SUCCESSFUL EDITORIAL MEET

All Visiting Newspaper Men Loud in Praise of Reception Given by Wayne People. Business Session Profitable

NORFOLK TO GET NEXT MEETING

Yes, the editors came to Wayne Friday and Saturday—about 35 of them, and had a splendid time, so they all said; in spite of the bad weather which kept many other editors at home. Unfortunately both the president and vice-president were kept away, and C. E. Nevin of Laurel was named to preside. When he called the meeting to order City Attorney F. S. Berry bid the visitors welcome, and W. H. Weeks responded gracefully. A constitution was adopted, and the Editorial Association of Northeastern Nebraska was fully born. The remainder of the morning session was devoted to informal discussion of different questions and the enrollment of members. The list of visitors and members, when complete was as follows:

E. S. Mills, Republican, Wakefield.
W. H. Weeks, Press, Norfolk.
D. C. Sutherland, Herald, Tekamah.
B. R. Atkinson, Index, Carroll.
H. H. Pease, Times, Beemer.
C. E. Nevin, Advocate, Laurel.
R. E. Cates, Blade, Bancroft.
J. P. O'Furey, Cedar County News, Hartington.
R. B. Cooley, Journal, Crofton.
M. M. Warner and wife, Mirror, Lyons.

G. A. Mayfield, Pickett, Stanton.
F. D. Stone, Herald, Hartington.
Victor Rosewater, Bee, Omaha.
J. L. Kennedy, Omaha.
L. J. Mayfield, Courier, Louisville.

F. S. Allen, Journal, Sioux City, Iowa.

C. G. Carlton and wife, Independent, Oakland.
E. O. Mayfield, World-Herald, Omaha.

W. G. Squires and wife, Republican, Plainview.
A. H. Backhaus, Leader, Pierce.
H. L. Peck, Times, Randolph.
A. L. Rawson, Sioux City, Iowa.
W. H. Needham, Monitor, Bloomfield.

N. A. Huse, News, Norfolk.
M. W. Murray, Times, Pender, and the Wayne bunch of Huse, Wade, Gardner.

The afternoon session was spent in listening to some excellent papers and talks. Of the excellent paper by Dr. J. T. House we use the comment of another further on in this story. J. J. Ahern read a most excellent paper, "Business and Publicity," showing some of the methods he employs in placing his name and business before the public—and suggesting some excellent improvements for the newspapers in the way of co-operating with the advertiser. His paper should be heard by every merchant and newspaper man in the state. "The Country Merchant and Advertiser" was the subject ably handled by J. P. O'Furey of the Cedar County News, and discussion of that question continued until the hour and automobiles came to take the visitors over the city (sleds would have been better) when all visited the high school and college, as told below.

The 5 o'clock session was taken up by an interesting paper by H. H. Pease of the Beemer Times. His subject, "Running a Blockade," referred chiefly to the grip of the patent print combine on the country press. He does not and would not use them and he is convinced by his own investigation in his field of work that the reader does not care for them. He said the fellow publisher was often one of the enemies that must be contended with. Mr. Pease took a knock at a lot of the foolish things the newspaper men do in their efforts to keep a competitor from doing a lot of work at less than cost.

At the Saturday morning session Norfolk was selected as the place for the July meeting, and the following officers named: President, C. E. Nevin, Laurel; vice-president, Mrs. Marie Weeks, Norfolk; secretary-treasurer, E. O. Gardner, Wayne. President Nevin later named G. A. Mayfield, Stanton and N. A. Huse, Norfolk as the additional members of the executive committee.

M. M. Murray of the Pender Times gave a valuable paper,

"Attitude of Editors on Free Political Advertising," and the attitude was that there should be no such thing, and motion was made recommending that it be ditched.

Committees were named to secure from the members and publishers of the district not members their advertising rates, their job work prices and information which might be valuable in establishing a more just and uniform rate of work. This committee is to gather data and report at the next regular meeting unless one is called for that purpose earlier.

By a rising vote the members of the association unanimously expressed their appreciation of the royal treatment received at Wayne, tendered their hearty thanks to the citizens for cordial hospitality, to the Commercial club for its well organized and successfully laid plans to see that no visitor was neglected, and to the publishers of the Wayne papers for their work in making the opening meeting a most successful one.

Each of the success of the program was due to the local entertainers. The songs of the Normal quartet are always excellent, and this was no exception to the rule. The singing of Mrs. A. R. Davis greatly pleased the audience and was most charming and the piano duet given by Mrs. James Miller and Miss Bessie Durrie received most hearty applause as did all of the musical selections. The Arch-Sherbahn orchestra proved very popular and received frequent applause during the evening.

The decorations of the room were handsome and profuse. Penants hung above the tables with names of the papers of the district. The carnations grown in Wayne in frosty weather stood the test of cold weather remarkably well, nor have they wilted yet. Made from paper the work was so well done that more than one failed to detect that they were not the natural flower and that they had been perfumed from a bottle. The excellent repast was served with the skill of a professional caterer. The waiters were most competent, and their costume, with paper caps bearing the names of the two Wayne papers was a fitting crown for them to wear on this occasion, nor can too much be said in praise of the skill of the good cooks who made the repast ready for serving.

The grip which prevented W. D. Redmond from responding to the opening toast, "Headliners," and prevented Miss Mack from appearing with a reading were the two disappointing features of the evening to those who know the genial registrar of the college and the pleasing instructor in expression.

As Told by Sioux City Journal

The subzero temperature which prevailed last Friday and Saturday made attendance at the Northeastern Nebraska Editorial Association meeting at Wayne a somewhat formidable undertaking, but the warmth of the hospitality dispensed by the good people of Wayne was an effective antidote for the frigidities of the weather. Nothing was overlooked which would be calculated to convince the visiting newspaper men that they were welcome guests. The program of the meeting included the usual business sessions for the discussion of topics related to the newspaper business, visits to the high school and the state normal, and on Friday evening a banquet in the dining room of the Baptist church, the dinner being served by the ladies of the church.

One of the addresses of the business sessions which claimed particular attention was by Dr. J. T. House, of the state normal faculty, upon "Progressive Journalism." Dr. House is a student of social questions of this character. His address contained some thoughtful and not ill directed criticisms of present day newspaper methods, and he also set forth what he, as a disinterested student of newspaper making, conceived to be the wise course for newspapers to follow, if they desire to keep abreast of the times in the development of new sources of news, the result of constantly changing conditions of life.

During the visit to the high school Friday afternoon an impromptu program of speeches was arranged, addresses being made by Victor Rosewater, editor of the

Business Changes Made

Several changes in business firms became effective the first of the month. The retirement of Wm. H. Morris from the Orr & Morris store is a surprise to most of us. For more than 10 years, Mr. Morris has been an active member of that enterprising mercantile house, and a host of friends and patrons will miss him. His successor will be Carroll Orr, who has grown up in the store, one might almost say, and with the father and son in full charge it is safe to predict that there will be no radical departure from their well-known and successful business policy. We are glad to add that Mr. Morris is not planning to depart from Wayne, having associated himself with J. H. Kemp as district manager in this part of Nebraska for the Northwestern Mutual Insurance Co., of Milwaukee. That he will succeed in his new work can scarcely be doubted, for he has doubtless assured himself in advance of the possibilities of his new work and assured the company of his fitness for it, which no one of his acquaintances will doubt.

A. E. Laase has leased his entire garage building to C. L. Puffett, who had previously had the supply and repair end of the business and a part of the building. Mr. Laase has formed a partnership with True Duncan and they have leased the Frank Sederstrom garage a block west on 1st street and will conduct a livery and sale business from there. They are not yet certain what makes of car they will handle.

Today there is to be a change at the Union hotel, we are told, Jay Jones retiring, and Geo. Rowher, owner of the building becoming landlord. Mr. R. says that he never before conducted a hotel, but that he has been successful in other lines of business and is confident that he can serve the traveling public well, both for eats and sleeps.

George Fortner assumed charge at the Wayne feed mill Tuesday, and fits as well now as when he sold the business three years ago.

New Waterways Being Installed

In spite of the bad weather the railroad bridge force is concentrated at Wayne, and the men are busily engaged in inserting concrete tubes some four feet in diameter beneath the tracks for the drainage of the land just north of the tracks in the west part of the city—to wit the Goeman property about which there has been considerable litigation. With one waterway previously in and three new ones there is little if any doubt but that the room for the water to move will be ample. This is as it should be, and all are glad to see the provisions made for the drainage, which has apparently endangered the health of the community by being retained as it was.

Commercial Club Officers

At the meeting of the new executive committee of the Wayne Commercial club Wednesday evening they organized by electing J. J. Ahern, president; Chas. Bright, vice-president; H. Henney, treasurer, and W. L. Gaston, secretary.

