RECITAL GREAT SUCCESS

At the Normal auditorium last Thursday evening the pupils of Mrs. Grace Keyser's classes gave a recital, the proceeds to go to the Red Cross. There was a goodly number of people out and the program was excellent. Mrs. Keyser deserves a great deal of credit for the time she put in to make the entertainment a success. The showing of her pupils, however, must be a source of great satisfaction to her and Wayne people feel grateful to her for her work in behalf of their children. Mrs. Henry Ley took charge of the decorations and they were beautiful. Miss Winifred Main, as Liberty in the tableau at the close of the program looked very lovely and posed while the chorus sang "The Star Spangled Banner." The scene was impressive and heart stirring. Following is the report of the Red Cross committee:

Received from sale of tickets $28.15
Paid for tickets 1.15
Paid for programs 2.00

Total paid to Red Cross $25.00
Mrs. J. M. Cherry,

NEWS FROM CAMP FUNSTON

In a letter which Mrs. A. A. Wolbert received this week from her brother, Harvey A. Haas, who is one of the boys who left Wayne September 19th for Camp Funston, he states that they were all examined the Friday after arriving there, vaccinated on Saturday and Sunday had a day off. They all have their new uniforms, are all well and think they will like army life when they get settled.

ARMACOST-SPRAGUE

A pretty home wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Surber Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 when Miss Vallie Armacost was wedded to Mr. Shirley B. Sprague by the Rev. Fletcher L. Jordan. The beautiful ring ceremony was used. Only relatives and a few friends of the happy couple witnessed the ceremony. Exactly at 1:30 Mendelssohn's Spring Song was softly played, and during this the bride carrying a bouquet of roses accompanied by the bridegroom took their places in the hall, after which they were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. A delicious luncheon was served after the ceremony.

The bride was born in Ohio, but has taught school near Wayne for several years, having had wonderful success in her chosen profession. She has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Surber for a considerable time. Shirley B. Sprague, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sprague has been a resident of Wayne about twelve years and is a young man of sterling worth, respected by everyone for his many qualities. He also has been a worker in Baptist church circles. The past three years he has been farming north of town and it is to this farm home he will take his bride when they return from their wedding trip.

The bride looked pretty indeed in a traveling suit of brown. The groom wore blue.

Mr. and Mrs. Sprague left immediately after the wedding dinner by car. They did not say anything about their destination but they will be at home to their friends soon.

The Democrat joins with their many friends in offering congratulations.

A GREAT HOG COMES TO WAYNE COUNTY

Geo. McEachen was attending some hog sales last week, and brought home some of the bacon, so to speak. One of the sales attended was the great dispersion sale of Mr. Mau, of Orange City, Iowa, said to be one of the great men in the Poland China game. One of his pet boars took the fancy of several breeders and was knocked off at the modest sum of $6,600, which shows that pork is still high, in places at least. Mr. Mau had another animal which he had the face to say was really a better one than the one which topped the sale, and broke the world record for all we know for just a single hog. So McEachen watched around until most of the fellows had gone to supper and was there when this other wonder was put in the ring, and when the bidding was done Mr. McEachen owned 1,000 lbs. of hog on four as good legs as ever stood under one porker. The animal is known as "Mau's Smooth Jumbo," and he certainly is smooth and a Jumbo. His hogship arrived Tuesday morning and now has a stall at the McEachen farm.

Mr. McEachen is building up a remarkably fine herd of Poland, he says, and no one disputes him. He feels that the sale at Orange City added to the worth of his herd, for in addition to securing this splendid bear, the father of some of his stock was the one which brought the $6,600 which shows the possibilities that may be in store for them.

A GOOD ADVERTISEMENT

The Tradesman of Omaha in its September number, reproduces the advertisement which Messrs. Orr & Orr had in the Democrat of recent date, and makes the following comment on the advertisement and the way it was set.

"A good advertisement is that of Orr & Orr Co., of Wayne. A clear, easily read type is used—an important factor. The firm evidently does not believe that it has to call out all of the black ink in the print shop. Put in other words, there is 'style' or 'class' to this ad. Except for a leader on fancy hosiery, there is no sale advertised. The ad takes up mainly with the latest styles in coats and suits. It gives the main features of the new styles, quotes prices, illustrates two of the coats and talks service.

"In the boxes, well separated from the main ad, five other up-to-the-minute suggestions are given."

MINERVA CLUB MEETS

The Minerva club held its first meeting of the new year Monday at the home of Mrs. Ben McEachen. The first part of the program was in charge of Mrs. H. H. Hickman, who has attained a large measure of success in a literary way. Mrs. Hickman has compiled and published a volume designed for use in Reading Circle work, Women's Literary clubs, Mothers' circles, etc. It is entitled, "The Golden Treasury From Gifted Minds" and has filled a long felt want. Mrs. Hickman's recital of her experiences as a writer, the many details connected with the publishing of a book and her financial remuneration was "eagerly listened to" and very much appreciated.

Mrs. Henry Ley read some flattering press comments on Mrs. Hickman's book. The second part of the program was taken up by the music committee. The following cycle of vocal and instrumental music greatly delighted the members:

"One Sweetly Solemn Thought."
"Flow Gently, Sweet Afton."

Instrumental Duets—Mrs. House, piano; Mrs. Coleman, violin.
"Sweet and Low."
"Recessional"

Vocal solos—Mrs. Lewis.

Mrs. House and Mrs. Coleman accompanied.

"Battle Hymn of the Republic" Entire club.

"Comin' Thru the Rye."

"The Bridge"

Vocal solos—Mrs. Lutgen, Mrs. Beaman accompanist.

"Crossing the Bar"

Vocal solo—Mrs. Britton, Mrs. Beaman, accompanist.

At the conclusion of the program the hostess, assisted by her committee, Mesdames McEachen, Britton, Grothe, Coleman, Conn, and Lackey served a delicious two-course supper.

The club voted to continue the year's work as outlined as nearly as possible but always with the Red Cross and its work in view. Each member will donate one finished towel.

The party planned for October 1 at the home of Mrs. Miner has been postponed until October 29.

The next regular meeting will be with Mrs. Conn October 8.

An organization of Camp Fire girls has been formed at Randolph and they have taken for their camp name "Minetoaska" an Indian name meaning "Happy Laughter." This organization of girls is doing much good in stimulating an interest in the daily duties of life. Its purpose is to both instruct and discipline its members, the many of the members do not realize the discipline so interested do they become in their self-imposed tasks for which they receive honors when well finished.

Rev. Fischer went to Sioux City Tuesday to be again at the bedside of his daughter at the St. Joseph hospital. The young lady's illness was of such nature as to require infusion of blood. The first call for this kind of aid came suddenly, but none to quick to find the father ready to bare his arm and give his life-blood for the daughter. Later the mother made her contribution and then a brother.

The young lady rallied after each infusion, and there are hopes that by this method she may be carried past all crisis in her case.

M. C. Lower returned last week from a trip to Huron and Chamberlain, South Dakota, near which places he has land he has been looking after. He reports that their small grain crops were good in both quantity and quality. He has been building a granary and now a barn is to be built on one of his places. Of the corn crop, he says the prospect is good—if the frost will wait a little—otherwise there will be some soft corn. As a whole it has been a splendid year for the farmer and the land owner.

