Annual Commercial Club Meeting

Last Friday evening was the time appointed for the annual session of the Wayne commercial club, and a splendid meeting was held. The attendance was not as great as the year before, but no feed was offered to entice some of the people out, but those who were present were earnest workers for the good of Wayne, and care as much for advancing good work here as for a good time, and enjoy both.

A good program was presented and listened to with marked attention, tho some expressed the opinion that the speaking happened to be largely by lawyers, but it was good talk, so what if the preacher and reader did not appear to help out. There was some good music. Russel Myers accompanied by Miss Izeta Johnson, gave a trombone solo, Mr. Willis Fleetwood, accompanied by Mrs. Johnson at the piano gave an excellent vocal solo, both responded to an encore. The normal quartette rendered several selections that were greatly appreciated.

L. A. Kiplinger, the retiring president, presided with his usual ability, and fittingly introduced the various other speakers. First came the report of the secretary showing the amount of money received and expended. The total funds handled amounted to about $3,000 beside the celebration fund raised and spent for the celebration July 4th, which was over $700.

A committee was named to nominate members for the executive committee for the coming year, and after a session of 15 minutes the committee nominated the following members for the coming year, and they were elected: F. S. Berry, Geo. J. Hess, Paul Harrington, V. A. Senter, H. S. Ringland, W. E. Watkins, H. S. Theobald, Jas. Ahern, J. G. W. Lewis, H. E. Jones, C. E. Carhart, E. O. Gardner, J. R. Rundell.

F. S. Berry made a good talk, telling of the need of united work to bring Wayne the best of things in the future as we have had them in the past, and pledged anew his devotion to the cause of booming Wayne.

When Prof. C. H. Bright was called for he took for his text a few words which might mean get your eye on some good and needed thing and then never let up until you get it. It is a splendid text and Wayne has accomplished many things by living up to that doctrine. The normal, the new depot are good examples—and then the club got a lot of road work done by starting it and let the other fellow stick to it, but now that the agony is over, who is sorry? Mr. Bright suggested that for the club to use its influence constantly and consistently in favor of introducing concrete culverts and bridges in the county would be one of the good things to work for—as well as general road improvement. The establishment of a farm demonstrator was another thing to contend for, as he saw it, and he was right.

W. R. Ellis, who but recently moved here from Bloomfield, gave an interesting talk which gave us an idea of the way the outsider looks at Wayne, and the reputation we have to sustain to keep our place in the estimation of surrounding towns. He was glad to become a member of the Wayne Commercial club and a citizen of the place.

A. R. Davis was the last speaker, and his subject was the "Relation of the Business Man to the Chautauqua." He made a plea for the support of the members of the club and citizens generally for loyal support for the chautauqua and kindred entertainments. He told of the benefits of such a gathering annually at Wayne, and briefly stated the plan under which the local association was formed—also that death and removals from Wayne had left several vacancies in the list of stockholders which he hoped to see filled by others who would be willing to step into the ranks and help the good work forward. It is work that should not be neglected.

The meeting adjourned until such time as the new executive committee shall meet and organize and call for another meeting of the membership.

District Court Doings

The greatest interest appeared to surround the trial of A. D. Lewis, our Chiropractor, who was charged with "Practicing Medicine Without License." After hearing all of the evidence introduced and the instructions of the court the jury returned a verdict of "Not Guilty." The testimony showed that the defendant regularly practices the work for which he has a diploma from his school at Davenport, Iowa, showing him to be qualified to perform, but no license to practice in this state. In fact there is no provision of law for the granting a license for the work these people do. They "adjust" the spine—do not "treat" it—the term mentioned in the law which defines the practice of medicine as embracing some methods of healing besides administering medicine. The Chiropractors make an "analysis" instead of "diagnosis" and analysis was not named in the law. The fact appears to be that the public generally feel that a provision should be made in the law to regulate this practice, and until it is they are seldom convicted, in fact—we have heard of but one conviction in this state, though there may be others. This law should have consideration at the coming session of the legislature.

In the case of the state against Theodore Schlack, charged with selling liquor to a minor, defendant was acquitted, the jury failing to find proof that the liquor was sold to the minor at the time and place specified in the complaint.

The jury who heard the case against Harry Barnett on a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily injury found him guilty of assault and battery. His sentence has not yet been given.

The case of E. Tlander vs. Mrs. C. J. Lund is now on trial. This is to be followed by Wayne County Bank vs. A. L. Hurlbert and E. M. Knight; Thompson vs. Asher L. Hurlbert; Ira Anson vs. Chris. Hansen; Martin Redmer vs. Gerd Jensen and others follow.

The cases of H. E. Simon vs. Simon Geomann and Berry & Berry vs. Wayne County were settled.

Farewell Service For Dr. Corkey

Sunday evening, the Baptist, Methodist and English Lutheran churches of Wayne joined with the local Presbyterian church in a farewell service for the pastor, Dr. Alexander Corkey.

The house was filled, in spite of the disagreeable weather.

Rev. Richardson of the Baptist church took charge of the service. Rev. Blessing of the Lutheran church offered prayer, while Rev. Myers of the Methodist church spoke fittingly on behalf of the community of Dr. Corkey's effective work here in Wayne. Then Prof. Kemp spoke most appreciatively on behalf of the church of the place Dr. Corkey has in the hearts of so many of its people. After some splendid music, Dr. Corkey was given the opportunity of responding. He told of the joy of his work with the church and the fellowship with the other pastors. That, while he had failed in realizing his ideals, yet he had never lowered his ideals of Christian manhood. He told of his new work, yet said he regarded no work greater than that of the ministry and that he wanted to keep in close touch with the pastorate.

The spirit of Christian fellowship prevailed throughout the evening and the audience sang together as the closing hymn, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds." Altogether it was a pleasant evening of fellowship and a fitting farewell to one, who has been so closely identified with the work of the community as Dr. Corkey has been.

Shultheis-Mellor

Cards have been received announcing the wedding of Miss Mary Mellor and Mr. Warren Charles Shultheis which was solemnized at highnoon, Wednesday, September 16th, 1914, at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Mellor, Colorado Springs, Colorado. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frank Hale Touret, rector of Grace Episcopal church and was marked by a charming dignity and simplicity. Only relatives of the two families were present.

See the Democrat for wedding invitations.

School Notes

Pupils who enrolled recently are John Marsteller, sixth grade; Ella Shurtleiff, seventh grade; Paul Rihel and Ralph Carhart, eighth grade; Byrdice Marsteller, tenth grade; Alfred Hanson, ninth grade and Cooper Ellis, twelfth grade.

Recent visitors were Misses Irma James, Ina Hughes, Ruth White, Edith Beechel, Mrs. Andresen and Mr. Elming.

Gladys and Ruth Porter discontinued school here as they will move away.

Miss Edith Beechel delightfully entertained the fifth grade for half an hour Friday afternoon with the story of the "Magdalen Brothers" from Rudyard Kipling's "Jungle Book."

Glen Miner, who enrolled in the eighth grade, has decided to go to the model school.

Alice Giblin has been absent from the first grade this week on account of an attack of appendicitis.

The kindergarten children are interested in the topic of "Homes" this fall. The first week was devoted to "Our Kindergarten home". This week "The Real Home" is under discussion, and the observation of a house in construction proves interesting. In the second grade the pupils are making bags for their paints, paint brushes and paint clothes. This is so done as to create a spirit of order.

