all the company claimed to know the old drama backward, no one seemed to have an idea of the lines she, as Lady Isabel, would have to speak.

"Oh, that'll be all right," said John McCullough, the manager, to whom she appealed, "Just you sob and look sorry, and it will go."

So Miss Eyttinge, rather than cause the loss of closing the theater, went on totally unprepared to act in an absolutely unfamiliar play.

Tom Keene, the Archibald Carlisle, instructed her in the proper emotion from scene to scene. "Now she's a jealous cat, a jealous cat," he would whisper. "Now she's kitteny." "Now she's sorry she was such a fool." "Now she wants her young ones." "Now she up and dies."

The performance seemed to cause entire satisfaction to the audience, and McCullough, as he generously handed over half the receipts to the heroine of the hour, declared, "Well, you may have had to vamp that part, but I've often seen it played with less soul."

The story of an experience demanding similar readiness of wit is told of John Brougham, the early American comedian and playwright. On one occasion, when his own clever burlesque,
"Pocahontas," had been billed and the house sold out in advance, the leading actress left without warning to take another position in Baltimore. The audience had assembled before her absence was discovered by the manager and star. As it was that play or nothing, Brougham, who was famed for his witty impromptu speeches, went before the curtain and suggested giving the piece without Pocahontas. He recalled the old story of the actor who played Hamlet so excellently that on the following night the tragedy was given with that character omitted by request.

"Now, if 'Hamlet' can be acted without the hero," he remarked, "why not 'Pocahontas' without the heroine? Of course you are all aware of the fact that 'Pocahontas' is a much greater play than 'Hamlet.' Even if you do not know that, I do, and I ought to, for I wrote it myself. Are you willing to try it?"

"Go ahead!" came the cries from the audience, who settled themselves back to see the result.

The burlesque proceeded as usual until the entrance music was played for Pocahontas; then, turning toward the audience, Brougham, as Powhatan, sadly began: "Ladies and gentlemen, that sweet strain is supposed to bring my daughter Pocahontas on the stage.
You are already aware that she is in the city of Baltimore, and the stern law of the land will not permit a Christian, much less a savage, to be in two places at once. Thus does the law protect that most useful instrument, the alibi. However, if Pooky were here she would hasten to say"—whereupon the comedian gave her lines in exact imitation of the missing actress, keeping up the dialogue in two persons all through the play. The delighted people who were fortunate enough to be present declared that Brougham was avenged.

G. P. Huntley tells of an incident that took place at an east side theater in London. The "gods" were booing the piece and throwing chunks of bread at the performers.
At last the star came forward and said: "Now, look here! We're trying our best to amuse you. Throw bread, if you like; but," he added as he stopped and poked up a chunk, "thank heaven
I'm not too proud to eat it."
The gods were vanquished.—Anna
Bird Stewart in New York Tribune.

Labor conquers all things. It is idleness that is the curse of man—not labor. Nothing is impossible to industry.—Motto of Perlander.

With only 6% of the world's population, the United States has more telephone wire in use than all the rest of the world.

Here are some interesting figures regarding the telephone wire in use in some of the leading countries:

Country	Population	Miles of Telephone Wire	% of Total Telephone Wire in World.
United States ..	96,299,000	20,248,326	60.88
Germany	66,640,000	4,175,782	12.56
Great Britain ...	46,122,000	2,360,000	7.09

Winside Notes

(From the Tribune)

The Winside Rebekah lodge met last Friday evening and initiated four candidates into the order. The work as put on by the Wayne Rebekah camp. Following the degree work a delicious luncheon was served.

Wm. Beard, of Van Tassel, Wyoming is visiting relatives and friends in this vicinity. He spent Tuesday in Hoskins.

Mrs. Steve Lieb and children left for Burke, Dakota, Tuesday where they will visit with relatives a week or more.

Mrs. Peter Pryor returned to her home at Creighton Thursday morning after a few days' visit with relatives. She was accompanied by her little granddaughter, Miss Marie Pryor.

The Misses Grace and Lillian Hamilton, of Plainview, arrived in Winside last Saturday to spend a week or two with relatives and friends. They are guests in the A. W. Waddell home.

