

A Close Call for Guy Auker

Saturday afternoon Guy Auker took a swift ride for two blocks up Main street, but luckily escaped alive and not seriously hurt, and no one else was hurt though the street was crowded at the time with people and vehicles. When near the depot an engine exhausting started the horse he was driving, a rather spirited animal, but easily managed when all went right. But with the start of the engine the bit came apart in her mouth, having evidently broken before, and with nothing to restrain the animal made good time up the street until the buggy struck an automobile near the middle of the block between second and third street. The buggy and harness were somewhat wrecked and the young man thrown out, striking first on his feet, spraining an ankle quite badly, then pitching forward onto his face sustaining and bruising it quite badly. He is able to be out again, but has the appearance of an European or some of them—others are worse off than he is, he thinks. The car struck belonged to some one here from Stanton, and it was not damaged beyond a badly bent fender; but the owner is reported to have said, never mind my car, how is the boy?

Rev. Corkey Undergoes Operation

Tuesday Rev. Alexander Corkey was taken to Sioux City where he at once underwent an operation for appendicitis at the St. Joseph hospital. He had not been well for several weeks, but was too busy to give up to his trouble, and was ill at the Sunday evening service. Tuesday he became worse, and rapidly developed symptoms of appendicitis, trouble, and so it proved to be a serious case in which pus had already formed. Dr. Sibley was called from Sioux City, and it was his advice that no time be lost in getting relief. Accompanied by Drs. Hess and Sibley a start was made by automobile, Mrs. Corkey and Mr. and Mrs. F. Philleo accompanying them in another car. Rev. Corkey rallied well from the first effects of the operation, and according to latest reports is continuing to improve without any discouraging symptoms appearing, and it is thought that he will soon be past the danger point. Many are the friends here and elsewhere who wish him a speedy return to perfect health.

Death of Mrs. Thomas J. Caffey

Friday, October 16, 1914, Harriett L., wife of Thomas J. Caffey died at their home at Allen of cerebral hemorrhage at the age of 60 years. For a number of years they were residents of Wayne, and one son born here was given the name of his birthtown. Of her life history the Sioux City Journal gives the following:

Mrs. Caffey was born in Linn Grove, Ia., removing with her family to Fairview, when a girl. There she married Thomas J. Caffey in 1871. In 1898 they moved to Sioux City where they resided until Mr. Caffey's death in 1910. Surviving are six children, Orris J. Caffey, Leeds, Ia.; Mrs. C. E. Morgan, Milesville, S. D.; Mrs. Edward Wade, Wessington Springs, S. D.; Mrs. C. E. Mattison, Yankton, S. D.; F. Frank Caffey, Sioux City, and Wayne L. Caffey, of Allen. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at Allen. The body will be brought to Sioux City for burial in Graceland Park cemetery. Short services will be held from Graceland chapel at 3 o'clock.

Lindsay-Montgomery

Tuesday, October 20, 1914, at the home of A. Auker and wife, occurred the marriage of Mr. W. E. Lindsay and Mrs. Emma Montgomery. The bride and groom are both well and favorably known in this county, where they will continue to make their home. They had the pleasure of entertaining a party of about seventy guests, who gathered at their country home to congratulate them Tuesday evening.

A Suffrage Auto Party Coming

Friday evening a party of suffrage advocates are scheduled to visit Wayne and speak on the street at 7:30. The speakers are John L. Kennedy, Omaha, and Mrs. Maud McCreery from Wisconsin. The invitation is for all to come. The party is routed to come from Pilger here.

Boys Plead Guilty to Assault

The young men mentioned last week being connected with the disturbance at the junior-senior entertainment were before Judge Britton Tuesday and plead guilty to assault and were given fines from $1.00 to $15.00 each. The judge called for some evidence before giving his verdict and then named the sum he thought just for each one.

The Democrat has been criticised and accused of not being consistent in giving the names of those under arrest last week and omitting the names of several others a few weeks before, who were convicted of a similar offense. We presume that the criticism is just for it is sometimes hard to draw a line as to what is best to publish of such pranks. As the two cases were presented to us, one appeared much more the nature of a willful and premeditated attack than the other. Possibly the better way will be to leave it to the court and publish the cases as they occur. That is perhaps the proper thing to do, in justice to the readers who take a paper to get the news. The boys in both cases appear to think of the disgrace to their folks in having their names mentioned in connection with the court proceedings. The disgrace came when they violated the law, and concealing it from the general public made the disgrace none the less though fewer knew of it. In the future it will be the policy of this paper to give a fair account of similar affairs that get into court with the names of plaintiffs and defendants, and the best way to avoid the disgrace for friends near and dear to you will be to keep near enough right not to be brought into court. We have no favorites to shield—no enemies to punish, but wish to do that which is best to serve the public and uphold law and order in the community.

School Notes

Prepared by John R. Massie, Senior

The death of Don Wadsworth is deeply felt by his little classmates. The eighth grade girls are beginning crocheted slippers using the ridge stitch.

Mrs. Burrett Wright has charge of the eighth grade, while Miss Pearl Sewell is campaigning.

Much interest is shown in the music work. Attention is being paid to Scotch melodies this week.

The perfect punctuality of the second grade has been marred this week by the first tardy marks this year.

Recent visitors were: Miss Katherine Lewis, Mrs. Wm. Rickabaugh, Mrs. A. J. Ludwigson, Mrs. H. J. Luders, Mrs. Hanson and Mrs. Dewey.

The pupils of the beginning class in domestic science are finishing their special topics in research work. The advanced class is working with batters this week.

The football boys entertained the high school at a wiener roast Monday evening. The crowd was chaperoned by the high school faculty. All report an enjoyable evening.

Dr. Alexander Corkey gave a speech to the high school last Friday. He spoke of his vacation experiences, telling of historical places he visited. His speech was thoroughly enjoyed.

The football game Saturday on the Normal gridiron between the Wayne high school and the Stanton high school was a victory for Wayne. The score being 40-0. The boys showed good team work. Running a strong interference was the main feature.

The Juniors gave the following program Thursday morning: A reading from Riley by Helena Baker, a violin solo by Elizabeth Mines, autumn poems by Olive Huse, a vocal solo by Edith White, and a reading, "Reformed love and a few Other Subjects" by Nat Will, by Ralph Ingham.

The arts and crafts classes are doing nicely. The beginners have their first design almost completed. The advanced pupils are working on conventionalized insect forms to be applied to book covers. Frances Oman is doing beautiful work on a card case. She is using a wild rose design. In the basketry work the technique is improving.

Foot Ball Game Monday

Wayne Normal vs. Spalding College, at Normal field, Monday, October 26, at 4 p. m.

Is It Worth Two Cents?

We mean this copy of the Democrat. We believe that it is worth much more than that each and every week—yet we are making a special offer for a short time which means that you may secure the paper at a less rate than two cents a week. Why? We want you to try it and learn of its value. There is a value in knowing that each week the important news from your county-seat will be brought to your door. There is a value in knowing that each week you will be told of the best bargains offered by the merchants of your town—one of the best if not the best in northeastern Nebraska. It means a saving in your buying if you will but watch the advertising columns of this paper for a year of many times the cost of the paper.

We are this week sending samples to a list of those whom we think should be interested in the news and advertising of Wayne, and offering them the opportunity to take advantage of our special offer of only

$1.00 FOR THE DEMOCRAT UNTIL JANUARY, 1916

Fourteen Full Months

Respectfully yours,

GARDNER & WADE.

Social Notes

Mrs. S. A. Lutgen entertained at Kensington Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in honor of high school and college teachers, twenty guests were present. Miss Stocking gave her experiences in the war zone. The house was beautifully decorated in autumn leaves and flowers. Each lady was given leaves, ferns and a model to make a hat. When all were made they went into the yard where their pictures were taken, and each were given one as a souvenir, then they went into the house where they found places at a table decorated in red and yellow. A fruit centerpiece, place cards and napkins were autumn leaves. A delicious four-course luncheon was served. During the first course Mrs. Ed Johnson gave several vocal selections. It was an enjoyable occasion.

The Shakespeare club met Tuesday evening with Miss Rachel Fairchild at the T. B. Heckert home. Officers for the year were elected as follows: Miss Rachel Fairchild, president; Miss Lillian Jewell, secretary-treasurer. Current history will be studied instead of any Shakespearean drama, for it is the unanimous opinion of the club members that in such stirring times as these history in the making is of more absorbing interest than any classic could possibly be. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Nettie Craven, November 3.

The Pleasant Valley club met with Mrs. Wm. Cunningham, October 16th. The lesson was on Home Sanitation with Mrs. Graves as leader. Mrs. Cunningham told of a visit to the Whitehouse which was enjoyed by all present. The ladies are getting up a fruit donation for the Florence Clintenton home at Sioux City. After a social hour a two-course luncheon was served by the hostess. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ash in November.

The Monday club met with Mrs. Carhart. Nine members were present. Mesdames, Main and Marsteller gave a lesson in six kinds of pottage—Pewabic, Lasante, Rookwood, Leco, Van Briggie, Robinan. The hostess served a delicious two-course luncheon.

The Acme club met with Mrs. I. H. Britell last Monday. The lesson was on Ancient Egypt. Mrs. S. R. Theobald read a paper on Rulers Development and Religion. Mrs. Mines also read one on Sphinx and Pyramids. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Crawford.

Tuesday evening a number of the young people of the Baptist church, after a hay rack ride around the country, went to the home of J. H. Rimel and wife where a most enjoyable hour was spent in a "wienie" roast, toasting marshmallows and playing games.

At her home in this city today Mrs. A. D. Erickson is entertaining a party of Pender ladies, the club of the Past Noble Grands of the Pender Rebecka lodge.

The U. D. club met with Mrs. Ray Reynolds Monday. The lesson was Bayview Course on South America.

The Minerva Club met Monday afternoon at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McEachen, where after a brief business session, the lesson on "Suggestiveness" from the second chapter of Social Psychology was read by Mrs. J. T. House. The pleasure of the occasion greatly enhances by the delightful weather, the pleasant ride to and from the home and a delicious two-course luncheon served by the Mrs. McEachen.

Mrs. A. C. Dean entertained the Ladies Aid society of the Grace church last Thursday at Kensington. A picnic dinner was served and all reported a good time.

A Republican Meeting

Mr. Frank E. Edgerton made a short political talk on the street of this place Wednesday afternoon. He started in to prove that the new tariff law had destroyed the markets for our farm products without in the least lowering the high cost of living—but he did not say who got the benefit that must of necessity have been to some one if the producer received less and the consumer got it no cheaper. It is the same old tariff talk, that a lower tariff makes produce worth and bring less and stops work on the one hand while on the other hand the consumer gets nothing for less money. The talk won't hold good. If the consumer has to pay as much as ever, tell us why the producer does not get as much as before. Speaking of the new tariff law he said that it was not bringing in revenue enough to pay running expenses—but he was not honest enough to say that with half the world at war practically all imports were stopped—that neither England, Germany, France, Russia, Belgium, Austria or Serbia can now send any goods to this country on which any revenue can be collected. If the tariff were twice as much as now there would be no more revenue to the government so long as war prevented any imports. He referred to the time when bonds were issued under President Cleveland, but did not say that the country was then under a republican high tariff law, and that the same bonds would have been issued two months earlier by a republican president had he been elected. But as he was not they managed to keep from issuing bonds until the term of office expired, and went out leaving an empty treasury, made so during a high tariff in time of peace.

On state issues he presented an outline of Howell's visionary plan of conserving the water power of the state, without giving the least idea of the probable cost to the voters. He said that in selecting a governor the people should use great care in securing a man who could conduct the business safely. But he did not tell how candidate Howell had filched authority to control the water situation in Omaha in such manner that the city is said to have paid fully $2,500,000 more for the plant than many competent to judge of such values estimated its worth. He talks of physical valuation as a basis, but doubled it in that deal. If they have any more, speakers out criticising the Wilson administration they should send them out, for it is not a popular doctrine.

State Normal Notes

The Y. W. C. A. met Wednesday evening in the chapel with Miss Garwood as leader.

A Japanese tea party was given in honor of Miss Morris, the state secretary of the Y. W. C. A., in the reception room of Terrace hall Thursday afternoon.

Rev. A. S. Buell, the new pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, led the chapel exercises last Thursday morning. We hope to see him often.

On Thursday morning Professor Britell spoke on "Reactions and Personality". As always the professor spoke with earnestness and enthusiasm and pleased the students.

The first issue of the "English Sparrow", a weekly publication by the class in advanced English, was read before the class Tuesday morning.

Miss Graves and Mr. Rogers favored the faculty and students with a vocal duet Friday morning at convocation.

A number of strangers have been seen on the Hill the past week viewing the progress being made on the erection of the new administration building.

Miss Violet C. Woosley, secretary to the president, spent Sunday and Monday in Primrose, where she visited with her sister, Miss Martha J. Woosley, who is principal of the schools at that place.

Dr. J. T. House gave an interesting address to the young people of the Christian Endeavor Sunday evening at the Baptist church. The topic was, "A Saloonless Nation".

