ACCIDENTAL DEATH SUNDAY

Howard C. Davis, Night Operator at Wakefield, Falls from Motor-car and is Almost Instantly Killed.

Sunday morning the bridge crew from Wakefield got onto a small gas propelled car to inspect some of the bridges between Wakefield and this place, the water having been quite high for several days before. Night operator, Howard C. Davis came with them, the foreman explaining in his testimony later that they might find something wrong with bridges and an extra man would be of help to them, there being but four of the crew. When crossing Bridge No. 43, about three miles east of Wayne the young man fell off in front of the car, and it passed over him, cutting and bruising the body considerable and breaking the skull, both on the forehead and the back of the head, cutting quite a gash on the back of the head. He was at once brought to Wayne, and medical aid secured, but only lived a short time.

Monday morning Coroner Beckenhauer conducted an inquest at which John S. Lewis, jr., E. B. Gerton, Henry Perdue, Roscoe Jones, Frank S. Morgan and W. C. Martin acted as a jury and after hearing the testimony of those who were with the young man, rendered a verdict to the effect that the death was the result of accident. Drs. Hess and Blair, who were called for the case giving concussion of the brain as the cause of death.

Evidence tended to show that the car was running about 10 miles per hour, and it is thought that the young man may have been made dizzy gazing into the water as they passed over the bridge, he having said that he was going to look down the next bridge they crossed.

Howard S. Davis was from Prescott, Wisconsin, and was but 21 years of age and had always been in perfect health. His brother-in-law, W. H. Welch and G. F. Merford, an uncle, came to look after the body and accompany it to the saddened home. They left Tuesday morning. Mr. Davis had been at Wakefield since last November as night operator for the railway people. He won many friends during his stay there, who greatly regret his sad fate. The funeral is probably being held today at his Wisconsin home.

Proposed Monument to Pres. Pile

Mr. J. E. Bliervernicht in the last issue of the Goldenrod has this to say in regard to a monument to the late President J. M. Pile: "While visiting Wayne, Mrs. Neihardt told of the admiration and affection of her husband for the late President Pile. In the course of the conversation it naturally came out that there is a feeling among many of the graduates and friends of the Nebraska Normal college that a material monument to the founder of the institution should be somewhere on the campus, or about the buildings on normal hill. Mrs. Neihardt divining that the suggestion would meet the wide approval it deserves, stated that she will furnish a bust of President Pile made by her own hands provided others will pay the expense of having it cast. Her contribution is worth, if measured in money, about one thousand dollars. We are certain that many will hasten to lend all needed support to the project that means so much as a beginning in the work of preserving the noble traditions that cluster about a great institution of learning."

Two Interesting Stories

On other pages of today's Democrat you may find two letters from the war fields of Europe, written by former Wayne people who are now in that land of strife.

One is from the pen of Weldon Crossland, taken from the State Journal, and a second installment of it will be given next week. The other was written by Ethel Wheeler Braun, who had been at Salonika, Greece, and was taken from the Sioux City Tribune. The lady is a niece of Mrs. C. A. Chace of this city, and was a pupil in the Wayne schools when a child. Both accounts are interesting, and especially so when one knows the writers as many do.

Holden the Corn Wizard Coming

Word has just been received that Prof. P. G. Holden, who is known throughout the United States as the "Corn Man" is on a tour through northeastern Nebraska and will stop off in Wayne and speak to the farmers of this vicinity on the afternoon and evening of Tuesday, March 7th. Prof. Holden is so well known that it is hardly necessary to add much to the announcement. For years he was the head and the front of the agricultural department of the Iowa Agricultural College at Ames. He was so successful in his corn tests and experiments that demands were made for his demonstrations in all parts of the state. So insistent and frequent became these demands that he was booked as a chautauqua attraction and great crowds of farmers crowded the chautauqua pavilions to hear him. With charts, diagrams and all kinds of corn exhibits he explained the selection of seed and illustrated the value of a good stand. He alarmed the farmers by disclosing to them the amount of their loss annually by reason of a poor stand and as a result of his work in the interest of better and more corn it is said that he increased the annual corn yield of Iowa more than two million bushels. The coming lecture of Prof. Holden, just at the time of seed corn selection and before the crop is planted will be of great value to Wayne county farmers. Our farmers are wide awake and progressive. They are alert for the best methods and this is an opportunity that will enable them to profit by the life experiments of the greatest corn authority in the country.

Corn is king through the great central west and if there is a way by which we can increase the yield and the quality, we want to find out that very thing. This is what Prof. Holden will enable us to do. Full particulars will be published next week.

Grand Leader Guttled by Fire

At about 2:30 Sunday morning Marshal Miner discovered fire in the rear of the Grand Leader store of which J. P. Baroch is the owner. The fire alarm was quickly responded to, and by diligent work the fire was soon under control, and completely out at 4 o'clock; but in that time it had ruined the greater portion of the $15,000 stock with fire, smoke and water. Mr. B. had insurance to the amount of $10,500 which at this writing he thinks will not cover his loss.

According to present plans, he will continue here in business as soon as the room can be fitted up so as to be acceptable, when a new stock of goods will be opened.

The building is the property of P. L. Miller, and the extent of the damage has not been determined, as the roof condition will have to be learned before it can be known. There is insurance to cover the loss.

Every indication points to defective wiring as the cause of the fire, according to all reports received.

Only Two Days Remain

Pay-Up Week is all gone but two days, and the Democrat expects them to be busy days at the receipt book, as there are still those who have failed to heed the general invitation, and two days can work wonders if all get into the game. Our observation has been that the idea is good and those who have paid most attention to detail have been best rewarded with cash. The country over many places have observed the week, and beyond a doubt many a dollar has been rolling about performing its proper mission.

Re-elected at Dakota City

The many friends of Clarence Linton will be glad to know that he has been eminently successful in his work as superintendent of the Dakota City schools, and that recently he was re-elected at a substantial increase in salary. Mr. Linton is a tireless worker, and in addition to his school duties he has carried seven hours of college work each semester at Morningside. He expects to spend his summers in the University of Chicago and will work toward a degree from that institution.

The Birth of a Party

Monday evening February 21, 1916, to the city of Wayne a new party was born. For several years there has been a growing feeling that the one party caucus was not the most satisfactory method of conducting a municipal campaign, and one year ago there was much talk in the caucus of changing the method, but it was then too late to act for the approaching election—except by petition, so the matter was taken up and carefully considered and investigated. There is no legal recognition of the plan followed in some cities of placing the names of the two candidates receiving the highest votes on the ballot for the voter to make choice from at the polls, so that idea was given up last season.

The statute provides for the forming of a new party for municipal elections by a meeting of the voters who may adopt a party name which shall not contain or embrace the name of the existing party to thereby confuse voters. In a city of this class as many as 25 voters shall sign a petition naming the new party and pledging support to it and its nominees, this to be sworn to by some elector and filed with the city clerk, which shall give the nominees of the party right to place on the ballot.

This was done here Monday evening when more than 30 voters responded to an invitation to meet at the library basement to consider the advisability of such a move. "The Municipal Improvement Party" was the name selected for the child to wear, and 30 voters signed the paper which pledged them to support the plan for two caucuses in municipal affairs as a "more convenient method of expressing public sentiment and to transfer from caucus to regular city election the selection of city officials."

In addition to the foregoing which was in the legal preamble those present said that they were "satisfied with the continuation of the no-license policy with respect to alcoholic drinks," and "we favor a policy of continued municipal improvement."

Dr. T. B. Heckert was selected as chairman and I. W. Alter was named as secretary of the meeting, and were made the officers of the party. A committee of three from each ward was named to aid in carrying on the work of organization.

