Death of Oscar Wamberg

Monday evening, while on his way from Hoskins to Norfolk, where he lived, Oscar Wamberg, who was for a number of years a resident of Wayne, met instant death, the automobile he was driving turning turtle and pinning him beneath the seat and the steering gear. Of the accident the Norfolk News says:

Oscar C. Wamberg of Norfolk, aged 30, was killed shortly before 9 o'clock Monday night, when his five-passenger automobile turned turtle on the Hoskins-Norfolk road five miles north and half a mile east of town. George Steinmetz, who was riding with Wamberg, was thrown twenty feet clear of the wreck and escaped with a few slight bruises. Wamberg's neck was broken and his skull was fractured. He leaves a wife and three children.

When the car turned over after striking a culvert, Wamberg was pinned under the seat and steering wheel. The edge of the seat struck his neck and head. He was driving at a fast rate of speed when the accident occurred. He did not see the culvert and Steinmetz's effort to take the wheel from him appear to have had something to do with throwing the big car into a four-foot ditch on the side of the road.

"It happened so quick I cannot say just how it was done," said Steinmetz. "I asked Wamberg to leave Hoskins earlier, but we did not leave until 8 o'clock. We were going at a fast rate of speed. It was dark and it was hard to see through the sleet. I told Oscar that we were approaching a culvert, but he did not seem to see it. I tried to take the wheel from him but before I knew it we were in the ditch. Then we hit the culvert and a second later I was thrown into the air. I ran to the car and found Oscar underneath. I knew he was dead, and then I ran to the farm house and asked them to telephone the Norfolk police."

Wamberg has lived in Norfolk for some years. He was in the stock buying business, purchasing hogs and cattle for local butchers. Occasionally he worked at the Fair store, but most of the time was spent in stock buying. He made frequent trips to all parts of the country on hog buying expeditions. It was one of these trips that took him to Wayne county Monday afternoon. His home is on the L. Schenzel farm east of Norfolk. He was enroute home when the accident occurred.

A peculiar phase of the automobile accident is the fact that the automobile had cleared the ditch and culvert before it turned turtle. When it fell from its fatal plunge into the air, the machine dropped into the middle of the road.

Mr. Wamberg was a partner of W. O. Hanssen at Wayne in the Central market at this place, moving to Norfolk soon after selling the market about 20 months ago. He was a member of the A. O. U. W. and the Modern Woodmen at this place and had many friends here.

The funeral will be held this afternoon under the auspices of the Modern Woodmen, and the body will be laid to rest in the Wayne cemetery.

Death of J. H. Roman

During the last week in September J. H. Roman, a carpenter 55 years of age, was found dead in his bed at the Ogden hotel in Council Bluffs, with a gas jet open and the room closed tight. Roman formerly lived at Red Oak, Iowa, and worked as a carpenter at Wayne when the elevators were being built. It is thought that his death was accidental, as he was upon the bed with his clothes on, and it is thought that he must have turned the gas on and forgetting to light it sat down upon the bed where he remained until overcome by the fumes.

Are We to Have Interurban Line?

Surveyors have been working southeast from Wayne for several days, and saying nothing for publication, but they are supposed to be at work locating a line which has been mentioned as coming from Niobrara to Omaha. Don't worry, now, for if the road is built after the war is over you will all have a chance to help build it no doubt. The Democrat will be glad to see such a road heading this way.

Our Most Popular Offer

The special subscription offer of the Democrat is doing good work, and old subscribers and new are responding—and universally express appreciation of the opportunity. This week a special opportunity is offered to the people in the vicinity of Winside—a clubbing offer for the Tribune and the Democrat. When we asked for an advertisement in the Tribune the editor asked that instead of an advertisement we make a clubbing rate, and a coupon found elsewhere in the paper tells of the offer, which is only promised until November 1st.

Our special offer is so good that it does not require much space to advertise it—just the announcement that there is now opportunity to secure the Democrat at the low rate of $1.00 until January, 1916, appears to be enough said to those who know the paper, and sample copies are furnished to a list each week, and they are bringing immediate results. We know that there are others coming, and the closing days of this opportunity will be the greatest subscription days in the history of the paper—but why wait for the last day of the opportunity? The offer is for your saving.

THE DEMOCRAT.

Roadman-Hollenback

At 12 o'clock (noon) today occurred the marriage of Miss Velma Roadman, of this city, to Mr. Carl E. Hollenback, of Spokane, Wash. The event took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. J. H. Roadman, 1110 Washington street. The immediate family witnessed the ceremony which was performed by Mrs. Hollenback's brother, Rev. Earl Roadman.

Mrs. Hollenback is a graduate of the Iowa State Teachers College and has taught in Iowa and Washington; for the past two years in Spokane. Mr. Hollenback has been connected with the Eiler Music House of Spokane for a number of years. This is one of the oldest and largest firms of the northwest. Recent advancement has attended Mr. Hollenback's service to which he returns after his present vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollenback will leave Cedar Falls the latter part of the week. They will visit at the home of Mr. Hollenback's parents in Wayne, Nebraska, while enroute to their future home in Ledgerwood Park, one of the popular suburbs of Spokane.

The above is from a Cedar Falls, Iowa, paper of October 7th. Mr. and Mrs. Hollenback were here visiting his parents and many friends a few days, departing this morning for their western home. He has the best wishes of a host of Wayne friends.

Mrs. John Francis Dies Suddenly.

At midnight, Saturday, October 10, 1914, the death messenger came for Mrs. John Francis at their home southwest of Carroll. Mrs. Francis was not well, but was not considered in immediate danger by the attending physician an hour prior to her death which followed a spasm immediately. A husband and a family of five of six sons and daughters and many friends and neighbors mourn her sudden death.

The funeral was held from the Welch M. E. church, following a short service at the home, and was largely attended by relatives and neighbors of the past twenty years that they have made their home here. Revs. Davis and McKinsey conducted the service.

Jud Cooper and wife and Mrs. D. Jones, sisters, and E. Wood, a brother, all from Red Oak, Iowa, were here to attend the funeral.

A kind Christian mother and wife has gone to her reward.

Republican Precinct Ticket

Charged With Assault

Four young men are held under bond to answer to a charge of assault and congregating for the purpose of violating the law, and it is reported that there are several others who are perhaps equally guilty for whom no papers have yet been served. Those upon whom the papers have been served are True Duncan, Carl Will, Everett Hoguewood and James Crawford. Chas. Bright is the complaining witness.

The provoking cause of the complaint was the action of these young men and others Saturday evening when the Juniors of the normal school, under the care of Prof. Bright, entertained the Seniors. They met at the McIntosh grove, where the class had special permission to indulge in a wienie roast, where they were followed by defendants who are alleged to have acted in a very unbecoming manner and assaulted some of the student body besides blocking the public highway to prevent their return—as well as obstructing other travel along the road and causing them delay and inconvenience. If it is proven, as seems probable that these offences were premeditated and planned in advance it is indeed a serious charge that the young men are facing.

The editor, in an interview with Prof. Bright, was told that he felt that the good of the school, the town and community, as well as the very best interest of the defendants, against whom he bore no malice, called for the action taken, and in this attitude he is upheld by the city officials and public sentiments generally. It is reported that there has been too much rowdiness indulged in about the college, and that the object of this action is to convince those indulging in these acts that it is for the good of all that the rights of all be respected.

Death of Mrs. Geo. Rohwer

At the home in this city, Sunday, October 11, 1914, occurred the death of Margarette Otte Rohwer, of typhoid fever, at the age of 49 years, 1 month and 3 days. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the German Lutheran church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Rudolph Moehring, and interment was in the Wayne cemetery.

Margarette Otte was born September 8, 1865, at Jeventedt, Holst, Germany, and came to America in 1881, living near Omaha, where in 1885, she was united in marriage with George Rohwer who survives to mourn her death. She also leaves a sister, who lives at Omaha, and four brothers, one living at Carroll, and three in Douglas county.

For five years they lived in Montana, and then came to make Wayne county their home, though spending about half of each year in Montana for several following years.

A faithful wife and kind neighbor has gone to her reward.

THANKS—I wish to express my appreciation and thanks to kind friends and neighbors for many acts of aid and sympathy extended to me during the last sickness and death of my wife, and especially for the floral offerings to her memory. Geo. Rohwer.

Clark-Driscoll

At Fremont, Thursday, October 8, 1914, occurred the marriage of A. B. Clark of this city and Miss Margaret E. Driscoll of Chicago, County Judge Winterstein officiating. The groom has long resided in Wayne county and has an extensive acquaintance over the state. The bride had been visiting in California, and was met by the groom at Fremont. They came to Wayne by automobile and are now house-keeping at the Clark residence in this city.

Obituary—W. O. Miner

Wesley Orange Miner was born at Kaneville, Kane county, Illinois, on the 17th day of April, 1845, and died at the home of his son, Harvey J. Miner, one mile south of Wayne, Nebraska, on the 11th day of October, 1914, being 69 years, 5 months and 24 days old. He was the fifth child of his parents who were pioneer settlers in Illinois. Of these now living are a sister in California, a brother and a sister in Illinois and a sister, Mrs. Daniel Macklin of Wayne.

He married Mary Jane Harkness on the first day of October, 1867. To this union were born six children—three sons and three daughters. Two of the daughters died in infancy. The other children are Mrs. L. M. Owen; Harvey J. Miner and Earl R. Miner of Wayne, and Dr. Elmer A. Miner, of Independence, Kansas.

Seven and a half years ago Mr. and Mrs. Miner came to Wayne to live. Mrs. Miner died here two years ago.

Mr. Miner united with the Methodist Episcopal church at Kaneville, Illinois, of which church he has at times been an officer and has been an ardent supporter for about 40 years.

Though living out nearly three score and ten years, the last decade has been spent in suffering. Yet through all he has been a kind and loving father and he will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the home of the son, Harvey Miner, conducted by Rev. Buell of the Methodist church, and was attended by a large number of neighbors and friends who thus paid their last tribute to one whom they had learned to love and respect during the years he had been a resident of this county.

Card of Thanks

We thank the many friends for their various expressions of kindness and sympathy during the sickness and death of our father.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Owen.
Mr. and Mrs. Harvey J. Miner.
Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Miner.
Dr. and Mrs. Elmer A. Miner.

Late War News

For the last week the news from the seat of war has been meagre in detail. Antwerp has fallen before the German guns. The Belgian and British troops who were defending the city escaped, though a part of them to escape capture went to Holland, a neutral country, and were interned. They will not have further part in the war as combatants, according to rules of war.

The Belgium capital has been moved to France to escape capture.

The German army now appears to be forcing its way north toward the north coast of Belgium. The English fear that if the Germans can establish a base near the coast they will be careless about dropping bombs from the airships on the English.

In the east reports are conflicting, but to sum them all up, it looks as though the Germans had successfully resisted and stayed the march of the Russians toward their country.

On the sea there has been but little doing. A boat or two has met with a destroyer or a mine and been sunk, but no real naval engagement has been reported, though a submarine or two are reported to have been sunk.

