Incomplete Election Returns

Primary election in Wayne county was not exciting, there being but two offices in which there were opposing candidates for the same office within the same party. On the republican ticket Grant L. Mears and R. R. Smith were both asking for the nomination for representative, and when the votes were counted the returns now in show that Mears won by a vote of about two to one.

For commissioner in the second district Eph Anderson, the present commissioner lost to S. E. Auker, who entered the race at the request of his friends, by 7 votes as given by the unofficial returns. The democrats nominated P. M. Corbit, a farmer northeast of Wayne who has long been a resident of the county.

No one filed for the office of representative on the democratic side, but a number of the democrats from over the county did not propose to let a modest and good man stay out of the race, and W. D. Redmond of this city was named on many of the democratic ballots for the race.

For the remainder of the ticket the candidates who filed were nominated as follows:

For county clerk Chas. W. Reynolds on the democratic ticket without opposition. For treasurer L. W. Roe, republican was named, and there are scattered votes written for the democratic nominee, W. O. Hansen, seeming to head. For sheriff W. H. James and Geo. Porter received the nominations; for superintendent Mamie Wallace and Pearl Sewell; for attorney, L. A. Kiplinger and C. H. Hendrickson; surveyor E. J. Huntener, democrat, and no one filed on republican side.

In the congressional race Dan V. Stephens carried the county and the district by a safe majority over Art. J. Koenigstein, and his republican opponent at the general election will doubtless be O. S. Spillman, though returns are not yet complete.

The morning papers state that the nomination of Governor Morehead is assured by a large majority as the democratic candidate, and that Howell of Omaha will lead the republican forces.

For the supreme judge, Hollenbeck, Reese and Palmer are leading.

For Superintendent Thomas is ahead for the republican nomination and the democratic name is still in doubt.

Pool leads for the democratic candidate for secretary of state. Hall is in the lead for treasurer, Maupin leads for the office of railway commission. University regents are in doubt.

On the republican side Hall leads for railway commissioner, Howard is evidently defeated for auditor without telling who is the nominee. In fact the returns are so incomplete that there is no sure means of knowing except leading places, and there where the reports received are such as to show a long lead for some candidate.

Latest reports indicate that Hammond may hold second place on the republican list over Kemp of Fullerton, who according to first reports appeared to be close to Howell.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 19.—With returns from all counties of the state coming in slowly, owing to the length of the ballots of yesterday's statewide primary, all indications point to the renomination of Gov. John H. Morehead on the democratic gubernatorial ticket, by a vote that will equal the combined total of his two opponents, Richard L. Metcalfe, late civil governor of the Panama canal zone, and George W. Berge.

R. Beecher Howell, republican national committeeman, is leading in the race for the republican nomination for governor, with J. H. Kemp running a close second.

In the congressional fights, Maguire, in the First; Lobeck, in the Second; Stephens, in the Third; Shallenberger, in the Fifth, and Taylor, in the Sixth are leading for the democratic nominations. On the republican ticket, Reaves is leading in the First, and Blyackburn and Howard are now even in the Second. There were no contests in the other districts. The returns are coming in slowly, being delayed by severe electric storms in many parts of the state.

A Successful Teachers Meeting

The county teacher's institute now in session at the high school building in this city is one of the most interesting as well as most successful ever held in the county. With an enrollment of 100, real live work is being done. The old methods of teaching are giving way to better, more modern and practical ways. Branches of vital interest in every day life are receiving attention, and as a result the teachers take a new interest in the work, and this interest will be given to school work in a greater degree than ever before. The child who does not want to go to school will be harder to find—they come to want to go because the work is live and interesting.

The superintendent is commenting on punctuality and attendance at the session—interest is the reason. One teacher told the writer that she talks on agriculture by Harry E. Bradford were of such interest that she gladly remained to listen—she got so much from them—though in her work she expected to have no use for this branch. His talks on Geography and School Management are of the same high order and full of interest. Others than teachers who can be dropping in during his periods. And if the farmers could hear his talks they would appreciate and profit from them for he discusses farm matters that the farmer must consider or be crowded out of the way as a lumberer of the soil by a better informed farmer. There is more to farming—right farming, than any other calling.

Miss Niedemeyer is most efficient in teaching the art of instructing the little ones in the best method of learning and language, and she proves how practical are her methods by demonstrating them with a class of little shavers who are so deeply interested in the work that they keep her classes crowded with pupils as well as teachers.

Music is something that they did not think had a part in school work, but it has an important part and Prof. Rees Solomon is helping the teachers of this county to make use of music. Properly taught it comes to the school as much as a recreation as a study. This is the fourth year he has been in institute in this county. He has a happy manner of imparting instruction and his song selections are well made. His work is much helped by Mrs. Ed A. Johnson by her excellent accompaniments during the music hour.

The three lectures by Prof. H. Diggs of the Utah State university were of much value and interest, and others than teachers profited from hearing his talks on "Getting Results in Composition," "Corrective Work in Language," and "Building a Live Vocabulary." He is the author of "Live Language Lessons."

On Monday evening the teachers gathered at the high school for a social time. Since the evening was very warm most of the evening was spent out of doors telling stories. A committee of teachers served punch in the kindergarten room. Games were played. Mr. Solomon sang very beautifully to the teachers.

Dedicate Church Bell

At Winside, Sunday afternoon, with appropriate services, the German Evangelical Lutheran Trinity church dedicated a new bell to the service of the church. A large audience was present and listened to a sermon from Rev. W. Nitzschke of Pender, appropriate for the occasion, after which the pastor, Rev. Moehring spoke the words of dedication at the close of a short address.

The bell weighs about 750 pounds, and cost the church about $200. It is of pleasant tone, and will sound a cheerful call to worship for years to come. Winside and church are to be congratulated for this improvement.

Obituary—Rick Lauman

Rick Lauman was born at Holtland, East Friesland, Germany, November 2, 1852, and died at his home near Wayne, August 15, 1914, thus being aged 61 years, 9 months and 13 days. Mr. Lauman had always been a man of rugged health, knowing little of physical weakness. But about three weeks ago, falling from a haystack he suffered severe injuries. From these, however, he seemed to be gradually recovering, being able to sit up for a little while. But last Saturday morning, after being helped to his chair, he suddenly grew faint, and within a few moments life passed from him. His death was thus a surprise to all. Mr. Lauman came from Germany to this country, when 17 years of age, making his home for a time at Ackley, Iowa, but later went to Sioux Rapids, Iowa, to live. While here on September 4, 1888, he was married to Alma E. Bond, who was suddenly called away but a little over one year ago.

In 1886, the family came to Wayne county, Nebraska, settling on the farm east of Wayne, which he occupied till his death. While in Germany he was confirmed in the Lutheran church, in which church he was brought up.

Those surviving him are: His mother, Mrs. Elza Siefken, Sioux Rapids; two brothers, Chas. Seifken, Pilger and Dick Seifken, Sioux Rapids; one sister, Lena Seifken, Sioux Rapids; five children, Mrs. J. E. Sweet, Hot Springs, S. D., Mrs. E. L. Noakes, Jno. Lauman, Mrs. F. A. Nance, and Bessie Lauman, all of Wayne.

Mr. Lauman was a man who knew the meaning of hard work, and struggle, and misfortune. What he had, he made by his own effort. He represented a type of the immigrant who in the early days, helped develop the resources of this country. But he, too, like many another lived long enough to replant little of the better fruits of his toil. The younger generation has had the wilderness of the west made in to a garden of beauty for them, by these pioneers of early days, who were not afraid of hardships and struggles.

The funeral was from the Baptist church Monday afternoon, Rev. B. P. Richardson preaching the sermon to a large audience who gathered to pay a tribute of respect to this sturdy character and sympathize with the bereaved family.

Card of Thanks—We desire to express our appreciation for the many acts of sympathy and kindness extended during the days following the accident which resulted in the death of father, and for the sympathy and kindness shown after his sudden death as well as the floral offerings.

Children of R. Lauman.

State Normal Notes

School opens for organization Monday, September 7. All pupils who wish to attend the Normal Training school should report at nine o'clock at the Chapel building for enrollment.

Each grade can care for only a limited number of pupils, and when the enrollment has reached this limit no others can be entered. It is therefore necessary for all who want to come to report the first morning.

On account of lack of room we can have only six grades this coming year. The two missing grades will probably be the fifth and the seventh, but if these should fill up first, it will be two other grades in which the enrollment is less.

This matter will be decided definitely Monday, September 7, after all pupils have enrolled.

The training school playground will be equipped with considerable apparatus. This will be placed early in the year, and no doubt will be one of the pleasant things for the Training school through the year.

Stock Shipments

Since the money matters and market conditions have gotten over the little flurry of two weeks ago, caused by war conditions, stock is beginning to go to market again, quite regularly. Ted Perry shipped five cars of cattle to South Omaha the first of the week, and Monday night sent a car of fat hogs to Sioux City. Siemon Goeman, and W. H. Gildersleeve each had a car in at the same time, and last night Wm. Von Segger sent in a car load.

War News Conflicting

The war news continues to be conflicting. The reports indicate that the German army is slowly invading Belgium and gradually getting nearer the French border. But every bit of the way is contested most stubbornly. South of Belgium the reports credit the army of France and England to be getting a slight foothold on German territory east of Luxemburg, Alace and Lorane. On the south the reports see-saw as to whether Austria or Serbia are getting the best of the deal, and the same condition applies as to the engagements on the east between German and Russian forces. Each day brings its report of a great naval battle or the contradiction of the report of the battle of the preceding day. The fact is that the published matter is founded on the most meagre of reports, for there is no news given out.

