

McALLISTER OF THE SOUTH IN DRY SPEECH SUNDAY

English Lutheran Church Crowded
With People Interested in War
With the Booze Traffic

MUST KEEP IT OUT OF NEBRASKA

That the fight for dry America is as important as the one we are waging "over there" was the subject of one of the finest talks the writer has listened to in many a day. J. D. McAllister is from the sunny south, the land of moonshiners, and he knows all about the booze question. He is with the anti-saloon league and is rounding up every one he meets with his undeniable facts, facts that have existed so long they have left a trail of death and dishonor over our fair land which time alone can wipe it out, yet we do not get into the fight and beat time to it. Then again, we are asked at this time to make all kinds of sacrifices and denials and the breweries are working over time and using enough food supply in twelve months time to keep one million men on the firing line three and one-half years.

Mr. McAllister took for his text "Woe to them that rise early in the morning to follow strong drink." Citing the fact that booze was the kaiser's greatest ally he proceeded to prove the statement to the satisfaction of his hearers and the repeated applause showed he had his audience with him all the time. We need the food stuffs they are wasting, we need the coal they are burning to carry on this war. We talk about throwing the protecting arm of the Y. M. C. A. and the church about our boys in the camps and let the worst enemy to mankind go free, license that same enemy to creep into the camps and steal away the manhood of our boys. Are we asleep?

He spoke of the shortage of cars and said that the breweries were using 20,000 cars and 400 railroad engines to haul their death dealing freight. He told how these same trains were given the right of way in preference to human freight and coal—coal which would have saved many deaths from exposure the past winter. There are 350,000 men working in the breweries, as many men as Pershing has in his army. Men who are tearing down the country at home, using up the needed food stuffs which our army over there are so much in need of. Making vile stuff to sap the strength of the soldiers. If we could kill booze NOW the war would be shortened, our boys would be safer and our war indebtedness would be paid with the money saved.

The breweries, born in Germany, fostered by Germans, is as great an enemy of ours as the kaiser and we have an opportunity of killing two birds with one stone and it is up to us to do it.

The tribute Mr. McAllister paid to our soldiers, to their fearless manhood, their fighting qualities, to their patriotism and loyalty to their country warmed the hearts of his hearers as there was perhaps not one there who had not a loved one in the camps or in the trenches. Then he spoke of the Spanish-American war and the boys who came back to us with their health ruined forever with booze and its effects. The writer knows the truth of this statement as it has been a blighting sorrow to many of our friends.

We are looking to General Pershing and the brave laddies over there to save this country, to uphold American ideals. And we can do a duty just as big if we kill the kaiser's ally here at home—booze. A soldier asked what he thought was the biggest thing we could do to aid them over there and responded, "We'll whip old Bill if you'll whip booze first." In speaking of the fight Lloyd George made against booze he said just now the liquor interests in England had him down as quiet as a mouse on the wet and dry subject. Can they use their dirty dollars to buy us the same way? It is up to the voters of America to answer that question and they have stood behind the boys in every movement started for their good. We have no fear but that they will stand behind them in this the greatest issue of the hour.

I don't beg for woman's suffrage. Though I think it would be fair. All I ask is that the man who votes will be a man and on the square.

Let Donahay test your eyes before he leaves for his city location at Seattle. adv.

YEOMEN RECEIVE A SECOND-LARGE CLASS

For the second time since the last of December the Wayne Homestead of the Brotherhood of American Yeomen has taken in a large class of new members. The degree team of Sioux City came on both occasions to give the work.

Saturday evening will long be remembered by all who were present as an evening of real pleasure. The visiting members arrived on time, and in addition to those from Sioux City a delegation from Norfolk were present to enjoy the work, as the homestead at that place is rapidly increasing in membership. The next meeting of the state organization is to be at Norfolk, and it is their purpose to have a local organization of five hundred members by that time to greet the delegates from over the state.

After the initiation of a class of forty members, the Sioux City archers installed the newly elected officers, after which the visitors and home members indulged in a bit of oratory after which light refreshments were served.

Last December the Wayne homestead consisted of 19 members, and the lodge now has a membership of 160 with more than $600,000 of insurance in force.

In addition to the members of the team from Sioux City, was E. A. Willis, one of the directors of the organization under whose management the order is growing in membership as never before. The following are the members of the team: D. E. Jenkins, foreman; H. G. Brown, master of ceremonies; Miss Jessie Matheson, correspondent; Mrs. Geo. Waddell, overseer; E. L. Stark, master of accounts; Mrs. P. C. Waltermier, chaplain; P. C. Glenn, guard; A. L. Lind, watchman; J. H. Higbee, sentinel; Mrs. D. L. Jenkins, Lady Rowena; Mrs. E. A. Willis, Lady Rebecca; Mrs. H. G. Brown, courier; Miss Luella Garretson, pianist; Frank Lawrence, Wamba; Anna Crowe and Mrs. Emma Waltermier, leaders; M. H. Kling, Black Knight; E. A. Willis, captain.

BIG RED CROSS DRIVE GET POCKETBOOKS OUT

A Red Cross drive is scheduled for the week beginning May 20th. One dollar for every inhabitant of the United States is asked—One hundred million dollars. $12,000 is Wayne county's share of that amount. It is easily seen that it is up to Wayne county to dig deep because there are children and men in the service who must have their dollar paid. "pay your own dollar and two more" would be an ideal slogan to adopt. O. R. Bowen is the chairman of the drive and as soon as the Liberty Loan drive now on is over he will perfect an organization and be ready for the week of May 20th. Let's all be ready.

THE BANKERS' CONVENTION

Monday was the day for the annual meeting of the bankers of this corner of the state, and they gathered at Norfolk in great numbers and had a good meeting. The business sessions were important and interesting. The banquet was a very social affair, and entertaining as well. Banker Boyle of O'Neill was the orator of the evening, and made a pleasing talk.

Wayne banks were well represented, there being in attendance from here Harry Jones and wife and Will Jenkins from the Citizen's National, Henry and Rollie Ley and Herman Lundberg from the State bank, and Hamer Wilson from the First National bank.

A BIG STOCK SHIPMENT

Wednesday a farm stock shipment went from Wayne, from the Albert Chichester farm, the property of Mr. Chichester and Ben Lass and brother who are farming the place. The shipment consisted of four cars (107) cattle and two cars of fat hogs. At present market prices the bunch will sell for the price of a pretty fair farm. To us it seems as though there would be good money in growing and feeding cattle and hogs, even though corn is high.

PATRIOTIC MEETING AT THE WILBUR SCHOOL

There will be a meeting at the Wilbur school Friday evening. A splendid program will be given by the school children and interesting speakers have been secured from the occasion.

A DEMOCRACY OF GERMANY THE HOPE OF HER PEOPLE

Frank Bohn of New York City, secretary of the organization of the "Friends of German Democracy," spoke to a splendid audience here Tuesday evening and did much to make clear the position of many natives of Germany, both in America and the Fatherland, as to their desire for a better government for the people of Germany, and why the principles of a democracy do not make headway there.

He told of the underlying cause of the atrocities charged to the German soldier—that from infancy up he is taught to obey, to believe that their ruler is the representative of Deity. In home, church and school these ideas are drilled into him; and then when he enters the army for the three years of military training which all must take, the finishing touches are put on, and the great majority of them come from the army robbed of every bit of individuality they may have ever had—realizing that they are but a cog in the wheel of a great machine which has for its mission the grinding down of all who do not have a place in the machine.

Mr. Bohn told of their wonderful system of automatically controlling everything. The men, the women, the farmer, the mechanic, the merchant, the factory and all. Each had his place in the time of peace, and each has his place in the time of war. Every factory in the land was instructed in advance what to do in case of war—and when war came in a night, as it were, in a day the factories of the nation turned from the making of plowshares to swords. In every factory the work of making war munitions and supplies could be commenced at once, and this in a great measure tells of the wonderful success of the Germans in the early years of this war.

He emphasized the correctness of the attitude of President Wilson when he said that we are fighting the government of Germany and not her people, except to the extent that it is necessary to establish the German people in their right to govern themselves. He told how impossible it was for the people of that country to establish a successful revolution against their autocratic government for the reason that the armed force is always at hand to do the bidding of their masters.

No speech made at Wayne, perhaps this season, and we have had some most excellent ones, carried more weight and conviction to those who heard it than the words of this man. Intensely loyal to America, though of German parentage, he was but fair to the Germans. He had visited Germany to see the home of his father and mother and learn what he could of their native land and conditions surrounding the people of that land. What he saw convinced him that the German people are in a manner the victims of a government which is not only autocratic, but despotic, and so organized and consolidated that those who would gladly overthrow it with a democracy have no opportunity for a foothold until the German army, that ruthless machine of autocracy is defeated utterly.

SCHOOL NOTES

S. Toledo Sherry addressed the high school and the seventh and eighth grades last Friday afternoon on the Third Liberty Loan.

Watch for announcements of the public program to be given in the near future by the class in expression.

Invitations have been issued for the Junior-Senior banquet tomorrow evening at the Boyd hotel.

