Will Breed Poland Chinas

Geo. McEachen, one of the progressive farmer-breeders of this place is again embarking in the Poland China hog raising business and this week shipped in the start for a good herd—a bunch of 25 registered brood sows. He purchased the stock from W. H. Copple, of Bancroft, a breeder well known among those who place their faith in the Polands. It has been proven that no place in Nebraska, or the nation for that matter, has any advantage over Wayne county as the home of stock of any kind, and the Democrat is glad to see the business of growing the pure bred animal increase. And it is increasing here. The express shipments of pure bred stock of different kinds during the past year has been from three to four times that of any other year in the history of Wayne. It pays to produce the best.

Moving

Mangus Paulsen has moved to a place on cottage hill.

Dick Chapin has moved into the W. L. Welbaum house in the north part of Wayne.

Walt Sherbahn has settled in the Richardson residence.

See the Democrat for wedding invitations.

Editors And Candidates

Last Friday afternoon at South Omaha there was a meeting of democratic nominees and democratic editors in a sort of get-together meeting to get acquainted with each other and plan a campaign for the coming election. The newspaper men and candidates were guests of the South Omaha business men, and right royally did they entertain. No product of the great and growing city was denied the guests whether it came from the great meat packing plants or the factory for brewing thirst-quenching beverages or comfortable and speedy conveyance to view the place and surrounding country. About fifty of the newspaper-men of the state were present and a majority of the candidates nominated at the late primary, three of whom were eligible to attend in the dual capacity of nominee and editor. A business session was held in the afternoon, followed by a ride over the city and including a trip to the Seymour country club grounds at Ralston, which should be spelled "see-more" for it is a most beautiful and extended view that one gets from the balcony of the pretty club house.

It was the unanimous verdict of those present that at time like this with more than half of the people of the globe subjects of the great nations now at war with each other that the paramount issue is the great peace policies of the great statesman and scholar at Washington who while bearing a burden of grief for loss of his life companion takes upon his shoulders the trials and sorrows of half the world in his endeavor to bring order out of chaos and peace where there is no peace. It is the duty of every voter to see that he does nothing that will in the least oppose the policy of the administration so far as it relates to the attitude toward the powers now at war unless he believes in war and all of its attending horrors.

Resolutions were passed endorsing the administration of Governor Morehead, the acts of the last legislature, the democratic members of the present congress, and the administration of President Wilson. Below are the resolutions relative to the president and his official family:

Conspicuous among the nations of the earth in these times of world-war beyond the seas in our loved republic.

The masterful genius of honorable peace who has thus far so safely piloted the ship of the republic through dangerous and uncertain seas has won the gratitude of the humanity of the world.

By his course in keeping this nation firm from any manner of entangling alliance with any other world power he has exemplified the full force of the warning words of Washington; the great wisdom of Jefferson and the patriotic patience of Abraham Lincoln, in dealing with a situation which many have feared would drag the United States in to participation in the Mexico and European conflicts.

We believe the people of the nation, regardless of their political affiliations, will daily, more and more, appreciate and applaud the wonderful wisdom and patience with which the president and his secretary of state have avoided unpleasant international complications which must have led to the shedding of American blood upon military altars.

I Am Grateful To All

and take this opportunity in retiring from 10 years of active work among the citizens of Wayne to thank one and all for their kind consideration and liberal patronage during these years. I tried to serve you well, and ask that you give my worthy successor the same confidence and fair treatment, believing that he will be worthy of it. I plan to remain with him and assist with the work and the business for several months. I thank you all.

WM. HOGUEWOOD,
your old drayman.

The Warring World News

Another week has passed and the war news from Europe continues to be meagre and unsatisfactory. The familiar line stares the reader in the face daily—the substance of which is that fierce fighting is supposed to be going on, but the result is not known. Sometimes the Germans are forcing the Allies back at one end of the long line of battle and the Allies are holding their ground at the other extremity. In the east the early reports were to the effect that the Russian forces were entering Prussia and driving all before them. Then this is denied and many thousand Russians are reported captured. One report stated that the Germans had captured 300 Russian generals. In fact a careful reading of reports tend to show that the Germans have been gradually forcing their way toward Paris in spite of the best efforts of French, Belgian and English troops to stop them. The Russians appear to have been securing the best of the fight on the east.

It now appears quite probable that Turkey will soon become an ally of the German-Austrian forces, and in that event Italy and Greece will no doubt form an alliance with Great Britain.

Bombs from German airships have been dropped in Paris on several occasions.

Council Proceedings

Last Friday evening the city council met as a board of equalization at the city hall and to levy the assessment against the lots in the two new sewer districts, and hear complaints and remonstrances if any. The assessments were duly made and were made to become due and payable in five annual installments, one-fifth each year, so it will not prove burdensome to property owners. The cost of the new sewer was about 50c per foot.

The council after passing on the sewer assessment and other matters ordered warrants drawn to pay the approved bills and contract work in connection with the sewer in sums aggregating $2,050 for district No. 2 and $1,140 for district No. 3.

In addition to this they allowed a bill of $515 to the Kansas City Machine works for reborring and repairing the engines, which has made them the same as new for work, and will mean the saving in coal and labor of the full cost of the work before many months have passed.

Commercial Club Annual

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Commercial Club Tuesday evening it was decided to hold the annual meeting for the election of new officers and committees on Friday evening September 11th. There will be another meeting of the committee in the meantime, the date of which is not yet known. The Democrat hopes to see a large attendance at the annual and a new interest shown, for such an organization is one of the most important in a community.

Chautauqua Closed Well

The last evening of the chautauqua was one of the best and a large audience went away well pleased with the week as a whole, in proof of which we can state that nearly enough tickets were pledged to meet all requirements for a chautauqua next year. There will be a meeting of the local board early this month and a committee named to have charge of the next program, and it will be for this committee to plan and work out the next year program.

Death of Father Rothkegel

Hartington, Nebr., Aug., 31.—Special: Rev. Father Rothkegel, of Menominee, died yesterday at a hospital at Hot Springs, S. D., of bronchial tuberculosis. He had been in charge of the Menominee church for the past seven years. The funeral will be held at Menominee. Rev. Father Kearns went to Menominee to attend the funeral Wednesday.

Thanks to All

We wish to express our appreciation of the many votes given our son Lynn, enabling him to win the pony and cart in the recent pony contest.

State Normal Notes

The next meeting of the board of education will be held at Lincoln October 1.

The normal school will open for the registration of students on Monday, September 14.

There will be a conference of the normal school presidents held at Lincoln Monday, September 7.

A card from Miss Stocking written August 20 gave notice that she was still in London but expected to sail for America August 29th.

At the last meeting of the board of education the resignation of James Garrett as janitor of the state normal school was accepted and Clarence E. Linton employed to fill the vacancy. Mr. Linton began work September 1.

All who expect to register in the Model school of the normal this year should meet in the chapel room at 9 o'clock Monday, September 7. At that time it will be decided what two grades will not be represented in the work of the school this year.

Professor Lackey recently received a copyright on a manual he has been using in his agriculture classes. The title of the book is "Laboratory Exercises in the Elements of Agriculture," a work which has received much favorable comment from a number of educators who have examined it.

At the meeting of the board of education held at Lincoln August 26th the contract for furnishing coal to the Wayne state normal school for the ensuing year was awarded to the Whitebreast Coal Company. The bid of this company was, Weir city nut, $4.46 per ton; Bolton mine run, $3.83, to be furnished f. o. b. Wayne.

Wayne School and Teachers

The Wayne city schools will open next Monday morning, September 7. It is important that every child be in his place the first day. All city teachers are expected to be present at a teachers' meeting which will be held in the superintendent's office, Saturday, September 5, 3:30 p. m.

O. R. BOWEN,
Superintendent.

Below are names and assignment of teachers:

Superintendent, O. R. Bowen; Principal, High School, Mrs. M. A. Phillips; Mabel Dayton, Alwine Meyer, A. E. Nordgren, teachers of high school; music supervisor, Mrs. Louise K. Murre; domestic science, Nina Huyck; eighth grade, Emma Hughes; sixth grade, Della Abbott; fifth grade, Mrs. Alice Scafe; fourth grade, Mary Pawelski; third grade, C. Belva Nickel; second grade, Florence Welch; first grade, Mamie Wallace; kindergarten, C. Esse Teich.