The seventh grade pupils are making artistic designs for covers for their spelling-blanks.

Miss Huyck of the art and domestic science departments attended the county fair at Concord Friday and Saturday, judging the domestic science exhibits Friday and the fine arts including the school exhibit and china painting, Saturday.

Manual training and domestic science classes were organized in the sixth grade Wednesday. The same day arts and crafts classes were organized in the high school. Four girls have enrolled in the manual training department this year.

Monday being the anniversary of the battle of Baltimore in the war of 1812, Star Spangled Banner day was observed throughout the school, with appropriate exercises. In the high school Miss Cecilia Meister read an interesting paper in which she traced the history of the American flag. Miss Louise Bove read the history of Francis Scott Key who wrote the "Star Spangled Banner." The entire high school joined in singing that song and "America."

Thirty-seven students are enrolled in the science department under the direction of Mr. A. E. Nordgren. New apparatus to the value of $150 has been purchased though all of it has not yet arrived.

Football is claiming the attention of the boys at present. With Lewis, Hoguewood, Miner, Morgan, Powers, Mildner and Sears, old men, and the two new men, Ellis and Porter, who are working up well Wayne High should have a good team. The new coach, A. E. Nordgren is training the boys. Six games are in view, each with Wakefield, Bancroft and Pender.

As soon as possible the English classes will be organized and arranged to publish a school paper. The news items in the city papers each week will be the work of this department.

Claims Right to Use Democrat

Elsewhere in this issue the Democrat gives space to an advertisement from Sioux City. The first order which came for this adv. was rejected on the ground that the policy of the paper opposed accepting advertising from dealers outside of the county who compete with home dealers. This did not satisfy, and a letter came back insisting that when tendered the regular price for the advertisement, that as a public carrier of publicity, we could not legally refuse to insert the advertisement on the ground we had stated. We have accepted the advertisement under the above circumstances, and will further investigate the question of our rights and the rights of the would-be advertisers.

Normal Notes

The fifth year of the Wayne Normal as a state institution opened Monday and present indications point to the largest enrollment of students in the history of the school. The first day's registration fell slightly below 200 in the normal school proper with more than 100 enrolled in the training school. Class work began on Tuesday morning but the registration of new students will continue during the entire week.

Of those already registered a little more than half have entered for the first time. As was true of the attendance last year there is again an increase in the number registered for advance work. The senior class now numbers forty-six and the graduating class of this year will exceed fifty. This is more than double the number who completed the work in 1913 and an increase of at least twenty-five per cent over that of last year. Thus far the junior class of this year has not reached the unusually large number in that class last year.

The registration cards show that a large per cent of the enrollment comes from this section of the state, all of the counties of northeast Nebraska, twenty-five in all, being represented in the attendance. Naturally Wayne county has the largest number. Then follow in order Cedar with 24, Knox 23, Dixon 20, Stanton 9, Holt 9, Antelope 8, Burt 8, Dakota 8, Madison 5, and Pierce 5. Other counties represented are Brown, Boyd, Box Butte, Cuming, Custer, Fillmore, Gage, Keya Paha, Platte, Sheridan, Thurston, and Washington. Besides Nebraska there are enrolled from Iowa, South Dakota, Kansas, Minnesota, and Colorado.

A new system of registration was introduced this year and the plan worked nicely. Almost the entire faculty became a registration committee for the classification of students and the work of each student was carefully planned for the entire year. A number of the former students of the school were on the ground early and offered their services in the work of registration. Student organizations met the trains on Monday and escorted new students to the office and assisted them in finding rooming places. The Philomathean literary society served refreshments in the corridor of Administration building, provided a rest room in the basement of the building, gave necessary information to those who were in Wayne for the first time and did much to ward off threatened attacks of homesickness which usually follow the opening of a term of school.

Arrangements have been made with the board of education of the Wayne public schools for the use of the ward school building during the present year. The fine, new administration building will be completed before the close of this year, which structure will afford ample accommodation for every department of the school.

Late War News

The latest reports from the conflict in the east are to the effect that in France the German forces have been driven back from their position near Paris, a distance of about 50 miles, and here they have taken a strong position and are giving battle to allied forces who had followed their line of retreat. The line of battle is about 100 miles in extent, and the Germans have taken position along the north banks of the river Aisne, and the battle will be known as the battle of Aisne. The allied forces are striving to force the Germans from their selected position and drive them from France.

In the eastern part of the German Empire the Russians appear to continue successful, and have the Austrians demoralized. The Austrian losses are reported at 350,000 men of which 250,000 are prisoners, and 100,000 killed and wounded.

There is a counter-claim to the effect that the Austrians have won a victory over the Servians and Russians, and captured nearly 50,000 prisoners from the two forces.

Wayne County Stock Wins

The Nebraska state fair at Lincoln last week is said to have been one of the best ever held, especially in the showing of stock in this great state. Wayne county was represented in two of these departments and made record in both horses and hogs.

W. H. Billeter of Carroll had a fine showing of draft horses there, a car load being taken to compete and he came home with one championship, 3 firsts, 3 seconds, 12 thirds and 2 fourths. We hope to get a little more detailed report as to class, age and breed of those winning.

Roy Fisher was there with a car of Hampshire hogs, and captured a majority of the best premiums. He was awarded 3 championship prizes, a cup for the four best pigs under 6 months of age, 8 first prize ribbons, 9 second prizes and 5 third prizes. In five shows his showing took both first and second prizes. He now has the herd at Topeka, Kansas, where there is strong competition, and from there he will come to show at Sioux City.

Mr. Fisher tells us that he will have two sales at Wayne the coming season, the first a boar sale, when he will offer 40 young boars and 10 sows, on November 13th at the pavilion.

Wayne county is naturally adapted to stock growing, and we hope that more people will come to breed thoroughbred animals and poultry.

Chautauqua Stockholders Meeting

Monday evening the stockholders of the Wayne Chautauqua association held their annual meeting. First the directors who served for the past year met and made their annual report and adjourned. The stockholders then held their annual meeting and named the following directors for the coming year:

S. R. Theobald, H. Henney, T. W. Moran, F. E. Gamble, C. H. Bright, J. M. Cherry, F. Philleo, L. C. Gildersleeve, J. G. Mines. The new board of directors immediately met and named the following officers: President, A. R. Davis; secretary J. G. Mines and treasurer H. Henney. No further business was done and the planning and details of the next chautauqua is in hands of the new board of directors. The treasurer's report showed a cash balance on hand of $300.

Contributions to The Stock Show

Wm. Morgan will go to Sioux City fair this week, taking a bunch of his Duroc-Jersey hogs in for exhibition at the show. He won some good prizes there last year. Roy Fisher, another Wayne county hog man will be there with a car of Hampshire hogs. Another Wayne man, though not living in the county, Dean Hanson, it is said, will have a car of fat cattle on exhibition there.

Narrow Escape at Norfolk

Tuesday there was a near tragedy at the Norfolk automobile races, almost repeating the disaster which attended the meet there last year. Of the incident the News gives the following account:

Louis Disbrow, world's champion automobile king, narrowly escaped death during an exhibition run with his special 120 horse power racing car on the Norfolk automobile speedway at 4:55 Tuesday afternoon. After making one lap around the half-mile dirt track, Disbrow tore past the grandstand, taking the outer edge of the track. The machine went over the saucer embankment and turned turtle, landing bottom side up at the very location where Louis Meneghetti the South American speed king, was killed with his Fiat Tornado a year ago. With Disbrow rode John Tannehill, secretary of the Norfolk Commercial club, who saved his life by jumping from the car as it leaped into the air. How Disbrow escaped no one can say. He declares he stayed with the car until it turned over, but he was only slightly hurt.