THE SOLDIER BOYS TRIP TO LONG ISLAND, N. Y.

E. L. Jones gave the Democrat a chance to read a letter from his son Arno Jones, who went from Iowa to the camp at Long Island, New York. Private Jones was a member of the Glenwood, Iowa, company which with other companies of the old 3d Iowa, are now a part of the 168th U. S. Infantry, and in company T, at Camp Albert L. Mills, Hempstead, New York.

He says that he is 2,000 miles from home and but four miles from the Atlantic ocean, and expected to be nearer the water than that before he is nearer home. Their destination and time of departure is uncertain. They may be taken to Cuba for the winter, he hears rumored, or they may be sent across. The boys all appear to be willing either way they may be called.

They now have a daily drill of 9 hours a day, with at least three dress parades a week. While he is writing it was said that their orders for the next day was for a 12-mile hike with full equipment, meaning that each man is to carry his entire equipment, weighing about 30 pounds per man.

In telling of their trip to Long Island he said that they left Des Moines Monday in a train of 14 coaches, and arrived at their destination Friday. At every stop along the way the citizens turned out en masse and always brought plenty of eats. At one place a woman gave him a fine cake, saying that she had a son somewhere in the service. In another place he received several loaves of real home made bread, money was given freely and fruit and candy. They passed Chicago at night and had no demonstration there. At Buffalo many of the natives expected to see a bunch of cowboys from the plains of Iowa, and were a bit disappointed to find that they were not materially different from their own soldier boys. They saw some mountain scenery in the Alleghenys, and were treated well in Pennsylvania. New York City heralded their arrival by a din of bells and whistles the like of which the boys had never before heard, every bell and whistle in the great city and the boats on the waters thereabouts apparently joining in the welcome.

They passed under the river, in a tunnel which permits a train to dive under the river. At the camp 40,000 men are training most of the time, and as fast as a division is sent across another one fills its place. He did not say that he is just in love with all things, but he wanted to go and he wants to see it thru now that he has started.

OLD SOLDIER CELEBRATES SEVENTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY.

Tuesday there was a happy gathering of relatives at the Robert Sneath home in Leslie precinct, about eighty gathering in honor of Mr. Robert Sneath's seventy-fifth birthday. It was something of a Bressler gathering, Mrs. Sneath having been of that name before marriage. One who was there tells us that 44 members of the party answered to that name.

Mr. Sneath who has long been a resident of this county, served during the war with the famous "Buck-Tail" regiment—a regiment made up from the hunters of Pennsylvania, and each member wore a cap of deer skin adorned with a buck's tail as a trophy of his prowess as a hunter, and it is such men whom people like to honor.

WAYNE BABY WINNER AT SIOUX CITY SHOW.

Little Dorothy Nadyne Rennick daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rennick of this place had the distinction of winning the sweepstakes at the better baby contest in Sioux City last Saturday. She scored 98.50 per cent, ranking above all the other boys and girls, and was awarded a silver cup. Little Jack Crowley of Sioux City was the champion baby in the boys' class and scored 98.66 per cent.

But two or three years ago, another Wayne baby was champion at Sioux City, Master Charles Ingham.

MARY ANN HORTON

Mary Ann Cole was born at St. Johns, N. B. in 1833, was married to William Horton at New York City in 1859. They moved to Illinois in 1864 later coming west to Iowa where Mr. Horton died in 1882. In 1883 Mrs. Horton came to Wayne and made her home with Mrs. E. Cunningham. She lived at Wayne for twenty years and made many friends by her kindly disposition and generous nature. She went to Des Moines in 1914 and until her death made her home with her daughter, Mrs. L. White. She passed away September 24th at the advanced age of 84 years. The remains were shipped to Wayne Tuesday and taken to the Don Cunningham home at which place the funeral services were held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock conducted by the Rev. S. X. Cross.

Besides her grandson, Don Cunningham, she leaves to mourn her loss, two daughters, Mrs. L. White and Mrs. H. M. Hungerford, both of Des Moines. A son, Walter Horton, and a daughter, Mrs. E. Cunningham, died several years ago.

The Democrat offers condolence to the bereaved.

HUNGRY CATTLE COMING TO WAYNE COUNTY FOR FEED

John Shannon, who spends some time at this season of the year in the western part of the state among the cattle ranches, came home last week, and tells us that he has purchased more than 3,000 head of cattle to bring to this part of Nebraska as feeders. Allowing 25 head to the car it will take 120 cars to bring the cattle here, making a train more than a mile in length. But Wayne county has the feed for them, and if every farm had silos to contain one-fourth of the corn grown, twice as many cattle could be fed.

VERA MAUD THOMAS NOW A WARRIORS

A letter to a Wayne friend enclosed the following clipping from a Colorado paper telling of the marriage of the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Thomas formerly of this place. The letter tells that the husband has now gone to serve his country, and therefore will not make their home as was planned at the time of the happy marriage.

A happy wedding took place at Colorado Springs, Thursday, July 28, when Miss Vera Maud Thomas and Mr. Leo Harvey Petree were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. C. B. Wilcox of the First Methodist church, in the presence of relatives and a few friends.

The bride was dressed in a beautiful traveling suit and they left immediately for Denver to spend their honeymoon in the mountains and resorts near that place, before returning to Flagler to spend the remainder of the summer with the bride's parents.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Thomas of this place. She is a graduate of the advanced course in the state Normal at Kirksville, Missouri, which entitles her to the A. B. degree. She is an accomplished musician, having taught music in the Kirksville schools, and has a remarkably clear and sweet soprano voice, which with her extensive training has enabled her to become a star in Grand Opera. She has not only won the hearts of her friends with her voice but is an artist in piano and other instrumental music. She is in every way qualified to be a helpmate to the man whom she has chosen for a life partner.

The groom is a son of Rev. and Mrs. Chas. E. Petree, of St. Joseph, Missouri. Rev. Mr. Petree is the pastor of the First Methodist church at that place. He is a young man of splendid character and carries the A. B. degree from the State Normal at Kirksville. He is an accomplished musician and sang the high tenor part in Grand Opera.

His athletic training entitles him to much honor and he has been chosen teacher of athletics in the public school at Rocky Ford, Colorado, for the coming year. He has had four years experience as a teacher and has always made good. He is a champion football player and was the full back on the "Kirksville Bull Dogs," who won the state championship of Missouri, this season (1917).

They expect to make their home at Rocky Ford, about September first.

Then they came on to Nashua, Minnesota, and from there to McIntosh county, North Dakota, where he sold a farm which he had owned there for some time. He reports a very pleasant trip.

Home Guard organizations have been formed in many of the neighboring towns, but as yet Wayne has not seen the necessity of such an organization here where the people are good and law abiding. The object of the organization is worthy, but we hope that there will be no call for any of them to give service. There should be none if our civilization is what we claim for it.

There has been an influx of farm renters from Iowa here the past month, looking for farms to rent. The Iowa land owners are advancing rent prices materially this season. We are told, and a lot of their tenants are seeking a good country where the rents are not so high. They are taking all of the good farms they can secure here.

