THE CHRISTENING PARTY

Wayne Commercial Club Merges Into Broader Field of Service. Adopts New Name. "Public Service Club" is Now Name.

At the meeting of the Commercial Club at the city hall Monday evening a new name was taken, a new constitution and by-laws were adopted, and the organization hopes to enlarge its field, interest more people and be in position to do more for the community.

The idea of advertising for name suggestions brought 17 different names, from three different states. One came from Clarinda, Iowa, one from Worthington, Minnesota, and the others from Wayne and vicinity. The one selected after the process of elimination had reduced the number to three when two ballots decided by one majority was sent in by Ward Randol, a student of the Wayne high school, who lives just north of town. "Public Service Club" of Wayne it now is.

Below we give the names suggested, numbered in the order received:

1. Wayne Commercial Fellowship Workers;
2. Wayne Community Club;
3. Wayne Admiral Club;
4. The Draw;
5. Wayne—The Buckle on the Corn Belt;
6. Wayne Union Virtue Club;
7. Wayne Virtue Communion;
8. Wayne Virtue Community;
9. Greater Wayne Commercial Club;
10. Willing Workers Club;
11. Public Service Club;
12. Urban and Rural Industrial Federation;
13. Community Welfare Club;
14. Wayne County Co-operative Welfare Club;
15. Consumers Co-operative Union;
16. Wayne County Boosters Club;
17. Co-operative Community Club.

The usual business of the club was disposed of before the matter of adopting a new constitution and by-laws was taken up. The secretary had previously been instructed to prepare and submit a constitution and by-laws, the most important portions of which are given below. The several sections relating to the duties of officers and executive committee are merely in the usual form for the customary duties of such officials.

Preamble

Whereas there exists in all communities a multitude of industries that should be encouraged and fostered for the public welfare, and whereas such interests cannot be promoted by separate or individual efforts, we whose names are hereto attached, do organize for the purpose of combining efforts to advance community interests of what-so-ever nature, and for the direction of said organization do ordain and adopt the following constitution and by-laws:

Constitution

Article I.—The name of this organization shall be the Public Service Club of Wayne.

Article II.—The object of this organization shall be to secure the co-operation of all business men, professional men, farmers, stock raisers, mechanics, laborers, or men retired from whatsoever occupation, residing in or in the community of Wayne, Nebraska, in the promotion of general business, farming, stock raising, manufacturing, laboring, employing plants, good roads, and anything that will be a benefit to the community, morally, financially or socially. To cultivate and foster the spirit of unity and co-operation between town and country, to promulgate better methods in business, farming, profession and labor. To be the "Glad Hand" of the community. To extend a welcome to every worthy and profitable enterprise or industry seeking location. To be the community agent directing general affairs and the medium of correspondence with the public outside. To render in every possible way all public service.

The next few articles tell the duties of officers, etc. Article V. says that the annual meeting of the club shall be held in January of each year. Article VI. calls for monthly meetings of the board of directors, on the first Monday evening of each month.

Article VII.—Any reputable citizen of Wayne or vicinity may become a member of this organization by payment of six months dues in advance. The dues of this organization shall be $3.00 per annum, payable semi-annually in advance. The board of directors have authority to remit the dues of any member for the consideration of notable service rendered the community.

For needed funds more than the membership dues furnished, the budget plan was adopted—in other words they are to be raised by subscription, the board of directors determining the amount needed and prorating it among the business interests interested.

Under the presidency of J. J. Ahern and the aid of Secretary Gaston the newly named organization is working constantly, consistently and intelligently for the advancement of the interests of the community. In this work they are ably assisted by the members of the executive committee, and it is safe to predict that the year 1916 will witness some decided improvement in conditions at Wayne.

Death of Wm. T. Shorten

Death claimed Wm T. Shorten, formerly of this place, but of late of Chace, Kansas, as the result of being caught beneath a falling horse which he was riding, causing internal injuries which could not be healed. He died April 29th, 1916, at the age of about 46 years, and leaves a wife and three children, the youngest about five years of age. He came with his parents to this county from near Iowa City, Iowa, when but a lad, sometime in the late 80's, and lived in this vicinity until about six years ago when he went to Kansas. He married here about 17 years ago, the wife being Miss Sarah Caulty.

The body was brought here for burial, accompanied by the wife and children, his mother and sister, and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Turnbull of Norfolk. W. I. Lowry and F. M. Hooper, brothers-in-law from Randolph came Monday to arrange for the funeral service and burial the day following, when they returned to attend the burial. The body was taken from the train to the cemetery, where Rev. S. X. Cross conducted a short service and the body laid to rest in their family lot beside his father.

Removing a Landmark

A few weeks ago the school board sold the ward school building on Main and 8th streets to Eli Laughlin, and the work of tearing the building down to take the lumber to the Laughlin farm is under way. The first section of this building was put up by R. M. Farr some time in the early 90's, and later S. D. Relyea built an addition which was larger than the original building. After the erection of the present new building for the grades and the high school on the site of the first Wayne school, the old ward building has been partially used by the normal for its training school, but now that the state has ample room for present needs the building has been without an occupant for a year at least. The school district still owns a most desirable quarter block.