"Sohrab and Rostum" by Mathew Arnold is the selection studied in the eighth grade reading. Miss Garwood, the teacher in charge, reports that the class is doing nicely with the work.

President Conn went to Omaha on Friday to meet with other presidents of state normal schools of Nebraska to confer with them concerning proposed changes in the rules for certification of graduates of normal schools, and the organization of a course of study for rural school teachers.

New enrollments during the past week are: Signe Johnson and Mabel T. Anderson of Wausa; Ida S. Taylor of Ponca; Gale E. Stocking and Agnes Manke of Bloomfield. Miss Taylor was a student of the school in 1911, but the other ladies entered for the first time.

Several of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet officers are planning to spend October 24 and 25 at the convention in Lincoln. A business meeting was held Monday for the purpose of electing delegates for this convention.

On Tuesday the eighth grade Geography class under the direction of Mrs. Berg had a very interesting lesson on the effect of the European war on our cotton market. The pupils discussed the effect on the prices of raw material and finished product, conditions in the manufacturing districts of our own country and England in particular and the plight in which the cotton planter of this country finds himself for the coming year.

One of the most interesting and instructive experiences of the year was that of listening to Shigeyoshi Obata, a young Japanese student, recently graduated from the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Obata spoke Thursday afternoon at the invitation of Professor Lewis to the class in modern history and at convocation Friday morning. The theme of the former address was that of the relations of Japan to other nations, while at chapel the speaker dwelt on the variety of points of view that tend to produce misunderstandings among nations.

Benson-Johnson

At the Lutheran church at Wakefield on Wednesday, October 21, 1914, Mr. Carl Benson and Miss Hulda Johnson, both of this place, were united in marriage by Rev. Kraft. A bounteous wedding dinner was served to a small party of relatives and friends by Mrs. L. P. Dixon, aunt of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Benson will reside at Wayne where both are favorably known, having rented the Nick Hansen house just north of the court house in which they will begin married life. The Democrat extends congratulations.

Trice-Mayo

At the office of Judge James Britton Thursday morning, October 22, 1914, occurred the marriage of Mr. Wm. Trice of this city to Miss Anna Mayo, of Sioux City, who came from that place on the morning train.

The groom has been here several months as "shine" at the Mabbot barber shop. They plan to make their home at Wayne for the present at least.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Violet Woosley went to Primrose Friday to visit her sister a few days.

Miss Christina Anderson visited home folks over Sunday, returning to Norfolk Monday morning.

Mrs. A. Gustafson, who has been visiting here went to Sioux City Sunday to join her husband there.

Ed Sellers went to Bancroft Monday to look after work there for his son-in-law, Mr. Tyrell, who has gone to Excelsior Springs, Missouri, for treatment for stomach trouble.

Ernest and Leo Martin from Elgin were here last week visiting at the home of their uncle and aunt, Fred Martin and wife, north of Wayne. They returned home Saturday.

Edgar Howard of the Columbus Telegram has been nominated for congress on the "democratic" ticket for 1916—by Mose Warner of the Lyons Mirror. The early bird catches the worm.

John Bannister and wife went to Sioux City Sunday to visit the hospital and see his brother-in-law, Thos. Perrin, who is ill and there for care. They report a slight improvement in the condition of the invalid.

E. B. Williams from Sand Point, Idaho, was here last week visiting his brother, Dr. J. J. Williams. It is many years since he was last at Wayne before, and he notices many improvements in both town and country.

I am now ready to give instructions in piano, harmony, history and all theoretical branches. My studio adjoins Dr. Cleveland's office and any one interested in music is requested to call. Miss Grace Wattles.—adv. 36-1f.

Wm. Needham of Bloomfield was here between trains Saturday morning while returning from a trip to Norfolk, and was in care of Mr. Ellis, his former townsman. Mr. Needham is the head push of the Monitor of his home town.

Miss Anna Peterson, who is teaching at Sioux City came to spend Saturday and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. She was accompanied on the visit by one of her teacher friends, Miss Scattergood, whose home is in Michigan.

Last week while it was good corn husking weather there was a game of "horse shoes" between Belden and P'iger forces, and 80 games were pitched. Now, suppose that every shoe thrown was an ear of corn husked—wouldn't those fellows have been "all tired out?"

A Suffrage auto party will hold street meetings at Wayne Friday, October 23, at 7:30. Speakers are Mr. John L. Kennedy of Omaha and Mrs. Maud McCreery, of Wisconsin. A cordial invitation to all.

Constipation, indigestion, drive away appetite and make you weak and sick. Holister's Rocky Mountain Tea restores the appetite, drives away disease, builds up the system. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. At Felber's.—adv.-O.

Fred Wright, who has been spending a month here with his mother, left Friday for Duluth, Minnesota, and after a few days there will return to his home at Spokane. Mrs. Wright is planning to leave ere long for a winter visit with friends in the south and west.

W. J. McInerney and family returned last week from an absence of a month, spent visiting relatives and friends in Iowa and this state. They were at Omaha part of the time, and at Dennison and Primrose in Iowa. Mr. McInerney thinks that the parts of Iowa he visited has rather a better corn crop than here.

Mrs. May Hardenberg from Lakeside, Washington, has been here visiting at the home of her cousin, Mrs. T. B. Heckert, and with old friends. She will be better known as May Russell, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Russell, formerly of this place. She had been at Chicago visiting her sister, and with relatives in Iowa, and stopped here a few days. She left for home Monday morning.

H. A. Crane of the Wisner Free Press and Julius Degner, who is an agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., were Wayne visitors Monday driving over from their home town. Mr. Crane made the Democrat a fraternal call and took a little look about our city, this being his first visit here. Under the management of Mr. Crane the Free Press has improved wonderfully as a newspaper.

Mrs. Clara Gustafson and Mrs. Harry McMullen left Monday for Grand Island, where they go as delegates representing the Wayne lodge of Rebeckas at the grand lodge of that order. R. P. Williams went at the same time as a delegate to the grand lodge, I. O. O. F., and Andy Chance went on Tuesday on the same mission. They were joined here by W. H. Root of Sholes, who was a delegate to the encampment.

In advertising his sale of Duroc Jerseys at this place next Saturday, V. L. Dayton is using in addition to the home papers, space in some of the papers in neighboring counties, and we believe that he is wise in so doing. Where a man stakes his year's crop on a single sale he should be sure that all who are interested in the purchase of the product should have knowledge of what he has to sell and when the man who values it the highest can get it.

Speaking of roads and the Nebraska system of not making them, editor Kelley of the Hartington News says that in a 1,500 mile drive in Iowa and Minnesota he did not see a new steel or wooden bridge. All new work is concrete, and put in under direction of an engineer who knows what he gets—what it should be and that it is built to last. The Democrat editor has long advocated the use of concrete, and was glad to note last week that Commissioner Farran had made such a good start with the work in his district in this county.

Simon Strate, the democratic nominee for commissioner from the third district, while in Wayne a few days ago said that he found that many of the people do not fully understand the situation as to county commissioner. There are two commissioners to be elected this year and each voter should vote for two candidates. One is in the second and the other in the third district, but the voter is entitled to vote for two regardless of which of the three districts he lives in. The democratic nominees are Simon Strate in the 3rd district and P. M. Corbit in the 2nd. The republicans have selected George Farran and S. E. Auker for their respective candidates.

A year ago J. A. Stahl, who in the past so ably edited the Democrat at West Point sold the paper to L. D. Crelin, who now sells it back to Stahl. The Democrat is a good paper under either editor—as good or better than the business men of West Point deserve, judging from the advertising patronage they give. When those who call themselves business men of a place like West Point let issue after issue of a good paper go out to its thousands of readers with but four or five columns of advertising from the home merchants they are not living up to their opportunities. We hope that Bro. Stahl can do something to show them that they are hurting themselves more than the papers by not using the columns more liberally for advertising purposes.

F. M. Jolly of Wilmington, North Carolina, was in Nebraska last week enjoying our beautiful fall weather, and incidentally looking for business for the Atlantic Coast Line of railroad, of which he is the traffic agent in the passenger department. Of course he could not help but admit that they could expect no one to leave Nebraska and such delightful weather just now, but when the time comes to go he wants to have arrangements made. During his short stop at Wayne he told the editor that in spite of the war playing havoc with the cotton trade in the south, they were doing a very nice business. The fact that 75 per cent of the cotton grown in this country is exported makes it particularly hard when some of the best and largest mills of Europe are closed and the money which should have been spent for cotton is used in war.

W. H. James—Candidate For Sheriff

Not all of our readers will have opportunity to meet the democratic nominee for sheriff before election, and we hope that he will so conduct yourselves that he will not be looking for you officially after the votes are counted, and for fear he does not meet you either before or after election, the Democrat man looked him up a few days ago and asked a few questions.

In a modest way he admitted that he was born in the state of New York, but he made amends for that by coming to Iowa as soon as able to travel. With his parents he located at Red Oak in the Hawkeye state in 1876, when that was rather a new country, and when there was no paving about the square, and in an ordinary wet time it was a question whether to navigate the streets with a boat or a lumber wagon, and there were times when the boat would have carried the larger load if there had been some way to propel it. Nine years later, in 1885, he again came west, and settled in the good county of Wayne, where for the past 29 years he has made his home. He was a farmer for twenty years, on a farm not far from Carroll, and nine years ago he moved to that place where he is thought well enough of to be placed in the office of village clerk, now serving his second term. He is also a member of the school board, and an active one too—being a member of the building committee at this time when a new school building is being erected, and he is giving of his time to see that the house is made according to specifications.

His business is briefly told by the three words, "land, loans, insurance." He is a member of the Methodist church, and one of the official board of the Carroll church. Politically he is a democratic democrat—that is, he is progressive. The policies of the present administration are to his liking, and he believes that every democrat owes it as a duty to go to the polls on election day and cast a vote of approval if he thinks Wilson has made good, and so does the editor. If elected, Mr. James pledges intelligent and faithful service in the discharge of the official duties.

JOHN H. MOREHEAD
Nebraska's Business Governor
CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

Governor Morehead for Governor

Several weeks ago Governor Morehead spoke at Wayne on state issues. The Democrat was particularly pleased with his remarks at that time. It was a fair and fearless statement of the work of the administration of state affairs under his administration. He did not dodge—he did not ask support because of the excellent and wise administration at Washington, though he approves it most heartily. He did not ask the support of any man who did not think the best interest of all lay in the continuance of a good fair business administration of the affairs of state. We learned some things about the affairs of public concerns which had been going on so quietly that little was known of them—but the good effect was and is being felt every day. In a brief review of the talk of the day, at this late hour we will mention a few. First he mapped out a business program with a definite end in view. Having picked a place to go he started and is getting there. He eliminated "red tape" and began at once to reduce the number of boards and bureaus, by the process of consolidation. The most important of these was the consolidation of the oil and food inspection under one office. This has turned a deficit into an income—the consolidated commission bringing in about $40,000 annually while the fees of the two commissions was not enough to finance them. He recommended some practical legislation, one of the best results of which is noticeable in the live stock sanitary board.

Progress made by the live stock sanitary board in dealing with problems in this state—and in drawing attention from other states—commends Governor Morehead's administration to stockmen and farmers of Nebraska. It marks for the first time in the history of the state a delegation of authority to a board that knows specifically how it should be used. It denotes a forward march in administration of live stock sanitary matters that could not be made under sessions of the legislature.

The importance of the industry may be gained from a glance at the assessment roll. There it is disclosed that the total wrapped up in the industry is in excess of $152,000,000. The protection afforded stockmen and farmers through this law affects every animal. It assures the owner of every animal that the state government is on guard constantly to keep diseases of every kind from his barn lot and pasture.

The anti-discrimination law gave teeth to a law which had before been without terror to those who were combining to rob the people. The universal telegraph rate has been a help to many interests, and we believe has not been detrimental to the telegraph concerns. The code insurance laws were revised after a hard fight with the great insurance interests, and the law proved to be so drafted that this mighty combine was unable to break it in the courts of the state. This law is much to the credit of the legislature and the governor. Blue sky is not a commodity which may be legitimately sold in Nebraska. And thousands of dollars remain at home which in the past have been filched from the honest people of the state.

The reform of one of the worst evils against the community—cultivation of the dope habit at the penitentiary—has been eliminated. The governor stated that if given the proper law he would reform the habits of that great penal institution or resign. While our state prison is not now a place that most people would select for a home, there has been a great forward step in the treatment of these unfortunate people, and under the present system there is prospect of reform much greater than before. The affairs of this place were rotten under previous management as all know. It is his purpose, not yet accomplished, to quit farming out this labor so that it will come in direct competition with free labor, and utilize it in improving the public highways of the state, thus giving all a benefit from this work instead of some manufacturer getting an aid, while the people of the state foot the deficiency bills.

A million dollars is said to be a conservative estimate of the saving to the people in the term of his office, made possible by an amendment passed by the legislature at his request opening the state to the sale of all commercial grades of oil. These products are now subject to as much competition in Nebraska as in other states. Before but fourteen companies could qualify to do oil business in this state; now there are more than forty.