An hour or two was spent in outlining work for the betterment of the community during the coming year, and plans were systematically laid to make some record for the year, and with the hearty co-operation of all, much can be accomplished.

The band question was resurrected, and there is much encouragement that such an organization will meet hearty support.

Announcement

We wish to announce that Mr. Morris has sold his interest in the Orr & Morris Co., to Carroll Orr, the change taking place February 1, 1916. It will be necessary for us to have all our accounts settled at once and we will appreciate it if all those owing us would give this matter their prompt attention.

We wish to thank you for the past patronage and solicit a continuance of the same.

Very truly,
THE ORR & MORRIS CO.

Social Notes

One of the happy social events of the week was the leap-year bowling party given at the Wayne alleys Monday evening, when a bevy of the Belles of our city invited a select number of the "eligibles" to participate in this invigorating sport. After exercise enough to insure a good appetite during which some remarkable scores were made the guests were taken to the Felber pharmacy where dainty refreshments were served. It was a most captivating program, and we congratulate the young ladies on making so diplomatic an advance toward the legitimate consumption of all leap-year efforts. The guests selected show that the ladies have excellent judgment. Harry Armstrong, Johnny Mulloy, Algernon Percy Lamb, Paul Mines, Francis Jones, Dr. Frank Gamble, Carroll Orr, Prof. George Washington McIntire, and Lloyd A. Kiplinger of this city and Mr. Knute Knutesen from Bloomfield, is the list given our society editors. May they all succeed.

On Wednesday of last week, the 26th, about fifty of the "old timers" gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Coroit and spent the day in a most pleasant manner. A delicious three-course dinner was served, and a good time was had and various questions discussed. The two important questions were, "How Should the Farmer Help the Town," and "The Business Men to the Farm Community." No boycott spirit was exercised, but the general discussion was that of general co-operation on both sides, which would be of great benefit to both town and community. If more of such meetings were held throughout the rural districts it would be much better both spiritually and financially.

The Acme club met last Monday afternoon with Mrs. Britell. Roll call, home. Mrs. Bressler read a paper on, "The Modern Kitchen and Labor Saving Devices." Mrs. Ellis read a paper on, "System in Household Work." The club had a discussion "Experience of Fireless Cooker and Meatless Menus." Mrs. Carhart, Mrs. Britell, Mrs. Ellis, and Mrs. Mines each gave their experiences with the fireless cooker, which was very interesting and instructive. Several members gave recipes for food to take the place of meat. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Carhart, February 7.

The union bible study circle met with Mrs. I. C. Trumbauer Tuesday afternoon for the usual study of the advance Sunday school lesson. There was a large and appreciative company present and a lively interest taken in the lesson study which was led by Mrs. Harry Ferrel. The new songs are a source of inspiration and enjoyed by all. After the lesson Miss Lawler of Iowa, read a poem of her own selection and many requests for prayer for sick ones and others were brought from far and near and all were remembered. Mrs. Barker is hostess next week.

The Minerva club met on Monday afternoon with Mrs. Huntemer. Mrs. Lewis read a paper on, "Art and Literature of Russia." Mrs. Beaman read a paper on, "Music of Russia." Mrs. Beaman and Mrs. Erskine gave several selections of Russian music. The remainder of the afternoon was spent socially. Mrs. Huntemer assisted by her committee served a two-course luncheon. The club voted to furnish a room in the new hospital. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Lutgen at the hospital, if completed, if not at her home.

The U. D. club met at the home of Mrs. J. Woodward Jones last Monday afternoon. Under the leadership of Mrs. James Miller a musical program was rendered. The opera "Peer Gynt" was read. Mrs. Felber, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Ringland gave several piano selections, and some of the master musicians were heard from the records. The hostess served dainty refreshments. The club meets next week with Mrs. Felber.

The home of J. H. Spahr was the scene of a merry gathering last Saturday afternoon, when Roy Spahr was pleasantly surprised by his schoolmates, it being the anniversary of his birthday. The afternoon was spent in playing games. Delicious refreshments were served and the guests departed wishing him many happy returns of the day.

The Westminster Guild held an open meeting at the home of Miss Cella Gildersleeve. The evening was spent in playing games and socially. Refreshments were served. The Guild will meet with Miss Mullen in two weeks.

The Monday club met with Mrs. Main this week. Resolved: That an Eastern Trip is of More Educational Value than a Western Trip. Affirmative, Mrs. Hahn; negative, Mrs. Kiplinger. Next meeting will be with Mrs. A. A. Welsh.

The girls bible study circle met at the home of Mrs. Sim Jacobson Saturday. About twenty girls were present. The girls will meet at the home of Mrs. Oran Bowen this week.

Early Hour club meets tonight with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weber. The evening will be spent socially and with cards. Refreshments will be served.

The Guild of St. Mary's church will meet this afternoon with Mrs. Emma Baker. Business will be transacted. Refreshments will be served.

Sunday Campaign Without Sunday

Will the people of Wayne please stand up, thank you, I have something to say and I am sure that you will get hold of it better if you are paying attention.

The Union Meetings for which we have been planning will commence next Sunday afternoon in the Baptist church and everybody, old and young, big and little, is expected to report at the first service. We are not sending for Billy Sunday but are expecting to go into the campaign ourselves and if the community takes hold as well as they do for Billy we will have as good a meeting as if he were here, and it will not cost twenty-two thousand dollars.

The local preachers will do the preaching but the singing will be in charge of Prof. G. I. Waltz, of Boston. Prof. Waltz is a past master with a church choir and will be able to show Wayne what splendid talent is right here in the community, he will shake the brush and scare out everybody that can sing or everybody that attempts to sing. With all of them banded together under the Professor's leadership they will make some noise.

Sunday evening the first great union service will be held. It too, will be held in the Baptist church, as will all the meetings until further notice. Rev. Buell will have charge of the first service and Rev. Cross will preach, and you and your neighbors are expected to be there, life size. The back seats will be reserved for those who come first.

That will do, you may sit down now until time for the Sunday afternoon service.

Pay Up Week—February 21 to 25

Some ingenious people have conceived the idea of a National Pay-Up Week, to be observed February 21-25, when everyone should be exhorted to pay his debts. The American people need a little prodding on this point. They have a joyous habit of throwing bills into the waste basket that does not promote general business prosperity. Not everyone who lets his bills go unpaid is indifferent about it. Many people would gladly pay all they owe, could they collect the debts due them. But with many other persons, the more easily they could pay, the less ready they are to do it. It would make them very tired to sit down monthly and write off a dozen checks. By letting the bills run, they can do it all in one job. This saves them much hard work. Yet they may have idle money in the banks.

Some business men allow bills to run to save a trifles of interest, losing which would offend their thrifty souls. Of course the creditor is meanwhile losing interest. But creditors are considered grasping creatures who have all the money they need.

A large percentage of the business failures are of people who would be perfectly solvent if they could collect their bills.

It is surprising how quickly a dollar will run around a town. When you pay that long standing bill due the grocer, he is immediately able to satisfy the drayman, or some other one who aids in giving the public service. The latter can settle with the butcher and others, who can now pay that old bill at the printer's. So it goes.

The net result is a new feeling of confidence and good will. If a general debt paying custom could be started during a Pay-up Week, a great many people would feel a new courage about their business future. They would buy more freely. A wave of new business would spread over the country. Let every one do what he can toward it.

Wayne business men to the number of 35 or 40 have joined the campaign and the editor believes it will help a whole lot in a business way. If the Democrat is favored with the many small sums due it, we can easily face most of our creditors with a smile and a check with a bank account back of it.

Local Weather Prediction

Will Weber gave us the following for the encouragement of the coal dealer: "February 3 to 10, cold and high winds." Mr. Weber the week before predicted a week of fair weather, and it proved that way most of the time, but it was pretty stiff winter weather with the mercury keeping below the zero mark more hours than it was above, and going as low as 12 to 18 below. There was some snow also and a bit of wind, but not enough to drift badly.

W. F. McCabe of Carroll, who went to Denver three weeks ago, planning to spend the winter there, returned Monday, accompanied by his sons, who "went to come home with him, he having caught a severe cold and been quite ill thought he would do better in a lower altitude. He will doubtless feel better at home.

The Cedar county board of supervisors at their last session made a levy which it is thought will enable that county to pay its outstanding warrants in several funds with interests. Things got in a bad way in that county, and warrants were drawn in excess of the legal limit placed by law on the percentage of the funds that may be drawn and used.

Some of the news dispatches in speak of the President's speech at Pittsburgh as in the "middle west." Tell the President to come to the middle west and look back. We once heard a man say he was "going back east" the next week, while living in Denver, and when asked what part of the east he was going to he replied, "Kansas." Is it all in the view point?