Paul Carroll, son of the late Ed Carroll, who has been at the naval training school north of Chicago for a number of months past, was home on five day furlough over Sunday. His mother now lives at Randolph. Carroll likes the work as seaman well thus far, and expects to continue to like it. He thinks his visit home indicates that he will soon be sent to the real service out on the ocean with a real battleship.

When a kid of less than twelve years of age can and does produce $4,000 worth of onions on a six acre field in half a year why should Nebraska farmers go elsewhere to try to make a fortune growing oranges? That is the question raised since it is known that Tom Halle of St. Helena, Cedar county put over that kind of a stunt. There will be plenty of money to be made farming if the people engaged in that work will diversify their crops and look to the best manner of marketing them. For a dozen farmers to grow a half acre of onions each and not co-operate in marketing them is to glut the local market and make no profit. But put two or three carloads in a bunch and there will be a call for them from some place where they are needed in quantity and not grown.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lessman returned Sunday evening from a visit of four weeks at West Salem and other points in Wisconsin. Then they came on to Nashua, Minnesota, and from there to McIntosh county, North Dakota, where he sold a farm which he had owned there for some time. He reports a very pleasant trip.

Home Guard organizations have been formed in many of the neighboring towns, but as yet Wayne has not seen the necessity of such an organization here where the people are good and law abiding. The object of the organization is worthy, but we hope that there will be no call for any of them to give service. There should be none if our civilization is what we claim for it.

Some of the exemptions granted by the district board in other places are not received kindly by citizens in the communities where the people think they know all of the facts better than some outsiders; and at Gering the citizens made a night of it when the list of exemption came and hung a number of those who had secured release from service in effigy, and painted a lot of their places yellow.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Anderson from Agoo, in Holt county, have been here visiting relatives and friends. Mrs. Anderson was formerly a student at the old normal school, finishing about ten years ago. They visited the school and were shown about the place and saw and admired the new buildings. They noted many improvements in Wayne as well as about the college grounds. They returned Friday.

Mrs. Star K. West and son Star K. West left Sunday to look after her farm interests near Hamill, South Dakota. She tells us that a son Frank is one of the men drawn for the army and does not know that he is asking exemption. Mrs. West and the youngest son have been making their home for some months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan McManigal, where she is needed on account of the failing strength of her mother. She tells us that Mrs. McManigal is planning to spend the winter in some warmer climate, Florida or California, perhaps.

She tells us that L. A. Kiplinger has located at Lewistown, but has been quite ill for a time, but is now better.

He thinks his visit home indicates that he will soon be sent to the real service out on the ocean with a real battleship.

When a kid of less than twelve years of age can and does produce $4,000 worth of onions on a six acre field in half a year why should Nebraska farmers go elsewhere to try to make a fortune growing oranges? That is the question raised since it is known that Tom Halle of St. Helena, Cedar county put over that kind of a stunt. There will be plenty of money to be made farming if the people engaged in that work will diversify their crops and look to the best manner of marketing them. For a dozen farmers to grow a half acre of onions each and not co-operate in marketing them is to glut the local market and make no profit. But put two or three carloads in a bunch and there will be a call for them from some place where they are needed in quantity and not grown.

KNOX COUNTY WILL EMPLOY FARM AGENT

Center, Nebraska, September 24.—Permanent organization of Knox county looking to the employment of a county agricultural agent was perfected here last week, when 250 farmers from all parts of the county met at Bloomfield city hall and voted to employ a county agent.

This organization meeting followed twenty-five meetings in country homes and school houses thruout the county. At these meetings, and at the final meeting, county agent work was explained, farmers expressing themselves in favor of the work.

Officers elected follow: Charles Busskohl, Bloomfield, president; C. A. Holmquist, Wausa, secretary; Mr. Kamer, Creighton, treasurer. Each township elected a vice-president to act as its representative among the county officers.

A petition asking the county board of supervisors to appropriate money for the support of this work has been in circulation for some time, and the members of the board have individually signified their intention to lay aside money for this purpose. Formal action by the board is expected soon.

Local support of this movement is very strong. The Wausa Gazette says of it: "It is entirely up to the farmers themselves. The movement is not any individual graft. It was established and is promoted by the federal government. The purpose is to advance the agricultural interests of the country, and how these may be advanced without at the same time advancing the interest of the farmer surpasses our comprehension. The plan is practical."

PLOWING BY AUTO

That is what Jake Riebold is doing if one may call a Ford an automobile. Mr. Riebold has rented the Milo Kremke place west of Wayne, and has fitted his car with some tractor wheels and attached a 14-inch gang of two plows behind, and is turning the land over at the rate of six to eight acres daily. One man can manipulate the whole works, and it saves horse flesh. If others try this manner of farming we will be glad to know with what success.

John L. Soules is at Omaha this week, where was drawn to serve on the federal grand jury.

RALPH INGHAM JOINS ARMY MEDICAL CORPS.

Ralph Ingham, who has been employed by the Norfolk News for nearly a year, after graduating from the Democrat office has enlisted to serve in the medical corps, and left Monday for Omaha where he is to take a physical examination, and if not found wanting physically, will go to Fort Logan, Colorado, for his final tests, and from there be assigned to whatever training camp may be most in need of men, or perhaps to some place where he will best fit in. Ralph has many friends who feel that he will make good whether in camp here or in service across the pond. At any rate it will give him a great experience and one calculated to be valuable to him whatever line he may follow after the trouble is ended.

But Tyler had not heard of any such things, but had been molested before by some one not on such friendly mission, so he proceeded with a shotgun to a window, and fired a charge which unfortunately landed mostly in the face and neck and shoulder of Collier. Tyler and others in the house called to whoever might be outside, and getting no reply fired. Tyler says that a lilac bush in the yard was mistaken for the man and he fired over it, and Collier who was in the road beyond and in line received the charge. It was a close call.

Germany is now trying to induce her people to put up more cash for more war. This is the seventh loan they have asked of the dear people for money with which to fight the Kaiser's battles.

Now that Uncle Sam has fixed a price on wheat, why not let him go on—yes, make him go on—and fix the price of a lot of necessary articles. Coal is next on the list, perhaps.

The Publisher's Auxiliary, the official organ of the patent or inside ink for country publications gives the paper read by Dr. J. T. House before the Northeast Nebraska Editorial meeting at this place in July, but House to change his name from House to Stone. Perhaps they thought it was a stone house. It is pretty hard to get a newspaper correct even when you have the printed copy to work from.

The state fair is reported to have made a $10,000 surplus this year, and for that it should thank the newspapers of the state that gave them $10,000 worth of advertising. This paper is not claiming any part of the credit, for we are trying to break away from the habit of giving free publicity to every interest which asks it.