A bone in Disbrow's left hand was put out of joint in the accident and he was wearing tape on the hand Wednesday morning.

The crowd was panic stricken for a few moments and no one moved from a standing position for some seconds. Every eye was turned on the speeding car as it passed the grandstand. The car came dangerously near the edge of the track, and as it seemed to swerve further toward the edge of the saucer. Suddenly it struck the top of the embankment and leaped high into the air. Tannehill was seen to leap high above the mass and the car turned a complete flop. A dead silence ensued for a few seconds and an instant later Disbrow was seen to jump up and wave his hand. Tannehill had dropped to the ground about eight feet from the wreck and rolled a few yards. He, too, jumped up and waved his hand. A tremendous uproar followed this action and the crowd cheered wildly.

A Week Rainfall—2.12 Inches

For week ending Monday evening the rainfall here measured 2.12 inches, as shown by the gage at the State Bank building. On the 7th there was .82, the 19th .10, 12th .28, 13th .30 and the 14th .62 inches. It is a wonderful help to fall plowing, fall pastures, winter wheat and winter water, but we need more. One farmer says that it is banking money for them next year, or the same as putting money in the bank.

Willis Fleetwood left Saturday morning to attend Simpson college at Indianola, Iowa, the coming year, where he will devote his time to the study of music. He has selected a good school, and one where the instruction in that branch is particularly strong. Mr. Fleetwood has the voice and the love of music with which to make a success of the profession. He stopped at Des Moines over Sunday where he was the guest of a former Wayne boy, Chas. Nichols.

Mrs. Geo. Crossland tells us that she received a cablegram from England telling of the safe arrival of the St. Paul on which her son Weldon sailed for England. The ship was detained just before landing, and the passengers all examined as to their nationality, etc., and their destination learned. There were six arrests made from among the ship's passengers of those who were thought to be subjects for detention. The voyage was a pleasant and safe one so far as could be judged by the brief word sent by the cable.

The railroads report that passenger traffic in this part of Nebraska is the best of any where, not only in the west, but anywhere, compared with other years. We thought so the other day when we had to watch our chance and stand up to get in here. Seems the coaches were full and busy elsewhere. The war in Europe has hurt travel in the east where they were wont to go just for fun—but in the west people travel for business, and business is good. The threatened railroad strike was the only thing that caused any noticeable slackening here. It was a great thing to have a president on the job who would do so much to avert that trouble—and without a big stick too!

C. M. Christensen Resigns Position

For the past three and a half years C. M. Christensen has filled the responsible position of district manager for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Milwaukee for a large district in northeastern Nebraska. With his usual energy and good judgment and executive ability he has literally put that great company into business in this part of Nebraska. He organized the district thoroughly contracting with 30 or more agents, two-thirds of whom are bankers or interested in banking, and as a result this district last year lead any other district in the state by more than $100,000, producing $360,000 of new business. That his resignation, which took effect the 15th was received with regret at headquarters is not overstating the case, but the fact that he will be succeeded by another good Wayne man will go far to save the company from loss of prestige in this district, J. H. Kemp having been deemed the most worthy of all for the mantle of Mr. Christensen. Mr. Kemp, who has been one of the best of producing agents in this part will ably fill the place.

Of Mr. Christensen's future work he is not ready to take any into his confidence, but those who know of his standing in the community, his judgment and his character and ambition to do something worth while know that whatever his plans may be, if they are consummated at this place as we hope they will be, it will be for the public good of this city and northeastern Nebraska in general. He is planning, and has been for some time, an enterprise which he says will mean much to this territory if consummated here, as it doubtless will be, if he decides to continue his residence in Wayne.

Crop Estimate

The United States National Bank of Omaha, has carefully compiled a crop estimate that is perhaps as conservative and reliable as any that is to be obtained this season, and they give the following figures for the state:

CORN—The average number bushels of corn in Nebraska for a period of five years preceding 1913 (1913 omitted on account of drought), according to the government reports, is 18,201,200 bushels. We estimate that the corn crop of Nebraska is about 82 per cent of a normal crop or a yield for the state of about 150,235,060 bushels of corn.

WHEAT—Average for wheat for a five-year period for Nebraska is (government reports) 49,079,400 bushels. We estimate the wheat harvest is about 142 per cent of a normal crop, or about 69,732,953 bushels for this year.

OATS—The average yield of oats for a five-year period for the state (government report) is 54,836,200 bushels, and we estimate the yield this year is about 130 per cent of a normal crop, or about 71,413,531 bushels.

ALFALFA—The average yield of alfalfa for a five-year period is 1,973,820 tons and this year we estimate for the state 2,689,613 tons of alfalfa or 136 per cent of a normal yield.

HAY—The average yield for hay

(all kinds) is about 5,544,749 tons of which prairie hay averages 3,457,000 tons. This year our reports indicate we will cut 3,015,575 tons of wild hay, which is 87 per cent of normal. The tame hays run about 90 per cent of normal and this year will aggregate about 1,878,696 tons.

This report, as of September 1st, 1914, is based upon the reports of seven hundred banks and six hundred elevator stations, carefully covering every county to include almost every township in the state. From the Agricultural Departments of the United States and of Nebraska we have compiled the acreage planted this year in each county of corn, wheat, oats, alfalfa and hay, as well as their average yield per acre in each county and each county's production of each commodity for a period of five years, etc.

In their report by counties they give Wayne county the following per cent of the five year average: Corn 69, wheat 62, oats 125, alfalfa 75, hay 89. This gives Wayne county an average of 82 per cent of the average return on these five great staples. Antelope county appears to lead all other counties this year with an average of 127 per cent of the average crop.

Our Opportunity and Responsibility

In an article on "War" Douglas Malcolm says that now is the time for the people of this country, especially, to prepare for war. He would have the preparation consist of intelligently growing bigger and better crops. A market is assured for all that we can raise. There will be no over-production. Now, he says is the time to start. He urges deeper and better plowing and that no part of the land be allowed to remain idle or neglected. Then there should be an effort to raise the average of the crop. This may be done by better preparation of seed bed and better seed as well as better cultivation of crops which require cultivation during the growing season.

Being a man in the employ of the International Harvester company this man's advice is given, not as one entirely disinterested, but that fact in no way detracts from the truth of his plea, for the day is passing when one who advocates any measure for his own benefit can profitably urge a false argument. It is true that farm production has been increased 200 per cent by proper cultivation, and it is true that the improvement in farm machinery and farm methods have been a great aid in making such increase possible. An ounce of brain work often is of more value than a ton of mule muscle, but both are needed in farm work—but let the brain direct the strength.

In the days when hay was pitched from the field to wagon it used to be the pride of some man to be able to break a number of fork handles, yet we saw two men working side by side in a hay field—one could break a fork handle any day—the other a little fellow who would not weigh more than 125 pounds, yet the little man was putting more hay on the wagon than the big fellow and doing his work easier. One used brain, the other muscle only. The same rule will apply to all kinds of farm work to a greater or less degree.