Earl Douthit left Monday morning to resume his work on the road after a few weeks vacation spent in Winside. Mr. Douthit is still traveling for a book house with headquarters at University Place.

A traveling silk merchant was in town last Saturday with a dirty grip full of shawl worn silks. Folks in this vicinity, not being as ready to bite as he wished, caused him to depart grumbling, in search of greener fields.

E. G. Sundahl, wife and family arrived in Winside Saturday and will visit with relatives and friends a few weeks. They made the trip in their auto. Mr. Sundahl is now engaged in the real estate business at Minnesota, Minnesota.

Miss Ella Baird entertained the Delta Alphas at her country home last Friday afternoon. The trip was made in automobiles. Ten members and three visitors were present. After a most pleasant afternoon the hostess served refreshments.

Miss Caroline Dyart returned from Weaington, S. D., Saturday, where she had been visiting the Templeton family the past two weeks. Miss Jessie Templeton returned with her and will spend a few days here meeting old acquaintances.

Dan Cavanaugh disposed of his lots east of the Fred Thies elevator to Gus Mittlestadt last week. Gus intends to erect several sheds to accommodate sand and coal, and a switch will be built and extended to the new yard, where the sand and coal cars can be conveniently unloaded.

A. H. Carter, with the assistance of Dan Cavanaugh, made a great clearing about the Carter store building the past week. An old ice house was torn away and converted into a neat bill board. The sidewalks and steps were fixed, ditches cleaned out and trees trimmed. It adds greatly to the appearance.

A sharp vivid flash of lightning, followed by a terrific crash, struck the old German church in the east part of town Wednesday morning. The bolt struck the steeple of the church tearing off numerous shingles and tore its way into the hallway where it struck a can of kerosene piercing it on either side. The freak of the bolt in that the kerosene was not ignited seems to mystify the local populace.

The ladies of the Home Department entertained their husbands at the home of Mrs. Frank Perrin Tuesday evening. The long tables on the beautiful lawn were loaded with good things prepared by the ladies and judging from the way the eatables disappeared everyone must have been satisfied. The evening was spent in games and a general good time was the verdict of all present.

Mr. and Mrs. Cy Henderson, from Oregon, visited Winside last Tuesday. The Henderson family will be remembered by residents of Winside, some twenty years ago. No doubt the editors of the "Watchman," Mr. and Mrs. Coons, shall remember the daughter, who for some horrid comments in the paper met Mrs. Coons on the street and pummeled her in the face until the blood ran to the sidewalk. Those were the days when Winside was in the wild west.

Hoskins News

(From the Headlight)

A large number of base ball fans went to Norfolk Sunday afternoon where they witnessed a double-header.

Work was started on building the new bank last Saturday and reports are that the bank will open up to the public on about September 1st.

Gus Marten entertained a large number of friends and relatives Saturday evening at his farm nine miles northwest of Hoskins. The evening was enjoyed by all.

Miss Elizabeth Kingsbury, German instructor at the Wayne State Normal came Saturday evening and was a guest at the Rev. John Aron home until Sunday afternoon.

A large crowd of relatives and friends went to the Chas. Brubaker home Sunday afternoon and evening where they helped Mrs. Brubaker celebrate her 34th birthday anniversary.

Charley Woolley, whose home is at Hardy, came last week Wednesday evening to visit relatives. He came from near Lincoln and is on his way to the harvest fields in South Dakota.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Chapin and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cavanaugh all from Winside autoed into our city Friday evening for a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Averill.

Miss Edna Baluass who is a student of the Wayne normal, was in our city between trains Saturday and interviewed our school board in regard to a position in our school for the coming term.

Martin Schwint and family who left here last fall and moved to Lincoln returned here Thursday afternoon and will make Hoskins their home again. They rented the Henry Krause residence in the south part of town.

The farmers in our locality are through cutting their grain with the exception of a few who will get through this week, and shock-threshing has started. The wheat here is of very poor quality and it was reported that it will not yield as much as last year.

Art Ziegler is in town Friday and made the remark that he would be willing to donate a day's work with a wagon and team to help lay the sand hill near the Krause Sr. residence on the road just west of town, if there were others who would be willing to help also. This would be a great thing especially for those who travel there and here is hoping that some one will take Art up on the proposition.