A Few Late News Notes

Butte, Montana, is under martial law as a result of mine worker's trouble.

The new Marine Risk act is a law now, and begins to be of benefit at once. This is a government marine insurance bureau, intended to lend the moral support of government to the building of much needed merchant marine, the need of which is felt more seriously since the war in the east has shown us that our policy of "protection" had completely killed American ship-building, owning and operating also.

Congress will be asked to pass a war tax bill of some kind to create revenue to take place of the tariff receipts cut down by reason of the war.

There has been three votes taken by the college of cardinals at Rome, assembled to name a successor to the late Pope, but no election has resulted.

Pony Contest Winner

Lynn Chichester won first place in the pony contest which closed Saturday evening, in which a number of Wayne merchants gave a pony, harness and cart to the boy or girl receiving the most votes. The winner had enough votes to have elected him governor of most any state in the union had that been their purpose, 1,732,030 being cast to give him the prize.

Burr Davis and Billger Meyer won second and third places. More than 50 entered the contest.

Local News Items

It is with regret that the Democrat reports that W. D. Redmond, who was nominated by democratic voters as their candidate for representative, could not see his way clear to make the race, and the regret is not confined to the Democrat alone, nor to the democrats, for there are many of his friends who believe that by experience, acquaintance and a marked ability peculiar to himself he would be a most excellent representative for Wayne county to have at Lincoln this winter. Mr. Redmond as registrar at the college has many and important duties to perform, and because he thought that his first duty was there, he declined to accept the nomination. It is but just to add that the nomination came to Mr. Redmond without his knowledge or consent, and that he had been urged to file for the office but declined because of his other duties. This leaves a vacancy on the ticket which we hope the county central committee will fill with a good candidate, for we want to see a good clear race for this important office this fall.

The Misses Welch and Theobald gave a pre-nuptial luncheon in honor of Miss Nangle Wednesday, September 2nd, at one o'clock. The color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in every detail. Miss Nangle was guided to her chair in the dining room by a line of gold hearts. The same idea was carried out in the bride's favor, an individual silver salt and pepper incased in a yellow satin heart. A beautiful bouquet of yellow roses formed the centerpiece of the perfectly appointed table while from above a shower of gold hearts dropped from the chandelier which was covered with smilax. A five course luncheon was served after which Auction Bridge furnished the amusement. Mrs. Perry Theobald won the prize, a hand embroidered handkerchief, which she afterwards presented to the guest of honor.

Miss Jane Thompson, who spoke on the streets of Wayne last Saturday afternoon and evening was listened to by a good sized audience. She is a pleasing speaker, and gave convincing arguments in favor of the cause she represents—equal suffrage. She is one of the workers sent out by the national association and she made some converts to the cause whether any votes for it or not.

Mrs. J. T. House will organize a Juvenile Music Club for the purpose of developing a desire for good music. Children under fifteen years of age who have had one year's previous training in music will be eligible to membership. It will meet on the first Saturday of each month from October to May. For particulars inquire of Mrs. House, 36-3.

The northern farmers going into Texas are going to make money. The Plainview Evening Herald contains the following item from Dawn which is the basis of the assertion we make above: W. E. Neal has received two 405-ton Ames Portable silos, and will erect them on his fine irrigated farm adjoining the townsite. Mr. Neal is having these silos painted white, and standing 43 feet above the ground they will make conspicuous landmarks that can be seen for miles. These silos have an aggregate capacity of 810 tons, are the largest yet erected by any one man on the Plains.

O. P. DePue and family were here Tuesday on their way to California to spend the winter. Mr. DePue was in business here two or three years, and from here he went to Laurel where he recently sold out. With him besides his wife and daughter Audera was his wife's sister, Mrs. Mills. They went from here to Omaha, and from there will go to Mt. Ayer, Iowa, for a short visit before starting on their long journey. They plan to make the entire trip by automobile. Whether or not they locate in the west will depend upon how good it looks to them.

While at Omaha Sunday evening W. D. Redmond called on W. A. Hiseox, at the Presbyterian hospital and found him rallying nicely from the operation which he had undergone the Wednesday before, and feeling better than for several months, both physically and mentally. He feels assured now that he will soon be restored to usual health, which will be good news to his many friends.

Clyde Oman, who came by automobile from Montana, arriving last Wednesday night did not observe that the country was suffering from drouth as he had rain and mud to contend with a great part of the way. They had a nice time out there climbing the mountains and running foot races with the bears.

This evening at the home of M. T. Munsinger and wife just north of town the ladies of the Rural Home Society will entertain their husbands at a moonlight lawn social and it is needless to say to those who know the members of that society that there will not be a good time there this evening.

More than 400 pet dogs have been left in Paris by refugees who left the city. If the siege of the city lasts long those dogs will command a good price, according to the quotations recently given of dog meat in that city during the trouble of 1870.

Mrs. A. C. Duling, better known here as Miss Braumger, came from Sioux City Wednesday and is visiting at the homes of T. W. Moran and J. E. Hutemer.

W. L. Hurlbert and family, who left two weeks ago by auto to visit relatives and friends in southwestern Iowa, their old home, returned Monday and report a most pleasant trip. They report crop prospects good in that country—a little dryer than here but ground in better condition to stand the dry weather.

It is reported that Congressman Green of the 9th Iowa congressional district has been away from duty, and in Maine stamping the state, and when he returned to his seat at Washington and called for his salary he learned that his time had been taken out, and that his pay of $20 54 per day had not been piling up while he was off duty when the men were needed at Washington. We hope to see this rule enforced without fear or favor.

Those living in the district a few miles northwest of Wayne are praising Commissioner Henry Rethwisch for the good work he had done in seeing to the prompt finishing and good quality of a new bridge just finished over a little branch of the Logan on the road between the farms of Emil Hansen and Geo. Hofeldt and the Strahan farms. The bridge is but a 24 foot span, and is not a large structure, but it was not put in for beauty, but to furnish a permanent crossing. All that is now needed is a bit of dragging on one mile of road that was not needed before the bridge was completed, when they will have a fine road again for they say the road overseer of the district can now be depended upon to finish up and complete the good job.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Quality First Then Price

That's the policy of this store—and it applies to prescriptions with double force. When health is at stake, price should not be the foremost question. With us, quality is first always and when we can save you money on anything whatsoever, without sacrificing quality, we do so gladly. You will find this store the best place at which to trade for this reason, if for no other. But there are other reasons, such as prompt and courteous service extended at the hands of experienced and well trained men.

Editor Gardner was at Omaha Friday attending the meeting of the democratic editors of the state and the democratic nominees for various offices at the coming election. Following the meeting he went to Havelock and Lincoln to visit with relatives and friends Saturday and Sunday, returning Monday morning.

Theodore Bell and wife returned Monday from a visit of nearly a week at the home of their sons, Henry and Oley, who are farming on the Winnebago reservation this season. They have 160 acres of good corn coming to maturity—said to be as good as the best, and in spite of free corn from Argentine or elsewhere, the editor was told that they have an offer of 60 cents per bushel for it as fast as it comes from the field if they wish to sell for that sum. Mr. and Mrs. Bell report a good time, and were glad that the sons have such favorable prospects.

Congressman Cline Corners Republicans

The House of Representatives consists of 290 Democrats and 127 Republicans. What support did these important (the tariff, currency, trust and other administration) measures receive from the republican party? It must be admitted that these measures are party platform measures; if they did not have real merit, they would have been opposed by the united opposition. What is the record?

Seven republicans (and progressives) voted for the Underwood tariff bill.

Thirty-eight republicans voted for the currency bill.

Forty-seven republicans voted for the anti-trust (Clayton) bill.

Only 12 republicans voted against the stock and bond bill.

No republicans voted against the trade commission bill.

REPUBLICANS OUGHT TO STOP CRITICIZING THE DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION OR STOP VOTING FOR ITS MEASURES. There are some republicans who profess to believe that there is a chance to return to power in the November election. I want to submit a few interrogatories to that class of republicans who place the welfare of the country above party:

Do you want to return the republican party to power and reinstate Cannonism? You know that will happen if the republicans elect the next house.

Do you want to repeal the Underwood tariff bill and substitute the Payne-Aldrich law?

Do you want to repeal the new currency system and turn your fiscal affairs back to Wall street to manage for you again?

Do you think the anti-trust legislation ought to be repealed and the Morgan-Rockefeller combination once more given a free hand?

