OVER THE TOP AGAIN IS WAYNE RED CROSS DRIVE

Diligent Work of Committees in Each of 86 Districts Brings Gratifying Returns

$12,000 QUOTA — $22,679.38 CASH

The county chairman of the Red Cross campaign makes the following report:

The report from each district is on file and will be kept as a permanent record. A separate deposit has been made for each district. A carbon copy of each deposit slip, containing the name of each person signing a check, is also on file. These slips are in envelopes, each envelope being marked with a number of the district. It can thus be seen that in case of error in this report, the error can be easily found.

The most difficult matter to adjust is the giving to each district its proper credit for the hogs which were donated. Several districts reported hogs which had been sold earlier in the year; a few reported hogs which are to be sold later. It is thus impossible to distribute the credits properly to each district.

District 15 gave the largest number of hogs. It contributed twenty. One car was sent from Wakefield, 56 hogs, bringing $1792, average $32. Two cars were sent from Wayne, 118 hogs and one sheep. One hog died before it was shipped; one was thrown out by the buyers in Omaha. This left 118 hogs. The sheep brought $26. The hogs brought $4, 141.78, average $35.70.

For hogs, Wakefield.....$1792.00
For hogs, Wayne.....4141.78
For sheep, Wayne.....26.00

Total$5959.78

The following is the report of the cash received. In several cases the cash contribution may appear small. In these districts the donation of hogs was large.

District No. 1, $184.50; No. 2, $56.50; No. 3, $117.50; No. 4, $178.50; No. 5, $159.30; No. 6, $117.65; No. 7, $157.65; No. 8, $154.15; No. 9, $344.40; No. 10, $238.20; No. 11, $141.45; No. 12, $102.70; No. 13, $227.50; No. 14, $99.50; No. 15, $97.50; No. 16, $91.05; No. 17, $302.15; No. 18, $155.75; No. 19, $275.10; No. 20, $126.50; No. 21, $48.95; No. 22, $118.50; No. 23, $292.15; No. 24, $123.80; No. 25, $152.40; No. 26, $65.00; No. 27, $161.25; No. 28, $213.40; No. 29, $205.75; No. 31, $173.00; No. 32, $145.00; No. 33, $101.60; No. 34, $185.95; No. 35, $233.50; No. 36, $127.65; No. 37, $136.25; No. 38, $234.00; No. 39, $862.00; No. 40, $129.50; No. 41, $89.90; No. 42, $74.80; No. 43, $87.30; No. 44, $216.00; No. 45, $193.85; No. 46, $212.50; No. 48, $85.90; No. 49, $72.80; No. 50, $44.00; No. 51, $91.75; No. 52, $713.65; No. 53, $60.85; No. 54, $81.00; No. 55, $117.60; No. 56, $97.00; No. 57, $169.80; No. 58, $155.50; No. 59, $107.20; No. 60, $132.05; No. 61, $60.25; No. 62, $169.10; No. 63, $148.30; No. 64, $70.35; No. 65, $125.20; No. 66, $45.00; No. 68, $126.50; No. 69, $139.35; No. 70, $77.25; No. 71, $64.50; No. 72, $65.85; No. 73, $162.50; No. 74, $146.30; No. 75, $122.00; No. 76, $646.55; No. 77, $158.70; No. 78, $120.00; No. 79, $99.20; No. 80, $100.00; No. 81, $170.40; No. 82, $307.00; No. 83, $114.40; No. 84, $120.85; No. 85, $140.10; No. 86, $89.00; Ladies Aid, Luther-and church S. E. of Wayne, $10.00; Danish Brotherhood, Winside, by Peter Iverson, $302.20; Hogs, Wakefield, $1792.00; Hogs, Wayne, $4141.78; Sheep, Wayne, $26.00; Cash to be distributed to credit of districts, $252.10. Total, $22,679.38.

The request that as large a proportion as possible of the people of the county be represented in the drive as possible was faithfully carried out as one may see when it is known that more than 8,000 people contributed to make the total almost 100 percent above the quota. It is a splendid showing, and proves that Wayne county has but few slackers, for it is very probable that of the 2,000 or 3,000 who failed to be listed as giving, many of them were children too small to give, and not considered when the family reports were made.

CONGRESSMAN SLOAN TO LECTURE AT NORMAL

Word came to Wayne Wednesday that Congressman Chas. Sloan of the 4th district has been secured for a patriotic speech at the Normal auditorium Friday evening, June 7th at 8 o'clock. This will be an opportunity to hear one of the men who represents the state or part of it at Washington.

FOURTY WAYNE COUNTY MEN LEAVE FOR TRAINING CAMP

The interest which the people of this county have in the soldier boy who is honored by a call to go forth to train and fight for the cause of democracy against autocracy was well shown by the great gathering of people who assembled at the court house Monday afternoon to take a part in the farewell reception of the soldier lads about to depart. Hundreds were unable to find even standing room, so densely was the court house packed with eager listeners.

It was a fine appearing body of young men who took their soldier obligation that day, and the scenes of the day will come to them to nerve their arm for strife, when the time shall come for them to strike a blow in defense of the people at home who have such implicit confidence in them.

The talk by Attorney Berry will long be remembered by those present for it expressed the conviction of the audience that these men would do their full duty at all cost, and at the same time showed the bright side of the soldier life to be very bright—and that while the thought of going to war carries with it the thought of danger and death—yet the rate of death among a thousand soldiers is but little above the normal death rate of times of peace. He told the boys of the dangers—the dangers greater than the bullets of their foe—the danger of disease; which they could do so much to avert, and to aid them in guarding against the evils which have so frequently destroyed other armies all that had been and is being done by home folks and their representatives near the front. Health, in near perfect sanitation, moral and physical dangers are guarded against as never before. He told them to cultivate the acquaintance of the Y. M. C. A. workers and said that they should pray in solitude of their tents, pray to Him in whose hands their fate is held and who watches over and cares for our brave soldier lads everywhere. It was a cheering talk to the lads and a comforting one to the friends who remain at home to watch and wait for news of the ones who have gone.

When any of the soldier boys who wished to speak were invited to do so Richard Forbes responded and evidently expressed the sentiment of the others of the company, from the applause they gave him, when he pledged the honest efforts of every one of the men to do their full duty at all times and under all conditions.

Mrs. O. R. Bowen, in behalf of the Red Cross spoke a few words to the boys and presented each one with a comfort kit.

Tuesday morning at the depot platform a large crowd of relatives and friends gathered to wish the boys Godspeed. The boys were a happy, lighthearted bunch of good fellows and cheered as the train left the depot. Many tear stained faces were left behind, however, and we can but wait, and hope and pray—and boost.

Mothers of County Are Interested in Welfare Meet

The first requirement of the Child Saving Campaign—the opening drive is to "Weigh and Measure your Child for the Government." In Wayne county this will be done at Winside, Carroll, Hoskins, on June 7 and 8th and at Wayne, the date will be June 8th to June 15th at the office of any physician in Wayne. Each physician has gladly cooperated with the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense in this work and the service is free. Every mother should be glad to respond to this request of the government for an inventory of the health of its children.

At Wayne on the afternoon of June 8th there will be held a Child Welfare conference, with talks on Child Life and Child Health by several of the physicians, Miss Luers and Miss Flinigan, and perhaps others. Watch this paper for announcement of places of meeting and the time (for all the towns.) Plan to hear these talks. They will be helpful.

Cut out the following coupon, enrolling your child for the Weighing and Measuring Test and send or mail to Mrs. Homer Scace, chairman of the Enrollment Committee. Bring large towel to wrap child in.

LLOYD B. FITCH WRITES "SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE"

In a letter to his parents, J. H. Fitch and wife, their son Lloyd, who left Wayne with one of the contingents several months ago, says: "How are you all, I am fine and having a pretty nice time so far. Have you received any of the letters I have written? I have received some of the papers and three letters from you so far. I am sending you some pictures of myself and also of two bunkies—they are part of the 'Show Me' army, all the way from Missouri. I bought some post cards in town, all hand work, and cost me about 75 cents, or 15 cents of our money."