February 15 and 16 the retail clothiers of the state will meet at Omaha, and they are to be treated to a novel exhibit, says a report of the proposed gathering. James McEachen, who has been attending the University at Lincoln, has completed there the course entitling him to his degrees and returned home last week, and this week is busy on one of the McEachen farms which he will have charge of this season. He appears to be one of the young men who believes that education will help him in farming as well as any other business.

Harry Fisher returned the first of the week from Colorado, where he has been at Eaton and vicinity helping to settle the estate of his uncle, James Alger. His aunt, Miss Ola Alger, who also went to Eaton to assist in the work, is expected home this week. In March they will have to return again to make final settlement as far as can be at that time. Mr. S. says he started by auto for the Dayton sale Saturday, and got stuck in the drifts, and when he got back home it was so late that he could not make it by team in time for the sale.

Bed Time Stories Told

Below we give a prize letter won by a friend writing to the Des Moines Capital, in competition with hundreds of others each trying to tell best of the "Bed Time Stories" published in that paper. Here it is, the sentiment of the opening verse appealing most to us:

What the leaves are to the forest,
With light and air for food,
'Ere their sweet and tender juices,
Have been hardened into wood,
So to the world are the children
Thru them it feels the glow
Of a brighter and sunnier climate
That reaches this world below.

With the children playing such an important part in this world, why should we not do our utmost to entertain them properly and mold their characters? The Bed-time stories are one of the best children's stories for these purposes we have ever had the pleasure of reading.

They are so interesting and entertaining that my children would as soon go to bed without their supper as without hearing the Bed-time stories.

As for helping to mold (for good) characters, the author has so cleverly brought out how the carelessness of Peter Rabbit has gotten him into trouble so many times, the cunning and craftiness of Granny and Reddy Fox are not to be admired; how the kindness of Farmer Brown's boy has won the respect of all the little forest, meadow and pool people and how the traits of each little animal are to be looked upon with favor or disgust.

Dr. Frank Crane in his sermonettes has advice for the grown-ups, but their characters are molded and probably would not heed the advice.

The story of Beth is principally for just girls and women. And so I may go on to speak of other articles that appear daily in The Capital but the Bedtime stories can be enjoyed by old and young alike and for the city child who never sees these animals it is a great nature lesson.

May they never end.

Quitting the Game Now

Having sold the Wayne Feed mill to Geo. Fortner, who took possession February 1st, I wish to thank the citizens of Wayne and vicinity for their generous patronage in the past, and ask for Mr. Fortner a continuance of the same, knowing that the business is going into competent hands where your needs will be fully supplied. Again expressing my thanks, I respectfully retire from business but not from Wayne.

Mrs. LaCroix of Winside came Saturday to spend Sunday here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. June Conger, and Monday she left to visit relatives at her old home, Vauvoo, Illinois. She spent her young days in that historic place, but the Mormans had left before she can remember. The ruins of their magnificent temple are probably to be seen there yet—at least they were there a few years ago, stones scattered about the deserted site. It was a remarkable people—a wonderful religious zeal which called these people to migrate into an almost unbroken wilderness and found such a magnificent temple. Then they again migrated toward the setting sun in search of a place where they might enjoy religious freedom, as they thought. While religious freedom is assured to individuals in this land, it appeared that the leaders wanted freedom to control their followers to a greater extent than was possible under the liberal laws of this land, hence the move to the great Salt Lake basin. There they have accomplished a wonderful work of development, and made the desert to blossom as the rose, but here too they have had to modify some of their creeds to conform to the laws of the government which protected them.

The Dentist's Duty

When you present yourself to the dentist for examination, it is his duty when decay is discovered, not only to clean out all decayed matter, but to cut away all thin margins and to extend the cavity to an immune surface, that is to a position on the tooth where it can be easily kept clean with brush and powder. If the tooth is then properly filled with an indestructible material, and you do your part in keeping it clean, decay is not likely to occur. The safe way is to present yourself for examination and cleaning twice yearly.

HEALTH JUST COMMON SENSE

By Wm. H. Smith

Midwest Magazine commissioned Mr. Smith to make an unbiased investigation of the subject discussed, and report his findings. In these days no one is justified in jumping at conclusions, or being blinded by prejudice. Your health is too precious for that sort of thing.

When Dr. Harvey discovered that the blood circulated and announced the discovery, his fellow physicians hooted and jeered at him—just as physicians of different schools today hoot and jeer when a physician of a rival school announces a "discovery." When Dr. Jenner announced that he had a preventive for smallpox in the shape of vaccine from the udder of an infected cow, he was treated even worse than Dr. Harvey. But later, physicians accepted the theory of vaccination, and even sought to make it compulsory. Today, among thinking people, there is a growing conviction that it is better to take the risk of smallpox than to have one's blood deliberately poisoned. It was not very long ago that the average physician gave doses as big as the patient was able to swallow, composed of a lot of different drugs, the idea being that if there were enough drugs in the dose one of them might possibly be good for what ailed the patient.

In one thing—but not much more—have all the physicians ever been even partially greed, each school of medicine agreed that all the other schools of medicine were quack foundries. But the allopath, the homeopath and the electric are now coming closer together—not because each has less belief in the infallibility of his own school—but because they realize they must quit quarreling among themselves and combine for defensive purposes to prevent the drugless practitioners from putting them out of business. So they get together and talk about germs, bacilli and microbes; about infection, prevention and sanitation. But still they continue to send through the stomach the decoctions that are supposed to avoid every sound part of the body and search out and benefit the unsound. By some mysterious process that the physicians have never attempted to explain, the medicine is supposed to be intelligently filtered by the stomach, and through-routed to the diseased section without stopping at any other point.

Doubtless you own an automobile. When something goes wrong with the mechanism, do you pour a lot of lubricating oil into a funnel, expecting it to reach the disabled part of the machinery through some intelligent action on the part of the funnel? Sounds silly? Of course it does, but is it any sillier than the way we have been indiscriminately pouring medicine into our stomachs, for a thousand years, expecting the stomach to send them along to the proper place?

In many ways your body can be likened to an automobile, but it is an infinitely more complicated bit of mechanism, and you cannot order new parts for it from a factory. It is just as foolish to try to adjust deranged physical mechanism by pouring medicine into the stomach as it is to try to adjust a defective part of your automobile by flooding it with lubricating oil. All the oil in the world will not make your automobile if there is a break in the circuit between the battery and the sparkplug. Neither will medicine administered copiously, ala Hippocrates, or infinitesimally, ala Hahnemann, adjust the deranged mechanism of your physical body. Sounds like common sense, doesn't it? Well, it is common sense. If some part of your automobile got out of order, you would not expect to fix the trouble by cutting out the part and throwing it away, would you? Then why expect that the human machine will run properly after the surgeon has removed some of the mechanism the Master Mechanic placed in it?

Medical science has been experimental through all the ages, and never more so than now. It alternates between discovering new diseases and remedies for them. It discovers a new germ which is claimed to cause a disease, then discovers another germ that will kill it. This entails discovering a third germ to kill the second one, and so on.

The larger fleas that feed on us. Have other fleas to bite 'em. And these have other little fleas—And so on, ad infinitum.

Ever start watering your lawn, and after squirting water for a while start to carry the hose around to the other side of the house, only to have the water stop coming? Sure you have. You dropped the nozzle and rushed around to see who had turned off the water—only to find that the water was still turned on, but you had gotten a kink in the hose. Did you rush for an oil can to oil the nozzle? Foolish question! Of course not, you merely took the kink out of the hose.

Your life force—where does it come from? From your brain—or rather from that part of the brain we call the cerebrum. That is the power house of the body. The power it generates—mind you, we do not say creates—is distributed through the body by way of the spinal cord over a marvelous network of nerves that reach every part. The finest pointed needle cannot find a place on your body where it may prick without the message being flashed back to the power house: "Hey, something wrong down here!"

And the brain flashes back instructions, "Get away from the needle, you chump!" With the notice to move comes the physical movement—you flinch, all quicker than the flash of lightning. All this, of course, if there isn't a kink somewhere along the line between the point attacked and the power house.