For a week past the papers have stated almost daily that the great battle was undoubtedly on, and yet there is no assurance that this is true.

The report Wednesday was that the forts at Liege had at last been abandoned, and blown up.

The new development in the situation is the ultimatum sent to Germany by Japan, giving the Germans warning to withdraw from Kaio-Chou, a province which they occupy in China, which makes them a naval station in the far east. They have but a small fleet there and less than 4,000 men in that garrison. Whether they will heed the soft and diplomatically worded command and get out or be thrown out is not yet known.

Certain it is that this act of the allies in calling the yellow race to mix in a race problem which is bad enough as it has won them no friends among disinterested people. The territory involved is small, and Japan disavows any intention of doing other with the territory than to restore it to China.

Another Boquet For Wayne

The following is from the Sunday World Herald:

That the recent Nebraska Tennis association's tournament, concluded a week ago at Wayne, was the most successful from every angle, of any meet ever held in Nebraska is the unanimous opinion of the Omaha delegation.

Among others who are so enthusiastic about the tournament that they haven't quit talking it over yet are Harry Koch, Johnnie Powell, his brother, Ralph Powell, and a dozen others who made the trip.

"The Wayne boys certainly treated us grand," said Koch the other day. "Their entertainment was great and every thing was done that could in any way help us enjoy our visit more."

Pope Pius X Dead

Bulletin, Rome, Aug. 19—Pope Pius X is dead. The above message was received at the New York office this afternoon from the Rome correspondent.

The cable announcing the death reached the U. P. office at 2:26 this afternoon.

His death was due to the war. He died practically of a broken heart. For days before the final break he was greatly concerned and until hostilities actually commenced he could not believe that war would come between civilized nations at this late day.

When he received the news he broke down and never rallied from the blow.

Vernon Jones Dead

Mrs. Ellis Gerton was notified Monday of the death of her son Vernon Jones, which took place at Chicago Monday night, the cause not given. The body was ordered sent to their former home at Ord, Nebraska, where Mrs. Gerton went to meet it and attend the last sad rites.

Vernon was 23 years of age, and spent a part of his boyhood at Wayne, attending school and college here. A Chicago paper stated that his death was attributed to heart failure, and he was found in bed in his room. More particulars cannot be given before the mother's return.

Chautauqua begins tomorrow, and tonight the children are invited to a free play festival at the grounds.

The City Pump and Light Plant

Every citizen of Wayne should worry about the amount of water he uses needlessly for the next month—and he would were he to visit the city plant and see the good old pump that stands between him and a water famine. This pump has been the main stay of the city for many years, and always done faithful work, but of late years it has been kept too busy night and day to permit time enough off duty for a real thorough overhauling. It has a capacity of 200 gallons per minute, but just now it will hardly stand up to its full capacity, though it is held together and re-inforced by an inch bridge rod, which encircles it as a sort of reinforcement.

But the new pump is bought and plans are being matured to install it as soon as it arrives. Foundations have to be built, and plans are here for them, new connections are to be made, and the pipe is on hand or soon will be for them. The plan is to move the old pump gently to one side of the well pit on a foundation to be made for it, and there install it permanently. Then put in foundation for the other pump at the west side of the new one. The pump now in use connects with the wells by a 6-inch pipe—the new pump is to be connected with an 8-inch pipe, which will unite the two 6-inch pipes which now connects with the wells, of which there are ... This will be needed, as the new pump has a greater capacity, and will need a larger pipe. So let us remember how much depends upon the care of the old pump for the next thirty days.

The engines are undergoing a long neglected repair, the cylinders are being rebored by a competent mechanic, new piston rings will be put in, and the worn parts will all be replaced with new until the engines will be the same as new. The Corless engine is now in the hands of the machinist, and it is something of a job, for this is its first boring and overhauling, and it has been running for the past 17 years, and six years is considered as long as they should go without boring. When this work is finished it will be but about half the work to make that engine do the work that it has in the recent past. The ideal engine will next be gone over by the same process, and when this work is completed it will mean a great coal saving. Under the present administration the city plant seems to be getting the best and most careful attention it has ever had. Every move is with a view of making for better and cheaper service.

Corn Conditions Here

A week without rain since writing the report of last week has not helped corn situation, and one day, Monday, of hot wind tended to check development and dry corn too fast which makes chaffy corn. Some said that the weather condition Monday would shrink the average yield very materially.

A number of farmers have stated that the reports of last week were too good, and that the conditions did not warrant. They were not the estimate of the writer but the reports of those who claimed to have seen the condition and gave their judgement. We did not feel at liberty at all times to give the name of the one reporting. But it may be said in defence of their view at that time that had the past week been warm and wet instead of hot and dry the predictions would not have been much criticised.

Joe Elenberg four miles south, who raises good corn as a rule, thinks his crop will be less than last year. One man says that as one goes toward Wakefield the corn grows poorer, until in that immediate vicinity it is all burnt out. Some tell us that in places one field is good and the land joining is badly fired. That is doubtless due to cultivation, fertility of soil and conditions within the power of the farmer to regulate.

But after all has been said, we were assured by a farmer who is a very close observer that Wayne county will have a good crop of corn this year, comparing favorably with the average. One thing is sure, if the farmers will arrange to save its full food value by silo, or by cutting and shredding the feed value of the crop will be greater than ever before. When from 30 to 40 per cent of the crop value is annually wasted there should be no kick about a short crop. Save your stalks and sell your hay.

Wieland-Wieland

At the German Lutheran church in this city, Wednesday, August 19, 1914, Rev. Moehring officiating, occurred the marriage of W. L. Wieland of this place and Miss Bertha Wieland of near Wisner, in the presence of a few intimate friends.

The groom is son of Wm. Wieland of this city, and the bride, though of the same name is not a relative. A reception and wedding dinner was served at the home of the groom's parents in this city following the ceremony. The young folks will be at home on the Wieland farm near Wayne.

With straw piles from a 40-acre tract worth, according to conservative estimates, $100 for the fertilizing constituents alone the agronomy department of the Nebraska College of Agriculture calls particular attention to the wastes of destroying them. According to data gathered from Nebraska farmers, wheat straw may be put to many uses. It has been scattered effectively on the wheat land as a top dressing to check blowing in sandy regions. Others find it profitable to scatter the straw on land that is planted to corn. As bedding, it absorbs and holds the liquid excrement, which is the most valuable portion of the manure. When the straw is applied to the land, either as top-dressing or as strawy manure, it must be thoroughly disked with the surface soil to obtain best results.

Suffrage Department

(Under the auspices of the Suffrage League of Wayne)

The following arguments in favor of woman suffrage amendment, No. 388 will be published in the campaign booklet.

The motto on the Nebraska seal reads: "Equity Before the law."

Women should have the vote for the same reason that men should have the vote. The rule of the people can be only half realized so long as half the people are denied the franchise. Women as well as men need the ballot to enable them to perform their civic duties. A citizen without the vote is like a farmer without a plow, a blacksmith without a forge, a newspaper without type, a bank without deposits. The ballot is the badge of sovereignty, an opportunity for the service, a necessary tool in the business of government.

Women are equally interested with men in the financial, social, education and moral conditions of the state. It is but just that women should have a direct vote in determining these conditions.

Many women in Nebraska are heavy taxpayers, and are entitled to a voice in spending public money. Denial of their right to protect their property with the vote is not answered by saying that non-resident men and corporations also own property and pay taxes in Nebraska without representation. These women ask no greater privilege than this.

Increasing cost of living is government's great concern. Ninety per cent of our laws affect the family pocketbook and the family life. Why not give the mothers and house wives a chance at this problem?

Women should have a voice in making the laws they must obey. Since there is no sex in the enforcement of law there should be no sex in the enactment of law.

There are 50,000 wage earning women in Nebraska who need the protection of the ballot. They should have a part in making the laws under which they labor. If the ballot is essential to protect the working man's rights, why not working woman's?

Nebraska women are as intelligent, conscientious and worthy of self-government as are the enfranchised women in Kansas, California, Oregon, Washington, Illinois, Idaho, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Arizona and Alaska. In these common wealth from 70 per cent to 90 per cent of the women vote. They have displayed as good judgment and long vision as men. Nearly 4,000,000 in ten states will vote for president in 1916. Why not Nebraska women?

Four-fifths of Nebraska teachers are women. If these teachers are qualified to educate the future voters, don't you think they know enough to vote?

The responsibility of voting educates the voter, and steadies public opinion. Let Nebraska women have this help.

That Nebraska women want the ballot is proven by the fact that without pay, she secured from eighty-five counties 48,000 names of voters to the initiative petition, which is 10,000 more than is required by law to submit this amendment to you.

Good cooking made easy!

Good cooking depends as much on the range as on your skill. A cheap range or worn out stove makes cooking uncertain, and often spoils your best efforts. Is that fair to you, or to your family, whose health and good humor are affected by what you serve?