Among other good laws enacted at his recommendation and receiving his approval were the Pure Linseed Oil law. Cold Storage Food law. County Telephone law. Election Commissioner for Dodge County (this law was good, and the appointment of the commissioner so excellent that his opponent openly pledges to retain the same commissioner if elected.) Limiting Loans of Banks. Providing for publicity of measures submitted under the initiative and referendum.

Corporation Tax law. Voting by Mail law. His opponent is an advocate of municipal ownership of public utilities, but in this matter the record of the Governor loses nothing by comparison with the claims of his opponent. The governor is and long has been a consistent advocate of the idea of municipal ownership of public utilities, and there is no question of double dealing raised in connection with any work he may have done in this line.

As to conservation of the waters of our streams and harnessing them, the governor was an early advocate of this plan, and among his first acts as governor was the appointment of a committee of five men to make full and careful investigation of the possibilities of such enterprise in this state and learn what had been done in other states and how, and report at the coming legislature. Their report will be on file for the coming legislature. The governor is also an advocate of an act providing for public warehouses, which will enable the farmers to store their grain and secure warehouse certificates which they will be able to use in raising the necessary money to carry on their business. Under present conditions, it too often happens that the farmer is obliged to sell immediately after threshing, when the market prices are very low, and in this way, he is deprived of a full return for his grain. But if the Governor is successful in getting a public warehouse law, the farmer will be enabled to hold his grain, and borrow sufficient money on his certificate to tide him over the fall, and then take advantage of good market prices later on. This is a matter of great importance to the agricultural interests of the state. It will mean millions of dollars annually to the farmers of Nebraska.

While here the governor rightly resented some circulated reports about him by irresponsible papers, and one in particular was that relating to the sale of liquor at the state militia meet at Ashland. So far as we can learn the sale of liquor, if any, was not on the encampment grounds and its suppression was duty of the county officials if it was illegal and to be suppressed. It could scarcely be expected by any reasonable citizen of this or any other country that should the governor be a guest here on official business that he could turn aside from the duties which brought him here to prosecute some one who might happen at that time to be accused of violating the law in the county. Yet such a case would be parallel.

THE FIRST IN NEBRASKA to Offer Their Patrons The "PREMIER" CABINET PHONOGRAPH AT ONLY $100.00

How It Happened

Mr. Wilson, who is at the head of a great chair manufacturing company in Pennsylvania, is the man said to make more artistic and original practical chair designs than any other man in this country if not in the world. He has become rich—or at least well off if not what would be termed rich in this day and age. Fond of music it became his pastime to provide an instrument that would furnish melody without stint, and the result was a handsome piece of furniture which he was pleased to name the "Premier Cabinet Phonograph". Then to him came the idea of providing equal opportunity to others, and after carefully estimating the cost of manufacturing these machines he began their manufacture, and only last July were the first ones put on the market. They are so made that any make of disk record can be used, a decided advantage, and while sold at price of less than one-half that asked for similar instruments they are superior in tone, melody and harmony as well as workmanship and beauty.

As handsome in finish, as large, more practical than the $250 size of other makes . . .

On this phonograph you may use any disc record, and may thus bring to your home for your pleasure and the entertainment of your friends the world's masterpieces in all classes of music, for they are all given on records and on sale everywhere that lovers of music are found. This would make a Christmas present for the entire family and be enjoyed all the year.

Memoirs of Napoleon

In Three Volumes

This man caused the last general European war.

His personal memoirs, written by his secretary, Baron De Meneval, are full of the most absorbing incidents, especially in view of the present great European struggle.

Just a hundred years ago, his ambitions bathed the Continent in a sea of blood. France alone, under his leadership, fought Germany, Russia, Austria, Italy, and Great Britain—and won.

Scientific Eye Examination

Circumstances may indicate that possibly you need eye-glasses in order to give you better and more comfortable vision and to relieve a strain which you notice in reading or doing close work of any kind. The approach of eye-strain is hardly noticed, however, in its earlier stages. Some persons frown, wrinkle the eyebrows, squint or have either nervous habits, which are among the first indications of eye-strain. In such instances the person's eyes are likely to tire easily.

This is the best time to call for an examination by an exclusive eye man in order to ascertain whether or not glasses should be worn.

I do nothing but test eyes to make glasses.

Mrs. Ida Rennick was at Sioux City Wednesday for the day.

Miss Winifred Fleetwood returned Tuesday evening from a two week visit with relatives and friends at Perry, Iowa.

Mrs. H. Smith of Concord returned home Wednesday morning following a visit at the home of Frank Strauss and wife and other Wayne friends.

Lee Smith, who has been working on government irrigation project near Mitchell in the western part of the state, came home last week, and after a few days at home went to Coleridge where he will hulk corn for his uncle. He is son of R. R. Smith.

R. R. Smith went to Omaha Wednesday morning to look the stock yards over, and perhaps indulge in a car of feeders. He says that his farm was never before so well supplied with "roughness". It has been a great fall for late growth of grasses.

Mr. and Mrs. Plain from Avoca, Iowa, returned to their home Wednesday morning following a visit at the home of his brother-in-law, John Lage. The visitors were on their wedding trip, and the groom is brother to Mrs. Lage. They had an enjoyable visit.

The home of Frank Weber and wife has been the scene of a partial family reunion for a few days. Mesdames Limpka and Masure from Johnson county and C. T. Hinder from St. Joseph, Mo., sisters and a brother of Mrs. Weber left for their homes Tuesday, following a visit here.

The Walter Savidge company returned to Wayne the first of the week and are settling in winter quarters here. Mr. Savidge says that he abandoned the trip south after a few trials on the way, owing to the fact that the people there were hard up, owing to the war condition in the east depriving them of opportunity to market their cotton crop. He had an excellent season in this state, and thought it better to disband than to try to play against the handicap of close times in the south. He tells us that he is planning to reopen the Cozy a little later.

August Esser of Lincoln was announced to make a political speech at this place in the German language Monday, but the announcement came so near the hour of the arrival of the speaker that it was impossible to assemble an audience of those who understood his language, and so he spent the afternoon conversing with numerous friends, and was taken for a ride about the city by Secretary Ziegler of the county central committee. In the evening he went to Randolph where he spoke in the evening to a large audience. If his coming could have been known Saturday a good attendance at his talk could have been assured.

Geo. Steele and family came the first of the week from Van Tassel, Wyoming, and plan to spend several weeks with relatives here and at Allen where he has a brother living. They are visiting at the home of his mother and Mrs. Steele's sister, Mrs. V. Bradford. Mr. Steele says that they like their new home very well, but that it is not such a farming country as this. They are getting a nice start for a new country, and find that they will be able to grow alfalfa and small grain crops. It is better adapted to stock than other farming. Just to keep in practice he proposes to do a bit of corn shucking while visiting here.

Among the Churches of Wayne

St. Paul's Lutheran Church
(Rev. Blessing, Pastor.)

Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The subject of the lesson will be "Jesus and Judas" Matt. 26:14-25.

Regular divine worship every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and in the evening at 7:45.

The subject of the sermon for next Sunday morning will be "The Worlds Greatest Crime" Malachi 3:7-11. Several days ago I passed a sturdy oak tree, its trunk was large and strong. From the trunk many small limbs had sprung, some stronger than others, but all coming from the trunk as the source. In life there is one great crime, as there was one trunk to the oak tree. Also, as the many small limbs sprang from the trunk of the oak tree, so the many minor crimes of the world, spring from the greatest. But is the greatest crime of the world, as the one enacted by Cain when he killed his brother? Not so, but before that sad event the greatest crime took place, when Cain withheld the spirit of love and obedience from God and became a stranger to him. And by this great crime, he shut the windows of heaven to himself. God's favor was cut off. God indeed is faithful to his promises but people's own conduct has occasioned the withholding of favors.

The subject of the evening sermon will be "A Broken Life-Repaired", II Sam. 12:13. Luther League at 6:45. A very interesting subject will be presented. All the young people are requested to be present. Come and enjoy the hour.

The Ladies Aid Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Henry Hansen on next Thursday, October 22.

There will be congregational meetings Sunday, November 1st.

Catechetical class will begin the first Saturday in November. All who have not spoken to the pastor please do so soon.

At this season of the year we are made to think of God's goodness to us in the harvest he has given, therefore it is no more than proper, that we should show him our thanks. Next Sunday morning we will hold our regular Harvest Home Service.

Come let us worship together.

Baptist Church
Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor

"The Divine Measure of Success" will be the pastor's subject for the sermon Sunday morning. As a good preparation read Mark 25:14-30.

The hearty response to the report from the convention was appreciated last Sunday. One great privilege of ours, is to be ready and willing to pass on to others the good things we have received. "If you have a kindness shown, pass it on."

Dr. House, of the state normal, gave a splendid address to the young people Sunday evening, on the subject of temperance. He is hopeful of the final overthrow of the saloon, and its kindred vices. We believe the day is coming, but not without hard work.

The missionary committee will have charge of the young people's service. We hope at this meeting, to have a full report from the young people's session of the state convention.

The pastor will preach Sunday evening on the subject, "Morality without Religion".

Wednesday evening will be our covenant meeting. This is a good time to try to be present. Let us see you and hear you at this meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wadsworth have the sympathy of the church, on account of the sudden death of their little son, Don. In such experiences our faith in a heavenly Father means much to us.

Let us be helpful as we pass through life.

Methodist Church
(Rev. A. S. Buell, Pastor)

Efficiency is the watchword for the new year, for all departments of the church life. The finances are being completely re-organized and new and approved plans for the church and benevolent interests are being adopted for this year. The choir is rendering splendid service under the efficient leadership of Professor J. J. Coleman. The Sunday school and Epworth League are both adopting aggressive programs. We will be greatly pleased to welcome you to our services next Sunday. The sermon topic at the hour of the morning worship will be "God Our Father". In the evening the pastor will speak on "True and False Standards of Life". Class meeting at ten o'clock Sunday morning and mid-week prayer meetings on Wednesday evening at seven-thirty. Our regular choir practice will be held on Friday evening at eight o'clock instead of Thursday on account of the entertainment at the College Thursday evening.

H. V. Cronk, one of the pioneer breeders of Duroc-Jersey hogs has an advertisement of his sale which is to be held Monday, November 2, at his place southeast of Waterbury, in which he gives some good advice to the farmer in regard to the folly of feeding high-priced feed to stock that is inferior, and does not give proper return for the investment. He has proven that it pays to feed hogs that will respond to the treatment with rapid growth. It takes no more feed and care to make a pig of the right kind weigh near 500 pounds at a year of age than it does to get half that weight onto some other class of stock. With his boars he will include a number of choice sows, among them one of the best mothers of his herd. This section of Nebraska is fast becoming noted as the home of the very best that is grown in the pure bred stock of different varieties, and the successful breeding of high class stock is doing more to make this section prosperous and advertise its possibilities than any other one thing. The horses, cattle and hogs from this part of the state which have been winning first places at the great state and inter-state fairs this fall has done much to bring publicity of the right kind to this part of the state.

Death of Mrs. Ingar Johnson

At the home of Peter Monson and wife, nine miles northwest of Wayne on Monday, October 19, 1914, occurred the death of Mrs. Ingar Johnson, at the age of 79 years, 2 months and 9 days of complications incidental to old age. Deceased was born in Sweden August 10, 1835. She is mourned by a husband, now in Canada, three sons and two daughters and several grandchildren besides many relatives and friends.

After a short service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Monson Tuesday the body was brought to Wayne, and Wednesday morning accompanied by friends and relatives was taken to Oakland for burial.

MAMIE E. WALLACE

Democratic Candidate for Superintendent of Schools.

Miss Wallace was born in Illinois, coming to Wayne county in early girlhood, and moving with her parents on a Wayne county farm. She has always lived on a farm, and now makes her home on the old place, two and one half miles from Wayne.

She graduated from Wayne High School, spent two years at Bellevue College, graduated from the scientific course of the Nebraska Normal College, and from the Wayne State Normal, took professional work in Drake University, and attended summer school several years at Sioux City. Holds life state certificate, and life city certificate.

GEORGE T. PORTER

Republican nominee for re-election to the office of sheriff. He has served the public faithfully, and asks that his record be endorsed by re-election.

L. A. KIPLINGER

I hereby announce my candidacy for re-election to the office of county attorney. I sincerely thank the people of the county for giving me this office, and trust that my conduct of it has been such as to merit the indorsement which a reelection implies.—L. A. KIPLINGER.

Suffrage Department

Under the Auspices of the Suffrage League of Wayne.)
Woman's Suffrage

In Nebraska and a number of other states the question of woman's suffrage is submitted to the voters. In most of the states the subject has not been dealt with in party platforms, but left to the organizations formed for the special purpose of putting the issue before the public. Woman's suffrage being an issue in Nebraska, I have already stated my position and presented a brief argument in support of it. The subject is easily understood as shown by the rapid growth of the reform. That woman's suffrage is coming does not admit of doubt. Ultimately—why not now?