The finest made machine will get out of adjustment now and then, especially if it is not well taken care of by its owner or keeper. Your physical machine gets out of adjustment. Some particular organ is not performing its functions. What are you going to do about it? Dose it with medicine? Fill the stomach with some nauseous dose, then the blood will take it up, and finally get it around to where the trouble seems to be. These doses and plenty of faith may help. But why not get right to the seat of the trouble? If the organ is not performing its function it is because it isn't getting its regular quota of power—life—from the power house, the cerebrum. Why not? Something wrong with the transmission lines somewhere. Where is that trouble most likely to be? Why, where the transmission line leaves the main cable, which we call the spinal cord. Where is that? Right where it leaves the spine through the intervertebral openings. Everywhere else the transmission line—the nerve—is imbedded in soft tissue, or if it passes through bones it is in fixed channels that admit of no change or decrease in size. But the spine is made up of a chain of vertebrae, separated by cartilage cushions; and we sit stooped over at desks, or bend over lathe or washtubs, or try to drive farther than the dub golfer next door—and we get a vertebra out of plumb. Result: The transmission line leading to some particular organ or part of the body is pinched so that it can't carry its quota of force from the power house and then comes the ache, the pain, the disordered liver, the upset stomach, or the blinding headache, as the case may be, the inability of the organ to resist adverse influences which are constantly being exerted. What's to be done? Why, go to someone who knows how to start at the seat of the trouble and trace back over the line of faulty transmission till he finds where the trouble is, and "takes the kink out."

There is not getting away from the assertion that if the power house is doing its duty and there is no break in the transmission, either in the main cable or the communicating lines, the physical machine—our body—will function rightly and health will be the result. Don't worry about the power house—it is drawing from an infinite supply all the time. Your worry, if you insist on worrying, should be about getting that power to the place where it is needed, without interference.

There has been nothing technical about this article, so far. But all that has been said about the power house, and transmission, and so forth, is summed up in the one word, "Chiropractic."

"Oh, that's what you're driving at, eh? Another bunch of fakers to fatten on the fears of the people!"

For shame! That is the voice of prejudice. Come let us reason together.

"Chiropractic" is derived from the Greek, and its literal meaning is "to do by hand." That is what the chiropractor does. He does, by hand, what physicians have been trying to do for a thousand years and more by experimental dosing with nauseous drugs. The simplest way to explain it is to say that the chiropractor "adjusts the spine." By means of his sensitive finger tips he ascertains just where the spine is "out of plumb." Technically, he palpates to ascertain where the subluxations are. When he finds a vertebra which is out of proper alignment with its neighbor—subluxated—he charts its position, and then proceeds to put it back into its proper place, in perfect alignment. He knows that a subluxated vertebra means a kink in the transmission, because the nerves which branch off between each pair of vertebrae are bound to be pinched—impinged, he calls it. If the relative positions of the vertebrae are changed. When the kink is removed—the subluxated vertebra restored to its normal position—then the life force again flows uninterrupted. The chiropractor accomplishes this by means of the "Chiropractic thrust," which is delivered by the practiced hand directly against the spine, using the processes of the subluxated vertebrae as levers. You know it is easier to drive a nail by quick, sharp blows, than it is by exerting a steady pressure. The chiropractor profits by his knowledge of this principle, and uses the "thrust" rather than massage, manipulation, vibration or electricity. He knows that the primal cause of the trouble—whatever may be the title given it by the physician—is faulty transmission, and that the difficulty is located at one or more of the twenty-five inter-vertebral joints of the spine. When he has charted the irregularities of the spine he sets about correcting them, knowing full well that when they are corrected the proper brain impulses will flow uninterrupted over every trunk nerve in normal quantity, and the distressing symptoms will disappear. He simply removes the obstruction, restores the broken circuit, and the life force effects the cure. When the pressure is removed, every nerve will carry its full quota of life force, and health will be once more expressed at the tissue cell.

You know that the simplest things have been the longest awaiting discovery. Mergenthaler had his wonderful typesetting machine perfected for several years—all but the simplest thing about it. And that simple thing was the "space-band" that separates the words. But it was the hardest thing to get. The phonograph is so simple that the first time you saw one you felt like going out behind the woodshed and kicking yourself because you did not invent it. For a century men carried coal and wood to burn under boilers to make steam to generate power. Along came a man who discovered the simple expedient of exploding gasoline in a cylinder and hitching the recoil to the machinery. And a few years ago Dr. Palmer, of Davenport, discovered that the spine is the keyboard of health, and he and others have perfected the theory of spinal adjustment until it is now a demonstrated fact. The free clinic at The Palmer School of Chiropractic now numbers over a thousand patients daily. During the winter of 1915, Nebraska, as always in the vanguard of progress, passed a bill regulating the profession so that her citizens might be sure of getting chiropractic if that was the road to health they desired to take.

This physical machine of ours is perfect in theory only. It will do just what any other good machine will do—work all right as long as it is kept in shape. Rolls will not grind flour unless they are perfectly adjusted. Good printing cannot be secured from the best type on a press that is not accurately adjusted. The life force generated in the power house of the cerebrum cannot find proper expression throughout the body when the transmission lines are not free and adjusted properly. When the adjustment is correct the result is physical health, with mental health as a natural consequence.

You owe it to yourself to investigate the claims of the Chiropractic school. Someone has said that nowadays the world advances so rapidly that the fellow who says "It can't be done" is interrupted by somebody doing it. Thus while the physicians are protesting that spinal adjustments cannot be made by hand, the chiropractors are getting results in practically all cases, and the X-ray pictures confirm their contentions.

Chiropractic is not sorcery, it is common sense. The chiropractor knows that the cure is in the hands of Nature—he is only the trouble man who removes the obstruction.

Chiropractic removes the cause of disease, and by allowing the body to reach its fullest perfection, is the best measure of prevention. With the life force being properly transmitted to every part of the physical machine, does it not stand to reason that the body is better fitted to cope with the exigencies of our modern mode of life—to ward off those evil conditions men have learned to call disease? Get your machine into adjustment if you expect it to do the work for which it was intended.

When the advertisers begin to take advantage of the popularity of the comic section of a news paper, as some are now doing, it is going to either help advertising wonderfully or kill the comic features of the press.

There appears to be a growing conviction that the only one fortorn hope of republican victory this fall depends upon the acceptance of Hughes of the supreme bench of their nomination. Evidently Hughes feels that a life job in the hand is better than a remote chance to find for a short time a more profitable one.

A few days ago the country was wrought up to a high pitch because another of our sub-sea boats could not be found, and it was feared it had gone to the bottom, which suggests the thought that we should tie a cork to 'em when they go out over deep water, then they could be found. But in a day or two the lost boat was found, and it had not been grounded—just got out of its proper course a little.

President Wilson appears to be making much headway with the people on his tour for preparedness, and is perhaps putting up the best possible talk for the cause, and his talks show that he has the courage to express his convictions—but in this particular we do not fully agree with his plans—but if he hears of this he may manage to get on just the same. The President has changed his mind before and he may do so again.

A good editorial policy—sometimes—is to write an editorial while you have just read or heard something to make you feel particularly elated, or perhaps depressed; write hurriedly, stow it under the blotter on your desk tip for 24 hours, take it out and read and revise it carefully, place again in cold storage, then take it out once more and if it does not look right consign it with the contribution which comes in without a name attached.

Now they say that Dan V. Stephens is an insurgent—or at least a "near insurgent" because he has served notice on the chairman of the Ways and Means committee of the lower house at Washington to the effect that if the democrats want his aid and vote in raising revenue for increased military expenditures they cannot get it on any revenue measure which will tax the laboring poor man and let the accumulating millions of the rich go practically free. He would have the present stamp tax measure repealed, and the incomes of those who are piling up millions divided at least in the middle before the tax on the poor man is increased directly or indirectly. Dan's talk is sound, as we see it—if the fellows with swollen fortunes are afraid, let them pay for all of the preparedness they think necessary that they may sleep well. Amen, Dan.

One wonders what the great national banks of this country want. Wonders what will satisfy them! Just now they are asking the American people to surrender some $260,000,000 of non-interest bearing debt for a bond debt drawing interest, quite a part of which would be paid to the banks. The I. O. U. of 100 million people, possessing all of the wealth of this great land to the amount of $2.60 per head, should be good without any banking institution laying tribute on it. It is good, and would be good security for many times that sum. To be sure it is a small sum, but just take a dollar and figure the interest at 6 per cent, compound interest annually for 50 years, multiply the result by 260 million and you will realize what the bankers are asking for. The Democrat will give one year subscription to the one first bringing the correct solution of this simple sum in compound interest, be he banker or beggar.

In the nomination of Louis D. Brandies to the vacancy on the supreme bench, Present Wilson has recognized the truly progressive element of the people, and it will fare ill with those who oppose his confirmation in the senate when it comes their turn to appeal to voters for approval. The Norfolk News, a republican paper, talks as follows of the man and the situation:

"It is to be devoutly hoped that confirmation of the appointment of Louis D. Brandies to the United States supreme court shall not be defeated. Conservative democrats and conservative republicans of the east are alike opposed to him, as well as the conservative south, but there will be found little opposition in the west. It is surprising that what opposition he is encountering from the west is at the hands of Clifford Thorne and Henry Wallace, who base their opposition upon the theory that Brandies once admitted that railroads should have more revenue. All in all, Brandies has taken such a radically advanced position on political and social problems that it would seem altogether absurd if his appointment should be defeated at the hands of the progressives."