In District Court

Little of interest has been passed upon by the district court now in session here. A few naturalization papers and some matters of equity are all that have appeared except in the Helt vs. Berry which had a hearing Wednesday, in which the finding was for defendant. The question was one relating to a building contract.

County Attorney Peterson of Knox county was appointed by the judge to appear for the state in the case of L. A. Kiplinger, and he spent considerable time here investigating the merits of the case, and recommended its dismissal, which the judge did.

Linke Sale a Good One

Those who attended the Henry Linke sale yesterday, and there were many of them, are reporting that they never before saw a larger crowd at a farm sale nor one where things sold better. From 10:30 until after six o'clock were busy hours there, as everything was sold about the place. Cows brought as high as $106; one horse sold at $212.50; a sow at $50 and so with everything. The sale totaled within a few dollars of the $5,000 mark, and they tell us that Auctioneer Neely handled the situation well.

Paulson--Milligan

At the Baptist parsonage, Thursday, February 21, 1916, Rev. W. L. Gaston officiating, Mr. Robert E. Paulson and Miss Hazel Milligan were united in marriage. The groom is an industrious farmer near Wayne, and the bride is also of this place. They will be at home on the farm.

Progress With Paving Petition

The petition for paving is in the hands of a committee and is growing day by day. Next week we plan to publish a list of the progressive citizens who have signed for the improvement.

Social Notes

The members of the Acme club celebrated the 32d anniversary of their organization in appropriate manner. Monday evening, the ladies entertaining their husbands at a George Washington gathering at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Williams. Mrs. Crawford was the only charter member who was present at this gathering, so her word was law as to what happened at their first meeting, beyond a doubt. The rooms were prettily decorated in national colors, and the American flag predominated everywhere, and a picture of the "Father of His Country" was prominent in the display. After an elaborate three-course 6:30 dinner was served, the real sport of the evening began. Both ladies and gentlemen were in colonial costume, and the wigs and knee trousers were worn with ease and grace by the men. After the dinner two rooms were made ready for the Olympic games, and a banner announced where they were to be staged. On the wall was the program of games, such as the horse race, light weight championship, 50-yard dash, gents only; hammer throwing for the ladies only, relay race, Marathon race, aeroplane race and hurdle race. The proud winners of the different sports were awarded in the order name, all events being announced by the official announcer and starting at the crack of the pistol, when it could be induced to crack. Dr. Ingham won the horse race, the first and opening attraction, coming under the wire first in two out of three heats—time 60 minutes. J. T. Bressler pulled down the prize for light weight champion. C. E. Carhart covered the 50-yard dash first in less than 15 minutes. His wife knocked the prize in the hammer throw. No accidents or breakage of windows reported. J. G. Mines was bound to make a showing and was the swiftest and fleetest in the relay race. Mrs. Claycomb was first in the Marathon race, and it remained for J. G. Mines to win a second prize, coming first in the aeroplane race. He is expecting to join the German aviation forces soon. One would not think it of him but M. S. Davies won the hurdle race—a scheme fixed up to make foolishness of all competitors. The 32d anniversary of the organization of this famous club will always have a place in the history of the society. Mrs. Hale of Fort Dodge, Iowa, and Mrs. Claycomb were guests of the evening.

The ladies of the Pleasant Valley club entertained their husbands and a few friends last Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Laughlin. A delicious dinner, in which the color scheme was pink and white, in honor of St. Valentine's day, was served at one o'clock. This being Leap Year the ladies sought their partners for dinner, which were found by matching hearts which had been cut up and distributed. After the regular club program consisting of roll call, "Resident birds," and a paper, "Bird Migration" by Mrs. Harvey Miner was given. Rev. Gaston gave a very logical plea for unity between country and townfolk, and suggested that a community house be built to be a social center for Wayne and vicinity. Rev. Buell in his usual happy manner gave an impromptu talk which was much enjoyed. A general discussion followed, in which middlemen, mail order houses, government crop reports and a live stock commission to take charge of selling the farmers hogs and cattle on a reasonable margin were taken up. These gatherings are very pleasant affairs, they promote sociability and tend to establish unity in the neighborhood.

There was a very pleasant gathering with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Shulteis at the Robert Mellor home on Wednesday evening, when the P. E. O.'s entertained the B. I. L.'s. In other words the husbands or gentlemen friend. It was a pin party and the invitations were very unique. It being Washington's birthday, the first contest was to decipher the names of a few of the presidents from a "pied" list. Mrs. Main was the fortunate one in cutting for the honors and was presented with two small silk flags. The gentlemen were then given some stunts to perform, using some kind of a pin or the name of a pin. The gymnastic feats and the wonderful originality in composition were much enjoyed. The company was then divided into teams for the game of ring toss. Mr. Senter's team made the largest score and was rewarded with a box of candy. Partners for refreshments were secured by matching pins. Music on the piano and victrola was enjoyed.

The Shakespeare club met Tuesday evening with Miss Edith Stocking at the S. D. Relyea home. The subject for the evening was, "Present Conditions in Turkey." Miss Nettie Craven gave a thorough review of conditions in the Balkan states and Miss Stocking discussed progress in Asiatic Turkey, emphasizing transportation facilities and comparative strength of the contending forces. The next meeting will be with Miss Sara Killen when Byzantine Art and modern Constantinople will be presented in an illustrated talk by Miss Killen.

Mrs. Wm. Goldsmith was hostess at a largely attended meeting of the Union Bible Study Circle Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Phoebe Libengood led the study, which discussed seven interesting Grecians. Much prayer was offered for the tabernacle campaign being outlined by the various Wayne churches, to be held as soon as possible. Every home in the city is being visited this week to interest them in this great mass movement for the uplift of the town. The next meeting is with Mrs. Lane on Main street.

Friday evening a party of the friends of Miss Myrtle Evans met at the home of Miss Ethel Huff as a surprise for that young lady who was to bid a farewell to Wayne the following day and to wed the man of her choice. The evening was happily spent, dainty refreshments were served, after which Rev. Gaston, on behalf of those present, presented Miss Evans with a beautiful cut glass dish.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Gustafson gave a party to a crowd of young girls in honor of Miss Hildah's birthday. The young ladies going to the Crystal after which a dainty lunch was served. The rest of the evening was spent in music and games. The out of town guests were Misses Edith Lundberg and Ruth Sackerson of Wakefield.

The U. D. club met last Monday afternoon with Mrs. Harry Jones. Roll call, "A French City, and some Facts Concerning it." Mrs. Kemp read a paper on, "Trade Conditions with the South." Next meeting will be with Mrs. Kemp.

The Early Hour club will meet this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisher, and the evening will be spent in playing "500." Refreshments will be served.

Monday club will meet with Mrs. Hahn next Monday afternoon. Roll call; Mrs. Main will read a paper on, "Seeing America First"; music.

Marriage License

The past week was a busy one for County Judge Britton at his favorite line of work. The judge appears to enjoy uniting the young and handsome in the holy bonds of wedlock and start them out in the world happy—two hearts with but a single thought and two hearts that beat as one.

February 16, 1916, he issued license and married Mr. Carl Larson, son of Charles Larson, and Lulu Axelson, daughter of James B. Axelson and wife, and united their lives with a good tight legal knot.

John Morgan went to Harlan, Iowa, Monday to attend the funeral of his former friend, W. F. Cleveland, who passed away last week. Mr. Cleveland was a man well known over the state, and especially a favorite at home. He was a member of the state senate a term or two, defeating Life Young as a democrat in a republican district in the days when few had friends stronger than party ties. He was twice the democratic nominee for congress from the 9th congressional district, and made strong campaigns.

Frank, the son of John O'Shea, well known to many Wayne people, was quite seriously injured at his home at Bloomfield Sunday afternoon by the kick from a horse. He had ridden a pony into the barn and was thrown from that animal as it entered the stall and he fell beneath another horse which was sharp shod, frightening the animal so that it began kicking. He was cut about the arms by the sharp shoe, and finally received a blow on the back of the head which made quite a severe scalp wound, but he is not now thought to be in a critical condition.