Commencement at the Normal

Plans for Commencement week at the Wayne Normal are now practically complete. The baccalaureate services will be held Sunday evening, May 21, and the sermon will be preached by Dr. L. D. Young, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lincoln. The Senior class play will be given on the evening of Tuesday, May 23, at which time "A Servant in the House" will be presented. Field day will be observed on Wednesday, May 24, the events beginning at 1:30 p. m. The May Festival program will occupy the entire day Thursday beginning at 8:30 in the morning. Friday, May 26, is commencement day. The graduating exercises will be held at 10 o'clock a. m., Hon. John L. Kennedy being the commencement orator. The complete program will appear later.

German Department Gives Play

The play given Tuesday evening by the department of German at the Normal was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by those present. The drama presented by the class was "Einer Musz Heiraten." Those having leading parts in the play were: Herbert Troutman, Herman Siems, Mary Fischer and Merle Shutt. To Miss Marjorie Selleck, the director, a great deal of praise is due.

Old Council Begins New Term

The City Council met at the council room Tuesday evening at the call of the Mayor for the purpose of organization, appointing of officers and committees, granting licenses and all other business that might come up, all present except Lamberson.

G. A. Lamberson was elected president of the Council and the election approved.

Wayne Wins Wireless Chess Game

The Wayne State Normal school has the distinction of winning the first game of chess ever played by wireless, and the Nebraska Wesleyan University has the distinction of losing the first game. Fifty years from now, when radio waves will be as common as automobiles, either school can look back to this event with pride.

The game was finished May 2, after about three weeks of playing. It proved to be more interesting than was expected and will probably be an annual affair hereafter.

Wesleyan doubtless intend to get revenge yet this year, as that institution has already challenged the Normal to another game, which will start today.

The Normal will work to keep a lean record, and Wesleyan will endeavor to even up. It will perhaps be Lincoln against Wayne. Let us win.

H. F. Slaughter in Auto Accident

Bonesteel, S. D., May 1.—An automobile containing H. F. Slaughter, a well known land man of Dallas, Peter Bonenberger and Albert LaFave, two prominent stockmen north of Bonesteel, plunged down a steep hill north of Mullen. The hill is one of the longest and steepest in the country and just as the party started to make the descent the brake slipped. Mr. Slaughter, who was driving, shifted the reverse and stripped his gears, and the unrestrained car shot down the hill at terrific speed and over a forty-foot embankment. The occupants jumped from the car. Mr. Bonenberger suffered injuries that are very serious and may prove fatal. His right arm was broken between the wrist and elbow; several ribs were fractured and one of his legs badly wrenched.

Recent Elections

The following are among the members of the Normal Senior class who recently received notice of election to positions in school work: Edith Porter, History and English; Ewing S. B. Shively, principal of high school; Ewing Wymore W. Wallin, principal of high school; Long Pine; Helen Graham, principal of high school; Rosalie; Lillie Goldsmith, intermediate department; Wisner; Bernice Griffin, first primary, Wayne.

Lecture at Herner School House

At the request of his friends in the southeast part of the county, C. J. Rundel tells us that he will deliver his lecture, "The Democracy of God," at the Herner school house at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. There is no admission charged and all who can attend will be welcome.

Junior-Senior Banquet

The annual high school Junior-Senior banquet was held in the music conservatory at the high school, Friday evening, April 28, with Mr. O. R. Bowen acting as toastmaster.

The room was decorated with the senior colors, yellow and white, and with many beautiful house plants. The tables were arranged in the form of a cross, lighted by shaded candles, and together with the rest of the room made a very striking scene.

The domestic science department had full charge of the banquet, the freshman division doing the preparation of the meal and the sophomores doing the serving. Much credit is due Miss Killian, head of the department, for the success of the event.

A duet by Miss Helen Main and Mr. Fritz Mildner, a reading by Miss Mabel Hansen and two numbers by the senior girls' quartet furnished the entertainment for the evening. It would be difficult to arrange a more unique list of toasts than those given. Jesse Randol, president of the junior class gave the "Preparing for War." In this was embodied a warm welcome for the seniors and some decided views on preparedness. The senior president, Miss Frances Oman gave a hearty response to the juniors in her toast, "War Declared," and put to the test many of the junior doctrines on preparedness.

Planning the Campaign," was left to Orvin Gaston, while "The Campaign," was directed by Ward Randol. Mr. A. C. Lamb gave the "Territory Conquered." He drew a relief map of all the territory which has been conquered by the seniors this year, but the relief became more realistic as he closed his talk. Mrs. M. A. Phillips drew up the "Treaty of Peace," in a splendid talk, and proved herself to be a master as a banquet speaker. It is safe in saying that the treaty of peace was agreeable to every one, except the seniors, who of course were requested to retire to other fields at the end of this year.

Although the entire program was warlike, no blood was shed, no property destroyed, and no enemies made. On the other hand, every one left the banquet hall feeling better prepared, more efficient, and more secure in the bonds of the friendship of his class mates.

Revival Meetings Begin

Tonight, Thursday, in the Methodist church, with Mrs. Mabel Stevens in charge. To say that we are expecting great things in these meetings is to put it mildly. Mrs. Stevens is a great woman, doing a great work for her Master. She attracts large audiences wherever she speaks and has a nation-wide experience, in her chosen work. The meetings begin at seven forty-five each evening. Come tonight and then we know you will continue to come each evening for the next two weeks.