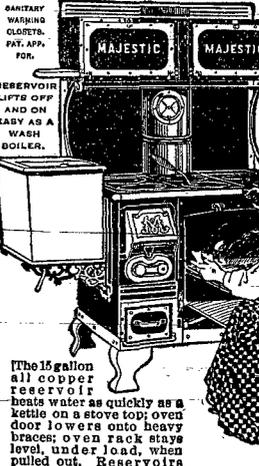

The Majestic makes good cooking easy and sure. Made of charcoal iron and malleable iron; it stands rust and wear three times as long as ranges made of ordinary range metals. Put together with cold-rivets that keep the joints absolutely tight always, (no putty used.) Lined with extra heavy pure asbestos that holds in the heat and reflects it onto oven. Scientifically designed to maintain uniform temperatures with least use of fuel; and to circulate heat evenly to all parts of oven. You never have to "turn the baking" in a Majestic.

The cost of a Majestic, in service, is less than that of any ordinary range. The fuel, repairs and work it saves and the years longer that it lasts, more than offset its little extra cost.

The health and happiness of your whole family is effected by the range you buy. Investigate thoroughly. Before you buy any range, come to our store and see the Majestic—we know you will want a Majestic when you see its advantages.

Great Majestic Malleable and Charcoal Iron Range

(One quality—many styles and sizes, with or without legs)

The 16 gallon all copper reservoir heats water as quickly as a kettle on a stove top; oven door lowers onto heavy braces; oven rack stays level, under load, when pulled out. Reservoirs flush with stove top have aluminum lids.

Sanitary washing cloths, for use on reservoir lifts off and on easily as a wash boiler.

The old settlers of Cedar county celebrated at Hartington Wednesday.

Dixon county old settlers are meeting today at Allen and Ross Hammond is orator of the day.

At Pender all business houses closed for an hour last week Monday out of respect for the President in his sad affliction.

Cedar county is putting in three concrete culverts near Randolph. It is a wise move to build a bridge of that kind where it is possible.

At Hartington the committee in charge of the finances for the celebration July 4th report a balance on hand of $9.06. They were running close of the limit.

The Woodmen of the World are to have a big picnic at Ponca August 26, which baseball and other sports will be provided for the entertainment of the crowd. Rev. McCarthy of Wakefield will be the orator of the day.

Nebraska has more automobiles per capita than any other state in the union. From present indications the automobile display at the state fair September 7-11 will be the largest and best ever held in the West.

There was a $10,000 fire at Hartington Thursday morning, the Palace every barn burning. The fire was confined to the one building in which it started. The loss was about one half covered by insurance.

A civil service examination for postmaster at Allen is to be held at that place September 12. This shows that the world does move. Two years ago such a vacancy would have been filled by someone with a pull regardless of their qualification.

That the Missouri river valley countries will feel a stimulus in the trade is the general opinion of bankers, who have made a careful study of the situation. Plenty of money is at hand to move the crops and to meet any financial condition that may arise.

W. E. Oxley of Belden marketed four hogs last week that averaged 566 pounds each, and if he got $8.00 a hundred which is not above the average which is not above the average market price recently, it means that he received more than $45 each for the porkers. Perhaps the tariff reduction has not really hurt the farmer.

Exhaustive discussions of the Federal Reserve Bank system is the important detail of the program of the Nebraska Bankers' Association, which will hold its annual convention in Omaha September 16 and 17th. Agricultural credits will be discussed from all angles. George Woodruff, president of the First National Bank of Joliet, Ill., will lead the discussion on this subject.

Nebraska can easily excel France as a breeding ground for Percheron horses. Fifty-three per cent of the pure bred horses of the state are Percherons, is said, and if the farmers would plan to raise this class of animals an immense profit would follow, as Nebraska has three excellent horse markets. Two of them—Grand Island and South Omaha—are rivals for third place in the world. Lincoln is the other horse market of the state.

At Estes Park

One of our Iowa friends, R. G. Weisell of the Adams County Free Press, who has worked so many long hours to keep his excellent paper at the top in every way, and succeeded, sacrificing health to do it, and is now recuperating at Estes Park, Colorado, and we quote the following from his letter to the home folks:

"It is estimated there are between 5,000 and 6,000 people on the park. The park proper consists of over 100,000 acres. It is subdivided into large and small tracts. Near the village the tracts are small and there is land selling at $200 to $300 per acre. This is for choice tracts. If the park continues to grow in population and with the perfection of the automobile there may be some good investments here even at these prices. The discovery of Estes Park region was made thirty odd years ago by three young Englishmen who came to hunt big game in the Rockies. They had pursued their quarry in almost every corner of the globe, in the Andes, in the jungles of India, in the depths of Central Africa. The world knew both Sir William Gordon-Cumming and the Earl of Dunraven as hunters of renown. But as they stood on the divide and looked down into Estes park it seemed to them a very paradise on earth. Dunraven dreamed of a vast game preserve and a hunting lodge. He did more than dream. Through his agents he began to buy the land and he had already acquired the best of it when the settlers in Colorado protested and the government threw open the rest to homesteading. This in a measure frustrated Dunraven's plans, but he nevertheless invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in improvements, and for eight years spent his summers in entertaining his friends of British aristocracy at Dunraven ranch. Through him Estes Park became known as a summer Arcadia, and since then people from every state in the Union and from every civilized nation have flocked here.

The famous Dunraven ranch is located a few miles south of where we are and can be seen from our porch and with a pair of field glasses can be seen plainly. The Dunraven home burned about two years ago but there are many cottages and tenant houses in the vicinity of where, for several years this Englishman entertained many of the English aristocracy."

In Behalf of the Rooster

Iowa newspapers are making fuss over the Iowa hen, says an exchange, giving her paragraphs of praise and columns of commendations but not one word for the Iowa rooster. This is a rank discrimination against the noblest Roman of them all. Who, if you please, starts the Iowa sun on its glorious flight across the skies? The rooster of course! Who crows defiance to all creation, at 3 a. m. and cackles to beat the band when an egg is laid? The rooster, of course! Who spies the hawk or hears the first rustle of danger and makes for cover in great alarm? Why, the rooster. And who is the first to meet the ax and get it in the neck and turn up his legs in an ocean of gravy, in which floats gizzards and liver and giblets and—and—the rooster. Noble old bird! Long may he teter on the top rail of the fence, and if he wants to cackle because some one else has laid an egg it shows that he is a good sport and willing to applaud the worthy efforts of the female population. Long may he live! but not too long.

Why They Come to Wayne

Last week the Democrat man saw two young farmers here from down in Cuming county who had brought their wheat to market here because it brought more per bushel.

The next day a woman living nearer another town than Wayne by several miles said this is not our postoffice, but we are coming for most of our trading, because we get better prices for our produce. The Democrat is willing to give credit to our creamery and mill for having something to do with the facts noted above. A town that has a good market and live merchants can increase its trade territory by letting such facts be known.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, the sound vibrations are intercepted before they can reach the ear.

We will give One Hundred Dollars to any case of Deafness caused by a catarrh of the Eustachian tube that cannot be cured by local applications. Send for circular to J. C. HENNEY & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

THE POULTRYMAN.

Now that the laying season is over, the hens are commencing to molt and are therefore in an abnormal condition. They need good attention and the best of feed during this period.

Some of the causes of roup are sudden and extreme changes in temperature, damp houses and drafts.

After the fowls begin to molt they should be given ground bone once every day and a meal of meat at least three times a week.

The up to date fancier these days examines his growing flock of chicks very carefully, so that by selection and elimination he may keep that which is best and discard that which is poorest from his flock.

Keep fine charcoal and grit where chicks may have free access to it.

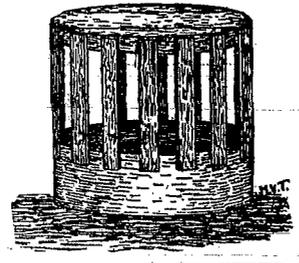

DISINFECTANT FOR POULTRY QUARTERS

[Prepared by dairy division, United States department of agriculture.]

The first consideration in obtaining a disinfectant for poultry quarters should be effectiveness. It isn't good economy to buy a disinfectant for the simple reason that it is cheap. Poultrymen can mix their own disinfectants. They can do it more cheaply than buying ready mixed commercial disinfectants, and they are quite as effective. The cresol solution is one of the best of these.

Cresol may be obtained through druggists, and in buying it should be specified as "commercial cresol." This may be placed directly with water and used as a spray, but as it is not very soluble it is better to make use of what is known as "compound solution of cresol," which in turn is diluted by water. The government's proportions are as follows:

"First put four quarts of raw linseed oil in a four or five gallon stone crock; then weigh out in a dish one and two-thirds pounds of commercial caustic potash, which may be obtained from any druggist at 10 or 15 cents a pound. Dissolve this potash in a pint of water, and add the cold potash solution very slowly to the linseed oil, stirring con-

Too little care is given fowls in the matter of providing pure, clean drinking water. It should be remembered that the principal part of the egg as well as of the fowl itself is water. Pure fresh water, then, is of vital importance. The illustration shows a homemade water fountain that answers every demand. It is made of a cheese box, with the bottom removed and slats arranged as shown in the illustration. The arrangement is then set over a gallon crock sunk in the earth.

stantly. Not less than five minutes should be taken to the adding of this solution of potash to the oil.