Bruce Rosa of South Fallsburgh, New York, kindly remembered his many friends here the first of the week, sending the price and instructions for his friend J. G. Mines to see that all his old friends had a smoke with the compliments of H. B. Rosa, and the friends were not at all backward and are now sending congratulations though they hardly know what for, but for any good fortune which has befallen our former citizen, whether it be a wife or fortune in some other form less fair, perhaps, they gladly send greetings, and the Democrat joins with others in good wishes.

New departures in the manufacture of motor cars will be revealed in exhibits at the Sioux City automobile show February 29 to March 5, according to advance notices received by promoters of the show. This exhibition will be Sioux City's Seventh Annual Show and you will find the very latest models and designs in Automobiles, Motorcycles, Light Delivery Wagons, Trucks and Miniature Autos, also expert factory demonstrators and lecturers. It will go down in history as a motor education. A solid train from eastern factories direct to this show. This is by far the most complete exhibition ever held in Northwest Motordom. Band concerts and soloist twice daily. Open day and evening. February 29th to March 4th.

Gleaned From Democrat's Exchanges

A big crowd attended the Farmer Institute at Battle Creek last week.

The farmers of Madison county are having school house meetings at which their farm demonstrator is talking to them on farm survey work.

Omaha and Nebraska has a delegation at Detroit this week to back up the invitation to have the next annual meeting of the National Educational association at Omaha.

Many merchants will gather at Omaha this week in attendance at the semi-annual market week festivities. The jobbers of the city are providing good entertainment for their visitors.

Billy Sunday has closed a series of meetings at Trenton, New Jersey, with a credit of 16,764 trailhitters and a purse of more than $32,000 for his effort, and he wept as he told them good bye.

John Nelson passed away at the age of 83, at Battle Creek, last week. He came to a farm near Battle Creek in 1875, so was truly a pioneer in this part of Nebraska. He was a soldier in the late Civil war, and the G. A. R. conducted the funeral service.

Attorney F. L. Putney of Tilden is a candidate for the republican nomination for the office of county clerk in Madison county. Forest is a capable fellow, and he is going against the present clerk, probably, who has held the office for thirteen years, who also formerly belonged at Tilden.

An eastern minister who evidently believes in telling the truth as he sees it suggests that the word "scaredness" be substituted for "preparedness." If the original plan of preparedness could be carried out the time might come when there would be a scaredness of the people who had placed so much power in the hands of their servants.

The Blade editor can understand how anyone outside of the business might ask for a lot of free puffs without appreciating the cost of such puffs to the newspaper but when it comes to men in the business asking for them there is only one excuse and that is that the one making the request is broke. We don't know whether that should be considered a qualification to hold office or not.—Coleridge Blade.

The Coleridge Blade tells that they are confronted there by a condition which he describes as a shortage of houses. As a remedy we suggest that the tariff on lumber be raised a notch or two to protect home industry and enable people to build homes in this great prairie state without any danger of the merchant who sells lumber and the mechanic who does the work having to compete with the pauper labor of Europe.

Democrats have worked for years and years to get the tariff lowered a little and now the munition makers have thrown a scare into some of them and wants us to appropriate so much money for preparedness that the old rates will have to be restored to get the money to pay for it. The president has fallen for their little game, but will the majority of his party follow him like blind sheep, putting postoffices above principle?—Blair Pilot.

The average daily gain per pig of the state pig club members last season was 1.1 pounds. The average cost per pound of gain was 4.4 cents, and the average net profit per boy was $15.30. Membership in this club is open to any boy in the state between 10 and 18 years of age. A large number of awards is provided each year for the winners. Instruction sheets, rules for the contest, and other information may be had without cost from the Extension Service, college of agriculture, Lincoln. Enrollment for the coming season is now open.

The United States department of agriculture says that data on many farms throughout the corn belt show it to be as easy to grow 45 to 60 bushels of corn per acre after a clover or alfalfa crop as it is to secure 30 to 35 bushels after a corn crop in this section. It offers data from the agricultural experiment station of Nebraska to the effect that among investigations, 31 farmers reported average yields of 34.5 bushels of corn per acre on land before seeding it to clover and alfalfa and 68.2 bushels per acre on the same land after it was plowed up and again planted to corn.

Charley Bryan has announced the platform upon which he expects to make the race for the democratic nomination for governor, and he is for the constitutional amendment to put old John Barleycorn out of business. He is also in favor of state regulation of telephone rates, state aiding irrigation projects, he is in favor of a municipal electric lighting plant in Omaha, good highways, state owned water-power plants, the maintenance of fire insurance competition and is opposed to a large military program, though he favors the renomination of President Wilson on an anti-preparedness plank. His big brother, W. J., will campaign for him in the state and other candidates will find the Bryan strength still formidable in good old Nebraska.

A $75,000 land deal near Dallas, South Dakota, last week involving 2,400 acres of land purchased and 1,000 acres of leased land, broke the record for land deals in that part of the state. Not many years ago a land deal was completed in southern Iowa in which more than 1,000 acres of land sold at about $60,000, and the fellows who bought it were said to be candidates for the poorhouse, for they bought on time for far more than half of it but it has long since paid out and other acres have been added, and the same land would today sell for more than $150,000 if desired, which shows that the man who can buy good land for farm purposes near any railroad at less than $60 the acre has a chance to make some money easy and within a few years. Good low-priced land is bound to advance faster in price in the future than in the past.

The editor of the Corning (Iowa,) Free Press gives a bit of friendly advice to the people of that somewhat backward community. He says it is the proper thing when the assessor comes to let him come in and if you have too much visible taxable property about at that time ask him to call later, for no one in Iowa wants to be taxed any higher, according to his holdings than are the railroads. These are not just the words of the Iowa editor, but it is the substance of his advice. He also thinks that the people should also pay taxes on all of their dogs, and cites an instance of the authorities killing a dozen in one community because the assessor did not do his duty.

But 23 dogs were given in for tax, and so all but that number were killed and buried, and then the local butcher entered complaint because of eliminating the supply of raw material for bologna. We know of an Iowa assessor who went to a farm home to list the property where they said they had no dogs, but as he was leaving the place three or four of the beasts attacked him, acting as though they were right at home.

The cost of keeping a horse on a farm for a year in eastern Nebraska is upward of $100, according to the Farm Management department of the college of agriculture. It costs $60 for feed, $7.50 for interest at 5 per cent on a valuation of $150 for the horse, $15 for 10 per cent depreciation on the horse, $12 for 75 hours' care at 16 cents an hour, $7.50 for shelter, and enough more for veterinary attendance, shoeing and other expenses to make it total over $100. In western Nebraska, on account of the lower cost of feed, the cost of keeping a horse is estimated to be somewhat less.

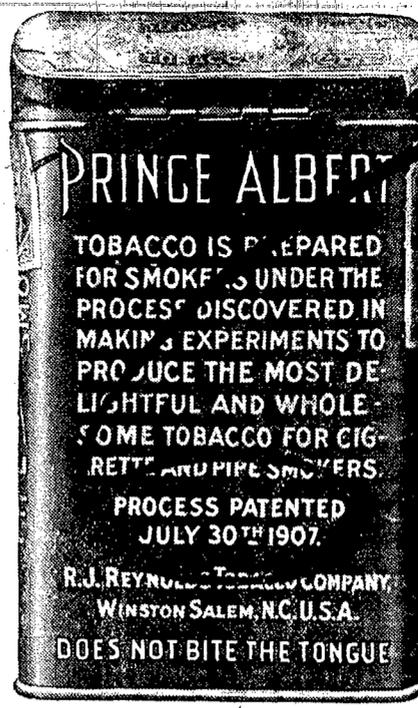

From the Morgan County (Ohio) Democrat we learn that the democratic state auditor during his three years in office has saved the state a million dollars by simply introducing business methods into the office and sticking to that text. In other words he has stopped that much stealing from the tax payers of one of the most corrupt states, politically, of the union. The paper says that Vic Donahy is the name of this efficient official and R. N. Donahy of this city tells us that he is proud to own that kind of a democrat as a cousin. He vetoed the bills of those who expected the state to pay their salary and traveling expenses while on a vacation. He did not allow an official $3.50 for a single meal, and he cut out a whole lot of such petty grafting. He did not allow the heads of departments to pay their own bills from money collected and have the bill audited after the money was spent—bills were audited first and then paid if correct. Here in Nebraska we have a democratic auditor who is and has been doing things right, and his name is Smith.