The Rodeaver song books will be used throughout the meetings. Mr. Hudson will have charge of the chorus choir. All who sing are invited to join the choir. Some day you will be an enthusiast over Mrs. Stevens' work. Why not begin to say? Be sure to hear Mrs. Stevens Sunday, both morning and evening.

Supreme Court Acts

The matter of the appointment of a receiver by Judge Welch of the district court here for the Root Investment Co., Sholes was brought before the supreme court last week, the company asking the court to grant a superedas, restraining the receiver from taking charge until the court could act in the matter, which the court did.

Training School Fights Flies

Training School, Wayne State Normal, April 28, 1916.

The Commercial Club, Wayne, Nebraska. Gentlemen: The Grammar department are writing to tell you that we are trying to make Wayne fly-less and need your help. We will give you here the life history of the fly:

The fly has to go through the egg, larva and pupa stages before it becomes a fly. The larva looks like a worm, and the pupa is the shape of a cocoon. A fly lays 120 eggs a day, the eggs hatch in 6 or 8 hours, and develops in 6 to 8 days. Then these flies lay 120 eggs more each day.

The flies are not desirable because they get on a manure pile or a dead animal and then come in your house and get on the pushing or baby's bottle and leave the germs. When they get on a cake that is too hard for them to eat they spit up some of their dinner and soften the cake, then eat it.

The way to get rid of them is to kill them before they get time to lay the eggs. Clean up the yard and the flies will die. Another way is to trap the flies, keep screens on your house and do not let them in. We hope you will help us.

Your friends, 5th and 6th Grades.

The Passing of I. H. Weaver

In the passing of I. H. Weaver in his 70th year, our neighboring town of Wakefield has lost a most efficient citizen. Mr. Weaver was not only good, but good along the lines that go to benefit a church and a community. A member of the official board of the M. E. church for nine years, superintendent of the Sunday school, secretary-treasurer of the Men's Christian Temperance Union, always a kind husband and father and a genial neighbor, we can't spare such men.

Isaac H. Weaver was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, in December 1846, and was raised there, his father dying when he was but two years of age. In 1855, a married man with four children, he moved to Wayne county, settling on a farm south of Wakefield, where he lived for about 16 years, moving to Wakefield about 15 years ago. He died at his home in that place Sunday, April 30th, and the funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, and was largely attended, a number of Wayne people being present to pay their tribute to the memory of one who had long been a staunch friend to them. The loss to Wakefield and vicinity is keenly felt. Dr. F. M. Sisson of Fremont assisted by Rev. Kelly, the local pastor conducted the service.

School Notes

Walter Miller entered the fifth grade Wednesday.

The Bird club met with the second grade Tuesday evening.

The sixth grade has completed the work in geography for that grade and begun the seventh grade work.

Father Mae Ingham celebrated her sixth birthday Wednesday with a party for her class.

At a meeting of the board of education Tuesday evening all vacancies were filled except the sixth grade. Newly elected teachers are John Branigan, manual training; Maud Flock, German and Latin; Clara M. Hoese, domestic science; Bernice Griffin, first grade; Agnes Anderson.

Practice on the senior class play is progressing satisfactorily and the play, "The Lion Tamer," is proving a clever little parody on "The Taming of the Shrew." It is full of amusing situations.

Dr. C. M. Shepherd of Lincoln has been secured to give the address to the graduating class on Wednesday evening, May 24.

Rev. Rudolph Moehring spoke before the high school yesterday afternoon on "The Students Way to Happiness." "Success and happiness," he declared, "are not always linked together. True happiness is to be found in service to others. It is not in place, to no class. It is not in money, it deserves to be considered a desirable citizen, and is not willing to sacrifice self for the welfare of his fellow men, his state, his nation. Diligent effort to reach that ideal will make the less capable student to struggle on bravely, the lazy student to attack his work more willingly, the brilliant, haughty student to resume a more kindly attitude toward his fellows, and all to be happy in work."

M. W. A Watched Dewey

Owing to his pernicious activity in rounding up new members for the local camp of Modern Woodmen at this place the head camp officers appear to have been keeping a watch out for Dewey, and last week they handed him one. It is a pretty little piece of jewelry, with the monogram of the order and Mr. Dewey's initials engraved thereon, so that he is proud to have the Neighbors ask him the time and take a look at it. The watch came as a prize for securing more than 20 applications and adoptions into the Woodmen camp here during March.

Mrs. Gerton has been at his bedside most of the winter assisting in his care, and was planning to return at once when the message telling of his death came.

Last week the "make-up" put the few lines relative to Dr. Young coming to deliver the baccalaureate sermon for the graduating class of the Normal in the High School notes. The item was telephoned in at the last moment, and went through the paper in the wrong place. At that time the high school had not secured any one for their baccalaureate service.

Cattle, hogs and sheep sold on the Chicago market, recently, at the top that market had any record of—that is the top of all three—says the Corning (Iowa) Free Press. There had been days when sheep, or cattle or hogs had sold at a higher price. Then we had some orators going around the country four years ago asking the farmers if they wanted to sell their hogs at 2 cents and their corn at 12 cents, if so vote for Wilson. They will be around with another red flag this fall. When they come around the voters ought to put "bone set" on them.