Are you dissatisfied with the income tax law that saves you a hundred million a year in your taxes?

Do you not believe that United States senators ought to be elected by the people?

Are you anxious to repeal the parcels post law and go back to the express companies that robbed you for years with excessive charges?

Is the old soldier satisfied with the Sherwood pension law?

Does he want to trust the republican party to legislate for him that disappointed him for fourteen years?

Does the Spanish-American soldier have any complaint of a democratic congress that provided a pension for his wife and minor children if he should be taken from his family?

Is union labor willing to repudiate the party that protected it with legislation and return to power that party that turned a deaf ear to its appeal? If you are satisfied with this progressive legislation, why should you take the chance of a change.—From a speech by Congressman Cyrus Cline, of Indiana, in the House of Representatives.

POULTRY and EGGS

FACTS ABOUT RAISING AND PLUCKING GEESE

My fifteen years' experience in raising geese teaches me to avoid getting my breeding stock too fat. Good results cannot be secured from such stock, writes F. J. Bauman in the American Agriculturist. I feed very little corn. Barley, oats and a mash once a week mixed up with potato parings and cabbage leaves make a good feed. Clover hay and corn fodder leaves are also good. One pint of barley or oats with a little green food once a day is enough for a goose.

For best results I mate two geese to one gander. The geese lay thirty to Geese are valuable not only for their flesh, but for plumage, and where kept for the latter purpose are plucked four or five times a year. Among the varieties grown in this country is the White-Comb, which is large, tall, snowy white in color and came originally from Westphalia. They weigh from eighteen to twenty pounds when full grown and are highly regarded by farmers as practical birds.

forty eggs in a season. About 60 per cent will be fertile. Geese two years old and over make the best breeding stock. It takes a Toulouse goose eighteen months to mature fully.

I use barrels for nests. In them I put some straw and lay the barrel on its side, so the geese can get in easily. When a goose becomes broody she can be shut up. In a short time she will begin to lay again. I use Plymouth Rock or Wyandotte hens for hatching goose eggs. They do better than old geese, though they can cover only four to six eggs. It takes twenty-eight days to hatch goose eggs. It is better not to wash goose eggs if dirty until ready to set.

In setting eggs I put plenty of soil in the bottom of the nest to keep eggs moist. On the eighteenth day I put the eggs in warm water about the same temperature as the hen furnishes. That will soften shell and will insure a better hatch.

After the laying season I pick the geese. Their feathers are worth 75 cents a pound. Three geese will yield a pound. I never pick the long feathers below the wing, for if these are picked the geese will drag their wings. If feathers show blood in the quill let the birds go for another week. Do not pick a goose when laying, for this will stop her at once. In plucking I lay the geese on their backs on my knees.

CARE OF THE PULLETS.

Winter Quarters For Young Stock Should Be Put In Readiness.

It pays to plan early where to place the young pullets' winter quarters. If they get the habit of roosting in trees or tool sheds it is an endless task to break them of it, writes a correspondent of the Orange Judd Farmer. Each evening members of the family must chase them to their coop. As this is annoying, I have devised a method against it. By training early, even while the mother is still with them, we have broken them of the habit.

Carpenter's trestles or several large tiles are used to make a temporary platform. The mother hen and chicks are placed in light coops upon it for a few days. Sometimes this platform is built near the winter quarters. At other times it has been convenient to place it several rods away. If so I move it gradually toward the winter coop. It must reach there a few weeks before the cold fall rains begin. The chicks do not notice the movement and so will continue to roost on the platform until they arrive at the winter coop. After they are broken in and when it is necessary to house them the platform is removed. They go into their winter quarters without further trouble.

I do not care to get them indoors until cool weather sets in, as the fire more troubles some indoors than out. To rid the poultry house of lice and mites I dip the old hens and spray the roosts and the interior of the building with a disinfecting solution. After choosing a warm day I dip the hen completely under the solution. The chickens are then placed to dry in a small galvanized tank, which is set on an incline, with a small vessel under the drain pipe. After this, however, I turn them loose in the building.

RAVAGES OF HESSIAN FLY.

Probably the Most Destructive Insect to Wheat, Rye and Barley.

[Prepared by J. Troop, entomologist Purdue university, agricultural experiment station.]

The Hessian fly is probably the most destructive insect to wheat, rye and barley with which the farmer has to contend. It seems to prefer wheat, but it is not uncommon during the seasons when the fly is abundant for a large percentage of the rye and barley crops to be destroyed. Oats are seldom if ever attacked by this fly.

As is well known, the fly usually goes in cycles of three or four years. This is due, partially at least, to the parasites which attack it, so that we usually have about two years of abundance of flies, when the parasites become numerous enough to kill them off, and then there are several seasons when there are comparatively few and the injury is so slight that it is scarcely noticed. During these years the parasites, finding very little upon which to feed, naturally die off, and this gives the few remaining flies an opportunity to breed and increase in numbers without molestation until they finally become numerous again.

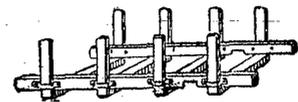

Wheat is grown in every county in Indiana. The number of bushels raised in 1911 ranged from 23,000 bushels in Benton, which is a corn county, to 1,031,000 bushels in Posey county, the whole state yielding 34,506,320 bushels. In 1910 the yield was 36,152,022 bushels, or an average of 35,000,000 bushels in round numbers. It is estimated that an average of 10 per cent of the crop is lost annually from the ravages of the fly. This would amount to 3,500,000 bushels, which at 75 cents per bushel would make $2,625,000 as the annual loss to Indiana farmers from this source. It will be more than that this year.

It is safe to say that a large part of this loss could be prevented if farmers would give more attention to a better system of farming. Some of the special crop insects, the onion thrips for example, may be held down by spraying, even where seventy-five or 100 acres are involved, but the Hessian fly is a different proposition and must be outwitted by changing the usual system of raising wheat.

Three things are necessary in waging a successful warfare against the fly, viz—thorough preparation of the soil so as to form the best possible conditions for germination; heavy fertilizing, if the soil is not already in good condition, so as to insure a quick and rapid growth, and late sowing, so as to compel the flies to go elsewhere in order to deposit their eggs.

Rack For Hauling Wood.

Take two 4 by 5 pieces of very strong wood eleven to twelve feet long and cut a notch in each so as to fit down over hind bolster of the wagon to prevent the rack from slipping backward or forward. Use four or six standards on each side and the same number of crosspieces, so placed that the standard in going down through the socket catches against the end of the crosspiece, as shown in the accompanying sketch. Make the standards three and a half feet long. They may be cut off afterward if desired. Make the standard sockets from old wagon tires to admit a standard 1 1/2 by 4 inches and with holes for one-half inch bolts. Bolt all crosspieces firmly. Have wagon near by when making the rack and place the rack so far forward that in turning the front wheels will just miss the end.

CARE OF LIVE STOCK.

A starved, stunted colt makes a hard keeper. The young colt should have a regular ration of grain. Keep him growing. Its first year is an important one, and it should never lose its colt flesh.

A cow hasn't any excuse for getting sick, says Dr. F. S. Schoenleber, state veterinarian at the Kansas Agricultural college. That is, it should not get sick if it has enough wholesome roughage and concentrated feed to eat, clean water to drink—minus the chill—meals served regularly and is housed comfortably.

Wormy, coughing, stunted hogs have been cured and made perfectly healthy by the use of one-fourth to one-half a box of Iyo to a barrel of soaked corn, shorts or slops. This is the remedy of a Kansas man, and he says it never fails.

In feeding out straw and corn stover in the morning your sheep will take more exercise looking for more food to satisfy its appetite.

Sheep are the most nervous of animals, and if allowed to run down quickly become the prey of disease. The well kept, well fed sheep is the only kind to keep.

Sheep will not thrive in dark, damp, badly ventilated quarters even if they are only confined in such places overnight. Better keep them in an open lot than house them under such conditions.

A horse can be given from one to two pints of castor oil, sheep about four ounces, pigs two ounces and calves two to four ounces. In case of scours it is best to give small doses, combined with laudanum. Castor oil is an excellent purgative.

The theory that ample preparation for war spells peace has been all shot to pieces.