Objects of Charity

Space and copies of this paper go to make up the newspaper man's entire stock in trade. These two are all he has to offer for sale to the public, and no one has as yet given any sort of satisfactory reasons why he should ever be asked by anyone to donate them.

One thing newspaper people will never be able to understand is why any person will walk into a newspaper office and make himself or herself an object of charity and insist upon what they would disdain to ask for in any other shop or place of business in the town. The principle is the same in the newspaper office as in the dry goods store, the grocery, the drug store and what a great many people need is to recognize it as the same and get off the newspaper list.

Advertising space in the newspaper is for sale, not to give away. It has a certain value in itself that makes it worth money. Copies of the newspaper are for sale—not to give away. If they are worth anything, they are worth the exceedingly small price asked for them. The public, or at least a large part of it, has some very erroneous ideas about these matters, and it is but just to the newspaper folk that their ideas be corrected in accordance with the same business principles that prevail in all other business establishments.

In a vast majority of cases this generous charity on the part of the newspapers is blissfully taken for granted, and the paper's liberality is abused. That which is purely a favor is accepted as a matter of course, and what should be requests are couched as demands.

When the courtesy has been performed there is rarely appreciation and more often dissatisfaction—generally silence.

The result in many other towns and cities is that a ban has been put upon all free publicity, no matter what its object—even upon church notices. In these cities such favors as the press bestows are properly appreciated and valued.—The Fourth Estate.

Omaha Bee; Eugene O. Mayfield, editor of the Omaha Sunday World-Herald, and John L. Kennedy, of Omaha, who as an aspirant for the United States senatorship is overlooking no convenient opportunity to appear in public in Nebraska. Each of these addresses was appropriate and in good taste, and Mr. Kennedy revealed himself as a master of effective rhetoric. An enjoyable feature of the high school visit was a light luncheon served by pupils of the domestic science department, to the accompaniment of music by the orchestra of the school.

The visit to the state normal school was the occasion for pleased surprise on the part of all the visitors. Since the school property was acquired by the state two handsome, substantial and well arranged buildings have been added to the plant, one of them supplanting an old building. These buildings, fireproof, are equipped with every thing needful. The auditorium in the main building is a beautiful hall, with stage and gallery. The people of Wayne are pardonably proud of both their fine high school and the state normal school.

The banquet at the church was indeed a "feast of reason and a flow of soul." The dinner was delicious, ample and satisfying, the service unequalled. It seemed to the editors who occupied one side of one of the long tables as though all of Wayne was there to do them honor—at least, all the youth and beauty were present, besides not a few of the elders. To put it mildly, the program was a "scream." Witty speeches, with now and then a serious note, occupied three hours or more, and no one thought the time ill spent. The audience was sympathetic and responsive, and generous with laughter and applause. The good toastmaster was Judge James Britton, and he inaugurated the speech making with a fervid appeal to an unadulterated Americanism in this troublesome time that received emphatic approval. The speakers were Mr. Mayfield, Mr. Kennedy, Mrs. M. A. Phillips, of Wayne; N. A. Huse, of Norfolk; F. S. Berry, of Wayne; M. M. Warner, of Lyons; Mr. Rosewater, and Rev. W. L. Gaston, of Wayne. Besides which there were some acceptable musical selections.

No attempt can be made here to summarize what was said. All of it was well said, including the stories which were told and the good natured banter which passed back and forth between the speakers. Mrs. Phillips, who is a member of the high school faculty, made the newspaper men take notice by her strictures on the present day newspaper. She was somewhat severe in her criticism, so much so, indeed, that Mr. Rosewater, when it came his turn to speak, replied briefly and (it seemed to the editors) convincingly. The exchange of opinion was enlightening to the audience. Mr. Kennedy again was happy in his remarks. He is not only an accomplished speaker, but a most engaging gentleman, and he should be making many friends (and votes) as he goes about the state. He started his campaign six months ago, already has spoken in a large number of the counties of the state and expects to have visited every voting precinct in Nebraska when the canvass shall be completed.

One of the briefest and most thoroughly enjoyed addresses was the last one on the program, that of Rev. W. L. Gaston, pastor of the Baptist church. The state of mind of the average clergyman toward the press is that of condemnation, if not of hostility. But here was a minister who did not hesitate to declare that the ministry to which the newspaper man is called is as great, if not greater, than the ministry of the church, namely: the ministry of enlightenment. Rev. Gaston paid an impressive tribute to the profession of journalism and its opportunities.

One of the revelations of the meeting was an editor who keeps in his desk a card index file of his enemies. He publishes a paper in a town of 700, and nearly all the inhabitants must be on his list, if the size of his file (which he indicated) is any criterion.

F. C. Marshall, editor of the Niobrara Tribune, mixes the gentler arts with his work of newspaper making. He was on the program for a violin solo, and acquitted himself altogether creditably.

east Nebraska Editorial association Friday and Saturday. Owing to the inclement weather conditions something less than fifty visiting editors were able to get to Wayne but there was no lack in enthusiasm on this account.

A banquet in the evening in the basement of the Baptist church was attended by some 200 persons most of whom were the leading citizens of Wayne and their wives. Unique programs had been prepared and the napkins were covered with pictures of the prominent visitors. A novel feature of the banquet was the unannounced arrival in the middle of the program of the ghost of Horace Greeley, who came back to life long enough to tell the modern scribes what he thought about them both collectively and individually.

Wireless Messages

For several months the state normal school at Wayne has had wireless communication with a number of the best high schools of the state. Until recently only schools located in towns have put in wireless equipment. The following item, which appeared in the January 21 issue of the Pender Times, shows that the rural school districts are beginning to install wireless equipment. Mr. John Epperson, the teacher of district No. 6, referred to in this report, was a student of the summer session of 1915, and Herman Siem is one of Professor Britell's advanced students in the department of science.

"On January 15, 1916, the people of district No. 6 were informed of the killing of six Americans in Mexico by Villa bandits, by means of a wireless message sent by the Wayne state normal. The school is the first school in Nebraska and perhaps the middle-west that has installed a wireless receiving set and succeeded in receiving etheral waves. Mr. John Epperson, the teacher, as well as the people of his district are to be congratulated upon keeping a little ahead of times and setting a good example for other rural schools. Mr. Herman Siem, a student of Wayne normal, who built and installed the apparatus, lectured to the people who had come to hear the program and enjoy a good box supper on Saturday evening, January 15. He explained how electricity could be produced by chemical action induction and how the etheral wave was rendered available."

THE WAR AND FARMING.

This European war will have a marked effect upon American farming. For some years Europe must look to this country for a large share of its draft horses, apples and bread and meat. The shortage of potatoes will compel Americans to find ways of developing our home supplies. Higher prices for nitrogen will compel us to save more sulphate of ammonia from our factory chimneys. All sorts of economies in saving wastes and using cover crops will be taken up by our farmers as the result of the necessities forced upon us by this war. In the end we shall be better farmers, because necessity draws men to experiment and saving.—Rural

GREEN BUG APPEARS.

Southwestern Grainfields Infested.
Serious Spread May Follow.
(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

The spring grain aphid, popularly known as the green bug, has appeared in grainfields in Tennessee, Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma and in northeastern New Mexico, and it is probable that it is also in southern Missouri and Arkansas. The danger of this pest doing serious damage in the spring depends to a great extent upon the weather between now and the middle of April. If the temperature during this period is sufficiently high to enable the green bug to breed throughout the winter and at the same time sufficiently low to prevent its principal natural enemy
—a minute black, four winged fly—from developing, a serious visitation over large areas may be expected.

In all the states where the green bug has made its appearance grain growers should watch their fields carefully.
If any spots appear where the grain changes from green to yellow in color these should be plowed under as deeply as possible and the ground harrowed and rolled. It is from spots of this character that the green bug spreads over the remainder of the fields. If straw can be spared for the purpose, it may be spread over the infested patches and burned. This destroys the pest as effectively as the plowing under of the ground.

Ordinarily the green bug is kept in check by the minute fly already mentioned. This parasite lays its eggs in the body of the green bug, and the young, hatching from the eggs within the body, ultimately cause the death of the bug. These parasites are found in a considerable number of insects which are closely related to the green bug.
Under favorable temperature conditions they will probably increase until their numbers are sufficient to overcome any material increase in the numbers of the green bug. They are not, however, able to withstand as severe weather as the green bug itself, and it is important, therefore, that the farmers in the regions likely to be affected by the latter take the necessary steps immediately for their own protection.

The first sign of an approaching outbreak is the appearance in grainfields of spots which are usually circular in area and in which the color of the wheat changes. As the insects spread over the field these spots become larger. In many cases the areas first affected have been found to coincide with the location of the shocks of grain from which the kernels have fallen to the ground and produced volunteer plants. Volunteer grain, therefore, either wheat or oats, may be regarded as constituting the initial breeding grounds of the green bug. If this volunteer growth could be pastured off in late fall or early winter much of the danger from the pest would be eliminated.