The W. H. S. debating team will debate the Randolph team at Randolph Monday evening. Randolph recently won over Ponca in the State League debate. The winning team Monday evening will represent the Northeast district in the state debate to be held early in May.

Tuesday evening the freshman B class entertained the Freshman A and the sophomore B classes and teachers at a wiener roast. After a hike of over two miles, the hungry picnickers built camp fires and enjoyed a feed. Rollocking games were then indulged in until nine o'clock when the tired but happy party started for home. The hosts proved themselves royal entertainers.

The Red Cross work is progressing satisfactorily in all departments. Enthusiasm continues unabated.

Up to this time thirty-five schools, including the town schools of Wayne, Hoskins, Winside, Sholes, Wayne Normal Training school, Reverend Borenman's parochial school, and the parochial school at Altona have organized and about 1447 children of the county have pledged themselves to make or grow something for the Red Cross, or to give what they can earn and save to help those who have suffered in this war. They are already at work.

Other schools are fast organizing and sending in their blanks. The raising of food of any kind is one of the most important things that the pupils of schools, especially the boys, are doing. At Winside, Sholes, and Wayne the high school girls are making surgical dressings under the direction of Red Cross leaders. In the other grades they are knitting, hemming handkerchiefs, towels, and pillow cases, making refugee garments, quilts, and other things. There are 22,000,000 school children in the United States and if each child should make ONE article, the Red Cross would gain 22,000,000 articles.

Four of the schools felt that they could not do any work other than the raising of food, and as they wished to have their money helping in some way, they turned it over to the Red Cross to help pay for filling comfort kits for the soldier boys who will leave soon. These schools were districts No. 11 near Hoskins; No. 14 northeast of Wayne; Reverend Borenman's school, and F. W. Meinke's school at Altona. The total amount for the four schools was $50.50.

The rural schools near Carroll, Winside, Hoskins, Sholes, Wayne, and in Garfield Precinct are working through the branch chapters at those places.

The Junior Red Cross is to be a permanent organization and it is hoped the work can be kept up through the summer vacation.

PATRIOTIC MEETING AT CARROLL FRIDAY NIGHT

Tomorrow evening there is to be another great patriotic gathering at Carroll. Mr. Boyle, of O'Neill, a most eloquent speaker has been engaged to speak. It is a safe bet that the pavilion will again be filled to its capacity, for the Carroll vicinity are strictly in it for any and all patriotic gatherings. It will be worth your while to attend. Those from Wayne who attended the patriotic meeting at Carroll last Saturday evening report that the town had never before had a larger crowd on a like occasion. The pavilion where the meeting was held was more than full, the streets were packed full of cars, and the sidewalks were so crowded that to make progress one had to take the middle of the road.

RED CROSS NOTICE

The Red Cross rooms will be closed all next week. Any one wanting yarn, etc., should come to the rooms Friday (tomorrow).

MRS. E. W. HUSE.

WISNER HOME GUARDS SELL THE KAISER'S GOAT

(Special to the Democrat).
Wisner, Nebr., April 25.—The athletic entertainment at the high school gymnasium Monday night was a grand success.

Great care had been taken by the committee to accommodate a very large crowd. The crowd, however, was much larger than had been expected for the reason that large delegations came in from other towns. One very large delegation came in from Scribner headed by Archie Robertson.

The Wisner orchestra furnished an abundance of patriotic music and the Wisner male quartet rendered many splendid selections much to the delight of the audience.

The wrestling and boxing bouts were of the highest type.

The receipts at the door were $245. Mr. Archie Robertson gave an address after which he sold the kaiser's goat at auction for $110.

Total proceeds were $335 which will go to make up a mess fund for the soldiers who go from Wisner.

KOPP-JAMES

Two young people, well known in this city, Harmon Lee James and Miss Mary Elizabeth Kopp, joined their lives together on April 24, at the home of the bride at Wayne. The bride and groom both have a host of friends at Wayne. Mr. James' parents live in Missouri. He came to Wayne several years ago and has been working here and at Carroll ever since. He is a young man of excellent qualities and surely will make good wherever he goes. Miss Kopp was born at Broken Bow and came to live at Wayne about thirteen years ago. Since that time she has made her home here and has been active in the work of the church of which she is a member.

Her unassuming and beautiful Christian character has endeared her to the hearts of all her friends. There were about thirty of the friends and relatives present. To the strains of a beautiful march, the couple, accompanied by Mr. Roy Hall as best man and Miss Ethel Huff as bridesmaid took their place in the parlor. Rev. Fletcher J. Jordan, their pastor and personal friend pledged them as husband and wife, sealing their vows with the wedding ring.

The bride was beautifully gowned in light blue satin, trimmed with shadow lace and rosebud-trimmings and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas.

The couple received many beautiful and useful presents from their friends who wish for them a future crowned with life's best things.

The bride will remain at home with her parents while the groom will leave Friday morning for Camp Funston, Kansas, to serve his flag and country.

THE BASKET RED CROSS SALE

Saturday next R. J. Rundell is planning a campaign to help the Red Cross organization fill an hundred comfort kits for Wayne county soldier boys. He will give absolutely one-tenth of the proceeds of the day's sales to the cause. His help will do more than their services, and a number of citizens will take charge of some departments of the business and look after it, leaving his regular force, who are familiar with the store and the stock, free to wait upon the regular trade and direct those who come in to assist. This means a big offering from Mr. Rundell and if the day is a good one it will mean a great help to the cause.

HERE'S TO THE FLAG

Don't be pessimistic. Remember, the old flag has never touched the ground, God is with us. We cannot fall. Get in behind the boys with a smile and a cheer. Root, root, root for the soldiers, to lose heart would surely be sin; root, root, root for the soldiers—get behind them and they will win. There is no room for tears in this conflict; knock the pessimist when he is found. There's only one thing to remember—the old flag will not touch the ground.

DR. MULLEN TO SPEAK AT ALTONA SUNDAY

Altona will have one of the greatest patriotic meetings Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Dr. W. H. Mullen of Bloomfield has been secured to speak on the occasion and comes under the auspices of the State Council of Defense. Everybody should plan on going to Altona Sunday afternoon to hear Dr. Mullen.

A. M. HELT'S CAR STOLEN; THIEF BREAKS GARAGE LOCK

When A. M. Helt came out this morning he discovered that the lock on his garage had been broken and his automobile—a Ford, was missing.

Evidence tends to show that the car was not taken until about five o'clock this morning. Chas. Van Norman heard some one crank and start a car at about that time in front of his place, and that some one had brought his neighbor home from the light plant where he works nights. The tracks indicated that the thieves had pushed the car out in front of the Van Norman house before starting the engine, and the track led away to the east.

Mr. Helt is busy trying to get some trace of the car, but as yet with no success. His license number is 29010, but that has probably been taken from the car.

WAYNE COUNTY LIBERTY LOAN WILL CARRY OVER THE TOP

That is the prediction of Chairman Hamer Wilson, who tells us that he has no figures to give out as to the standing of this county in relation to its quota until after the Friday drive. He tells us that Friday is to be the big day the country over, but as yet has received no official notices as to what part Wayne county is to take in the drive.

The Democrat certainly sees no good reason why Wayne county might not well double her allotment if the people so desire, for beyond a doubt there is plenty of spare money with which to turn the stunt, if the people with the idle cash shall decide to let their uncle have the use of it at a good rate of interest.

JUDGE S. HARRISON WHITE SUNDAY ADDRESS AT NORMAL

Perhaps the greatest of all patriotic meetings held at Wayne will be that of Sunday evening, when S. Harrison White, chief justice of the Colorado Supreme Court, is to speak on the questions of the day. Judge White is one of the ablest men on the platform today, and he is master of the question. Judge White was to have spoken here before the gathering of teachers, and it was so announced, but official duties detained him, to the disappointment of many; so no doubt many outside people will take the opportunity of driving here for this meeting, and surely no one at Wayne will miss the opportunity of listening to this distinguished orator.

The navy forces have tried to block the channels through which the U-boats leave their base, and done. Their work has been less than usual the past week.

CB & Q CORN PLANTERS

Can Be Depended Upon In The Field

Winner of Gold Medal at San Francisco Exposition

The Gold Medal was the highest award conferred on Corn Planters as the San Francisco Exposition in 1915.

The importance of this victory of the C B & Q planter means more when one stops to look into the reasons which led the Jury of Awards to confer this honor on this planter.

The award means that the C B & Q planter is constructed of high grade materials throughout and therefore, with proper care and handling will give good service for a long period of time.

Furthermore, it means that the planter was operated in the presence of the Jury of Awards and found to work properly, the plates and valves operating together so that the plates dropped a high percentage of kernels accurately. If the planter was set to drop three kernels to a hill, practically all the hills contained three kernels, not three, then two, then four, but three practically every time.

In the final analysis the award of the Gold Medal to the C B & Q planter means that this planter has no superior in the corn planter world.

Why C B & Q Planters Drop Kernels Accurately

To secure the best planting results all seed should be graded and seed plates be selected that will fit the size and shape of the kernels to be planted. The planter then has an even chance to perform its work.