Edgar Howard says:—A story of interest to many Nebraskans comes down from the far state of Washington. Twenty-five years ago Bob Drake was a poor man traveling for a company which built bridges. He saved his money and organized a little bridge company of his own. Inside of ten years he became a millionaire. Ten years ago he went out to the new state of Washington and built the largest lumber mill on the coast. He sold lumber where he pleased, and to whom he pleased, regardless of the plans of the lumber trust. Then the trouble began, and they made all kinds of it for him.

As a climax the Drake mills were entirely destroyed by fire. Then more trouble came. The combination of big fire insurance companies refused to pay the loss, advancing many technical defenses. Then another Nebraska boy went to the coast country. It was Ed Strode, of Lincoln. He went out to act as attorney for his friend Drake, and to bring suit against the fire insurance combine. The suit was on trial four months. It was decided the other day and Bob Drake was given judgment against the repudiating insurance companies for about one-half million dollars. This will be pleasing news to the friends of two Nebraska boys who scored such a victory over the insurance combine, and also many Nebraskans will be pleased to learn that instead of being wiped off the financial map by the big lumber and fire insurance trusts, Bob Drake still holds title to about three million dollars worth of timber land in Washington. I am aware that in the old days certain interests in Nebraska characterized Bob Drake as a schemer, and so he was, but no man can make me believe that he ever turned a crooked card in all his dealings with the different counties in this state, and indeed I rejoice in the recent victory he won over the combined forces of the lumber and insurance trusts.

H. H. Pease of the Beemer Times is a candidate for the republican nomination for the legislature from that good democratic county of Cuming, and when he comes in from an electioneering trip he tells of the warm support he is to receive and his promised supporters as follows in the Times of February 17th:

While at the Point last Friday afternoon had the exquisite pleasure of meeting one of the old republican war horses of the county, the Honorable Martin Bysong, at present in charge of the Cuming county poor farm. It is a mystery to me how Mr. Martin ever escaped

Listen:

It's easy to change the shape and color of unsuitable brands to imitate the Prince Albert red tin, but it is impossible to imitate the flavor of Prince Albert tobacco! The patented process protects that!

Men who have stowed away gentle old jimmy pipes for years, have brought them back to the tune of Prince Albert! Get yours out, for your confidence never will be abused! We tell you Prince Albert will set pipe free the tenderest tongue!

And smoked in a makin's cigarette, Prince Albert is so refreshing and delightful that it gives you a new idea of cigarette happiness. Any way you fire-up Prince Albert, it will win you quick as a flash—it's so good and so friendly!

being a dyed-in-the-wool democrat. He has all the ear-marks of an old-time Jeffersonian. He's got the wind bag, the self-starter, the bulldozer attachment, the corporosity, the capacity half way between his head and his feet and he reminds me for all the world of the now extinguished William Jennings Bryan. The peculiar thing about the introduction to this distinguished Republican County Commissioner is that he seemed to have taken a most affectionate liking for me, however this may have been only one of his peculiar characteristics, but he seems to think I will have a walk-away in the primaries and will be out of sight in the general election. He says sliding into office is great sport and sliding is extra good this year and someone is liable to wear the seat of their pants out. Mr. Bysong gives promise to be one of my most ardent supporters. I was sorry indeed that I could not supply him with a dray load of my literature, a car load of cigars and a brewery. I wish I could tell you all the nice things he said but he had to spit between sentences. He spoke very highly of the Times but said nothing at all about the West Point papers. He seemed to be familiar with most everything that has appeared in the Times but he will quit sponging on other folks hereafter for he will get a Times of his own.

Mr. Bysong is some politician. He must have been to get elected in a county that gave Jimmie Dahlgren 16 to 1. I tried to get him to tell me how he did it but he didn't want to change the subject but when I asked him how everything was out to the poor farm his face beamed with delight and his eyes sparkled like the glitter of a frost on a sunshiny morning, he looked to me the very picture of a young up sprout who had just been called papa for the first time, but he forgot to answer my question.

Mr. Bysong is one of the most highly respected and well-to-do old-time, pioneer residents of Cuming county, he has a good understanding and is not top-heavy, he wears the same size hat all the time and I am glad indeed to know him as one of the staunch republicans of the county. I am glad indeed to know that I can rely on such honorable support for I will certainly need something to rely on after November 7th. All those wishing a clear prophecy of what is going to happen to some of the demmys next November will do well to ask Martin about it.

England has called the boys over 18 years of age to the colors and yet there are those who criticize the foreign policy of a president who has kept us from war, merely for partisanship or greed of gain. Such criticism surely strengthens the president with all of the people.

Editor Metcalfe of the Omaha Nebraskan has been reproducing some of the editorial utterances of the country newspapers of the state with a flag at the head of the column and under the heading of "Editors Who Are Not Afraid," and we notice that all of the "brave" ones he quotes are those who appear not to be afraid to let their readers go to war if agitation should bring such a thing to pass. We did not notice anything from the Commoner in the column yet and we wonder if its editor is afraid.

What apparently killed Garrison and his continental army plan was the statement that it would have to be raised by conscription and the fact that the fellows who expected to profit by it were planning to put additional tax on labor to pay the bill. This country will not permit men to be forced into an army in time of peace just for fear that that which has never yet happened may come to pass—some foolish war-mad nation try to invade his country protected as it is by thousands of miles of ocean from any of the powers they claim we must fear. A nightmare is a fierce thing to contend with—but the best preparedness for it is good digestion and care of your diet.

Arthur Brisbane was one of the stars who addressed the Iowa editors in convention assembled at Des Moines last week, and he injected a paragraph about prohibition which set a lot of the Iowa quills scratching, and from the comment which we read he must have hit the tender spot. He doubtless told a few facts about a bit of the pretense and hypocrisy of the professional prohibitionists of our sister state which a lot of the good editors did not dare to tell their readers. Some of them say he did not know what he was talking about and others say that he knew of other places, but not of Iowa. We venture the guess that it was some of the hit birds that fluttered. Prohibition on a statute book is not a cure for the evils of the drink habit. That takes education and a generation or two for the rot to soak out of the system.

W. S. Ridgell of Lincoln was at Bloomfield last Thursday night to attend the dedication of their new city hall and firemen's home, and carried at Wayne Friday morning while on his way home. He is at present the efficient fire warden and inspector of the state, a position he has filled with credit to himself and to the profit of the people. His effective system of enforcing safety first in the matter of fire prevention has been largely instrumental in cutting the fire loss of the state to about half what it was in other years. He has been systematically efficient. He left with some of his friends here a card stating that he wants to be named on the democratic ticket for a place on the railway commission, and he is quite apt to receive the nomination. Doubtless he would take with him to that position the same inclination to serve the people well as has been manifest in his present official capacity. It might be well for the voter to learn what this man has been doing for the state and if worthy promote him.