The letter was dated April 26, and told of spring weather and some rain, conveyed some family news of no interest to the public, and gave the address to which his friends here might write, and please him much. Write to Cpl. Lloyd B. Fitch, Co. 18-4th Batt., 1st M. M. S. C. Air Service, American E. F. France.

All Royal Neighbors and Modern Woodman, whether residents or visitors, and anyone else interested in these societies are requested to be present.

DEATH OF MRS. LULU DEHAVEN

Mr. and Mrs. E. Ferrel came home Saturday with the body of their daughter, Mrs. Lulu DeHaven of Harrison, who died at Rochester a few days before following an operation, stopped here with the body that evening, accompanied by relatives of the deceased. Among those going were H. R. Ferrel, T. C. Farrel and R. K. Gossard and wife from Winnebago, and another sister, Mrs. Ollie DeHaven of Hay Springs. A husband and several children mourn her death.

Clarence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Powers, who enlisted on the Iowa side of the Missouri, writes home folks from a camp near Syracuse, New York. He went as a Railay engineer, and as he is moving toward the coast it is fair to assume that he may be transferred at no distant day.

It is reported that Co. I from Camp Funston, in which most of the Wayne boys are members, are in New York, and consequently in the line moving toward the west front.

Lieutenant Ralph Waldo Hahn has finished his training in aerial observation at Fort Omaha and returned again to Camp Wheeler in Georgia, where his work of training in artillery has been, and it is possible that he will be among those to cross the pond in the near future.

C. W. Reynolds asks us to state that young men away from home may register with proper authorities where they may happen to be, provided they do so soon enough to have their cards reach their home county not later than June 5th.

MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD AT METHODIST CHURCH SUNDAY

Sunday morning at the Methodist church special services were held for the members of the G. A. R. A goodly number of people came out to listen to the program and the sermon by the Rev. D. W. MacGregor in honor of members of the G. A. R.

and their comrades who sleep in Greenwood cemetery. The program was especially good, the sermon held some beautiful truths, some splendid tributes to the soldiers of yesterday and of today. The whole service was such that it sent the listeners home with a reverence and a resolution to keep the memory of the civil war veterans green.

As the old soldiers, nine in number, walked in, their steps faltering and slow, tears blinded the eyes of the writer and we saw, in their places,

the straight, manly, blue-coated soldiers of the yesterday. We heard again the war stories told by the father we loved, and we were glad to

Heat ALL Your House THROUGH ONE REGISTER

Yes, it's just as possible in your home as it has been in fifty thousand others. You, too, may have every room comfortable with balmy healthful heat, reaching every corner by Nature's method of circulation—and all through only one register! It isn't necessary to clutter up your house with pipes, overheat your cellar and incur big bills—not when you can get the

PATENTED PIPELESS CALORIC FURNACE

The Original Patented Pipeless Furnace

It can be set up in a day, without inconvenience to you, and will make your home so comfortable in the severest winter weather you will be well repaid.

Your house will be uniformly warm; your cellar will be just right for the storage of fruits and vegetables. Your fuel bill will be less than with stoves that heat only a part of your house.

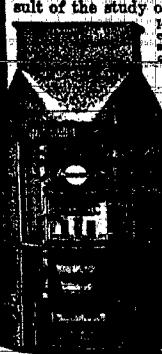

HERE ARE THE REASONS

The Caloric is the Original Patented Pipeless Furnace—the result of the study of competent engineers to solve the heating problem in the most satisfactory way. That they have succeeded is proved by the fact that the number of Calorics sold on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction is three times greater than any other pipeless furnace.

The cause of this satisfaction lies in the patented and exclusive principle of the Caloric from all others. It is not a pipe furnace provided with an extra casing, but a complete revolution in furnace building designed exclusively for pipeless heating.

Come In And See Us

You will know what the principles are, and you will then see how the Caloric is superior to all others, and why imitations cannot accomplish the same results. Then you will be in no danger of buying an inferior article, which will be disappointment in later months. Get a copy of the book "Progress," which tells the facts about pipeless heating. If you can't come in, write for it.

Gilbert French of Winside was a Wayne visitor Saturday, and by asking concerning the report that Mr. French is to enter the Y. M. C. He knows not yet whether he will pass the requirements, and be accepted. It is a splendid work for humanity, and Wayne county people will be proud of whatever success he may attain in this great work.

Miss Margaret Forbes is home for the summer, coming from Columbia, Missouri, where she has been a student the past year, and has earned the right to write "A. B." following her name. She has been making a special study of journalism, in which the Missouri school is a pioneer, easily holding the leading place in that line of educational work. Miss Forbes is home a week before the close of the school for the year, that she might visit a day or two with her brother Richard, who left Tuesday with the other Wayne county men who were called by the last draft. Will Forbes from Waterloo, Iowa, was here Saturday and Sunday.

Harry Cooper of Chamberlain was here during commencement week, for he was at one time a student here, and he had a sister, Miss Glennie V. Cooper in the class this year. Mr. Cooper, however, wears the uniform of his good Uncle Sam, and has seen eleven months training service for the hospital corps, with headquarters at Fort Leavenworth, and was given a 3-day furlough before he with others may be asked to pack for a trip. This was not time enough to go to his home without meeting himself on the way back, or so near that stunt as to leave him no time with home folks. So he asked mother to meet him at Wayne with the sister, and thus they had a sort of family reunion before his departure. With his mother, Mrs. Wm. Cooper, came his aunt, Mrs. Chas. Barnum and Miss Elizabeth Hoffman. They were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hess while in the city. The young man and others left Friday.

reports for the first year of America's participation in the war, 300,000 children under five years of age died. One half of this number, it is asserted, could have been saved with proper care. Besides this, many children who have escaped death are suffering ills which may result in weak, defective, or degenerate manhood. If America needed further evidence of the need of concentrated effort for the preservation of child life and health, it might be found in the recent draft. Government reports show that one third of the drafted men were rejected as physically unfit, most of these from causes dating back to infancy when such defects might have been remedied.

Plans for eliminating this criminally large waste in infant life, and for bettering the mental and physical life of all American children include five general lines of work:

1. The complete registration of births.
2. Parental instruction for every mother and adequate care by doctor and nurse at confinement, and afterward.
3. Weighing and measuring of all children under six years of age.
4. A campaign of publicity and education in child hygiene.
5. Children's conferences where well babies can be taken periodically to be examined and weighed, and clinics where sick children may be given medical attention.
6. Public health nurses throughout the state.
7. The guarding of milk supply.

As the first step in the prosecution of these plans, what is known as Baby Week will be observed. It is recommended that during this week every baby in the United States be weighed and measured. Formerly, baby tests were held with the purpose of discovering the most perfect baby; this one will attempt to reveal to parents any defects that may exist in the little ones that they may be given immediate attention.

It may be asked, why should baby week be observed here where healthful conditions prevail and good health abounds? Is this not intended rather to benefit children in the crowded cities than in such communities as this? Strange to say, for Nebraska the present death rate for children less than one year of age is three to five in favor of the cities. It is there that nurses and doctors are more readily secured, that the water supply is kept pure, that sanitation is enforced, milk is tested for disease bacilli, that knowledge of the best methods of caring for health of both mother and child is most thoroughly disseminated.

Let every mother in Wayne county set aside self-satisfaction or prejudices and see to it that her child is weighed and measured, and if possible further examined during baby week. Let no child be neglected in these respects lest some unsuspected ailment or defect remain undiscovered. The government has asked it. Let no one fail to respond.

WAYNE GIRL HELPS RED CROSS
Miss Margaret Dennis, a Wayne girl, who has taught the past school year near Crofton, over in Knox county, gave a program and box social the last day of school which netted the Red Cross $234. The entertainment was so thoroughly enjoyed that the teacher was urged to give it again last Saturday evening. This time the receipts were good. Mrs. J. E. Dennis, Miss Margaret's mother of this place, went to Crofton to be present at the entertainment. Both ladies returned to Wayne Monday.