For five hours after mixing the cold potash the solution should be stirred thoroughly every hour, and then it should be left standing ten or twelve hours. By the expiration of that time saponification should be complete. This soap should then be stirred, and five and one-fourth quarts of commercial cresol should be added. The soap will slowly dissolve in this cresol. It may take two days for a complete solution to be effected. When the soap is all dissolved the solution is ready for use. This cresol will mix in any proportion of water and will make a clear solution.

The quantities given in the foregoing directions may be increased or lessened in accordance with your requirements, but one should be careful to maintain the proportions given. To disinfect the interior of poultry houses, incubators, brooders, etc., a 2 per cent solution of this cresol mixture will be found very satisfactory both for general disinfecting and for cleaning out vermin. This would mean one gallon of cresol solution to fifty gallons of water, or three or four teaspoonfuls of cresol solution to a gallon of water would be about right.

Keep Chickens Growing.

As your chickens grow old remember that they need more feed. The amount required to produce a pound of gain increases as the birds grow older. Increase the amount of feed each week so that they will have enough. If you go around the last thing before dark with a pail of feed throw a little in each coop, and you will soon know whether or not they have had enough.

Range Good For Fowls.

Hens will get a good deal of their food in the fields if they have a chance, but try them with a bit more every morning and night. A bit too much is better than hunger. Growing chicks need an all round diet. Chicks require about the same food as full grown hens do, only less of it.

For Better Farming

In an article sent out in the interest of better farming by Douglas Malcolm in which he tells of different kinds of farmers, he pays the following tribute to the corn growing lands of this country, and also a criticism of some of their wasteful methods: "Probably the most comfortable farmers of this country are the corn-raising farmers, because, as the little black dots on the government map shows, they have more hogs and more cattle per capita than the others. There are approximately 100,000,000 acres of corn to be harvested this fall—the richest, most productive crop our country knows—and yet in connection with this harvest there is an equal probability that a fair per cent of the value of this crop will be wasted. Sad as it is, it required centuries to find out that from 30 to 40 per cent of the nutritive value of the corn in the stalk, leaves, and husks, and it has not been learned entirely yet that even without a silo the corn stalks on the farm, when properly shredded, have a feeding value equal to timothy hay and prairie grass and a fertilizing value far in excess of either. All farmers do not have silos, but more and more are seeing the light, and each year thousands of these profit-getting obelisks are being erected. The value of the corn stalk is being widely advertised, but still there are those who do not realize that it is the finest auxiliary roughage when fed with either ensilage, clover or alfalfa, as a balanced part of the grain ration. For instance, in a recent experiment at the Agricultural College of Nebraska it was found that "stover fed with alfalfa returned a value of $4.57 per ton, in comparison with alfalfa at $6.00 per ton as the sole roughness." In another experiment, this time at the New Jersey station, it was found that 200 pounds of corn stalks fed to a cow during ten days 60 pounds or 30 per cent remained uneaten. This corn was unshredded but carefully harvested. The editor of Farmers' Bulletin No. 107, of the United States Department of Agriculture series, in summarizing, the results says, "shredding would no doubt result in more complete consumption of the stalks."

Timely Horse Notes

New oats should best be omitted from the work horse's ration until cool weather.

Foals at this season need a little oats daily to keep them growing rapidly and to prepare them for weaning.

In hot weather all horses should have a good drink after eating their feed. Turn them out nights if possible.

An alfalfa patch is a fine place nights for horses now until October. If you have to use sweat pads try one of the black two-piece kind made of oil cloth. They are cool, dry, and practical.

Fies are usually bad at this season. Darken the stables where practicable.

Treat little sores carefully and keep them protected from flies.

This is the season to detect horses which have been overheated. Wind-broken horses are easy to detect at any season by their noisy breathing.

From a practical viewpoint, however, they are generally more useful in the fields on hot days than are the summer panthers.

According to reports received at the University Farm horses are approximately $35 a head cheaper than they were a year ago, yet this year's foals may mature at a time when prices will well repay for feed and care.

Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, Mr. Farmer. In other words, do not expect to rob your soil and thrive. When a crop is taken off put something back in its place. This is best done by feeding the crop on the place and selling the surplus stock, and not by selling the hay and grain and burning the straw and cornstalks.

A general European war appears to be more of an ideal condition for the extreme protectionist than a high protective tariff. It more effectively stops imports than tariff wall—and do you notice in the very immediate attempt to boost prices, Mr. Consumer, that the organized protective interests are not at all slow or backward in taking advantage of the stopping of commerce on the high seas. They believe in robbing their home folks while the opportunity is good.

Now the allied sugar interests known as the sugar trust, are raising a great cry about the price of sugar, and the need of a protective tariff to encourage domestic protection. They are showing what war is doing to the price of sugar, as manipulated by the sugar trust, and they cannot tell where the top will be because they claim not to know when the war will cease. Sugar has been protected in this country for years, and still has a very liberal per centage of protection. Had the benefit of protection been given to the grower of sugar instead of being taken from the people and absorbed by the sugar trust there might now be in this country a sugar industry which would be able to supply more than ten per cent of the sugar we consume. But if 40 years of protection will not bring the infant industry any nearer full size than it has the sugar growing industry it is time to quit and let every tub stand on its own bottom. Our sugar industry will amount to but little so long as a protective tariff protects a great combine in its power to regulate the price of the raw material furnished by the grower and the price to be paid by the consumer of the finished product.

European War News

Keeping in daily touch with the Great War. What is the latest? That is the question now being asked on all sides. Everybody is anxiously awaiting every bit of news regarding the great death struggle now going on in Europe. Getting news from the front regarding the movements of the great armies is a hard task as the officials of the different nations are very strict in their censorship and allow nothing to go over the wires they do not approve.

The Sioux City Daily News is keeping its readers in close touch with events as they happen. The News receives its telegraph service from the United Press association, one of the greatest news gathering organizations in the world. Its correspondents are at every important town in the war zone. As an example of their untiring efforts to secure news, the Berlin correspondent was arrested and charged with being a spy and was released only after the American ambassador took up the matter. This telegraph service is supplemented by the service of the Newspaper Enterprise association, whose staff of special feature writers and artists is one of the best in the world.

The Sioux City Daily News is a live up-to-date newspaper in every respect. It will be sent to your home $12 days in the year for only $2. You cannot afford to be without it at this momentous crisis in the world's history. Send your order to the editor of the Democrat or direct to the Sioux City Daily News, Sioux City, Ia.

Some where in the neighborhood of ninety games were pitched, and the win of one game shows the teams to be evenly matched when it comes to a long drawnout contest. Ye editor and family and Mr. and Mrs. Grant Young spent Sunday afternoon and evening in the country at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Eddie and enjoyed the visit immensely. Mr. and Mrs. Eddie are numbered among Wayne county's most prominent farmers and reside five miles north of town. At present they are milking sixteen cows. The milk is separated by a U. Mrs. Adams Says Imported Game Birds Destroy Gardens.

UP TO STATE GAME WARDEN.

Legislature May Be Called Upon to Pay These Birds—Inspection of Horses at Ashland Camp.

Lincoln, Aug. 18.—It is evident that all the imported birds, turned loose by the state game warden, because the legislature failed to appropriate money for the propagation of the species, are not all dead. State Game Warden Rutenbeck received a letter from Mrs. Elizabeth Adams, who lives in Sheridan county, that the birds had infested her corn fields and garden and destroyed crops and garden truck to such an extent that she wanted the state to pay her $100 for the acts of the rampaging birds.

The matter will be investigated and probably either paid or put up to the legislature.

However, the jury gave a judgment for the amount of the policy of $5,000, the accrued premium and interest amounting to in all the amount of the judgment.

HOAGLAND EXPECTS RELIEF

North Platte Man of Opinion the Government Will Release Water.

North Platte, Neb., Aug. 17.—Senator W. V. Hoagland returned from Kearney, where he and W. J. Scout of the Kearney ditch were in consultation with government officials of the reclamation service.

"We met for the purpose of seeing what could be done for the irrigators of this section in the way of obtaining immediate temporary relief," said Senator Hoagland. "We showed beyond a doubt that the government reclamation service had impounded water in June from the regular flow of the river which caused the river to become dry at Kearney in July.

"The only defense made to this by the officers of the reclamation service was that the irrigators who were paying the government in Scottsbluff county would object to the government turning the water on and saving the people's crops east of Bridgeport without paying the government. In answer he replied that if the government persisted, that the contracts were illegal and would be cancelled in the courts.

"The reclamation officials have promised to try and work out a plan during the coming winter which will furnish a permanent solution of the water problem on the Platte river and furnish plenty of water to all of the farmers of the valley."

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Best Cattle Are Steady, While Others Sell Lower.

HOG MARKET CLOSES STEADY.

Another Good Run of Range Lambs, but Not Many Wethers or Ewes. Lambs Around 10 Cents Lower—Old Sheep Show No Change.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Aug. 18.—A very good run of cattle arrived again today, some 4,400 head. There were only a few corn fed beefs here today. Good to choice beefs commanded steady prices, but as a rule it took a little shading at values to move the medium and fair grades and the trade was draggy throughout. Desirable western grass beefs were in keen request and fully steady, while the common kinds were dull, with prices shaded. A bunch of Montana grass beefs brought the even money—$9. Cows and heifers were about a dime lower than Monday, or pretty close to 15@25c lower than they were at the close of the last week. Business in stock cattle and feeding steers was tolerably brisk, the desirable grades going at full recent quotations, and the medium and common kinds being slow sale at more or less shaded figures.