On the C B & Q planter the plates are operated directly from the solid steel axle. The drive chain is always kept taut by an automatic chain tightener, which prevents any lost motion in transmitting power.

This construction all has to do with the efficient working of the plates and the valves of the planter. The plates operate exactly on time so that the desired number of kernels are delivered to the upper valves and are there waiting to drop when the valves are tripped. The valves have a force feed action—in other words, a plunger which forces the kernels out together and into the bottom of the furrow.

The action of both the plates and the valves is positive. The power is dependable, the gears are carefully cut and therefore mesh properly, insuring a high percentage of accurate dropping for this planter. Adverse field conditions are met successfully by the C B & Q planter.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Finn and family went to Carroll Saturday evening to hear the speech given there by E. R. Guernsey. A goodly number of Waynesites went over but we haven't learned their names. There was a wonderful crowd out and the lecture was greatly enjoyed.

Frank Gaertner returned Monday from Dubuque, Iowa, where he went to see his son Francis who has been very ill. Mrs. Gaertner has been there for some time and will remain a while longer. Francis is attending St. Joseph's College at Dubuque. Mr. Gaertner tells us that he left him getting along splendidly.

THE SOLDIER AND THE TIGER - A SERMON

In his Liberty Loan address here Friday evening, S. Toledo Sherry, an inspector in the Indian service of Uncle Sam, with headquarters at Winnebago, took for his text the 23rd verse of Wilson's "Last Epistle" to the Huns, which reads as follows: "Force, force to the uttermost, force without stint or limit, the righteous force and triumphant force which shall make right the law of the world and cast every selfish domination down in the dust."

Like many preachers, he quoted his text and then preached from it—often far from it—for his talk scattered like an old muzzle-loading shotgun, but like the old shotgun which Dad gave us, and which his uncle gave him seventy-five years ago—it brought down the game, for the old gun had a record of fourteen prairie chickens at one shot, in the days when the chickens met by the hundreds on the straw stacks of northeastern Iowa. The speaker followed the "earth" in its journey about the sun, and started with the sun around the least of the Pleiades, explaining the seasons of the year and the difference between different years as to temperature, wet and dry weather. Casting his eye over the horizon of the political and economic fields he predicted a dry season, judging by the signs of the times. Even Nebraska will go dry when the senate gets into the proper zone. Out of every evil some good may come. From the wrecks and ruins of war there will rise, Phoenix like, a more splendid civilization, and a nobler manhood and womanhood. * * * America will demand of her girls and boys the most splendid womanhood and manhood the world has ever known. * * * Since I was in your presence before miracles of Time and Death have been wrought, Mr. Wilson touched Father Time on the arm and asked him to speed up, and with one stroke he scythed one hour out of your lives while you slept. The Kaiser beckoned to Krupp and he created a gun of mystery. Upon the anniversary of the greatest sacrifice ever made, on last Good Friday, a day sacred to the memory of the time when Jesus of Nazareth gave his life in order that the world might have Peace, a multitude of people were assembled in a chapel in Paris and as they prayed to the Heavenly Father to send peace, their prayers were answered by a shell from a German cannon seventy-six miles away, which killed seventy worshippers, women, men and children.

This war will not be won by powder and ball but by food. The men and women of America will be able to raise only enough food to carry on the war. The food that shall win the war must be raised by the boys and girls. Every square foot of garden, back yard and vacant lot should be planted in potatoes, beans and sweet corn. The boy and girl who fights weeds with a hoe and raises food that wins war, is just as much a hero as the soldier who fights the enemy with a gun.

If you want to paint the house or the window of a man yellow, paint it in broad daylight and right under his nose. If he is yellow he will stand for it; and if he isn't, you have no business there.

There never was a time when the fathers and mothers of our boys and girls have more need to get very close to the hearts of their children. Young women hold on firmly to the splendid ideals of womanhood handed down to you by your mothers and grandmothers. Young men, you value the ideals of gallantry and chivalry bequeathed to you by your fathers as a most priceless possession.

There is only room for one class of people in America; loyal citizens. There can be but three classes of Germans in America—Americans, aliens, and traitors. Honors for the first class, internment during the war, and return to Germany after the war for the second; and a stone wall and a firing squad for the spies and traitors. When I stand beneath the stars and stripes I feel that I am standing within a sacred presence, but when I stand before a body of American boys in khaki, I feel that I am standing within a presence more sacred—because they are that for which it stands. There never was a time when the Stars and Stripes meant so much to you and to the peoples of the world as it does tonight. Your boys never meant so much to you and to the peoples of the world as they do at this time. Tonight you are free and unafraid because of the splendid courage of the little Belgian army at the beginning of hostilities; because England threw her eighty thousand men into the breach; because of the bravery of the five French soldiers before Verdun.

The Kaiser turned up his nose at the "insignificant" English army of eighty thousand. Today England has seven millions of men under arms. The Kaiser no longer turns up his nose at the English army. But for thirty days hundreds of thousands of his soldiers have been turning up their toes. He does sneer at the American army. He asks: "How is Wilson going to get the American soldiers into France. We will show him, not only how we will get the American soldiers into France but we will show him how we will get them into Berlin. This is no idle boast. A little Holland had once held back the mighty sea by holding his finger in a crevice of the dyke until he was almost frozen.

All that we can hope from the French, the Italian, and the English armies is that they will be able to hold back the sea of soldiers until America can bring her men and resources to bear and turn the tide of battle. And when the Stars and Stripes float above the palace in Berlin, I want to see the Kaiser tried for arson, rapine and murder in the nth degree by a supreme court of the world and some way devised for separating his distorted, measly, contemptible, blood-thirsty soul from his shrivelled armed body. Thirty days afterward all hell would be out in their Sunday best to celebrate the election of a new Devil.

Oh, men and women, there is a Tiger abroad in the world and he has the hydrophobia worse than any mad dog or any tiger ever had it since time began. And he is frothing, not with foam, but with the blood of millions slain. And he has whelps ready to bite the hand that is feeding them in every state in the Union. There is only one way to make peace with a tiger and that is to strip him of his hide. We, and it cannot live on the earth together. All success then to the American soldier's gun when he meets the Tiger that walks on two feet like a man.

"THE BLUE BIRD"

At the Crystal Monday evening, Mr. Nielson gave to his Wayne friends the wonderful masterpiece, "The Blue Bird." In this story Maeterlinck has turned the light upon Life, drawn aside the veil of the future, and has given a vivid reminder of the past. He has shown that pursuit of happiness leads to all quarters of the globe, when, as a matter of fact, true happiness is at our door, unrecognized. The thread of the story is carried by two children who go in quest of the Blue Bird—meaning Happiness.

It is the story of a dream. After the children are put to bed the Fairy Berylune appears and by means of a magic diamond shows them the souls of all things. Even the cat and dog are given the power of speech. The fairy then takes the children in search of the Blue Bird. They visit the Palace of Night where they meet Sleep and Death, Sickness, the Dew, the Stars, etc. They go to the graveyard where the dead are seen to rise from the tomb and flowers, the symbol of Life, appear everywhere. They see their grandparents, long since dead, and find their dead brothers and sisters and a happy reunion takes place in Memoryland.

In the Cathedral of Happiness the children meet the Joys, among them none so beautiful as Maternal Love, which is symbolized by the children's mother.

It was a beautiful story, told in a matchless photo-play and it held a lesson for us all. We can find happiness in our own hearts, the only secret being the ability to love one's fellow men and putting selfishness on the outside.

The children were taken home by the fairy, their quest for the Blue Bird being fruitless. But in the morning they awoke with a different view of life. They begin that day with a greater love for their parents and for the little sick girl next door and everything seems cheerier and brighter to them.

Like the children in the story we find people today chasing a myth called Good Time. For a moment, perhaps, they have found it, for a brief moment they are happy, and then it flies away and leaves them more unhappy than before. Search your own life for the Blue Bird; search your own soul for the bitterness and when you find Bitterness and Selfishness kill them with a perpetual smile and the Blue Bird is yours.

GAVE A WRONG IMPRESSION

Last week the ad writer made the seed corn advertisement of Joe Ellenberg say that he was shelling from 15 to 20 bushels of seed corn. It should have said that he is shelling corn, and as he shells is sorting out from 15 to 20 bushels of seed corn, preserving it on the ear for any who wish to purchase. He says that he would not purchase shelled corn, nor will he ask others to do so. His corn saved for seed is on the cob and purchasers who order may test same and throw out any ears which do not prove good, and they will prove but few, judging from tests made by Mr. Ellenberg.

Buying a Monarch Range is in keeping with the government's policy of conserving, for a Monarch will actually repay its own cost in the saving of fuel, and repairs.

THE PROHIBITION QUESTION

The editor has received a pamphlet gotten out by the publicity department of the National Association of Distillers and Wholesale Dealers which quotes the sayings of a lot of dead men and others who will be dead politically for their sayings, to prove that they are against a prohibitory law. Perhaps the sentences quoted in many cases did not refer to the liquor question at all—and if it did, it should be remembered that wise men sometimes change their opinion—some others never do.

Ralph Waldo Emerson is quoted as saying as follows: "The wise know that foolish legislation is the rope of sand which perishes in the twisting; that the state must follow and not lead the character and progress of the citizen. The law is only a memorandum."