School Money from State

County Superintendent Pearl Sewell reports that the sum of $4,417.73 has been received from the state by this county for the school fund. School Notes

The second grade has finished reading four readers.

New pupils in the eighth grade are Doris Meyers and Bernice Perrin.

The children of the sixth grade are committing the poem, "Paul Revere's Ride." They are also reviewing the different processes in fractions.

Mrs. Homer Seace was unable to be at her post in the fifth grade the latter part of last week on account of illness. Miss Nellie Strickland was in charge of her room during her absence.

The fifth grade entertained the sixth grade and twenty-one other visitors Friday afternoon, by giving a rhetorical program. The pupils of this grade have been interested in testing various articles to see if acid or base.

Recent visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Senter, Mrs. Rippon, Mrs. Martin Kruger, Mrs. Chas. Reynolds, Mrs. Chas. Beebe of Wakefield, Mrs. O. A. Hedge of Seattle, Washington, Mrs. G. J. Hesse, Mrs. LeRoy Ley and Miss Mollie Piepenstock.

The German club met in the music room of the high school Tuesday evening. The time was spent viewing stereopticon views of Germany and Switzerland, presented by Rev. Rudolph Moehring. These views about many of which the German classes have studied, were very fine. At the close of the meeting dainty refreshments were served.

Friday afternoon, Alice Blair, president of the Freshman class, in behalf of the class, presented to the high school, two double Victrola records: "The Dawn" and "The Storm" from the overture to "William Tell," and two Hawaiian guitar numbers. The high school appreciates this move instituted by the Freshman class and it is to be hoped that other classes will respond in the same manner.

In the seventh grade the pupils of the "B" division are learning the art of letter writing, also the proper way of addressing and stamping the envelope. Among the most interesting studies in this grade is the reading and discussing of current events. Most of the pupils are well informed as to the daily happenings in foreign countries as well as in our own. These students have been paying close attention particularly to the study of reading since the beginning of the second semester, and the improvement in this branch is quite noticeable. We consider poor reading the "root of all evil" in other branches of school work. The pupils in this grade have also been interested in watching the movements of the planets which are so prominent in the western sky at this time.

Aron-Marvede

The German Lutheran church was handsomely decorated with flowers Sunday in honor of the wedding which took place at 11:30 o'clock. The contracting parties were Miss Mete Aron and Mr. August Marvede. Rev. John Aron, father of the bride and pastor of the above named church, pronounced the ceremony in a most impressive manner.

At the close of the ceremony the bridal party went to the Aron home where an elegant dinner was awaiting them.

Hilda and John Aron, sister and brother of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and groomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvede left on the afternoon train for a week's honeymoon at Madison, Wisconsin, where they will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Aron after which they will return to Denison, Iowa, where they will make their home. —Hoskins Headlight

Science Club

An unusually large attendance of the Science club was held Tuesday evening, February 22. Mr. Siems gave a very interesting lecture on "Electricity on the Farm." He believes that the practical value of the electric light plant upon the farm cannot be overestimated. The plan for lighting the farm buildings, including house, barn, poultry house, etc., was drawn upon the blackboard. The approximate cost of the Dayton low voltage plant, the one which seems to be the most practical, is as follows: Dynamo... $ 65.00
16 Storage Batteries... 215.00
Switchboard... 85.00
3-horse power Engine... 150.00
Wire, Insulators, Lamps... 215.00
Total cost... $665.00

Farmers, Town Folks, Ladies, Children, Everybody!
Hear Prof. P. G. Holden, THE GREAT CORN MAN

LECTURE AT WAYNE
Afternoon Tuesday, March 7 Evening

Every one in the Corn Belt knows of the wonderful things this man has done to improve the yield and quality of corn. Through his plans Iowa added $20,000,000 to the value of her corn crop.

He KNOWS how to make the corn grow. His plans are simple, easily carried out and inexpensive. This year in particular the problem of getting good seed corn is a serious one—let us all turn out and hear how this man of successful experience would handle it. His lectures are free—he comes without charge—he is employed as the head of a great educational department who are spending thousands of dollars yearly to improve crop conditions everywhere. He is in great demand and we are very fortunate to have him sent here. Let us all turn out and get all the good we can from his lectures.

Among the Churches of Wayne

Presbyterian Church
(Rev. S. Xenophon Cross, Pastor)
All are welcome at all the services.

The church interior will be clean and comfortable next Sunday.

There will be special music Sunday morning and the pastor will preach on: "The Waiting Guest." The REMEMBER will be published this week. Get a copy and send it to some friend as a greeting from the church.

The Sunday School requires the presence of every member of the church. Let us not call in vain, in your case at least.

It is hoped that a good many folks will plan to attend some part of the Boy's Conference at Sioux City, March 3d to 5th. Two or more of our own boys will attend as delegates.

Mr. R. B. Crone, President of our synodical college at Hastings, is anxious to have a copy of the college catalog in every Presbyterian home. If you will send him your name, he will mail you the catalog.

Friends of Rev. Wm. J. Shallcross will be pleased to know that he is again engaged in the evangelistic work. Mr. Buma is in City Mission work in Kalamazoo, Michigan. Mr. Shallcross and another singer will work in our Presbytery this spring.

The Junior Endeavor meets each Sunday afternoon, in two sections, one for boys and one for girls, at 3 o'clock. The meeting lasts till 4 o'clock and the children should be home in a few minutes after that hour. The Y. P. S. C. E. will be led by Mr. A. R. Davis.

Baptist Church
Rev. W. L. Gaston, Pastor
High Cost of Low Living

If you are at the Baptist church next Sunday evening you will hear a lecture on the new phase of the old time growl about the high cost of living. Rev. Gaston puts it a little differently, however, when he announces that he will speak on the high cost of low living.

This construction introduces another theme, but one that is decidedly practical and up-to-date. You will be told Sunday night that it costs to be chery and meanness is an expensive indulgence that none can afford. High standards of living do not cost much and are not so expensive as low standards. It pays to be decent. It pays to be square and if you don't think so turn out Sunday night and hear what the preacher knows about it any way.

There will be fine music to reinforce the program and schedule an entertainment that will be worth while. There will be chorus music, also duets and solos. All who are attendants at other churches are urged to attend and both enertainment and instruction is promised them.

German Lutheran Church
Rev. Moehring, Pastor

Next Sunday: Sunday school at 10 o'clock and preaching at 11 o'clock. No services at Winside.

See us for wedding invitations.

The American Ambulance of Paris

by Weldon F. Crossland
Nebraska Rhodes scholar who has had some interesting experiences in British prison camp and in American 'ambulance' in Paris, since the beginning of the war in Europe.

The daily life of the maimed men who have been returned from the trenches and of the Red Cross hospital attendants in the American hospital in Paris is vividly pictured in the following letter from Weldon Frank Crossland, Rhodes scholar at Oxford from Nebraska. Mr. Crossland who visited in Nebraska last spring returned to Europe and served as a Red Cross nurse in the American hospital the following September and October. He was graduated at the Nebraska Wesleyan university where he took prominent part in all college activities in 1918. He will receive his bachelor's degree from Oxford this spring. Mr. Crossland, whose home is at Wayne, has done Y. M. C. A. work in the army camps in England at various times since the outbreak of the war and on several occasions was but a few miles from the scenes of Zeppelin raids.—State Journal.

One could hardly wish for a more novel and exciting six weeks vacation than several of us Rhodes scholars spent at the American Ambulance of Paris. Its situation is almost ideal, in the delightful residential district of Neuilly, just at the edge of the city. At the beginning of the war, the building which was then only partially completed, was to serve as a school for boys, but because of its suitability for hospital work, the French government undertook its completion for the Americans of Paris who wished to support a distinctively American institution. About one hundred and fifty beds were at once set up, while the erection of the remaining portion of the building progressed. Now seven hundred patients make their home here, besides the two hundred doctors, nurses and orderlies. The grassy courtyard with its fountain and stately arranged with the French good taste, makes the convalescent stage of recovery as pleasant as could be desired.