Geo. E. Wallace & Co., Bismarck, North Dakota, have some exceptionally good land values to offer near the state capital. Close to railroad, church and school. John Payne and son Eugene are home from a trip to Douglas, Wyoming, near which place himself and two sons have each located a homestead of the state land. The older son, Hugo, remained on his claim, has built his house and has already commenced other improvement. While here he was not in the best of health, but is feeling much better in that altitude. Mr. Payne is planning to move soon and get busy on his half section.

Henry Kloppling and Roy Jeffery, two men who believe in keeping a good grade of cattle growing on their farms went to Omaha Monday to attend a sale of thoroughbred Shorthorns. The Democrat likes to see good cattle brought into the county, and believes that it would pay more of the farmers to grade up, and for some of them to do still more and add to the number of high class thoroughbreds produced in the county. Certain it is, no county in the state has better natural and climatic conditions for producing a hardy, perfect specimen of cattle, horses, hogs or poultry, than right here.

Little Pigs Need Sunshine

U. S. Farmers' Bulletin No. 438 says, "The piggery must have (1) direct sunshine on floor of every pen at farrowing time, (2) fresh air, (3) warmth, (4) freedom from drafts, (5) dryness, and (6) enough space for exercise."

Building Hog-Houses Right

makes hog raising more profitable. The notion that anything is good enough for hogs, is out of date. There is no animal on the farm which requires better protection from the cold—nor for which a good bed is more necessary.

Calves and colts have good fur coats to protect them from the cold, but a pig has almost nothing between his skin and the weather.

Come in. We'll help you with your planning. Now is the time to get busy, too.

We have heard all kinds of claims for the average country newspaper—that it would relieve that tired feeling in summer and infuse good, warm blood into the veins in winter—but Brother Stone of the Hartington Herald now comes forth with the remarkable claim that one of its former subscribers actually went wrong because he discontinued taking the Herald. A startling claim, but we don't doubt it in the least.—Wynot Tribune.

In another place we tell that Roy Jeffery and Henry Kloppling went to Omaha to attend a cattle sale. Mr. Jeffery returned Wednesday morning and says that neither of them bought. The male animals did not come up to the standard they sought except the price, and that was too stiff to quit their idea of values. The cows sold at an average above $350 each. This confirms what was said in the other item, that it would pay some of the Wayne county farmers to grade up in quality and get into the pure-breed game for what there is in it.

Neither of them have we heard express a desire to again face an armed foe, and dodge a bullet after it has gone singing past.

Two presidential campaign organizations are reported simultaneously as getting busy out of New York. One is the Elihu Root campaign, with Senator Walsworth as its Washington sponsor and former Congressman Dwight is visible New York manifestation. The other is a Hughes movement, whose symptoms consist of traveling representatives on the road trying to line up delegates. It doesn't appear that the New York politicians care particularly for either candidate, but Hughes is a good name behind which to fight for control of the party organization against the group now in control which makes Root its opponent. Very much on the inside is a third group which proposes to pluck the persimmon at the psychological moment by means of Colonel Roosevelt.—State Journal.

There is nothing that makes the writer more sad than to see poor, thin, half-dead, old horses urged along with whips. It is not only cruel but it seems to us such poor economy, for with good food and a little care those old horses might be made to look better and to do much more work. If we were doing it, we should put the money spent for whips into food and would let the poor beasts go at a more reasonable rate of speed. They would last much longer and would earn more in the end.—Hartington Herald.

Wayne Spring Carnival

The Walter Savidge Amusement Company open their tenth season here on Tuesday, May 16th. In presenting his company this season, Mr. Savidge feels safe in the assertion that he has the strongest aggregation of attractions that he has ever carried. Especially does this apply to the Savidge Dramatic Players, who will appear in their brand new water-proof canvas theatre. Mr. Savidge has devoted much time and care to the selection of both plays and players. His company will include, Miss Kathrin Dale, an old favorite in this territory, who has been engaged as leading lady. Mr. Al. C. Wilson has been retained as stage director and will have entire charge of each production. Fritz Adams and Miss May Wilson, two favorite players, have also been retained. Among the new members may be mentioned Oscar Prather, Dick Elliott, C. L. Lindrum, Edwin Henderson, Miss Lillian Lindrum, Miss Anna Henderson.

The plays presented this season constitute the most pretentious repertoire ever offered by a tented attraction and will include, Graustark, a romantic play in five acts from the novel by George Barr McCutcheon, dramatized by Grace Hayward; The Call of the Cumberlands, from the popular novel of the same name by Charles Neville Buck, stage version by Hugo Koch; That Printer of Udells, from the novel by Harold Bell Wright, dramatized by Mr. Wright and Ellsbury W. Reynolds; The Bell of Richmond, a beautiful play of the old south by the popular actor-author Sidney S. Toier; On the Border, a play of Mexican border life by the late Myron Leffingwell, one of the most successful and prolific of modern playwrights; The Girl of the Mountains, a well written play by W. C. Herman, who has just scored a great success in the larger cities with his latest play, Any Man's Sister. The only comedy offered during the engagement will be, The Prince of Lyers, which was written for laughing purposes only by James J. Runion. Each of the above plays will receive a complete scenic production, the scenery having been designed and painted by the well known artist, L. R. McNeal.