That does not say that prohibition is a foolish law, but it does say that the state follows and not leads; and today it is following the lead of an aroused public on the question of liquor traffic.

Much of the argument in the book takes the ground that prohibition tends to increase the use of liquors; and if that were so there would be few liquor dealers opposing the law which would increase their business. But why multiply such quotations from the dead; for they are no "deader" than the liquor traffic is getting to be as fast as the legislators can get at it—outside of Nebraska, where we happen to have a senate elected by the brewers and the G-A alliance.

The day is coming when the people will make a candidate openly pledge himself to vote and work for their interests, and hold him accountable after election the same as the brewers, the grafters, the German-American Alliance and corrupt corrupting corporations have been doing for years. When the fight is in the open and the people realize that the men who have the support of these interests are pledged to them in such a manner that they cannot get away—then a different class of men will go to congress, the legislators and the offices, and very different legislation will come for the people. After two or three national campaigns, W. J. Bryan came to know that those interests took no chance with one who would not consent to be "hog-tied." When Champ Clark began to make "goo-goo eyes" at the Wall street gang, Bryan knew that it was time for those who had the good of the American people at heart to desert him. An officer cannot serve two masters.

Now is the time to be making up your mind who you want to represent you at Lincoln at the next session of the legislature. Beyond a doubt the insurance combine have their tool picked out—and he cannot serve two masters. If you really enjoy paying the war tax for the insurance combine, just keep quiet and let them nominate the men and you elect them. Of course, 10 per cent is not much of a graft, but it is some, on top of a 50 per cent raise which preceded it.

Jawn D. has purchased a bunch of Liberty Bonds, we'll bet dollars to doughnuts the price of gasoline took a sharp advance. In a short time the increased price will pay the bonds, and after the people have paid them, Jawn D. will clip the coupons. That's fine.

Champ Clark, speaker of the house of representatives, has been tendered the place in the senate made vacant by the death of Senator Stone, by Governor Gardner, of Missouri. Probably Champ will accept—and perhaps he might become his own successor when the people come to name a senator.

Now that Senator Kohl has told of his purpose to make the race for treasurer of the state, it is time for the democrats of this Seventh district to be uniting upon a good man to succeed him in that obstructive body.

Let's make the world a safe place for humanity—free from the vultures who grab and monopolize natural resources—that's the kind of a democracy the people deserve for which they are yearning.

As the time for primary election approaches, the bees are commencing to buzz in more than one bonnet. There's the sheriff plum, the treasurer, the clerk, county judge, etc. Wake up, ye patriots.

"HARRY HUNTER" PROMINENT NEWSPAPER MAN IS DEAD

O. C. Lewis of Wayne received word Tuesday of the death of his nephew, W. H. Hunter, who died suddenly at Minneapolis, Minnesota, Monday. He was a brilliant writer and journalist. A Minneapolis dispatch has this to say:

W. H. Hunter, managing editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, formerly associate editor of the Omaha Bee, and one of the best known newspaper men in the northwest, fell dead late today. Mr. Hunter was stricken shortly after he left his office. He was 54 years old. Death was due to acute indigestion.

W. H. Hunter was born in Missouri but was reared in Iowa by his paternal grandfather, on a farm near Hamburg. He attended Cole college at Cedar Rapids, and first engaged in newspaper work on the Cedar Rapids Republican, coming from there to Council Bluffs early in the 80's, where he was city editor of the Non-Parrel.

He left that paper to become police reporter on the Bee, going from there to Toronto, where he spent some time on the mail of that city, returning to the Bee in 1888. In 1890 he became city editor of the Bee, a position he filled until 1896, when he resigned to become editor of the Trade Exhibit, in company with A. C. Davenport and J. H. Hodgins. From here he went to Denver, where he served as managing editor of the Times of that city. On the purchase of that paper by the late Thomas M. Patterson and its consolidation with the Rocky Mountain News, Mr. Hunter went to the St. Louis Republic, later going to Washington as correspondent for the Globe-Democrat.

While in Washington his work attracted the attention of Scott Bone, then editor of the Post, who engaged Mr. Hunter as editorial paragraph writer, and he began the most brilliant chapter of his career. He left the Post to become associate editor of the Bee, resigning in the winter of 1908 to go with C. H. Grasty to take charge of the Pioneer Press at St. Paul. He went to Tacoma, returning in 1914 to Minneapolis.

Mr. Hunter was twice married, his second wife and one son surviving him. His son, Kent, is a lieutenant in the national army, having won his commission at Camp Sheridan last summer. He now is at Camp Logan, Texas.

Don't forget the patriotic rally at Altoua Sunday afternoon. Dr. W. H. Mullen of Bloomfield is to be the speaker.

"What a lucky man you are," said the city relative. "Raise all you need to eat." "Yes," replied the farmer, "but gosh blame it, the stuff is all worth so much money it seems rank extravagance to eat it."

We understand that Wm. Weohler was lucky in getting a new well finally, it being the third or fourth hole Mr. Weohler put down. He surely has had lots of well trouble. Mr. Melcher of Wisner was the lucky man to get water for Mr. Weohler.

EVER FALL—OR WRENCH YOUR BACK?

A SLIP, wrench, strain, fall or jolt, received weeks, months, or even years ago may be responsible for the ailments of today. WHY? Every twist or strain is recorded in the backbone; the movable bones are forced out of normal position. Nature then cannot carry a normal flow of nerve force through the nerve cables, which radiate through the backbones, when displaced vertebrae are injuring them. The result is dis-ease of the organs these injured nerves feed. Since there is a mechanical interference, it must be adjusted mechanically. The only science that does correct the cause of disease is

RECORD OF SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE SESSION

(Lieutenant-Governor Howard)

Concluded from last week. The only controversy over the alien-voting amendment was as to the time granted first-paper citizens to complete their naturalization. The amendment will be submitted to the people at the election next November. As originally drawn it provided that it would go into effect immediately after adoption. Many regarded this as a hardship upon citizens who have been exercising full rights of citizenship for many years without their naturalization, and so the bill was amended to give such persons three years in which to complete their citizenship. I tried very earnestly to watch the way of this bill during the closing hours of the session, but it got so badly mixed up with the potash bill that to this hour I do not certainly know whether it was finally adopted with or without the three year limit. My impression is that the limit was stricken out, and that the amendment means that at the next presidential election in 1920 no person will be able to vote in Nebraska unless he or she shall be a native-born citizen or one fully naturalized.

Speaking of potash—what does the average reader of the Telegram know about it? Not much, perhaps, and yet perhaps as much as the average legislator seemed to know about it when the bill to validate the potash leases on state school lands came up for consideration. Strangely enough, I heard many legislators say that they knew less about the bill after discussing it for a week than when it was first introduced. Two years ago the discovery was made that there is potash in paying quantity in many of the little lakes in northwest Nebraska. Many of the lakes are on school land. The school and was under lease for agricultural purposes, but not for potash purposes. The state has given many potash leases to individuals, and some leases had already begun mining potash. Then came the supreme court and decided that the leases were invalid. By request of the governor a bill was introduced to validate all such leases. In other words the legislature was asked to say that the canceled leases might be made alive again. Big lobbies were present, one faction contending that such a law would work the welfare of the public, and the other faction declaring that the bill would enable the lease-holders to rob the state. The house passed the bill with some mutilations, and then the senate tacked on a bunch of amendments. In the last hours of the session potash was on all tongues. Charges of jobbery and boodle were freely circulated by the opposing factions. My own opinion is that both factions came close to the truth. But I am now ready to believe that the legislature did about the best thing possible with the potash problem. On general principles I am always opposed to legislative validation of illegal acts of any other state officers, but in this case I am willing to lay aside my prejudice against such legislation and to say that the plan finally adopted by the legislature will enable the state school fund to get more money out of potash in one year of war days than could be harvested in many years of peace. Potash is not worth much more than good manure during peace days, but in war times the price runs as high as a society woman's shoes. I shall defend every legislator who shall be denounced for his vote in favor of the potash bill. I did not like the bill, but it was the best thing the legislature could enact under all the circumstances.

The pathetic hour of all the senate sessions came on the last day. The venerable Senator Sawyer introduced a concurrent resolution, applauding President Wilson and the national congress upon their patriotic efforts since the war began, with a prayer for God's blessing upon the president, the congress, and upon every American soldier over the sea. Instantly the wet senators discovered the situation. It was appalling. Under the terms of the Henry resolution the senate could not consider such a concurrent resolution, even though it spoke praise for the president of the republic and a prayer for the American soldiers. Quickly the aged senator was surrounded by the damp senators. They begged him to take the word "concurrent" out of his resolution, so that it would not be offensive to the Henry resolution. And then the senior senator from Lancaster displayed a grade of charity almost sublime. If he had refused to strike out the word "concurrent" from his resolution he knew the chair would be compelled to rule it out of order, it being in violation of the Henry resolution, thus putting the wet senators on record as killing a concurrent resolution commending the president of the United States. The aged senator looked down into the deep hole into which his patriotic resolution had plunged the wet authors of the Henry resolution. Justice pleaded with him to let the law of retribution take its course. Mercy tugged at his heart-strings, and begged mercy in behalf of the eighteen senators in the hole. Mercy prevailed. The word "concurrent" was taken from the resolution, and then every senator voted for it, although it could not have traveled a single foot in the senate but for the angel-like charity of the senior senator from Lancaster.