CHILD WELFARE

War time problems are not all found in the army and navy, in the great fields of industry, or any other phase of adult life. One of the most vital problems of war time has been found, by the nations now at war, to be the child welfare problem.

With scarcely an exception infant mortality increased during the first year of the war at so alarming a rate as to center public attention upon a threatened national disaster second in enormity only to loss of life in battle. Immediately steps were taken to avert such calamity, and in England, for example, infant mortality was reduced the second year of the war to the lowest point in history.

From the first, interest in child welfare has steadily increased. The changes wrought in home life in warring countries where so many mothers have been forced into industrial life, have forced the public to assume the responsibility for the care of infant population as never before. The exemptions to child labor laws permitted in England and France early in the war, to permit child labor in war industries, have been abolished, and these nations are now looking to the fullest possible preservation of child life and health. Not only that, they are arranging for the care of orphans and providing for more complete education and physical training; and in England, at least, government funds are allowed for play centers.

The United States, profiting by the experience of the European nations, has, through the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor and the Woman's Committee of the National Council of Defense, planned for "Baby Year" to extend from April 6, 1918 to April 6, 1919.

AFTER THE LOAFERS

Canada is after the loafers and some strange revelations have been made. The mounted police as well as the police of the cities were put to work. They reported that they found as many loafers in the country as the police in the cities had reported. They say a large number of families having sons well up in years and some of them subject to the selective draft have moved out into the country, rented houses or built them, and these houses have loafers who do no work at all, some not even raising a garden. They have all been reported to the proper authorities.

There is no such condition in Nebraska. There are some loafers in the towns, but no one has moved into the country and made a residence there to escape the draft or work. If they did the Nebraska farmers would make it pretty hot for them. All the people in the country districts are at work, including some of the preachers who work three or four days in the week on the farms. One preacher who was in Omaha the other day said: "I take a day or two each week to conjure up something to say to the people to encourage them on Sunday and work on the farms the rest of the time." All the loafers in Nebraska are in the towns and cities and measures are being taken to get after them.

The above is from the World-Herald, and it may be well for us to consider it carefully for the edict is going forth here that all men of military age must either grab a hoe or a gun and get busy in some productive occupation. This will give people this side of the line an idea of where to look for some of the slackers.

FEED POTATOES TO CHICKENS
The poultry section of the extension service of the University of Nebraska advises feeding of potato surplus to chickens. Potato culms and peavings should be cooked and fed. Even the little chicks like and thrive on a little cooked potato. Old chickens do especially well on potatoes. If you find you are going to have more potatoes than you can use, or potatoes that are of not good quality for human consumption, cook them up in big batches and feed a little along every day to the chickens.

FOUR LITTLE CHILDREN RUN OVER—ALMOST

Saturday morning the writer saw four little children racing across one of the crossings on Main street, coming to view from behind an automobile illegally parked but a few feet in front of an approaching vehicle. They were hidden from the driver until right before the vehicle, and the driver only avoided trouble by use of emergency measures.

Two or three weeks ago, the Democrat called attention to the fact that the ordinance provides that no automobiles shall be parked within 20 feet of a crossing, and we think measures will be taken now to see that this part of the ordinance and some others are to be enforced. Some of these days people will be asked to pay for not going to street intersections to turn round, for not parking their cars according to ordinance and some few other violations which are being made with a regularity and persistence that seems to invite prosecution. Certainly the lives of the people who walk, and especially of the children should be protected.

The political field is yet mighty bare of candidates. This county will need a representative, and this senatorial district a senator. Who shall they be, and who name them?

Now the order goes forth to stop profiteering in flour substitutes. It is right to so order. Because we are asked to refrain from eating wheat flour, and gladly do so, does not or should not give any license to rob us on the substitutes we must have.

Congressmen are in a mighty hurry, or were in a hurry to get home and look after their fences—and besides they appeared afraid to tackle the tax measure at this session. We would think that the M. C. who stays at Washington and saws wood, even though the weather be hot, will stand better with home folks than he who would neglect his duty to come home and electioneer. Besides, we do not believe in profiteers grubbing and keeping until millions untaxed. Sock on the tax.

O. C. Lewis, who is the first applicant to file this year for a place on the primary ballot, placed his hat in the ring Tuesday as a candidate for sheriff. Mr. Lewis has been a resident of Wayne county for more than thirty-one years, and no one need fail to support him for lack of chance to become acquainted with him and know his standing on public questions, for he has not hidden his views. For twenty-six years he has been one of the sturdy farmers of the county, then he retired from active farm work, almost in the prime of life and moved to Wayne five years ago. He is now acceptably filling the office of assessor for the city of Wayne, a position to which he was elected nearly two years ago. That he will have some opposition for the nomination may be considered as a foregone conclusion for in other years there have been from six to eleven, and we know that the bee is buzzing in other bonnets.

NEW DELIVERY INSTALLED
Messrs. Hurstad & Son, who a month ago took over the Wendt interests in the Wendt & Co. general merchandise business, are fast coming to the front, or rather keeping pace with the procession. They continue to sell the old dependable lines so long handled by this store, buy right and sell right. They are preparing to start their own delivery Saturday, and will thus be enabled to give very much more satisfactory service than when they must depend upon some other than their own equipment for the service.

They sell for cash or extend a limited time credit, but the cash purchaser has a 5 percent discount on his purchases, and it helps these days. They want business and promise quality and service. 1.

O. C. LEWIS FOR SHERIFF
I have filed for the republican nomination for the office of Sheriff of Wayne county, and solicit the votes of all members of that party who believe me worthy and qualified to successfully fill the duties of that office. Trusting to the judgment of the voters I have lived with for more than 30 years, I ask that you attend the primary election and express your preference. Respectfully yours, O. C. LEWIS, Wayne, Nebr. Adv.

ATTENTION.
Ordinances of Wayne prohibit fast or unsafe driving of automobiles. Muffler cut-out and unnecessary noise strictly prohibited. Cars must not be parked closer than 15 feet to any crossing. All turns must be at right side of intersections. All persons will kindly help to protect the public and avoid accidents by complying with the above. Persons violating the ordinances of law will be arrested and prosecuted.

TUESDAY STOCK SHIPMENTS
Tuesday evening J. M. Roberts went to Sioux City with three cars of fat cattle from his place north of Wayne. James Greer sent two cars of cattle to the same port and John Greer a car of hogs. Alex Scott started two cars of cattle to Omaha.

Much stock is moving from other parts, and all east bound trains carry many cars of hogs or cattle. But a car of horses is seldom seen, while cars of sheep are very seldom going.

The Young Ladies Bible Circle will have a surprise meeting Friday evening of this week at 8:00 o'clock.

REPUBLICANS IN NEW ROLE
(From The Public.)

The Senate's passage of the Sedition Bill, by almost a straight party vote, is highly significant. The Republican Party is morally bankrupt as a party. It has no issue except reaction and resistance to economic progress. President Wilson, by contrast, has exposed its utter failure to measure up to the needs of the times, and its desertion by intelligent and progressive voters, apparent enough in 1916, has proceeded at a vastly accelerated rate during the past year. Yet this water-logged craft, its rudder manned by blind men, still carries with it a considerable number of honest and progressive politicians who are not yet quite ready to admit that they cannot some day capture control of the helm and set the pumps working to clear its hold of water. And however difficult it may be to forgive them their associations, it is easy to appreciate their plight as professional politicians brought up in an era when partisan loyalty was a virtue as imperative as patriotism. The course of such Republicans as Borah and Johnson since the war began has on the whole increased their standing as high-minded democrats. They have criticized only when criticism was needed, and on major issues they have stood by the President. Now the party vote on the Sedition Bill shows that such hopeless reactionaries as Sherman and Lodge are ready to stand with them on any issue that can be capitalized for the

Only About Half the Steer is Beef

When Swift & Company buys a steer weighing 1200 pounds, only about 672 pounds goes to market as beef; the other 528 pounds consists of hide, fats, other by-products, and waste.