The rapid spread of the doctrine during the last few years is not strange. We are in the midst of a great moral awakening, and woman's assistance is always welcomed when the conscience is aroused. There are three questions which the voter ought to consider before he votes to deny the ballot to women:

First: Why should those who conspire against the home be allowed to use the ballot to wreck a young man, and his mother be forbidden the use of the ballot to protect her son?

Second: Why are all the evil influences of society arrayed against woman suffrage? Is it not because they recognize that woman suffrage is a menace to wrong doing and the wrong doers?

Third: How does it happen that some honest, pure-minded, well-meaning men and women join hands with the worst elements of society in the effort to defeat woman's suffrage? Which crowd is deceived? W. J. BRYAN.

Jane Addams Vote Getter

The whirlwind tour of Jane Addams through Nebraska was a big vote getter, according to the heads of the suffrage campaign. Miss Addams spoke to nearly 10,000 people scattered from Omaha to Broken Bow, where her tour came to an end Tuesday night. It began in Omaha last Sunday.

"Every time Miss Addams speaks to a crowd of men it means a crowd of voters," said one politician in the western part of the state. The winds were bitterly cold when she visited Broken Bow and Alliance, but hundreds came for miles to hear her. The train in which she rode was filled with men, women and children, who got on at every station, and whose first question was "where is she?"

Women held up their children in the crowds for a look at Jane Addams while they whispered "Now you have seen the greatest woman of this country". The automobiles, carriages and farm wagons brought in families from every direction in those localities where she was booked.

"How eagerly I shall watch the returns from all these counties I have visited when election day comes. From the assurances I have received of support it seems that the suffrage must carry in this state," she said on leaving.

Miss Addams went to Deadwood, S. D., from Nebraska, where she speaks before the general federation of woman's clubs on equal suffrage. South Dakota is also in the midst of a suffrage campaign. From there she will give three days' time to Montana and the same number to Missouri, both campaign states. She will then return to Hull house, Chicago.

Miss Addams pays her own expenses on this trip.

Biting Off Big Chunks

At the annual meeting of the Wakefield commercial club they made a move which we hope may be successful to a degree at least—it being nothing less than the idea of imposing a tax on mail order houses—but to us it looks like a big job. The mail order house is made possible by several things. Indifference of people to the interests of their home community is one. Indifference of local merchants in many communities to the real or fancied wants of their patrons and indifferent methods of advertising as compared to the systematic method of the mail order concerns. The merchant feels that he has long been in business in a community and has a good dependable line of goods, and that the home man should know this—take it for granted and buy accordingly. Meantime the mail order outfit is busy spreading printer's ink in advertising where "FREE" is the big word which stands out like a wart on a woman's nose, and "suckers grab the bait, hook and all, and if they are judge of goods they soon learn that what they thought was free was far more expensive than something which would have cost a trifle more and been good value for the cost. Here is the Wakefield idea:

"A communication relative to the mail order business was ordered sent to Congressman Stephens. It called attention to the fact that these houses have an immense trade in localities in which they pay no tax to support schools, churches, or other institutions. The suggestion was made that Congress levy a tax on the amount of their business, such tax to go to the federal government."

How About an Ice Pond

Ice, now considered more of a necessity than a luxury to the economic production of dairy and other farm products, may frequently be had at moderate expense by the average farmer. A low place on the farm, sometimes unfit for cultivation, if but 40 feet square may be used to excellent advantage as a pond for ice. It is not necessary to excavate it more than two feet deep. When dug it may be puddled by herding a drove of cattle, sheep, or hogs in it. When properly puddled, there need be little fear that water will seep away. A pond was excavated and puddled at the University Farm at Lincoln for ornamental purposes which is never dry. It is estimated by the agricultural engineering department of the farm that a pond 45 feet in diameter during a winter favorable to the harvesting of ice will furnish twice as much ice as the average farmer will require; during an unfavorable winter it will even produce an ample supply. Sketches and estimates of the cost for a homemade ice house may be obtained from the agricultural engineering department.

Late Parcel Post Order

Postmaster General Bursleson has issued an order which will permit the attaching of a letter to a package sent by parcel post, when both bear their respective rates of postage and are addressed to the same individual. The sending of a communication with a parcel post package heretofore has been forbidden. Postal officials claim there is a demand for permission to send letters with articles of merchandise shipped by parcel post, in order that the package and advices concerning it may be received simultaneously. The letter is not to be enclosed in the package but must be tied or otherwise fastened on the outside.

Field Sports

When you keep a boy interested in football, baseball, tennis, and the like, you lessen the chances that he will get interested in things not so good for him. The Youth's Companion, since its enlargement, gives generous space to this matter of athletic training, and gets the best coaches in the country to write for it.

How to practice to become a first-rate pitcher, how to train for a race, how to learn the newest strokes in swimming—these and a hundred other topics of the greatest interest to boys—to girls too, for that matter—are touched upon in this important department of The Companion.

And this is only a small part of the service which The Companion renders in any home which it enters. It has points of contact with a hundred interests.

If you do not know The Companion as it is to-day, let us send you one or two current issues free, that you may thoroughly test the paper's quality. We will send also the Forecast for 1915.

Every new subscriber who sends $2.00 for the fifty-two weekly issues of 1915 will receive free all the issues of the paper for the remaining weeks of 1914; also The Companion Home Calendar for 1915.

The Purchase of Monticello

The beautiful and extensive old estate owned by Thomas Jefferson, third president of the United States, and occupied by him for many years, in Virginia, may become the summer home of the presidents of the United States. The present owner of the property, Congressman Jefferson M. Levy, has long been importuned to sell the historic old mansion, designed by Thomas Jefferson himself, with its surrounding picturesque acres, to the government as a permanent summer residence for the occupants of the white house, and it is understood that the transfer will soon be completed and Monticello will become the property of the United States. The price agreed upon is $500,000.—Norfolk News.

If chosen to serve on the county board, he will use his best judgment in looking after the county's affairs.

A Complicated Ballot

All sorts of political complications will be encountered by the Nebraska voter when he goes to cast his vote on November 3. He will find, in the first place, that he is expected to mark four different ballots—one each for the general ticket, propositions submitted under the initiative and referendum, the question of university campus extension or removal and the non-partisan judiciary. He will also note a change in the usual arrangement of parties on the regular ballot.

Democratic-populist candidates come first on the ticket this year, by virtue of the fact that Woodrow Wilson received the highest vote for president in 1912. The progressive nominees will get second place, based on Roosevelt vote of two years ago, and the republicans will have to content themselves with third position. Fourth place goes to the socialists and fifth to the prohibitionists.

Whichever party polls the highest vote this year on governor will be entitled to first place on the ballot at the next election in 1916.

On the regulation ballot this year the voter will find the usual party circle, together with three constitutional amendments submitted by the legislature (taxation reform, five-sixths jury verdicts and increased salaries for state officers, and all the candidates for state, congressional, legislative, county and local office from governor down.

Another ballot will contain the proposed constitutional amendment for equal suffrage and the referendum propositions on the Nebraska City armory appropriation and the workmen's compensation.

A third will carry the single proposition of university campus extension or removal. The fourth will have the names of judicial candidates without any partisan label.

With all these different tickets to vote the average man will have his hands full. If he is inclined to adhere strictly to party lines he will have still more difficulty.

Progressives and republicans have different state tickets in the field and are fighting each other.—Norfolk Press.

The Flag on The Sea

The new policy of our government in regard to free ships is making a good beginning toward restoring our flag to the high seas. Since the first of September fifty-six American owned vessels have registered under this new law and have raised the Stars and Stripes at their mast heads. The old law was passed in civil war times and had the effect of almost driving our flag off the high seas except as it appeared on our naval vessels. The United States is going to suffer serious loss along with all the rest of the world from the great and destructive European war, but if the exigencies of war can be the incentive for restoring our merchant marine, we shall have gained in one direction, at least.—Norfolk News.

Pause and consider the amount of the war tax if President Wilson had allowed himself to be stamped into Mexican intervention.

The republican state campaign for governor is cartooned as Howell tooting his own horn and Aldrich pounding the big base drum—simply wind and noise.

Watchful waiting is again victorious. The news dispatches say that Gen. Villa has given assurance that he will be good and abide the decision of the national convention at Aguas, but he would not stand for Caranza as head of the government, and he is satisfied that he stands no chance of winning.

With respect to the charge that emergency taxation is unnecessary, again we say, "Answer their lies with facts." Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo refuses to allow the Treasury's working balance to be made dependent upon the income from "imports" derived largely from goods withdrawn from the bonded warehouses. There's a limit to the capacity of warehouses, you know.

The President has signed the coal leasing contract for Alaskan coal lands. This is an important step in the plan of conservation for the people the natural resources of the country. To be sure the matter should have been acted upon before the people were robbed of so much—100 years ago would have been none too soon, but then they could not look ahead to see the result of things as they are seen today.

President Wilson, in his inaugural address, said: "Men's hearts wait upon us; men's lives hang in the balance; men's hopes call upon us to say what we will do. Who shall live up to the great trust? Who dares fail to try? I summon all patriotic and forward-looking men to my side. God helping me, I will not fail them, if they will but counsel and sustain me." If that sentiment appeals to you as fair and honest, do not fail neglect to vote.

According to government reports the value of 27,625,482 barrels of cement produced in Pennsylvania in 1912 was $18,945,835. In 1913 the output was a little larger being 28,060,495 barrels, but the value about one-third greater, being $24,268,800. Yet there were manufacturers in Pennsylvania who feared, or pretended to fear, that the incoming of a democratic administration would ruin them. Pennsylvania in 1913 had an output of $700,000,000 of mineral products mined or treated there. Yet this great state has hundreds of thousands of under-paid laborers.

The citizen of the United States who protests against doing his small share to uphold the financial credit of the United States in the present world crisis doesn't deserve to be a citizen of the United States. It appears that a number of such hold seats in the United States Congress.

The Roosevelt argument, that a treaty has no binding force unless there is power to enforce it, looks pretty thin, yet it is evident that he believes that to be true, judging by his actions in the matter of the Panama-Columbia deal. If you want to break faith with another nation and are bully enough to do so it is all right in the eyes of those who believe that might makes right—or if you have not the might get some big bully to use his might. It is a poor doctrine—expensive and unjust.

Some of our republican exchanges are asking why the new tax law which is designed to raise $100,000,000 annually is called a war tax. We cannot tell, except that these papers are pleased to call it that, for it is a peace tax, and any one who objects to paying his share should move over the pond where they have war taxes. As a war tax in these days of modern warfare $100,000,000 would be of as little account as the proverbial snowball in a land that is hotter than this. Let us be glad we have no war tax in this land of the free.

It will soon be as a tale that is told. Then we will know whether or not it is necessary for members of congress to get out and kick up a dust all over the district all summer to secure a chance at election. It seems to us as though Congressman Stephens will not lose any votes because of the fact that he has remained at his post in Washington and been doing what he was elected to do. If the people want a man in congress who will stay on the job when necessary as at present, it looks as though they would vote for him without being buttonholed and told what to do. If they do not reward faithful service how can they expect to receive it? This paper predicts that the voters will look after those who are serving them well on election day.

Investigations now under way at Washington into the Rock Island methods of doing business show that they were cutting a great spurge and asking an increase in freight rates while paying large salaries to officials and letting the Morgan-Rockafellow crowd make off with uncounted millions. Seven and a half million dollars are an apparent loss as the result of one bond deal. There has been too much rotten work in the upper circles of railroad management for people to have any confidence in their claims of a need of advanced rate. If they would practice honesty and economy the rates would be found to pay handsome dividends. The Rock Island and New Haven appear to have been in the same class, and both have been punished by the big interests. These things all point toward government ownership.

How many of our readers have given consideration to a peculiar phase of the political situation in this state? How many of them would want the affairs of the state controlled by three men from Omaha for the next two years, and those the men who might rightfully be considered to owe at least in part their nomination to the worst wards in the city? Howell is for governor, was among the leading candidates in these corrupt wards. Omaha is his home. The republican candidate for attorney general lives in Omaha, and practices in South Omaha, being the attorney of the great packing concerns there. The republican candidate for treasurer also lives in Omaha. What of that? Just this, under the present law the affairs of the state are largely in the hands of about a score of boards, and the governor, attorney and treasurer form a majority of each of these boards. It would turn practically all of the affairs of state over to the city of Omaha, which is not just nor right. Nor does it appeal to us a wise thing to do. There is a way to avoid it. Let every democrat in the state go to the polls and vote. It is your duty. We should prize the right of franchise above any other right.

My fellow democrats, don't let anybody bunco you into believing that R. Beecher Howell is going to be elected. And don't let anybody fool you into believing that the democratic party is "divided" and quarrelling. It's all moonshine. The democrats are going to sweep the state, and they have a right to. They deserve to do so. Why? Oh, there are several reasons, the first being that from top to bottom they have a ticket worthy of the support of the best citizenship, and secondly because the party in national affairs has made a record which commends itself to all thinking, fair-minded people over the state.