DOING HIS DUTY: W. H. Needham of the Bloomfield Monitor is in the line of duty not only in his own community, but over the state because he is doing his full duty as an American citizen and the publisher of a newspaper, as he sees that duty. It is the fortune of Editor Needham to live in a community that has many Germans and among them are numerous sympathizers with the German government who are not men enough to go back to Germany and help the Kaiser, but are giving aid and sympathy to the enemy while posing as American citizens and that is TREASON, and that is what the editor has labeled it. For this he received "black-hand" letters threatening his life, and other things disagreeable. These letters are to be the means of convicting those disloyal we hope, and this week federal authorities are acting in the matter. Dr. Harry Ziek, an optometrist is known to have written some of the threatening letters, which violate the postal laws as well as convict the writer of treason. The Democrat hopes an example will be made of the guilty parties.

Editor Needham has been losing some subscribers because of his fearless attitude toward those who are accepting the benefits of this government while not true to it—but for every one who quits because of such cause he is having many volunteers to take their places on the list, and it is right and proper for all loyal citizens to stand firm with the man who fights treason wherever it shows its ugly head.

INTERESTING SAILOR LETTER FROM TRAINING STATION.

Nebraska Democrat, Wayne. Dear Editor: I was very glad to receive the copies of your paper some time ago and not a little surprised to find that you had printed one of my letters. You were quite right—the letter was not intended for publication. However, you were welcome to what it contained. Complying with your wish for news from the naval station I will try to give you an interesting account of our life in camp.

As I said in my former letter, conditions at the station were anything but pleasant when I arrived. But when one stops to consider that the station accommodating a few hundred men was suddenly flooded with some 10,000 new recruits he may expect a few inconveniences. But nature it all the boys have been good-natured and it would be hard to find a jollier bunch of fellows anywhere.

First I will try to give you some idea of our daily routine. The day begins with reveille which is sounded at 5 o'clock. At the first note of the bugle the sentry's lusty voice is heard down the company street. "Hit the deck, hit the deck," he shouts as his head appears between the tent flaps. The scene suddenly changes from one of quiet to one of noise and activity. In a very short time all are dressed for the mornings are cold and no time is wasted in getting into the necessary clothing. Then comes the shower baths, after which all are thoroughly awake and ready for the day's work. Upon returning to camp all beds are made up and loose clothing placed in the sea bags. The cots are then set out to air in the sun. The tents must be rolled up, the decks swept and scrubbed and elevated toward the sun. This done all are ready for mess at six-thirty. Mess otherwise known as "chow" is quite a curiosity to visitors. The mess hall will seat between 2,000 and 3,000 men. Companies march into the hall in orderly fashion and each man remains standing by his place until all are assembled and the command "seats" is given. Visitors are not all given an opportunity to see this sight but they can remain outside and hear it.

One of the most impressive ceremonies upon the station is colors at 8 a. m. By this time the drill rounds are crowded with men drilling and the days work is well under way, with the customary noise of a small city. As the hour is sounded, every man, not in ranks, stands at attention and salutes. Auto trucks and all traffic stops—men lay down their work and salute and not a sound is heard as the band plays, "The Star Spangled Banner."

From this time on the different schools take up their respective work. I will tell you briefly of the work carried on in the Hospital school.

Owing to the large number of men enrolled in this department the regular instruction building has been abandoned and several large tents have been set up for lectures, one tent being a well equipped laboratory. The subjects of some of the lectures are: First Aid and Emergency; Surgery; Bandaging; Pharmacy; Materia Medica; Nursing and others necessary to a hospital corpsman.

Drill is what gives us hearty appetites and healthy complexions. We do not drill quite as much as some of the other schools but it is strenuous while it lasts. Our drill, which is with litters, is somewhat different from infantry drill, but we must also know infantry drill. After our last class at three p. m. we drill until four-thirty.

Having finished classes and drill for the day we return to camp and prepare for mess. One call that never fails to get a prompt response is the call for mail and mess. There is quite a little excitement as the mail is passed out. Everyone thinks he should receive a letter and of course the company clerk it to blame if he does not. As soon as the storm has settled we are marched off to mess.

It is a mystery to many people, especially the women folks, who often ask us how the sailor keeps so neat and clean without the aid of feminine hands. If they were to peep into a basement window of one of the barracks any evening after mess they would see a sight that might enlighten them. They would see every foot of floor space utilized in the process of scrubbing clothes. Barefooted or in boots the sailor is literally in the washing up to his neck. It is an easy matter to keep our clothes cleaned and pressed for we have plenty of hot water, good soap, and a "ki-yi" commonly known as a scrubbing brush. As for pressing, we fold our clothes as we wish them pressed and sleep on them. Consequently the harder we sleep the better they are pressed. Very simple, ladies.

"Colors!" Again all is silent while our national anthem is being played. Work has long since stopped, the sun has gone down and here and there the boys gather in little groups to sing and talk about, "when we get a-board ship," for that is the big ambition of every sailor. Others go to the Y. M. C. A. to read, write, play the victrola or piano, and many other things that are furnished by the Association. As the hands of the big clock draw near the hour of nine, quiet gradually settles down upon the station, the little groups break up and the boys stroll back to their tents and to bed. A cannon with a terrific roar announces to all the station and country around that the hour of nine has come. There is a shuffle of feet and the round of muffled voices as the last ones hurry back to their camps. It is soon quiet again and we lie waiting for taps. Taps unlike the blare of other calls is softer and more soothing and is a fitting call to rest. As the last faint note gradually dies away the only sound that can be heard is the clank of the sentry as he walks up and down his post. The sailor's hour has come, the hour that is all his own and he lies in his bunk, quietly thinking. What the chap in the next cot is thinking of no one knows and no one asks but we feel quite sure he is thinking and finally, with a deep sigh he falls asleep.

It would take a great deal of time and space to give a complete account of the entire naval station. Camp after camp has sprung up as if by magic within the few weeks that I have been here. Tent colonies are rapidly giving place to permanent buildings, and the task of preparing winter quarters, which at first seemed almost an impossibility, looks very simple now, indeed. Each day we are impressed by the grim determination with which our Uncle Sam is preparing to win the fight. And in the task he will find his sailors ever ready. Willis Fleetwood U. S. N. Hosp. Corps September 24, 1917.

Mr. Fleetwood enclosed "A Prayer for the Navy." This prayer is read by the sailors every Sunday morning at the chaplain's service. Not every sailor can make a prayer but they can all join in reading this one.

A Prayer for the Navy O, Most powerful and glorious Lord God, the Lord of Hosts that rulest and commandest all things! vouchsafe, we beseech Thee, to bless the officers, men and boys of our Navy. Grant that in the midst of the dangers and temptations which beset them they may fight manfully against the world, the flesh, and the devil, and resisting all evil by the spirit of thy ghostly strength, may

SOCIAL NOTES

Election of officers was held and the following were elected for the ensuing year. President, Blanche Fry; first vice president, Mary Gilbert; second vice president, Laura Thompson; secretary, Opal Robbins; treasurer, Daisy Fox; organist, Mae Hiscocx. Knitting took up the time and a get-together meeting was held. The ladies have decided to hold these meetings often as this one proved to be profitable and enjoyable. About $8.50 was collected as a silver shower to be used to buy Red Cross supplies. A dainty luncheon of tea, coffee, and cake was served. Mrs. A. M. Jacobs and Mrs. E. W. Huse served.