When the packer pays 15 cents a pound for a steer, he sells the meat to the retailer for about 24 cents. But the packer gets only about 6 cents a pound for the other 528 pounds.

This means that the packer gets about 16 cents a pound for all the products from a steer for which he pays 15 cents.

The difference of 1 cent per pound covers the cost of dressing, preparation of by-products, freight on beef to all parts of the United States, operation of distributing houses, and leaves a net profit of only about $\frac{1}{4}$ of a cent per pound on all dressed beef sold.

Large volume of business and utilization of parts that were formerly wasted, make this achievement possible.

Swift & Company, U.S.A.

party, which, in the last analysis, means for toryism. Toryism cannot win in this country unless its offensive operations are conducted behind a smoke screen of liberalism. The Republicans must win back the votes of states like California and Kansas and North Dakota, which is to say that they must win back the liberal West. And if they can exploit, and capitalize the common man's impatience with patrocracy, if they can manage to identify their political opponents in the minds of the people with a regime under which a swarm of prosecutors and professional detectives and petty bullying bureaucrats are turned loose to "make war on the American people," as Senator Johnson phrased it, then perhaps they can succeed.

It is for progressive Democrats to see that no such opportunity is offered them. It would be an absurd and impossible situation if any considerable number of American liberals came to look to the Party of Lodge and Penrose and Root for protection of their right to a free discussion of social and economic problems, for instance—a discussion of problems in the solving of which they look to Woodrow Wilson as their foremost leader and their most powerful ally.

President Wilson's letter to Senator Overman condemning the Chamberlain Court Martial Bill is our assurance that no such situation will be permitted to develop. Yet the history of that bill discloses the difficulties to be met in infusing the spirit of the President (which is the spirit of the American people) through the vast governmental organization now existing. An Assistant Attorney-General had drawn the bill, not only without the knowledge and approval of the President, but without that of his immediate superior, the Attorney-General. It was handed to the Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee with the prestige of an Administration measure, and it might have got far along toward passage except for the unbelievable folly of the witnesses who appeared to urge it for the action of Mr. Overman in calling it to the President's attention. Of somewhat similar character was the letter of Mr. John Lord O'Brian, special assistant to the Attorney-General, in which he pleaded for the elimination of a clause inserted by the Senate in the Sedition Bill providing "that nothing in this act shall be construed as limiting the liberty or impairing the right of the individual to publish or speak what is true, with good motives, and for justifiable ends." The clause was eliminated from the bill as it finally passed the Senate, and at the time of writing the prospect is that the same bill will pass the House.

Here, as in the other clause to which Republicans objected, empowering the Postmaster-General to hold up any mail upon satisfactory evidence that the addressee had violated the Espionage Act, it is all a question of proper administration. And the same is true as to the third clause to which exception was taken, that which makes it unlawful to bring the form of government into contempt, scorn, contumely or disrepute. In undemocratic and unintelligent hands these powers could become all that Senator Johnson said of them:

"Measures such as this do not unite a people. They breed discontent; they cause suspicion to stalk all through the land; they make one man to spy upon another; they take a great, virile, brave people and make that people timid and fearful. No matter how you may repress and suppress by legislation, with measures such as this, deep down in the hearts of all shall be found distrust of neighbors insidious suspicion wandering over the land, and finally the very discontent that every one of us would avoid * * * A brave man does not have to protest his loyalty. This bill puts a premium upon hypocrisy, it makes the man with the greatest vocal vociferation of his own virtues and his own patriotism the greatest man among us."

The war has stirred all men, and brought to the surface the qualities lying latent in them. As to a small but noisy minority, these qualities have been intolerance, meanness, the passion to bully minorities. President Wilson has acted more than once to exorcise these evil things, and to suppress them in places reached by his authority. They are not the only factors. There is the very sincere adherence of many of the more stupid among our reactionaries to the established order and the belief that it is their patriotic duty to stamp out all discussion that calls existing institutions into question. Were the President a private citizen, or were many of his recent utterances called to their attention under a nom de plume, it is questionable whether these men would not regard the author with grave suspicion as a spreader of dangerous propaganda.

The passage of the Overman Act empowers the President to make such changes as he deems expedient and advisable in the administrative machinery. We have full confidence that if the occasion develops he will take steps to deprive the Republicans of any ammunition that might accrue to them in the future as a result of the administration of the laws against propaganda. It is certainly quite as important that nothing shall happen to weaken the morale of American liberalism by confusing its less thoughtful or more casual adherents, as it is that there shall be efficiency in the Ordnance Bureau or in aircraft production. All that is required is that the zealous detective-prosecutor mind be supplemented and checked up in certain branches of the Government by the mind that understands what all this is about, the mind that knows in what direction the world is moving, and that has a sympathetic comprehension of the hopes and aspirations which the common man shares with President Wilson.

WAKEFIELD OVER THE TOP
Wakefield Republican: Wakefield and the surrounding territory shows every indication of exceeding her quota in the Red Cross drive this week according to the returns already coming in. Wakefield and its territory has a quota of around $4,000. Over $2200 were subscribed in town last Friday and Saturday, and the surrounding country will no doubt do as well, if not better. A car load of hogs have been shipped, but the amount received has not been learned. Drive is to end on May 27, and every effort is being made to put this end of the county "over" again, as usual.

LOYAL YET

He ran a weekly paper in the patriotic west.

It wasn't much to blow about, but he did his level best.

To satisfy his readers of the things that they should do.

To offset the Teuton's efforts 'gainst the Red and White and Blue.

He printed for the Red Cros, the Y. M. C. A. and such;

Found space for editorials touching on the heartless Dutch;

Gave freely of his stock in trade—all open and in view;

But he jeopardized his print shop for the Red and White and Blue.

"Pretty tough," the sheriff murmured as he locked the sanctum door; "But you ain't been usin' judgment like you allus did afore.

Cuz I've heard ye on the sidewakls telling men they'd surely rue

The day they wouldn't donate to the Red and White and Blue."

"Of course," the sheriff volunteered to sort of soothe his pangs,

"Ye had never to pay out much and ye've got a lot of bangs,

For a bunch of silly matter you may have printed for a few,

And turned down, some bully readin' for the Red and White and Blue.

I'm darn sorry for that printer for he has his mind firm set

To boost the third loan venture the hardest he had yet;

But, perhaps, a thankless public may awake to visions new,

When they miss his weekly boosting for the Red and White and Blue."

It may be that few men reason how much the printer pays,

Long beside the banks and merchants when U. S. wants to raise

A million or a billion to pay the nation's due,

But he doubles up their givings for the Red and White and Blue.

I wonder if when Gabriel calls aloud on judgment day,

"Come ye hence all saints and sinners for this day you're due to pay."

He'll give credit to the printer or compel the man to sue

For the most valued service rendered for the Red and White and Blue.

If he doesn't profit I've a notion to tac my chance with him,

If he doesn't get by easy then my chance is mighty slim;

And I'm sure the very devil must appreciate him too,

For the work he did so freely for the Red and White and Blue.

GOD HOLDS HIGHER TRUMP CARD

Below we give a claim made in court by the king of Prussia, and if it all be true, as claimed, then it must have been an act of concession to admit the Lord even as a junior partner with the ruler. The State Journal says:

"The law students occasionally run across the case brought in the courts of Missouri some years ago by the king of Prussia, who was seeking to collect a judgment from the estate of one Kuepper. It may be found on page 550, 'Twenty-second Missouri reports. The plaintiff makes a sworn statement to this effect: 'The plaintiff states that he is absolute monarch of the kingdom of Prussia, and as king thereof is the sole government of that country; that he is unrestrained by any constitution or law, form, is the only law of that country, and is the only legal power there known to exist as law. Hundreds of thousands of Germans left their native land to escape this theory of government, which the war is now undertaking to destroy. It is only necessary to give Americans of German birth and descent full knowledge of this fact to make them more anxious to win the war than the average American, who has never encountered such a medieval government, and hardly realizes that such a thing can exist in the twentieth century."