There may be some wail occasionally, like that of the Columbus Telegram, but it will cut no ice. No one can think for a moment that Mr. Bryan would have been unable to discover a "secret Morehead-Hitchcock alliance" if there was one. He always sees things and sees them first. Edgar Howard may imagine some things of the kind, but Mr. Bryan doesn't. He has come out strong for the entire ticket, and he will make it stronger still when he comes to speak. In short, it is needless to say, if Mr. Bryan knew of any "secret alliance" he would not be supporting it. He is for the ticket because it deserves his support, and he wastes no words in approving it as a whole. And Mr. Bryan's word in Nebraska politics cuts some ice yet. —The Nebraskan.

COROT'S BIG HEART.

An incident illustrating the Great Artist's Generosity.

Corot, the great French landscape artist, was a man of the temperament traditionally associated with genius—irritable, impetuous, careless, generous and lovable. M. Albert Dubuisson, whose father was the great painter's friend, has published some interesting reminiscences of him in the Studio, in which he tells of a day he spent with the artist in his studio, when a knock at the door—the last straw after several really annoying interruptions—caused Corot to fling the door open abruptly with flushed face and fire in his eye.

"What is it now? Come in! Who are you? What do you come and disturb me for?" he demanded angrily. The caller much disconcerted, stammered his explanation:

"I came, M. Corot—I—It's about an accident. A workman engaged on the building has had a fall. His condition is very grave. They have just taken him off to the hospital. We know the poor chap. He's a workman who leaves a wife and four children. We are getting up a subscription among the lodgers in the building for the family. I thought you would perhaps like to join us."

Corot's expressive countenance snowed clearly his quick regret for his roughness to the messenger and his deepening sympathy for the injured man. He made prompt amends.

"The poor fellow!" he exclaimed. "The unfortunate family—a wife and four children! We must do everything that is possible to help them. Now how can I be of use to you—I who only know how to amuse myself with painting trees and streams? They must be assured food and shelter, and they'll need money. Here! You see that little bureau? Do you mind going to the first drawer? Good! Now take out what you think necessary, and I beg you not to use too much discretion. My back is turned, and I won't look. You can't think how glad I am to be allowed to share in your kind efforts on their behalf."

Obedying these directions, the visitor opened the drawer and paused thunderstruck, for it was full of gold and bills, tossed in helter skelter as the artist had received them. With some embarrassment, while Corot worked away busily at his easel, the visitor helped himself to as large a sum as his conscience permitted him to take, murmured his thanks and departed. Corot never inquired what he had taken or looked to see, although, indeed, he would not have known if he had.

Grant Did Not Forget the Man Who Did Him a Good Turn.

"General Grant's most pronounced characteristic, perhaps, was his reward of the friends who had stood by him in his early days," said Colonel S. A. Holmes of St. Louis. "While Grant was doing the best he could after he had quit the army and was down and out he wanted to get the job of county surveyor of St. Louis county. This job was in the keeping of the three county judges, and Grant could get only one of them to vote for him, so he didn't get the place. "After the war when Grant was serving his first term as president, a delegation of Missourians visited the White House to urge the appointment of a St. Louis man for collector of internal revenue, the most lucrative position in the state. Grant listened to the arguments and looked over the petition presented. Then he scratched his head and remarked: "Isn't there an old fellow out there of the name of Long, who used to be a judge of the county court?" "Nobody in the delegation could recall Long, but Grant told them to go back and find out. Some time later he was told that Judge Long was still living in the county, but was not conspicuous.

"Get up a petition for him," advised the president, "and I will appoint him internal revenue collector."

"The friends of Long lost no time in presenting the requested petition, and the old judge was appointed.

"Grant had never forgotten the favor done him when he was less prosperous."—Washington Post.

Buds In Reserve.

When a large branch of a tree is cut off small branches will frequently shoot out round the stump. These branches are from reserve buds, of which all trees have a great number at every portion of their surface. Under ordinary circumstances these never come to maturity, but when the tree is wounded or cut off or loses some of its branches the reserve buds at once come into play and renew the foliage.

They were the only three that could talk freely among the unheard tumult.—London Chronicle.

FOUND—Ladies hand bag on road between Carroll and Wayne, October 18th. Inquire of W. C. Martin.

Dick Hansen and wife returned Wednesday evening from their visit at the home of their son-in-law, G. Wallace, at Del Rapids, South Dakota, they bringing them across country in an automobile. Mr. Hansen says that they have a great potato crop there, and also that corn is good. He estimates some pieces as good for 50 bushel per acre, and Mr. H. knows a corn field when he sees it.

The opera house is being fixed up and cleaned up for the coming season, and the first attraction there will be the Six University Girls, the evening of October 26. They provide an entertainment that meets the general demand of the entertainment loving people for a high class singing and playing company. They come under the auspices of the Wayne Lyceum entertainment organization, which is sufficient guarantee that the company have talent and that of the right kind. They introduce some novelty features that are excellent and new, and the appeal to you is on the merit of the attraction.

Here is what Ex-President Taft is reported to have said regarding the present situation and the attitude of President Wilson: "We are the principal nation, and I might say the only nation, of the Christian world not so related to the struggle that both sides may really regard us as disinterested friends. It is our highest duty, and the President makes plain his appreciation of this, not sacrifice and destroy this great leverage for successful mediation, when the opportunity arises, by ill-advised and premature judgments upon the merits. We must hold our tongues to be useful to mankind."

Bastian Brothers sold forty-nine head of cattle to Geo. W. Wilson & Son Wednesday of this week. Two years ago Bastian Bros., bought thirty-one head of cattle and paid $800 for them. Last fall they shipped five head to the Chicago market and with the herd sold to Wilson & Son, they received a total of $2125, three head died and they have eight head left. Their only expense on the herd was $128 paid for a school section for grazing purposes and the taxes. One man has taken care of the herd besides doing the other work around the place and it is said people cannot make a living in Perkins county.—Chance Record.

CHAPTER IX.

The Leap in the Dark.

So far as Jones was concerned, he was rather pleased with the turn of affairs. This was no time for love-making; no time for silly, innocuous quarrels and bickerings, in which love must indulge or die. Florence no longer rode horseback, and Norton returned to his accustomed haunts, where no one made the slightest attempt upon his life. In his present state of mind he would have welcomed it.

"What's the matter with Jim?" asked the night city editor, raising his eye shade.

"I don't know," answered the copy reader.

"Goes around as if he'd been eating dope; bumped into the boss a while ago and never stopped to apologize." "Perhaps he's mopping out the front page for that Hargreave stuff," laughed the copy reader. "Between you and me and the gate post, I don't believe there ever was a man by the name of Hargreave."

"Oh, there was a chap by that name, all right. He's dead. A man can't swim 300 miles in rough water; life buoy or no. They ought to have funeral services, and let it go at that." "But what was the reason for that fake cable from Gibraltar saying that Orts was alive? I don't see any sense in that."

"The man who pulled it off did. I think, for my part, that both Orts and Hargreave are dead, and that the man picked up by the tramp steamer Orient was riding some other balloon."

"You're wrong there. The description of it proved that it was Orts' machine. Oh, Jim probably has got a man's size yarn up his sleeve; but he's a long time in delivering the goods. He's beginning to mope a good deal. Woman back of it somewhere. Haven't held down this copy job for twelve years without being able to make some tolerable guesses. Jim's a star man. When he gets started nothing can stop him. He covered the Chinese Boxer rebellion better than any other correspondent there. I wonder how old he is?"

"O, I should say about thirty-one or two. Here he comes now. 'Lo, Jim!" "Hello! Where's Ford? He gave me a ticket to the theater tonight, and I want to punch his head. What's the drama coming to, anyhow? Cigarettes and booze and mismatched couples. Can't they find good enough things out of doors? Oh, I know. They enter to a lot of fools who believe that what they see is an expression of high life."

"A bit stubborn. He wants to handle it without police assistance."

"And he's right. We are not aiming to arrest anyone," sinisterly. "There can't be any draw to this game. Here, no smoking. Too much gas afloat."

Norton put the cigarettes back into his pocket. "What's the real news?" he demanded. "You would not bring me out here just to rebandage that arm. It really did not need it. Come out with it."

"You're sharp."

"I've paid to be sharp."

"I've found where the Black Hundred holds its sessions."

"By George, that's news!"

"The room above is vacant. A little hole in the ceiling, and who knows what might happen?"

"What do you want me to do?"

"Tell Jones. When the next meeting come around I'll advise you. I've stumbled upon a dissatisfied member. So, buck up, as they say. We've got two ends of the net down, and with a little care we'll have them all. Now let me have a hundred."

Norton drew out a packet of bills and counted off five twenties.

"Why don't you draw the cash yourself?"

"It happens to be in your name, son."

"I forgot," said Norton. "But what a chance for me! Nearly five thousand, all mine for a ticket to Algiers!"

A grunt was the only reply.

"I want you to tell me about the Perigoff woman."

"I know only one thing—that Braine is there every night."

"No!"

"The orders are for you to play the game just as you are playing it. When we strike, it must be the last blow. All this hide-and-seek business may look foolish to you. It's like that Japanese game called 'jo.' It looks simple, but chess is a tyro's game beside it. Can you find your way back all right?"

"I can."

"Well, you'd better be going. That's all the light I have in this torch here. Got a lot to do tomorrow and need sleep."

Norton stole away with great caution. His first intention was to proceed straight to the city, but despite his resolution he found himself within a quarter of an hour gazing up at the windows of the Hargreave house. "Not at home!"

Quite unconscious of the fact, he was as close to death as any mortal man might care to be. The policeman suddenly looming up under the arc lamp proved to be his savior.

The lull made Jones doubly alert. He was positive that they were preparing to strike again. But from what direction and in what manner? He had not met the gift of clairvoyance, so he had to wait; and waiting is a terrible game when perhaps death is balancing the scales. It is always easier to make an assault than to await it; and it is a good general who always finds himself prepared.

But it made his heart ache to watch the child. She went about cheerfully—when any one was in the room with her. Many a time, however, he had heard the heart-rending sobs, a vain attempt being made to stifle them among the pillows. She was only eighteen; it was first love; and first loves are pale, evanescent attachments. It hurt now; but she would get over it presently. Youth forgets. Time, like water, smooths away the ragged places.

The countess called regularly. She was, of course, dreadfully sorry over what had happened. She had heard something about his character; newspaper men weren't always the best. This one was a mere fortune hunter; a two faced one, at that. She was never more surprised in her life when he threw his arms around her. And so on, and so forth, half lies and half truths, till the patient Jones felt like wringing her neck.

From his vantage point the butler smiled ironically. He could read the heart of this Perigoff woman as he could read the page of a book. The effrontery! And all the while he must gravely admit her and pretend when the blood roiled in his veins at the sight of her. But he dared not savor a single inch from the plans laid down. It was a cup of bitter gall, and there was no way of avoiding the putting of it to his lips. She emanated poison as nightshade emanates it, the upas tree. And he must bow when she entered and bow when she left! Still, she had done him an indirect favor in breaking up this love business.

One afternoon Braine summoned his runabout and called up two physicians. When he was ushered into the deserted office of the first he sent his card in. The doctor replied in person. His face was pale and his hands shook.

"Good afternoon," said Braine, smiling affably.

The doctor eyed him like a man hypnotized. "You . . . you wished to see me on some particular business?"

"Very particular," dryly. "My car is outside. Will you be so good as to accompany me?"

The doctor slowly went into the hall for his hat and coat. He left the house and got into the car with never a word of protest.

"Thinking?" said Braine.

"I am always thinking whenever I see your evil face. What devilment do you require of me this time?"

"A mere stroke of the pen."

"Where are we going?"

"To call on another physician of your standing," significantly. "It is a great thing to have friends like you two. Always ready to serve us, for the mere love . . ."

It Had All the Hallmarks of an Affectionate Embrace.

"There's no need of using that kind of talk to me. You have me in the hollow of your hand. Why should I bother to deny it? I have broken the law. I broke it because I was starving."

"It is better to starve in freedom than to eat fat joints up the river. Today it is a question of sanity."

"And you want me to assist in signing away the liberty of some person who is perfectly sane?"

"The nail on the head," urbanely.

"You're a fine scoundrel!"

"Not so loud!" warningly.

"As loud as I please. I am not forgetting that you need me. I'm no coward. I recognize that you hold the whip hand. But you can send me to the chair before I'll crawl to you. Now, leave me alone for a while."

The other physician had no such qualms of conscience. He was ready at all times for the generous emoluments which accrued from his dealings with the man Braine.

The Countess Perigoff was indispensed; so it was quite in the order of things that she should summon physicians.

There is a law in the state of New York—just or unjust, whichever you please—that reads that any person may be adjudged insane if the signatures of two registered physicians are affixed to the document. It does not say that these physicians shall have been proved reputable.