Many farmers object to keeping cows because they do not like to milk, and the help hates to milk. Yet there is little farm work easier than milking, and usually the objection to milking comes from the fact that on many farms it is not counted work, and is expected to be done in addition to the full day of work both morning and evening—and that is the cause of the objection more than any other. Milking is easy and should be profitable work—and where they consider it a part of the day work and not extra work for nothing it is looked upon with no distaste.

A Reliable Tonic

Many of the people around here know a good deal about this splendid remedy; to those who do not, we wish to say that Meritol Tonic Digestive is the greatest strength renewer, flesh builder and nerve tonic we have ever seen. For people in poor health, weak, run down and played out, those not as strong and vigorous as they should be, we recommend this tonic. Model Pharmacy, sole agents.—adv. s.

The new minister from Germany to Mexico, when he was safe in New York gave out an interview in which he asserted that the German army would take Paris or there would be no German army, as it was determined to follow up the fight as long as there remained a soldier to fight. Brave talk from a man in a safe place. Artemus Ward was reported to have said in the days of our own little rebellion when the southern states were rather obstinate about quitting the fight, that he was going to put that rebellion down if he had to sacrifice ALL of his wife's relation-

GOES ON FOREVER

The Test of Father Time

Has placed his unqualified stamp of approval on the Genuine ROUND OAK Stove, made for over forty years by the estate of P. D. Beckwith, Dowagiac, Mich.

In principle sound, and construction durable, it has enjoyed national success. Take the time to investigate the fitting, workmanship, weight, and quality of material, and you will sell yourself one.

Yes, it burns successfully and economically hard coal, soft coal, wood and cobs, forms no clinkers, and holds fire perfectly. It is not surprising it is widely imitated in design and name, but all imitations fall far short in delivering the results secured by the genuine, which has never yet disappointed a user.

We sincerely recommend your investigation and purchase of one, this season.

Cedar county fair is in session
at Hartington this week.

At Hartington last week there was a rainfall of 2.40 inches dur-

In Cedar county six widows are drawing a pension as provided by the law of the last legislature.

The fair at Pierce last week was reported a successful one, but no financial report has yet been made.

The Winside hotel was nearly set

At Hartington the banks and county officials as well as the postal force observed labor day, but most of the common people labored
on unmindful of the fact that it was a holiday.

Music by band practice will soon be in the air at Winside. They are organizing a new band there, with eighteen pieces. What a noise at first, and music later—when the birds come again.

The Emerson band has been reorganized recently, and now that the weather is getting cooler and the evenings longer it is proposed to have a dance make a financial condition that is more tolerable.

A move is on foot among the com-

was stricken with paralysis last

The Emerson Enterprise is authority for the statement that the

done, but it would require time,
but if the start is made the next generation will have something to remember this generation by. The that is making surroundings such as to encourage the return of mi-

When a town man goes into farming he finds it difficult to adjust his expenditures to the close margin required to make money out of the soil. On opening their new public markets the New York city officials sent 200 telegrams to Long Island farmers, notifying them of the opportunity to sell their product directly to the consumers. It is pointed out by a Brooklyn newspaper that postal cards would have given adequate service at a fraction of the expense.
The town man must learn that while a telegram might be a profitable thing to use in promoting the sale of a locomotive or a trolley car it cannot be profitable to use this method in approaching a prospective buyer for 15 cents worth of cucumbers.—State Journal.

War Sentiment In Germany

Herman Steinkraus of Plainview recently returned from a visit to Germany, and below we record
some of his letter to the Plainview Republican, as it shows something of the sentiment of the German people at home as well as it shows something of the sentiment of the German people in this land. The letter was written August 20, several days before he sailed for home, where he arrived a little later than the letter:

"I already reported the pleasant trip on the Emperor and the first impressions after we landed in Germany. After we visited Hamburg one day I went to Berlin to visit an old school mate whom I had not seen since 1868. This was July 27, two days later there was some talk about war, and on August first war was declared between Germany and Russia. It was a site "Uter den Linden" in the afternoon August 1st when the Russian answer concerning the gathering of troops at the German border was expected, which failed to come at the proper hour, so war was declared one hour later.

"I never saw such a large gathering of enthusiastic people at one place before. The Linden Strasse up to the palace of the Emperor was one mass of people awaiting Russia's answer which failed to come

"The mobilization of the native
army was ordered at once, which would have made it almost impossible to get out of Berlin in a few days so I departed for Hamburg
August 2nd, to meet my partner Boysen, in Hassum, Schleswig to confer with him about returning to America as soon as possible.

"This was a problem; all German ships were held in their harbors, so we went to the Holland
American Agency in Hamburg,
and finally to Rotterdam, Holland,
to secure a passage on the steamer
Ryndan for August 22nd.

"Since war was declared there was no pleasures for us in Germania anymore, nothing to see but trains loaded with singing soldiers day and night.

"Germany is a nice country,
fine climate, pleasing people, good crops, lots of forests, all kinds of fruits, but one great danger all the time, and that is the WAR.
It is a great expense to the people of Europe to be prepared for war and a bigger expense to carry on war but such are the results of Militarism and Imperialism. Thank God that we are situated better in the United States under the Stars and the Stripes and let us uphold a peaceable government like our present one.

"This war if carried to the bitter end will be the bloodiest one in the history of the world. Germany and Austria together will have an army of at least ten million of troops and the other side fully as many or more. Every person may form his own opinion what kind of a war we may expect."

It is rather interesting to note that Spain is an entirely disinterested spectator in of the cruel war now going on far to the north and east. Out of the danger zone herself, she has nothing to fear, and no reason to interfere. How have the mighty fallen. There was a time when Spain had to be reckoned with by all the concerns of Europe. She was mistress of the sea, rich in colonial possessions, with a fat warchest and a militant management back of it. With Spanish royalty war was a past time, and conquest a legitimate method of national profit. Instead of making friends of other nations, Spain made enemies. Her arrogance and pride became a source of perpetual irritation to all the neighbors, and her determination to maintain military, naval and commercial supremacy at whatever cost, proved her final undoing. One stormy day more than three hundred years ago
Admiral Drake and the Almighty put the Spanish armada into the discard, and the glory of Spain began to fade like the colors of a summer gown after the rain. It is a law of nature that he who builds to destroy will himself meet destruction by the machine of his own invention. Dr. Guillotin improved the popular French mechanism that bears his name, and the blade intended for others severed his own block from the parent trunk, to the infinite satisfaction of those who had the honor of being present.—Bix in State Journal.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local treatments, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's

Suffrage Department

Under the auspices of the Suffrage League of Wayne)
Will Take at Least Fifty Years

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt,
president of the International Suffrage Association, in a masterly address on equal suffrage before the biennial meeting of the national Federation of Women's Clubs, in Chicago, told the following incident to illustrate the weakness of the arguments advanced against granting full suffrage to women:

Not long ago a gentleman from Massachusetts declared before a committee in Washington that woman suffrage would destroy the home. A member of the committee asked him if he would be willing to make that statement before an audience of Colorado people, and he answered, "Colorado hasn't had equal suffrage long enough yet to test it."

"But Colorado women have had
it twenty-one years," was the reply. "How long will it take to destroy the home?" Quickly readjusting his statement, the first speaker said he thought it would take probably fifty years.

Then, remarked the member of the committee, "Don't you think that if in fifty years woman suffrage is going to destroy the home and demoralize the family life that some of the symptoms ought to be visible by this time?"—The Union Signal.