Cattle quotations: Good to choice beefs, $9.50@10.25; fair to good beefs, $8.80@9.40; common to fair beefs, $7.75@8.75; good to choice heifers, $6.50@7.75; good to choice cows, $6.25@7.25; fair to good cows, $5.50@6.25; canners and cutters, $3.50@5; veal calves, $8@10.25; bulls, stags, etc., $5.25@7; choice to prime beefs, $9.50@9; good to choice range beefs, $8@8.50; fair to good range beefs, $7.50@8; common to fair range beefs, $6.75@7.25; good to choice feeders, $7.75@8.30; fair to good feeders, $7@7.60; common to fair feeders, $6.25@6.75; stock cows and heifers, $5.25@7.25; stock calves, $6.50@8.50.

Some 3,500 hogs arrived today. The market opened slow, with prices fully 5c lower, but became active later and closing prices were fully steady. Shippers bought hogs at prices 10@20c lower. Bulk of the supply moved at $8.00@8.75, and tops landed at $8.90, just 25c lower than Monday's top.

Sheep and lamb receipts amounted to 24,000 head. The arrivals consisted almost entirely of lambs, the number of ewes and old sheep on sale being very small. On account of the large run of lambs, and reports from other markets indicating lower prices, the market was rather slow, with prices weak to 10c lower. Old sheep were generally steady with Monday. There was a splendid buying demand for feeder lambs and prices were fully steady.

Quotations on range sheep and lambs: Lambs, good to choice, $8@8.15; lambs, fair to good, $7.85@8; lambs, feeders, $6.75@7.25; yearlings, good to choice, $6.25@6.50; yearlings, fair to good, $6@6.25; yearlings, feeders, $5.75@6.15; wethers, good to choice, $5.90@6.15; wethers, fair to good, $5.65@5.90; wethers, feeders, $4.50@4.90; ewes, good to choice, $5.30@5.60; ewes, fair to good, $5.10@5.30; ewes, feeders, $3.50@4.

SHEEP ON THE RANGE.

Bedding Out System More Profitable Than Close Herding.

As a result of experiments during the past few years the department of agriculture is now advocating the use of the bedding out system of herding sheep on open ranges instead of the old close herding system which has heretofore been in use.

This system gets its name from the fact that the herder who attends the band camps and beds his flocks wherever the sheep find themselves at nightfall. Under the old plan he established a fixed camp and bed ground and drove the sheep back to the same place each night.

From experience on the national forest ranges last year the department states that lambs from bedded out bands were five pounds heavier on an average at the end of the season than those which were trailed to and from established bed grounds and that the range can carry from 10 to 25 per cent more sheep than when so much is tramped out in traveling back and forth. The disadvantages of the old system, according to the department, were twofold, those to the forage and those to the sheep. The forage suffered by being trampled badly and being actually destroyed at and near the bed grounds; the sheep lost weight in going to and from the camps, and in dry weather suffered not a little from dust and from crowding.

Foundered Horse.

Let the horse run barefoot on low pasture and twice a month blister the hoof head (after removing the hair with a mixture of one part of powdered cantharides and three parts of lard. Tie the horse up short when the blister is acting. Wash the blister off in two days; then apply a little lard daily.

C. E. Williamson of Ewing was here the first of the week, a guest at the home of J. L. Kelley and family. Mr. W. is rural route carrier out of Ewing, and came to spend part of his vacation with his old neighbor. He left for home Tuesday forenoon.

French Penn arrived here Sunday morning from Montana, where himself and brother purchased a farm last spring, and where he has been busy during vacation. He is at institute this week, and will teach one of the schools near here this fall and winter.

The Pleasant Valley club met for its regular meeting with Mrs. Will Gildersleeve. Owing to the absence of so many of its members the lesson was continued until the next meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Liveringhouse. A two-course luncheon was served by Mrs. Gildersleeve.

Mrs. Phillips, who has been assisting with the local work for the Herald since school closed last spring, resigned last week, and is this week attending institute, and will leave next week for a short vacation until time for school work to begin again. Miss Elizabeth O'Brien of Lyons is her successor.

The alfalfa crop is reported to be an average crop this year, and the acreage is greater than any previous year, in this county. Those who cut early are now putting up the 3d crop, and say that it is a good yield. But those who have fields a little later cut are not getting quite as good returns for the third crop.

Eric Beard, a nephew of Robert Beard of this place met with a serious accident near Pilger Saturday. He was working with a threshing crew in the country and started to Pilger on a motorcycle and was thrown in some manner, and was unconscious several days and at last reports had not been able to tell what happened to him but he was improving and there are hopes of recovery.

Miss Katherine VanNorman, who came here several weeks ago from Heron Lake, Minnesota, to visit her grandparents and other relatives in the county, started Wednesday morning for her home. She is the daughter of Fred VanNorman and wife and reports that they like their new home well, and have a fairly successful year on the farm, though June was most too wet for best results.

Mrs. O. S. Gamble returned Tuesday evening from a visit of three weeks, mostly spent with relatives in Illinois, east of St. Louis. She thinks this part of Nebraska is like a garden, compared to the farm conditions there, where corn, fruit and potatoes are a failure on account of drouth. On her return she stopped at Macon, Missouri, and visited Dr. Thomas, formerly of this place, and found himself and family well.

Emil Hansen and wife went to Meadow Grove Saturday to visit at the home of his old neighbor, James Davidson. Mr. Hansen reported upon his return the first of the week that they found crop conditions full better there than at home, and that his old neighbor is located upon a fine farm with the best of improvements, and doing well, and nothing to regret for the move they made. This will be good news to their friends here.

Dennis Kallapher and wife and son Dennis and Mrs. Pat Finn from New Castle, were guests at the home of James Finn and wife at Carroll the first of the week and on their way home came through Wayne stopping at the home of Patrick Coleman for supper. Mr. K. reports a good crop of small grain for his vicinity, but says that the corn is practically ruined as a crop by recent dry weather, which has been daily cutting the corn prospect.

The best newspaper offer we have noticed anywhere comes from the State Journal at Lincoln—the daily and Sunday Journal the rest of the year for only $1.00, and the Democrat will send it in for you. That will take in all of this interesting approaching state campaign. More than four months, 125 daily papers for only $1—and such a good daily, too. Give us your order please. Keep posted on the politics of your own state.—adv.

Weldon Crossland, who has been spending part of his vacation with home folks, left Tuesday to return to his school work at Oxford college in England, where he is the representative of Nebraska, having won the Rhodes scholarship by faithful work in the university here. He did not know exactly what conditions he would meet when it comes to sailing, but he left confident that he could find a way over without wading or swimming. Opportunities for crossing the pond are not as plentiful as a few months ago, but beyond doubt there will be safe ways to go.

Fred Blair and wife went to Fremont the first of the week to visit among their many friends at their former home. Mr. Blair was anticipating a rare treat in attending the great exhibition there this week of all manner of tractor and other farming machinery. They have a demonstration there this week that is complete in every particular, so far as relates to power machines for the farm and road work.

The two brothers, Prof. H. Schmidt, of West Point and Prof. W. Schmidt, of Wayne, have completed the reconstruction of the large two-manual pipe organ in the Evangelical Lutheran church of Grand Island. The organ, one of nineteen speaking registers, was very much out of order, but the two experts gave the organ a new effective tone, finishing the work of cleaning, repairing, regulating and tuning in four days. Prof. Otto Becker, the organist.—G. I. Independent.

Mr. and Mrs. David Whitten, an aged couple residing northeast of Albion, were killed in a runaway accident Saturday evening. They had been in town during the afternoon and as they were leaving for home their team became frightened at a number of elephants belonging to the Jones Bros. & Wilson's circus that were being led to water at a public watering trough. The horses ran about 200 yards and the buggy struck a telephone pole near the Albion Mill office. Mr. Whitten's back, ribs and collar bone were broken and he suffered internal injuries. Mrs. Whitten died within a few minutes after the accident.

The Democrat don't like to be eternally kicking, fault finding or predicting bad things, but to see an automobile hike through the main streets and residence portion of the place at a law-breaking speed while men, women and children are in danger of being run down, impels us to urge that more attention be given to the enforcement of the speed ordinance. True we have been lucky this far and no deaths have resulted—but any of these things may happen at any time, and we but give voice to a common protest of many in writing this. Let's repeal the speed ordinance or make some effort to enforce it.

It looks so nice that the neighbors remark about it and tell the paper man—we refer to a field of oats in shock on the Mary Sullivan farm seven miles southeast of Wayne, where Ben Nisen is farming, and his sister, Miss Emma, is his excellent housekeeper. There are 80 acres of the field in shock, and the shocks are so thick, the rows so straight, the shocks of such uniform size that it is a pleasure to behold. This, they tell us is but one of the many things which proclaim this young man a model farmer. His fence rows are mowed, and all things are in order, and our informant said that if one could have such tenants as this it would be a satisfaction to visit a rented farm, and both tenant and owner would fare better and here would be little if any occasion for trouble or misunderstanding. So far as we can learn both Mrs. Sullivan who owns the place and the tenant are satisfied.

Chase & Sanborn have not raised their price and never do lower their quality. Use their Coffee and be safe. Beaman has it.