There is report of a Boer revolt against the English in south Africa.

In China the non-combatants are moving out of Tsing Tau and a bombardment from the Japanese is expected.

Mexico is not entirely quiet, and the policy of Watchful Waiting is being continued by the administration at Washington. The American troops have not yet been withdrawn from Vera Cruz, and may not be for a time.

A rare musical attraction is to be given at the Normal chapel next Thursday evening, when the Zoeller String Quartet of Brussels will give one of the famous concerts. The press of this and foreign lands tell of the high class of their entertainment.—It is an opportunity that the people should appreciate, for it not often comes to citizens of places no larger than Wayne.

Don't forget to see that car of fancy boxed apples, that Dr. Vail expects on track next week.

Social Notes

At the regular meeting of the Monday club with Mrs. Chace this week the ten members present responded to roll call by telling something of interest of some European city. The responses were instructive and entertaining. Mrs. Welch gave a map study of the war of Europe that was helpful to all who are trying to keep in touch with the war field of the old world. Mrs. Moran gave an interesting paper on "America's Opportunity", as a result of the war. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Carhart.

The Minerva club postponed its meeting this week until next Monday, on account of the death of Mr. Miner, his daughter and daughter-in-law both being members of the club. The next meeting will be held at the home of Ben McEachen and wife in the country if weather and roads will permit the members going that distance. If weather is unfavorable, Mrs. McEachen will entertain the members of the society at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. J. Coleman in this city.

Mrs. Art Ahern entertained at a Kensington Friday afternoon in honor of Misses Lou Chace and Bess Horton of Stanton. Misses Elsie Piper, Mary Hicks and Bess Elmore from the college were also there. The hostess served a delicious 3-course luncheon, and Miss Piper entertained the hostess and guests at a theatre party, followed by a supper at the Calumet.

There was a family dinner at the home of LeRoy Ley and wife at their new home on 7th and Pearl streets, Sunday, at which Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ley and Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Ley and children were present at an elegant 1 o'clock dinner. This was a house warming for their new home, but recently completed and occupied.

The Acme club met with Mrs. John T. Bressler Monday afternoon, and the program was followed out, Mrs. Jacobs reading a paper on Egypt's great Karnak. Mrs. Bressler gave a paper on "The Ruins of the Nile." The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Brittel.

At the regular meeting of the P. E. O. at the home of Mrs. E. S. Blair Monday evening, Mrs. Hamer Wilson was the leader in the study of the constitution, part 1. This was followed by reading of the by-laws, after which Mrs. T. T. Jones entertained with music.

The Junior Bible Circle met with Mrs. Hart Saturday evening, and an interesting service was held. The meeting Saturday evening will be with Mrs. E. B. Young.

What Are You Feeding?

Hogs at this season of the year should be strong and vigorous. We recently visited a farmer who has more than 300 hogs on his place. In looking at a bunch of about fifty in one yard we remarked to the owner that his pigs didn't look as thrifty as they should. He said "Oh, I don't know." Looking more closely at the hogs we noticed they were covered with lice. We asked him when he had dipped or sprayed them, and the reply was, "Not this summer." Corn at this farm was worth 65 cents per bushel. We wondered, while looking over this bunch of hogs, how many dollars he had spent during the last summer for corn to feed lice.

Going from this farm to the one adjoining, we found a nice, thrifty, growing bunch of hogs. No lice were to be found here. This farmer said he had dipped his hogs twice and in addition we found a rubbing post in the yard in good working condition.

It is immaterial to us what method a farmer pursues to keep lice off his hogs. He may dip, spray, sprinkle or use some practical rubbing machine, of which there are many on the market. It is, however, very material to the hog grower whether or not he uses one or more of these methods. No man can make any money feeding 65-cent corn to hogs worth from $8 to $8.50 per hundred that are covered with lice. It is no easy matter to keep lice down in your herd, but you can if you will. Will you?—Twentieth Century Farmer.

Farmers' Congress Planning

Preliminary plans and program are being prepared for the Nebraska Farmer's Congress in Omaha, December 8 to 10. The executive committee met in Omaha last week, selecting the date and providing for a program committee. More than seven hundred farmers' organizations will be asked to appoint delegates to the meeting. In addition, the four hundred branches of the Farmers' Union have requested that they be permitted to name ten delegates. The attendance will easily reach the one thousand mark.

Outside Advertising

Several weeks ago the Democrat, after rejecting an advertisement from an outside firm on the ground that it had been against the policy of the paper to accept outside advertising from dealers carrying lines of goods bringing them in direct competition with the home merchant, but the would-be advertiser would not take "no" for an answer, and demanded as his right the opportunity to send his message to the people through the Democrat as a common carrier.

Both the Herald and the Democrat commented upon the action, and after going the rounds of the press of the state for several weeks, the following conclusion are among those coming back in well-digested form:

"Did anyone ever hear of any other business men who would refuse paying business for the good of the town? Every good local paper could secure a nice line of advertising from the mail order houses. As indicated above it may be that they will be forced by law to accept the business. A newspaper, like a hotel, is a public institution and undoubtedly can be forced to accept unobjectionable advertisements from any who tender payments for the same."—Albion News.

"While it is true a newspaper is a public institution and must treat all alike, it is also true that its duty lies first to its local public. It is hard, though, for a newspaper man to refuse profitable advertising contracts from outside people when local dealers in the same lines refuse to use his space. As a matter of fact, it is likely that a newspaper could be excluded from the mails for refusing legitimate advertising. When a publisher is granted the second class privilege he has to make affidavit that any reputable advertiser can use his columns. Our notion is that an advertiser who is turned down need not go to the courts, all he would have to do would be refer the matter to the postoffice department. This is a risk that every publisher takes when he refuses mail order advertising."—Omaha Trade Exhibit.

Change of Sale Date

Roy Fisher has changed the date of his sale of Hampshire boars at the Wayne pavilion to November 7th. He was through Wayne Saturday and so informed the Democrat man. He also said that the sale would begin promptly at 12 o'clock, noon, in order to be done before the afternoon train goes east. If not done, to be nearly so at that time. Last year his sale began early, and the hour of opening was not made plain or emphasized enough, and many of the local people came late. He wants all to be present on time, for the opening talk by Auctioneer Duncan is always a piece of oratory that is worthy of any man's attention.

Mr. Fisher had just finished compiling returns from the various state and inter-state shows, and found that his herd had been awarded more first prizes and also more ribbons than any other Hampshire herd in the United States. That is pretty good sweepstakes in itself.

The Busted Tourist

(T. C. Harbaugh)
He went across the water
With his pocket full of bills,
He'd never seen America:
Its mountains, towns and rills;
He spread around like peacocks
And scattered lots of cash,
And tried to show the foreigners
How he could cut a dash.
All Europe got to fighting
And the tourist longed for home.
They stopped him in Vienna,
And they penned him up in Rome;
They wouldn't take his money,
For they didn't know his face,
And at the swellest restaurants
He couldn't get a place.
At last they reached a harbor
And they tumbled him on board
He had to leave his luggage
To be plundered by a horde,
They jammed him in the steerage
Where they feasted him on swill
He gave the sea his breakfast,
And presented not a bill.
He's home at last, the tourist,
And he's feeling mighty gay,
For he might have stopped a bullet
If he'd longer stayed away.
To poke around in Europe,
He no longer had a thirst,
And the tip he now is spreading:
"See your native country first."

Democrats Name Candidates

Round Oak Magazine

This shows the genuine Round Oak heating stove equipped with a hard coal magazine which transforms this most excellent soft coal into a hard coal stove at trifling expense and in less than one minute. Most any stove will "burn" hard coal, but it is not every stove that will get the maximum amount of heat from a pound of coal and that is just what the Round Oak does. You will notice that it is made with a double fire pot, that is, one inside of the other, just like a base burner. Then with the cone-center, anti-clinker grate, rim-discharge and coal guards to protect the body from overflowing, you certainly have an ideal stove for hard or soft coal, coke or wood. Made in ONE QUALITY only. The name is on every leg.

"Safety Always"

ESPECIALLY WITH MEDICINE

Where health is concerned, "Safety always" should be uppermost. It is best to take extra precaution that no unforeseen fatality may result. Medicine is taken for its curative power in bringing about recovery from illness, but unless it is compounded absolutely right in every respect it cannot accomplish all it should. Even if it is not right in the smallest way, medicine is no medicine at all and there is danger of it doing more harm than good. That's why "safety always" in having medicines made is most important. You are safe when you have them compounded at our store. Prescriptions brought here are filled carefully and accurately, with the best materials, equipment, and experience. Let us fill your next prescription for safety sake.

ANIMAL HUSBANDRY

HOG CHOLERA TREATMENT.

Immunity Can Be Secured by Simultaneous Use of Serum and Virus.

(By Dr. F. S. Schoenleber, Kansas Agricultural college.)

The careless use of anti-hog cholera serum has caused much damage. The failure of serum ignorantly administered, is the cause of the distrust among some farmers in vaccination treatment.

Permanent immunity against hog cholera can be had by the use of serum and virus. Serum alone will not injure a healthy hog. Virus should not be used on pigs weighing less than fifty pounds. It should not be used on pregnant sows, suckling pigs, animals suffering from any disease, or if the animals are infested with parasites or if the surroundings are not sanitary. In such instances serum alone should be used until such time when the conditions are right. It might be necessary to use a second application of the serum before giving the simultaneous treatment. While it is possible in many of these instances to use serum and virus successfully without loss, our experience has shown that at times great losses are incurred.

The Poland China hog long ago won popularity because of its early maturing and easily fattening qualities. Of course a large hog does not mature quite as rapidly as a smaller one, but Poland Chinas of the big type are marketable at eight to nine months old, weighing from 200 to even 300 pounds. Moreover, when the finishing time arrives the modern Poland China maintains its large capacity for using Indian corn to excellent advantage. Poland Chinas are still exceedingly popular and are among the most numerous hogs in the corn belt states. The illustration shows the head of a pure bred Poland China boar.

Anti-hog cholera serum is used as a preventive only, and it will prevent no disease other than cholera. If cholera is in the herd virus may increase the trouble. In this instance serum alone should be used, and when the animals are in normal condition again the simultaneous method may be applied. If the temperature of the animal is high, no matter from what cause, virus increases the fever, which may kill the animal. Where hogs are infested with parasites the vitality of the hog naturally is reduced, and virus may kill the animals. The same results may come when the surroundings are insanitary. If a pig weighing fifty pounds is vaccinated by the simultaneous treatment the immunity may not last. It is always advisable to use the serum alone under all doubtful conditions, and if permanent immunity is desired the virus and serum may be given after the conditions are corrected.

RAISING FALL COLTS.

Advantages of Having the Foals Come Late In the Year.