There were, besides the physicians, a motherly looking woman and a man of benign countenance. Their faces were valuable assets. To gain another person's confidence is, perhaps, among the greatest human achievements. A confidence man and woman in the real sense of the word. In your mind's eye you could see this man carrying the contribution plate down the aisle on Sunday mornings, and his wife Kate putting her mite on the plate for the benefit of some poor, untidy Hottentot.

On Tuesday of the following week Florence and Susan went shopping. The chauffeur was a strong young fellow whom Jones relied upon. If you pay a man well and hold out fine promises, you generally can trust him. As their car left the corner another followed leisurely. This second automobile contained Thomas Wendt and his wife Kate. The two young women stopped at the great dry goods shop near the public library, and for the time being naturally forgot everything but the marvels which had come from all parts of the world. It is as natural for a woman to buy as it is for a man to sell.

In some manner or other Florence became separated from Susan. She hunted through aisle after aisle, but could not find her; for the simple reason that Susan was hunting for her. It occurred to the girl that Susan might have wisely concluded the best place to wait would be in the taxicab. And so Florence hurried out into the street, into the arms of the Wendt family, who were patiently awaiting her.

The trusted chauffeur had been sent round to the side entrance by the major domo. The young lady had so requested, so he said.

Florence struggled and called for the policeman, who came running up, followed by the usual idle, curious crowd.

"The poor young woman is insane," said the motherly Kate, tears in her eyes. The benign Thomas looked at heaven. "We are her keepers."

"It is not true!" cried Florence desperately.

"She has the hallucination that she is the daughter of the millionaire Stanley Hargreave." And Thomas exhibited his document, which was perfectly legal, so far as appearances went.

"Hurry up and get her off the walk. I can't have the crowd growing any larger," said the policeman, convinced.

So, despite her cries and protestations, Florence was hustled into the automobile, even the policeman lending a hand.

"Poor young thing!" he said to the crowd. "Come, now, move on. I can't have the walk blocked up. Get a gait on you."

He was congratulating himself upon the orderliness of the affair when a keen-eyed young man in the garb of a chauffeur touched his shoulder.

"What's this I hear about an insane woman?" he demanded.

"She was insane, all right. They had papers to prove it. She kept crying that she was Stanley Hargreave's daughter."

"My God!" The young man saw his forehead in deep furrows. "You ass, was Stanley Hargreave's daughter, and they've kidnaped her right under your nose! What was the number of that car?"

"Cut out that line of talk, young fellow! I know my business. They had the proper documents."

"But you hadn't brains enough to inquire whether they were genuine or not! You wait!" shrieked the chauffeur. "I'll have you broken for this work." He wheeled and ran back to his car, to find Susan and the countess in a great state of agitation. "They got her, they got her! And I swore on the book that they never should, so long as I drove the car."

Susan wept, and the countess tried in vain to console her.

And when Jones was informed he frightened even the countess with the snarl of rage which burned across his lips. He tore into the hall, seized his hat, and was gone. Not a word of reproach did he offer to the chauffeur.

"My God!" The young man saw his forehead in deep furrows. "You ass, was Stanley Hargreave's daughter, and they've kidnaped her right under your nose! What was the number of that car?"

"Cut out that line of talk, young fellow! I know my business. They had the proper documents."

"But you hadn't brains enough to inquire whether they were genuine or not! You wait!" shrieked the chauffeur. "I'll have you broken for this work." He wheeled and ran back to his car, to find Susan and the countess in a great state of agitation. "They got her, they got her! And I swore on the book that they never should, so long as I drove the car."

Susan wept, and the countess tried in vain to console her.

A good many of the passengers were mightily worried when they learned that the wireless had in some mysterious way been tampered with after the boat had made the open sea. It was impossible to put about. The apparatus must be fixed at sea.

And when finally Norton's wireless caught the wires of the George Washington he was gravely informed that the young lady referred to had leaped the rail off the Banks . . . night and had been drowned. She had not been missed till the following morning.

NEBRASKA NEWS

Case Started in Dawes County

Appealed to Supreme Court.

ACTION OVER INJURY TO BOY.

Neglect on Part of Engineer Is Urged. Controversy Over Bridge Between Brown and Keya Paha Counties. Organized Agriculture Plans.

Lincoln, Oct. 20.—An appeal to the supreme court from Dawes county was made which involves the right of an individual to trespass on railway property. The case is one brought by George W. Means in the Dawes county district court against the Minneapolis and Omaha railroad for the death of his son, James, near Seneca, S. D.

It appears that the son was badly hurt in rescuing a boy named Sherman, who was lying on the track of the company. Both were playing in the vicinity and the Sherman boy laid down on the track. The Means boy saw the approaching train and in rescuing the other was hit by the locomotive and dangerously hurt.

The father sued the company for $2,000 damages, claiming that if the engineer of the train had been looking he could have seen the boy lying on the track in plenty of time to stop the train. The company set up a defense that the boys were trespassing and therefore the company was not liable, and the court jury decided against the plaintiff, who appeals.

Controversy Over Bridge.

Another case filed in the court was brought by the commissioners of Brown county to resist a judgment secured against the county by Keya Paha county in the amount of $2,053.

It is alleged by the latter county that the amount is due as Brown county's share for rebuilding a bridge over the Niobrara river at Springview, which had been washed out by the spring freshets and ice. The former bridge was built by the two counties and is in reality two bridges, an island in the center of the river dividing the two. The freshet carried out the Keya Paha end of the bridge and this county wants Brown to help pay for it. Brown county, on the other hand, sets up the plea that as the bridge was on the Keya Paha side of the river that it cannot be held for the amount and that Rock county, which is also on the line of the bridge, should also have been made a party to the suit and made to pay its share.

King May Hold Place.

O. J. King, city commissioner of Lincoln, can retain his office to the end of the term for which he was elected, the supreme court holding that a recall petition filed by citizens of Lincoln and rejected by City Clerk Thomas H. Berg did not contain a sufficient number of signatures of legal voters. The city clerk rejected all names on the recall petition which did not appear on the regular voters' register. The court holds that while a man's right to vote is not taken away by his failure to register, the right to sign a recall petition is different from the voting privilege.

More Men in Prison.

The population at the penitentiary has increased during the last month, fifteen more prisoners being on the roster than was shown in the report made Sept. 1. The number at that time was given as 345. Additions were as follows: Commitments, 31; returned from parole, 4; recommitment, 1. There was one discharge during September, with 18 paroles and 2 transfers, making the total Oct. 1, 360.

Organized Agriculture Plans.

Members of the societies composing organized agriculture are already planning for the January meetings in Lincoln. Chairman Mellor has called a meeting of the presidents and secretaries of the various societies or organized agriculture to meet at the office of the state board of agriculture, Oct. 30. A committee chosen by these representatives will plan and conduct the midwinter meetings.

Bank Reports Reveal Growth.

In the 757 state banks of Nebraska there is deposited $4,507,731, according to a report prepared by Secretary Royce of the state banking board, and this amount was deposited by 342,982 depositors, as the banks show at the close of business Sept. 21. Since May 16 resources have increased $5,419, 257.18; loans and discounts, $3,064, 223.16; due from banks and cash, $2, 187,952.75.

Special Train for Bryan's Tour.

The special train feature of former campaign speaking trips of Mr. Bryan will not be entirely eliminated by the Democratic state committee when Mr. Bryan makes his swing around the circle, beginning Oct. 30. Regular trains or automobiles will be used a portion of the time, but in some instances a special train will be used.

Gompers Indorses Compensation Act.

F. M. Coffey, secretary treasurer of the Nebraska State Federation of Labor, received a letter of indorsement of the Nebraska workmen's compensation act from Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Woman's Federation Favors Suffrage.

Pawnee City, Neb., Oct. 17.—Equal suffrage was indorsed by a practically unanimous vote of the Nebraska Federation of Woman's Clubs at the close of an address by Miss Lottie Sterns of Wisconsin, director of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs.

ENGINEERS FILE REPORT

Committee Favors Water From Platte For Dry Counties.

Lincoln, Oct. 20.—Favoring the use of water from the Platte river for irrigation purposes in the counties of Gosper, Phelps and Kearney, the special committee appointed to look into the proposition, consisting of R. F. Walters, supervising engineer of the United States reclamation service; Mr. Pease, engineer of the same service; George E. Condra, director Nebraska water supply service, and D. D. Price, state engineer, have filed their report with the state board of irrigation.

The engineers find that 340,000 acre feet are available for irrigation in these counties which can be used from March 1 to June 30 of each year, thus insuring a good wheat crop and immense benefit to other crops. They find that there is sufficient flood water in the Platte river over and above what is required for other projects between the dates mentioned for the use of the territory named.

Only 1,000 feet of water is being used below North Platte and the committee recommends that the state cancel all appropriations above the 1,000 acre feet now used, and that no steps be taken to carry out the project recommended until all appropriations are cancelled.

The committee finds that after such appropriations are cancelled about 140,000 acre feet can be delivered to the land embraced in the project between the dates mentioned, but none after that time. The cost for that number of acres will be from $30 to $35 per acre.

SCHOOL TEACHERS TO MEET

Boards of Education to Send Teachers to Omaha Convention.

Omaha, Oct. 19.—Many school boards throughout the state are dismissing school for the State Teachers' association meeting in Omaha, Nov. 4, 5 and 6, and in addition are paying the expenses of the teachers to the meeting. Schuyler was the first to notify the executive committee that the teachers would be sent at the expense of the district.

Miss Kate McHugh, president of the association, states that the attendance this year will be greater than that of previous years. She has visited many sections of the state and everywhere received assurances of representative delegations.

The talent this year surpasses that of former years. In addition to the speakers announced, L. D. Coffman of the University of Illinois has accepted a place on the program. He will speak Friday morning, his subject being "The Threefold Purposes of Education."

The concert to be given by Mme. Gerville-Treche to the teachers is the occasion of much favorable comment.

BOONE COUNTY TO RESIST

Will Fight Payment of Claims For Back Insanity Fees.

Lincoln, Oct. 19.—According to information given out by County Commissioner Cavey of Boone county, who, with representatives of the counties, the state auditor will sue in the supreme court to recover amounts due on the old insane accounts, the counties will resist payment and will endeavor to get a reversal of the former decision in the Douglas county case, wherein that county resisted payment of the claims and lost.

Two counties at different times have gone into the courts to resist payment—Douglas and Cass—and both have lost. Douglas county was compelled to pay the state $96,640.51 after judgment had been rendered.

A tax was levied by Boone county commissioners to pay the claims, but from time to time the county commissioners by an action of the court turned the amounts back into the general fund.

Farmers Plant All Winter Wheat Seed.

Omaha, Oct. 20.—The seed time, the growing and the harvesting season having practically ended so far as Nebraska is concerned, the Burlington is out with its last crop and soil report of the year. The issuance of the reports will be resumed next spring. In the Burlington's crop report of current date, it is asserted that all over Nebraska, with the exception of a small area in the southwest corner, plowing and the seeding of winter wheat has been completed. Everywhere the conditions are the most favorable in years.

Santa Fe May Run Farther North.

Superior, Neb., Oct. 19.—The Santa Fe railroad has this summer had a gang of 100 men laying heavy rails and finished up the track from here to Strong City on the main line of the Santa Fe. The road connected with the Northwestern road at the state line about a year ago. It has finished a fine steel bridge, at a cost of over $40,000, over the Republican river, which many think means the Santa Fe will go north.

Harriet A. Pomeroy Dead.

Ponca, Neb., Oct. 20.—Harriet A. Pomeroy, present deputy clerk of the district court, died after a short illness. Miss Pomeroy had served for ten years in her present position and previously had held for seven years the office of deputy county treasurer.

Judge Zum Is Dead.

Alliance, Neb., Oct. 19.—Gregory Zum, fifty-six years old, for the last four years police magistrate of Alliance, died in his home here after a prolonged illness of heart trouble. He was one of the pioneer residents of Box Butte county.

LIVE STOCK PRICES AT SOUTH OMAHA

Cattle Continue Downward, Being 25c Off For Two Days.

ANOTHER DECLINE IN HOGS.

Prices Rule Generally a Dime Higher on Sheep and Lambs—Packers Keen Competitors—Broad Demand in Feeders.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Oct. 21.—About 7,000 cattle arrived yesterday. Corn-fed cattle form such an insignificant proportion of the receipts that they naturally cut very little figure in the market. Trade was slow for the few that were here, although, perhaps, not quotably lower than Monday. The short fed and warmed up grades are in the neighborhood of a dollar lower than a month ago. Quality of the western range cattle was very poor as a rule and it looks as though the ranchmen were cleaning up for the winter. The general market for both beef and feeding steers was pretty close to a dime lower than Monday, or fully a quarter off for the two days. As compared with a week ago, values are 30¢ to 50¢ lower on an average. Cows and heifers were off again yesterday, making new low prices for the season all round. Stocker and feeder trade was very dull, the bulk of the stuff moving slow, at prices that were fully a quarter lower than the latter part of last week.