Crofton Has $30,000 Fire

A dispatch to the Norfolk News from Crofton tells of destructive fire at that place, where the lack of a water supply cost the citizens $10,000 an hour for three hours, a condition which the city here has been trying to avoid, by not permitting use of water beyond the capacity of the city pump until the new one can be installed.

An empty standpipe cost Crofton a $30,000 fire loss yesterday afternoon. If there had been water in the reservoir the fire could easily have been checked with practically no loss. Eight buildings burned as follows:—Everton & Christoverson drug store; R. A. Ward restaurant; F. O. Watson restaurant; Frank Zerker implement shop; Joe Schwartz meat market; Mrs. F. A. Clark's hotel; W. M. Ramson's saloon and ice house.

There was insurance as follows: Drug store, $5,500; Ward restaurant, $1,300; implement shop, $2,100; meat market, $1,200 on building; hotel $1,000 on building; saloon and ice house $3,000.

The fire started in a kitchen range in the Watson restaurant in the middle of the block. A high south wind was razing at the time. Firemen from Wausa, Fordyce, Hartington and Bloomfield assisted in fighting the flame.

L. L. Alexander and wife left this morning to spend a week or two with his folks at Oakland, Iowa, before moving to their new home at Lebanon, Indiana, where he is engaged as instructor in music in the college at that place.

Earl B. Baroch, the six-year-old son of J. P. Baroch and wife is on the sick list—a victim of typhoid fever. Where or how contracted is not known, but every possible source about the place is being eliminated so that it is not probable that other members of the family will suffer. The little fellow is doing nicely at present.

Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Blair are home from Denver, where they went ten days ago. They report cooler weather there—in fact saw it snowing in Denver the first evening there. It was not much of a snow, but it did snow enough to be seen. It has been known to snow in Denver in August other years, but it is not common occurrence.

What are you getting for corn now that the tariff wall is down so that the corn from Argentine may come in free of duty, asked the Democrat man of the farmer who has driving in with a load, the other day? "Seventy cents," said the farmer, while a broad smile spread over his honest face. Really that is not so very bad for the farmer these democratic times, is it?

One of the happy hits—or rather three of them—was made by Mr. Nance of the Crystal in arranging to let Wayne people see themselves as others see them. Snap shots were taken of different people on the streets and in daily walks and vocations of life, and thrown upon the screen three evenings this week. The attendance each evening increased. Some posed for a picture, but it was those who were caught without knowing that they were being took that gave the best results. They were so natural and true to life, although not flattering as a work of art or beauty.

Mrs. Clyde Oman, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. C. E. Wright arrived here from Montana, where the Omans went for a visit, nearly a month ago. Mrs. Oman reports a splendid outing. The Wright family are moving back to this county and Mr. Wright, Mr. Oman and the two Misses Oman are coming back by automobile, and are expected to reach Wayne sometime during the next three days.

Geo. W. Kortright, who died at Des Moines August 6th, was a member of the Modern Woodmen at this place, and the camp clerk, LeRoy Ley has already received notice of the allowance of the claim of his wife for the $8,000 insurance he carried in that order. From his report we learn that Mr. Kortright was 62 years, 3 months and 20 days of age, and he had been a member of the order more than 22 years, and he had paid $47.80 into the benefit fund.

John Ahern is nursing a broken collar one. With others he went to the Elkhorn the first of the week for a day-outing, going with the auto truck, which is not seated for many passengers. While starting home he was one of those who found a seat on the box which had contained their provisions, and a sudden drop into a chuck hole landed the box and those who were on top of it on the ground, and it was John's misfortune to light first and cushion the rest of the bunch and the box as they came down.

O. C. Lewis returned this morning from Gettysburg, South Dakota, where he has been to assist his son-in-law with his harvest. He brought with him a sample bundle of wheat which he had helped to head. The heads are full, the berry plump and the straw clean and bright. The estimate for that field is 30 bushels per acre. The average crop of the blue stem wheat there is about 12 bushels. It was a bearded wheat of which he had a sample, and we did not learn the variety. He also brought samples of corn grown from a seed from North Dakota, which will probably return 30 bushels per acre. It has a large cob, and redish cast to the grain, but produces lots of feed and matures early. The ears he brought were matured enough now to make seed. We noticed that some of our real estate men were looking at that wheat with longing eye, for it would make a good sample for any wheat country they might represent.

More Returns From Tennis

Don C. VanDeusen, editor of the Blair Pilot, who was here during the state tennis meet writes as follows of Wayne, its citizens and school, in his excellent paper:

Mr. Gaydou and the editor were entertained at the handsome new home of Dean and Mrs. Hahn while in Wayne last week. They certainly have a nice home and it is ideally located on a hill with the State Normal buildings in view, and yet not far from the business section of the city. Miss Magdalene is at home and vied with her father in faithful attendance at the courts during the big matches. Waldo is a guide at the Yellowstone national park this summer, so we didn't get to see him. It's hard to tell which Mr. Hahn takes the most pride in, his fine lawn around the house or the normal school. The rain Tuesday night made the tennis playing impossible the next morning, so we went out with Mr. Hahn to the normal. He showed us through the different buildings, paying particular attention to the fine equipment. Some may think that a new school couldn't be so well equipped as an older school, but with state funds to draw upon this is different than it would be with a private school. They have the equipment for doing the very best work. Moreover Mr. Hahn tells us they have four members of the faculty who have recently spent a year or more in the best eastern training schools getting the very latest methods of normal training. No other school in the state can claim as much, and Mr. Hahn says there has been almost a complete change in methods in the past four years. The new administration building to cost around $90,000, is up as far as the first story and will be ready for occupancy the first of the year.

Wayne is easy of access from here and if we are going to take normal training we would certainly go there without hesitation.

In another column he says: Wayne certainly has a bunch of tennis boosters for a city of its size, less than the population of Blair by 500. They have around 80 members of their club and many of them are the leading business and professional men of the city. They spent about $200 fixing up two extra courts for the state meet, besides about $200 more of their own-time. But they now have three fine courts the fastest we have ever seen. They fixed up a dressing room and shower bath in

THE New Fall Goods Are Arriving

LAST week and this, Mr. Orr has been in the market looking for the best merchandise bargains for Fall and some of the first purchases have already been received.

You may have heard that prices on dry goods are going sky high on account of the extra demand that may be created for our goods because of the war, but so far this is not the case.

Excepting a few, very few, items that have to be imported the prices are no higher.

This week we have unpacked and marked a new lot of outings, gingham, percales, shirtings, fleece lined dress goods, calico, cretonnes, silkalines, muslins, sheetings, etc. The prices are no higher and on some items they are even lower than last year.

Very soon our store will be well filled with all of the new things in dry goods and groceries that you'll need for Fall. We already have a representative stock of staples and the dress goods, ready to wear and novelties will soon be here.

We want to make a strong bid for your Fall business by promising a complete stock of absolutely dependable merchandise at prices that you will acknowledge are very reasonable

Harry Fisher's barn, on whose grounds the courts are located, and everything was mighty handy. We won the preliminary round by default. The first man I played was Gary, of Fairmont, who won the championship of the tournament but failed to defeat Harry Koch, the state champion.

In the consolation singles we both had the pleasure of defeating one man but were trimmed in the next round. We saw some mighty good tennis and got acquainted with a bunch of almighty fine fellows. There's a sort of a fellow feeling between tennis players that is even stronger than lodge brothers. It is almost a fraternity, with the members bound together by the simple fact that they play tennis and are interested in this one international game. The people of Wayne were more than kind to the visitors, entertaining them in their homes for the entire week. A smoker and get acquainted meeting was held at the city hall the first evening, and all the visitors were royally banqueted the second evening. L. A. Kiplinger, a boyhood friend of George Doll, of this city, was the toastmaster and he certainly made good. Gaydou came home Saturday morning but we remained to see the finals in singles and doubles that afternoon, but didn't see the challenge round in the afternoon, as we left there at 2:42. Coach Stiehm invited the players to go to Lincoln next year and become the guests of the Country Club, which was accepted. In all probability the next meet will be held at Wayne, for they certainly are royal hosts and if the invitation is extended to return the players will be too gallant to refuse it. Moreover they know they will be treated right.

There has been a series of showers and entertainments this week, mostly in honor of several young ladies soon to become brides. Mrs. Chas. Craven gave a shower Monday evening in honor of Miss Jessie Strickland, and Miss Helen Blair gave luncheon in honor of the Misses Freda Ellis, Jessie Strickland and Dora Lewis Tuesday.

Miss Doratha Ellis entertained at a Kensington Tuesday in honor of Miss Francis Kate, who is here from Des Moines visiting.

A Story For Labor Day

By MARGARET C. DEVEREAUX

Jean Stahren and Elsa Vogar Eved on adjoining farms on the western coast of Norway. Neither had any brothers or sisters; consequently they were constant playmates, for there were no other children within a couple of miles. Since the country was rocky and not very productive their parents were very poor. But neither Jean nor Elsa had ever known luxuries, and what we do not know of we do not covet. Besides, there is an unconsciousness of deprivation in childhood, and so long as children have enough to eat, though of the plainest food, and enough clothing to keep them warm they are content.

But there came a time with Jean when he began to think of his future. This was when he was seventeen years old. One day, standing with Elsa on a high ridge overlooking the Atlantic ocean, he said to her:

"Elsa, it will not satisfy me to remain here with father and mother to work this little farm. There is barely enough for them to be made out of it, and I feel that I must go out into the world to make something for myself."