The practice of rearing fall colts ought to receive more attention among farmers than at present, and especially so where several colts are raised each year, writes W. F. Purdue in the American Cultivator. Many mares are worked but little during the winter months and could better raise a colt than in the summer, when in the business much of the time. No extra warm barn or no more room is needed than for the spring colt. The little fellow will get a surprisingly warm coat of hair and ought to be out in the yard every day when other horses can be out. It is best to have the fall colts come between Oct. 15 and Dec. 1, as getting them earlier brings it into the fall work too much and having them foaled later makes it rather cold for the little fellows before they get their coat of hair.

When the colts about March 1, which gives some time to get the mare in good shape for spring work. The colts by this time will eat oats, and when grass comes let them out, but teach them to come to the barn every night so they can be fed a little twice a day.

It will not do to try to carry a fall colt through the first summer on grass alone. Such a colt will start and keep growing right along can be broken to work and earn his living after two and one-half years old, which is half a year ahead of the spring colt instead of a year behind, as some claim.

Another point is that a mare in foal, handled by a considerate driver, can better stand the work in summer than one nursing a colt and doing the same amount of work.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

If a pasture field tree stands nearly a wire fence line see that the fence is well grounded some distance away from the shelter. Many a valuable animal has been found dead after a thunder-storm.

The pig with its rapid feeding and high rate of increase is the most economical meat producing machine at the farmer's disposal.

Mature hogs do not derive the benefit from milk that the younger ones do.

Sheep must have shade in the pasture. They never graze in the hot sun. Make the shelters roomy, with a tight roof and good ventilation.

To get the most value from a sheep pasture requires only a little intelligent attention as to the proper time to change the flock to the alternate pasture.

DEMAND FOR VEAL RAPIDLY GROWING

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

The demand for veal has increased rapidly and not only are the surplus dairy calves slaughtered, but thousands of beef calves as well, until a calf will now sell for from $8 to $12 when only two to three months old.

This means that unless the farmer has unlimited cheap feeds, it is usually more profitable to market the dairy or dual purpose calves than to attempt to raise them, even though some of them might make good steers. While many deplore this heavy slaughter of calves, and legislation against it has been urged, the consumer's demand must be met.

While the number of cattle has decreased, the demand for meat has naturally grown until not only have the exports nearly ceased, but the packers that they may provide cheaper meat are now buying many cattle that were formerly fed. The farmers who formerly bought nearly finished cattle as feeders have been compelled to pay higher prices for such cattle or to take thinner animals.

The cattle feeding business has changed greatly during recent years. Formerly steers from four to six years of age were fed in large numbers on commercial feed at yards near granaries or mills or upon large farms where only the roughage was grown and the cattle were kept on full feed for six months or longer. This method became too expensive, so feeding is now conducted upon farms as a means of marketing farm products by converting them into beef, while the manure produced is utilized as a byproduct for maintaining fertility.

Removing a Shoe Boil.

The operation for removing a shoe boil is simple and performed as follows: A piano wire is knotted around the base of the shoe boil and then pulled very tight to make the "neck" of inclosed tissues as narrow as possible. The "neck" is then cut through and bleeding vessels picked up and ligated, or the actual cautery used to stop bleeding. Some veterinarians use a cautery to remove the mass instead of using a knife. If the wound then is wetted several times daily with a lotion composed of one ounce of sugar of lead and six drams of sulphate of zinc in a pint of water it will heal quickly and will leave only a small scar.

Ringworm in Cattle.

Dr. Dykstra of the veterinary department of the Kansas Agricultural college says ringworm is a contagious disease, spreading from animal to animal, and may affect man. The treatment is scrubbing the affected parts with soap and water so as to remove all scabs, after which tincture of iodine should be applied once a week. Two applications of the iodine are usually sufficient to effect a cure.

Indigestion in Horses.

Do not feed ground feed to a horse. Keep it for the cows and hogs. Feed whole oats, adding one-ninth part of wheat bran and allowing one and one-quarter pounds of mixture for each 100 pounds of body weight as a day's ration. Also feed one pound of good hay per 100 pounds of body weight. Work or abundantly exercise the horse every day. Allow free access to rock salt.

WAR NEWS SUMMARIZED.

The occupation of Antwerp by the Germans has been followed by the occupation of Ghent.

Additional details of the shelling of Antwerp indicate that the damage was not as great as at first estimated. The damage inflicted by the German artillery may be set off in large measure by the great destruction wrought on German shipping in the harbor by the Belgians.

"The capture of Antwerp in ten days carries the germ of the capture of Paris," says the Deutsche Tageszeitung, according to a dispatch from Berlin.

It is stated that the Germans lost 45,000 men during attack on Antwerp. The Belgian capital is being moved from Ostend to Havre, France. King Albert will remain with the army in Belgium.

A German official statement says that German cavalry completely routed a French cavalry division west of Lille, which indicates that the extreme limit of the western battle is within twenty miles of the Straits of Dover.

Germans and opposing hosts are lining up for battle in the vicinity of Cassel, on the extreme left wing of the allies. Cassel is eighteen miles from the Straits of Dover.

Reports from eastern theater of war indicate that Teutonic allies and Russians are concentrating their forces for a big battle in Russian Poland, near the Vistula.

Official statement from Berlin says all of Russian Poland west of the Vistula, except Warsaw, is in possession of the Germans and Austrians. In South Poland, the Germans claim their armies have reached the Vistula. The assertion is also made that the Russians have invented the stories which have been given out regarding victories at Augustow and Suwalki.

Petrograd remains silent as to the movements of the Russian armies, but hints that secrecy is necessary for the time being because important operations are pending.

The fighting along the great line extending almost from the North sea to the German province of Lorraine, continues with indefinite results.

Late reports indicate that terrific fighting, partaking of the nature of siege operations, has taken place during the last fortnight around Roye, Lassigny and Albert, the last named place having been completely destroyed. Inspection of the works from which the Germans were driven show that they took the full-est possible advantage of the rock quarries.

Now that the opposing forces are deployed in a comparatively level country, shorter periods of vigorous fighting probably will produce more decisive results than did the engagements while the opposing lines were entrenched against each other.

From Austria come reports, by way of Italy, of the rapid spread of Asiatic cholera and of the sufferings being endured by the Austrian troops on account of the unusually cold weather.

The Japanese have occupied the Shantung railroad, China. This is a Chinese state railroad and was built by Germans. China has protested against this action.

A message from Budapest published in Rome credits the Hungarian government with the intention of granting autonomy to Transylvania, with a view of averting an insurrection in that country.

The question of caring for refugees is becoming more difficult for all the belligerents. Those from Galicia are so numerous in Bohemia that it has been finally decided to build a town to hold 25,000 temporary inhabitants. This town will be on the banks of the Elbe, near Chotzen. In France the problem is serious.

It is announced from an authoritative source that the Turks are showing much energy in Syria, Palestine and north Arabia, where they are concentrating troops at a number of points and fortifying important places on the coast and on routes to the interior.

England fears a Zeppelin raid is impending. London sentries operating huge searchlights redoubled their efforts to search the skies for aerial visitors. The public thinks the German occupation of Antwerp means an almost immediate Zeppelin raid.

Large numbers of wounded soldiers are being brought daily to Vienna. The nineteenth official Austrian list of killed, wounded and missing so far as published has occupied twenty-four columns in the Vienna news papers and the publication has not been completed.

Vienna claims that the Russians have been driven out of Hungary. The Russian ambassador at Rome replies that the Russians occupy one-fifth of Hungary, as well as seven-eighths of Galicia.

Four Austrian torpedo boats and two Austrian torpedo destroyers have been lost off the coast of Dalmatia as a result of coming in contact with mines.

German airmen dropped two more bombs in Paris, but they failed to explode, and no damage was done. The Russian armored cruiser Pallada has been sunk in the Baltic sea by a German submarine, with all of its crew, consisting of nearly 600 officers and men.

Recruiting in England is again being actively pushed. The requirements for service in the infantry have been lowered.

Great Britain has taken precautions against raids over English towns by German airships.

EGGS BY PARCEL POST.

A System of Marketing That Offers Possibilities of Better Prices.

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

For proper shipment by parcel post, after the thorough elimination of the unfit the eggs that remain should be carefully packed in a container of corrugated pasteboard, metal, wood or other suitable material. The postoffice regulations require this container to be so wrapped that nothing can escape from the package and each egg in addition to be wrapped separately in excelsior, cotton or some such material.

In packing eggs it is well to sort them as far as is practical according to size and color and to keep for home use those which are irregular in shape, unusually long or thin shelled. Containers that have been badly stained by broken eggs should be replaced by new ones and the package wrapped as neatly as possible. In short, every effort should be made to deliver as attractive a package as possible into the hands of the customers. The extra expense will be little and the returns in increased trade great.

The larger the shipments that the producer can arrange to make the cheaper can be afford to sell his eggs. Within the first and second zones of the parcel post service a package costs 5 cents for the first pound and only 1 cent for each additional pound. Ordinarily eggs weigh about one and a half pounds a dozen, which, with the additional weight of the wrapping and container, would make a package of a dozen eggs weigh between two and three pounds. The postage on this would be 7 cents. If another dozen eggs were included in the package the postage would not be more than 9 cents, or 4 1/2 instead of 7 cents a dozen eggs.

To the value of the eggs and the cost of postage must be added the cost of the container and the wrapping. For two dozen eggs this may be estimated at 8 cents. With postage at 9 cents it would, therefore, cost 17 cents to market two dozen eggs, or 8 1/2 cents a dozen. By shipping in ten dozen lots it is estimated that the marketing cost can be reduced to 4.7 cents a dozen.

Where the container can be used more than once this cost can, of course, be somewhat reduced. Large sized containers will stand from two to four trips, smaller ones three to five, so that it will pay the producer to induce his customer to return the containers periodically. The postage required for this, of course, deducted from the bill for the next shipment.

Concrete Bridges For County

At the annual meeting of the Wayne Commercial club a few weeks ago, Chas. Bright, in his talk referred to a road condition existing in California, where they are now using concrete for nearly all of their bridges, and said he hoped to see the day when the reform would reach Nebraska. It was, therefore with much interest that the Democrat man accepted an invitation from County Commissioner Geo. Farran of the 3d district, to go with him and inspect some of the concrete bridges built in this county during the past three seasons. From Winside he drove to nine of the twelve concrete arches and culverts which have been installed in his district. The first thing one notices is just the thing that Mr. Bright mentioned in his talk, you never know where the bridge is from the road as you pass over. No jar, or bump. The side rails are all that mark the waterway to the one traveling along the road.

We had thought that the cost for concrete in this county would be more than the steel or wooden structure, owing to the fact that we have no home sand or gravel suitable for the work, in fact this county is almost without sand—only a section or two in the southwest corner of the county having any soil which is considered sandy. But Mr. Farran tells us that in every instance where a concrete bridge has been built in his district the initial cost has been less than would have been for a new steel bridge to comply with the state law, and the cost of the upkeep of the one would run from $40 a year for the floor to the price of a new bridge occasionally or at least a new approach to the bridge, while the upkeep of a properly constructed concrete is nothing at all for years without number. The reason the concrete comes for less money is due to the fact that in most places where it requires from 24 to 100 feet of the old style bridge, an arch of concrete from 10 to 20 feet span with wings to protect the ends is ample to meet the needs.