Five Reasons

The following from our wide-awake Sister Coleman, of Surprise:

Five reasons, among many, why
women should have the ballot:

1st. As to sex, I had no choice in the matter, and was given thinking powers the same as man. It is impossible for me to see or hear of a question of vital importance to myself, my family, or neighbors, but I have an opinion about it, and how it might be furthered
if a good project or remedied if a bad one, but I look about only to find I can have no say that counts.

2nd. The ballot will stimulate the intellectual growth of women and with this there is hope of a revolution that will conserve the best social element we have, and eliminate the bad.

3rd. Women need the ballot to protect their children. As the mothers of the race, women are most interested in social and political changes that will provide equal opportunity for all the children. No mother of character or brain believes in a system of society which dooms her girl or boy to be a servant and wage slave, and I believe she would have a voice in saying what laws shall be made that will influence her home and her child.

4th. Women need the ballot as a defense against the white slave traffic and the double standard of morals. There are some things so far removed from the lives of normal, decent people as to be simply unbelievable by them. The "white slave" trade of today is one of the incredible things. The better class of women are rising in the dignity of womanhood and demanding the suppression of the traffic. Let us in strong faith look up unto the hills from whence cometh our help, believing that our brothers will not longer withhold the ballot and thus give to young women those rights and that protection which should be their common heritage.

5th. We believe, and hope for equal rights, equal privilege and equal opportunities at the opening days of the twentieth century.
We believe we have a God-given right to say what laws shall be made, that affect our nation, our home and our child. Men and women have been co-workers, counselors, helpers in home, church and society. So the same mutual co-operation will be carried on in the wide areas of governmental affairs. Francis E. Willard called the W. C. T. U. "the organized love of motherhood," and our membership in Nebraska will welcome the ballot as the means whereby we may better protect our homes and the communities in which we live.

Wreck Near Omaha

Near the Wallace crossing, a mile south of Desoto station on the Omaha railway, a car of gas was thrown from freight train No. 18 going north, Sunday, a double header under charge of Conductor Botenbaugh. Eleven other cars of fruit and other merchandise are piled up in the wreck and the track is torn up for three or four hundred feet.

A broken flange on the truck wheel is supposed to have caused the wreck. The gas tank exploded and the burning car made such a smoke that the crew had hard work getting away with the front part of the train. Another car besides the gas car was on fire and cars of potatoes, wheat and meat
were broken open and the goods scattered over the ground. The passenger train leaving Blair was sent by way of Arlington.

And Mann of Chicago could not save the day in Maine, and then he lost that salary while out playing hooky.

"As goes Maine so goes the Union," was a saying for years, and on the state election Monday Maine went democratic, and that is a good omen. If the republicans of that stronghold are losing their grip the progressive west is certainly not going to be behind them in giving the great leader at Washington a vote of approval. The congressmen of the state have all been returned.

The nomination of Uncle Joe Cannon to become the republican standard bearer for the republicans in the 18th Illinois congressional district shows that the stalwart wing of the republican party is not dead, and that the people need not look for relief from that party if they should again be trusted with power. They would have the same old stand-pat leaders in the saddle. There is yet work for the progressives if they would serve and save the country.

With a governor who has made good, congressional nominees of high order, and excellent men named on the democratic ticket from top to bottom and a president in the White House who has held Congress in place and kept them busy since April 1913, making the laws promised the people, we fail to see why there should be any opposition party in Nebraska, or most any other state. What can the people as a whole expect to gain by a change. There is no good work, state or national that the democrats are not committed to. In national affairs there are few indeed who want any more tax put on what they buy, and that is what a republican administration would do if they were true to their tariff pledges. Few if any would want the lobby restored at Washington to its old-time glory, and if the republicans were in power and followed their practice of the years nothing less could be expected. Who would want to do anything to give the Wall street gamblers any greater control of the money of the government than they now have. Yet under republican rule they had their private, confidential clerk regularly at a desk in the public treasury department—but he was hoisted over the transom when John Burke was made treasurer. Does any one want the old money and banking law restored? If so, let him speak now and let the people see who he is and what his business. So on down the list—there is not a policy of the present administration that the common people can seriously complain of, saying nothing about the great blessing of peace with all the world of which we feel assured with the present administration. Then why not vote to approve of its every act? Why vote with a party that declares in opposition to a foreign policy you heartily endorse, and a plan of doing things for the people which you dare not openly oppose?

Best in the World

"I have always said that the agricultural exhibit of the Industrial Exhibition association at Winnipeg was the best in the world," said Dean C. E. Bessey of the state university Wednesday, "but after viewing the agricultural exhibit of the Nebraska state fair in the new agricultural-horticultural hall I must revise my opinion and place it in advance of anything I have ever seen. Furthermore the arrangement of the exhibits, blending the artistic and the practical, was a distinct step in advance. I hope to see a series of such buildings on the Nebraska fair grounds and the plan of this year should be followed and developed."

W. F. Ramsey left Tuesday morning to visit the home of his boyhood at Mediapolis, Iowa. When he was stubbing his bare toes against the clods of the public highway there it was called Kosuth, but with the advent of a railroad the old town moved a peg or two and lost its old name. It was from back there that Mr. Ramsey enlisted and went to war, and as it has been many years since he was there he does not expect to find many there whom he ever knew except a sister, who is yet living there, at the age of 85. It is near Burlington, and he expects to find all changed there except the river. It will be both a pleasant and sad visit.

Dan Manigal, who lives in Plum Creek and claims that it is the best precinct in the county, and if that be true he might have included the state, added a few ears of sample corn to the display in the window of the State Bank that for size beat any that had been placed there. Daniel said he just went out and picked the four ears shown without much regard to scoring points, but they are pretty good specimens of Reed's Yellow Dent, but the tips are not perfect because the ears grew so fast that the husk could not cover it clear to the point, and the birds picked the corn that stuck out of the cover. In the window are a number of good corn specimens. One bunch came from Van Tassel, Wyoming, and is a good quality of flint corn, such as they grow on new land at a high altitude or in the north.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Sept. 15.—Cattle receipts footed up 8,000 head today. There was a good demand for corn-fed cattle and for the most part prices were fully steady with Monday. Choice yearlings sold up to $10.15. Desirable western beef steers, or steers on which the killers and feeder buyers came in competition, found a ready sale at steady figures, but the most agreeable feature of the trade from the sellers' standpoint was the activity of the trading. Cows and heifers were also in vigorous request and fully steady, and there was a lively trade and a firm market for anything at all desirable in the way of stockers and feeders.

Cattle quotations: Good to choice heaves, $9.50@10.25; fair to good heaves, $8.00@9.30; common to fair heaves, $7.75@8.50; good to choice heifers, $6.50@7.50; good to choice cows, $6.25@7.00; fair to good cows, $5.50@6.00; canners and cutters, $4.00@5.50; veal calves, $8.00@10.25; bulls, stags, etc., $5.25@7.00; good to choice feeders, $7.80@8.30; fair to good feeders, $7.00@7.75; common to fair feeders, $6.00@6.75; stock heifers, $5.50@7.00; stock cows, $4.75@6.50; stock calves, $7.00@8.75; choice to prime heaves, $8.25@8.50; good to choice range heaves, $7.50@8.20; fair to good range heaves, $7.25@7.75; common to fair heaves, $6.25@7.00.

Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The subject of the lesson will be "The Judgment of the Nations." Matt. 25: 31-46.

Regular divine worship every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock.

The subject of the morning sermon will be "Almost Persuaded," Acts 26:28-29. When Paul was taken by Festus before King Agrippa, a striking scene was revealed. In the palace of hearing, were seated Agrippa and his sister Bernice. Evidently they had taken the occasion as an opportunity to show themselves in state. They were richly dressed in gold and pearls and costly array. They were surrounded by footmen and men of high estate, who were clad in rich apparel, which made a splendid show and dazzled the eyes of the gazing crowd. Before the ruler stood the humble man Paul, chained to his soldier guard. He was permitted to speak in self defense. Thus as his voice rang out its fervor and eloquence moved Agrippa more than he cared to admit even to himself. He dreaded any further pressure and therefore tried to turn aside the apostles pleadings, with the words, "Almost Thou persuadest me to be a Christian."

The subject of the evening sermon will be "The Abundant Life," John 10:10.

The pastor wishes to meet all the young people of the church and those who are interested in the Lutheran church, in the Sunday school room of the church, on next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The purpose is to discuss a Young People's Society and to have a social gathering.

The Ladies Aid society met at the home of Mrs. Martin last week. There was a good attendance and a very helpful and pleasant meeting.

The Synod will meet at Allen, Nebraska, from the 7th to 11th of next month. Those planning to attend, please speak to the pastor so arrangements can be made.

All those who wish to enter the Catechetical class this year, hand your names to the pastor.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to worship with us.

Baptist Church

Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor

Rally day next Sunday. Every service is going to be filled with this spirit. If you will come you will catch the rally spirit, too. We are not rallying for a battle, but for a campaign. A dead man can't rally, but every live one can. There is a place for you Sunday at the Baptist church. In the pew, in a class or teaching a class—some where you ought to be. We want you to help make Sunday the most enthusiastic, wide-awake, dead-in-earnest Sunday we have had. Not the air bubble toadstool type but a day when our hearts shall feel afresh the greatness of our work as Christian men and women of Wayne. Be present Sunday morning and catch the spirit of a noble concentration.

Special music at every service. The very best that we can give will be gladly given.

The subject of the morning sermon, "The Higher Call." Have you heard it yet? The subject of the evening sermon will be: "The Best Ambition". Has this ambition gripped your heart yet?

The young peoples session at 7 p. m. will be in charge of Miss Ina Hughes. This will be made a strong service in every way.

The Sunday school leaders are planning on a good program—special music and other things.

We especially want a large class of men ready for Prof. Lewis' Bible class.

Prayer-meeting-Wednesday evening. Come and tell us something out of your heart. It will help us.

Presbyterian Church

Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.

On next Sunday Dr. Corkey will return from Bellevue College and conduct the services morning and evening. In the morning there will be a communion service the subject of the talk being "Real Fellowship." If desired the ordinance of baptism will also be administered.

In the evening the subject of the sermon will be "Our New Age." This will be an optimistic outlook on modern tendencies of thought and life from the viewpoint of the Christian religion.

One week from next Sunday, September 27th, Rev. George F. Williams D. D., of Columbus, Nebraska, will supply the pulpit of the Presbyterian church both morning and evening. Dr. Williams is one of the leading Presbyterian ministers in the Nebraska Synod and it is expected there will be a full attendance of the membership on the occasion of his visit to Wayne.

German Lutheran Church

Rev. Moehring, Pastor

There will be Sunday school at 10 o'clock and preaching services at 11 o'clock a. m. next Sunday.

We Can Grow Our Own Sugar

Such is the declaration in a bulletin issued by the department of agriculture, known as No. 260 of the department of agriculture. It gives a list of the states in which beet sugar can be successfully grown, and our state is one of them. Continuing the story tells the states are California, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Utah, Wisconsin, Wyoming. These states contain more than 2,000,000 farms and over 278,000,000 acres of improved lands. The bulletin continues:

"If one farmer in four of these states were to plant a three-acre patch and give it the care that could readily be bestowed upon so small a plot it would be unnecessary for us to buy foreign sugar. Two-thirds of 1 per cent of the improved land in this area is all that would be required to accomplish this result. More than that acreage lies idle, absolutely unused, every year. Any one of these states of Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Minnesota, Nebraska, or Ohio could produce all this sugar and then have the beets occur only once in a ten-year rotation; several of the others could do it alone on a five-year rotation."

"From this table it can be seen that devoting the proposed 2,000,000 acres to sugar-beet production would have an utterly insignificant effect in reducing the acreage of other crops. If they were grown in properly considered rotations with any of these crops except cotton and rice the effect of the beets in increasing the yield of the others would much more than counterbalance the acreage taken from the latter. All that is necessary, so far as acreage is concerned, in order to make us independent sugar producers is to bring the crop to a parity with flax or rye."

Peace With Honor In Mexico

The policy of "Watchful Waiting" in Mexico appears to have been the best that could have been employed to meet conditions prevailing in that troubled land, and it has so far culminated in peace that the order has gone forward to withdraw our troops from Vera Cruz, where they were sent when the Huerta rule became too insolent, and the interests of peace appeared to demand a show of the power that stood ready to uphold the dignity of this country if there was no other means of reaching the case. It appears to be the plan of the government to see that the customs are properly cared for at this place, which is the most important port of the country.

Home From Switzerland

About ten weeks ago E. C. Aegerter and his two daughters, Misses Hazel and May of Randolph, sailed for Europe, planning to spend the summer there visiting relatives and friends in Switzerland, the boyhood home of Mr. A. They went first to Berne, Switzerland, near which place the old home was and as they had finished the visit of their father's native land and plans were made to go to Germany and Austria and see the sights, war, like a clap of thunder from a clear sky broke in Europe. This put an end to all plans except to get home. All was confusion and excitement for a few days and none knew what to expect next. But Switzerland, which was not at war, except to defend her territory from invasion by foreign troops on their way to the front, everything was at once placed on military footing. The government took all automobiles, motors, horses and practically every means of conveyance, public, semi-public or private that they needed. The government of Switzerland owns and controls the railways, boats and ferries.

The young ladies were detained here Monday morning by a late train, and entertained their Wayne friends with interesting accounts of their experiences. When it was known that they could not visit other parts of Europe the question of how best to reach home was uppermost in their plans. After the excitement of the first few days passed prospect of getting home began to brighten. Many went from Switzerland to London, going by the way of Paris, but the journey was tedious and slow, as the soldiers had first right over the railroads, and the journey was frequently interrupted and delayed, and the rush seemed to be that way. As they were among friends and relatives, they took a little more time than some to select a means of escape. Italy remaining neutral, they soon learned that the San Georgia would sail from Naples soon—earlier in the report than the actual sailing time proved to be. So passage was secured on this boat, and they left in great haste to arrive at Naples in time. They were fortunate in making good time, and learned when they arrived that the sailing time had been changed from Tuesday to Thursday. On account of the difficulties apt to be encountered in travel in that land at that time, they took only such baggage as they could carry with them, leaving their trunks and most of their clothing with relatives in Switzerland until such time as it could safely be sent to them, so they were not hampered with excessive baggage. The boat in which they sailed was not crowded, having room for about 700 more people than were going by that route. It is an emigrant boat, and while not fitted as well as the great liners, because of the small number going that way, the party fared well, really better than many on the popular boats, where some well-to-do people learned what it was to travel as steerage, and be kept below the upper decks all of the trip, for the steerage passenger has few rights on the boat.