Miss Ethel Felt went to Laurel Saturday.

Fridolf Johnson of Chicago is visiting in the neighborhood.

Paul Seastedt visited with John Soderberg last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sundahl entertained friends in honor of their nieces, the Misses Planck of York.

Miss Grace Soderberg entertained friends Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. David Seastedt returned to their home in Omaha Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Olson called on John Munson's Sunday.

Nels Hermon shipped cattle Wednesday to Omaha. He is reported to be well pleased with the market.

How do you like the dry weather? Is it a second 1913 or 1899? S. E. Soderberg's called on Chas. Munson's Sunday.

Geo. Worth, formerly of this neighborhood but now of Scotts Bluffs, is reported to be seriously injured.

A Story of an American In Mexico

By F. A. MITCHEL

Malcolm Burch, having inherited enough money to enable him to set himself up in some sort of business and not fancying mercantile pursuits, cast about for an out of door method of investment. He visited the west, looked over the sheep growing industry and concluded that under the conditions it was not inviting. Going down to Galveston, he sailed for Vera Cruz, Mexico, and thence he went by rail up to the capital.

Coffee raising appeared much more attractive to him than sheep raising, and he decided to spend some time on a coffee plantation studying the culture of the bean. Every morning he mounted a horse, donning Mexican riding costume, which consists of tight trousers with a row of buttons running the full length of the leg, a short coat and a profusely decorated sugar loaf sombrero. In this attire Mr. Burch looked very handsome and, being a young man in the twenties, was especially fitted to capture the hearts of Mexican maidens.

One morning he was riding along a road lined with tropical verdure. The sun shone brightly and would have shone hot had not its rays been tempered by the high altitude of the Mexican plateau, which is more than 7,000 feet above the sea. The country combined the beauties of the tropics with the exhilarating air of the mountains. Indeed, there were peaks all about him, while in the distance an elongated mountain presented the form of a woman resting on her bier, the snow forming her winding sheet.

Before Malcolm Burch tripped a little Mexican girl, her jacket, covered with spangles, reached barely to her waist. Her skirt, bedecked in like manner, fell not far below the knee. Not needing her robes—a garment Mexican women wear over their heads and shoulders—she carried it on her arm.

"If anything were needed," said the American to himself, "to complete this delicious landscape it would be the little figure sparkling in the rays of the sun."

When he reached the girl she turned and cast a glance at him. She was neither Spanish nor Indian, but a mixture of the two races. Her Spanish ancestors must have once dwelt under the Pyrenees, where the climate is mild and many of the people are fair, for her hair had a gold tinge in it, and her eyes, if not blue, were certainly not black. She was apparently about sixteen years old.

Burch had picked up a few words of Spanish for ordinary use, but not enough to carry on a conversation. But a man does not need words to express admiration. Indeed, the word beside the look would seem very tame. Burch knew the words to express "Where are you going?" but did not understand the reply. He put out his hand and his foot resting in the stirrup, meaning "If you will give me your hand and put your little foot on mine I will lift you up behind me and carry you whithersoever you are going."

The girl hesitated, then advanced, did as he indicated, and he swung her up behind him on the horse's back. To keep her position she must put her arms about his waist, and whenever his hand touched hers there came a tingle that ran by leaps and jumps to his heart. He asked her her name, and she said it was Rosa Puente with such a musical voice that, pretty as it was, the name sounded much prettier.

They rode along, he mixing English and Spanish, three parts English to one of Spanish, she adhering to the musical language which was the only one she knew. She looked and acted unsophisticated, but when they approached a clump of adobe houses she slid down on the ground, knowing full well that she must not appear in company with a man. Had she been of the upper class she could not have been more particular in this respect, that class in which girls are not permitted to converse with members of the opposite sex except through a barred window, or the man standing in the street while the girl stands on a balcony above him.

Malcolm Burch said "Buena bye," mixing his languages as usual, and the girl replied in the vernacular. He forced his horse to walk very slowly in order that he might keep her ahead of him, partly that he might feast his eyes on her graceful figure and partly to observe where she went. She stopped at an adobe house with a thatched roof in the center of a small yard in which chickens and vegetables and flowers grew indiscriminately.