Churches Entertain Friday evening last the churches of Wayne held their annual reception for the Normal students. At each church a program was given and a light luncheon served. A very pleasant time is reported. This is a fine thing for the young people and gives them a chance to meet the people of their church preference, and makes them feel at home. We would like to give the programs as they appeared at each church but space forbids.

The Early Hour club met at the country club Monday afternoon and evening. A large crowd was out and a splendid time is reported. An elaborate seven o'clock dinner was served. Seven table were set and all enjoyed the good things furnished by the ladies. Cards took up the greater part of the time but the real fun of the evening was a dance. Walter Weber took his violin and the party danced the light fantastic until a late hour.

The Bible Circle ladies met with Mrs. I. C. Trumbauer Tuesday afternoon and had a very profitable meeting. Mrs. E. B. Young was the leader and the time was taken up in Bible study and discussions on the subject taken up. It was decided to attend in a body some evening this week the meetings being held at Logan Valley by Mr. and Mrs. Young. The next meeting will be held with Miss Mary Gilbert, Tuesday, October 2.

The Shakespeare club held their first meeting of the year Tuesday evening with Miss Mabel Dayton. The program of the evening consisted of vacation notes from each member. The following officers were elected for the new year. Miss Luers, president; Miss Craven, secretary. Plans for the years work were discussed. The next meeting will be in two weeks with Miss Beechel at the Seace home.

The Rural Home society will dispense with their regular meeting this week and will instead entertain their husbands at a party at the home of Mrs. Clarence Corbit, Friday evening. The party will be held in the large new barn and a royal good time is planned. Committees on entertainment and refreshments have been appointed and the evening will be spent playing games and dancing.

The Coterie club held their first meeting of the season at the country club Wednesday afternoon and evening. The members and their families enjoyed a picnic dinner at six of fried chicken and other good things. They took along a Victrola and danced in the evening. There were about thirty people there and they report a splendid time.

A jolly good time was had at Clarence Corbit's new barn north of town last Saturday evening. Young married people made up the greater part of the crowd. A large number from Wayne were in attendance, and old friends and neighbors to make the evening an enjoyable one. Mrs. Corbit served refreshments.

As the result of the decision of the Methodist Conference this week Tekamah will lose its popular and well liked Methodist pastor, Rev. D. W. MacGregor he having been transferred to Wayne, while the Wayne minister, Rev. Buell will take this charge. Rev. MacGregor has done wonderful work for his church in the five years he has been the pastor and he leaves it in a most flourishing condition with a handsome $30,000 brick church building, nearing completion. Tekamah as an entire community regardless of church affiliations, sincerely regret the departure of Rev. MacGregor, and his estimable wife as they were very prominent and active in the city's best interests; both were also very prominent in Masonic and in Eastern Star circles. The citizens of Wayne are indeed fortunate in securing them as residents of their city; 'tis especially pleasing to them to go to Wayne, as they have a son attending the Normal and a daughter who resides there. The best wishes of Tekamah people go with them in their new home. Rev. Buell will receive a cordial welcome to Tekamah, and the Herald trusts that he may like his new charge and be as successful as his predecessor, — Tekamah Herald.

Fall House Cleaning And Fall Papering

To many people this season of the year is coming to be considered as the most opportune time to put on such new wall paper as the home may need. The reasons are logical. At this season the time for housing up for a few months is at hand—the time when one tires of the old and often dingy wall paper, faded and soiled perhaps. Believing that Wayne people would not be behind other communities in adopting a plan which will add to the beauty of their homes during the months when of necessity much of the time must be spent about the fireside, I have purchased an assortment of wall paper much larger than it is customary to buy for fall delivery and it is now ready for your inspection. In order to induce my patrons to give the plan a trial and because I now find that I shall need all of the room available for my stock of holiday goods, I will make special wall paper prices for the next few weeks. Those who come first will have the larger and better assortment from which to select. I invite you to come and see the stock and learn the economy of buying now.

labor, continuous work, is the only active agency in all the processes of food production, from seed and soil to mass tables at the front and breakfast tables at home. There is also the same passive agency as in agriculture—natural resources, without access to which labor is impotent to produce anything. In the preparation and distribution of agricultural products for food, as in the planting and cultivation of those products of the soil, appropriate labor must apply itself to appropriate land.

Is it hinted that labor and land are not the only requisites for production? That machinery also plays an indispensable part? True. Machinery must be used in every productive process. It must be used even in agricultural industries if they are to be effective for a war like this one. But machinery, too, is a continuous product of labor from land—of miners from mineral deposits; of "lumberjacks" from forests growths; of factory builders on factory sites; and of factory workers, with their vast and diversified background of antecedent production by labor from natural resources. So it is, with transportation processes. They are carried on by means of intricate and ponderous machinery which is a product of labor from land. It is the same, indeed, through the whole industrial solidarity—for that is what modern industry is. It is a solidarity which suggests to the imagination the idea of a gigantic individual of multitudinous capabilities, a greater man who lives from hand to mouth and is continuously dependent upon natural resources for opportunities to make his living. All machinery is a continuously renewed product which social labor continuously draws from the inexhaustible resources that nature offers. Almost as soon as machinery is put to use it is worn out and must be replaced with new machinery produced from land by labor. So must all the other "capital" by the aid of which replacements of "capital" consumed or destroyed are made, and every product for human consumption or destruction is secured.

In all the processes of producing, transporting and using food-producing machinery, and all the processes of producing, preparing, transporting and delivering food, labor is the necessary active agent and land the indispensable passive agent. Without both there can be no machinery, no production, no transportation. Human existence without them is unthinkable. The deeper we look into the great simple problems of human life, the clearer do we see that food (however extensive or intricate the modes of producing it) is from start to finish a continuous product of continuous labor from continuously available land.

This is true also of everything else which is necessary for our nation in the war. Clothing for our soldiers, as well as their food; their equipment of every kind; their munitions; the machinery used to produce or carry their supplies to them or to serve destructive uses against the enemy—these and everything else necessary to make our military fighting-factor effective, all the things requisite to prevent our war from resulting in disaster, must be produced by the labor of our people from the natural resources of our country. And in order that this may be done, the necessities of producers, as well as those of soldiers, must be obtained through continuous labor upon continuously available land. While our workers are producing what our soldiers need, they must produce also what they themselves need. There can be no continuous supply of anything consumable or destructible, without continuous applications of human work to appropriate natural resources. Everything that the prosecution of our great defensive war demands must be produced as we go, and over and over again as fast as it is consumed or destroyed. This is the new interpretation of the old maxim that an "army moves upon its belly." For winning the war we are depending upon continuous labor in great variety and this continuous labor is dependent upon continuous access to appropriate natural opportunities.

In the union of labor and land we have our economic fighting factor. To the extent, therefore, that labor is hampered by land monopoly, to that extent prosecution of the war is automatically checked. Consider what this means. Is it any less treasonable to weaken the effectiveness of our economic fighting-factor by land monopoly, than in this and other ways to weaken the operations of our military fighting-factor? Is there, indeed, any essential or practical difference?

OUR FIGHTING FACTORS.