A frightened look came to Elsa's face. This was the first intimation she had that she and Jean would not live near each other always as they had lived.

"Where would you go, Jean?" she asked.

"If one sails westward from here in a few days he will reach some islands called Britain. They have a king there, as we have here, and nobles, but I understand that the people are active, and there are opportunities for poor men to make a good living. But if one continues on southwestward he will come to a great continent called America. The people there have no king, no nobles. All are on the same level so far as the law is concerned. To that land people of small means from all nations are flocking. There is plenty of land there which is very rich, and great factories where people work, and those who are skilled receive wages that are unheard of here in Norway. I am thinking of going to America to join in the battle for fortune."

"But, Jean," cried the girl, "you are not skilled at any work, and in no country are farms given away. Having no trade and no money to buy a farm, what will you do to earn a living? And where will you get money to pay your way?"

"I am now of a proper age to learn a trade, and as to the means for the journey I shall work my passage. I shall go on a ship to Hamburg, for which I have the money. There, I understand, there are great vessels sailing to America. They need many persons to wait on the passengers, and it will not be difficult for me to secure one of these places."

"How did you learn all this?"

"Lars Olsen told me; he has been to Hamburg."

Elsa was looking out to the westward, and Jean saw tears gathering in her eyes. He put his arms about her and kissed her. The boundary between childhood and youth had been passed. From that moment they were lovers, though they were still unconscious of the change.

"Don't cry, Elsa," said Jean. "When I have become a skilled workman I will send for you to come over the sea and be with me."

"How could I go over there and be with you, Jean? That would not be right."

"But I will then be a man and you a woman; we can be married!"

This ingenious proposal did not seem to give comfort to Elsa. She said that it would be a long while before Jean could send for her, and even then she could not leave her father and mother, who were every day becoming more dependent upon her. This made Jean feel ashamed, for he knew that he, too, was needed at home. But Jean looked further into the future than Elsa and had more resolution to break the barriers between him and success. Besides, he looked forward to the day when, having become a skilled laborer, he could earn more than he needed for himself and could send money to his parents.

It was a sad day for all when Jean departed. His mother begged him to stay, but his father approved of his going. "Goodby, my son," he said. "I have heard of that great country beyond the sea where the people are the government and where the workingman must be educated for what he does the same as the lawyer, the doctor and the priest. And they tell me that when he learns his trade he is protected by the trade unions against the competition of those who are unskilled. Go, and God grant that you may prosper."

"But I shall not be satisfied, sweetheart, till I have earned not only enough for that, but to send for you to come to me."

Nevertheless they had no sooner passed away from each other than Jean's eyes became moist, and Elsa broke down and sobbed as though her heart would break.

An ocean liner came sailing down the coast and, entering the lower bay of New York, made its way up toward Ellis Island, where emigrants must prove that they come within the laws governing their admission to the United States of America. Among those who were transferred from the vessel to the island was a young woman, who gave her name as Elsa Vogar and her age as twenty-two. She stepped from the lighter that bore her to the dock and looked about her as if expecting some one to meet her; but, seeing no one she knew, her expression of expectancy changed to one of disappointment. Passing with the throng into the apartment where emigrants present their claims for admission, Elsa was brought before an official for examination.

"What means have you?" he asked. "Only a few silver coins left over after paying for my passage."

"How do you expect to live here in America?"

"I came over here to be married. I expected to meet at the dock when I landed the man who will marry me, but he did not appear."

The official asked the man's name and where he lived. Elsa told him that his name was Jean Stahren and that he was an ironworker in Pennsylvania, but what place in Pennsylvania she could not tell him.

Elsa was told that she might remain on the island for a few days, but if at the end of that time her lover did not appear she must be sent back to Hamburg, whence she had sailed. This was a terrible blow to the poor girl, for she knew that there was some reason why Jean had not met her, which might not be corrected within so short a time.

Fortunately it was summer, the end of August, and Ellis Island, surrounded as it was by water, was not a disagreeable place to wait. Elsa gazed out over the bay, wondering at the gigantic statue of Liberty, at the skyscrapers of lower New York, at the Brooklyn suspension bridge and at Castle Williams on Governors Island. A day passed, and Jean did not appear. Another day went by and still there were no tidings of him. The third day was Sunday, the 1st of September. Elsa was called before one of the immigration officials and informed that a steamer would sail for Hamburg the next day and if she could not satisfy the authorities that she would not be a burden on the United States before that time she would be sent back to Germany, whence she came.

Elsa was in agony. Jean had sent her the money for her passage, at the same time telling her to write him the name of the steamer on which she would sail, promising to meet her on the dock when the ship arrived. She had written him the name of the steamer, but, not being versed in the ways of the world, had not mentioned the date of its arrival, though she had said that she expected to sail about the last of August. And now, after having waited seven years to be united to Jean and having come all the way across the Atlantic ocean for the purpose, she must go back to Hamburg.

That Sunday was a sultry afternoon, and Elsa in order to get cool sat on the dock gloomily looking out over the waters of the bay. She saw a little steamer leave New York and make for the island. Boats were coming often, and she had looked when each had arrived for Jean. But now she had given up hope. When the boat reached the dock she scarcely noticed those who came ashore. But a man passed near her, stopped and looked at her scrutinizingly.

"Elsa!" he exclaimed. She arose and for a moment did not recognize Jean, for he wore a full beard.

"Oh, Jean!" she cried. "Why have you not come before?"

"How long have you been here?"

"Three days."

"I supposed you would come on the steamer that is telegraphed to be here presently."

Elsa had little education, and she had written the name of the ship on which she would sail so badly that Jean could not read it. He had therefore judged of the time of her arrival from the date she gave and consequently fell between two steamers. But he wasted few words in explanation.

"Come, Elsa," he said. "We must be married at once, go to New York and leave for my home in Pennsylvania on a night train. Tomorrow will be Labor day, and I am at the head of the committee of arrangements for my union and have much to do."

So Jean and Elsa were married on the island and left there at once. It was past midnight when they reached their home, a cottage near a steel works where Jean was employed. Though it was late, Elsa found time to admire the cozy home that Jean had prepared for her.

The first day Elsa spent in America was Labor day, and though she saw little of her husband she saw one of the most important celebrations of the new world.

LIVE STOCK NOTES
 Be always on guard around even the gentlest bull. He may be like the gun that wasn't loaded.
 Warts on cattle or horses may be removed by applying castor oil well rubbed in twice a day for a week or two.
 Dark stables are frequent causes of weak eyed horses. Let plenty of light into the stables.
 Concrete feeding doors for hogs are becoming popular in many sections. There is practically no loss of feed where these are used.
 Fattening sheep must be made to eat as much as possible, but must never be made to turn from their food.

THE OXWARBLE FLY CAUSE OF TROUBLE

[Prepared by Ohio agricultural experiment station.]
 Cattle grubs, where infestation is heavy, seriously interfere with gains in fattening cattle and reduce the flow of milk in dairy cattle. Cases demonstrating this fact are numerous each spring during the "grubby" season. On a Wayne county farm ninety-one grubs were extracted from the back of a fifteen-month-old Hereford heifer. The heifer should have weighed 600 to 750 pounds at this age, with average care and feed. Instead it was weak and emaciated and weighed only about 325 pounds.
 The fly (Hypoderma Lineata) that causes this grub is known as the ox warble fly, the heel fly, or the ox bot fly. The eggs are deposited upon the hairs during the spring and summer, and the animal on tickling them carries the eggs or larvae into its mouth. The young maggot passes into the guttles. From the guttles it migrates to the back, where it causes a lump or swelling. In the spring or early summer months

Short-horn bulls are noted for prepotency, and when crossed with cows of a coarse description they improve the quality of the meat produced by cattle which are descended on the female side from inferior live stock. While classed as a beef breed, many families of pure bred Short-horn cows have possessed in a high degree both milk and beef producing properties. Certain strains of Short-horns are famous for their milk producing qualities. The bull shown is a fine type of the Short-horn breed.

the grub emerges from the back of the animal through a small hole previously used for breathing purposes. Falling to the ground and burrowing in it the grub enters the pupal stage, which covers a period of from three to six weeks. At the end of that period a two-winged fly emerges. Thus the complete life history covers almost a year.
 The most effective means of combating the cattle grubs is to squeeze them out and destroy them. This method has been tested by several co-operative dairymen's associations in Denmark and resulted in a substantial reduction of the number of grubs. The French Association for Grub Eradication recommends the removal of the grub by means of pressure with thumb and fingers when the warble is "ripe." When the warble is smaller and firmer to the touch, the grub may be extracted by inserting a pair of small forceps into the opening of the tumor. If the opening is too small to permit the removal of the grub with the forceps, it may be enlarged by a small incision with a sharp knife. Strong pressure will then force the grub out through this artificial opening. Care should be exercised to destroy all grubs that are removed, otherwise they may pass into the pupal stage and ultimately develop into adult flies. After the removal of the grubs an antiseptic should be applied to the affected portions of the hide.

Live Stock Need Salt.
 Keep pieces of rock salt on hand at the feeding places of all stock so the animals may get a taste of it whenever they like. All stock need salt occasionally and are benefited by it. It promotes appetite and digestion, and tends to expel worms.
The Hog Herd.
 Unusually in a herd is the surest index of the worth of the stock and the skill of the breeder. A uniform lot of pigs well fed look better when fattened and command a higher price on the market than a mixed lot.