The knowledge that Rosa Puente was not one of the higher class Mexicans, while it brought a shadow of disappointment, did not deter Burch from following up an affair which he should have dropped at once. When he went to sleep that night he passed from consciousness to slumber with a jumble of Rosa Puente and other varieties of roses, adobe houses, chickens and such articles running and jumping before him, and during the night he dreamed that he was trying to catch Rosa Puente and the chickens were always in his way.

What use to lay down the devices practiced by these two to meet with out their meetings being known to the girl's relatives and friends? The Spanish custom of putting young women behind bars is not conducive to keeping them from men when they are, so to speak, "out of jail." Rosa was far more adept in arranging meetings with Burch than an American girl of her age would be. While she possessed the naive innocence of youth, she had for several years been given to understand that she was not trusted, and it is not easy for such persons to consider themselves on their honor. Be this as it may, Burch met Rosa frequently, and she laid all the plans for their meetings.

Burch went to Mexico City just after the revolution that landed Victoriano Huerta in the presidency. When Carranza, governor of the state of Coahuila, determined to revolt and avenge the death of Madero the conditions rapidly changed. The governor first got all the arms there were in Saltillo, then proceeded to take all the money. Burch was not pleased with this condition of things and decided that, after all, he would not care to invest his money in Mexico. Such being the case, there was but one thing for him to do, go somewhere else. This was a very easy mental process for him, there being nothing to regret in leaving Mexico, not even Rosa Puente, for three or four months' association with a girl who lived in a mud edifice is usually quite enough for a man born with a silver spoon in his mouth. Somehow it did not occur to Burch that there would be any objection on Rosa's part to part with him. He had never seen any member of her family, though she had told him she had a father, a mother and some small brothers and sisters. She said that her father was away from home a good deal of the time. When he returned he had plenty of money, a part of which he spent in buying what the family needed and the rest in the national drink, pulque. When it was all gone he returned to follow the same course as before.

But Burch was not interested in the Puente family, for he had not followed the ordinary process of courting in vogue in the country and had made no application for Rosa's hand. He looked upon his affair with the little Mexican girl as a very pleasant one. At first he had wished that she was a lady that he might marry her, but time had cured him of that. What concerned him now was how to get out of Mexico with $20,000 that he had brought there to invest in a coffee plantation as soon as he had learned how to manage one.

He turned his money into American banknotes and distributed them in different parts of his clothing. Then when he was ready to start for Vera Cruz, proposing to make the journey on horseback, he sent Rosa word by a messenger he had used before to meet him at their usual trysting place. When they met Burch was on horseback ready for his departure for Texas. "Dismounting," he took Rosa in his arms, kissed her and told her that he must go to the United States. It was not safe for him to keep money any longer in a country where levies of cash were made on the citizens by one side or the other. He was going to get his money in the bank in Galveston; then he would come back to her—that is, if it were possible to get through.

Rosa received the announcement with her head on Burch's breast, so that he could not see her expression. He feared she might object to his going, but was surprised after a prolonged silence to see her look up and say: "You are right. Put your money in a safe place. If you will wait till I can get a horse I will go part way with you."

There was a peculiar expression on her face when she said this that he did not quite like. However, he expressed pleasure at having her with him, and she went to get a horse. She came back presently with one she had borrowed from a neighbor, and the two started northward.

Rosa said very little, which Burch naturally attributed to her reluctance to part with him. He thought it best to talk about what he would do when he returned, but this did not move her to a more pleasurable feeling. When they came to where the road forked she insisted that the one on the left was the shortest route to Burch's destination, Laredo. He knew better, but allowed himself to be persuaded to go her way. When they had been on the road a couple of hours he suggested that she turn back, since she had far to go and would be tired. But she said she would go a little farther.

In passing over a declivity they looked down on a small clump of trees, and he saw a group of horsemen. Burch paled. He knew that he had met with a force of rebels or bandits; he suspected the latter. A man sang out from below for them to advance. They did so, and the men in the camp spoke to Rosa familiarly, as if they knew her. A man approached, and she called him "Padre." Then she told him something in Spanish which Burch did not understand.

Turning to Burch she said, "Money," which was the only English word he knew. Burch saw at once that he had been led into a trap by the girl whom he had considered plaything.