Cattle quotations: Good to choice yearlings, $9.50@10.00; good to choice heaves, $9.00@10.00; fair to good heaves, $8.00@8.75; common to fair heaves, $7.25@8.00; good to choice heifers, $6.25@7.00; good to choice cows, $5.75@6.25; fair to good cows, $5.00@5.65; canners and cutters, $4.00@5.00; veal calves, $7.50@10.00; bulls, stags, etc., $4.50@6.25; prime feeding steers, $8.00@8.40; good to choice feeders, $7.30@8.00; fair to good feeders, $6.75@7.25; common to fair feeders, $6.00@6.60; stock heifers, $5.00@5.75; stock cows, $4.50@5.75; stock calves, $6.00@8.00; choice to prime heaves, $8.00@8.50; good to choice range heaves, $7.40@8.00; fair to good range heaves, $6.75@7.25; common to fair heaves, $5.75@6.50.

Some 4,600 hogs showed up yesterday. Values took another drop, prices being just about a dime lower than Monday. Advices from all other points were of a discouraging nature. Bulk of the supply moved at $6.85@7.00, and tops reached $7.15.

Sheep and lamb receipts totaled 32,000 head. In a sense, it was a day for feeder buyers, as the feeder supply was liberal, including all grades of feeders, both sheep and lambs. Naturally trade was active and the best grades held up fully steady with Monday. Heavy lambs and the common to medium kinds as a rule were a little cheaper, there being as much as 10¢ to 15¢ decline in some instances. Good killers of all kinds were in good demand and fully a dime higher than Monday. Quite a number of lambs brought $7.50, the top.

Quotations on range sheep and lambs: Lambs, good to choice, $7.40@7.60; lambs, fair to good, $7.10@7.40; lamb, feeders, $6.00@7.10; yearlings, good to choice, $5.85@6.10; yearlings, fair to good, $5.60@5.85; yearlings, feeders, $5.40@5.90; wethers, good to choice, $5.25@5.60; wethers, fair to good, $5.10@5.25; wethers, feeders, $4.30@4.85; ewes, good to choice, $4.75@5.00; ewes, fair to good, $4.50@4.75; ewes, feeders, $3.50@4.25.

Early Rising. Bbbs.—I believe in early rising, don't you? Gbbs.—Well, there's no abstract excellence in early rising. It all depends on what you do after you rise. It would be better for the world if some people never got up.—London Telegraph.

"Safety Always" ESPECIALLY WITH MEDICINE

Where health is concerned, "Safety always" should be uppermost. It is best to take extra precaution that no unforeseen fatality may result. Medicine is taken for its curative power in bringing about recovery from illness, but unless it is compounded absolutely right in every respect it cannot accomplish all it should. Even if it is not right in the smallest way, medicine is no medicine at all and there is danger of it doing more harm than good. That's why "safety always" in having medicines made is most important. You are safe when you have them compounded at our store. Prescriptions brought here are filled carefully and accurately, with the best materials, equipment, and experience. Let us fill your next prescription for safety sake.

Wilson Commends Congress Work

Washington, Oct. 19.—President Wilson has made public letter to Majority Laeder Underwood of the house in which he reviewed the achievements of his administration, outlined the program for the next session of congress, and declared "the democratic party is now in fact the only instrument ready to the country's hand by which anything can be accomplished."

The president wrote the letter as an endorsement of all democratic members of congress in lieu of speeches he said he would like to make in every congressional district. He predicted a victory for his party in the elections because "every thoughtful man sees that a change of parties just now would set the clock back, not forward," and because "a practical nation is not likely to reject such a team, full of the spirit of public service, and substitute, in the midst of great tasks, either a party upon which a deep demoralization has fallen, or a party which has not grown to a stature that would warrant its assuming the responsible burdens of state."

The legislative program begun during the present congress was declared by the president to have been begun "to destroy private control and set business free." He said that the people of the country had been served by this congress as "they have never been served before."

Mrs. Summers from Malvern, Iowa, and her daughter, Mrs. Chantry from Tabor, Iowa, came last week to visit at the home of John Lewis and wife in this city, the elder lady being Mrs. Lewis' mother. Monday evening the three ladies left here for Meadow Grove to visit another daughter, of Mrs. Summers, and from there they will go to Plainview to visit Mrs. M. Taylor, daughter of Mrs. Lewis. Mrs. Summers, with whom we had a short visit, tells us that she was among the pioneers of the country near Malvern, coming there in a covered wagon 58 years ago, and has made her home there since, and says that she feels that she belongs there now. In spite of her almost four score of years she appears hale and hearty and moves about as spry as lots of younger women. They also visited at the home of her nephew here, James Perdue.

PRO. OSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. ONE.
 The following proposed amendment to
 the constitution of the State of Nebraska,
 as hereinafter set forth in full, is submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska, to be voted upon at the general election to be held Tuesday, November 3rd,
 A. D. 1914.
FOR A Joint resolution to amend section
1 of Article 9 of the Constitution of the State of Nebraska, relating to revenue.
 Be it Resolved and Enacted by the People
 of the State of Nebraska:
 Section 1. That Section 1 of Article 9
 of the Constitution of the State of Nebraska be amended to read as follows:
 Sec. 1. The rules of taxation shall be uniform as to any given class and taxes shall be levied upon such property as the Legislature shall prescribe. Taxes may also be imposed on incomes, privileges and occupations, which taxes may be graduated and progressive and reasonable exemptions may be provided, in addition to those hereinafter specifically mentioned in section 2 of this article.

Sec. 2. That at the general election in November, 1914, there shall be submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska for their approval or rejection the foregoing proposed amendment to the Constitution in the following form: "For amendment to the Constitution providing for uniform and progressive taxation," and against said proposed amendment to the Constitution providing for uniform and progressive taxation.
 Approved, March 27, 1913.
 I, Addison Wait, Secretary of State,
 of the State of Nebraska, do hereby certify
 that the foregoing proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Nebraska is a true and correct copy of the original enrolled and engrossed bill, as passed by the Thirty-third session of the Legislature of the State of Nebraska, as appears from said original bill on file in this office, and that said proposed amendment is submitted to the qualified voters of the State of Nebraska for their adoption or rejection at the general election to be held on Tuesday, the 3rd day of November, A. D. 1914.
 In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Great Seal
 of the State of Nebraska.

FOR A Joint resolution to amend Section
six (6) of Article one (1) of the Constitution of the State of Nebraska.
 Be it Enacted by the People of the State of Nebraska:
 Section 1. That Section six (6) of Article one (1) of the Constitution of the State of Nebraska be amended to read as follows:
 Section 6. The right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate; but in all civil cases and in criminal cases less than felonies, five-sixths of the jury may render a verdict and the Legislature may authorize trial by a jury of a less number than twelve men in courts inferior to the district courts.
 Sec. 2. That at the general election for state and legislative officers to be held in the State of Nebraska on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in 1914, there shall be printed upon the ballot of each elector for his approval or rejection the above and foregoing amendment in the following form: "For proposed amendment to the constitution providing that in all civil cases and in criminal cases less than felonies, five-sixths of the jury may render a verdict," and against the proposed amendment to the Constitution provided that in all civil cases and in criminal cases less than felonies, five-sixths of the jury may render a verdict.
 Approved, April 1, 1913.
 I, Addison Wait, Secretary of State,
 of the State of Nebraska, do hereby certify

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. THREE.
 The following proposed amendment to
 the constitution of the State of Nebraska,
 as hereinafter set forth in full, is submitted to the electors of the State of Nebraska, to be voted upon at the general election to be held Tuesday, November 3rd,
 A. D. 1914.
FOR A joint resolution proposing amendments to Section 1, of Article V, and Section 24, of Article V, of the Constitution of Nebraska, relating to term of office and salary of Governor and other executive officers.
 Be it Resolved and Enacted by the People
 of the State of Nebraska:
 Section 1. That at the general election for state and legislative officers, to be held on the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday in November, 1914, the following be submitted as amendments to the Section 1, of Article V, of the Constitution of Nebraska:
 Sec. 1. The executive department shall consist of a Governor, who shall hold his office for a term of two years from the first Thursday after the first Tuesday in January, next after his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified. In addition to the Governor, the executive department shall include the following officers: Lieutenant Governor,
 Secretary of State, Auditor of Public Accounts, Treasurer, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Attorney General, and Commissioner of Public Lands and Buildings, each of whom shall hold his office for the term of two years from the first Thursday after the first Tuesday in January, next after his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Provided, however, that the first election of said officers shall be held on the Tuesday
 succeeding the first Monday in November, 1914, and each succeeding election shall be held at the same relative time in each year thereafter. The Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor of Public Accounts, and Treasurer shall reside at the seat of government during their terms of office, and shall keep the public records, books and papers there, and shall perform such duties as may be required by law.
 Sec. 24. The salary of the Governor shall be five thousand dollars ($5,000) per annum. The salaries of Auditor of State, Superintendent of Public Instruction and Commissioner of Public Lands and Buildings shall be one thousand five hundred dollars ($1,500) per annum, and of the Attorney General, four thousand dollars ($4,000) per annum. The salary of the State Treasurer shall be three thousand dollars ($3,000) per annum, and the Lieutenant Governor shall receive one and one-half the compensation of a senator,
 and after the expiration of this constitution they shall not receive to their own use any fees, costs, interests upon public moneys in their hands, or under their control, or any compensation or other compensation, and all fees that may hereafter be payable by law for services performed by an officer provided for in this article shall inure to the public treasury. There shall be no allowance for clerk hire in the offices of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and Attorney General.
 Sec. 2. That at the general election on the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday in November, 1914, on the ballot of each elector shall be printed the following proposed amendments to the constitution, fixing the term of office and salary for governor and other executive officers, and against the proposed amendments to the constitution, fixing the term of office and salary for governor and other executive officers.
 Approved, April 21, 1913.
 I, Addison Wait, Secretary of State,
 of the State of Nebraska, do hereby certify
 that the foregoing proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Nebraska is a true and correct copy of the
 original enrolled and engrossed bill, as

KEEPING INSECTS DOWN.
 Good Farming Methods Necessary to Entire Success of Spraying.
 The vast amount of insect injury done to garden and truck crops throughout the United States can be greatly lessened, but not entirely controlled, by intelligent spraying, in order to make the success of spraying methods complete they must be supplemented by good farming methods.
 It is estimated that the value of truck
 crops in the United States is $300,000,- 000 annually. It is also estimated that fully 20 per cent of this value is destroyed by insect ravages. This gives the enormous sum of $60,000,000 sacrificed annually to the greedy pests that infest our truck and garden patches.
 While there are scores of kinds of insects that do more or less damage to these crops, the number of insects that are serious pests in any one community is usually somewhat limited. This number can be still further reduced and made less harmful to the crops by learning their general life history and their feeding habits and then planning
 the planting and cultivation of crops
 in such a way as to thwart their fiercest attacks.
 "A knowledge of the insects' life history and general habits becomes an essential part of the education of successful growers," says Professor A. L.
 Lovett, research assistant entomologist
 at the Oregon Agricultural college.
 "With this knowledge growers may look ahead and so manage their land and crops so as to avoid the most serious losses. The cultural system involves careful rotation of crops, fall,
 winter and spring plowing, clean-cultivation, general cleaning up of roadways, fence corners and trash about the field, the most opportune time of planting, the proper use of fertilizers,
 the use of truck crops and the frequent examination of young plants for insect pests.
 "The use of insecticides also is essential to the highest production of first class truck and garden crops.
 While spraying unaided by cultural methods is more or less inefficient, when practiced in connection with them it will reduce insect injury almost to negligible amount.
 "Another feature of insect control by natural methods is the encouragement of birds and beneficial insects.
 Practically every bird is good for from 100 to 500 insects per day when insects are plentiful. Knowing this, no truckster or gardener will kill them or drive them away. It is especially detrimental to crops in small lots and in the city, because when these guardians of the crops are driven away there are few or none others to take their place.
 "Having done all these things that are helpful to farming and harmful to insects, intelligent spraying will practically complete the destruction of the insects and end the serious injury that they do to the crops."

Serviceable Disk Grinder.
 The accompanying cut shows a good,
 cheap, serviceable disk grinder. The grinder consists of a small emery wheel stand, which may be purchased for a few dollars; an emery wheel eight inches in diameter and one inch wide and a special rest, marked C.
 When purchasing a grinding wheel be sure to tell the dealer for what the wheel is to be used. Wheels vary in grit and hardness, and a wheel suitable for one class of work may be a failure on other work. As a rule, the harder the material to be ground the softer the wheel to be used. Other materials have largely taken the place of emery for making grinding wheels.