The young ladies told of many experiences, and on this route home saw numerous things not planned in the trip. They came past Gibraltar, where English ships were thick and watchful, and frequently they were in the glare of the powerful searchlights of the different ships. In the Straits of Gibraltar their wireless kept repeating the name of the ship and the fact that Italy was neutral. They came through without being molested, but never knew when they might be, for whether or not Italy would take a part in the war was not known when they sailed, and in event of that country being drawn into the struggle their ship would be a prize for any power that captured it.

After a voyage of nearly 15 days the land of the free was sighted, and they soon landed at Brooklyn, and felt safe once more. They had lots of experiences which are now pleasant to relate, but it is doubtful if they would care to "enjoy" them again. The father came with them as far as Chicago, where he stopped to look after some business matters, returning by a later train.

Willis E. Reed of Madison was in Norfolk Saturday morning on his way home from Valentine where he delivered an address at the county fair on Democratic day. "This display at the fair is marvelous," said Mr. Reed. "I saw corn as high as the ceiling and the exhibits of other grains was remarkable. There were also creditable live stock display and good exhibits of fruit, including apples and pears. It was a remarkable showing for that country and proves the rapid progress that is being made there."

 Advertising surely pays—sometimes. Two weeks ago a farmer invested 10 cents in a local in the Democrat, and as a result sold $55 worth of produce at a profit of $10 above the price it would have brought on the open market. He had something the people wanted right here and he simply let them know he had it. He could have sold three times the amount he had if he only could have delivered the goods and made $30 on the 10 cent investment as well as only $10.
 In proof of the saying that the fools are not yet all dead it is stated that the Russian soldier—the private who bears the brunt of the shock of battle—receives pay at the rate of $3.78 per year. But as he and his folks have to pay him perhaps he is as well off as though he paid himself more from the family purse. There is one thing about it, the man's family will know but little pecuniary difference when a soldier with no more salary than that gets his final call. In this country our private soldiers draw from $180 to $300 per year. Considerable more inducement to stand up and be shot at.

War In Europe
 ...Still Raging...

WE in the United States, know very little of what is actually happening among the warring nations of Europe. It is best that we do not know the suffering of wives, mothers and little children. We are at peace with all the world and hope it will always continue. We wish to say that the Wayne Roller Mill is at peace with all of its customers and is steadily grinding away, producing a flour that for quality, whiteness and purity, is unequalled. Buy it and try it.

Goldie says in the Wilmington Journal: "President Wilson's hand is in everybody's pocket," whines the stand-pat, poodle-dog press of the country. One would imagine that these in-it-for-the-money newspapers would take a tumble to themselves once in awhile and be decent, patriotic periodicals. President Wilson is one of the most popular chief executives this country has had in half a century, and is recognized as such by all good citizens no matter to what political party they may belong. The progressive press of California is going to put it all over the "straight republican" gang in this state if such disreputable campaigning is continued by the "General Otises."

CHAPTER IV.

The Flat on the Top Floor.

Braine crawled from his uncomfortable hiding place. His clothes were soiled and damp, his hat gone. By a hair's breadth he had escaped the clever trap laid for him. Hargreave was alive, he had escaped; Braine was as certain of this fact as he was of his own breathing. He now knew how to account for the flickering light in the upper story of the warehouse. His ancient enemy had been watching him all the time. More than this, Hargreave and the meddling reporter were in collusion. In the flare of lights at the end of the gun-play he had caught the profile of the reporter. There was a dangerous man, who must be watched with the utmost care.

He, Braine, had been lured to commit an overt act, and by the rarest good luck had escaped with nothing more serious than a cold chill and a galling disappointment.

He crawled along the top of the pier, listening, sending his dark-accustomed glance hither and thither. The sky in the east was growing paler and paler. In and out among the piles of wool, bags of coffee and lemon crates he slowly and cautiously wormed his way. A watchman patrolled the office side of the warehouse, and Braine found it possible to creep around the other way, thence into the street. After that he straightened up, bought a second-hand shop and purchased a soft hat, which he pulled down over his eyes.

He had half a dozen rooms which he always kept in readiness for such adventures as this. He rented them furnished in small hotels which never asked questions of their patrons. To one of these he went as fast as his weary legs could carry him. He always carried the key. Once in his room he donned fresh wearing apparel, linen, shoes, and shaved. Then he proceeded downstairs, the second-hand hat shading his eyes and the upper part of his face.

At half past twelve Norton entered the Knickerbocker cafe-restaurant, and the first person he noticed was Braine, reading the morning's paper, propped up against the water-carafe. Evidently he had just ordered, for there was nothing on his plate. Norton walked over and laid his hand upon Braine's shoulder. The man looked up with mild curiosity.

"Why, Norton, sit down, sit down! Have you had lunch? No? Join me."

"Thanks. Came in for my breakfast," said Norton, drawing out the chair. Braine was sitting with his back to the wall on the lounge-seat.

"I wonder if you newspaper men ever eat a real, true enough breakfast. I should think the hours you lead would kill you off. Anything new on the Hargreave story?"

"I'm not handling that," the reporter lied cheerfully. "Didn't want to—I know him rather intimately. I've a horror of dead people, and don't want to be called upon to identify the body when they find it."

"Then you think they will find it?" "I don't know. It's a strange mixup. I'm not on the story, mind you; but I was in the locality of Duffy's warehouse late last night and fell into a gunman rumpus."

"Yes, I read about that. What were they after?"

"You've got me there. No one seems to know. Some cock and bull story about there being something valuable. There was."

"What was it? The report in this paper does not say."

"Ten thousand bags of coffee." Braine lay back in his chair and laughed.

"If you want my opinion," said Norton, "I believe the gunmen were out to shoot up another gang, and the police got wind of it."

"Don't you think it about time the police called a halt in this gunman matter?"

"Oh, so long as they pot each other the police look the other way. It saves a long trial and passage up the river. Besides, whenever they are nabbed some big politician manages to open the door for them. Great is the American voter."

"Take Mr. Norton's order, Luigi," said Braine.

"A German pancake, buttered toast and coffee," ordered the reporter.

"Man, eat something!"

"It's enough for me."

"And you'll go all the rest of the day on tobacco. I know something of you chaps. I don't see how you manage to do it."

"Food is the least of our troubles. By the way, may I ask you a few questions? Nothing for print, unless you've got a new book coming."

"Fire away."

"What do you know about the Princess Perigoff?"

"Let me see. Him? Met her first about a year ago at a reception given to Nasmova. A very attractive woman. I see quite a lot of her. Why?"

"Well, she claims to be a sort of aunt to Hargreave's daughter."

"She said something to me about that the other night. You never know where you're at in this world, do you?"

"The German pancake, the toast, the coffee disappeared, and the reporter passed his cigars."

"The president visits town today and I'm off to watch the show. I suppose I'll have to interview him about the tariff and all that rot. When you start on a new book let me know and I'll be your press agent."

"That's a bargain."

"Thanks for the breakfast."

Braine picked up his newspaper, smoked and read. He smoked, yes, but he only pretended to read. The young fool was clever, but no man is infallible. He had not the least suspicion; he saw only the newspaper story. Still, in some manner he might stumble upon the truth, and it would be just as well to tie the reporter's hands effectually.