Among the new carnival features are, The African Ostrich Farm, Oriental Museum of Reptiles, and The Birds of all Nations. The Ferris Wheel and Merry-Go-Round will be in operation during the day and evening and free band concerts and feature free acts will be presented on the streets both afternoons and evenings.

A Bit of History

"July 4th, 1904," the Independence Day immediately preceding the opening of the National Democratic Convention at St. Louis in 1904, was a day of spectacular political events on the world's fair grounds. W. J. Bryan was there to make three addresses.

A heavy rain was falling at intervals. The St. Louis metropolitan papers were singing the Bryan death song in several languages. Bryan was to be politically crucified and ignominiously buried and the populace rushed from place to place to have a last look at the victim.

As Bryan neared Orchestra Hall, a famous orator was addressing the assembly but five thousand drenched fanatics climbed over seats and refused to permit the speaker to proceed, and demanded Bryan.

The convention opened. Nine tenths of the hand picked delegates evidenced the same hostility that the "Hinky Dinks" who are prostituting the democratic party in this state at this time display. Bryan called for those political adventurers who had taken money from the trusts and less reputable organizations to show their hands and it is only history to say that many of those delegates who had come to pray remained to curse.

When November rolled around there was hardly a democratic office holder from dog catcher up elected. Of course those wire pullers who had promised to get rid of Bryan and Roosevelt at one swoop feathered their nests and some of them who were nothing but bar room politicians prior to that time have since been rated as capitalists and some of them have been appointed to exalted positions.

All of this history and precedents seems to have no terrors for this political mafia who seem to hear no sound but their master's voice.—Creighton Liberal.

Buttermilk and Skimmilk

Few people realize the value of buttermilk or skimmilk as feed for young pigs. To get the best results from the amount of milk it should be fed rather sparingly with other ration. Below we give an article from John M. Edward, chief in swine production at an Iowa experiment station. His findings are proven true by results obtained by others. He says: "Forty-five cents a hundred pounds for buttermilk looks high, doesn't it?"

Yet that is what the buttermilk is worth (skimmilk is equally as valuable) when fed in limited quantities to young, growing shoats, directly after weaning, until they reach a weight of 160 pounds.—And this buttermilk was fed in addition to an apparently adequate self-fed ration, there being allowed in separate feeders these feeds: "70 cents a bushel" shelled corn, "$1.45 a hundred" wheat middlings, and "$2.50 a hundred" sixty per cent protein tankage.

Practically speaking, less than a quart of buttermilk a day was instrumental in making a marked saving in the protein concentrates required for a hundred pounds of gain, or 18.6 pounds of tankage plus 16.5 pounds of wheat middlings, or to be more specific the saving was effected by 155.8 pounds of buttermilk. Valuing the tankage at $2.50 and the wheat middlings at $1.45, this saving amounts to practically 71 cents for the 155.8 lbs., or approximately 45 cents for a hundred pounds of buttermilk.

Evidently the milk efficiently furnished some of the feed nutrient constituents necessary to balance corn, which otherwise would have been furnished by the tankage and middlings as was done in the check group receiving no buttermilk. Actually the "no buttermilk" fed pigs ate 16 per cent more protein daily than did the ones on milk, or 8 pounds daily per 1,000 lbs., of hog as contrasted with only 7; seemingly the milk addition rendered the proteins in toto more efficient, hence less was required.

Perhaps buttermilk is especially rich in some vital nutrient that tankage or middlings has but little of—thus it could readily be seen that a little of the buttermilk would really surprise one because of its efficiency. An astonishingly small amount of some particular feed nutrients, not more than a thimbleful in some instances, may mean the difference between a 50-lb. and a 200-lb. pig—the difference between a dead pig at six months and a live 200-pounder at the same age. In human and rat nutrition such an effective substance would be called a vitamin—vital to life, growth, activity, and general development. We know milk has vitamins.

Of course it is needless to remind that if five to ten times as much buttermilk had been fed daily that 45 cents a hundred would hardly be realized, although 25 to 30 cents would be reasonably expected. But here is the main point: If the quantity of milk is limited it is a good plan to distribute it among a number of pigs (especially the young growing weanlings) rather than confine its beneficial physiological influence to a particular favored few.

Washington, April 24.—In defining today more clearly than ever before what constitutes dishonest advertising through the mails, the supreme court held in effect that advertisers, even though they give purchasers value received for their money, are guilty of fraud if by exaggerated advertising propaganda they have led clients to expect more. Officials declare the decision will pave the way to scores of prosecutions and make possible the enforcement of a much more stringent federal supervision of mail advertising.

Judge Deemer of Iowa in an address before the bar at Sioux City last week, said that this country would not become involved in the great world war, that it had a greater mission to perform in helping to establish an international court of peace. P. S.—the "bar" mentioned above is not the bar at a saloon, for they do not have 'em in Iowa, and if they did, Judge Deemer would not be there talking for publication—the attorneys have a bar association and it is supposed to be better than the saloon bar.

A week or two ago a news report stated that land values had increased 27 per cent in four years in this country, which is certainly good return on any safe investment as is money in good farm land. That is 7 per cent per annum, not very bad. In some parts of the country, where the work of development has been more rapid, where settlement was sparse and prices low, the advance was much more. North Dakota has experienced some great advances and the prices are still going up. The central part of the state is fast filling with settlers, and Iowa and eastern Nebraska renters are finding homes there which are not costing them annually as much as the rent costs here, and in a few years they have title and a home. It might pay well to investigate some of those offerings.