Our work as orderlies was too varied ever to become monotonous even though we worked, as was several times the case, thirty-six hours at a stretch; we were literally Jacks-of-all-trades. If there was an armless man whose face needed to be washed, the orderly usually did it; if an operation was to be staged, it was the orderly who helped prepare the specimen; if a man was about to die, the orderly assisted in performing the last offices for him in a very uneclesiastical sense; and it was the orderly who acted as pall bearer in the early hours of the morning, when the silent procession of white-clad figures moved slowly down the corridor. So perhaps a day of his activities will illustrate each phase of the work.

The duty which takes precedence over all others is the reception and care of the wounded as they are brought in from the train or the base hospitals. After carefully unloading the men on stretchers from the ambulances, we prepare those who were not badly wounded for the bath. I have never seen fellows so grateful for anything as some of those chaps were to get off their mud-covered and filth caked clothes, and to get once more into "an honest-to-goodness, four-legged bed." There may be a certain amount of glory in some kinds of war, but to live like animals in mud and water for days and weeks at a time as these fellows have done, "rather detracts from the romance of it all."

The day's routine begins with the light French breakfast of bread, porridge and tea. It is great fun "to feed the animals," that is, to be arms for the armless men; they appear to enjoy it as much as we do. They are entirely at one's mercy, and display more optimistic resignation at mealtime than I think most of us would under similar circumstances. At nine o'clock begins the dreaded part of the day's work—the dressing hour. An entirely different atmosphere pervades the whole ward the moment the doctor and his assistant with the medical cart make their appearance at the door. As individuals the doctors are exceedingly popular, but in their official capacity they are not always fully appreciated. Though they display the utmost care and tenderness in dressing wounds, the hard-ship worked is often almost unbearable. I have seen cases where the patient had to put a napkin between his teeth during the dressing to keep from breaking them. The redeeming feature is that the doctors cultivate the friendship and confidence of their patients, who will endure almost any amount of pain for those whom they like. In the worst cases they use a mild form of suggestion or hypnosis which is most effective in taking the patient's mind off the dressing. One almost inexplicable fact is the way in which the wounded laugh at their fellow-soldier, who, is being unsuccessful in keeping his troubles to himself, lest the rest of the ward know in a not inaudible way the fact that he is still among the living; they literally make life miserable for him. One big French man, whom they called "The Baby" or "The Martyr," insisted more or less tactlessly at each dressing in groaning, "Oh, what a martyr I am, what a sacrifice for France." No one doubted the genuineness of his sentiments; but his fellow-sufferers disliked being reminded of the fact every possible occasion. They voluntarily assumed the responsibility of disciplining the weaker brother, until he became quite reserved even under difficulties. They feel that they have all undergone the same ordeal, though perhaps they did not see the humor of the situation at the time; that he is plainly disturbing the peace; that in most cases giving vent to his feeling only increases his discomfort; and that from every standpoint the noise is undesirable. In many cases the humor of the situation saves the day, and a dressing will progress with the formerly-howling patient laughing at himself.

We orderlies always assisted with the dressings, holding the broken limb or arm while it was being treated. It is not with over-due pleasure that we recall the effect which the continual inhaling of ether, used for disinfecting the wound, and the sights so totally different from any that one sees in civilian life had upon us. There were during the first two days unmistakable feelings of dizziness accompanied by a gradual narrowing of the field of vision after the first ten or fifteen minutes. Someone would suggest that you should go out into the fresh air for a moment or two to get back your color—a suggestion which you followed if you wished to be of any further assistance. A minute or two in the open was quite sufficient to restore one's equilibrium and cause him to return to the next case with even firmer resolve. After the first few days however, the dressing hour, which usually extended over the entire morning was looked forward to as the most welcome part of the day's work. In spite of the fact that there was always danger from infection, none of us orderlies wore gloves except one Englishman, "The English Gentleman" as he was called; to complete the picture he wore a monacle. One of the sights of the hospital was to see this gloved and monacled specimen of the English dude feeding as gracefully as his stilted manner would permit, some armless chap. Any remarks we made left him quite unperturbed; but had we stolen his omnipresent monacle I am confident that he could not have gone on duty before procuring another.

Though one's taste may be deemed rather perverse, the desert of the whole day's bill of fare was the operation. Whenever any unfortunate in our ward was scheduled for a visit to the surgeon, we were in especially good spirits. It was not that we wished the poor fellow to lose a limb or an arm; it was only that we were glad to see him lose it. Preparations for the function were most elaborate. After starving him for a day or so, we would array him in festive robes and with the utmost tenderness, we would lay him out on the operating room cart and wheel him away. Then, as the anaesthetic was being administered we would do him the tender service of holding his hand, not for his comfort but for his welfare. If he became especially violent we would use the persuasive influence of our weigh upon him. We had no end of excitement with a French aviator, who had been shot through the limb while reconnoitering behind the German lines. He struggled very slightly during the first stages of anaesthesia, but suddenly with one last effort he wrenched his hand loose and tore the mask off his face. In excited and articulated syllables he began to tell the surgeon how to apply the anaesthetic. Four of us promptly sat on him.

The unusualness of the sight of the operating room completely disappears in watching the surgeon as he skillfully makes and amputation or performs an operation for appendicitis. The feats accomplished have been truly remarkable. They have made new lower jaws with artificial teeth for a number of the patients, that perform their appointed task almost as effectively as their predecessors did. A new nose was presented to another. Many men have been saved who were sent there to die, men whom the field doctors did not have the heart to give an overdose of morphine. The record of the American hospital is twenty-five saved out of every twenty-six treated—a record which no other Paris hospital has equalled. There is no doubt that American efficiency and skill is responsible for this enviable state of affairs, as all the surgeons and doctors are American.

PREPAREDNESS?

Marie O'Donnell Weeks

To us, newspaper work is the finest work in all the world. We were born with the instinct and we never care to outgrow it. But there are features about it that are trying and the chief of these features is the breaking of faith, the shattering of ideals. For years and years, and we remember no time when we did not love Editor Metcalfe. But somehow of late we can't feel the thrill of pleasure we used to experience in reading one of his beautiful masterpieces. "The Nebraskan," to which we looked with the most pleasant anticipation, while fair to look upon does not ring true. It lacks the fine democracy that was the predominant characteristic of its parent, Laurie Quinby's "Chancellor." And now comes its editor, who challenges his former chief and friend, the splendid Commenter, to a series of six public debates on "Preparedness," claiming to speak for "many thousands of rank and file democrats here who feel that some Nebraska voice should be raised in behalf of national defense." Mr. Metcalfe says further:

"I am among those Nebraska democrats who believe that the most important duty now pressing upon American people is that of providing our country with adequate national defense and giving to the president, who is trying to discharge that duty, the support to which he is entitled."

Just whom are those Nebraska democrats, Mr. Metcalfe? Are they not in the larger part a few editors and politicians, office holders and would-be office holders who think that every time the president takes snuff they must sneeze? Are they not men in the greater part who, in everything ever proposed where in a principle was at stake looked first, not for the defense of the principle, but the easiest place to "light." Are you, Mr. Metcalfe, and the "many thousands" you claim to represent, ready to send forth your sons; to bid them goodbye for the last time and see them go to the trenches to murder other sons of other thousands, who, like you and the rest of us have no word to say in the matter of declaring for or against war? You make a great "to-do" about American patriotism and about standing by the flag, and you seem to infer that those Nebraska newspapers that fail to see "red" where you do are lacking in loyalty. But, Mr. Metcalfe, who are you that you should judge the rest of us? We think most Nebraska newspapers need introduce no outside testimony to prove loyalty to their community, state, nation and to human service. To be sure some of us can't see that the flag flying from the munition plant of some greedy speculator, stands for freedom. Some of us can't see that the havoc wrought by the war bomb is any less murderous, less heathenish than the murderous attack of the torch and war club of the dark ages.