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

Marie Weeks in Norfolk Press: Political friendship is a funny thing. Over at Wayne, there is a man whose record in the senate tells of years of successful effort in behalf of the state normal school at that place. Phil Kohl by his efforts has built that state school into one of the most successful educational institutions in the state. Last week we heard a Wayne man decrying the senator, berating Mr. Kohl's efforts in the senate and urging Kohl's picture or name or something in the way of a memorial to the man be painted out of its place in the normal auditorium. Why? Because Kohl played with the wet side in the senate. Everybody knows the shabby little figures went joyously down the street.

Everybody knew all the time just what part he had to take in the legislative game if he were to succeed in getting for the Wayne school the things that Wayne people demanded for that school. Why is the sudden change? Why is Kohl now that he has gotten the things for Wayne less worthy of a place of honor in that school than he was when he was getting them? The wots had their day. It must be admitted that they had to be recognized in the political game.

If Phil Kohl recognized them and by that recognition benefited Wayne college he surely did it with the full knowledge of all intelligent Wayne citizens. It was the only way he could successfully achieve what he did achieve. Now is no time for the "holier-than-thou" airs assumed by men who are benefitting by Kohl's keen political work.

SPRAYING POTATOES

Potatoes should be sprayed against the potato bug and early blight, according to emergency bulletin No. 10, of the extension service, University farm, Lincoln. While the potato bug is found mostly in the eastern part of the state, and in the western part south of the Platte river, early blight is found all over the state. Early blight may be controlled by Bordeaux mixture. Arsenical poisons are found best to control bugs. The bulletin gives full directions for spraying against insects and diseases of potatoes.

PROFESSOR PUGSLEY RESIGNS

Prof. C. W. Pugsley, director of the extension service of the college of agriculture of the University of Nebraska, has resigned to enter private business. Professor Pugsley had been director of this service for seven years and his services were highly valued by the university. The Board of Regents expressed regret at being unable to meet the flattering offer Professor Pugsley received from private sources. C. E. Gunnels, state county agent leader, was appointed by the regents to succeed Professor Pugsley.

HEAD LICE ON YOUNG CHICKENS

Head lice on young chickens can be destroyed by the application of equal parts of lard and sweet oil or vaseline. There are other methods sometimes recommended for controlling this evil, but this simple remedy has been found generally sufficient to do the work and do it without injury to the chicks.

FAIRY GODMOTHER

By MILDRED WHITE.

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

Mollie raised her face from the gayly colored book to look at the child. Eagerly the young girl eyes regarded her.

"You may take this home and keep it, dear," said Mollie, "a voyage into the pleasant unrealities will not hurt you. When I was a little girl I loved the story of the fairy godmother who brings to the poor maiden all that her heart could desire." She smiled as the shabby little figures went joyously down the street.

"It takes so little to make them happy," murmured Mollie. Whimsically her thoughts went back to the fairy godmother. What convenient old creatures they were, happening along at the opportune moment, returning some passing kindness by changing a hut into a castle, or bringing a fairy prince to claim his own. In real life all was so different. Here she was, after years of faithful attendance upon Aunt Drusilla, left alone in the small cottage, it being her own only upon condition that she remain as tenant.

"Oh! for a fairy godmother," sighed Mollie to the yellow cat, then she went to open the door. A bent old figure stood knocking, and Mollie smiled at her own fanciful thought as the wrinkled face peered into her own.

"Does Miss Drusilla Wentworth live here?" quavered a sweet old voice.

"No," Mollie answered hesitatingly.

In quick comprehension the woman nodded.

"Gone, I suppose," she said, "like all the rest."

"Yes," murmured Mollie.

"She was a friend of mine years ago," the woman explained; "we went to school together."

"Won't you come in?" urged the girl. The visitor sighed as she sat before the sitting room fire. "It has been a tiresome journey," she said; "I ought not to have come alone. But—they were all so against my coming. Who are you, my dear?" she asked abruptly, and Mollie told her.

"Well, if you are Drusilla's niece," the soft voice went on, "you must have heard of Martha Manton?"

"I heard," Mollie said, "that she went away long years ago, to be married." The old lady laughed softly. "And now," she said, "she wants to come back." Again the keen eyes searched the girl's face. "I think I will tell you about it.

"My son has to go to war. He's my baby, if he is thirty years old—and it's very hard. Tom thought that I would be comfortable during his absence at my married son's home, but—" The old lady threw out her wrinkled hands and smiled. "I didn't seem to fit in. At least, I could not fit, in a bedroom where the steam heat does not work. And it's lonely spending evenings with your thoughts while all the others are at dances or theaters, so I told them I was going back to my home town to stay with an old friend; and the only friend I could think of was Drusilla."

The girl arose briskly. "Well, take off your cloak," she said, "and give your bag to me. Perhaps you will stay, say, for a week with Drusilla's niece. I am lonely, too, and if we find we like each other—"

"Oh!" cried the visitor relievedly; "may I really stay for awhile, could you bear with an old body like me? You could call up my son in the city and find out all about me, dearie."

Impulsively Mollie bent and clasped the trembling hands. "Why," she laughed, "I don't need to find out the first thing about you; you're going to be my fairy godmother!"

It was pleasant coming in of an evening to find the lamp burning and the silvery head-bent-bustly-over-Mollie's own sewing. Or to sing at the piano to a joyously appreciative listener. Pleasant, too, for the young and old faces to smile at each other across the white-spread table.

"Why, this is home—at last," breathed the girl.

"This is my home," said the older woman.

"And you will stay?" begged Mollie, when the first week was up.

The answer was interrupted by a summons to the front door. Past Mollie, into the parlor strode a man's soldier-clad figure.

"Mother!" burst out the man; "whatever did you mean by running away? John wired to camp, and I had leave of absence to come back. Why, mother!"

"Dearie," she entreated, "don't make me go to John's home again; here I am loved and wanted."

"I want her very much," agreed Mollie. And so, miraculously, during the soldier's three days of absence, Mollie had two guests.

"We had to dismiss our city servants and close up our big place," the man told her; "too much of a care for mother."

Mollie stared. "You must come and stay with us some time—after the war is over," he went on. "You don't know what a load you have lifted from my heart. Leaving her happy makes it so much easier, and—" steadily his eyes looked into hers. "I want you to write to me often, will you? That will help, too—the thought of coming back—to you both."

With her arm about the little old mother, the girl watched him go striding down the road. "It is cold, dear," said Mollie; "you had better go inside." And as the man turned for one last long look, Mollie waved.

"Oh, fairy godmother," she whispered, "you have brought to me my prince."

GOODRICH TESTED TIRES

HERE's a lot of geography in the wear of tires. Some wear well in one region, and wear out in another. Climate, peculiar roads and road conditions are the cause of it. Therefore, good service in a single region is not enough proof of tires that must undergo nationwide use. Least of all could it measure tires up to the TESTED standard, Goodrich demands of tires.

With a command to find out what Goodrich Tires do on the roads of every section of our country, and what the roads of every section do to Goodrich Tires, Goodrich sent its famous Six Fleets of over forty cars, light and heavy, the length and breath of our nation to an aggregate mileage of 1,044,686 linear miles, and 4,178,744 tire miles.

MCCORMICK Farm Implements!

McCormick machinery is the best machinery to buy because in every way it is better, it is built of the finest materials, it will stand all kinds of service and in the long run is the cheapest you can buy today. These are the days when we learn to economize and to buy the BEST is the only way to properly economize. Through the years McCormick implements have stood the test, and today's improvements put them in a class all by themselves. Call and inspect our line today.