Norfolk Press:—It's surely a funny old world from a woman's viewpoint, this old world of man-made, man-administered law. Recently Dr. Guttery was discharged as superintendent of the state hospital, his most grievous sin, according to the judgment of the members of the board of control, being that of keeping women in the employ of the state whom, did they not have such employment, well, what would they do? That man who had sinned were kept occasioned no comment from the board, but women, well, they must all be as was Caesar's wife. The other day Judge Norvell officiated in a case where a raid and its victims were the occasion. Two of the women that appeared before him drew sixty days each, three were given thirty days each, the same to be served in the county jail. Five men were fined $13.50 each and one $25.—The man were permitted to use other than their own names, dividing their punishment in half right there. And still justice is pictured as a woman—a woman with her eyes blindfolded.

Yes, Pueblo repealed their single tax law, by a small majority, after they had disfranchised a lot of citizens by a trick. It is no argument against that tax system that the ones who own 1,500 vacant lots for speculative purposes should corruptly overthrow the law for a time. It is said that its overthrow means a saving of more than $7,000 in taxes to one firm on vacant lots held for speculation.

If Congressman Stephens and some other western states congressmen wish to help the voters who sent them to Washington in a practical manner that will be of benefit to all agricultural interests of the land they will dig the best rural credit bill that has been drafted from the pigeon hole to which it has been retired and see that it is passed. The Federal Reserve law is a great help for the bankers and some of the people—but a proper rural credit law would give the common people of limited means such an opportunity as they never before have had, and you may rest assured that they would improve it.

A Hero of Many Hearts

He Was Finally Tied Down to One.

By SADIE OLCOTT

Jules Gignoux of Paris was a member of that nobility which before the great revolution lorded it over France, but which since that bouleversant, under a republic, simply is a shadow of its former self. Jules was a count by inheritance; but, having been shorn of everything except the title, he dropped that also and was known simply as Jules Gignoux, the best fellow in Parisian social life.

He possessed an evening suit that was all he needed to maintain his position, though he must have had some income, for he was nothing of a sponge. It would be impossible to tell whether he was more popular with the men or with the women. He had many affairs with the latter, but had infinite tact in getting out of them all without reproach.

When the pan-European war broke out Jules was one of the first to join the colors. He had only the military training that is required of every Frenchman and took his place in the ranks with many of his aristocratic associates.

And here it is to be remarked that whatever fault is to be found with an aristocracy, war seems to bring out its most redeeming feature. During our own war on both sides what is called the best blood in the land sprang to arms. In the pan European war the British aristocrat went to the front in greater proportion than any other class. In France all classes responded for the very existence of the nation was in danger. In Germany, where every man is made a soldier, all responded.

War may have been natural to Jules Gignoux, for his title was obtained by an ancestor in the time of Charlemagne. At any rate, he stepped forth with alacrity. But Jules did not step forth till he had bidden adieu to the several young ladies who were in possession of his heart at that particular time. There were Mlle. Nathalie Desire, Mlle. Louise Cherbutier and Mlle. Delphine de la Tour. These were the principal ones, though there were others.

"Send me some memento of battle," said Mlle. Desire. "If you are decorated," said Mlle. Cherbutier, "I claim the honor of being the first woman to wear your decoration." "Should you be wounded," said Mlle. de la Tour, "give me the bullet that made the wound. I will wear it suspended over my heart."

Jules promised as asked in all these cases except in the matter of the decoration, for he modestly declared that he had no expectation of a decoration. Then, after vowing eternal constancy to each and every one of these young ladies, he tore himself away and was soon on a train with his regiment hurrying toward the Belgian line.

It happened that Jules Gignoux was enabled to keep every one of the promises he had made. A fragment of a shell struck the metal clasp of his belt and fell at his feet. Picking up the fragment, he put it in his pocket to send to Mlle. Desire. He received a bullet in his side. It was cut out by a surgeon. Jules asked for it and kept it for Mlle. de la Tour. Finally, when an attack was made on the enemy's trenches, Jules was the first man to gain them. When half a dozen men stood in line to receive crosses at the hands of General Joffre, Jules was one of them.

"Well, now," said Jules to himself, "what a lucky dog I am! I never dreamed that I would have a decoration for my dearest Louise. The god of war has showered favors upon me."

If Jules had been in the Turkish instead of the French army his rejoicing would have been in order, for he might have married all three of the recipients of his favors. Being a Frenchman, it would have been better for him if he had obtained a token for only one of them. Though Jules was a brave man in face of an enemy, morally he was something of a coward. He saw no reason why he should not give each and every one of the three girls the memento she coveted, not saying anything about the favor granted the others. The girls were members of the upper social world of Paris and were liable to meet one another. Suppose they did meet? Suppose they compared notes? Had not Jules extorted himself from worse complications than this?

Jules did not get back to Paris for some time after he had gathered in all these treasures for his three best girls. He was wounded a second time, being very nearly killed, and after being discharged from the hospital he was given a long leave, for it was not considered by the surgeons that he would be fit for service again in many months, if at all. He returned to Paris and showed himself in the Bois de Boulogne in a carriage, one arm in a sling and a pair of crutches protruding from the window.