Was the special session worth the money? Yes, I say it was worth all it cost if nothing more than the granting to our soldier boys a sacred right to cast a freeman's ballot. I further believe the passage of the sedition bill, although it contains some lines objectionable, will go far to enable all citizens to understand the meaning of sedition and to avoid it. I believe that the potash bill will bring soon a vast flood of money to the state school fund. I believe the earnest discussion of the war measures by the legislature will bring about a better feeling between all elements of our people, and lead all of us to daily dedicate ourselves anew to the cause of our common country and our flag in this time of grave danger to the republic.

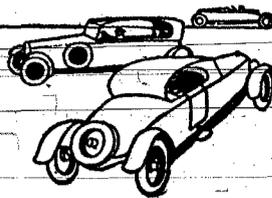

The great disappointment to the average citizen of Nebraska must have been the action of the senate majority in refusing to even permit the senate to vote for or against the congressional amendment for the utter overthrow of the liquor traffic in America. The congress and President Wilson had approved the amendment as a war measure for the conservation of food grains. Nebraska's vote for ratification would not put the amendment in force, but it would be a step in that direction. But there was no show to get a vote in the senate. The same senators who were dominated as the wet majority in the regular session one year ago were in full control at this special session. Strong appeals were made to them to ratify the congressional amendment and thus save for our soldiers the grain which now goes into the brewery vats. Many persons have challenged the loyalty of those senators who refused to ratify the amendment. I do not challenge the loyalty of any member of the senatorial band which made such a strong fight for the brewery programme, but I do sincerely challenge the good judgment of any man who refuses to grant the request of his government in time of war. Let us not forget that this amendment had been passed by congress and approved by President Wilson not alone as a moral measure, but also as a war measure. I fear it will be extremely difficult for those to explain the grounds upon which senators who voted in harmony with the wishes of the American brewers they voted against the wishes of President Wilson and the American congress difficult for them to explain to their home people why they refused to help the government save food grains for our soldiers over the sea. I did all I could to induce the senate to ratify the amendment. I sincerely regret that the senate majority could not view the situation as I viewed it. Why I could not have cast a vote against ratification of the amendment. My tongue would not have been able to frame a word in opposition. I do not say that any senator who voted against ratification knowingly voted in favor of sending to the brewery vats grain which will soon be needed as food for our soldiers, but I do say that if I had cast a vote against ratification my companion through the years would be the haunting fear that I might some day have pointed at my face a finger of scorn raised by a hungry boy wearing the uniform of my country on the fields of France.

CHANGES IN FOOD REGULATION TO ALL COUNTY FEDERAL FOOD ADMINISTRATORS; BULLETIN 26:

The constant changes in the condition of food supplies make necessary frequent changes in rules and regulations regarding the use of food. You are requested to give wide publicity through the papers and by circulation of copies of this bulletin to the latest

Food Regulations for Householders Briefly Stated

All householders who can entirely eliminate the use of wheat until next harvest, about September 1st, should do so.

Householders who are not obliged to use wheat should not use more than a total of 1½ pounds of wheat flour or prepared wheat in any form, per person, per week, including the wheat flour in Victory Bread, and including the wheat or prepared wheat in crackers, pastry, macaroni, breakfast and other foods.

In estimating flour consumption every 1½ pounds of Victory Bread, which is bread manufactured by bakers under the regulations of the United States Food Administration, may be considered equal to one pound of wheat flour.

This rationing requires a more restricted use of wheat than that asked for by the observance of wheatless days and meals, which are no longer obligatory, but in practice it will be found that an even wider and more strict observance of wheatless days and meals will aid greatly in limiting the household consumption of wheat flour and other prepared wheat to 1½ pounds per person per week.

Meat of any kind may be eaten on any day in moderation until May 1st.

In buying wheat flour an equal weight of cereals as substitutes for wheat flour must be bought pound for pound. In buying graham, whole wheat or mixed flours, the substitutes in them may be counted so that a smaller proportion of substitutes may be bought with these flours than with wheat flour. This is the 50-50 Rule.

Wheat flour substitutes are hominy, corn grits, corn meals, corn flour, edible corn starch, barley flour, rolled oats, oatmeal, rice, rice flour, buckwheat flour, potato flour, sweet potato flour, soya bean flour and feterita flour and meals.

Householders in towns and cities may not buy more than ½ of a barrel of flour at any one time. Household-ers in the country may not buy more than ¼ of a barrel of flour at any one time. In no event shall any purchaser have more than 30 days supply on hand.

All kinds of food, especially wheat, meats, fats and sugar should be economically used.

Grow and use local supplies; this saves transportation.

These regulations are necessarily subject to change at any time as the needs of the Allies and our own goods demand.

Yours truly,
J. H. KEMP,
Food Administrator for Wayne Co.

Three Unforgettable War Poems

By Paul V. D. Hoysradt

(From the Goldenrod)

It is rather interesting to observe that among the thousands of poems inspired by the great war few apparently have struck a sincerer note than those which glorify the high purpose and sacrifices of the struggle. In more than one case poems have been written by soldiers who have perished just as they seemed on the eve of greater achievement in their art, and consequently death has lent a certain pathos to the publication of their work.

Probably no general's death in the war has caused as profound sorrow or been as widely lamented as the loss of Rupert Brooke. As a sub-lieutenant in the Royal Naval Division of Great Britain, this young poet bore a part in the ill-starred expedition to the Dardanelles in the autumn of 1914, and when he perished at Lemnos, from the effect of sunstroke, he was still in his twenty-seventh year. But Brooke left more than a beautiful memory to be cherished. His sonnet, "The Soldier," is one of the great poems of the war, if not of this age, just as truly as it is one of the most beautiful things in his volume of "Collected Poems." (John Lane Company):

If I should die, think only this of me;
That there's some corner of a foreign field

That is forever England. There shall be

In that rich earth a richer dust concealed;

A dust whom England bore, shaped, made aware,

Gave, once, her flowers to love, her ways to roam,

A body of England's, breathing English air,

Washed by the rivers, blessed by the suns of home.

And think this heart, all evil shed away,

A pulse in the eternal mind, no less Gives somewhere back the thoughts

by England given;

Her sights and sounds; dreams

happy as her day;
And laughter learnt of friends; and gentleness,
In hearts at peace, under an English heaven.

Another poet who died glorifying in the conflict was Alan Seeger. Seeger was an American, born in New York City, of New England stock, and a graduate of Harvard. For a short period before the war he had been leading a happy, care-free existence in Paris, dwelling in the Quartier Latin, and engaged in the writing of mediocre poetry. Then along came August, 1914, and Seeger found a new vein of inspiration. Less than three weeks after the opening of hostilities he had joined the Foreign Legion and all his finer work was produced while in the service of his adored France. By a strange coincidence it may seem now, his death occurred July 4, 1916, while charging with the remnant of the heroic Legion on the German trenches at Belleau-en-Santerre. He was only twenty-eight when he fell, and as the world was just beginning to recognize his standing as a writer of rare and beautiful war verse, it is no wonder that William Archer says in an appreciative introduction to his "Poems" (Charles Scribner's Sons), "of all the poets that have died young, none has died so happily."

Reviewers generally consider the following lyric as the one poem that will carry Alan Seeger's name farthest down the years:

I have a rendezvous with death
At some disputed barricade,
When spring comes back with rustling shade,
And apple blossoms fill the air.

I have a rendezvous with death
When spring brings back blue days and fair.

It may be he shall take my hand
And lead me into his dark land
And close my eyes and quench my breath;

It may be I shall pass him still.
I have a rendezvous with death
On some scarred slope of battered hill,
When spring comes round again this year

And the first meadow-flowers appear.

God knows 'twere better to be deep
Pillowed in silk and scented down,
Where love throbs out in blissful sleep,
Pulse nigh to pulse, and breath to breath,

Where hushed awakenings are dear.
But I've a rendezvous with death
At midnight in some flaming town,
When spring trips north again this year,
And I to my pledged word am true,
I shall not fail that rendezvous.

But not all the war poetry has been written by soldiers. The following verses are the work of an Irish lady, Miss Winifred M. Letts:

In a simpler but no less haunting way they express the same spirit of devotion and sacrifice which characterizes the two poems of Brooke and Seeger. This poem as a whole is typically Irish, artless in manner and profound in feeling:

I saw the spires of Oxford
As I was passing by,
The gray spires of Oxford
Against a pearl-gray sky.
My heart was with the Oxford men
Who went abroad to die.

The years go fast in Oxford,
The golden years and gay;

The hoary colleges look down
On careless boys at play.
But when the bugles sounded war
They put their games away.

The cricket field, the quad,
The shaven lawns at Oxford,
To seek a bloody sod—
They gave their merry youth away
For country and for God.