APPLYING LAND PLASTER.
 The fear that the application of land
 plaster makes soils acid is unfounded.
 At least it is doubtful if the small amount generally applied has any serious and immediate influence upon the acidity of the soil.
 This is the belief of E. B. Hart of the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, who from time to time has carried on numerous experiments to determine the influence of applying land plaster, rock phosphate and other fertilizers to fields upon which various crop rotations were followed.
 The theory that land plaster applied to soil would make it acid is based on the assumption that the plants remove from the soil more calcium than sulphur, thereby leaving behind a greater proportion of the acid part of the land plaster. On the contrary, it has been shown that the common cereals—oats, wheat, corn, barley and such other plants as the turnip, rutabaga, cabbage and onion—make positively greater demands for sulphur than for calcium, and applications of land plaster for such crops will tend to make the soils alkaline rather than acid. Such plants as the meadow grasses, clover, alfalfa, sugar beets and tobacco use more calcium than sulphur, and in their case the application of land plaster would have a tendency toward developing acid soil. Potatoes use about equal amounts of calcium and sulphur, and it is certain that land plaster could not possibly influence soil reaction in this case.

The Rural Telephone
 In the United States the telephone has been extended to small towns, farms and ranches much more generally than in any other country.
 In American towns of under 100,000 people, and on the farms and ranches, there is an average of one telephone for every 12 persons; in Europe there is less than one telephone for every 200 people.
 Nearly 58% of American telephone exchanges are in very small towns with less than 300 subscribers.
 In the small towns and on the farms in Europe the telephone is a near curiosity.
 The private companies in America have given the American people the lowest telephone rates anywhere and have extended the service until this country now has more telephones and more telephone wire than all the rest of the world.

WAR NEWS SUMMARIZED

British warships and the big guns that laid waste the Antwerp forts contended for mastery in the German effort to seize the French channel ports for a move against England.

Heavy fighting around Dunkirk, between Ostend and Calais, was admitted by both sides, with the French claiming that the Belgian army that fled from Antwerp had hurled back the Germans.

The recapture of Ostend by the allies was also reported, but not officially confirmed.

The Berlin official statement of the day's fighting along the coast declared the German troops had reached the neighborhood of Dunkirk and that the inhabitants of that city and of Boulogne were fleeing. The French war office also claimed gains in the fighting between Arras and Roye and near St. Mihiel on the right bank of the Meuse, while the German statement was silent on operations in these quarters.

In the eastern theater of war, an Austrian statement claimed that the Russians had lost 40,000 men in fruitless attacks upon Przemysl.

Shell fire from howitzers in the German fortress of Tsingtau has heavily damaged Great Britain's battleship Triumph and compelled it to withdraw from the British-Japanese bombarding fleet, according to a statement issued by the German staff.

It is officially announced at Tokyo that the Japanese cruiser Takachibo was sunk by a mine in Kiauchau bay with the loss of 274 men.

A struggle for the possession of the strip of French sea coast that is nearest the shores of England is the most interesting phase of the war situation.

Rains that caused much suffering to the troops in France earlier in the campaign are falling again on the battlefield so continuously that great hardships result to the men, and military maneuvers are made more difficult.

Germans and Austrians have encountered bad weather in Russian Poland, heavy roads delaying the movement of their artillery. They claim, however, to be making progress along the Vistula. Petrograd asserts that the invasion has been definitely checked.

Turkey has declined to discharge the German crews of the cruisers Goeben and Breslau, and has shelved the whole matter, although it had previously repeated assurances that these Germans would be repatriated.

Serious anti-German riots, during which twenty or more shops were wrecked, occurred in London. German bakeries, butcher shops and saloons were stormed by the angry mobs, which, in many instances, pillaged the homes of the proprietors, who lived above their shops.

The steamer Brindilla, flying the American flag, was brought into Halifax as a prize of war by the British cruiser Geronia. The Brindilla was formerly the German steamer Washington.

The French official statement says that the German troops occupying western Belgium have not crossed the line running from Ostend south to Menin. The allied troops have occupied Fleurbaix and the immediate approaches to Armentieres, it is announced, while further gains are claimed in the region of Arras and the vicinity of St. Mihiel.

A newspaper dispatch says that a German column has been hurled back with heavy casualties by the allies in the Vosges. Another newspaper report has it that the Germans have been driven from Lille. Berlin announces that a gigantic battle is preparing in the eastern theater, where the Austro-German forces have taken positions along the Vistula and San rivers.

Vienna states officially that fighting continues along the entire battle front from Stry and Sambor, both to the southeast of Przemysl and to the mouth of the San.

The most recent advices from Petrograd claimed Russian successes in Russian Poland. All sources agree that there is a lull in the struggle on the East Prussia frontier, following battles in which neither army won a decided advantage.

That Emperor William of Germany is following with interest the showing of his soldiers is denoted by the fact that his headquarters have been moved farther into France.

Already the revolting forces in South Africa under Colonel Maritz have been engaged by a column of the Union of South Africa troops and eighty of the rebels captured.

Petrograd reports no change on the eastern Prussian and central Vistula fronts, but claims a victory for a Russian column over the Austrians south of Przemysl.

Vienna reports that, according to official German communication, the Austro-German armies have relieved the fortress of Przemysl.

"Great Britain's cry for help to Portugal," the "chaotic situation in South Africa," and the "revolts in India," according to announcements made in Berlin, are all tending to raise German confidence.

Considerable disquietude prevails in Syrian ports owing to reports that the French contemplate an attack. According to reports from Warsaw, there are at least 800,000 Russians in the Poland campaign.

Lille, France, has been evacuated by the Germans for the third time.

The British cruiser Undaunted, accompanied by two torpedo boat destroyers, has captured a German mine layer in the North sea. The mine layer was disguised as a hospital

The Interference of Kitty

She Was Forgiven

By JOSIAH T. NEWCOMB

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

The galleries were packed to suffocation. The lobby and even the senate floor were crowded. A sharp fight was expected over the merger bill, notwithstanding the confidence of the head of the promoting syndicate, who arrived the night before and established headquarters in a nearby hotel, and of Colonel Moulton, the chairman of the state committee, who kept the run of things from his office on the second floor of the capitol. Both believed they had the situation well in hand until they heard about Kittinger. Then they talked with each other over well guarded telephones, and Moulton sent for the senator.

Neither the first nor a second message brought him. The chairman put on his hat and walked to the governor's room.

"We are beaten. I suppose you know," Moulton said without preface, as he sat down.

"Kittinger has been here," answered the governor.

"What excuse did he give?"

"I did not hear him give any."

"Didn't you discuss the bill with him? Didn't you ask him what is the matter with him?"

"No."

"Then I'd like to know what did you talk about?"

"He did most of the talking. I told him that he was foolish not to see you."

"He isn't coming, then?"

"No. He said he wouldn't."

"George, do you know what this means to us?" the colonel demanded.

"I know what you think it means."

"Yes, and I'm right. It means that you lose the United States senatorship and that we go out of business. That's what it means."

The governor swung around in his chair wearily.

"I suppose you didn't come here just to tell me that again," he said.

"No, I didn't. I did not know that you had seen Kittinger. Anyway, it does not matter. Send for him now, and ask him to vote for the merger."

The governor walked to the window and looked out across the long stretch of dull brown lawn.

"I guess I'll keep out of it, Fred."

He answered presently without turning around.

Just then the door opened, and a girl of twenty stood on the threshold. She held her long riding skirt in her hand.

"Joe said it was important and that I mustn't interrupt, but father promised to go riding with me this morning as soon as he finished his mail. You will forgive me, won't you?"

II.

A little later, when the merger bill was reached on the senate calendar, the majority leader blandly asked that the measure be laid aside for the present. Nobody objected, and the disappointed crowd filed grumblingly out of the galleries. Though they did not understand the delay, few believed that the merger was really beaten. This was the outside view. On the inside Colonel Moulton, Sanderson, head of the promoting syndicate, the governor and two or three others knew that without Kittinger's vote there was a tie. If he voted no the bill was lost.

"Well, find out what he wants," growled Sanderson when the situation was explained to him.

But nobody cared to undertake the task. Kittinger did not understand the game, they felt; and, besides, he might be against the bill on principle. They had heard of such things.

"Can't you call it up when Kittinger is absent?" suggested Sanderson.

They considered this, but not hopefully. The lieutenant governor could be depended upon for the casting vote, but Kittinger was never absent.

III.

Within half an hour after her return from the ride with her father Kitty Millard knew that in respect to the merger bill she had unwittingly put her dainty little foot into it. Such details of the situation as she failed to get from her father she skillfully extracted from Colonel Moulton. She took at face value all that the colonel said about the bearing of the merger bill on her father's political fortunes. This is the reason why she marched into Moulton's office the next morning and offered her services to help pass the bill.

"I'm afraid, though," she admitted, "that I can't do much with father. He has made up his mind not to interfere. He told me that."

"I don't just see, then," began Moulton.

"No, I know you don't," answered Miss Millard, "though you are an old dear. I'm going to capture your senator for you. I've made up my mind."

"Do you know him?"

"Just. I've met him at dinner once or twice. How much time do you give me?"

Moulton was ready to catch at straws, which accounts for his answering seriously.

"If we cannot pass the bill by this time next month we never can," he said.

"Very well," said Miss Millard. "I wish you luck," said the colonel. Kittinger was young, and at first things went swimmingly. He was assigned to take her into dinner an evening or two after the temporary defeat of the merger bill.

Among the privileges enjoyed by those who were crowned with Kitty's royal favor was a license to ride with her in the mornings.

She was unconventional as to grooms. On the morning Kittinger rode with her, for the fourth or fifth time since their more intimate acquaintance began, they went alone.

It was mad riding from the beginning. Kitty intended that it should be. It is useless to excuse or extenuate her conduct. Any defense would fall below the documentary evidence of her guilt in the form of a scribbled note to Colonel Moulton dispatched the night before. It said:

Call up your bill early tomorrow. He will be absent part of the session.

KITTINGER.

The start was early, and they were a good distance from town when Kitty saw the young senator look at his watch. As he shut it with a determined snap the horse that Kitty rode gave an unexpected jump, and the bridle broke. The spirited black went into the air, then sped wildly down the road, headed from town. Kitty cast a wild, appealing glance behind her, with a pitiful little cry, and clung to the saddle.

For perhaps a mile Kittinger was unable to overtake them. Then came an accident which could not have been planned, however dark a view is taken of Kitty's conduct. A team, dragging a long timber wagon, occupied nearly all of the narrow highway. The black swerved suddenly, and Kitty landed in a heap at the side of the road.

Kittinger had forgotten the senate, the merger bill, his public duties, everything except Kitty's danger. He ran to her and lifted her in his arms, and he was conscious of a great thrill of joy and relief, for she opened her eyes and spoke.

"I'm not hurt in the least," she said.

But when she tried to stand on her feet she promptly sank back into Kittinger's arms and fainted dead away.

IV.

Kittinger reached the senate chamber an hour after the merger bill had been called up and passed. Extras were already in the street announcing it.

Kittinger was furious. He rose to a question of personal privilege and denounced the proceeding as a dashingly trick. The leader of the majority, in reply, declared that he was surprised and grieved at the unwarranted charge. He disliked, however, to impute malice to any one, and therefore he would put it down to the youth and inexperience of the senator. Kittinger, unconvinced, marched out of the chamber and down to the office of Colonel Moulton. That genial gentleman, however, was not present to listen to his denunciation. The room was empty, but Kittinger's eye took in at a single glance a scrap of paper carelessly left lying on the chairman's desk. It was Kitty's note to Moulton, and the single glance told Kittinger its contents.

He knew the handwriting. He knew the signature. He rushed out of the room with feelings hard to describe.

V.

For three days an impatient young woman with a plaster cast on her ankle sat up in bed at frequent intervals to look at cards which came with deluges of flowers and fruits and dainty trifles, only to fling them aside and sink back again to her pillows, wholly unsatisfied.

When the doctor announced her recovery from the shock and permitted her to be dressed it was a penitent and remorseful Kitty who wrote a pitiful little note to Senator Kittinger. She said that she had a confession to make and would be please come to her and listen to it; after which he alone should decide what was to be done.

Senator Kittinger came. His indignation lasted until he reached the room where she awaited him, propped up with pillows. She was quite pale, and she extended a wan little hand to him timidly, for she was not sure that he would take it.

He did take it, and on the instant all his anger died out, for he saw again the great black horse with bridle dangling, thundering down the highway and after a huddled little figure lying by the roadway and not stirring for what seemed an eternity until he lifted it in his arms.

And so he held the small hand tightly and went down on one knee beside her, and the only words of reproach which he spoke were:

"Kitty, Kitty, how could you? It was terrible. You might have killed yourself!"

"Wait!" she said. "You do not know how bad I am—how wicked!"

"Yes, I do," he mumbled through the small fingers. But she did not heed.

"You think that I was reckless. That was nothing—nothing. I did not mean to fall off and be hurt, but I broke the bridle on purpose. I planned the runaway. I intended to keep you from getting back in time. I did it deliberately."

"I know all about it," said Kittinger. Kitty looked puzzled.

"You—kissed me—after you knew?" she inquired wonderingly.

He kissed her again to convince her. A few minutes later Governor Millard himself came in. Kittinger was still half kneeling beside the low chair, and there were explanations.

Presently, when Kittinger was taking his departure, the governor called him back.

"By the way, senator," he said, "I have a piece of news which may interest you."

"Yes?" said Kittinger.

"I have just vetoed the merger bill," said the governor.