Paris had changed as much from the Paris to which he had been accustomed as war had changed since the Franco-Prussian war. Each one of Jules' three sweethearts was in a hospital taking care of wounded soldiers. Never, unless the heroism he had displayed in battle caused a profound sensation in the creme de la creme of Parisian society to which he belonged. Those women who were devoting themselves to the wounded in the hospitals when they needed rest drove in the Bois de Boulogne, and there they would see the handsome Jules, his arm suspended in a white silk handkerchief and his crutches protruding through the cab window.

One of the first acts of Jules after his return to Paris was to call at Mlle. Desire's residence with the bit of shrapnel that would have killed him had it not been stopped by his belt clasp. She had just come in from the hospital and was resting after great fatigue, but her hero lover being announced she lost no time in going down to receive him.

"Dearest Nathalie," he said, "I have brought you a memento of the battlefield, as requested by you. In a bayonet charge a shell fragment struck me and would have killed me had it not been stopped by the metal clasp of my belt. I have brought it to you as the most worthy of all the girls I know to possess such a memento of the war."

Mlle. Desire took the bit of iron given her, looked upon it reverently, then turned her liquid eyes up to the hero, with mute thankfulness at the honor done her.

"Oh, Jules," she exclaimed, "supposing it had struck you an inch higher!" "In that case I should not be here to assure you of my constancy."

There was a bit of ecstatic cooling, and Jules left to carry to Mlle. de la Tour the bullet that had been extracted from his body. She was not at home, but he was told that he would find her in the rooms of a society for the making and distribution of comforts of the soldiers. He went there and found her packing socks.

"Delphine," he said, "heaven has spared me to bring you the bullet that nearly cost me my life." "Oh, Jules," she replied, holding it up reverently, "thank heaven that it did not kill you!"

There were too many persons about to admit of any demonstrations, and after a brief talk Jules went to find Mlle. Cherbutier. He had carried his cross in his pocket, fearing that either Mlle. Desire or De la Tour might ask to be permitted to wear it. But now he put it on his breast and walked proudly to the residence of Mlle. Cherbutier. He found her at home and said to her:

"Louise, when you asked to be permitted to be the first woman to wear a decoration that I might achieve I never dreamed that I should win one. I can only attribute my having done so to your lovely image being in my mind's eye when I started for the enemy's trenches."

"Oh, Jules," exclaimed the happy girl, "you are as modest as you are brave and truthful!"

Jules should have winced at this. Doubtless he would have done so had his heart been capable of containing only one girl. But since it was sufficiently capacious to contain three he felt no compunction whatever. And he was fortunate when he was with one of the three to forget entirely the others. He fastened his decoration to Louise's breast, and, since they were alone, her head fell on his shoulder.

"How long may I wear it?" she asked.

"Forever," replied the gallant Jules.

A few days later there was a war service in one of the hospitals, at which Jules was invited to be present as one who had distinguished himself and won a decoration. It occurred to him that it would be expected that he would wear his cross, and he sent to Louise Cherbutier for it. But she could not be found in time for the ceremony, and Jules went to the hospital without it. Mlle. Desire was a regular attendant at the hospital, and Mlle. de la Tour made it a point to be present as, indeed, did all those women in Paris who were interested in war work.

Jules received a great ovation. Being asked why he did not wear his cross, he said that he had inadvertently left it at home. The surgeon in charge of the hospital offered Jules' excuse for him, whereupon Mlle. Desire arose and said:

"I have a shell fragment that would have killed our hero had it not been stopped by his belt clasp."

"And I," said another voice, "have a bullet that was extracted from his side."

These announcements were received differently by different persons. Some laughed that two such confessions should be made by different girls. Some of the wounded soldiers began to protest that Jules must have wrongfully claimed that he had been decorated. At that moment Mlle. Cherbutier entered and asked what was the matter. When told that the hero of the occasion was a man claiming to be decorated and yet without a decoration she held up Jules' cross, saying out:

"Here it is! He permitted me to wear it for him!"

His Brother Was Different.

A noted Philadelphia attorney tells one of himself. He left his native town in Tennessee years ago and located in Philadelphia to practice law. He has been uniformly successful. His brother, on the other hand, remained behind at the family homestead. Returning to his native town some time ago, the attorney met an old dorky in the road.

"Hello, uncle!" he said. But the old man did not recognize the boy he used to know in the prosperous looking citizen who addressed him.

"Well," asked the lawyer, "how are the Blank family?"

"Oh, they're all right," said the old dorky. "Jim Blank has gone to Philadelphia and done made a lot of money. He's a lawyer, sah."

"Is that so?" answered the attorney. "And his brother Tom, how is he? Has he made a fortune too?"

"Lawdy, no!" answered the old dorky, shaking his head. "He ain't no lawyer. Marso Tom wouldn't take a dishonest penny from nobody."

Take Joy Home.

Take joy home
And make a place in thine own heart for her
And give her time to grow and cherish her.

Then will she often come and sing to thee
When thou art working in the furrows—
Aye, or wedding in the sacred hour of dawn.
It is a comely fashion to be glad;
Joy is the grace we say to God.
—Jean Ingelow.

Queered the Queen.