Most Nebraska fathers and mothers that we know are not raising sons for sacrifices for the war gods, Mr. Metcalfe. Should Mr. Bryan accept your challenge, Mr. Metcalfe, we would be pleased to have the Third district debate staged at Norfolk and we'll show you as loyal Americans, Nebraska or any other state contains, and every one of the defenders of true democracy but we warn you that there will not be many in sympathy with your ideas on national defense.

Root "Agin the Government"

Former Senator Root appeared as attorney for the prosecution before the New York republican state convention. The democratic party appeared as defendant. Mr. Root is an able lawyer, perhaps the ablest in the country today, and he made a powerful plea for the conviction of the defendant. Whether it carried great weight is another question.

The democratic party had a good deal of experience as the party of opposition. During the sixteen years between 1896 and 1912 the democrats were kept busy ringing the changes of protest against what the republicans were doing. Republicans used to smile pityingly whenever the democrats found something new to view with alarm. The "ins" grew to depend on the intelligence of the public to give it understanding that the "outs" would criticize every act of the party in power, whether good or bad.

The republicans have had the party of opposition for only three years, but they have learned the game as it is played on that side with a good deal of celerity. It is doubtful if the whole record of sixteen years of democratic opposition offers a better example of the typical opposition speech than the one delivered by Mr. Root in New York the other day. The democratic record as set forth by him is a record of blunders. This applies equally to foreign and domestic policies. The arraignment is so severe as to overreach its purpose. The impression that it makes on the open mind is one of unfairness.

The republicans in congress helped the democrats to accomplish nearly everything that has been accomplished under President Wilson's leadership during the last three years. There must be something good in the record or the republicans wouldn't have helped to make it. The republicans in congress are now engaged in cooperating with the president in a preparedness program. It had been hoped that the time was past when intelligent voters would be led to believe that all the wisdom was located in a single party.

If Mr. Root has sounded the keynote for the republican campaign of 1916, that campaign is not going to be conducted on a very high plane.

The Fight is On

It would be folly to try to disguise the fact that a real fight is already begun between the factions in the democratic party in Nebraska. One faction favors the militaristic plans of the war trust. This faction is led by Senator Hitchcock and Herbert Gooch, the wealthy grain speculator. The faction opposed to militarism, and opposed to all the plans of the war trust, has William J. Bryan for leader. Each faction will submit at the primary the names of their favorites for delegates to the democratic national convention. The names of the war trust candidates have not yet been announced. The four candidates selected by the opponents of the war trust for delegates are William J. Bryan, Judge J. J. Thomas, of Seward; W. H. Thompson, of Grand Island, and Louis Piatti, of Omaha. All four of these men favor the renomination of President Wilson, but each is decidedly opposed to the effort of the war trust to induce the democratic national convention to adopt a military plank in its platform.

The contest will be warm in Nebraska, but it is so plain that none other than a fool will fail to understand it. Those who favor the plans of the war trust will make a mistake if they vote in favor of Bryan, Thomas, Thompson and Piatti for delegates at large, because these men will fight to keep a military plank out of the platform. All democrats opposed to the plans of the war trust should vote for these four men as delegates at large, because each will do his best to keep the national convention away from the folly of adopting a military platform.

The war trust democrats in the Third district have not announced their choice for district delegates. Democrats opposed to the war programme will present for the district delegates Dr. F. H. Morrow, of Columbus, and William H. Green, of Creighton.

The Telegram endorses the candidacy of Bryan, Thompson, Piatti and Thomas for delegates at large, because we know they will fight the plans of the war trust to the last ditch, and for the same reason we endorse the candidacy of Dr. Morrow and Will Green as district delegates.—Columbus Telegram.

The Two Kingdoms

Each man a kingdom may possess; May play the monarch's role; And his the kingdom is no less Than that of mind and soul; Each man, of course, must make his own,

And therein must live, too, And by his kingdom he is known— What kind, good sir, have you?

A poor man's kingdom rich may be; A rich man's kingdom, poor; And even through eternity Some kingdoms may endure; Their subjects are kind acts and deeds,

Good words, and heart thoughts true— What monarch better subjects needs? What kind, good sir, have you?

Some kingdoms which more pompous are, And full of brazen show, Are emptier and poorer far Than those that kindness know; At last to dead sea fruit they turn; Become as bitter rue,

Dead ashes in the funeral urn— What kind, good sir, have you?

Our advice is to buy seed early, whether you buy it from us or not, Carhart's adv.

Salonika Under Turkish Rule

(From a Letter to a Sioux City Friend from Ethel Wheeler Braun, in Sioux City Journal.)

It was shortly before the first Balkan war that I spent some time in Salonika. Now that it has become the basis of a new military operation, it may be interesting to know something of it as it was under Turkish rule.

When we crossed from Serbia into Macedonia we found the rail-ways, bridges and stations guarded by soldiers. With our train was an armored car. We could not in the least understand what it all meant. Arrived in Salonika, we found that it might be only a question of days until there might be an outbreak of hostilities between Serbia and Turkey; that no night passed without bomb outrages and attempts to dynamite bridges. A state of affairs which was not known of in Europe, at least not to the press. Later on, when the trouble had been settled, we heard, night after night, the tramp, tramp, tramp of the troops being marched through the town, to be embarked on the transports out in the bay and then taken off to Asia. The poor devils often dropped in the streets with the cholera. In the train, the panic-stricken soldiers threw the men out of the windows at the first symptoms. After each movement of troops, that wonderful Oriental body—the sanitary Commission—strewn the streets with live lime. At Monastir the conditions were frightful; half the population died or ran away. In the hinterland, the comitadjis and brigands were very active. Dr. Richter was a prisoner on Mount Olympus; we afterwards saw him when he regained his freedom. To venture a few kilometers outside of Salonika was tempting fate, so we did not venture.

Romantically Beautiful

The position of Salonika is romantically beautiful. Rising from the bay like an amphitheatre, and topped by the fortresses built by the Venetians, it is fascinating as seen from a lazy, Oriental sail-boat out in the bay. The great white villas of the pashas, with their gardens running down to the sea, shine like precious stones in the blaze of the eastern sun. During the six weeks' fast, when no Mohammedan touches food nor drink during the day-time, a cannon shot, from a warship anchored in the bay, marked the rising and the setting of the sun. With the Rumanian consul, we visited the principal mosques, St. Sofia and St. Demetrius, where the tomb of the orthodox saint is. We were permitted to see the lovely Christian mosaics, which were then hidden by a curtain. Now, both have again become Greek orthodox churches, but the mosque towers have been left standing. Only the hadji does not chant there any more. We also saw the ruins of probably the oldest Byzantine church, St. Sofia, but the untrained eye could distinguish little of its former beauty. In the center of the city is the marvelously preserved "Arch of Triumph," commonly supposed to have been built in Alexander the Great's time. But it seems too well con-served to be so old and may have been built by the Venetians. Of all the quarters—Turkish, Greek, European and Jewish—the Turkish is the cleanest, and the Jewish the dirtiest. The bazaar, or market was a fascinatingly filthy place. Up in the poorer Turkish quarter is the inn where Pierre Loti lived during his stay in Salonika, about which he wrote his novel, "Les Veeschantees."