The voters of Nebraska this year will not render a verdict at the polls which can possibly be construed as a rebuke to the grief stricken man at Washington—who, like an Atlas, is bravely bearing a world of trouble for the people of a nation who have placed upon his shoulders this great responsibility. He has proven himself the president of the people and, Nebraska will pay him due tribute election day.

Typewriters first came into use in official circles of congress and the white house during the administration of President Ben J. Harrison, prior to that time all of the vast amount of correspondence being carried on in long hand. Congressmen were indignant when the first typewritten communications were presented to that sedate body, but they have outgrown that and some day they will recognize the fact that woman suffrage is an established fact and has come to stay. The typewriter is coming into such general use that it will not be long until the average printer will not be able to put manuscript copy in type—unless it shall be better written than some that we have had to wrestle with in other days. To set a brief from the pen of some old-time lawyer who did not have business enough to afford to employ some copyist to write his briefs was the limit. Some editors also made a very poor out at writing so that it could be easily read.

R. L. Metcalfe when engaged in the arduous task of boosting other men into office was accounted a wise and farseeing politician. His advise was sought, and often acted upon to the distinct advantage of those interested. It was only when he went into politics for himself that he lost his bearings and manifested an utter lack of political acumen. To the casual observer of men and things Met's course in fling for the gubernatorial nomination last June was as bad a blunder as that of the Dublin lad who thirty-six years ago dove from the bank of the Cedar river, without stopping to take into account the possible shifting of the current, and broke his neck on a sandbar. A rule of political parties since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, has been two terms in office for officials who have gone through one without being arrested. The sentiment in favor of another term for Governor Morehead was so general one could not hardly get about without stepping on it. The ardent friends of Mr. Metcalfe, and he has a multitude of them in Nebraska, should have protested against the sacrifice he made in season to have turned him back. Perhaps he failed to consult his friends as prudence should have dictated. With his second defeat for the nomination more pronounced than the first his perfectly legitimate ambition to be governor of Nebraska is not likely to ever be realized.—Bixby in State Journal.

Among the Churches of Wayne

Presbyterian Church
Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.
Rev. Alexander Corkey returned this week from his chautauqua trip in Illinois and Wisconsin and he will preach next Sunday morning and evening. In the morning his subject will be "Lessons from My Experiences." In the evening he will deliver a sermon on the war in Europe, showing its relation to Christian prophesy and the causes which have led to the carnage of Europe's human slaughter pens.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church
(Rev. Blessing, Pastor.)
Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Divine worship every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, and in the evening at 7:30.

The subject of the morning sermon, will be, "The Power that is in God"—Ephesians 1:19.

Man is a being of power, but he is not contented with the power he possesses, thus he is constantly seeking greater powers. Already has he bridled the lightning and harnessed steam and rivers. But to be the possessor of the greatest power, he must get in contact with the source of power. Of this source the Psalmist speaks when he says "Power belongeth unto God."

The subject of the evening sermon will be, "The Masters Touch"—Mark 8:25.

The church and Sunday school picnic which was postponed, will be held on Friday, September 4th. All members and friends invited.

The Ladies Aid will meet at the home of W. C. Martin Thursday afternoon September 10th.

A cordial invitation to all who wish to worship with us.

Methodist Church
Rev. C. L. Myers, Pastor

Class meeting is a live, up-to-the-minute institution. Every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Sunday morning the pastor will preach from Phil. 3:14 in which some things that should be forgotten will be mentioned while others to be remembered will not be overlooked.

Sunday school at 12 o'clock. Hot weather is nearly over, attendance is better and the superintendent will be looking for you in the class next Sunday.

Junior church services at four. The pastor will do a little crayon stunt which he will call Prop-town. Juniors bring your friends.

Union services are over now and the Epworth League takes up its work at 7 o'clock, giving one hour for the study of the topic.

Public worship at 8 p. m. when the pastor will preach on "Serving the Lord with one shoulder." Annual conference convenes September 16th. Our last business meeting of the year will be held on Thursday night the 8th. There should be a full attendance.

There should be a large attendance at the mid-week prayer meeting. No other service is so vital.

We are now re-organizing our choir and if you will sing we would be glad to have you meet with us. Church music is a part of the worship. A new feature will be introduced after conference. Regular choir meeting every Thursday night.

Have you done your whole duty to the church this year? It is a good time now to begin to do better.

Baptist Church
Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor

Sunday will be our communion service. Last communion Sunday, the pastor was away, and the service was omitted. Let us make Sunday morning a large, delightful communion service. The pastor will preach on the subject, "The Ministry of Praise." There will be no children's sermon.

There were six from our church and young people's society at the associational meeting at Tilden, last week. In many respects it was one of our very best meetings. Every church was represented; every one hopeful and full of encouragement; every pastor remained over Sunday and made it a great day. Wayne was selected as place of meeting next year. J. W. Alter, was elected clerk. A committee was appointed with the pastor as chairman, to arrange some plan to take care of the pastorless churches of the association. It was also decided, during the first part of December to arrange for a simultaneous evangelistic campaign in this part of the state. Brethren from other parts of the state coming to our aid.

The approaching of the school season, the beginning of our regular evening services, the return of summer vacationists, all mean that we must awaken to a new and more enthusiastic ministry in every department of our church life. September is rally month. September 20, is going to be rally day. Rally in the church services, in the Sunday school and in the young people's society. Let every one that loves the Lord's kingdom, join heart and hand with us in this effort.

Sunday evening at 7:30, Miss Tenney-Henderson will lead the young people's study. At 8:30 the pastor will preach. He will begin a series of sermons on the theme: "Life's Best Things." The topic for Sunday evening will be, "The Best Gift." Let every one hear the call for a renewed activity during these days. Manifest this by coming to prayer meeting next Wednesday.

Farnsworth and wife returned to their home in Sioux City the first of the week after an extended visit here on account of automobile trouble, and expect to soon return to Wayne to make their home as Wayne is more centrally located for Mr. Farnsworth's work, being engaged in insurance business.

Mesdames A. R. Davis and Horace Theobald entertained at Kensington Tuesday afternoon also a shower in honor of Miss Reba Nangle. Mrs. Morris sang a solo. An amusing feature of the afternoon was a guessing game of different food stuffs in tiny bags. An elaborate three-course supper was served at 5 o'clock. Many beautiful and useful presents were received. About 20 guests were present.

According to the report issued from Washington, the Nebraska farm laborers worked an average of 9 hours and 46 minutes per day during 1913. There were 70,000 in this class, and their average compensation was $25.90 per month and board. The average wage for those in this class who boarded themselves was $38.40 per month. This was nearly twice as much as the average farm wage paid in the United States as a whole that being $13.85 and $19.97 per month respectively with and without board.

E. A. Olson was here Tuesday in the interest of the Dixon county fair, to be held at Concord next week. We suggested to him that an advertisement in the Democrat would bring the people, and be the best method of letting the attractions be known and far cheaper than driving over the country with car seeing but few people of the many, but he said they could not afford it, and besides the home paper was giving them a lot of free advertising, and that would not be right for them to buy space away from home and let the home man work for nothing. Well, if the home man can afford to give them his space they are foolish not to take it, and that should leave them the more money with which to advertise for a crowd outside. The home folks will quite generally attend, and it is from the outside territory that they should ask for an attendance that will benefit them. Perhaps there is no one thing that it will pay better to advertise extensively than a good public amusement. If a $2 advertisement in the Democrat only brought one fair sized family or some young fellow and his best girl the association would get their money back before the people got away from town. They should pay the local man too, for this advertising.

George Gettman, who has not been in the best of health for some time, left Tuesday morning for Denver, Colorado, where he will spend a time visiting relatives, and see if the change of climate will be beneficial to his health. He will also visit other points in that state. Mr. Gettman expects to hold a farm sale after corn harvest and if the Colorado climate agrees with him will move to that country.

J. H. Massie, who with his family returned from an automobile trip to Schuyler and Fremont report that the corn prospect appeared better than he had expected to find it. The effect of dry weather was most apparent from Madison to the southwest part of the county. He reports that there is lots good corn in most all parts—but also plenty of poor corn adjoining—a condition which indicates the difference between good and bad farming.

DEAR MOTHERS:--

See that your boy or girl has the right start this year at school by having their eyes looked after. Do you know that a child who goes to school uses their eyes more in one week than you do in two months?

Your children will do better work if you see that they do not have eye strain. If they should, and you do not see to it that their eye are taken care of, you will not be the one to suffer for it.