Half an hour later the American, at the request of Rosa Puente, was permitted to resume his journey; but without his $20,000 and without the girl.

"Goodby, señor," she said. "I thought that your money would be safer with my father than in the bank at Galveston. You needn't trouble yourself to come back on my account, for I would not think of mating with a 'kringo.'" She said this in a mixture of Spanish and English, the latter having been picked up in the love passages that had occurred between her and the American.

HORSE POINTERS.

Indigestion is the cause of more than half the diseases of the horse and largely caused by improper food and working horses on full stomachs.

A bright, intelligent man, a good manager and a close observer will save more than his wages in the amount of work he will accomplish and in maintaining the condition of his team.

The mule should never be kept in a stall, but in a large, roomy pen. An open lot with a shed for shelter is better.

Horse breeding requires more capital, is more profitable, if successful, and involves larger losses, if not, than any other kind of stock breeding.

One of the greatest mistakes made by mare owners is the frantic attempt to produce draft stock from light mares at first cross with big stallions.

STARTING WITH HOGS.

Important Points to Consider When Selecting a Sow.

The purchase of bred sows is perhaps the easiest way to start in the swine business, and owing to the rapid rate of increase the desired number of breeding animals can soon be established, writes F. C. Minkler in the Rural New Yorker. In choosing such a sow for breeding purposes the following points are of importance:

She should be pure bred, well grown and developed by a reliable breeder and registered in a record association in good standing.

She should trace to a large, even litter, farrowed by a kindly disposed, heavy milking dam that showed good size, vigor, quality and fleshing characteristics. The pedigree should show in short tabulation family performance and popular breeding.

She should evidence good weight for age, possess a clean, shapely head; large, bright eyes; heavy, well set jaws; light, neat jaw; trim ears, with a short, smooth neck. She should possess, if in good condition, a long, straight, broad back; smooth, compact shoulders; deep, well arched sides, with even width throughout. The hams should be plump and shapely. The under line should be trim and dotted with many evenly placed rudimentaries. The legs should be straight and strong, with clean, dense bone, and the pasterns well supported. From every viewpoint she should evidence style, finish and symmetry.

Quality, as exhibited by the fine, silky coat of hair, refined head and shoulder, clean, fine bone and trim belly, determines dressing percentage. Avoid selecting highly conditioned show animals for breeding purposes, as very often they prove unable to reproduce in satisfactory numbers with any degree of regularity.

The use of serum and virus has revolutionized the treatment for prevention against cholera, and if convenient to obtain immune foundation stock initial losses and disappointments will be lessened.

THE RESTLESS COW.

Mistake to Attempt to Control Them at Milking Time.

We consider it a mistake to try to keep a restless cow quiet, says the editor of Hoard's Dairyman. We have had experience with such animals and found it a better practice to let them be restless rather than to try any method of quieting them. Unless a person can adjust himself to a cow of this kind it is more or less annoying, but if he will consider that it is practically impossible for the cow to behave in any other way than he will make the best of the situation, and the annoyance will not be so great. To attempt to keep an animal of this kind quiet is practically fruitless, and the results are always disappointing.

As a rule, when there is a conflict between the attendant and the cow there is a shrinkage in milk flow and very often a lower percentage of fat in the milk. Even when there is no apparent conflict cows will not do as well by some attendants as they will by others. In official work it has been found that some milkers will obtain a greater milk flow and a higher percentage of fat in the milk from certain cows than will other milkers. It is not always possible to tell by the action of a cow whether the milker is a good one or not or whether the animal will do her best with him. Close observation and the application of the scales and the Babcock tester will often determine, as stated, that one milker will get better results than another.

The Good Horseman.

The good horseman can take time enough at night and at noon to wash the shoulders with cold water and to clean the sweaty collars once a day. If the horses are stopped for a rest he can walk around and lift the collars and shift the harness enough to make the horse a little more comfortable.

He can see that the stalls are cleaned, that the grooming is done and that the water tank is clean and the water pure. He can let the horse roll when the work is over for the day, and he can keep his feed box from getting sour and filthy.

Garget in Cows.

Any derangement of the digestive organs may induce garget, and a cow may often take enough liniment to cause such derangement. There may be, sometimes, some other cause of shrinkage in milk.