The rancor of early morning had been subdued; anger and quick temper never paid in the long run, and no one appreciated this fact better than Braine. To put Norton out of the way temporarily was only a wise precaution; it was not a matter of spite or reprisal.

He paid the reckoning, left the restaurant, and dropped into one of his clubs for a game of billiards. He drew quite a gallery about the table. He won easily, racked his cue and sought the apartments of the princess.

What a piece of luck it was that Olga had really married that old dotard, Perigoff! He had left her a titled widow six months after her marriage. But she had had hardly a kopeck to call her own.

"Olga, Hargreave is alive. He was there last night. But somehow he anticipated the raid and had the police in waiting. The question is, has he fooled us? Did he take that million or did he hide it? There is one thing left—to get that girl. No matter where Hargreave is hidden, the knowledge that she is in my hands will bring him out into the open."

"No more blind alleys."

"What's on your mind?"

"She has never seen her father. She confessed to me that she has not even seen a photograph of him."

"There was a long pause."

"Do you understand me?" she asked.

"By the Lord Harry, I do! You've a head on you worth two of mine. The very simplicity of the idea will win out for us. Some one to pose as her father; a message handed to her in secret; dire misfortune if she whispers a word to anyone; that her father's life hangs upon the secrecy; she must condescend in no one, least of all Jones, the butler. It all depends upon how the letter gets to her. Brod in the country, she probably sleeps with her window open. A pebble attached to a note, tossed into the window. I'll trust this to no one; I'll do it myself. With the girl in our control the rest will be easy. If she really does not know where the money is Hargreave will tell us. Great head, little woman, great head. She does not know her father's handwriting?"

"She has never seen a scrap of it. All that Miss Farlow ever received was money. The original note left on the doorstep with Florence has been lost. Trust me to make all these inquiries."

"Tomorrow night, then, immediately after dinner, a taxicab will await her just around the corner. Grange is the best man I can think of. He's an artist when it comes to playing the old-man part."

"Not too old, remember. Hargreave isn't over forty-five."

"Another good point. I'm going to stretch out here on the divan and snooze for a while. Had a devil of a time last night."

"When shall I wake you?"

"At six. We'll have an early dinner sent in. I want to keep out of everybody's way. By-by!"

In less than three minutes he was sound asleep. The woman gazed down at him in wonder and envy. If only she could drop to sleep like that. Very softly she pressed her lips to his hair.

At eleven o'clock the following night the hall light in the Hargreave house was turned off and the whole interior became dark. A shadow crept through the lilac bushes without any more sound than a cat would have made. Florence's window was open as the arch-conspirator had expected it would be. With a small string and stone as a sling he sent the letter whirling skillfully through the air. It sailed into the girl's room. The man below heard no sound of the stone hitting anything and concluded that it had struck the bed.

He waited patiently. Presently a wavering light could be distinguished over the sill of the window. The girl was awake and had lit the candle. This knowledge was sufficient for his need. The tragic letter would do the rest, that is, if the girl came from the same pattern as her father and mother—strong willed and adventurous.

He tiptoed back to the lilacs, when a noise sent him close to the ground. Half a dozen feet away he saw a shadow creeping along toward the front door. Presently the shadow stood up as if listening. He stooped again and ran lightly to the steps, up these to the door, which he hugged.

Who was this? wondered Braine. Patiently he waited, arranging his posture so that he could keep a lookout at the door. By and by the door opened cautiously. A man holding a candle appeared. Braine vaguely recognized Olga's description of the butler. The man on the other side of the door, however, suddenly blew out the light.

Braine could hear no more. His conversation lasted scarcely a minute. The door closed and the man ran down the steps, across the lawn, with Braine close at his heels.

"Just a moment, Mr. Hargreave," he called ironically; "just a moment!"

The man he addressed as Hargreave turned with lightning rapidity and struck. The blow caught Braine above the ear, knocking him flat. When he regained his feet the rumble of a motor told him the rest of the story.

By the dim light of her bedroom candle Florence read the note which had found entrance so strangely and mysteriously into her room. Her father! He lived, he needed her! Alive but in dread peril, and only she could save him! She longed to fly to him at once, then and there. How could she wait till tomorrow night at eight? Immediately she began to plan how to circumvent the watchful Jones and the careful Susan. Her father! She slept no more that night.

"My Darling Daughter: I must see you. Come at eight o'clock tomorrow night to 78 Grove street, third floor. Confide in no one, or you seal my death warrant."

"Your unhappy FATHER."

What child would refuse to obey a summons like this?

A light tap on the door started her. "Is anything the matter?" asked the mild voice of Jones.

"No. I got up to get a drink of water."

She heard his footsteps die away down the corridor. She thrust the letter into the pocket of her dress, which lay neatly folded on the chair at the foot of the bed, then climbed back into the bed itself. She must not tell even Mr. Norton.

Was the child spinning a romance over the first young man she had ever met? In her heart of hearts the girl did not know.

Her father!

It was all so terribly and tragically simple, to match a woman's mind against that of a child. Both Norton and the sober Jones had explicitly warned her never to go anywhere, receive telephone calls or letters, without first consulting one or the other of them. And now she had planned to deceive them, with all the cunning of her sex.

The next morning at breakfast there was nothing unusual either in her appearance or manners. Under the shrewd scrutiny of Jones she was just her everyday self, a fine bit of acting for one who had yet to see the stage. But it is born in woman to act, as it is born in man to fight, and Florence was no exception to the rule.

She was going to save her father.

She read with Susan, played the piano, sewed a little, laughed, hummed and did a thousand and one things young girls do when they have the deception of their elders in view.

All day long Jones went about like an old hound with his nose to the wind. There was something in the air, but he could not tell what it was. Somehow or other, no matter which room Florence went into, there was Jones within earshot. And she dared not show the least impatience or restiveness. It was a large order for so young a girl, but she filled it.

She rather expected that the reporter would appear some time during the afternoon, and sure enough he did. He could no more resist the desire to see and talk to her than he could resist breathing. There was no use denying it, the world had suddenly turned at a new angle, presenting a new face, a roscate vision. It rather subdued his easy banter.

"What news?" she asked.

"None," rather despondently. "I'm sorry. I had hoped by this time to get somewhere. But it happens that I can't get any further than this house."

She did not ask him what he meant by that.

"Shall I play something for you?" she said.

"Please."

He drew a chair beside the piano and watched her fingers, white as the ivory keys, flutter up and down the board. She played Chopin for him, Mendelssohn, Grieg and Chaminade, and she played them in a surprisingly scholarly fashion. He had expected to use schoolgirl choice and execution. "Thank you," the "Moonlight Sonata" (which not half a dozen great pianists have ever played correctly).

"This was the first time she had ever played a piece of music."

"Please."

closed about her Florence experienced a peculiar shiver.

"My child!" murmured the broken man. "They caught me when I was about to come to you. I have given up the fight." A sob choked him.

On Election Day

The man who is not as religious at the ballot box as he is at the sacramental board is a arrant hypocrit, no matter what church he belongs to. The idea of being sanctified at church and at the same time a yoke fellow with the devil on election day! You had better play the devil 364 days in the year and then join the army of Christ on election day. Ah, my bretheran, this relation of man to man is a sacred matter. The question asked by Cain, the murderer, "Am I my brother's keeper?" must be answered and answered right, the world over. Please put your hands in your pockets and feel what is the matter. It is an empty pocket—that is all.—Yeoman Shield.