Many a child is backward in their studies and if you trace it back you will find that their eyes is the cause. So be sure that they are right, then go ahead.

I DO NOTHING BUT TEST EYES AND MAKE MY OWN GLASSES. Bring your children to me and see that their eyes are right. If they do not need glasses I will tell you frankly.

CHAPTER II.

The Master's Man.

Vroon faced Hargreave's butler somberly. The one reason why Brains made this man his lieutenant was because Vroon always followed the letter of his instructions to the final period; he never sidestepped or added any frills or innovations of his own, and because of this very automatism he rarely blundered into a trap. If he failed it was for the simple fact that the master mind had overlooked some essential detail. The organization of the Black Hundred was almost totally unknown to either the public or the police. It is only when you fail that you are found out.

"The patrolman has been trussed up like you," began Vroon. "If they find him they will probably find you. But before that you will grow thirsty and hungry. Where did your master put that money?"

"He carried it with him."
"Why didn't you call for help?"
"The houses on either side are too far away. I might yell till doomsday without being heard. They will have heard the pistol shots; but Mr. Hargreave was always practicing in the backyard."

"The people in those two houses have been called out of town. The servants are off for the night."

"Very interesting," replied Jones, staring at the rug.

"Your master is dead."

Jones' chin sank upon his breast. His heart was heavy, heavier than it had ever been before.

"Your master left a will?"
"Indeed, I could not say."

"We can say. He has still three or four millions in stocks and bonds. What he took to the bottom of the sea with him was his available cash."

"I know nothing about his finances. I was his butler and valet."

Vroon nodded. "Come, men; it is time we took ourselves off. Put things in order; close the safe. You poor jackals, I always have to watch you for outbreaks of vandalism. Off with you!"

He was the last to leave. He stared long and searchingly at Jones, who felt the burning gaze but refused to meet it lest the plotter see the fire in his. The door closed. For fully an hour Jones listened but did not stir. They were really gone. He pressed his feet to the floor and began to hitch the chair toward the table. Half way across the intervening space he crumpled in the chair, almost completely exhausted. He let a quarter of an hour pass, then made the final attack upon the remaining distance. He succeeded in reaching the desk, but he could not have stirred an inch farther. The hair on his head was damp with sweat and his hands were clammy.

When he felt strength returning he lifted the telephone off the hook with his teeth.

"Central, central! Call the police to come to this number at once; Hargreave's house, Riverdale. Tell them to break in."

After what seemed an age of waiting to the exhausted prisoner, with crashing and smashing of doors, the police appeared in the room.

"Where's your gag?" demanded the first officer to reach Jones' side.

"There wasn't any."

"Then why didn't you yell for help?"

"The thieves lured our neighbors away from town. The patrolman who walks this beat is bound and gagged and is probably reposing back of the billboard in the next block."

"Murphy, you watch this man while I make a call on the neighbors," said the officer who seemed to be in authority. When he returned he was frowning seriously. "We'd better telephone to the precinct to search for Dennison. There's nobody at home in either house and there's nobody back of the billboards. Untie the man."

When this was done, the officer said: "Now, tell us what's happened; and don't forget any of the details."

Jones told a simple and convincing story; it was so simple and convincing that the police believed it without question.

"Well, if that ain't the limit! Did you hear any autos outside?"

"I don't recollect," said Jones, stretching his legs gratefully. "Why?"

"The auto bandits held up a bank messenger today and got away with twenty thousand. Whenever a man draws down a big sum they seem to know about it. And say, Murphy, call up and have the river police look out for a new-fangled airship. Your master may have been rescued," turning to Jones.

"If I were only sure of that, sir!"

When the police took themselves off Jones proceeded to act upon those plans laid down by Hargreave early that night. When this was done he sought his bed and fell asleep, the sleep of the exhausted. When Hargreave picked up Jones to share his fortunes, he had put his trust in no ordinary man.

A dozen reporters trooped out to the Hargreave home, only to find it deserted. And while they were ringing bells and tapping windows, the man they sought was tramping up and down the platform of the railway station.

Through all this time Norton, the reporter, Hargreave's only friend, slept the sleep of the just and unjust. He rarely opened his eyes before noon.

Group after group of passengers crossed the platform. Often, just as he was in the act of approaching a couple of women, some man would come here, and he would be kissed or handshakes. At length the crowd thinned, and then it was that he discovered a young girl perhaps eighteen, accompanied by a young woman in the early thirties. They had the appearance of eagerly awaiting some one. Jones stepped forward with a good deal of diffidence.

"You are waiting for some one?"
"Yes," said the elder woman, coldly. "A broken bracelet?"

The distrust on both faces vanished instantly. The young girl's face brightened, her eyes sparkled with suppressed excitement.

"You are my father?"
"No, miss," very gravely. "I am the butler."

"Let me see your part of the bracelet," said the young girl's guardian, a teacher who had been assigned to this delicate task by Miss Farlow, who could not bring herself to say good-bye to Florence anywhere except at the school gates.

The halves were produced and examined.

"I believe we may trust him, Florence."

"Let us hurry to the taxicab. We must not stand here."

"My mother?"
"She is dead. I believe she died shortly after your birth. I have been with your father but fourteen years. I know but little of his life prior to that."

"Why did he leave me all those years without ever coming to see me? Why?"

"It is not for me, Miss Florence, to inquire into your father's act. But I do know that whatever he did was meant for the best. Your welfare was everything to him."

"It is all very strange," said the girl, bewilderedly. "Why didn't he come to meet me instead of you?"

Jones stared at his hands, miserably.

"Why?" she demanded. "I have thought of him, thought of him. He has hurt me with all this neglect. I expected to see him at the station, to throw my arms around his neck and . . . forgive him!" Tears swam in her eyes as she spoke.

"Everything will be explained to you when we reach the house. But always remember this, Miss Florence: You were everything in this wide world to your father. You will never know the misery and loneliness he suffered that you might not have one hour of unrest. What are your plans?"

He asked abruptly of the teacher from Miss Farlow's.

"That depends," she answered, laying her hand protectively over the girl's.

"You could leave Miss Farlow's on the moment?"

"Yes."

"Then you will stay and be Miss Florence's companion?"

"Gladly."

"What is my father's name?"

"Hargreave, Stanley Hargreave."

The girl's eyes widened in terror. Suddenly she burst into a wild frenzy of sobbing, her head against the shoulder of her erstwhile teacher.

Jones appeared visibly shocked.

"What is it?"

"We read the story in the newspaper," said the elder woman, her own eyes filling with tears. "The poor child! To have all her castles-in-air tumble down like this! But what authority have you to engage me?" sensibly.

Jones produced a document, duly signed by Hargreave, and witnessed and sealed by a notary, in which it was set forth that Henry Jones, butler and valet to Stanley Hargreave, had full powers of attorney in the event of his (Hargreave's) disappearance; in the event of his death, till Florence became of legal age.

Said Jones as he put the document back in his pocket: "What is your name?"

"Susan Wane."

"Do you love this child?"

"With all my heart, the poor unhappy babe!"

"Thank you!"

Inside the home he conducted them through the various rooms, at the same time telling them what had taken place during the preceding night.

"They have not found his body?" asked Florence. "My poor, poor father!"

"No."

"Then he may be alive!"

"Please God that he may!" said the butler, with genuine pity, for he had loved the man who had gone forth into the night so bravely and so strangely. "This is your room. Your father spent many happy hours here before

Tears came into the girl's eyes again, and discreetly Jones left the two alone.

"What shall I do, Susan? Whatever shall I do?"

"Be brave as you always are. I will never leave you till you find your father."

Florence kissed her fervently. "What is your opinion of the butler?"

"I think we may both trust him absolutely."

Then Florence began exploring the house. Susan followed her closely. Florence peered behind the mirrors, the pictures, in the drawers of the desk, in the bookcases.

"What are you hunting for, child?"

"A photograph of father." But she found none. More, there were no photographs of any kind to be found in Stanley Hargreave's home.

When Norton awoke, he naturally went to the door for the morning papers which were always placed in a neat pile before the sink. He yawned, gathered up the bundle, was about to climb back into bed, when a headlight caught his dull eyes. Twenty-one minutes later, to be precise, he ran up the steps of the Hargreave home and rang the bell. He was admitted by the tactful Jones, to whom the reporter had never paid any particular attention. Somehow Jones always managed to stand in shadows.