An added reason for destroying the volunteer wheat is the fact that the Hessian fly, as well as the green bug, winters among these plants. By destroying volunteer wheat in areas infested with the Hessian fly and the green bug the farmer will be killing enormous numbers of the two insects at the same time.

Roughage Self Feeder.

Hogs cause great loss of roughage when it is fed loose, and any device which will keep it from under their feet will cause considerable saving in the cost of their keep during a winter season.

The rack shown is easily built and will be found to be a feed saver.—Farm Progress.

To Fatten Winter Porkers.

In fattening the winter porkers remember that ear corn alone can be fed to hogs for some time with advantage, especially if one wants to fatten them for slaughter, but they should have some supplementary feed. Good pea hay, heavy with peas, or alfalfa, lespedeza or peanut hay, if properly cured, all make good feed and if fed in racks will make economical concentrates.
Cowpeas or soy beans or peanuts thrashed from the hay are also convenient home grown supplements.

TO PROTECT STRAWBERRIES.

The Patches Should Be Covered With a Mulch in Winter.

In all except the extreme southern and western districts the autumn or early winter is the season in which the strawberry patches should be covered with a mulch, partly to protect the plants from the continual freezing and thawing which occurs in many sections, partly to conserve moisture and keep down weeds during the following spring and during the fruiting season, and partly to keep the berries from contact with the soil when they ripen. This mulch may consist of some kind of straw or hay or of stable manure containing a large proportion of straw, but it should be free from weed seed. Wheat, rye, oat and buckwheat straw, long leaf pine needles, prairie hay, marsh hay, salt marsh hay and other materials are frequently used for this purpose. The mulch should be placed on the berry field after the ground freezes and before it is covered with snow. If a rain follows the spreading of the mulch, less trouble will be experienced from scattering by the wind. The mulch should be spread evenly over the whole field. If available, sufficient material to make the depth of the mulch when it settles from two to three inches should be used.

Stable manure, though frequently used, is not always satisfactory. In some sections it causes a vigorous leaf growth the following spring and actually lessens the yield of berries. If either the stable manure or the straw contains weed seed it may infest the berry field with weeds to an extent which decreases the yield and causes much expense in cleaning. When stable manure is applied the solid portions as far as possible should be put between the rows and that part containing more straw placed over the row. In the spring before the plants start growth sufficient straw should be removed from the rows to allow the plants to grow through the mulch. This straw may be thrown into the space between the rows. Where the ground is weedy it will often be necessary to rake the mulch upon the rows of plants and cultivate the field. The mulch is then returned to the middles between the rows of plants to be left until after the picking season.

BURNING LOGS AND BRUSH.

How Best to Pile the Timbers to Assure Complete Consumption.

In the burning of logs and brush farmers of northern Wisconsin would do well to follow the method of the railway section foreman. This consists in piling the timbers in such a way that, as the fire burns down, the wood settles in parallel tiers and so is thoroughly consumed.

Logs thrown together in helter skelter fashion cannot be expected to burn readily or completely. According to Carl Livingstone of the department of agricultural engineering, University of Wisconsin, in burning waste wood used that stumps are clean and not coated with thick layers of mud and earth, which act as a check to the flames.

Make the piles high and narrow, as cone shaped as possible, and never broad and rolling in form. Fill all spaces with small stumps or splinters of wood to make the pile compact.

When burning windfalls saw off the stump close to the roots and burn each part separately.

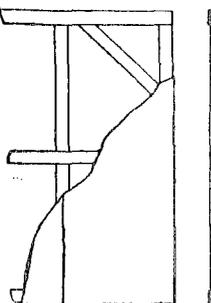

When burning brush it is best to trim off the main branches of small trees and saplings before putting them on the pile.

No material injury to the humus in the soil will result from burning stumps or logs if they are piled on wet ground.

Do not fire a large pile of stumps or logs during a high wind. A more moderate rate of burning is better.

A Lightweight Barn Door.

The accompanying sketch shows the method of making a barn door which is superior to wooden doors, especially for large sized doors, which are usually so heavy that they have to be made and hung in two sections. This door is made of galvanized iron sheets on a 2 by 4 framework. The framing is made as is shown on the right in the sketch, the up and down framing being spaced to fit the galvanized sheets so that they will lap at an upright. Knee braces are placed in the corners of the door, as shown.

The sketch at the left shows the way in which the sheets are placed on the framework. They are to be cut one foot longer than the door is high and bent around the top and bottom, as shown. The sheets are to be fastened to the framework with large sized galvanized tacks. To hang this door the standard hangers are used. The 2 by 4 piece at the top forms an ample support for the hangers, which should be fastened to the door with bolts. The result is a door which weighs very much less than the wooden doors and one which costs no more to make and in some cases less, especially on large sized doors.—Rural New Yorker.

Among the Churches of Wayne

St. Paul's Lutheran Church

Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

There will be no preaching services Sunday, but let everybody be out to Sunday school and Luther League.

The Ladies Aid society meets Thursday, February 3, at the home of Mrs. Henry Kay.

Choir practice Thursday evening at the home of Julius Hurstad.

Methodist Church
(Rev. A. S. Buell Pastor).

With the excessive cold we still had a splendid audience out to the service Sunday. The pastor concluded the special series of sermons on the decalogue and will speak next Sunday morning on, "New Wine in New Bottles." This will be an interpretation of the twentieth century Christianity for the twentieth century needs. You will miss it if you miss it next Sunday morning. There will be a comfortable pew and a welcome for you at the Methodist church and you are invited to bring a friend with you. We believe that the church has a live message for you, and that message is the very thing you need and probably what you desire.

The Epworth Leaguers are to hold a social in the church on Friday evening of this week. All are invited. The price of admission will be 10c.

There will be no services on Sunday evening on account of the Union Evangelistic meetings in the Baptist church. See announcements of the meetings on another page of this paper. While the preaching is to be done by the local pastors we believe that the people will be better pleased with that than with a traveling evangelist. The preachers expect to bring to you real wide awake helpful messages and we want you as a booster for a better Wayne.

School Notes

The January number of the "Watchword" was issued Saturday.

Recent visitors were Mrs. J. G. Mines, Mrs. J. Woodward Jones, Hays Main and Wm. McEachen.

The visit of the members of the Northeast Nebraska Press association to the high school was one of the most enjoyable events of the school year. The high school feels it an honor to be addressed by such men as Dr. Victor Rosewater, Eugene O. Mayfield, and Hon. John L. Kennedy.

The basket ball game last Friday evening between Wayne and Tekamah resulted in a score of 25 to 14 in favor of Wayne. The game against Bloomfield Tuesday afternoon resulted in a score of 26 to 16 in Wayne's favor. Both visiting teams, by their clean sportsmanship, reflected credit upon their respective schools.

In the preliminary debate held last Thursday afternoon in the high school auditorium, Frances Oman, '16; Don Gildersleeve, '18; and Ralph Ingham, '16, were chosen to represent Wayne in the state debating league, and LeRoy Owen, '16, was selected alternate. J. G. W. Lewis, A. R. Davis and Rev. A. S. Buell acted as judges. The first league debate will be against Pierce and will be held at that place. The question to be debated this year is, Resolved: That Congress shall Substantially Adopt the Reports of the Secretaries of the Army and Navy for Increased Armament.

The City Teachers' Institute closes this evening with addresses by Miss Sara Killen on, "The Aims of Public School Drawing and Art," and by I. H. Britell on, "Cultivating the Powers of Observation." Monday evening, E. J. Hunter spoke on, "A Few Practical Things in Industrial Work for the Average School." He emphasized vocational work as valuable in teaching the child respect for labor, in enabling him to understand more thoroughly the great field of opportunity open to him, and in helping him to find his place in the world's work. Dr. J. T. House spoke on, "Community Life," and emphasized the necessity of providing amusement places in every community. He suggested that the usefulness of any commercial club would be extended by making it a community club, which would strive for the welfare of the community in all its varied interests instead of confining its work to commercial interests only. He also pointed out the value of community surveys, which would reveal social and industrial needs of the community, and cited instances where such surveys had been made

"OLD TRUSTY" Incubator

WHAT you want an incubator for is to hatch chickens. That's all it's good for. It follows, then, that any machine producing a large percentage of hatch with a minimum amount of care and trouble and at a reasonable initial cost, should be the right machine for the average man. We have these qualifications in the OLD TRUSTY INCUBATOR. It does its work well, with very little trouble, and the first cost is certainly low considering the quality of the machine.

HOG RECEIPTS ARE HEAVY.