God rest you happy gentlemen,
Who laid your good lives down.
Who took the khaki and the gun
Instead of cap and gown.

God bring you to a fairer place
Than even Oxford town.

Community Club Report

(From the Goldenrod)

Early last October a need was felt for some organization which would provide an opportunity for democratic sociability and good fellowship among the students and faculty of the Wayne State Normal School. To Professor Lewis, Professor Teed, Mr. Penn and Mr. Hering is due the credit for conceiving the plan of a community club. These people in conference with President Conn worked out the plans for the club which were briefly as follows: Membership should be composed of student and faculty; each group was to elect its student representative; an advisor for each group was to be appointed by President Conn; student representatives and faculty advisors constituted the officers of the organization; social meetings were to be held bi-weekly on Saturday nights, special meetings to be called at the discretion of the executive committee; there were to be no membership dues; and eats were not to exceed five cents per serving.

The natural grouping of the people concerned was recognized as a democratic basis for securing the machinery of such an organization. Each group met and elected its representative and President Conn appointed each faculty advisor as follows:

North Hall
Emma Buck Miss Smothers
Terrace Hall

Edna Thompson Miss Anthony
Kingsbury Hall

Pearl Stracke Miss Kingsbury
West Hall

OBITUARY OF MRS. E. Q. SALA

(By her pastor)

The death of Mrs. E. Q. Sala, aged 64 years, 5 months, and 19 days, occurred last Thursday morning at the break of day.

Affa Etta Richmond was born at Rockport, Illinois, October 29, 1853. She was married at West Point, Iowa, to Edmund Quincy Sala July 3, 1873. To this union eight children were born. Eighteen years ago the family moved from West Point, Iowa, and have lived most of the time since in Wayne county.

Mrs. Sala was a member of the West Point Methodist church and her membership remained there until her decease. She was a cheerful Christian woman and this was manifested in her daily walk and conversation in her home and in the community. She believed that things never was so bad but that they could be worse. Her faith in God was able to comprehend this sublime passage from holy writ: "All things work together for good to those who love God." She died in that confidence that some day it would be alright when she should go to be with her Lord.

Mrs. Sala had been a great sufferer for a number of years. In fact, she never was real strong and robust. Eight years ago she had an operation for gall stones and never seemed to rally from the shock of this upon her nervous system. For over three months she has been forced to give up. A few days after Christmas our sister again submitted to an examination in Sioux City and the fact was revealed that she was suffering from cancer of the liver. The doctors did not operate as they felt that it was of no use. Friends knew that it was only a question of a few months at the best.

Although this had given her a great deal of pain and anguish, never a word of complaint was heard. Even to the very last when she could not speak she looked into the faces of her sons and smiled.

The pastor became quite well acquainted with Mrs. Sala, but never was there any disposition on her part to think her lot harder than other people's. She seemed to have implicit faith in God and never swerved from this one great position by her outside circumstances and environment. She was quiet and unassuming and yet one felt the pull of her fascinating personality.

The family will miss her in the home. She was a good wife and mother to those under her care. She never tired of doing for those she loved. May the children "rise up and call her blessed" and may they seek to inculcate within their own lives the same lofty conceptions which were her portion. This is the real source of joy and happiness.

The community has lost a good woman and this city is the poorer today because of the departure of this beautiful soul whose kindly qualities endeared her to all who came in contact with her.

Mrs. Sala is survived by her husband, Mr. E. Q. Sala, and eight children, six of whom were here to the funeral. They are Mrs. Winnie Ziegler, Norden, Nebraska; Mrs. Margaret McMullen, Craig, Nebraska; Elmer Sala, Millboro, South Dakota; Mrs. Emma Hayes, Wayne, Nebraska; Ray Sala, Millboro, South Dakota; Edmund Sala, Colome, South Dakota; Iva Sala, Wayne, Nebraska, and Irvin Sala who is now at the training camp at Newport News, Virginia. All of these children were present at the time of the mother's death except Mrs. Ziegler and Irvin. Two brothers survive her, Herbert Richmond, Scottsbluff, Nebraska, and Henry Richmond of Sterling, Colorado. She leaves to mourn also three sisters, Mrs. Charles Dunann, Okadale, Nebraska; Mrs. M. K. Rickabaugh, Colome, South Dakota, and Mrs. Thomas Hughes of Wayne and eleven grandchildren.

The funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home. Rev. Fletcher J. Jordan, pastor of the Baptist church of this city, officiating. The funeral was attended by a large concourse of friends who testified to the esteem in which our departed sister was held.

The remains were laid to rest in the beautiful Greenwood cemetery.

LET'S CLEAN UP—IT'S SPRING

Several people called our attention to the fact that the alleys and back yards of several places in our little city are badly in need of a good spring cleaning. Another thing that seems to be the biggest bother to the auto drivers is the habit some people have of throwing bottles and broken bits of glass into the streets. Let's get the clean-up habit.

Do You Want Seed Corn

I am sorting out from 15 to 20 bushel per day of an early yellow corn which I have found very satisfactory. My tests have shown a 90 per cent germination from the 1917 crop. This corn is all selected with care, and inferior ears discarded; is carefully sorted and is proving very satisfactory to those who see and test it.

While the supply lasts, orders will be filled in the order received, so an early order will insure one we can fill for a time at least.

I have been a successful grower of seed corn for a number of years, and believe that I can do the community good by furnishing this grade of corn for seed.

MRS. GEORGE McNUTT

Wayne friends were shocked Friday last to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. George McNutt. She had been ailing for many weeks but was never considered in a serious condition. Heart failure was the cause of her death. Mrs. McNutt had many friends who loved her for her kindly disposition and unflinching sweetness of character.

Miss Millissa Jennie Hoskinson was born near Eddyville, Iowa, October 18, 1858. She grew to womanhood in Iowa, later locating in Douglas county, this state, where she married George McNutt, January 17, 1884. To this union were born four children, two of whom died in infancy and two were with her at the time of her death. Her husband died August 24, 1896 at Foster, Iowa.

She moved to Wayne in the spring of 1910 and lived here up to the time of her death, April 19, 1918. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. H. Norman and son Forrest E. McNutt, both of Wayne. She also leaves a mother and seven brothers, three of whom were present at the funeral. They are Joseph of Neligh, James of Albia, Iowa, Albert of Moravia, Iowa. Her mother of Neligh was also here. Four grandchildren survive her. They are Eva and Rachel McKim and Jennie and Ruby Norman.

Funeral services were held at the M. E. church Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 the Rev. MacGregor officiating. He gave a splendid talk to the mourners a message of promise and good cheer. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

WATCH YOUR STEP

Rumors and rumors of rumors the past week have caused pain and bitterness in the lives of several of our Wayne people. And the writer wants a word at this time because a word now may save a headache and perhaps a tragedy—who knows.

Patriotism is a beautiful thing, it is a necessary thing and the writer can feel the love of country—it is bigger than life itself, but these are war times, cruel, biting conflict is being waged over there. There are very few of us who haven't a loved one on the other side and we are almost afraid to look into the dailies although we can hardly wait until the trains arrive with the news. Now, when the tension is highest we are apt to say things and do things we will regret. Look to it that you are not getting beyond your bounds. If only the guilty would suffer then we would say—MAKE THEM SUFFER, but there seems to be a few innocent suffering too. In the newspaper world we have to be sure of ourselves, sure of the truth of a statement BEFORE we publish it. We believe that would be a very good slogan for the public. It would save a lot of mistakes and suffering.

If we have pro-germans in our midst let's find the whelps and run them out of town, intern them, we don't care what is done just so they shut their mouths until we whip the Kaiser. BUT, let's find them FIRST. Let's be SURE first. And in the meantime, try a STILL hunt—it pays. You scare the beast away and bag innocent game with your loud-mouthed attacks. And remember, while hunting, that it is the animal who keeps his claws concealed and his fangs hid who deals the dirtiest hand.

ALLIED FOOD SHIPMENTS REACH LARGE TOTAL.

A general idea of the quantity of food sent to European allies by the United States from July 1, 1914, to January 1, 1918, is given by figures just announced by the U. S. Food Administration. In that period the United States has furnished complete yearly rations for 57,100,933 people. In addition there was enough extra protein to supply this portion of the diet for 22,194,570 additional men.

The total export of wheat and wheat flour to the three principal allies is equivalent to about 334,000,000 bushels. Pork exports for the 3 1/2 years amounted to almost 2,000,000,000 pounds. Exports of fresh beef totaled 443,484,400 pounds. The amount of food exported to Russia is negligible compared with that sent to the western allies.

WITH THE WAYNE CHURCHES

Baptist Church

(Rev. Fletcher J. Jordan, Pastor)
Judge White, for ten years judge of the supreme court of Colorado, will lecture at the State Normal Auditorium next Sunday evening, April 28th. Judge White comes under the auspices of the Public Service Club and the Council of Defense and this will be the closing rally in the Liberty Loan Drive. Judge White is said to be a very inspiring and convincing speaker. Divine worship as usual Sunday morning at 10:30. Special music by Prof. Davies. Seats are free and all are cordially invited to be present and worship with us.