"I can add nothing to what has already appeared in the newspapers," replied Jones, as Norton opened his batteries of inquiries.

"Mr. Jones, I have known your master several years, as you will recollect. There never was a woman in this house, not even among the servants. There are two in the other room. Who are they? And what are they doing here?"

Jones shook his head. "Well, I can easily find out."

Jones barred his path, and for the first time Norton gazed into the eyes of the man servant. They were as hard as gun metal.

"My dear Mr. Jones, you ought to know that sooner or later we reporters find out what we seek."

Jones appeared to reflect. "Mr. Norton, you claim to be a friend of Mr. Hargreave?"

"I do not claim. I am. More than that I do not believe he is dead. He was deep. He had some relentless enemies—I don't know where from or sat down beside the reporter and talked in an undertone. When he had done he took Norton by the elbow and gently but forcibly led him down to the front door and ushered him forth—Norton jumped into his taxicab and returned to his rooms, which were at the top of the huge apartment hotel. He immediately called up his managing editor.

"Hello! This is Norton. Put Griffin on the Hargreave yarn. I'm off on another deal."

"Put Hargreave was a friend of yours," protested the managing editor.

"I know it. But you know me well enough, Mr. Blair. I should not ask the transfer if it was not vitally important."

"O, very well."

"We shan't be scooped."

"If you can promise that, I don't care who works on the job. Will you be in the office to-night?"

"If nothing prevents me."

"Well, good-by."

Norton filled his pipe, drew his chair to the window, and stared at the great liner going down to sea.

"Lord, Lord!" he murmured. Then he smiled and chuckled. Some bright morning he would have all New York by the ears, the police running round in circles, and the chiefs of the rival sheets tearing their hair. What a story! Four columns on the first page, and two whole pages Sunday. And all of a sudden he ceased to smile and chuckled.

In the living room of the Princess Olga Perigoff's apartment the mistress lay reading on the divan. There was no cigarette between her well shaped lips, for she was not the accepted type of adventuress; she was really the Princess Perigoff. Her maiden name had been Olga Pushkin; but more of that later.

When Brains came in he found her dreaming with half closed eyes. He flourished an evening newspaper.

"Olga, even the best of us make mistakes. Here, just glance over this."

The Russian accepted the newspaper and read the heading indicated: "Aeronaut picked up far out at sea. Slips ashore from tramp steamer. Had five thousand in cash in his pockets."

"Hargreave escaped!"

"Not necessarily," she replied. "If it was Hargreave he would have had more than five thousand in his pockets. My friend, I believe it an attempt to fool you; or it is another man entirely." She clicked her teeth with the tops of her polished nails.

"There are two young women in the house. What the deuce can that mean?"

"Two young women? O! then everything's as simple as daylight. Katrina Pushkin, my cousin, had a child."

"Child? Hargreave had a child? What do you mean by keeping this fact from me?" he stormed.

"It was useless till this moment. He probably sent for her yesterday; but in his effort to escape had to turn her over to his butler. We shall soon learn whether Hargreave is dead or alive. We can use the child to bring him back."

The anger went out of his eyes. "You're a wonder, Olga."

"But you should have gone with Vroon last night. He does everything just as you tell him. When they reported that Hargreave had visited Ort's hangar you ought to have prepared against such a coup as fight through the air."

"I admit it. But a daughter! Well, I can bring him back," with a sinister laugh. "By the Lord Harry, I have him in my hands this time, that is, if this girl turns out to be his daughter. A million? Two, three, all he has in the world. I want you to pay a visit right away. Watch the butler, Jones. He'll lie, of course; but note how he treats the girl; and if you get the chance look around the walls for a secret panel. He might not have carried away the cash at all, only enough for his immediate needs, which would account for that five thousand on the man picked up at sea. If I could only get inside that house for an hour!"

"I believe I'll call at once—Leo, was Hargreave the man's real name?" Brains laughed. "That is of no vital consequence. He will be Hargreave till the end of the chapter, dead or alive. You can tell me the news at dinner tonight."

So, later, when the butler accepted her card at the door, loath as he might be, there was nothing for him to do but admit her.

"Whom do you wish to see, madam?" stepping back into the shadow.

"Miss Hargreave. I'm an old friend of her mother's."

"There is no such person here."

"To whom, then, does this hat belong?" she asked quietly. She waved her hand indolently toward the hall rack.

Jones' lips tightened. "That belongs to Miss Gray, a kind of protégé of Mr. Hargreave's."

"Indeed! You have no objections to my seeing her? My maiden name was Olga Pushkin, cousin to Katrina, wife of Stanley Hargreave. I am, if you will watch the matter carefully, a kind of aunt."

To Jones it was as if ice had suddenly come into contact with his heart's blood. But as he still stood in the shadow, she did not observe the pallor of his face.

"If you will state exactly why you wish to see her, madam."

"You seem to possess authority?"

"Yes, madam, absolute authority."

Jones produced his document and presented it to her.

"There is no flaw in that," she agreed readily. "I wish to see the child. I have told you why."

"Tell Me About My Father."

very well, madam." Why had they not telegraphed the child, even on the train, to return to Farlow's. He knew nothing of this woman, whether she was an enemy or a friend. He conducted his unwelcome guest into the library.

"How did you know that she was here?" suddenly.

But she was ready. "I did not. But the death of Mr. Hargreave brought me. And that youthful hat in the hall was a story all its own. Later I shall show you some papers of my own. You will have no cause to doubt them. They have not the legal power of yours, but they would find standing in any court."

Jones turned and went in search of Florence.

The princess lost no time in beginning her investigations, but she wasted her time. There was no secret panel in evidence.

"Who is she?" asked Florence as she looked at the card. "Did my father know princesses?"

"Yes," said Jones briefly. "Be very careful what you say to her. Admit nothing. She claims to be a cousin of your mother. Perhaps."

"My mother?" Without waiting for any further advice from Jones, whom Florence in her young years thought presuming upon his authority, she ran downstairs to the library. Her mother, to learn some fact about the mother of whom she knew nothing!

"You knew my mother?" she cried without ceremony.

He heard the princess say: "I did, my child; and heaven is witness that you are the exact picture of her at your age. And I knew your father."

Jones straightened, his hands shut tightly.

"Tell me about my father!"

The princess smiled. It was Katrina Pushkin come to life, the same impulsiveness. "I knew him but slightly. I was a mere child myself when he used to pinch my cheeks. I met him again the other night, but he did not recognize me; and I could not find it in my heart to awaken his memory in a public restaurant."

Presently Jones came in to announce that two detectives requested to see Florence. The two men entered, informing her that they had been instructed to investigate the disappearance of Stanley Hargreave.

"Who are you, miss?"

"I am his daughter."

"Ah!"

One of the detectives questioned Florence minutely while the other wandered about the rooms, feeling the walls, using the magnifying glass, turning back the rugs. Even the girl's pretty room did not escape his scrutiny. By and by he returned to the library and beckoned to his companion. The two conferred for a moment. One chanced to look into the mirror. He saw the bright eyes of the princess gazing intelligently into his.

"I'm afraid we'll have to ask you to accompany us to the station, miss."

"Why?"

"Some technicalities. We must have some proof of your right to be in this house. So far as we have learned, Hargreave was unmarried. It will take but a few minutes."

"And I will accompany you," said the princess. "We'll be back within half an hour. I'll tell them what I know."

Jones, in the hall, caught sight of the reporter coming up the steps. Here was some one he could depend upon.

"Why, Mr. Norton!"

The reporter eyed the princess in amazement.

"You look surprised. Naturally. I am a cousin of Miss Florence's mother. You might say that I am her aunt. It's a small world, isn't it?" But if wishing could poison, the reporter would have died that moment.

"Who are you and what are you doing here?" one of the detectives demanded.

"I am going to ask that very question of you," said Norton urbanely.

"We are from headquarters," replied one, showing his badge.

"What headquarters? What are they asking you to do?" he said to Florence.

"They say I must go to the police station with them."

"Not the least in the world," laughed the reporter. "You two clear out of here as fast as your rascally legs can

"Here, Just Glance Over This."

what kind—and he is pretending he's dead till this blows over and is forgotten."

"You are not going to say that in your newspaper?" Jones was visibly agitated.

"Not if I can prove it."