The McCormick No. 6

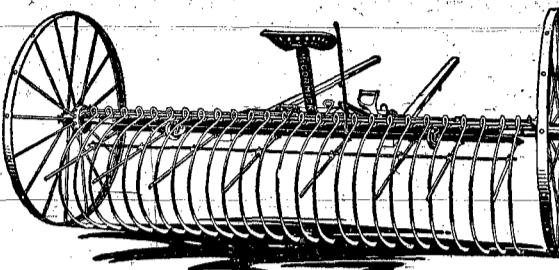

A New Mower

McCORMICK Harvesting Machines are never changed unless decided improvement can be made either in the machine itself or in the work that it does. For the past sixteen years the "McCormick New 4" mower has given satisfaction to farmers in practically every country where hay is harvested. This year the "McCormick No. 6" replaces the "McCormick New 4." It embodies features new to the trade but really old in the point of use. The "McCormick No. 6" mower has been working under the most adverse conditions for over six years. It has been tried thoroughly by expert mechanics and by farmers to whom it was entirely new—and all pronounce it good. The "McCormick No. 6" is not a New mower made over.

It is a new mower with all the good features of the "New 4" embodied and with many improvements that you will like and should have on your machine.

SOME OF THE NEW THINGS—Effective Raising Levers; Flexible Gag Arrangement; New Cutter Bar, which gives a clean, sheer cut the full length of the mower bar; Removable Wearin Plates; The Pitman has Exclusive Features; External Main Gear; Rigid Frame; Special Features on Coupling Bar; Four Prong Clutch; Counter-shaft Easily Adjusted; Easy to Replace Parts; Spring Tracker Board; Pole is Strengthened; Easy on Horses and Operator.

A McCormick Self Dump Rake

The McCormick Self-Dump Rake will meet your requirements under all conditions. It has gained a reputation in every locality for durability and ease of operation. It dumps quickly, and the teeth return to the ground close to the windrow. As the rake fills, the cleaner rods float above and retard the hay so that it does not roll into a "ropy" form.

IT IS EASY TO DUMP. The rake leaves a neat appearing field due to the ease with which the teeth can be kept in position. By pressure on the foot lever the teeth can be locked down for bunching hay from windrows. It has perfect adjustments for different kinds of hay.

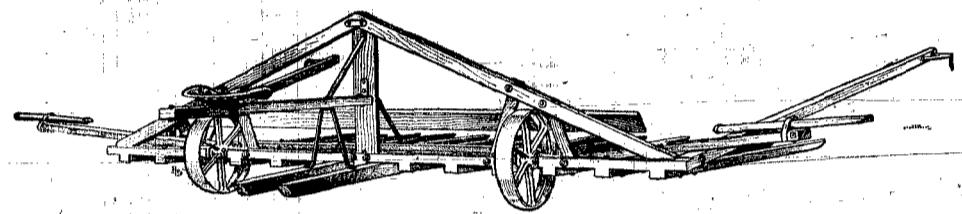

WHEELS INTERCHANGE—The wheels interchange so that when one side of the ratchet is worn the wheels can be reversed, giving practically the wear of two rake wheels in one. The wheels have staggered spokes and heavy steel tires. They are large and keep the rake running smoothly even on rough ground.

MAIN FRAME AND RAKE HEAD CONNECTED—The good work and lasting qualities of a hay rake depend to a great extent upon the material that is put into the Main Frame. The Main Frame of the McCormick Rake is made of angle steel, and being strongly braced, is resists twisting. The rake head is also made of angle steel strongly trussed to prevent sagging. The frame and rake head are connected by heavy hinges.

DURABLE RAKE TEETH—McCormick rake teeth are made of high grade, oil-tempered steel. They have a curve which brings them well under the hay where they carry it, rather than drag it along. These teeth undergo a severe test before leaving the factory. When a tooth becomes broken or worn it can be replaced by taking off ONLY ONE SECTION.

REVERSIBLE DUMP RODS—The rods are in two parts and can be taken out and turned. The ends are tempered, furnishing added durability.

McCormick Sweep Rakes

No Machine equals McCormick Sweep Rakes and Stackers for Economy when stacking hay in the field. No other method equals this in saving of time and labor. McCormick Sweep Rakes are made in nine styles, so that every field condition can be met successfully. They will gather hay from either swath or windrow.

WITH THE WAYNE CHURCHES

Baptist Church

(Rev. Fletcher J. Jordan, Pastor)
The Ladies' Missionary society will meet with Mrs. Henry Kellogg, Friday afternoon at 3:00 p.m. for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. A full attendance is greatly desired.

Next Sunday morning will be our Communion service. At this service those members who have come into the church recently will be given the right hand of fellowship. Let each person be present please. The pastor will give a brief address preceding the Lord's Supper. Regular preaching service in the evening at 8:00 p.m.

Sunday school at the usual hour following the preaching service. In the B. Y. P. U. last Sunday evening a very helpful discussion took place on the subject of how we could strengthen our local Sunday school. Let us try to make these ideas tangible.

The B. Y. P. U. meets Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. "Service in Church and Community" is the subject for consideration. Robert Kennedy is the leader. All people are welcome, but especially those who have recently made a decision for Christ. Get into the work and you will surely enjoy your Christian life.

Choir practice Thursday evening at 8 p.m. under the leadership of Professor Davies. "Come and sing gladly unto the Lord for in so doing you can advance His Kingdom."

The Evangelistic campaign closed Monday evening. While there have not been as many conversions as we looked for, yet we are grateful to God for sending these men into our midst who were not afraid to declare the whole council of God. Many have been saved, some have consecrated themselves more completely to their Lord, and still others have dedicated their lives to the local work. As these gentlemen depart our midst we wish them Godspeed and pray for them a larger usefulness in the Master's Kingdom.

The pastor and people wish to express to the pastors of the different churches their appreciation for their kind spirit of Christian helpfulness, and hearty cooperation; also to the people who were so faithful in their attendance upon each and all services. We again thank you for your generous gifts on Sunday evening. This note is meant to convey our feelings of gratitude to anyone who has helped to make this campaign fruitful.

Presbyterian Church
(Rev. S. Xenophon Cross, Pastor)

Love to God is proved by love to our fellow man. Love to our neighbor is evidenced by service. "A Thousand Years" will be the subject of the sermon at this church next Sunday morning. Our greatest problem will be considered.

Real Christians are light and leave and salt of the earth. Our first service to church and community is just to be real Christians.

The subject for next Sunday evening will be: "President Wilson and the Great War." There will be special music prepared for the occasion.

Love of neighbor interprets the law of sacrifice. Love is always superior to ceremonial. Today love is spelled in service. Seek to serve.

The T. P. S. C. E. has for its theme next Sunday evening, "Service in Church and Community." The service of such societies is sacred.

The hopes and prayers of the church attend the bands of noble men that from time to time leave for the training camps, at the call of country.

Attend the Sunday school and work in it, if you want to do a very real and needed community service. There is a class for you in ours.

Remember the picnics soon to be given under the auspices of the Aid society. This function will be on the church lawn. Watch for the date.

The mid week meeting is interesting and helpful in proportion to interest and effort brought to it by those who attend. Wednesday evenings.

The churches of Wayne should unite in an open vacation school for the children of the town and the country round about. Help the children.

Methodist Episcopal Church

A Successful Experiment

By GORTON CARRUTH

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure News Syndicate.)

"He put his paper aside abruptly, rose and walked down the leaf-strewn path to the other bench, where the girl was sitting."

"Would you like to try an experiment?" he asked quietly, standing with hat in hand before her.

She looked at him for a moment unsmiling; her expression neither inviting nor repelling.

"Perhaps," she said, at length.

He sank into the seat beside her. "It is something I have often wanted to try," he said slowly. "Here we are two, perfect strangers in a city of five millions, and never likely to see each other again after we leave this chance meeting place. We have sat here for half an hour, each pretending to read or to watch the squirrels, or the falling leaves, or the misty golden sunshine out there on the field, but each examining and appraising the other when the other wasn't looking."

"Now, this is the experiment: We have each gained a strong first impression of the other. Let us, with absolutely frankness, tell each other what those impressions are. Let us do what friends cannot do—speak without reservations, made for fear of hurting each other's feelings."

She sat without speaking for a moment after he had finished, gazing thoughtfully out at the warm expanse of autumn-tinted park.