Much Better Feeling in the Lamb Trade—Prices Move Up 10@15c—Mutton Values Look Fifteen to a Quarter Higher.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, Neb., Feb. 2.—A very fair run of cattle arrived yesterday, about 6,700 head. Demand for fat cattle was vigorous from all sources and the market was somewhat stronger than Monday's advance. Cows and heifers sold at fully steady figures and in some cases sales looked a little stronger than Monday. Veal calves continue in good demand at firm figures, and bulls, stags, etc., are finding a broader outlet and selling to slightly better advantage. There was considerable activity in the market for stockers and feeders and prices were steady to stronger all around.

Cattle quotations: Good to choice choice heaves, $7.75@8.50; fair to good heaves, $7.25@7.75; common to fair heaves, $6.25@7.15; good to choice heifers, $6.25@6.75; good to choice cows, $6.00@6.50; fair to good cows, $5.25@5.85; canners and cutters, $4.00@5.00; veal calves, $7.00@9.50; bulls, stags, etc., $4.75@6.25; good to choice feeders, $6.85@7.65; fair to good feeders, $6.40@6.80; common to fair feeders, $5.50@6.30; good to choice stockers, $7.00@7.65; fair to good stockers, $6.35@6.85; common to fair stockers, $5.50@6.25; stock heifers $5.75@6.75; stock cows, $4.75@6.25; stock calves, $6.50@7.50.

Hog receipts were large yesterday, some 26,500 head arriving. With heavy runs at all the river markets, the local trade suffered a 10@15c drop in prices. Bulk of the supply moved at $7.45@7.60 and tops reached $7.75.

Sheep and lamb receipts totaled 6,000 head. There was a better feeling in the lamb trade yesterday and as a result prices advanced fully 10@15c. Ewes also showed about a 15@25c advance. As high as $10.35 was paid for lambs. While these lambs were of desirable weights they were none too well finished. Real good kinds would bring $10.50.

Quotations on sheep and lambs: Lambs, good to choice, $10.15@10.35; lambs, fair to good $9.90@10.15; lambs, clipped $8.50@9.00; yearlings, good to choice light, $8.50@8.90; yearlings, fair to choice heavy, $7.75@8.50; wethers fair to choice, $6.75@7.50; ewes, good to choice, $6.85@7.00.

with valuable results to the community.

F. C. Pollard and wife from Cashmere, Washington, came last week to visit at the home of L. J. Courtright and family a few days, the ladies being sisters. When they return to their western home, Mrs. H. J. Courtright will accompany them as far as Ogden where she will remain for a time with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Pollard have been visiting at places east of here on this trip, and are now heading toward home. They are in the famous fruit country of the Wenatchee valley, and their town is on the river of that name. He was pricing the apples on sale here which came from their home county, and found that the railroads, commission men and dealers really get more between them from their crop than do the men who produce it. Their prices there range around a dollar a box, and here the local dealer must get from $2.50 to $3.00, and when he was told the price the dealer must pay at Omaha he said he did not see how they could be sold on so small a margin. To be sure it is a long haul from Washington to Wayne, but when it takes more to pass an apple between grower and retailer than the grower gets for the apple it looks as though more of us should have gone into the commission and transportation business.

SERVED IN THE GERMAN ARMY

Simon Klein, Employed as a Tailor Here Tells Something About the War Across the Sea

Perhaps the American people are not always prone to fully appreciate the fact that they are living in a peaceful, prosperous country. Such is the view taken by Simon Klein, a young man who has been employed by the Marcus Tailoring Co., and has served in the German army as given by an Illinois paper. A representative of the News asked him when he came to this country, and with a twinkle in his eye, replied that he left Germany in June 1914. The war broke out August 3, 1914, at 2:25 p. m. He told his story as follows:

"At the time I left Germany, I had six months to serve in the Hussar cavalry. I overheard two officers discussing war matters, and they said they thought they would likely have a war in the near future, maybe in a few months and possibly not for a longer time. After assassination of the Austrian prince, it was a hard matter to get a passport out of the country. I was lucky in getting a passport from a Russian who was there, and I took his name and succeeded in getting passage on a boat from Belgium bound for the United States."

When asked something about the conditions there, he said as follows: "Germany has the best trained army in the world, and can feed herself. She has been planning for war for thirty-five years. After the regular time is served by every able-bodied man, he must train four weeks every year until he is thirty-five years of age. For twenty years they have had powder and supplies stored away in tunnels in the mountains. All of the country schools and churches have been built so they could easily be made into field hospitals. Everything has been done secretly and the people do not know what is going on. The Germans like the French people, but have a hatred for the Russians and the British. Von Hindenburg is the best general the Germans have." He said that he had never heard of the 42-centimeter guns until he read about it in the newspapers in this country. When asked what effect he thought it would have upon the Germanic allies when Russia places her five million troops in the field next spring, he replied: "It will do no good. They are poor soldiers and they have no officers. I believe Germany will win out yet. They are all soldiers there. They like the Kaiser and the boys."

Mr. Klein gave a demonstration of the famous goosestep march and some of the drills, which showed that he had been well drilled. He admitted that the reason that these countries were at war was because of a jealousy among the rulers and because the people had nothing to say, and said he was glad that he was in a peaceful country.

Lincoln Letter

This letter is written through other than the usual agency this week, owing to business and difficulties over which no one has control. Editor Expert Accountant Charles Q. DeFrance has been sent to the Institute for the Feeble Minded at Beatrice, while associate editor, Deputy Secretary of State Hugh L. Cooper is convalescing from a severe attack of la grippe. Mr. DeFrance, by the way, is occupied in checking up the books of the Beatrice institution preparatory to making the change contemplated by the board of control. Dr. Fast, the present head, will be transferred to the Ingleside hospital for insane at Hastings, taking Dr. Baxter's place as superintendent, while Dr. G. F. Griffith, second in command at the Lincoln asylum, has been appointed to take charge of the Feeble Minded Institute at Beatrice.

According to its annual report for 1915 the Live Stock Sanitary board paid out $2,929.00 which went to pay owners of horses which had been killed on account of glanders. For dourine effected horses which were destroyed, the board paid $727. Outside of two horses now being tested for dourine and recently imported into the state, the board reports no other cases in Nebraska at the present time.

That the business methods adopted by Auditor Smith when he took charge of the auditor's office a year ago this January, has resulted in a large saving to the state is indicated by a comparison of his first year and his predecessor's first year in office. In 1913, which was the first year of Mr. Smith's predecessor's term, the expense of maintaining the auditor's office totaled $22,244.05. In 1915, with conditions practically the same, or if anything a little more strenuous, due to the increase in the business of the office, the total expense for the year was $18,436.99, or an actual saving of $3,808.06.

This saving has not effected or retarded in any way the efficiency of the office. On the contrary the department work has never been more efficiently executed. There has been a paring down and a consolidation of some of the minor positions, more modern methods of bookkeeping and recording adopted, and as a consequence one person is now doing the same work which has required the services of two or three heretofore.

Governor Morehead gave out a statement the fore part of the week in which he declared he would not be a candidate for a third term as governor. This has somewhat upset the plans of his legion of friends and admirers who were in hopes that he might be prevailed upon to make the race again. Probably no chief executive of Nebraska has ever been so popular, or accomplished so much in the short three years that he has been at the head of the state's affairs as has Governor Morehead. His business acumen and influence has been felt in every department of the state. He has truly been Nebraska's business Governor and it will take a pretty good sized fellow to fill his place when he steps down from the executive chair.

The automobile department in the office of Secretary of State Pool has been a very busy place since January 1st sending out the plates for the year 1916, and already more than 45,000 have been mailed out and the work is still going merrily on. After February 1st, all number plates are on an equal footing and none will be issued on former numbers.

Wilson in New York

A week of speeches cast in the same mold as the New York address will not leave much of the argument that President Wilson is but a half hearted advocate who has taken up the cause of preparedness for political purposes only. The president was earnest in his plea for early and adequate preparations for defense, and quite frank in admitting that his ideas on the subject have changed within the last year. This change he attributed to changed world conditions, an explanation also advanced to cover a changed attitude toward the tariff commission. That the president is not thinking of politics mainly as suggested by the readiness with which he thanked the republican house leader for his recent declaration of support for the preparedness principle and assumed that his republican followers for the most part would be found in line. Another impression is gained from the New York speech. The president seeks satisfactory general results rather than the success of any particular plan.

If the president is to lead a preparedness campaign because of earnest belief in the necessity for early action; if he is willing and eager to accept the co-operation of the minority party in congress, and finally if he is willing to accept any plan which gives promise of delivering the goods, there seems to be no reason why political friction should prevent the success of the campaign. In such circumstances a victory for preparedness could not be exploited as a party victory. There is slight probability that congress will adhere closely enough to any plan in all its details to give any single individual a preponderance of the attendant advertising. All this will be as it should be. Without both parties agreeing that the nation is confronted by a real danger that can be averted only by adequate preparation for defense there can be no excuse for allowing politics to interfere with prompt and effective action.