Many stories have been told of the blunt and truculent manners of Dr. Temple, the famous archbishop of Canterbury. The following is related by Alfred Capper in his book of reminiscences. Mr. Capper vouches for the truth of the story, as he heard it related by the servant who stood behind Queen Victoria on the occasion of the incident.

Her majesty sat at dinner, with the archbishop of Canterbury, the gruff and grumpy Dr. Temple, on one side and on the other side Dr. Randall Davidson, who was then bishop of Winchester. Her majesty turned toward a certain colonial bishop who was seated next to the archbishop of Canterbury and said, "You know, Dr. So-and-so, I can well remember you preaching at Balmoral twenty-two years ago."

The bishop of Winchester then said, "Really, your majesty, your memory is marvelous, absolutely miraculous!"

"Not at all," snarled Dr. Temple in his gruffest tones. "I told her majesty myself before dinner!"

Sheridan's Apology.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan once declined to punctuate an apology. In the house of commons one day, Sheridan gave an opponent the lie direct. Called upon to apologize, the offender replied:

"Mr. Speaker, I said the honorable member was a liar it is true and I am sorry for it."

The insulted party was not satisfied and said so.

"Sir," retorted Sheridan, "the honorable member can interpret the terms of my statement according to his ability, and he can put punctuation marks where it pleases him."

He Wouldn't Oblige.

A very old Scot, named Gordon, was very ill, and his nephew, who had "expectations" from him, persuaded him to make his will. After a good deal of hesitation the old fellow at last consented to do so, and the testament was duly drawn up. As he was about to sign it, however, his nephew noticed that his hand trembled and he appeared to grow worse.

"George!" wrote the old man at the end of his will, and then he stopped dead.

"Go on, uncle—d, d!" prompted his nephew in an agony of apprehension lest the will should not be signed.

But his uncle sat up in bed and glared at him ferociously.

"Dee, dee!" he shouted. "No; I'll not die until I'm ready, ye avaricious wretch!"

And so determined to live had this incident made him that he didn't "dee" either.—Dundee Advertiser.

Why the Price Was Low.

A shabby man entered a small general store in a Scotch village and asked the owner, a genuine Scot who was known far and wide for his "pawky" humor, if he might have an empty soap box.

"All right," said the shopkeeper, "ye can have one, but the price is twopence."

"Tuppence!" ejaculated the applicant. "That's too much money altogether. I can get them for less than that."

"Less than twopence? You're dreaming, man," replied the other, who disliked nothing so much as haggling. "Where can ye get them for less?"

"Down 'at your neighbors', Tamson's," was the rejoinder.

"Oh," replied the man behind the counter, apparently much relieved, "no doubt ye would get them for less there, but I was never fool enough to leave my boxes outside on the pavement all night."

Sounded Like It.

Bishop Welldon in his "Recollections and Reflections" tells the following:

"A governess once tried to give her pupils some idea of the relative size of distant countries by saying, 'Cambodia is about as large as Siam,' but when this information was reproduced in a written exercise one of the girls put it in the words, 'She says Cambodia is about as large as she is.'"

LIKE a Pup to a Root," do they hang on to the Earth, when you throw in the Clutch, or throw on the Brakes.

But, instead of merely grinding against said Earth, for Traction, they CLING to it, much as your bare foot clings to slippery surfaces.

This new and wonderful Goodrich "Barefoot Rubber," is as stretchy almost as a pure Rubber band, —Light-weight as Rubber in its native amber color, but stronger, tougher, longer-wearing (in Tires) than pure Rubber could ever be.

That Lightness, Stretch, and CLING-quality is due, in part, to the absence of the heavy and inert white substances which, in other Tires, provide the gritty texture designed to give effective but grinding Traction, when Clutch or Brakes do their work.

To provide its maximum Traction with minimum Friction (which means minimum Heat, minimum Tread-Wear, and lessened Strain on the rubber adhesive, between fabric layers.)

—That's the Mission of the new Goodrich "Barefoot Rubber."

How well it does this work,—how much more Resilience, Comfort-in-riding, and Mileage, it gives,—may be realized only by test.

To have the autos parked in the center of the street gives everyone a clear driveway in front of the stores and is much better for all concerned. Autos will be more in number this year than ever, and we should all do our best not to block or interfere with the travel along the side of the streets next to the side walks. To get the best results out of a ruling of this kind everyone must use common sense judgment, and adhere strictly to the ruling.

Wayne Gun Club Shoots

The first shoot of the season by the Wayne Gun club was a week or so ago when they went out and shot their target field full of seed potatoes, which they expect will keep the weed crop down—if they properly tend them—as well as provide sustenance for the coming winter. This was a most commendable shoot, and it is the general belief that Prof. Wiley holds the medal for the greatest efficiency at this meet.

Yesterday afternoon they met for the first real practice match of the season, and Geo. Miner is now wearing the club gold medal awarded for the best score of the week. The score is:

Paul Mines' Boy Scout patrol will go on another hike on Friday evening of this week. The boys have a great time on these hikes. Dr. E. B. Erskine very kindly gives him assistance in the Boy Scout work. The boys very greatly appreciate the presence and guidance of Mr. Mines and Dr. Erskine.

The Y. P. S. C. E. held a very interesting business meeting last Monday evening in the church parlors. The society is planning to send at least one delegate to the district convention at West Point in June. Our local society is doing creditable work in the various lines of Christian Endeavor.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together—and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, it is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