One of the bridges with a 12-foot arch stood in the place that had required a steel bridge twice that length, and that was on one of the favored locations for a bridge of the old kind. Spanning one waterway within about a mile are three new bridges, and two of them are concrete. The other a steel bridge of forty-foot span (put in at this place because the foundation for concrete could not be secured without piling the bottom, it being in a springy bank without a clay bottom) which cost the county as much as the two concrete arches over the same stream.

The Standard Bridge Co., has built two concrete bridges in this district and F. Damme of Emerson built three on a contract, at a cost of $1,395. Last season the county put in a number of small waterways, doing the work by local help. The cost on these we could not secure for this issue, as the county clerk did not know their location so that the items could be traced. But they were considered good investments for the reason that the cost was not high, and the fact that they have successfully withstood a heavy rain which came almost as a cloudburst—which would have carried away the ordinary culvert or washed away the approach as it did in many cases last summer.

There is one concrete bridge just at the edge of Wayne and one or two in the second district not far from Carroll, and Mr. Farran says that in his opinion there will be but few of the old styles bridges built in this county in the future over the small waterways. Then when the county is once covered this expense will largely cease, and the money can be used for grading the hills down and filling the hollows—and any height fill can be made over a concrete covered waterway, for it will not rot out nor break down if properly built.

First Prize Steers From Wayne
Concerning the car of steers shown at the Inter-State Fair by Gus Hanson of this place the North Nebraska Eagle gives the following report of the test the animals underwent to determine to a finality just what there was of them:
Gus Hanson of Wayne, Nebraska, exhibited a load of beefs that excelled on the hoof and for per centage of beef. The 15 head tipped the scales at an average of 1,290 pounds and sold for $11.25 per hundred. They dressed 65.59 per cent, which gave them first prize for beef production, in addition to the money they had already secured at the fair.

Theodore Peters of Emerson, Nebraska, entered fifteen steers in the heavy beef class at the Inter-State Fair that took second prize. The lot included 15 head that weighed 1,926 pounds apiece and sold for $11.44 per hundred. Their dressing per cent was 64.20.

At Randolph the city is installing a new 50 horse-power oil burning engine to assist in pumping the city water.

Frost at Hartington came a week before it did here, the ground being whitened there by frost last week Sunday night.

In Cedar county at the coming election the voters will decide whether or not they will change to the township system of organization. More than 400 voters have asked that the question be submitted.

At a sale of Aberdeen Angus cattle at Randolph last week the prices on young bulls went as high as $137, and on heifers as low as $79. A bunch of forty grades sold well. It was the herd of W. J. Gries, and it was a herd he had grown at home mostly, starting in a few years ago with two cows, he grew a herd of 50 head, and the offering put in the ring sold at an average price of $88 each.

The statement issued by Owen Lovejoy referring to Col. Roosevelt's criticism of the child labor policies of the old parties was an unusual one. It is seldom that any one interested in social reforms talks back to the colonel. Mr. Lovejoy probably figures that whatever child labor legislation there is passed during the next few years will come from one of the old parties rather than from the meosers.—Norfolk Press.

Dr. W. W. Tait tendered his resignation on last Sabbath morning as pastor of the 1st Presbyterian church—said resignation to take effect on the last Sabbath of the month subject to the approval of the Presbytery. The Presbytery will convene in Madison about October 25th and act on this matter. Dr. Tait has several invitations elsewhere but he has not announced his decision as to where he will locate.—Randolph Times.

The Coleridge Farmers Live Stock and Grain company will probably pay a dividend of fifteen per cent this year. The annual stock holder's meeting is called for October 10, and President Henry Korff is preparing the figures for showing the year's work. The company has handled a gross amount of products amounting to over $300,000 during the past year. The company has a paid-up capital of $8,600 and during the two years of its life has accumulated in undivided profits $3,337.93,—besides paying a good dividend last year.—Wynot Tribune.

Wynot has been getting on the map lately. A newly wed couple was put in jail—as a joke by their friends—A romance of fifty years ago culminated in the marriage of a couple who were in love with each other half a century or more before, both had been previously married, and lost their partner prior to the happy re-meeting at this quiet place. A small street carnival was on there last week, closing the season. A new system of electric lighting has been installed and the council is making a rate as low or lower than can be maintained, until meters can be secured and installed.

A number of fine humorists are running for the state legislature on the republican ticket in Douglas county. This week, they gave out a statement to the press, serving notice that they will not ask nor receive any money from the corporations. It is a fine stall, and amuses many people. The fact that the democratic candidates are now engaged in raising funds by personal subscription for modest campaign expenses, while the republican county central committee has scads of money makes it funny. In short, any time a republican ticket in Douglas county don't get the money from the corporations, it is a weasel asleep on every corner in the city.—The Nebraskan.

R. B. Howell, the republican nominee for governor, nominated by minority vote at the primary election, was working in 1912 to prevent the Taft presidential electors nominees having place on the republican ticket in Nebraska. He assisted in an action in supreme court the purpose of which was to prevent the men whose support he is now assiduously seeking from expressing their choice on president. Mr. Howell is not dwelling in his campaign speeches on his anti-republican position in 1912. Nor since Col. Roosevelt in recent speech at Lincoln declared that progressives to further party progress should vote for Mr. Sackett, the Progressive party nominee for governor, is Mr. Howell making much headway as a Roosevelt man.—Butler County Press.

Let Engineers Do It

It is the hope of this newspaper that the next legislature in Nebraska will pass a law like the Minnesota law as to roads. Put the road business, at least a part of it, in the hands of a state highway commission. Let the commission be appointed by the governor out of a list recommended by the national office of public roads or by the chancellor of the state university. Levy a tax of 1 mill or so to be expended by the state highway commission within the county where it is raised.

Let the counties then levy as much as they choose to be piddled away by a horde of incompetents. It is nothing against a man's natural abilities to say that he is incompetent to build roads. It is the job of an engineer. I couldn't do it as it should be done and there are a hundred of others in the same fix. But put a good engineer on the job and you will get something for your money. It is really wonderful how far a little money will go on road work when it is spent by a man who knows how.

Another reason why a highway commission is needed is to eliminate a lot of highly dangerous places in the roads. Two men near Hubbard were killed by a train last week, and during the summer many others at many other points. A grove of trees obscured the line of vision for both the driver and engineer. The Iowa and Minnesota highway commission attend to those matters. A small expense will often remove such a condition. A highway commission will attend to it. A local road boss will not. There are several such crossings right in the vicinity of Hartington on main roads—one just north of town almost inside the city limits. Some day someone will be killed there, and it will be "an act of overruling Providence," and we will leave the trap there to catch the next fellow. A state highway commission could and would make the railroad company remove the little bank of earth that now obscures the line of sight.

With sufficient powers and the money that is now wasted such a commission would be worth an immense amount to the state of Nebraska. Let's take the money that is now being wasted and stolen in road and bridge funds and put it in the hands of a competent highway commission. The condition could not be worse than it is now. And in the states that have such a commission it is a whole lot better. To get a job done by one man who knows the business is a lot better than a hundred who know some other business.—Cedar County News.

W. H. Smith For Auditor

One striking piece of legislation enacted at the last session of the Nebraska legislature gives an accurate index to its authors' interest in public affairs. It was the law providing for the drafting of uniform bridge plans for counties of the state. The measure was introduced and indefatigably labored for by W. H. Smith of Seward, now democratic candidate for state auditor, says the World-Herald.

The law made straight for efficiency where there has been utter laxity almost since the establishment of the state. Senator Smith has a broad conception of the duties of public office. He is conscientious in his activity to every problem to which he turns his attention. He is essentially an analyst of business methods. He exemplified that as secretary of the state senate at the 1911 session. There he provided a method for carrying out every form of legislative routine expeditiously and in an order to most benefit the members. He is doubly well qualified for the place he holds because of his legislative training, and his close study of public affairs from the stand point of a newspaper man.

The editor of this paper is personally acquainted with Mr. Smith, and because of that acquaintance watched his fight with more than usual interest, knowing that his proposed measure was opposed by the bridge combines whose strangle-hold on the taxpayers the law was designed to break. That he won, speaks well for his honesty and ability, and every county in the state is receiving a direct benefit from this law. It puts bridge bidding on much nearer competitive basis than it has been since the early days in the history of the state.—Smith is an easy name to remember when marking a ballot, and a good man.

Villa, a Mexican whose given name is Santiago, was arrested at Hartington last week to answer before the county judge to a charge of assault on Joe Marko, an Austrian. Both men are employees of the railroad. The Mexican is said to have attacked his fellow workman with a knife, and also of making the attack stealthily from the rear.

Trade Revives From War Shock

Chicago, Oct. 14—America is recovering from the shock to business caused by the European war, F. W. Thompson, of Chicago, president of the Farm Mortgage Banker's association, told members of the association attending the first annual convention here.

"It is only necessary to call attention to our wonderful resources," said Mr. Thompson, "and our ability to transform into money 900 million bushels of wheat, 8 million bales of cotton and 27,000 million bushels of corn, together with a vast quantity of live stock and other food products, to assure our nation of a bountiful prosperity in the coming year.

In spite of the war, the exports of food stuffs already have shown a marked increase over the same period of last year. The banking fraternity is united in a sincere campaign to assist in getting our surplus agricultural products transformed into gold or credit abroad.

WAYNE MARKET REPORT

Following are the market prices quoted us up to the time of going to press, Thursday:

Table with market prices for Oats, Corn, Barley, Spring wheat, Wheat, Eggs, Butter, Hogs, and Fat Cattle.

If the democrats of this county who have been for the past 25 years working to secure a democratic administration at Washington, appreciate as we believe they do, the excellent work done in the past 18 months it will be impossible to keep them from going to the polls election day and expressing their appreciation. No one could do less than that.

In New York City work has commenced on two great tunnels under East river, which are to cost six millions of dollars. Their total length will be 6,800 feet, and the bottom will be 87 feet below the surface of the river. They are to form a part of the rapid transit system. Two or three other tunnels are to be constructed later, and when the system now contemplated is finished there will be a total cost of $52,000,000.

It is all over now—the great world series of base ball games. Boston broke all previous records, winning four straight games from Philadelphia—something never before done in the contest for the pennant between the two highest scoring teams. The daily attendance was limited only by the capacity of the grounds. While thousands watched the games daily from the grandstand, other millions anxiously watched the returns, so great was the interest in the result. While Boston did the winning every day the games were closely contested, and no game was won until the last inning was finished. One day it took twelve innings to decide the fate for the day. Now that this question is settled we can once more turn the glasses on the sickly scenes in the old world where they are battling for selfish motives, and murdering many thousands and causing unfold suffering among millions of innocent and helpless people.