Matches? Pooh!
They Were Too Small to Bother About

The first phosphorus match was made in 1812.

Then, for a hundred years, man forgot about matches. He invented the telegraph, the telephone, the wireless, the turbine engine, the ocean liner, the flying machine. He gridironed the surface of the earth with railroads. But matches? Pooh! They seemed too small to bother about.

And yet, if there is one thing more than another that this country has needed, it is a better match—a match that will strike anywhere and yet be safe—a match that won't spark or sputter, or break easily—a match that will burn evenly and is non-poisonous.

The Safe Home Match is a real safety match. It strikes anywhere. It does not spark. It does not sputter. It burns evenly. The stick is strong and sturdy. You cannot break it unless you apply very much more force than you are likely to do.

Best of all, the Safe Home Match is non-poisonous.

No "Water" in Bell Telephone Stock

Even the most radical enemies of "big business" admit that there is no "water" in Bell Telephone stock. The Bell organization last year paid less than a 6% dividend on actual physical valuation of the property.

In a recent speech in New York, Congressman Lewis, of Maryland, in advocating government ownership of telephones, said:

"Be it said for the Bell System, that it is the one great corporation in our country that has not issued tons of counterfeit capital. Its stock and bonds today represent the actual contributions of its shareholders in money to a great common enterprise, and we will not have that unfortunate circumstance to deal with in the valuation of their properties."

Private enterprise and initiative have made American telephone service the cheapest and most efficient service in the world.

GREAT BRITAIN'S MIGHTY FLEET BEST IN WORLD

Her Own Navy Practically Equals Those of the Nations in the Triple Alliance.

GERMAN FLEET FORMIDABLE

Kaiser's Seamen Under Remarkable Discipline, While Those of Other Continental Powers Are Slack, Though Good Fighters.

In the triple alliance the most formidable naval power is Germany. The German fleet has been making rapid strides in the last few years and can send to sea 17 battleships or battle cruisers of the dreadnaught class. She has 11 more on the way, but not now available.

Besides this first fleet, Germany can still show a second line, in reserve, of 20 other battleships, all built in the last 20 years. Many of these, however, need not be taken seriously. In the first place, they are not all, by any means, in full commission, and there is no doubt that it would take weeks of hard work, at least, to get them all ready for sea.

In the second place, until less than ten years ago Germany maintained the remarkable policy of arming none of her ships with guns of more than nine-inch caliber, and all these ships belong to that period. Sending them into action with modern dreadnaughts, with 12 and 13.6 inch rifles, would be pure slaughter.

Italy's Sea Strength.

The second naval power of the triple alliance is Italy. She can send out a powerful and homogeneous squadron of four dreadnaughts, which, designed as they were by the man who is conceded to be the ablest warship designer now living, will have to be reckoned with in any sea fight. She has two more fine ships on the ways, but not within months of commissioning.

With this one contribution, however, Italy's bolt is shot. She has eight old battleships, which, although probably, gun for gun, better ships than Germany's 20 old ships, are open to much the same criticism.

Austria, numerically, is stronger than Italy in fighting ships, but their quality is not comparable. She can bring into action two ships of the dreadnaught class and three others, which, although older, smaller and slower, wouldn't compare unfavorably with the United States Connecticut class. Besides these, she has three more which class with Germany's and Italy's secondary line. All her fleet is in full commission.

England's Mighty Fleet.

Against these three fleets, for the triple entente the backbone, if not practically the entire opposing force, is in England's great war fleet. England has now at sea and ready for action, 30 battleships of the dreadnaught or superdreadnaught type, besides ten others which, like the Lord Nelson and Agamemnon class but little below the dreadnaught rating.

The ships carry four 12-inch guns; therefore they are classed below the dreadnaughts. But they carry no less than ten 9.2-inch, which makes them far superior to any other battleship not of dreadnaught rating now afloat. And that is aside from the fact that the British 9.2-inch is a gun of terrible effectiveness, but faintly shadowed forth in figures.

Besides, England has 38 smaller and older battleships, which outclass the 20 older ships of Germany. Of armored cruisers, England has 16 to Germany's three, Italy's four and Austria's none.

France, the second member of the entente, in battleships can show but two dreadnaughts, but she has nine ships of the Justice, St. Louis and similar classes, all worthy to be classed, say, with the Connecticut, and 12 old craft which could, in emergency, be hauled out to the firing line. France has also 15 armored cruisers; and these, though perhaps not of tremendous fighting value, are really fine ships.

The Russian fleet need hardly be taken seriously, though she has four battleships—on paper—one of which might be extricated from the dockyard in time to fire a shot at an enemy. This brings the question down to the really important basis of comparison—morale, training, discipline and fighting efficiency.

German Discipline.

The German navy is a wonderfully efficient organization—in a typically German way. There is no discounting the thoroughness with which the German fleet has been drilled, the faithfulness that has gone into its preparation, from driving the first rivet in each vessel's keel to the training of the turret-pointers and the drill at maneuvering in squadron.

The faithfulness is apt to produce results—provided the enemy doesn't produce some maneuver that wasn't in the tactical text books.

The Italian navy has almost none of the showy precision of discipline of the German. For one thing, their ships are dirty compared to the spotless decks beneath the banner of the Fatherland; for another, their drill and discipline has a rather Latin spirit of slapdash in it that doesn't impress the eye. But people who have had a chance to observe the Italian ships at sea, or the behavior of their men in port, can tell you that they are good ships and manned by good, hard-working sailormen. For all around, offhand sea-fighting efficiency a good many competent critics rate the Italian navy, ship for ship, a notch above the methodical German.

In personnel the Austrian fleet is heavily handicapped at the very start by one circumstance—the Austrian German is no sailorman and never was. The Hun is no better. As a consequence the Austrian fleet is manned entirely by Italians and Dalmatians. Now the Dalmatian, while a good sailorman, racially is a Serb. He is pure Slav, with as much love for the Germans as any of his race.

On the side of the triple entente, to use the terms, morale or discipline in connection with the Russian service, would be absurd, the naval critics say.

Criticism of French.

The French navy has come in in the past for some very hard knocks from the critics. Discipline in that service has been declared to be just two jumps above the Russian standard and approximating that of Spain. France's long series of naval disasters have been dragged out to prove that her navy is all but a hopeless affair.

As a matter of fact, the French navy suffers from very much the same trouble as the Italian. The Latin doesn't maintain the Teutonic idea of discipline, but he seems to get along very well on his own peculiar lines. The French ships, like the Italian, are very near the dirtiest afloat, and this in itself is apt to prejudice an American critic.

But while, to our minds, dirt and discipline are contradictory terms, there isn't any conclusive proof that dirt and straight shooting should be. And the French can show a very pretty article of the latter commodity. Ashore they are handicapped by a great deal of graft and slack methods in their navy yards, but at sea the French are not only good seafaring men, but plentifully supplied with enthusiasm for their profession.

There are no naval men in the world who study their profession, along scientific lines with the zeal the French put into it. Every one of them has tactics at his fingers' ends, and in the torpedo branches, destroyers and submarines, they easily lead the world.

DIES LIKE ROLAND GARROS

Belgian Aviator Drives His Machine into Aeroplane of Foe and Both Die.

Brussels, Belgium.—Emulating the heroic example of Roland Garros, who killed the 25 German officers and men in it while he sacrificed his own life, a Belgian military aviator gave his life to take that of a German who was flying over the Belgian battle lines, getting information for his army.

The German aviator was one of the flying scouts of a column of 50,000 troops who are trying to force a passage across this country to attack France from the north. When he flew over the city of Liege, where a battle was being fought, the Belgian aviator mounted in his aeroplane and flew to meet him.

At first the aviators circled about like falcons, but kept at a distance and fought a rifle duel, each trying to kill his opponent or strike some vulnerable part of his engine or propeller.

Finally the Belgian, evidently fearing that his opponent might escape him and carry back to the invading army valuable information of the country, decided to sacrifice himself to make sure of his enemy.

Abandoning his circular course, the Belgian darted straight at his adversary at top speed. The German, when he realized what the Belgian was about, dived toward the earth, but he was too late. At terrific speed the Belgian dived after him and struck him fairly amidships, butting his plane squarely in two.

When the Belgian's comrades reached the spot where the two machines came down they found only a tangled mass of steel rods, wires, canvas and splinters of wood and, entangled in them, the dead bodies of the two combatants.

RUSSIAN ARMY "GOES DRY"

Czar Forbids the Drinking of Vodka by His Officers and Soldiers, With Severe Penalties.

St. Petersburg.—Outbreak of the war has caused an abrupt change in the government's attitude toward the liquor traffic—though only as it affects the army.

So far as the people at large are concerned, the government continues to reap an enormous profit out of its monopoly of the sale of vodka.

But new relations have been issued for the Russian army, prohibiting officers from drinking vodka in camp, on maneuvers or while on duty with their men. All cases of drunkenness will be dealt with in the severest possible manner, the order declares.

Commanding officers are ordered to discourage the drinking of intoxicants by their subordinates, and are recommended to set the example themselves. Vodka is forbidden to the enlisted men at all times, and the most stringent measures will be taken to prevent them from buying it. No soldier will be allowed to receive money from home if he is known to be inclined to drink.