By Louis F. Post, in The Public

The United States would be on a better war footing if the conscription policy were coupled with our economic as it is with our military fighting factor. Conscription of wealth for war purposes is as sound a policy as conscription of men. It needs only to be understood in order to be generally approved as both efficient and just. Indeed, in the last analysis, conscription of wealth is conscription of men. Since there can be no such thing as durable accumulations of wealth, a lesson the war has so impressively taught us, conscription of both men and wealth means that some men would be conscripted to defend the nation by fighting and the rest to support it by working.

Customary economic adjustments, however, do not readily yield to this principle of all round conscription. We are accustomed to considering "capital" as alien to "labor," and to investing it with a sort of sacrosanctity. There is, therefore, a ready popular disposition to acquiesce in conscription of men for the battle fields than for the grain field or the workshop. For the same reason, doubtless, there is quite as ready a disposition among "capital" owners who are greedy for profits however they get them, to favor conscription of men for working as for fighting. But this disposition must be put aside. In a democratic country, conscription of workers cannot be tolerated for service in any establishment but those that are or may be brought under governmental operation and ownership. It would be repulsively undemocratic to coerce any man to work for another man's profit. So, until we conscript opportunities for working, we must not conscript men to work.

In considering the financing of the war in a later paper, the subject of conscripting wealth may be taken up in practicable form. It cannot be taken up in such form in connection with the fundamental subject that especially concerns us now. That subject is the essential characteristics and circumstances of what we have distinguished as the economic fighting-factor of our country. Until civilization is farther advanced than at present in its understanding of industrial relationships, conscription of wealth can be approximated only, and thru financial and fiscal adjustments, in contradistinction to those that are of a more fundamental character.

The first point in connection with our economic fighting-factor, considered fundamentally, relates to the food supply. Alike for fighters and for workers, a constant supply of food is absolutely necessary. Unless soldiers are continuously fed, fighting must stop and our war end in defeat and disaster. That they cannot be continuously fed from existing accumulations of food is now a commonplace of public thought. The experiences of the war have made it so. The food of soldiers must be produced continuously as they consume it and it must be produced by workers. Nor soldiers' food alone, but also the food of the workers themselves. The whole nation, at the seat of war and at home as well, must be supplied continuously with food by the continuous work of its working people.

Let it be observed, too, that workers are not magicians. They cannot produce food by a "Presto, change!" Neither are they omnipotent. They cannot produce food by fiat and out of nothing, as God produced the universe. They must produce it laboriously from soil, from the earth, from land, from natural opportunities. Consequently, in order to maintain our food supply for soldiers and civilians during the war, there must be not only continuous agricultural labor but continuously available agricultural land.

More than that. Agricultural products are not fit for food until they have been subjected to preparational processes, some of which are extremely laborious and highly technical. And both between the farm and the preparational processes, and between those processes and deliveries to consumers, many and burdensome transportation processes are also necessary. These processes of preparation and transportation are like those of agriculture in that they must be effected by continuous work—human industry, labor. Not by wage labor, all of it; but all of it by labor of some kind; and, under existing economic adjustments, most of it by wage labor. The distinction, however, between wage labor and other kinds of labor, is of no great use except for purposes of measuring shares of production. In other respects it is a verbal distinction without any economic difference. The emphatic consideration, for all present purposes, is that continuous age the hope that they might ever rise above a miserable existence.

But always the men who own the packing houses have made big money. Last year one of the big packing plants earned more than five million dollars.

Just now the men and women who work in the Omaha packing houses have gone on a strike for better wages and better working conditions. They say that at the present high cost of living their wages are not sufficient to enable them to procure the necessities of life and to properly clothe their children so that they may attend school.

We often hear the professional patriots denouncing the socialistic tendencies of the working people during these war times. The marvel to us is that the treatment accorded employees by the great packing industry has not produced anarchists rather than socialists. A socialist seeks no harm toward any man. He simply asks a square deal, under the terms of which all men may have a chance to live and provide for their families.

The government has fixed a price at which a farmer must sell his wheat. Why not fix a price at which a millionaire packer must sell his product? And in fixing why not fix a decent wage which the packer must pay his employees?

We have heard threats that the packers might secure government soldiers to subdue the striking packing house employees. We sincerely hope the government may not make the mistake of sending soldiers to aid the criminal packing interests to coerce their employees. In time of war the government should work to win the love and respect of the common people, and not their hatred—Columbus Telegram.

Washington, September 24.—President Wilson has issued a proclamation calling upon the school children of the nation to do their part in the war by joining the Junior Red Cross to assist in the mercy work of the senior organization as follows.
"To the school children of the United States.
"A proclamation. The president of the United States is also president of the American Red Cross. It is from these offices joined in one that I write you a word of greeting at this time when so many of you are beginning the school year.
Chance to Serve Country.
"The American Red Cross has just prepared a junior membership with school activities in which every pupil in the United States can find a chance to serve our country. The school is the natural center of your life. Thru it you can best work in the great cause of freedom to which we have pledged ourselves.
"Our Junior Red Cross will bring you opportunity of service to your community and to other communities all over the world and to guide your services with high religious ideals.

The old quarters occupied so long by Nels Swanson for SHOE REPAIR WORK
Have been made like new with paper, paint and scrub brush, and is still "pegging away" and turning out the work as promised.
JACOB KOCH
He asks those in need of any kind of shoe repair work to call with their foot wear, and have it given a new term of service at a great saving over the cost of new.

It will teach you how to save in order that suffering children elsewhere may have the chance to live. It will teach you how to prepare some of the supplies which wounded soldiers and homeless families lack. It will send to you, thru the Red Cross bulletins, the thrilling stories of relief and rescue. And best of all, more perfectly than thru any of your other school lessons, you learn by doing these kind things under your teachers' direction to be the future good citizens of this great country which we all love.

Asks Aid of Teachers
"I commend to all school teachers in the country the simple plan which the Red Cross has worked out to provide for your co-operation, knowing as I do that school children will give their best service under the direct guidance and instruction of their teachers. Is not this perhaps the chance for which you have been looking to give your time and efforts in some measure to meet our national needs?"
(signed) WOODROW WILSON,
President.

Plans are now under way in co-operation with the boards of education of various states for launching membership campaigns. Schools are to be recruited in units with membership fees of 25 cents for each pupil. The junior organization will aid in the making of the simpler supplies and articles needed in the hospitals abroad.

SUCCESS AND WEALTH
(From the Goldenrod)
There is the erroneous belief in the minds of many people that money is necessary to success. While one who has money is able to accomplish a great many things, it has been proved times without number that it does not constitute the main element of success. Some of the greatest financiers that this country has ever known started in their life work amid the most adverse circumstances.

Mr. S. S. McClure, who is the originator and publisher of McClure's Magazine, as a boy attended Valparaiso University. He found it necessary to work his way thru school and for some time lived on fifty cents a week. Robert Aley, who is now president of the University of Maine, was also a student of the same institution, and passed thru the same financial difficulties as did Mr. McClure. Armenius Knotts, who later became one of the managers of the United States Steel Company at a salary of $10,000 a year; Governor Denen of Illinois; and Mr. Shugy, a millionaire banker today of Seattle, Washington, were all poor boys and classmates of Mr. McClure. These boys worked their way thru school.