Sunday school came up materially in its attendance last Sunday. Let us keep boosting our Bible school. The session of the school begins at 11:30. Parents, send your children to the Sunday school where they may learn about Jesus and how He works in human life. There is no better place to spend an hour for the young and old. We will be expecting you next Sunday.

W. Y. P. U. at 7 o'clock next Sunday evening. The topic is: "A Bible for Every Man." Psalm 19. This meeting is led by the pastor. Choir practice Thursday evening at 8:00 p. m.

The Ladies' Missionary society will meet with Mrs. Catherine Huff Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This meeting is important as it is the time when the officers will be elected for the ensuing year. Every lady of the church is expected to be in attendance.

Remember the special prayer meeting to be held at Mr. Arthur Norton's Friday evening at 8 o'clock. These meetings are held for the express purpose of praying for the revival meetings which Messrs. Sherrod and Allen are going to hold next month. We must help to make them a great success.

Presbyterian Church

(Rev. S. Xenophon Cross, Pastor)

In the name of liberty and in the spirit of fellowship we extend to all a welcome to join us. This is not that one more may be added to a sectarian body, but that we may share the privilege of free fellowship, and all together do more effective work than any of us have done hitherto. That man most truly counts who is willing to stand up and be counted; the church is the only institution that deals with man in his true character as a spiritual being. The Sunday school is the place where the young are to be started, if started, along the way of higher life. Come next Sunday.

"The Church of the Modern Spirit" is the pulpit theme for next Sunday morning service. If the church organization is worth while, it aims to develop that which alone shall survive. It is a duty that a man owes to himself to give himself the advantages of the church and of that church that best affords freest and fullest expression and development.

All unite next Sunday evening in the patriotic union mass meeting at the college auditorium. Judge White comes so highly commended that we feel that every person who can do so should hear him. This will be the final big Wayne rally for the Liberty Bond campaign. The meeting will be under the joint auspices of the Council of Defense and the Public Service Club.

Mr. A. R. Davis has been secured to lead the Y. P. S. C. E. meeting next Sunday evening. This will be a patriotic meeting. Such meetings give the opportunity to make your force felt most truly for truth and justice and liberty. There will be time to go to the big meeting after this closes.

English Lutheran Church

(Rev. J. H. Fetterolf, Pastor)

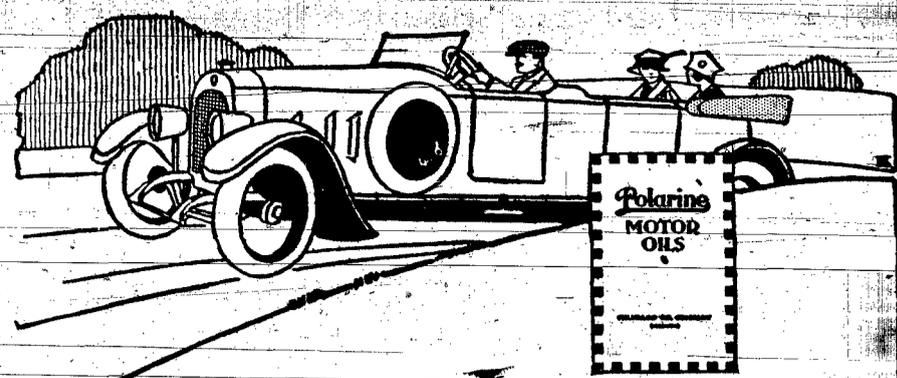

There has been no change in the opening hour of the Sunday school. That seems to be the impression, for the tendency to be late still persists. The superintendent would appreciate it very much if you would speed up a little and be on hand at 10 o'clock, sharp.

Public worship with sermon at 11 a. m. Lately there has been a decided increase in the attendance at the morning services. We are thankful for these evidences of interest. In these times of anxiety there is no greater need for the epole at large than the comforts of the gospel. Our constant aim is to bring a message of helpfulness. Come thou with us and we will do thee good. Bring your friends with you.

Miss Hazel Theis will conduct the meeting of the Luther League next Sunday evening at 7:15. Your presence will encourage the leader and you yourself will be encouraged.

There will be no preaching in this church next Sunday evening. Our congregation will unite with the other churches in a patriotic meeting at the Normal auditorium.

The April meeting of the Woman's Missionary society will be held at the parsonage next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30.

THE CALL TO TOUR

calls for Polarine in the motor. When you want speed the Polarine lubricated cylinder lets the piston slide rapidly up and down without friction. And if you need power that same thin film of Polarine seals the gas above the piston—makes a giant out of your motor.

You can get Polarine wherever you go—a thousand miles from here. It's the safe oil to start with.

Look for the sign—it identifies a good dealer and a dependable oil.

All attend the patriotic meeting at the Normal auditorium. 8 p. m. is the hour. Everybody will be welcome to any and all church services.

SHORT HORN BULLS

Parties interested in raising cattle should call and see bulls raised by John S. Lewis & Son. They are the largest beef cattle yet. Their dams give a good flow of milk. Herd headed by Britton Goods (339757), son of Imported Choice Goods (186302), the most noted bull ever imported. His get and the get of his son and grandsons has won more prizes than any other family of the breed. Such cattle in Iowa sales last month averaged $900 to 1150 each. These bulls can be bought so they will pay for themselves in additional beef produced in a short time and are good enough to head any pure blood herd in Nebraska.
Herd founded 1897.

SOCIAL NOTES

Minerva Club

The Minerva club met Monday, April 22, at the home of Mrs. J. J. Coleman. Mrs. W. R. Ellis read an excellent paper on "The Future of Women in Science." Her article was replete with good thoughts, one that is particularly worthy of notable mention being, "a large compensation of the world war will be the recognized ability of women to successfully cope with man in nearly all lines of endeavor."

Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis gave a splendid detailed report of the District Federation. A summary of which follows:

"The fifteenth annual convention of the Third District Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs, which met distinctly a war meeting. Each state or district chairman in presenting the work of her department, whether it was Health, Civil Service, Home Economics, Industrial and Social Conditions, Education, Conservation, or Art, hewed close to the line of war service. And why should it not be so? War work today means not only great armies of men in camps, on the march, in the trenches, in the battle, and the horrible bloodshed and destruction, and the relief service after the carnage; but war work is a question of food, of factories, of fields, of churches, of schools, of homes, of music and art; of work, of recreation and diversion. "Club women must be helpful to the community along these lines. Today our home is the wide, wide world and our kin, suffering humanity. Women's clubs must have a place where the plans of the government are made known and discussed. Club women are peculiarly fitted to enter immediately into the plans of our government for carrying on war work, for they have long been organized and have been working together on the very same lines of work upon which the government is placing war-time emphasis just now. It is interesting to note that almost all of the speakers and many of the delegates at the convention are workers in the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense, either as officers, heads of departments, or county chairmen. This is just as true throughout the entire state.

"Mrs. E. A. Sheldon, State President of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs, gave the main address on Tuesday evening, her subject being "Things Good Enough to Be True." On Wednesday evening a most excellent address on "Woman's War Work" was given by Prof. Sarka Hrbkova, head of the department of Slavonic Languages of the State University, and State Chairman of the Woman's Council of Defense."

Mrs. E. J. Huntmer pleasantly surprised the club with a treat of candy made from a Hoover recipe. As a special number Mrs. Henry Ley, using her electric beopticon, entertained the club with a series of beautiful California views. The time passed all too quickly and the members hope that Mrs. Ley will continue her "special" in the near future.

The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. U. S. Conn, Monday, May 6th.

W. C. T. U.—Have Interesting Meet

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Clara Gustafson Friday last and enjoyed one of the pleasantest meetings of the year.

The following recital was given by Mrs. J. T. House, assisted by Mrs. S. A. Lutgen:

After this feast of wonderful music the ladies were treated to a patriotic reading by Mrs. S. A. Lutgen, after which all present sang "Keep The Home Fires Burning."

Following a short business session the hostess served a Hoover luncheon. The next meeting will be with Mrs. George Fortner, Friday, May 3.

Bible Study Circle

The Bible Study Circle meeting at the home of Mrs. George Heady on Tuesday afternoon was a season of refreshing faith to the large number in attendance.

The subject of the lesson was discussed, "Jesus Rebuking Selfishness," was most practical and handled in the light of present conditions in the world.

Rev. Fletcher J. Jordan was a visitor and requested prayer for the special revival campaign planned for the middle of May at his church. Ernest prayer was also offered for observance of a national day of humiliation and prayer on a week day for our own country and armies at war. A year or two ago the Archbishop of Canterbury, in an open letter to Premier Asquith, called for a day of prayer upon a week day but it has not yet been arranged for. In Great Britain the call for a day of humiliation and prayer continues insistent and America's greatest need is for such a day to be observed throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Various requests for prayer were handed in and faithfully remembered. A fine letter was read from Agnes Glenn telling of victories in gospel work in Japan.

Mrs. Young will be hostess next week.

Mrs. Nichols will entertain the Girl's Circle Friday evening.