Out on the road which follows the contour of the bay is the big, square, red brick villa where Abdul Hamid was imprisoned. The wall about it was 10 feet high and a garrison always on duty. They were taking no chances. The little white painted German warship "The Loreli," which during the first Balkan war, took him to Constantinople, was lying in the bay. We saw the dirty, little, insignificant Turkish cafe where the "Committee of Union and Progress" used to meet, and where the young Turk revolution started. It was Enver Bey, who led the march to Constantinople, took prisoner Abdul Hamid and brought him back to Salonika. I spoke to many who had met the new sultan, but they told me that his 30 years' captivity had made an imbecile of him. When he made his journey through Macedonia he had to be constantly supplied with a kind of Turkish brandy. I often saw a most handsome, white bearded Albanian patriarch, Hakki Pasha, who shortly afterwards became minister of war, and is at present Turkish minister in Berlin. Zendauski, the famous Comitadjid leader, who has been lately murdered, was often to be seen in the cafes, striking only because of his immense beard and whiskers. Salonika, out of a population of 200,000, had 80,000 Jews. There is a very curious sect called Mohammedan Jews. One of the Mustafas once sent word to the Jews of Salonika that they must become converted to Islamism or he would destroy them. They, naturally enough, became Mohammedans, adopting the dress and speech and have kept them ever since. Enver Bey and Vjavid Pasha were both of this sect.

Social Features

One saw, especially on Jewish holidays, the old Palestine Jewish dress worn by the women, and the kaftan and ear curls worn by the men. On Saturday afternoon, the Jewish Sabbath, all the banks were closed as well as on Sunday afternoon. Besides Turkish and Jewish costumes, there were many Albanians, Bulgars, Servians, Greeks and Rumanians, all in brilliant colors, and mostly topped by the fez, for every Turkish subject must wear the fez. The Europeans, except the consuls, were mostly orientals, that is, a mixture of Greek, French, English, Germans, with a preponderance of Greek. Socially, there were three features, the terni courts, the open air cinematograph on the edge of the water, and the men's club, which was the center of European life and where one could play bridge.

From my balcony I looked down upon two cafes which stretched into the street until they met, and along the quay from the shipping docks down to the white tower, another relic of the Venetian conquest. Below me chattered a noisy oriental crowd, and before me across the bay was Mount Olympus, the home of the old dead gods, now abandoned to some bands of half savage robbers.

Which primary election will be open at eight o'clock in the morning and will continue open until eight o'clock in the evening of the same day.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 15th day of February, A. D., 1916. (Seal) CHAS. W. REYNOLDS, adv. 7-4 County Clerk.

The Basis of Rates

The last few years have been perilous ones for public utilities. The cost of equipment and of labor have been constantly increasing, while there have been few increases in rates.

We do not believe that any public utility can furnish, nor the public obtain, permanent and efficient service without a fair profit.

The public is our only source of revenue and any increased taxes, material or labor costs must always be met by the telephone users either directly or indirectly.

We have always endeavored to adjust our telephone rates to make it possible for everyone to be connected who would add to the value of the service, thus giving the greatest good to the greatest number.

We believe that the public is best served by our charging rates that will afford us enough money to maintain and operate our system properly, furnish a sufficient surplus fund with which to rebuild or restore parts of the plant when worn out, and earn a fair rate of interest for the men and women who have their savings invested in our property.

BALLOT LAW DECISION

Secretary of State Chas. W. Pool makes Ruling as to Primary Ballot. Pointers for Assessors and other matters from Lincoln.

Secretary O. E. Bernecker of the state board of equalization and assessment has sent the various county assessors a circular letter with blank schedules, militia blanks, and a comparative statement of real estate values. He is taking the utmost care to secure an equitable and uniform assessments of lands and other property. He recommends that automobiles be valued according to horse power, style and make, with deductions as follows: New, 15 per cent off; one year old, 30 off; two years, 40; three years, 55; four years, 70.

This week the school district, City of Omaha, delivered for registration to State Auditor Smith, a package containing a half million dollars of school bonds. This is the last half of the million dollar issue voted by Omaha some time since. Bond Clerk Ellsworth calls attention to the fact that during 1915 he handled and entered for registration various bond issues totaling $3,494,317.21—an increase of more than forty per cent over 1914. Notwithstanding this increase in the work, Auditor Smith's office force is reduced one person, and the saving thus far in salaries and expenses is over one thousand dollars.

Three cents a mile railroad passenger fare is a probability in the near future in Nebraska now that the Missouri Pacific and Rock Island railroads have succeeded in evading the two-cent passenger fare law by resort to the Federal Courts; and in the face of rising income on all roads, both in freight and passenger receipts, it is likely that the question of railroad taxation will again become acute. If the railroads are to boost passenger rates 33 per cent, then they should pay their full share of the taxes. And it is a serious question whether they do so now.

THE PRIMARY BALLOT

County clerks and printers, as well as candidates actual and prospective, are interested in the ballot to be used at the forthcoming primary, and a number have written Secretary of State Pool whether the Baulser election law effects the primary law. He has ruled as follows:

"After carefully reading both the Primary and General Election laws of Nebraska, it is my opinion that House Roll No. 277, to be found at page 94 of the Session Laws, 1915, does not in any particular change the Primary law which has been in effect many years; therefore, you are not authorized to publish the primary election ballot form in newspapers, but should cause to be printed sample ballots on red or green paper as in former years, and in the printing of the official and primary ballots for the primary election to be held April 18th, 1916, the names of candidates shall be rotated and not placed alphabetically. You should print the sample and official primary ballots in the same form as is shown in schedule "A", Chapter 20, Article V., of the General Election Laws, 1915."

General section No. 2176, Revised Statutes, 1913, provides that—"The official primary ballot shall be printed substantially as is required by law for official ballots used at November elections" and inasmuch as the Blausler law of 1915 changed the ballot form from a long ballot, one column wide, to a three column ballot, therefore the primary ballots must conform to the Blausler law as regards form of sheet. The names, however, must be rotated, as Secretary Pool points out.

Make Fall Dairy Plans Now

To have the greatest amount of milk and butter when there is ordinarily the least work to do on the farm and when the price of milk and butter is highest is naturally of interest to the average farmer. In order to provide for this, cows must be bred this month at the latest. The Dairy Husbandry department of the college of agriculture says that cows calving in the fall produce not only a larger part of the butter fat when it is most valuable but that they produce one-tenth more butter fat than when calving at other times during the year. In addition, cows which freshen in the early winter and are well cared for during the winter period upon pasture at the time when they would naturally be drying up, and this lengthens the milking period and increases the annual yield of butter. The climate is also more favorable in winter where good shelter is available.

The Disease of Charity

Bolton Hall, well-known writer on social questions, has written a booklet that challenges the efficacy of charity work. He admits that with poverty, sickness and misery all about, we cannot let men suffer and die without doing something. But he is not sure that we are doing the right thing. "The Disease of Charity" is inspiring, thoughtful and constructive.

A complimentary copy of this booklet will be mailed to every reader of this paper who sends a trial subscription (only 25c) to The Public, a journal of fundamental democracy.

Referring to The Public, Brand Whitlock wrote from Belgium: In the midst of all the horrors of the world it is the one thing I know of—aside from one's own conscience—and the democratic principle down deep in our heart—by which to correct one's reckoning. It is a compass—never sensational, always calm and pointing in the same direction.

Miss Annie Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Roberts, died at the family home southwest of Carroll Tuesday, February 8 of diphtheria.

Deceased was 20 years, 3 months and 20 days of age. On account of the nature of the disease, which robbed her of her life while yet so young, no public funeral was held, but a short service took place at the grave, conducted by Rev. D. T. Davies and Rev. D. Penny Davis.

The sad news of Annie's death cast a shadow over the whole community for all of her short life was spent here, and every heart was touched with sympathy for the stricken ones, from whose fireside the light had fled.

For 20 bright, sunny years not only had she been the joy and comfort of the home, now left empty and desolate, but her sweet presence brought a wealth of sunshine and happiness into lives of the entire community.