"If I tell you who those young ladies are, will you give me your word of honor not to write about them till I give my permission?"

Norton, having in mind the big story at the end of this mystery tangle, agreed.

"The elder is a teacher from a private school; the other is Stanley Hargreave's daughter."

"Good Lord!" gasped the astonished reporter. "He never mentioned the fact to me, and we've been together in some tight places."

"He never mentioned it to any one but me." Jones again seemed to reflect. At last he raised his glance to the reporter. "Are you willing to wait for a great story, the real story?"

"If there is one," answered Norton with his usual caution.

"On my word of honor, you shall have such a story as you never dreamt of, if you will promise not to divulge it till the appointed time."

"I agree."

"The peace and happiness of that child depends upon how you keep your word."

That was sufficient for Norton. "Your master knew me. He knew also that I am not a man who promises lightly. Now introduce me to the daughter."

With plain reluctance Jones went about the affair. Norton put a dozen perfunctory questions to the girl. What he was in search of was not news but the sound of her voice. In that quarter of an hour he felt his heart disturbed as he had never before been disturbed.

"Now, Mr. Norton," said Jones gloomily, "will you be so kind as to follow me?"

Norton was led to Jones' bedroom. The butler-valet closed the door and drew the window shade. Always seeking shadows. This did not impress the reporter at the time; he had no other thought but the story. Jones then carry you. I don't know what your game is, but I do know every reputable detective in New York, and you don't belong."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed the princess. "Do you mean to say that these men are not real detectives?"

"This girl goes to the police station, young man. So much the worse for you if you meddle. Take yourself off!"

"All in good time."

"Here, Jenner, you take charge of the girl. I'll handle this guy. He shall go to the station, too."

What followed would always be vividly remembered by Florence, fresh from the peace and happiness of her school life. Norton knocked his opponent down. He rose and for a moment the room seemed full of legs and arms and panting men. A foot tripped up Norton and he went down under the bogus detective. He never suspected that the tripping foot was not accidental. He was too busy.

The other man dragged Florence toward the hall, but there the powerful butler entered into the field of action with a very unattractive automatic. The detective threw up his hands.

The struggle went on in the library. A trick of jiu-jitsu brought about the downfall of Norton's man, and Norton ran out into the hall to aid Jones. He searched the detective's pockets and secured the revolver. The result of all this was that the two bogus detectives soon found themselves in charge of two policemen, and they were marched off to the station.

"Your advent was most providential, Mr. Norton," said Jones in his usual colorless tones.

"I rather believe so. Why don't you pack up and clear out for a while?"

"I am stronger in this house than elsewhere," answered the butler enigmatically.

"Well, you know best," said the reporter.

The princess was breathing rapidly. No, on second thought she had no wish to throw her arms about the reporter's neck and kiss him.

YOUNG WOMEN ON FARMS.

Every Daughter of the Farmer's Family Can Be of Material Help.
From Bulletin of New York State College of Agriculture.

We know that there is a large amount of work to be done in the farm home, but farmers' daughters in this country are very brave and capable and ready to lend a hand. As a general thing, the young woman has it in her power to make her work all drudgery or she can transform it into a pleasure. How to do this is for her to study out.

It used to be believed and said that the business of the farm ought to be wholly in the hands of the farmer and his sons. It is now understood that the work in the house is an essential part of the farm business, and that in the remainder of the labor of the farm the wife and the daughters have just as keen an interest as have the father and the brothers. Moreover, many a woman is nowadays undertaking the operation of the farm itself and is making good too.

It is quite possible to believe that every daughter can grow to be an aid to her father in his business as a farmer, and that gradually she may enter into full responsibility for some part of the farm business, or that perhaps if it should ever be necessary for her to do so, she may become a successful manager for all the activities of a farm.

In the farm home of early New England days the labor of the women included not only all the common work that falls to the hands of women in the present day, but also the spinning and weaving, the dyeing and fulling, the dressmaking and tailoring, the candle making and soapmaking and many other industries that now, along with those mentioned, have gone out of the farmhouse and taken up their abode in the factory. In those days the hands of the women were full of wage earning labor.

Today also there are many women, and especially young women, who feel that they need some addition to their earning opportunity, and to these many doors are now opening. The revival of our ancient industries offers an alluring prospect, although this may not be the most practical field.

Is it not generally the most sensible thing to take the opportunity that stands by one's own garden gate? Why not, then, make a careful study of the farm conditions right at hand in order to find out whether there may not be some fruit or vegetable product going to waste that can be utilized by the excellent modern methods of canning and preserving, so that the family may be economically supplied with delicacies all the year round, and some extra quantities may be sold that will bring a good income? Something like this should be possible for any energetic and capable farmer's daughter.

There are now over 6,000,000 country girls in our land. Does it not look as though this body of eager, buoyant young women might add something valuable to the welfare of our rural life?

Potatoes From Maine.

The United States department of agriculture has adopted new quarantine regulations for shipment of Maine potatoes. This is to prevent the spread of powdery scab. The new rules went into effect Aug. 1. The regulations provide that no potatoes shall be moved from any quarantined area unless they are duly certified as fit for either table or seed use and are packed in accordance with certified rules. To obtain the necessary certificates for shipments growers must apply for inspection by a federal inspector, and all potatoes intended for seed use must be stored and handled according to certain prescribed methods. Lots in which any of the potatoes are found to be infected with powdery scab or any similar disease will not be certified under any circumstances for seed use. They may, however, be certified for table use after the diseased potatoes are removed and destroyed.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL

AMENDMENT NO. ONE.

The following proposed amendment to the constitution of the State of Nebraska, as hereinafter set forth in full, is submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska, to be voted upon at the general election to be held Tuesday, November 3rd, A. D. 1914.

FOR A Joint resolution to amend section 1 of Article 9 of the Constitution of the State of Nebraska, relating to revenue. Be it Resolved and Enacted by the People of the State of Nebraska:

Section 1. That Section 1 of Article 9 of the Constitution of the State of Nebraska be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 1. The rules of taxation shall be uniform as to any given class and taxes shall be levied upon such property as the Legislature shall prescribe. Taxes may also be imposed on incomes, privileges and occupations, which taxes may be graduated and progressive and reasonable exemptions may be provided, in addition to those hereinafter specifically mentioned in section 2 of this article.

That at the general election in November, 1914, there shall be submitted to the electors of the state for their approval or rejection the foregoing proposed amendment to the Constitution in the following form: "For amendment to the Constitution providing for uniform and progressive taxation" and "against said proposed amendment to the Constitution providing for uniform and progressive taxation."

Approved, March 27, 1913.

I, Addison Wait, Secretary of State, of the State of Nebraska, do hereby certify that the foregoing proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Nebraska is a true and correct copy of the original enrolled and engrossed bill, as passed by the Thirty-third session of the Legislature of the State of Nebraska, as appears from said original bill on file in this office, and that said proposed amendment is submitted to the qualified voters of the State of Nebraska for their adoption or rejection at the general election to be held on Tuesday, the 3rd day of November, A. D. 1914.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Great Seal of the State of Nebraska, this 23rd day of March, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fourteen, and of the Independence of the United States the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh, and of this State the Forty-seventh.

ADDITION WAIT,
Secretary of State.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL

AMENDMENT NO. TWO.

The following proposed amendment to the constitution of the State of Nebraska, as hereinafter set forth in full, is submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska, to be voted upon at the general election to be held Tuesday, November 3rd, A. D. 1914.

A Joint Resolution to amend Section six (6) of Article one (1) of the Constitution of the State of Nebraska. Be it Enacted by the People of the State of Nebraska:

Section 1. That Section six (6) of Article one (1) of the Constitution of the State of Nebraska be amended to read as follows:

Section 6. The right of trial by jury shall remain, but in all civil cases and in criminal cases, less than felonies, five-sixths of the jury may render a verdict and the Legislature may authorize the United States district court, in criminal cases less than felonies, five-sixths of the jury may render a verdict.

Sec. 2. That at the general election for state and legislative officers to be held in the State of Nebraska on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1914, there shall be printed upon the ballot of each elector for his approval or rejection the above and foregoing amendment in the following form: "For proposed amendment to the constitution providing that in all civil cases and in criminal cases less than felonies, five-sixths of the jury may render a verdict."

Approved, April 1, 1913.