The selection of a chief justice of the Nebraska supreme court is one of the tasks imposed upon voters in this campaign. For the first in the history of the state the members of this high court are to be chosen without reference to their political affiliation. A nonpartisan law governing the judiciary is now in effect. Singularly the two opposing candidates are of different party affiliations. They are Manoah B. Reese, present chief justice, and Conrad Hollenbeck, judge of the Sixth judicial district. The latter at the primaries received the approval of approximately 90 per cent of the voters of the district. This endorsement of his qualities seems to us to be sufficient to justify the Tribune in lending its support to him as a candidate, even if there were not other reasons. He is a home man, a neighbor and friend. He has shown impartial judgment in his career on the bench. He has proved his fitness for the place for which he stands as a candidate. The Tribune has no less regard for Judge Reese now than it had had during the thirty-five years it has frequently supported him, but it is at this time disposed to urge the choice of Judge Hollenbeck for chief justice.—Fremont Tribune.

The Crystal theatre has contracted for a series of what is known as "Paramount Pictures" which means that there are none better or more true to life. Next Thursday evening the first one of these films will be run, the famous novel, "Brewster's Millions" a five-act play showing the most famous stars just as it is produced at the leading world theatres. Several other like features are booked for Thursday evenings. These attractions everywhere command advanced price, and to furnish this series for the people who want the best of pictures the price for these events will be 25 and 15 cents, which is certainly very low for such attractions.

State Normal Notes

Miss Theresa Burns of Lyons visited her sister, Miss Lucy Burns last week.

August Chinguist spent the week-end with his brother, A. G. Chinguist at the normal.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Barker of Long Pine registered as students of the Normal last week.

Miss Beattie York, a student of last year and now teaching near Carroll, spent Saturday and Sunday at the Normal.

Oscar Schreier and Louis Markitan, former students of the normal, were guests of Clifford Schreier and Jerry Vakec last Saturday.

Miss Angie Fish of the sophomore class of last year, who is now teaching in this county, spent Sunday with friends on the hill.

On Sunday afternoon, Dr. A. S. Buell, the new pastor of the Methodist church, addressed the joint meeting of the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A.

The Crescent literary society gave its first program of the year last Friday evening. President Golen Hickman delivered his inaugural address.

Misses Lou Belle Chace and Bess Horton of Stanton were week-end visitors of Miss Piper before leaving for California where they will spend the winter.

Der Deutschen Verein is the name of the German club organized by Miss Kingsbury. Herman Siems is president of the club and Athol Stevenson, secretary.

Domestic science equipment has been ordered preliminary to the introduction of this subject into the intermediate and grammar grades of the training school.

Miss Iva Burress of Carroll, who enrolled in the Freshman class at the beginning of the school year, has accepted a position as teacher in one of the Wayne county rural schools.

During the past week the students organized a "booster association" and have been practicing college songs and cheers. Mr. George Wilcox succeeds Tracy Kohl as a cheer leader.

Under the supervision of Miss Rachel Fairchild the students of geography in the eighth grade one day last week performed an interesting experiment. By means of a pair of balances and an old electric light bulb they proved that air has weight.

At the Northeast Nebraska teachers' association at Emerson last week suggestion was made of a change in the plans for next year. Under the leadership of Miss Beechel a petition was presented to the executive committee to make provision in next year's program for the work of the intermediate departments in school work.

Last Saturday in the first game played upon the home grounds the Wayne team defeated Trinity college of Sioux City by the score of 26 to 0. It was a good game on both sides. Marsteller and Becker starred for the home team. Wayne worked the forward pass for long gains and was also able to go through the line of the opponents almost at will.

On Thursday evening at the normal chapel a special meeting of the Y. W. C. A., for the reception of new members was held. Miss Athol Stevenson, president of the society, gave an account of her trip to Estes Park, Colorado. Miss Beechel administered the pledge, Mabel Britell and Mary House acted as flower girls, presenting each member with a carnation.

On Saturday evening at the McIntosh grove the Junior class entertained the seniors. An interesting feature was the arrangement whereby the juniors were to have half hour start, their destination being unknown to the upper classmen. The seniors finally discovered the place through capturing a junior boy and compelling their captor to guide them to the desired haven.

On Friday evening the faculty were entertained at the Britell home by Professor and Mrs. Britell Professor and Mrs. Coleman, Professor and Mrs. Lewis, Dr. and Mrs. House. The special feature of the evening was an account of her experiences in Europe after the opening of the war by Miss Edith Stocking. By the irony of fate Miss Stocking was in the Peace Palace at The Hague the day the war was declared. She talked with people in Belgium and France and found how very seriously the European people felt from the very beginning. The situation was vividly portrayed by the speaker who commanded the undivided interest of her audience. After the address games were indulged in and a two-course luncheon was served.

DAIRY WISDOM.

Milk should be kept in a clean house. No other place is fit for a human food that is so susceptible to outside influences.

The man who has a standard in his dairy, the man who has set a figure toward which his cows must approach in their productive capacity, is the man who will go furthest in dairying.

It is unwise to manipulate a cow's udder or to milk her before calving.

In the properly equipped home dairy the amount and the quality of butter from a given amount of milk are ahead of the creamery-made article.

Soft, white butter comes from hot cream.

Have salt where the cow can get it every day.

Palatability is an important feature of good dairy rations.

THE SMALL COST OF PASTEURIZING MILK

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

With a properly designed and properly operated plant the average cost of pasteurizing milk is $0.00313 a gallon and of cream $0.00334 a gallon, according to tests recently conducted by the United States department of agriculture and so reported in bulletin 85. These tests also show that the "flash" process, by which milk is raised to 105 degrees F. and kept there for a moment only, is more expensive than the "holder" process, in which milk is maintained for thirty minutes at a temperature of 135 to 145 degrees. The "holder" process requires 17 per cent less heat than the other, and in addition there is a saving on the expense of cooling. For hygienic reasons also the department recommends the "holder" process.

Many milk plants and creameries, it was found, do not attempt to make any use of the latent heat in the exhaust steam from their engines and steam-driven auxiliaries. This heat would be sufficient in many cases for all the pasteurizing done in the plants if it were properly utilized instead of being permitted to go to waste. When exhaust steam is used it is calculated that for every 400 pounds of milk pasteurized per hour with it, one horsepower is taken from the boiler load, with a consequent saving in fuel cost. Another common source of waste was found to be the faulty arrangement of apparatus and leaky piping. The loss from these causes may run as high as 30 per cent of all the heat required, a loss that can be reduced to negligible proportions by proper arrangement. The use of the regenerator, in particular, by which a large portion of the heat in the pasteurized milk is transferred to the raw product, is also an important factor in securing maximum economy.

Guernsey cows are much in favor for their ability to produce cream and butter economically. This breed is said to rank lowest in cost of feed to produce a pound of butter fat and in cost of maintenance for a year. The Guernsey cow is well proportioned, and it is unusual to see one coarsely built. The udder of the Guernsey is usually well developed and the teats large and shapely. For flavor of butter makers of the Guernsey cow say she is unsurpassed. The picture shows a pure bred Guernsey.

In considering the cost of pasteurizing the investigators estimated the life of the necessary apparatus at four years, and the annual depreciation, in consequence, was figured at 25 per cent. This is due to the fact that the whole dairy apparatus must be taken apart after each operation in order to give it a thorough cleaning. This necessarily results in rough usage. The mechanical equipment, such as the engine, boiler, shafting, etc., has, on the other hand, been considered as depreciating at the rate of only 10 per cent per annum.

Indications of a Good Cow.

A cow with a bright eye is to be preferred to one with a dull appearance, says Farm and Fireside. She will tend to business more than the other. Also the one with large nostrils is to be preferred because the large nostrils indicate that she will always have a good supply of air to operate her lungs, and so her other bodily functions will be performed promptly and regularly. A good cow will have short legs, and they will be smooth and without extra meat.

The Dairy Croaker.

Sometimes you will find a man who advises you that the bottom is going to drop out of dairy farming. There are people who talk this way at all times and in all seasons. It need cause the thinking dairyman very little alarm.

"PREMIER"

CABINET

AT

ONLY $100.00

How It Happened

Mr. Wilson, who is at the head of a great chair manufacturing company in Pennsylvania, is the man said to make more artistic and original practical chair designs than any other man in this country if not in the world. He has become rich—or at least well off if not what would be termed rich—in this day and age. Fond of music it became his pastime to provide an instrument that would furnish melody without stint, and the result was a handsome piece of furniture which he was pleased to name the "Premier Cabinet Phonograph". Then to him came the idea of providing equal opportunity to others, and after carefully estimating the cost of manufacturing these machines he began their manufacture, and only last July were the first ones put on the market. They are so made that any make of disk record can be used, a decided advantage, and while sold at price of less than one-half that asked for similar instruments they are superior in tone, melody and harmony as well as workmanship and beauty.

As handsome in finish, as large, more practical than the $250 size of other makes . . .

On this phonograph you may use any disc record, and may thus bring to your home for your pleasure and the entertainment of your friends the world's masterpieces in all classes of music, for they are all given on records and on sale everywhere that lovers of music are found. This would make a Christmas present for the entire family and be enjoyed all the year.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Will of a Woman.

After the affair of the auto bandits—three of whom were killed—a full-fledged lull in the mystery had set in. If you're a sailor you know what kind of a lull I mean—blue-black clouds down the southwest horizon, the water crinkly, the booms wabbling. Suddenly a series of "accidents" began to happen to Norton. At first he did not give the matter much thought. The safe which fell almost at his feet and crashed through the sidewalk merely induced him to believe he was lucky. At another time an automobile came furiously around a corner while he was crossing the street, and only amazing agility saved him from bodily hurt. The car was out of sight when he thought to recall the number. Then came the jolt in the subway. Only a desperate grab by one of the guards saved him from being crushed to death. Even then he thought nothing. But when a box of cigarettes arrived and he tried one and found it strangely perfumed, and, upon further analysis, found it to contain a Javanese narcotic, a slow but sure death, he became wide awake enough. They were after him. He began to walk carefully, to keep in public places as often as he possibly could.

He was not really afraid of death, but he did abhor the thought of its coming up from behind. Except for the cigarettes they were all "accidents," he could not have proved anything before a jury of his intimate friends. He never entered an elevator without scrupulous care. He never passed under coverings over the sidewalks where construction was going on. Still, careful as he was, death confronted him once more. It was his habit to have his coffee and rolls—rarely ate anything more for his breakfast—set down outside his door every morning. The coffee, being in a silver thermos bottle, kept its heat for hours. When he took the stopper out and poured forth a cup it looked oddly black, discolored. It is quite probable that had there been no series of "accidents" he would have drunk a cup—and died in mortal agony. It contained bichloride of mercury.

Very quietly he set about to make inquiries. This was really becoming serious. In the kitchen downstairs nothing could be learned. The maid had set the thermos bottle before the door at 10:30. Norton had opened the door at 1:30—three hours after. The outlook was not the cheeriest. He knew perfectly well why all these things "happened," he had interfered with the plans of the scoundrels who were making every possible move to kidnap Florence Hargreave.