"But why?" she asked at last. "I am not sure that Burns was right. Perhaps it is just as well that we can't see ourselves as others see us."

"That," he said, "makes it an experiment. It will be a new experience. I want to know exactly how I look in the eyes of a stranger, however much the knowledge may hurt. Have you ever felt that way?"

"Yes," she said, "I have. Everyone does, I think."

"Well, I'll tell you, if you will do as much for me."

Again she hesitated and sat silently watching a gray squirrel that untroubled by self-consciousness, was busy burying a nut.

"Well," she said finally, "you first."

"The fact that I came over here and proposed this experiment to you at all shows that I thought you a sensible girl," he began slowly.

"Perhaps it won't be," answered the girl quietly.

There was a moment's pause. Then: "I will say only—good-night," he said.

"Good-night," she answered.

He turned and walked along the darkening path. As he reached the bend he broke into a cheerful whistle. The girl, smiling, walked briskly away. She was wondering what she would wear next Sunday afternoon, and he was trying to decide if it would be wise to take a box of candy with him.

HOW PIONEERS MADE CHANGE

Silver Dollars Were Quartered and "Sharp Shins" Were Result—Pete Once Currency.

We of today, with half-dollars, quarter-dollars, dimes, nickels and pennies, often find it difficult to "make change." Still more difficult was it for the early settlers to do so, Martha G. Purcell writes in "Stories of Old Kentucky."

As the Indians used wampum, so the pioneers of Kentucky used the skins of wild animals as their first currency.

While immigrants continued to come to this region, Spanish silver dollars came gradually into circulation. Still there was no small change.

As "necessity is the mother of invention," our forefathers actually made change by cutting the dollar into four equal parts, each worth 25 cents. These were again divided, each part worth 12½ cents, called bits. People sometimes became careless in the work of making change, and often cut the dollar into five "quarters" or into ten "eighths."

On account of the wedge shape of these pieces of cut money, they were called "sharp shins."

If change was needed for a smaller sum than 12½ cents, merchants gave pins, needles, writing paper and such things.

This cut silver gradually found its way back to the mint for recoinage, usually to the loss of the last owner.

As late as 1806, a business house in Philadelphia received 100 pounds of cut silver, brought on by a Kentucky merchant, which was sent on a dray to the United States mint for recoinage.

The Christening.

"And what is the name of this child?" asked the minister ready for the ceremony.

"Well, you see, parson," said the plain-speaking father, "we haven't just decided yet. Wife wants him named after her uncle and I want him named after mine. Just flip up a cent, parson, and see which it is to be—heads or tails."

"And yet you must have known, except in moments of self-depreciation, that you make a favorable first impression; and I know that I do, concreted as that may sound."

"All right." He straightened up abruptly. "Then we come to the second part of this experiment. We will now tell just how badly each of us is mismatched."

"Well—" she hesitated. "We can try it, but that also is a pretty hard thing to do."

"Listen to me first," he answered, "while I tell you what a poor judge of character at first glance you are. I may have a sense of humor, but it doesn't work very well. I am gloomy, pessimistic and am rapidly developing into a chronic grouch. I am not one of our rising young professional men; I am a clerk in a large mercantile house, and there hasn't been anything startling in my rise yet. I may have common sense, but it doesn't keep me from making a fool of myself about half the time. I may be domestic by nature, but that's all the good it does me. So far from living in a brownstone house in the Eighties am I that I live in a single room down in the Twenties. I come from Michigan and am a comparative stranger in New York. I read a good deal, it is true, and you are right about the sporting page, but I don't believe that I ever had an original idea in my life. And well, I might go on at considerable length, but how do you like the touched portrait, so far?"

The girl was laughing at him again "I think the portrait none the worse," said she, "especially since you are clearly in a mood for self-disparagement. Let me alter your portrait of me a little. I hope that I am sensible. I'm not a flirt, but I'm not so sure that I am not concealed. I like babies and embroidery, but I'm not interested in charitable work and I do read the woman's pages in the newspapers. I don't live in a brown-stone house in the Eighties, either, but have a room up in the One Hundred and Eighties. I earn my living by teaching a class of little Greek, Italian and Russian children down in an East Side school, and I don't move in any other society. I have a bad temper; I'm afraid my pupils suffer a good deal at times. No doubt, I am more studious than most girls but I like the movies and candy and all sorts of frivolous things very much. Now how do you like the touching?"

"Well," he admitted gravely, "I rather think it improves the portrait; it makes it so much more human."

They fell silent again, watching the sunshine on the colored trees.

"You are quite right about one thing," said the girl presently. "I love the trees and the fields and the sky. I was brought up in the country, and I don't believe I could stand it here in these endless miles of brick and stone, if it were not for the park."

"I come here often myself," the man said. "Do you?"

"Every Sunday afternoon. I like this spot best of all; the view is so beautiful."

"So do I."

The sun had left the trees and they could see the lights of the city twinkling like brilliant stars.

"Do you know," said the man, rising, "I think my experiment is not going to be a failure, after all, though it has not resulted as I expected."

"Perhaps it won't be," answered the girl quietly.

There was a moment's pause. Then: "I will say only—good-night," he said.

"Good-night," she answered.

In the course of three months he was graduated with a captain's commission and was assigned to Camp Dix, N. J. Then it was that he heard about the war service bureau of Glenwood college. The bureau was established by a classmate of his who was unable to fight because of physical defects and who had decided to devote his time to the Glenwood men who had entered the service of the nation. Every week he sent a letter to the alumni and students of the college in the campus telling them of the campus meetings, the football games, and all other gossip. He offered to answer all questions about Glenwood men in service, sent sweaters and socks which the ladies of the faculty knitted, and did a hundred and one things to make easier the days of those who had answered the nation's call.

Dud enjoyed the letters immensely; and one time in the late fall, when he happened to be in the college town, he dropped into the office of the war bureau. Jim Handy, the director, greeted him cordially.

"Even the co-eds are doing things," he said enthusiastically.

"Who are they, and what are they doing?" asked Dud.

"Oh, lots of things. There's Doris Baldwin, for instance. She has charge."

"There's who?"

Dud's eyes were popping out of his head and his hand had gripped the wrist of his classmate convulsively. The director of the bureau looked at him wonderingly.

"And you mean to say you know where she is?"

"Of course I do."

Dud rose suddenly from his chair and clapped the astonished Jim Handy resoundingly on the shoulder.

"Jim," he announced jubilantly, "I thought your war service bureau was a pretty good thing before, but now I know it's the greatest thing ever invented. Where is she?"

"I suppose you mean Doris," Jim answered. "If you do, she's one of the ladies in charge of the Hostess house at Camp Dix. Where are you going?"

Jim was already half way to the door.

"There's a train for camp which leaves this town in just five minutes," he said, "and I'm going to be on that train."

He caught it without the least bit of trouble, and when he reached the camp, the first thing he did was to make a bee-line for the Hostess house.

He found Doris there, waiting as if she had been expecting him for a long time, and in just two minutes he made right the misunderstanding of many months.

So it was that the war service bureau served two people in a way which was not mentioned on its letter-heads.

"And why?" wondered an innocent listener, who was noting the full house.

THE WAR SERVICE

By MELVIN STEVENS.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure News Syndicate.)

It was late spring in the mountains, and Dud Embury was gazing questioningly into the clear blue eyes of Doris Baldwin. They didn't know each other very long; only for two weeks, to be exact, but both were graduates of the same college, which makes all the difference in the world.

"It's just as if we had known each other for four years," the man explained. "So I want you to treat me as one of your oldest friends."

That had been two weeks ago, when Dud had arrived at the Smith farmhouse for a brief rest from business worries. It was just a coincidence that Doris happened to be the village school teacher, but the new arrival considered it about the luckiest thing that ever happened to him. For Doris' eyes were like the October sky on a cloudless day, and her lips matched the petals of a crimson rose. She had only been out of college year.