Music Club Banquet

The Junior Music club met with Mrs. J. T. House Saturday evening for their annual banquet. There were twenty-five, including guests, present. The rooms were decorated with American flags. After a delicious two-course luncheon was served, an impromptu musical program was given. Then came some lively games led by Edward Reynolds, the chairman of the committee on games. He was ably assisted by Miss Frances Oman, a guest.

The potato race has been a feature of these occasions for several years past. The potatoes for the race this year were raised by a club member from a prize potato of last year. These potatoes were given as third and fourth prizes. The first prize was an American flag and was won by Marian Surber. The second prize went to Elsie Lerner, the prize being two "absolutely fresh" bantam eggs. They were gaily festooned with cotton and garnished with candy, a donation from Ralph Hufford. This created much merriment.

Next year the club hopes to have two crops of potatoes and a brood of musical bantams.

Miss Oman Entertains Queen Esthers

Tuesday, April 16, Miss Frances Oman entertained the Queen Esthers and the young ladies report a pleasant time. Most of the time was given over to business and plans for work. The following officers were elected: Madeline Behner, president; Martha Crockett, vice president; Mabel Gossard, treasurer; Edna Hansen, assistant treasurer; Olive Blair, corresponding secretary; Susie Sanders, secretary.

The young ladies pledged to raise $60 the coming year to support a Jewish girl in the Marcy Center home in Chicago.

Misses Derna Powers and Edna Hansen were elected delegates to the district convention to be held at Omaha, May 18th and 19th.

A play is being planned to be given soon.

The Helping Hand society met with Mrs. Wm. Buetow Thursday last in the last all day session of this spring. They enjoyed a delicious two-course dinner and the afternoon was spent sewing for the Red Cross. A large attendance was out. Seventeen members and several guests. The next meeting will be Thursday, May 2, with Mrs. Ray Durant in an afternoon session. The ladies will tie a quilt for the Red Cross.

The Pleasant Valley club met with Mrs. Lloyd Gildersleeve Thursday last and enjoyed a splendid afternoon together. The time was spent making a quilt for the Red Cross and a business meeting was held. Three new members joined the club; Messdames Otto Floor, Chas. Helkes, and Harold Gildersleeve. The hostess served a delicious two course luncheon.

The ladies east of Wayne have organized a club called the Nimble Thimbles to do work exclusively for the Red Cross. The ladies have been meeting several weeks and have accomplished a great deal. Tomorrow they meet, with Mrs. John McIntyre and will make shot bags.

The Acme club will hold their next meeting at the I. H. Britell home. It will be a business session and will close at 6:30 when the husbands of the members are to appear on the scene for a dinner.

The Rural Home society are meeting today with Mrs. James McIntosh in an all day session. They are working on surgical dressings and quilting for the Red Cross.

The Early Hour club met with Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Judson Thursday evening and enjoyed a six o'clock dinner and the evening was pleasantly spent playing "500."

St. Mary's Guild is meeting with Mrs. M. T. McInerney this afternoon. The ladies are working on Red Cross work and tying a quilt.

Pretty little Miss Ruth Munhaven of Jackson, filed her petition in the district court last Friday asking to have her marriage to Robert Munhaven annulled. She sets out in her petition that she was married to the defendant on December 26, 1917, at Wayne, Nebraska, before the county judge, and at that time was only 15 years old. She alleges that her mother was present and consented to her marriage and told her to give her age as 18 years. The little young wife wants the court to not only set the marriage aside but to appoint a guardian for her other than her mother. The law in Nebraska prohibits marriage under 16 years of age. Attorney Geo. W. Leamer is appearing for the infant wife.—Dakota City Eagle.

THE OTHER GIRL
By EARL REED SILVERS.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mildred had always been afraid of the other girl. Ted spoke of her very little now, but only a brief three months ago he had told Mildred all about that wonderful week in the mountains. He had been worn out with the press of work and had gone to Coleville, where he had found Elsie. She was the village school teacher, just out of normal school.

He had not known Mildred very well then. But the day after his return she had met him at a country club dance, and she had listened while he told her about Elsie. And then, two days before New Year's, he had told her that he was going to Coleville again to see Elsie.

"I promised her the last time I was up there that I'd come again on New Year's," he explained, "and I don't like to break my promise."

Something in the hurt of Mildred's eyes brought an answering light in his own.

"You know, don't you," he asked softly, "that I'd rather be here with you?"

But Mildred shook her head. "I don't know whether you would or not," she answered frankly. "You must care a good deal for her."

He nodded. "Yes," he said; "I do."

Two days later he had left for Coleville, but not before he and Mildred had talked it all out. And Mildred tried to convince herself that he was doing the right thing.

"She is very much in love with him, I know she is," she told herself, "and before he offers his love to me he must find out whether or not Elsie has lost her appeal to him."

It was hard waiting until he should come back again. Through seemingly endless days Mildred tried to fix her mind on other things, but it was useless. Gradually an idea took possession of her and worked its way into her mind until it became almost an obsession. She began to think how strange it would be if Ted should bring Elsie to New York with him as a bride, and it ended by believing that that was exactly what Ted was going to do.

She resolved to go to the Grand Central station and to wait outside the gates for Ted's train to come in.

"I can hide behind some other people," she said to herself, "and if he should come off the train with another girl I can see him first and come home without him knowing it. Then he won't have to tell me about it himself."

She was waiting at the station when the train arrived, and as the people started to pour through the gates she felt a sudden panic.

"Supposing he should come with another girl," she thought. "I would never speak to him again in the world."

The fact that under those circumstances he wouldn't care whether she spoke to him or not did not occur to her.

The passengers had almost all passed through the gate, and Mildred had begun to think that perhaps Ted had missed his train, when he appeared suddenly from the darkened platform. Mildred's heart stood still as she saw him, for he was walking beside one of the prettiest girls she had ever seen.

With something like a sob, Mildred drew back into the crowd, watching with tear-bordered eyes while Ted and the girl passed almost within six feet of her. When they had gone into the main station she rushed into the subway and somehow made the trip to her home.

A doorbell rang downstairs, but Mildred did not notice. Nothing mattered. But a moment later a knock sounded at her door and the maid announced that Mr. Terrill was waiting. Mr. Terrill was Ted, and the announcement that he was downstairs filled Mildred with a sort of dull rage. She wondered vaguely why in the world he was calling on her; but she resolved that she would not let him know what a pang his selection of the other girl had given her. So she washed the tears from her eyes and went down the stairs, just as if the bottom had not fallen out of the earth. Ted stepped forward eagerly as soon as he saw her.

"Mildred!" he said.

But Mildred only nodded casually.

"How are you, Ted?" she asked, with studied formality. "You had a nice trip, I hope."

He looked at her with startled eyes.

"What's the matter, dear?" he asked, softly.

There was something in the way he spoke which shattered Mildred's reserve into tiny fragments.

"Oh, Ted," she half sobbed, "I saw you get off the train with her. Where is she?"

"Where is who?"

"The other girl—Elsie?"

"Why," Ted looked very much mystified, "when I left her this morning she was standing on the station at Coleville."

"And wasn't that she coming from the train with you?"

"No, dear; that was my cousin, who got on the train at Bridgeport, and who asked me to take her over to the Penn. station in New York."

"Oh!" For a long two minutes Mildred's eyes looked anywhere except at the man before her. But they returned to his after he had started to speak, for he was saying the most wonderful words in the world.

"There isn't any other girl," he said softly. "There is no one but you, dear."

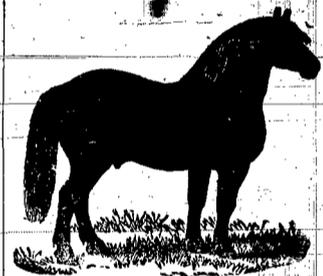

NEW MILL FOR NIORRARA

At a meeting of the Niobrara Community Club on Monday, it was decided to pledge the support of the club for $600 to assist in building a new flour mill for Niobrara. Committee members were appointed to solicit subscriptions of $5.00 each from the entire community and tributary territory for this purpose. Niobrara is now practically assured of a first-class mill with first class miller, whose integrity and skill as a miller is of the best. What the town would do without this enterprise, we do not care to guess. It is badly needed as the post-office.

We hope to see the new mill constructed and in running order for our new wheat and corn crop.—Niobrara Tribune.

The old Niobrara mill was destroyed by fire April 13. There was considerable loss of stored wheat and flour. The insurance was $3,000 we understand only partially covered the loss. The origin of the fire is unknown.

AVENIR

The millionaires of America might purchase from their available cash one billion dollars worth of Liberty Bonds, but nobody but the American people as a great body can float the coming Liberty Loan.

Back of the 250 billion dollars of our national resources stands the rugged honesty of America. Liberty Loan bonds are the safest security in the world.

It is for the people to lend their Government the amount of money it needs and take as security the best and soundest financial paper that has ever been issued by any government.

If the Government can take our boys, our products, our industries and our railroads, it can take our money; but never let it be said that it was necessary to conscript wealth to win the war.

All honor is due the splendid services of the many Liberty Loan workers in the state of Nebraska who are donating their services to the Government. They should receive the full co-operation of all the people in the performance of the task set before them.

The women of Nebraska will take an important part in the work of selling the third Liberty Loan bonds.