One afternoon he told Florence a visit. Of course he told her nothing. They had become secretly engaged the day after he had rescued her from the auto bandits. They were secretly engaged because Florence wanted it so. For once Jones suspected nothing. Why should he? He had troubles enough. As a matter of fact, Norton was afraid of him in the same sense as a boy is afraid of a policeman.

But on this day, when the time came, he accosted the butler and drew him into the pantry.

"Jones, they are after me now."

"You? Explain."

Norton briefly recounted the deliberate attempts against his life.

"You see, I'm not liar enough to say that I'm not worried. I am, devilishly worried. I'm not worth any ransom. I'm in the way, and they seem determined to put me out of it."

"To any other man I would say travel. But to you I say when you leave your rooms don't go where you first thought you would—that is, some usual haunt. They'll be everywhere, near your restaurants, your clubs, your office. You're a methodical young man; become erratic. Keep away from here for at least three days, but always call me up by telephone some time during the day. Never under any circumstance, unless I send for you, come here at night. Only one man now watches the house during the day, but five are prowling around after dark. They might have instructions to shoot you on sight. I can't spare you just at present, Mr. Norton. You've been a godsend; and if it seems that sometimes I did not trust you fully it was because I did not care to drag you in too deep."

Deep? Norton thought of Florence and smiled inwardly. Could anybody be in deeper than he was? Once it was on the tip of his tongue to confess his love for Florence, but the gravity of Jones' countenance was an obstacle to such a move; it did not invite it.

To be sure, Jones had no real authority to say what Florence should or should not do with her heart. Still, from all points of view, it was better to keep the affair under the rose till there came a more propitious hour in which to make the disclosure.

Love, in the midst of all these alarms! Sharp, desperate rogues on one side, millions on the other, and yet love could enter the scene serenely, like an actor who had missed his cue and came on too soon.

Oddly enough, there was no real love-making such as you often read about. A pressure of the hand, a glance from the eye, there was seldom anything more. Only once—that memorable day on the river road—had he kissed her. No word of love had been spoken on either side. In that wild moment all conventionalities had disappeared like smoke in the wind. There had been neither past nor future, only the present in which they knew that they loved. With her he was happy, for he had no time to plan over the future. Away from her he saw the inevitable barriers providing against the marriage between a poor young man and a very rich young woman. A man who has any respect for himself wants always to be on equal terms with his wife. It's the way this peculiar organization called Society has written down its rules. Doubtless a relic of the stone age, when Ab went out with his club to seek a wife and drag her by the hair to his den, there to care for her and to guard her with his life's blood. It is one of the few primitive sensations that remain to us, this wanting the female dependent upon the male. Perhaps this accounts for man's lack of interest on the suffragette question.

Only Susan suspected the true state of affairs, being a woman. Having had no real romance herself, she delighted in having a second-hand one, as you might say. She intercepted many a glance and pretended not to see the stolen hand pressures. The wedding was already full drawn in her mind's eye. These two young people should be married at Susan Farlow's when the roses were climbing up the sides of the house and the young robins were boldly trying their fuzzy wings. It struck her as rather strange, but she could not conjure up (at this wedding) more than two men besides the minister, the bridegroom, and the butler.

By forsaking his accustomed haunts, under the advice of Jones, the hidden warfare ceased temporarily. You can't very well kill a man when you don't know where to find him. He ate his breakfasts haphazardly, now here, now there. He received most of his assignments by telephone and wrote his stories and articles in his club, in the writing rooms of hotels, and in variously dispatched them to the office by messenger. The managing editor wanted to know what all this meant; but Norton declined to tell him.

It irked him to be forced to rearrange his daily life—his habits. It was a revolution against his ease, for he loved ease when he was not at work. He had the sensation of having been suddenly robbed of his home, of having been cast out into the streets. And on top of all this he had to go and fall in love!

There was no longer a shadow opposite the apartments of the Princess Perigoff. Braine came and went nightly without discovering any one. This rather worried him. It gave him the impression that the shadow had found out what he had been seeking and no longer needed to watch the coming and going of either himself or the Countess Perigoff.

"Olga, it looks as if we were at the end of our rope," he said discouragedly.

"We have failed in all attempts so far. The devil watches over that girl."

"Or God," replied the countess gloomily. "In nearly every instance their success has been due to chance. Somehow I'm convinced that we've been wrong. We should have let Hargreave escape quietly, followed him, and made him fast when the right opportunity came. After a month or so his vigilance would have relaxed; he would have arrived at the belief that he had eluded us."

"Indeed!" ironically. "He wasn't vigilant all these years in which he did elude us. How about the child he never sought but guarded? Vigilance! He never was anything else all these seventeen years. The truth is, success has developed a coarseness in our methods. And now it is too late for finesse. We have tried every device we can think of; and there they are—the girl free, Norton unharmed, and the father as secure in his retreat as though he wore an invisible cloak. My head aches. I have ceased to be inventive."

"The two are in love with each other."

"Are you sure of that?"

"I have my eyes. But I begin to wonder."

"About what?"

"Whether or not Jones suspects me and is giving me rope to hang myself with. Not once have the police been called in and told what has really happened. They're totally at sea. And what has become of the man over the way?"

"By the Lord Harry!" exclaimed Braine, clapping his hands. "I believe I've solved that. We shot a man coming out of Hargreave's. Since then there's been no one across the way. One and the same man!"

"But that knowledge doesn't get us anywhere."

"No. You say they are in love?"

"Secretly. I don't believe the butler has an inkling of it. It is possible, however, that Susan has caught the trend of affairs. But, being rather romantic, she will in no wise interfere."

Braine smoked in silence. Presently a smile twisted his lips.

"You have thought of something?" she asked.

"You might try it," he said. "They have accepted your friendship; whether with ulterior purpose remains to be learned. She has been to your apartments two or three times to tea and always got home safely."

"No," she said determinedly. "Nothing shall happen here. I will not take the risk."

"Wait till I'm through. Break up the romance in such a way that the girl will bar Norton from the house. That's what we've been aiming at; to get rid of that meddling reporter. We've tried poisons. Try your kind."

"What do you mean?"

"Lies."

"Ah! I understand. You want me to win him away from her. It cannot be done."

"Pshaw! You have a bag full of tricks. You can easily manage to put him into an equivocal position out of which he cannot possibly squirm so far as the girl is concerned. A little melodrama, arranged for the benefit of Florence. Fall into Norton's arms at the right moment, or something like that."

"I suppose I could. But if I failed

"You're too damnably clever to fall in your own particular work. Something has got to be done to keep those two apart. I've often thought of raiding the house boldly and carrying off the whole family, Susan and all. But a wholesale affair like that would be too noisy. Think it over, Olga; we have gone too far back to back now. There's always Russia; and while I'm the boss over here they never cease to watch me. They'll make me answer for a failure like this."

She eyed him speculatively. "You have money?"

"O, the money doesn't matter. It's the game. It's the game of playing fast and loose with society, of pilfering with it with one hand and making it kow-tow with the other. It's the sport of the thing. What was your thought?"

"We could go away together, to South America."

"And tire of each other within a month," he retorted shrewdly. "No; we are in the same boat. We could not live but for this never ending excitement. And, more than that, we never could get far enough away from the long arm of the First Ten. We'll have to stick it out here. Can't you see?"

"Yes, I can see."

But in her heart she knew that she would have lived in a hut with this man till the end of her days. She abhorred the life, though she never, by the slightest word, let him become aware of it. There was always that abiding fear that at the first sign of weakness he would desert her. And she was wise in her deductions. Braine was loyal to her because she held his interest. Once that failed, he would be off and away.

The next afternoon the countess, having matured her plans against the happiness of the young girl who trusted her, drew up before the Hargreave place and alighted. Her welcome was the same as ever, and this strengthened her confidence.

The countess was always gesticulating. Her hands fluttered to emphasize her words. And the beautiful diamond solitaire caught the girl's eye. She seized the hand. Having an affair of her own, it was natural that she should be interested in that of her friend.

"I never saw that ring before."

"A gift of yesterday." The countess assumed a shy air which would have deceived St. Anthony. She twisted the ring on her finger.

"Tell me!" cried Florence. "You are engaged?"

"Mercy, no!"

"Is he rich?"

"No. Money should not matter when your heart is involved."

As this thought was in accord with her own, Florence nodded her head sagely.

"It is nothing serious. Just a fancy. I shall never marry again. Men are gay deceivers; they always have been and always will be. Perhaps I'm a bit wicked; but I rather like to prove my theory that all men are weak. If I had a daughter I'd rather have her be an old man's darling than a young man's drudge. I distrust every man I know. I came to ask you and Susan to go to the opera with me tonight. You will come to my apartments first. You will come?"

"To be sure we will!"

"Simple little fool!" thought the Russian on the way home. "She shall see."

"I believe the countess is engaged to be married," said Florence to Jones.

"Indeed, miss?"

"Yes. I couldn't get anything definite out of her, but she had a beautiful ring on her finger. She wants Susan and me to go to the opera with her tonight. Will that be all right?"

Jones gazed abstractedly at the rug. Whenever a problem bothered him he seemed to find the solution in the delicate patterns of the Persian rugs. Florence nodded. "I see no reason why I should not go. Only, watch me. I believe the countess is engaged to be married," said Florence to Jones.

am at least mistress of my heart; and no one shall dictate to me whom I shall or shall not marry. I love Mr. Norton and he loves me, knowing that I may not be an heiress after all. And some day I shall marry him."

Jones bowed. This seemed to appear final to him, and nothing more was to be said.

Norton did not return to his rooms till seven. He found the telephone call and also a note in a handwriting unfamiliar. He tore off the envelope and found the contents to be from the Countess Perigoff.

"Call at eight tonight," he read. "I have an important news story for you. Tell no one, as I cannot be involved in the case. Cordially, Olga, Countess Perigoff."

Humph! Norton twiddled the note in his fingers and at length rolled it into a ball and threw it into the waste basket. He, too, made a mistake; he should have kept that note. He dressed, dined, and hurried off to the apartments of the countess.

He arrived ten minutes before Florence and Susan.

And Jones did some rapid telephoning.

"How long, how long!" the butler murmured. How long would this strange combat last? The strain was terrible. He slept but little during the nights, for his ears were always waiting for sounds. He had cast the chest into the sea, and it would take a dozen expert divers to locate it. And now, atop of all these worries, the child must fall in love with the first comer! It was heart-breaking. Norton, so far as he had learned, was cool and brave, honest and reliable in a pinch; but as the husband of Stanley Hargreave's daughter, that was altogether a different matter. And he must devise some means of putting a stop to it, but—

But he was saved that trouble. Mongoose and cobra, that was the game being played; the cunning of the one against the deadly venom of the other. If he forced matters he would only lay himself open to the strike of the snake. He must have patience. Gradually they were breaking the organization, lopping off a branch here and there, but the peace of the future depended upon getting a grip on the spine of the cobra himself.