I, Addison Wait, Secretary of State, of the State of Nebraska, do hereby certify that the foregoing proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Nebraska is a true and correct copy of the original enrolled and engrossed bill, as passed by the Thirty-third session of the Legislature of the State of Nebraska, as appears from said original bill on file in this office, and that said proposed amendment is submitted to the qualified voters of the State of Nebraska for their adoption or rejection at the general election to be held on Tuesday, the 3rd day of November, A. PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. THREE.

The following proposed amendment to the constitution of the State of Nebraska, as hereinafter set forth in full, is submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska, to be voted upon at the general election to be held Tuesday, November 3rd, A. D. 1914.

FOR A Joint resolution proposing amendments to Section 1, of Article V, and Section 24, of Article V, of the Constitution of Nebraska, relating to term of office and salary of Governor and other executive officers. Be it Resolved and Enacted by the People of the State of Nebraska:

Section 1. That at the general election for state and legislative officers, to be held on the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday in November, 1914, the following be submitted as amendments to Sections 1 and 24 of Article V, of the Constitution of Nebraska:

Sec. 1. The executive department shall consist of a Governor, who shall hold his office for a term of two years from the first Thursday after the first Tuesday in January, next after his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified. In addition to the Governor, the executive department shall include the following officers: Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor of Public Accounts, Treasurer, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Attorney General and Commissioner of Public Lands and Buildings, each of whom shall hold his office for the term of two years from the first Thursday after the first Tuesday in January, next after his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Provided, however, that the election of said officers shall be held on the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday in November, 1914, and each succeeding election shall be held at the same relative time in each even year thereafter. The Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor of Public Accounts and Treasurer shall reside at the seat of government and shall keep the books and papers there, and shall perform such duties as may be required by law.

Sec. 2. The salary of the Governor shall be five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars per annum. The salaries of Auditor of Public Accounts and Secretary of State, Superintendent of Public Lands and Buildings shall be two thousand five hundred ($2,500.00) dollars each per annum, and of the Attorney General, four thousand dollars ($4,000.00) per annum, the salary of the State Treasurer shall be three thousand ($3,000.00) dollars per annum, and the Lieutenant Governor shall receive one-third of the compensation of a senator, and after the adoption of this constitution they shall not receive to their own use any fees, costs, interest or emolument, in the hands or under their control, perquisites of office or other compensation, and all fees that may hereafter be payable by law, and all other emoluments shall be paid in advance into the state treasury. There shall be no allowance for clerical help, or the fees of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and Attorney General.

Sec. 2. That at said election on the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday in November, 1914, on the ballot of each elector voting thereat, there shall be printed or written the words: "For proposed amendments to the constitution, fixing the term of office and salary of governor and other executive officers," and "Against proposed amendments to the constitution, fixing the term of office and salary of governor and other executive officers."

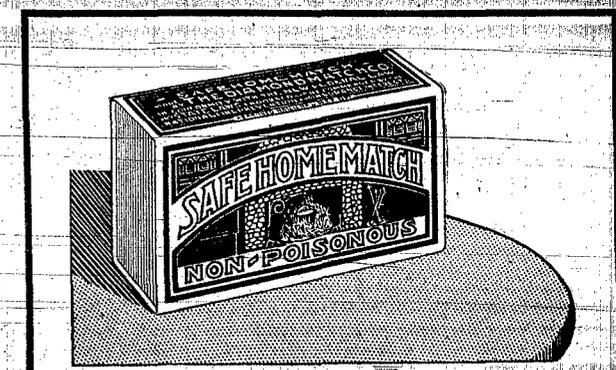

Approved, April 21, 1913.

I, Addison Wait, Secretary of State, of the State of Nebraska, do hereby certify that the foregoing proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Nebraska is a true and correct copy of the original enrolled and engrossed bill, as passed by the Thirty-third session of the Legislature of the State of Nebraska, as appears from said original bill on file in this office, and that said proposed amendment is submitted to the qualified voters of the State of Nebraska for their adoption or rejection at the general election to be held on Tuesday, the 3rd day of November, A. D. 1914.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Great Seal of the State of Nebraska, this 23rd day of March, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fourteen, and of the Independence of the United States the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh, and of this State the Forty-seventh.

ADDITION WAIT,
Secretary of State.

Safe Home Matches
are Wonderfully Cheap

A first-class mechanic could not make, in a day, as many Safe Home matches as you can buy for five cents. Even if he could, the matches would not be of uniform size, shape, length, strength or thickness.

We make Safe Home matches by machinery—millions and millions of them daily.

The wood is treated and cut, the sticks grooved and compressed, and the ends paraffined and "double dipped"—all by machinery. You pay no more for Safe Home matches than for the kind you now use. The price is the same—five cents for a large box of perfect matches.

Why perfect! Because non-poisonous. Because non-sparking. Because the sticks do not break when rightly used. Because the heads do not fall off. Because the flame burns evenly. Because Safe Home Matches are impregnated to prevent live charcoal when the flame is extinguished.

All grocers. Five cents a box.

About "Big Business"

Mere bigness isn't a business sin. Many a large business serves the public much better than a small business could—because it is able to render service in direct proportion to its size.

Big business has given the American people the most efficient telephone service at the lowest rates in the world.

Big business has popularized the telephone in the United States until today there are more telephones used in this country than in all the other nations of the earth combined.

The Bell System is a large organization, but it is made up of real flesh and blood folks who are anxious to serve you in a big, broad-minded, courteous way.

Europe is not the only country that is writhing in the throes of destruction, for Tuesday morning W. E. Bellows and Dan Martin, each armed to the teeth with corn knives, declared war on cuckleburs and hired an auto to convey them to the field of carnage. It was six miles out to the battle field, and they were back in town about thirty minutes after their departure. It's the biggest case of bluff we have heard of since the war started, but don't tell them we said anything about it in the paper.

J. J. Melick & Son have recently purchased the interest of Horton & Chase in the E. R. Wohl rd Lumber and Coal Co., of Fremont, Nebraska, which will be under the management of John H. Melick and will necessarily require John to move to Fremont. However John will retain his interest in the Carroll business. After September 1st the business under the firm name of J. J. Melick & Son will be under the management of J. A. Jones assisted by Matt Jones and we feel quite sure under the management of these gentlemen that the business will continue in the confidence of the people of this community as heretofore.

Notice to the Public

Law relating to dangerous explosives, combustible materials and dangerous practices.

5985e, Sec 5. Dangerous buildings a nuisance.

Any building or other structure, which, for want of proper repair, or by any reason of age or dilapidated condition or for any causes especially, liable to fire, and which is so situated as to endanger other buildings, or property; and any combustible or explosive material or inflammable condition placed, kept or existing, in or upon any building, or premises, which is dangerous to the safety of said buildings, or premises, and the same is situated as to endanger other buildings, or property is hereby, deemed and declared to be a nuisance, and any owner or occupant of such building or premises who shall cause, continue or maintain any such nuisance, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not exceeding the sum of $500 and the court shall order the nuisance to be abated.

If any owner or occupant shall fail to comply with to said order, he shall be prosecuted for maintaining a nuisance, and said nuisance shall be abated.

I ask the public to co-operate with me in preventing fires by being careful burning paper and old rubbish in the alleys and streets in your city, especially in the downtown district. A good way is to build a brick oven to burn your rubbish in and the cost would be very light to the risk that you run.

Respectfully,
JOHN L. SOULES,
Special Deputy Fire Commissioner.

Twenty-Two Silos In Hale County, Texas

Number will probably be doubled before end of year

There are twenty-two silos in Hale County, according to "Nick" Jordan, County Assessor.

Eight pit silos and three glazed-tile "cookers" are being put up now. Others are being planned.

The number will perhaps be double before the new year.

Mr. Jordan says that all of these silos have been built during two years.

Mr. W. E. Neal, has just received two 405-ton Portable silos, the largest in this section says a Plainview paper.

300 LICE Or More on One Hen

As by no means uncommon. No one would expect to find a steer with that number of "ticks" sucking his blood, but many expect to find a hen with a row of ten hens, on a roost, and find that the right before with Lee's Lice Killer. This great killer does double duty—contact kills mites, lice, bedbugs, etc. about the roosts; the vapor kills lice on the chickens sitting over it. Put up only in straight cans. For sale at over 10,000 towns.

Three sizes—35 cts., 50 cts., $1.00. Poultry Book free.