Those who may differ from the president in regard to detail are not debarred from co-operating with him under the broad invitation extended in the New York address. —Sioux City Journal.

Tavener Strikes a Hard Blow

In addition to urging establishment of a government munitions plant, Congressman Tavener of Illinois has subjected his preparationist colleagues to further embarrassment by introducing a resolution for investigation of expenditures on the army and navy. The resolution is embarrassing because the investigation, if properly carried out, must show either criminal waste of the vast sums heretofore appropriated for the army and navy, or the utter falsity of preparationist claims that we are not prepared. It will strike either interests very friendly to preparationist agitation, or the preparationist propaganda itself. It may strike both. And every preparationist move to delay or prevent passage of the resolution, or to change its form, will be an admission of desire to conceal damaging facts from the public. —The Public.

Buskirk's Public Sale OF Shorthorn Cattle

To be held at Sale Pavilion, Wayne Saturday, Feb. 5th

50 HEAD 10 Bulls, 10 Heifers, 30 Cows

This will be a very choice offering of Shorthorn cattle, including a large percentage of the best breeding cows in this herd. The herd bull, WHITE HAMPTON, by Hampton's Counselor, is the sire of all the young stuff; cows will be bred to him, and this bull will also be included. The nine bulls are all sons of WHITE HAMPTON. The females are sired by Red Archer 2d, Prince Gerald 144063, Hampton's Counselor 264533, Scotch Fashion 235959, Royal Sultan 2d 296868, The Dreamer 283208, Queen's Pride 288792, Lord Banff 20th 225320, People's Choice 292344, Presbyterian King 232355, Ruby's Hero 247196 and Rosebud's Emblem 317098. The young heifers will be bred to DALE CHANCELLOR, by Double Dale, dam Good Lassie. This bull was recently put in the Buskirk herd at a good long price. Cattle will be tested, and in nice breeding condition.

BUSKIRK'S SHORTHORN SALE—The offering of cattle which Mr. Buskirk is going to sell on February 5 will appeal to the stockman, farmer and breeder looking for the good, profitable kind. Mr. Buskirk is one of the oldest stockmen in Nebraska and when he established his herd over ten years ago he selected a high class lot of breeding matrons and has always had the very best of bulls in his herd. At the present time his herd bull is White Hampton, a son of Hampton's Counselor, by Hampton's Best, he by Merry Hampton; dam, Scotch Duchess, sired by Victor Allan. This bull will also be included in the sale. Mr. Buskirk has recently put into his herd a bull he calls Dale Chancellor, by the great breeding bull, Double Dale, dam Good Lassie. A number of the cows will be bred to White Hampton, while the young females by him will be bred to Dale Chancellor. There will be cows in the sale by Red Archer 2d, a former herd bull; Prince Gerald 144063, Hampton's Counselor 264533, Scotch Fashion 135959, Royal Sultan 2d 296868, The Dreamer 283208, Queen's Pride, Lord Banff 20th, People's Choice, Presbyterian King, Ruby Zero and Rosebud's Emblem. We have had occasion to visit this herd the last few years and consider that Mr. Buskirk is one of the real constructive breeders in Nebraska and he has made a marked improvement since he started in the business. He is putting in some of the best individuals in the bull line that you will have occasion to bid on this winter. The herd bull, White Hampton, will be sold, and nine bull calves, all sired by him. These calves are under-yearlings, and are an exceptionally strong bunch of good individuals. A number of the cows in the sale will be well along in calf.—O. I. Purdy.

THE NAVY LEAGUE UNMASKED (Extracts from Speech of C.
H. Tavenner of Illinois, in the House of Representatives,
Wednesday, December 15, 1915.)

I believe in giving credit to whom credit is due. For instance, the gentlemen back of the Navy League, in my opinion, deserve full credit * * * for the sentiment that has been aroused in the large manufacturing centers and other parts of the United States for the proposed $500,000,000 bond issue for battleships that the Navy League has been advocating. I am in favor of giving the Navy League full credit and also full responsibility.

On November 1915 I made the statement, publicly, that I intended to introduce in Congress a resolution to investigate the Navy League and to require J. P. Morgan, one of the directors of the League, to take the responsibility of testifying under oath as to whether he is interested in war-trafficking firms. * * * * *

In a letter sent to Members of Congress, dated January 13, 1914, A. H. Dadman, secretary of the Navy League, said:
"Certain Congressmen have insinuated that the League is supported by people who are interested in the sale of war materials to the Navy. They are entirely mistaken."

Mr. Dadman in a letter published in the January 1916, issue of Pearson's Magazine, reiterates that the men back of the Navy League "are men who will not profit by the results of the league's propaganda."

What is this Navy League? Who founded it, and who are its directors? I hold in my hand the bound Navy League Journal for 1904. In the opening number, is the statement that this is "the official organ of the Navy League of the United States."

I turn now to page 32 of the issue of February, 1904, where find a list of 19 men who are named as the "founders" of the Navy League. Now, then, let us see who they are.

I note in the list of founders the name of the Midvale Steel Co. The United States government since 1903 has bought from the Midvale Steel Co., 48,399 tons of armor, and we have paid for it an average of $420 a ton, or in all $20,375,858 for the single item of armor plate alone, not to say anything about other millions of dollars' worth of contracts that have been given to the Midvale Steel

Co., for other things used by the army and navy; and if the Navy League's proposed $500,000,000 bond issue goes through, Midvale will stand to draw down some more millions.

Let us see if there are any more war-traffickers here. Is Charles M. Schwab, whom I see listed as one of the founders, a war trafficker? Well, he is president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and we have bought from Bethlehem, 95,007 tons of armor at an average rate of $455 a ton, and have paid Bethlehem for armor plate alone $42,344,937. That is the second member of the armor ring.

Now there is another member of the armor ring, and that is the Carnegie Steel Co. Let us see if we find them also among the founders of the Navy League. Yes; I see here the name of J. P. Morgan. The late J. P. Morgan was the organizer and a director of the United States Steel corporation, which controls, according to Moody's Manual, the Carnegie Steel Co. We have bought from the Carnegie Steel Co., 89,933 tons of armor plate, paying an average of $442 a ton, or a total of $39,783,497 for the single item of armor plate; and if the Navy League's proposed $500,000,000 bond issue for battleships goes through they will receive still larger contracts. So that you see the three firms which have a monopoly of the manufacture of armor in this country are all founders of the Navy League; they are all represented as the founders of the Navy League; and we have bought from them 233,339 tons of armor plate, paying for it an average of $439 a ton, or a total of $102,504,292.

Remember that figure, $439! There have been ten official estimates by government officials as to the cost of armor plate in a government factory, and the average of those estimates is $251 a ton; and had we manufactured this armor in a government factory, which the Navy League has cold shouldered, I think I am well within the bounds of conservatism when I say we could have saved to the American taxpayers at the very least $35,000,000.

The Harvey Steel Co., which owned the patent on a process for hardening steel which compelled all manufacturers of armor plate to pay it a royalty, was in on the ground floor at the organization of the Navy League, in the persons of S. S. Palmer, its president, and Benjamin F. Tracy, ex-secretary of the Navy. Mr. Tracy was the counsel for the Harvey Co., and the Carnegie Steel Co., after leaving the Navy department.

Throughout the existence of the Navy League there have been several distinct groups represented, made up of officers, directors, attorneys, and employees. The most important of these are the J. P. Morgan group, the Bethlehem Steel group, the Carnegie Steel group, the Midvale Steel group, the Harvey Steel group, and last, but not least, Col. Thompson's International Nickel Co., group.

The Dayton Sale

A week of bad weather preceeding the date for V. L. Dayton's Duroc-Jersey hog sale, resulted in a bargain day for those who were fortunate enough to be there and take advantage of the opportunity. Quite a number of Wayne people were there to inspect the offering but the buyers were few. At 1:20 o'clock not a man had yet appeared at the sale, but a little after 2 p. m., the sale was opened and Mr. Dayton drove the animals all through the sale ring regardless of the prices that were being paid. Everything was sold. From a breeding standpoint they were an offering hard to fault and were in the pink of condition for brood sows. Not loaded down with fat but in good smooth form. Several were heard to say that they were in the best condition to do the buyer good, that had ever passed through the Wayne sale ring. Mr. Dayton hopes that they all do well for the buyers, as that is the best advertisement he can get for his herd, and invites everyone, especially all his old customers to be present the last week in October to his next hog sale, which might be another bargain day.

Following is the list of buyers and number of animals purchased by each:

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up, or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.