The trick was simple. The countess had news; trust her for that. She exhibited a cablegram, dated at Gibraltar, in which the British authorities stated definitely that no such person as William Orts, aviator, had arrived at Gibraltar. And then, as he rose, she rose also and gently precipitated herself into his arms, just at the moment Florence appeared in the doorway.

Very simple, indeed. When a woman falls toward a man there is nothing for him to do but extend his arms to prevent her from falling. Outwardly, however, the eye which saw only the picture and comprehended not the cause, it had all the hallmarks of an affectionate embrace.

Florence stood perfectly still for a moment, then turned away.

"I beg your pardon," said the countess, but a sudden fainting spell seized me. My heart is a bit weak."

"Don't mention it," replied the gallant Norton. He was as innocent as a babe as to what had really taken place.

Florence went back home. She wrote a brief note to Norton and enclosed the ring which she had secretly worn attached to a little chain around her neck.

When Norton came the next day he refused to see him. It was all over. She never wished to see him again.

"He says there has been some cruel mistake," said Jones.

"I saw him with the countess in his arms. I do not see any cruel mistake in that. I saw him. Tell him so. And add that I never wish to see him again."

Then she ran swiftly to her room, where she broke down and cried bitterly and would not be comforted by Susan.

"In heaven's name, what has happened?" demanded the frantic lover, "what has happened?"

"The comedy of the whole affair lay in the fact that neither of the two suspected the countess, who consoled them both."

Statement having been made by the Lincoln Journal that "the gang" in Omaha, controlling the Third ward made notorious by Tom Dennison et al and the Tenth ward, the home of more or less distinguished County Commissioner "Johnny" Lynch, supported Gov. Morehead at the primary election, the Omaha World-Herald presents the figures of the recent primary election in these notorious wards in Omaha. In each of these wards there were many more republican votes than democratic votes cast at the primary election, and, while Kemp received more votes than Howell for the republican nomination for governor in these wards, Howell received more votes there than Morehead. Gov. Morehead is not popular with the "gang" in Omaha. He appointed an election commissioner who is not in sympathy with them. And Howell is on the same party ticket that various members of "the gang" are on. "Johnny" Lynch is republican nominee for re-election as county commissioner. His ward gave Howell a majority at the primary election—Butler County Press.

Among the Churches of Wayne

Presbyterian Church

Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor.

Next Sunday will be rally day Sunday. There will be special services held both morning and evening. In the morning the combined services of the church and Sunday school will begin at 11:00 o'clock, and a special program will be given, as published elsewhere. In the evening the C. E. society will also have a special rally day service, beginning at 6:30. The evening service will begin at 7:30, and the subject of the rally day sermon will be "The Mobilization of the Army of the Lord."

The Junior C. E. society meets every Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at the church. The superintendent, Mrs. C. Clasen, is assisted by several of the members of the Senior C. E., who have undertaken this special service in connection with their efficiency campaign.

Mr. W. H. Gildersleeve was elected as delegate to the meeting of Presbytery next week at Madison, and Mr. D. Cunningham was chosen as the alternate delegate, at the Congregational meeting held last Sunday morning in the church.

The meeting of the Synod of Nebraska will be held next week at Madison in the beautiful new Presbyterian church. Rev. Alexander Corkey, the moderator of the Synod, will preach the opening sermon. In addition to the regular program of this annual meeting, which reviews the work of the churches in Nebraska for the past year, plans will be made for a state-wide aggressive campaign in the interests of evangelism, and efforts will be made to enlist the membership of every Presbyterian church in the state in personal work for an increase of believers in Christ. Several prominent church workers from different parts of the country will be in attendance.

Beginning with the rally day service next Sunday evening, the pastor will deliver a series of evening sermons on evangelistic topics, including "Salvation," "Religion and Christianity," "Faith," "The Mission of Christ," "The End of Sin," "The Future Judgment," and "Eternal Life."

Where do you spend Sunday evening? There is good music and a cordial welcome awaiting you at 7:30 o'clock at the Presbyterian church. Here you can meet with friends, and Dr. Corkey, the pastor, will bring you the inspiration of the Christian faith in a special series of evangelistic sermons, every one of them full of good news for all who hear, inspiring you for the rest of the week. Try it Sunday night.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church

(Rev. Blessing, Pastor.)

Sunday School every Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock. The subject of the lesson will be, "In the Garden of Gethsemane", Mark 14:32-42.

Regular divine worship every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and in the evening at 7:45. The subject of the morning sermon will be, "The New Man," Eph. 4:22-24. With the great advancement of the present century, the "savage" has been transformed. His war club has been put aside; his bow and arrow has been broken into pieces, and now he moves in peaceful and educated society, a changed individual, a new man. But with the rapid advance in civilization, and the making of new men intellectually there has been a sad neglect of making new men morally and spiritually.

The subject of the evening sermon will be, "A Noble Life Broken," 2 Samuel 12:9.

Luther League at 6:45, p. m. The subject will be, "Who Is on the Right Hand of God," 1 Peter 3:22. The leader will be Miss Viola Wills.

The Ladies Aid society will meet on Thursday, October 22.

All who wish to enter the catechetical class, please speak to the pastor.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to worship with us.

Baptist Church

Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor

This week the Baptists held one of the largest and best state conventions in its history at the Calvary Baptist church, Omaha.

Every session was characterized by a deep spirit of earnestness and a note of enthusiasm and confidence. The reports were encouraging and very gratifying. The financial aspect of the work gave reason for rejoicing. Those who were privileged to attend this gathering will feel the uplift from the meetings for years.

Sunday morning the pastor will report some important aspects of the convention. He will try to bring back some of the impressions and messages that have come to him.

The young people meet for their session at 6:30 Sunday evening. Some reports to the society from the convention will be made.

A Get-To-Gather Dinner

At the meeting of the executive committee of the Commercial club Monday evening it was decided to arrange for a little feed in the near future to which members and those who should be members might meet and eat together and discuss various matters of mutual interest. It is not the intention of the committee to confine their invitations to members of the club, nor to the business men of the city alone, but to any or all who wish to spend a social hour in a get-together spirit bad enough to come and get acquainted with each other and exchange ideas as to our most urgent needs, at the most modest price that can be obtained from some one of our various eating houses.

The secretary read letters from a number of places where they have successful clubs to learn of the plans followed there, and several good plans were suggested. Among them was what is called the "Budget" system, under which the business men and others interested in promoting the interests of a place subscribe in one lump sum, to be paid quarterly or as agreed upon which is to relieve them from being solicited for any enterprise of the amusement or booster kind for any purpose for the year.

This lump sum is then at the disposal of the club, and they knowing what they have to spend can arrange for the best attraction or use of the fund. It is said to be very satisfactory where tried, both to those who contribute and to the members in charge of the distribution. Last season Wayne paid fully $3,000 to different things calculated to help the place, and it was solicited by different committees at different times for different purposes and no one in business had much idea of what he was going to be asked to contribute in the whole, nor did the different interests for which the contributions were asked have any basis of estimating the sum they might be enabled to secure, it depending upon the perseverance of the committee and the feelings of the one solicited when approached, and how the proposition happened to appeal to him. We believe that better results could be obtained by following a system.

The renting of permanent headquarters and fitting up rooms for public use was considered, and a committee is investigating that part of the work.

The Commissioner Question Again

In Madison county they are having trouble over the question of when the term of the county commissioner expires, and the county clerk, acting under instruction of the county attorney has not placed any of the names of candidates for that office on the primary ballot in one district, the attorney holding that the office in that district would not be vacant. We thought the same question was fought out in Cedar county last year in the Carroll case. In this county that case was considered as a test case and the county clerk accepted the filings and placed the names on the primary ballot, so if the contest comes in this county it will naturally come after election, should the Madison county case be decided differently from the one on Cedar county.

It seems that there has been another decision of a case involving practically the same question, so that really the court is on both sides of the question, as it appears to the layman to have been on other occasions and other cases.

PLANS OF DEBATING LEAGUE

High Schools of Nebraska Line Up to Go Into Oratorical Arena.

Lincoln, Oct. 12.—With still another large increase in membership, the Nebraska High School Debating League is beginning its eighth year's work. Organized in 1908 by Professor M. M. Fogg, professor of rhetoric at the University of Nebraska, at the request of schoolmen of the state, the membership started with thirty schools. Last year sixty-nine of the largest schools participated in the work, the object of which is, as stated in the constitution, "the promotion of the science of argumentation (written or oral) and the art of debate among the students of the secondary schools of Nebraska."

Sixty debates were held last year from January to May, ending with the state debate at the university on high school fete day in May, when twelve representatives of the twelve district championship schools competed, first honors going to Paul Stowell of University Place, second to M. D. Nolan of Alliance and third to Emerson Winter of Wymore.

Thirteen new applications for membership have already been received.

Earlier than usual this fall, as soon as the exact membership is determined, the schools in each district will be paired for the first series of debates.

The question of government ownership of railroads was selected by the league last May for study and discussion this year.

STATE VISITED BY A FROST

Snow Covers Western Part of Nebraska and Wyoming.

Omaha, Oct. 13.—While eastern Nebraska has not been visited by frost so far this fall, the western part of the state experienced a touch of real winter.

Along the Northwestern there was snow all the way from Long Pine, Neb., through to Lander, Wyo., with temperatures of from 28 to 32 degrees above zero.

The Burlington reports snow at Crawford, Alliance and Belmont, Neb., and over the Wyoming and Colorado divisions. Freezing weather is reported in the western part of Nebraska.

Along the Union Pacific there was a steady fall of snow from Sherman, Wyo., most of the way to Ogden.

Crop reports coming to the railroads indicate that in all portions of Nebraska, except the extreme western section, the seeding of winter wheat has been finished.

Drifkorn, when arrested, was desperate and it was only after the sheriff had him covered that he surrendered.

Horse Trader Commits Suicide.

Hastings, Neb., Oct. 13.—Charles Crawford, an itinerant horse trader of Emporia, Kan., committed suicide here in a little frame house near Chautauque park by shooting himself in the head. Stopping from the door of the little house, Crawford pulled his revolver and said: "I'll show you what a good man can do." A report followed and he dropped dead. A bottle of poison was found on his person.

Polzkil Charged With Murder.

Stapleton, Neb., Oct. 12.—County Judge Hughes at Gaudy, before whom the preliminary trial of Frank E. Polzkil was held, in which Polzkil was charged with premeditated murder of W. W. Thomas on the evening of Sept. 24, on the latter's farm, seven miles southwest of here, held the defendant to the district court without bail.

Omaha Loses Dollar Gas Case.

Whether Dawson County Will Get Structures Depends on Court.

HENRY MYERS GETS STATE JOB

State Auditor Howard Appoints an Omaha Man to Position of Examiner of County Treasurers—Secretary Allen Is Ill.

Lincoln, Oct. 13.—Whether Dawson county will get two new bridges across the Platte river, one at Lexington and the other at Overton, will depend upon a decision of the district court of Dawson county, James Radcliffe of that county having made application to the court for a restraining order to prevent the contractors from erecting the structures.