These are simply instances which I know about personally from one institution. There is not an institution in America of any age which does not have numerous cases more or less similar to the ones I have mentioned. The greatest asset the young man or young woman can have is not money—it is good health and a real desire to do something. The very training one receives in overcoming difficulties often is of more value to him than any training he may receive from his books and in the class room.

About the most unfortunate thing that can happen to a young person is to have all of his wants supplied by the efforts of others. He grows up to be dependent. He looks to others to solve his problems, and when the real crisis comes later his lack of training causes him to fail. One succeeds very much in the various activities of life after leaving school as he succeeds in school. A student may dodge the difficulties to be found in his work and select those things which are easy and congenial but when he faces the stern realities of life he is not free to select the easy things but must take them as they come. Because of his lack of training he is not able to meet the crisis and becomes just one more example of the individual who has had hard luck.

I do not believe it is especially difficult to estimate the sort of success a student will make when he leaves school. We can usually estimate his future success by his attitude toward his school work. The student who is proceeding along the line of least resistance forms the habit of so doing and cannot change this habit later in life. It is not well to form the habit of looking for the easy things. The world is full of such people. Their services are rarely in demand, and they constitute a great army of disappointed, inefficient citizens.

A SCHOOL PROBLEM
(From the Goldenrod)

The location of the Wayne State Normal is ideal. The Normal-hill view of the surrounding country is in itself proof that the school is situated in the richest of agricultural districts. But the scene's greatest attraction is not its abundant wealth but rather its enhancing beauty. And as much and more may be said of the grounds of the school—Scores of times have I heard the exclamation, "What possibilities for a beautiful school campus!" What, then, is our problem? Briefly this: How may the school assist President Conn in his plans of making the "normal hill" and its approach for blocks away the most beautiful spot in Nebraska?

First, the school must become interested in this problem. The possibilities for beautiful grounds must be made a topic of conversation. Their value to the school and to the immediate neighborhood must be discussed. Perhaps pictures of beautiful school grounds could be obtained and studied. A desire to beautify the school campus and the neighboring property could thus be aroused. The school and its neighbors must be made conscious of the problem, and must be made to wish for its solution. "Where there is a will there is a way."

Having a desire to beautify the grounds we must know how it is to be done. Of course, there must be a general plan, and for this plan we must go to a landscape-architect. But this does not mean that the school cannot assist here. Have you a mental picture of the campus as you would like to see it? If so, perhaps a sketch of it would be of real service to the school. Or do you know what arrangement in any one part of the grounds would produce the best aesthetic effect in harmony with the general plan? If so, I know that President Conn would be pleased to have your suggestion.

When shall the work begin? Immediately. The school and its neighbors should begin to mow weeds and burn them. Now is the time to do this before the ground is seeded down for the next crop. This part of town could rid itself of the weed pest, so much in evidence everywhere, if everyone concerned would help. There is nothing more beautiful than a well kept lawn, free from weeds. If in addition to this there is some shrubbery well placed, there is beauty enough. There were times this summer when the grounds in front of the science hall and administration building were plainly beautiful. But why not keep them so all the time? Then let us extend the achievement here to other parts of the campus that will not be disturbed by new additions, and from here to the neighboring property. The school cannot do it alone; the neighbors must help; but the school can lead.

Standardized Columbus Wagons

The Fifth Wheel Farm Wagon

Fifth Wheel

Prevents serious rocking or pitch of bolster while out of position it is still in line. Made of malleable iron. It distributes the strain on the front bolster and sand-board. The pulling up of the front bolster is entirely done away with. It is one of the greatest improvements in farm wagons. Overcomes breaking or bending of circle of iron as the strain is distributed. Overcomes pitching of bolster, thereby prevents bending or breaking of the king bolt. The top plates are wider than the lower plates, thus preventing dirt from getting between.

The gear is incomparable for completeness and quality.

We recommend the purchase of gears with square reach. Square reach furnished with the Columbus wagon is heavier than common kind.

Standardized

When we say that the Columbus wagon is standardized we mean that it has reached a degree of perfection superior to any other make we ever handled. When you come to look at the Columbus wagon, ask us to show you the points of difference. Every part is absolutely up to specifications, this applies to everything about the wagon but the box, and that subject is taken up under another heading. Standardization of parts means that each part is accurate as to measurements, an innovation in wagon making. Thereby giving wagon greater capacity. No more three and one quarter wagons.

Come in and we will convince you that the standardized wagon is the kind you have always wanted.

Wheels

The most important part of every wagon is the wheel. The timber from which these wheels are made is thoroughly seasoned, carefully selected and inspected. THE HUBS are made of oak, turned, shaped, and bored for the skein boxes and mortised for the spokes by automatic machines which are carefully adjusted to gauge. THE SPOKES are made of A-grade hickory and oak. Great care is used in shaping so that ample material is left in the tenon. THE FELLOES are sawed from straight-grained oak. THE RIMS are made from straight-grained oak, carefully bent into position while green. THE TIRES are made from International steel—a combination that is very tough and wears longer than ordinary iron. THE SKEINS AND SKEIN BOXES fit accurately because all hubs are bored and axes turned alike.

Box

The Columbus box is the best ever offered for the money. Only the best grades of bay poplar and cottonwood (thoroughly seasoned) are used in the sides. THE BOTTOMS are made from long leaf yellow pine, free from knots, windshakes or other imperfections. They are tongued and grooved and held securely by oak cross sills. THE CENTER BOARD prevents bulging of the sides and by its use the spreader chain cannot split the box sides. THE GRAIN CLEAT is made of steel angle iron and renders the Columbus box absolutely flax and grain tight EACH SIDE is made from one solid piece, there being three board tongued, glued and strapped securely inside and out. Heavier loads can be hauled with Columbus box.

W. C. T. U. COUNTY CONVENTION IS GREAT SUCCESS

Three Unions Meet at Wayne and Plan Work for Coming Year. Visitors Given Hearty Welcome

The county convention of the W. C. T. U. was held at the Methodist church last Friday afternoon with a good attendance from our neighboring towns of Carroll and Winside. The ladies are enthusiastic over their work and have accomplished a great deal of good the past year.

The program was excellent. Mrs. Horace Theobald of Wayne opened the meeting with a pleasing instrumental solo. Mrs. Anna Jones of Carroll led devotions and the address of welcome by Mrs. J. H. Boyce follows:

"We are always glad to meet as a W. C. T. U., but an occasion like this is a double pleasure, because of our visiting members.

"We feel the inspiration of numbers and confidence in the success of our undertakings, by seeing the earnestness and enthusiasm of other towns.

"Some of us forget that we are not working alone. We feel that it is hopeless for our small union to accomplish anything, forgetting that we are only one of several in this county, hundreds in this state, and thousands in the nation.

"We gladly welcome our visiting members and thank them for the inspiration and encouragement they bring and hope we may all profit by being here.

"We wish you all to remember that this is your meeting. Do not hesitate to take part as you see fit.

"Perhaps this is not a time for regrets, yet I can but regret we have several villages in this county that are not represented. I cannot believe it is because there are none who are in sympathy with our cause, but because they lack organization. It may be that one task before us is the organization of these villages and townships and recognition of their members in our county councils.