Radcliffe sets out in his application for the restraining order that Dawson county has already exceeded its limit prescribed by law in which a levy can be made for the building of bridges and also that in the letting of the contract only a minority of the county board signed the same. There are seven members of the board and it is claimed that only three signed the contract for the two bridges.

Under the state-aid bridge law the state pays one-half of the expense of building bridges across the Platte river and in the restraining order State Engineer D. D. Price and the irrigation board of the state are made parties to the suit. Deputy Attorney General Ayers has gone to Lexington to appear for the state when the case comes up today.

Rural School Conditions.

Edith A. Lathrop, inspector of rural schools, has made her report to the state superintendent of the schools under her supervision and shows that of the 10,040 pupils competing in the ninety-three rural schools of the state under the rural high school act, completing the eighth grade, 4,495 are boys and 5,545 are girls. The total number coming from towns, villages and parochial schools is 4,360.

In the ninety-three schools, the individual highest rank was given to thirty-one rural schools and fifty-three town schools, with one appearing the same and eighty not reporting. In class ranking, twenty-one rural schools appeared first and fifty-three town schools first, fourteen being the same and five not reporting. There were 7,161 pupils who completed the eighth grade in 1913, against 10,040 in 1914. Those who completed the eighth grade last year and attended high school numbered 4,042.

Railway Dinnage Hearing.

A hearing was held before the state railway commission on application of the Union Pacific railway company and the trans-Missouri freight bureau, which includes all of the roads covering Nebraska, for a cancellation of the 500-pound dinnage rate. This is an allowance of 500 pounds which the railroads have allowed on material used for keeping machinery and other freight from moving while on the cars, such as planks, timber and cleats placed to keep the trucks and machines and the like in their place.

Myers Given State Place.

State Auditor W. B. Howard appointed Henry P. Myers of Omaha to the position of examiner of county treasurers to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George Faltrecht last week. Mr. Myers was for seven years connected with the auditing department of the Union Pacific railway and was two years chairman of the Republican county committee of Douglas county and three years its secretary.

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Cattle Slow and Steady to Ten Cents Lower.

HOGS TEN LOWER, CLOSE SLOW

Fat Sheep and Feeders Generally Steady and Fairly Active—Fat Lambs Open Steady, Closing a Little Weak—Feeders in Good Demand.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Oct. 13.—Cattle receipts were quite large today, about 8,300 head. Good grass beef was close to steady, but other grades were lower, so that the general market might be summed up as slow, steady to ten lower than Monday. There were a few tidy yearlings good enough to bring $10. Cows and heifers on the killing order were slow and weak to as much as 10c lower. On the other hand, canner cows were in good demand at about steady prices. A few of the best feeders sold at steady prices, but the general market was slow and weak to fully 10c lower, with common to medium grades very hard to move, owing to a lack of demand for that kind.

Cattle quotations: Good to choice beefees, $9.50@10.50; fair to good beefees, $8.50@9.50; common to fair beefees, $7.75@8.50; good to choice heifers, $6.50@7.55; good to choice cows, $6.00@6.75; fair to good cows, $5.50@6.00; canners and cutters, $4.00@5.25; veal calves, $7.75@10.25; bulls, $lags, etc., $5.25@7.00; prime feeding steers, $8.20@8.40; good to choice feeders, $7.50@8.10; fair to good feeders, $6.75@7.25; common to fair feeders, $6.00@6.60; stock heifers, $5.50@6.75; stock cows, $4.50@6.00; stock calves, $6.50@8.25; choice to prime beefees, $8.10@8.50; good to choice range beefees, $7.50@8.10; fair to good range beefees, $6.80@7.40; common to fair beefees, $6.00@6.75.

Receipts of hogs amounted to 5,500 head. The market was slow and fully 10c lower. Shipping hogs were unevenly lower, and it was the general opinion that they showed as much decline as other grades. Tops, selling at $7.55, are a dime off. Bulk of the sales was made at $7.25@7.40, the big strings moving at $7.30@7.55.

Receipts of sheep and lambs today totaled 40,000 head. Prices in the main were fully steady. Fat lambs closed a little weak. The demand for all classes of feeder offerings continued to hold up extremely well for this time of the year and practically anything on the feeder order was picked up as soon as sorted. The best grades of strictly feeder lambs are quotable at $6.85@7.00, medium kinds at $6.00@6.85 and common and light stuff at $6.00@6.40. Some feeder ewes sold at $4.25. Good feeder ewes can be had at $3.90@4.25 and the fair to good grades at $3.35@3.90. Feeder wethers and yearlings, though much sought after by feeder buyers, are still scarce.

Quotations on range sheep and lambs: Lambs, good to choice, $7.40@7.70; lambs, fair to good, $7.10@7.40; lambs, feeders, $6.00@7.15; yearlings, good to choice, $5.85@6.10; yearlings, fair to good, $5.60@5.85; yearlings, feeders, $5.40@5.90; wethers, good to choice, $5.25@5.60; wethers, fair to good, $5.10@5.25; wethers, feeders, $4.30@4.85; ewes, good to choice, $4.50@4.85; ewes, fair to good, $4.25@4.50; ewes, feeders, $3.50@4.15.

Suffrage Department

Under the Auspices of the Suffrage League of Wayne.)

The "Unanswerable Argument" Answered

It is asserted that "the average good American woman's indifference to woman suffrage" is an unanswerable argument against the movement.

If this be true there is an unanswerable argument against every good work and every reform movement of the present day, or of any past day, for it is a fact that "the average good American woman," and her brother, "the average good American man," are shamefully indifferent to the things that make for the public good.

A knowledge of sanitary science is a good thing. The average American woman living in a town without a drainage system will permit the cook to throw dish-water and kitchen garbage into the backyard, and the average American man, unless deterred by law, does not hesitate to expectorate on the public pavement and the floors of public buildings. Is this indifference to sanitary precautions an unanswerable argument against sanitary science?

The men and women who are working to abolish child labor encounter a vast indifference to this object on the part of legislatures and the people at large. Is this indifference an unanswerable argument in favor of child labor?

Seventy-five years ago women did not go to college. When the agitation for the higher education of woman began the indifference of the average American citizen arrayed itself against education for women. Was this indifference an unanswerable argument in favor of illiteracy for women?

There was a time when a married woman could not make a will and a married woman's wages belonged to her husband. So indifferent were the average men and women to this injustice that it was years before married women obtained property rights. Was this indifference an unanswerable argument against granting woman the right to dispose of her own possessions by will and to collect and spend the wages earned by her own toil?

But why go farther in citing parallel cases? There are two classes of people in the world. In the women of one class a keen sense of justice is developed. In the other class the sense of justice is so undeveloped that women belonging to this do not object to a condition of disfranchisement that reduces them to the political level of the idiot, the lunatic, the felon, the minor and the illiterate negro of the South.

This large class of women is well described as "average," and by mere force of numbers these average women may continue for a long while to have things their own way. But human progress means the setting aside of the opinions and wishes of average people, and in the long run the world is governed by the small first class, the men and women who love justice, who know what justice is, and who by this love and knowledge, are raised above the "average."—By Mrs. Lida Calvert Obenchain in The Woman's Journal.

Farmers' Organizations
While the doctor says it was not written for publication, we are taking the liberty this week of publishing a letter from Doctor Biller, formerly of this county, but now of California. It is valuable.

It shows the results of organization and co-operation in agriculture. It is not a national "farmers union" they have out there, but an association of business men farmers for definite objects. And they get what they go after.

Many little fellows think that an organization of farmers will hurt the community, the towns and their little businesses. False alarm, boys. What helps one man or class of men in a community helps the whole community.

Witness—Other parts of the United States grow fine fruits; and many more localities are capable of producing them that do not. In thousands of orchards in the east and south hundreds of thousands of bushels of fine fruit annually rot on the ground or fed to hogs, while in the communities hundreds of thousands of people would enjoy those fruits and be willing to pay good prices for them. The producers of those fruits are not organized. They have no way of marketing their apples, oranges, nuts or whatever, except to sell a few bushels to the local merchant, who probably loses on what he does buy. The communities are not especially prosperous. The towns are small. But out west they have organized. They hire experts to observe methods of cultivation, how to combat diseases, others to find markets for the goods, some even to go to Europe and study conditions and methods. They pull together. Results? They have turned a wilderness of furtile dust and sagebrush into the most beautiful garden spot of the world. Here are wonderful roads, trolley lines, railroads and a settlement so thick that it is almost a continuous city. Here are magnificent schools, colleges, manufacturing enterprises, centers of wealth and culture. Has it hurt anyone? It has not. The prosperity of the producer has made prosperous the whole community.

Will a successful organization of farmers in the vicinity of Hartington hurt Hartington and my little business? It is more likely to make Hartington a city and the Cedar County News a daily. The only reason it might fail to do so would be a lack of ability on the part of the proprietor to grow with the community. We're willing to take a chance on it anyway. How about you?—Hartington News.

of stick, appearance, workmanship, anything you please.

Take five—or ten—Safe Home matches, and an equal number of matches of any other brand.

Light one of the Safe Home matches. See how evenly it burns. See? Shake it! It still burns. "Flick" it with your finger. It does not spark. It does not sputter. The head does not fly off. Let it burn awhile until the stick catches. Blow it out! See? It is OUT and it stays out. There is no dangerous charcoal after-glow. The stick is impregnated.

Now light one of the other matches. Shake it! "Flick" it with your finger. Blow it out! Well—?

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

A Plea For Correctly Designating Places and Celebrities.

Frederick Upham Adams objects in his "Conquest of the Tropics" to the name usually given to the discoverer of America.

Speaking of the immortal Columbus, why do we call him by that name? He never bore while living any such name. He was born of the Italian family of "Colombo." When he entered the Spanish service he changed his name to "Cristobal Colon." And we insist on calling him "Columbus."

In Spain, Mexico, Central America and all Spanish speaking countries the natives never heard of the "United States." They translate it into "Estados Unidos," and they have as much right to call it that as we have to call Espana by the title of "Spain" or Roma by the title of "Rome."

I hold that we should call countries and cities and celebrities by their true names, and not stick to the clumsy derivations which have lazily been substituted. There is no such city as "Vienna" unless it happens to be some village in the United States. The great Austrian capital is named "Wien," and only those who speak the English language call it anything else. There is no such city as "Brussels," but the beautiful capital of Belgium is really named "Bruxelles."

It is time that we called the great discoverer by the name under which he achieved immortal fame, Cristobal Colon. We would not like it if the Russians insisted that the father of our country was named "Washeski Vich."

Are You Wearing Glasses?

Are They Absolutely the CORRECT Thing?

You're not sure. Well, it is possible to have them PERFECT. So you owe it to yourself to make sure. You may see well now, but perhaps you could see BETTER with new glasses. Give me a trial and I will convince you that I can fit you with correct glasses. The reason that I can is that I do nothing but test eyes and make glasses and have no side lines to divide my time with. Repairing glasses of all kinds done.