"Again let us welcome our visiting members. Be assured we appreciate your presence for many reasons, not least of which is a selfish reason, namely, for the good you will do us.

"Likewise we hope to do you sufficient good to compensate you for coming."

Mrs. A. A. Wollert, county president, read a letter of greeting from the state president after which the ladies quartet of Wayne sang a pretty selection. Mrs. Jessie McKenzie of Carroll read a very splendid paper on "Beer." We give some excerpts as follows:

"It seems hardly possible to many of us that there should be any question at this time as to whether beer should be allowed to be manufactured or not. When the food conservationists at Washington are urging the housewives to save even the crumbs from the table, to prepare one wheatless meal per day and to follow the numerous other suggestions for conserving the food stuffs and then our government continues to allow millions of bushels to be wasted, yes, worse than wasted, in the production of beer we are constrained to cry out 'O Consistency, thou art a Jewel.' Condemnation is written upon it from every standpoint.

"The plea for the use of the article in question as a beverage has been made chiefly on the following grounds: 1. That beer is a liquid food. 2. That it is cheap. 3. That it is harmless.

"The brewers say that beer ranks with milk as a blood and strength producer. Beer makes brain and brawn." Beer is the liquid bread of the nation." Benjamin Franklin said 'A pennyworth of bread eaten with water gives more strength than a quart of beer.' Just how much food does beer contain? and how much poison is there in it to offset the food value? It is found to contain 4.46 per cent alcohol, 4.61 per cent food. If we take as a definition of food a substance, which when taken into the system builds up the tissue or supplies energy and adds without injury to any of the parts of the body then it cannot be reckoned as food at all since it contains almost as large percent alcohol as food and alcohol is a poison.

"Is beer cheap? The German physiologist Voit gives the following which is used as a basis of the daily ration of armigs: Proteids, 4 oz.; carbohydrates, 18 oz.; fat, 2 oz. Suppose a working man or a soldier should be obliged to supply his system with these needed elements from beer he would have to drink 103 glasses or twenty-seven quarts of the liquid daily, containing twenty-nine ounces of absolute alcohol, which would cost him $6.40 per day at the rate of 5c per glass. The same could be secured from bread at a cost of 66c per day at ordinary prices. In either case the fat would have to come from some other source. Beer therefore as compared with bread even at present prices is a most expensive food.

"Is it harmless? Kant said, 'Beer is very injurious to health and destructive to life.' Dr. Howard A. Kelly, a noted surgeon of Baltimore, says 'I have a good deal of knowledge of the effects of beer drinking both in this country and abroad. It is injurious all the time creating drunkards, disrupting homes and robbing poor children and mothers of millions of dollars wasted over the bar of the saloon. The habitual beer drinker stands small chance of recovering from an attack of pneumonia. Moderate quantities of beer impair efficiency and our working people lose thousands of dollars yearly by being laid off because of the injurious habit of beer drinking.'

"Alcoholism is a physical, moral and spiritual disease and in any form whatever, alcohol is injurious." "Count Von Moltke said: 'Beer is a far more dangerous enemy to Germany than all the armies of France.' May we not say beer is a far more dangerous enemy to our own beloved land than the armies of the Central Powers.

"The following is taken from the American Issue of September 22, 1917 'Beer and wine, especially the former are the dangerous enemies that must be brought to utter destruction. Beer is not in any sense a temperance drink, nor is wine without ill effects. Brewers by all standards of estimates waste twice as much grain as distillers. Beer contains exactly the same sort of alcohol that whiskey contains. It is more harmful than whisky in that it is more insidious or deceitful. Nothing would please the kaiser more than the continuation in America of the manufacture and sale of beer. Elimination of distilled liquor does not win the temperance battle. Complete prohibition, as speedily as possible is the only solution of the liquor problem. The mourners who follow the body of John Barleycorn to the grave should be made to step briskly for in their wake and almost touching their heels should come the feet of those who bear Gambolunilod and Bacchus to their resting places.

"Let us do our bit to influence the House of Representatives to adopt the constitutional prohibition resolution which prohibits beer and wine as well as whiskey."

The reading, "Goodnight, Papa" by Miss Clara Fry of Winside was very good. The Winside union has only been in existence a year but they have accomplished a great deal. Miss Fry is a credit to their organization.

A musical number by the Winside people was greatly appreciated. Mrs. Wm. Beckenhauer read a paper on "The Soldier and the Cigarette." She handled her subject in a very forceful and convincing manner and we give a part of it and trust it will be read by our young people of Wayne:

"What is a soldier? He is not only a man in uniform, going forth to serve his country, but a creature, born in the likeness of God Almighty.

"What is a cigarette? It is a coffin nail" as I will later prove to you, or in other words it is a small quantity of tobacco wrapped in a piece of paper. It looks harmless but contains injury, disease, disgrace, and failure to the habitual user. Yet fifteen billion are used every year that are imported, say nothing of those that are rolled by hand in our own country. It is estimated that 1200, to 1500 boys begin smoking every day. In the World Herald recently an article appeared about our soldier boys

MINSTREL SHOW MAKES GOOD

Busby's Minstrels played to a capacity audience last night. Parade was given at noon, and an open air concert in the evening. The band is a good one and handles classical as well as popular stuff.

Long before the curtain went up for the night performance the tent was packed, and from the opening chorus by the company to the finale there was not a dull moment.

The costumes were gorgeous, the songs without exception were good, and the end men were funny.

In the second part, the buck-and-wing dancing was above the average, and the cake-walking was the best ever seen in Prosser. The old minstrel favorite "Silver Threads among the Gold," a tenor and contralto duet given in the second part deserves especial mention and called forth enthusiastic applause.

On the whole Busby's Minstrel show is away above the average, and should they return to Prosser they can be assured of a full house.—Prosser Democrat.

GAMBLE—Wednesday, September 26, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gamble, a son.

Mrs. E. Leadington arrived today from Sioux City to visit at the L. A. Fenske home.

cigarettes. One woman's organization said they must have cigarettes to comfort them and even if their fingers were yellow their hearts were not. Now, even if these women did think that was true they should consider the influence it would have on the men and boys at home. Our young boys think that if the soldier boys can use them why not they? We are told that 90 percent of youthful offenders are cigarette smokers and that boy bandits are the natural product of cigarette smoking. We have one proof in the testimony of the superintendent of the Illinois state reformatory. He said: 'I am sure cigarettes are destroying and making criminals of more boys than saloons.' Cigarettes are not the effect of crime but the cause of it. The poison contained in a single pound of tobacco is sufficient to kill three hundred men if taken in such a way as to secure its full results. A single cigar contains enough poison to extinguish two human lives if taken at once. When the nicotine and other poisons are inhaled into the millions of tiny cells of the lungs they poison the blood, weaken the heart action, shock the nervous system, disturb the stomach, impair digestion, paralyze the brain cells and, if persistently used, wreck the entire body. I think this is sufficient reason why we should do all in our power to get rid of the weed that is ruining young manhood at home and abroad. Our soldier boys need every ounce of strength at this perilous time to think and see and act aright.