Their two weeks together had flown on enchanted wings, and the time had finally come when it was necessary for Dud to go back to the city again. So he looked into the depths of the girl's eyes and became suddenly brave.

"I love you," he said.

He had always thought that when he spoke those words, the girl to whom they were directed would open her arms and smile at him. But Doris did no such thing. Instead, she dropped her eyes and traced an aimless pattern on the floor of the porch. The man could not see that her heart was wild with the joy of his confession; that her whole being quivered for the touch of him. He only knew that she did not come to him at once; and because his knowledge of girls was limited, he imagined that she did not care.

So, very quietly, he turned away from her and hurried upstairs to his room.

He went away the next day while she was making a mockery of her geography lesson; and for a seemingly endless month he ate his heart out for her and then, when he could not stand it an hour longer, he wrote her a letter, telling again of his love and asking her if she could ever care for him.

But in a week the letter came back with the announcement that Miss Doris Baldwin had gone from Mountaineerville and had left no address.

And then, having found business suddenly uninteresting, he applied for admission into the first series of officers' training camps and was admitted to Plattsburg early in the summer.

In the course of three months he was graduated with a captain's commission and was assigned to Camp Dix, N. J. Then it was that he heard about the war service bureau of Glenwood college. The bureau was established by a classmate of his who was unable to fight because of physical defects and who had decided to devote his time to the Glenwood men who had entered the service of the nation.

MISS MACK OF THE NORMAL STAGES BEAUTIFUL PAGEANT

(Reported by Dr. House.)

What is a pageant? It is the use of music, dancing, the human form in pose and spoken word in the succession of lyric effects to induce a sense of one great theme. It is a living, growing thing, not static, but dynamic. It is not merely a pretty story. It is ethical and inspirational. With this in view, Miss Mack sought for a pageant representative of the mood of the present crisis in world history. Failing to find it, she determined to write one that would embody her own conception. The result was, the remarkable production, "The End of the Rainbow," a Pageant of the Nations, which was performed by the students of the department of physical culture and the pupils of the training school, under the direction of Miss Mack, as the opening portion of the May Day Festivities last Thursday.

World Unity can come only when true national ideals are embodied in a world society. That is the theme of the pageant, as set forth in the following introductory address which Miss Mack delivered to the large audience from the gallery.

The pageant to be presented this morning is, as your program tells you, a pageant of nations. It is a dramatization of the struggle that we are involved in today. We aim to show you, through dancing, music, costuming and the spoken word, the position that each nation holds in that struggle. If you will listen carefully to the prologue as given by Present, who represents the world at this moment, you will understand our theme, The End of the Rainbow, which has always stood for the realization of great dreams. Every nation has its national aspirations and achievements, which it seeks to contribute to the new world state, which we trust is to emerge as a result of this war.

The first country to be presented is that of Belgium because she is the center of the struggle. Her appeal is a call for help from the nations.

We then take the oldest and most conservative of nations—China. She has been sleeping her hypnotic sleep, having been drugged with the opium from the peoples into forgetfulness of the present. She gradually awakes the barriers are torn down and we find her at this moment in the midst of the mighty struggle.

We mention only one of the nations on the Teutonic side, Turkey, because historically she has stood for brutality which is representative of the spirit of the war which the Central Powers are waging against civilization.

Spain is a neutral. Nevertheless, she has in her traditions a feeling for romance which will be a genuine contribution to the life of the new world which is to be.

While the world distrusts the judgment of the Russian people at this time, we know that no other people have so utterly believed in the power of the spirit of Christ. Russia is represented by the great prophet, Tolstoy, and by the child, which according to the Bible, shall lead the world. We have the "Prayer for Peace" followed by the "Dance of Joy."

Italy represents Resurrection. We know that she has already had three lives, and in the pageant this morning, a maiden, who has been poisoned, dies, rises from the dead, and dances the poison of Austrian tyranny from her system.

Those of us who know the history of Ireland, know that she is represented by Cathleen Ni Houlihan, an old woman, aged with grief. She becomes young in her struggle for Irish freedom.

Scandinavian countries are also neutral, but they traditionally have been filled with the spirit of adventure which will be needed in a new world state for the solution of problems more fascinating than have ever been found on the high seas of adventure.

Japan, as we all know, is a nation old in history, but new in civilization—a civilization which she has deliberately imitated from the western peoples. This instinct of imitation is shown thru the craftsmen and "Japanese Dance."

Concerning France, we feel that her battle is the most immediately vital, for to her, loss means utter destruction. We find her, in this pageant, preparing for that opportunity which is hers.

The remaining parts of the British Empire, England and Scotland, represent tolerance and freedom. The spirit of these countries is shown through a "Folk Dance," a "Dance of Grace and Beauty," a "Dance of Freedom and Joy."

More space is devoted to America—Democracy—because we believe that it is through American leadership, represented by "Liberty" enlightening the world, that the great dream of World Union and World Peace is to be realized. The "Dance of the Red Men" marks America's beginning. The "Dance of the Garlands" portrays the grace and beauty of American womanhood. The Junior Red Cross shows America's spirit of service to the cause. Following this, we have the "American Beauty Solo Dance," embodying grace, hope and joyousness of American ideals.

When we were children, we were told that at the end of the rainbow there were to be found untold riches, so through the ages, men have dreamed of the perfect life that is to be when we have World Union, as at the end of the pageant, we give you Peace, spelled out in human form.

It remains to tell how after months of careful preparation this well conceived and well written piece was enacted in the presence of the five or six hundred spectators. The part of Present, enacted by Dorothy Bassire in long, flowing yellow robes, was uttered in clear and effective way and revealed the close connexion of all the parts of the pageant.

The stirring appeal of Belgium was well uttered by Rose Shaffer and the tableau of maidens sounding with the trumpet a call to the nations for help was very effective.

Emily Pepe, as China drugged in hypnotic sleep by Confucius, characterized by Frances Oman, and the spirits of the ancestors dancing through her dreams as shown by the class made an impression of the weird comparable to one of De Quincy's opium dreams.

Albert Watson, as Enver Pasha, boastful of cruelty, and the skulldering Armenian Christians gave a touch of barbarity that was valued because real.

The dance of happiness, representing Spain, "Renowned, romantic land," by Gertrude Tienken and Helen Hertz, shed a glow over the whole audience and commanded a rousing encore.

Could all the American people see the pathetic, mystical, primitive Christian spirit of Russia as revealed by Tolstoy, the peasant dances and the Child that "shall lead them," perhaps they would realize more fully the prophetic righteousness of President Wilson in declaring that we will stand by Russia as by France. Little Jeannette Lewis beautifully represented this innocent trust of the Russian people. In the dances Viola Gibson and Gertrude Tienken performed with great acceptance. Julius Young, as Tolstoy, was a fitting representative of the Russian prophet of blessed memory.

The appeal of Italy was the most imaginative of the day, calling the minds of the hearers back to the "grandeur that was Rome" to the Italy of the Middle Ages, to the nation striving in the day of our grandfathers for unity and now reaching out to the future. The death and resurrection of this country appeared in dance by Nera Miller Lowe in a most realistic way. So vivid were the tortures of agony that the onlooker felt them almost as his own.

One of the most popular bits was the presentation of Ireland in the mythical figure of Cathleen Ni Houlihan by Frances Oman. After her speech and action in company with Anna Wehenkel there followed the Irish Jigs, Dance of the Shamrock and The Irish Washerwoman which brought both the "tear and the smile," compelled by the sorrow and won by the joy of that little under-stood people.

An actual boat, rowed by sturdy Northmen and with Lief Erickson at the prow, represented the Scandinavian countries. Paul Crossland was a most effective Erickson. The rowing scene that followed was wonderfully rhythmic and very beautiful.

Lester Johnson, for Japan, spoke clearly and well and the little Japanese craftsmen (Paul Crossland, Charles Senter, Herbert Fortner and Ralph Hufford) renewed admiration for our little Allies across the Pacific.

Sarah Saunders in fine tones as Joan of Arc spoke the thrilling determination of France to be free, and the victory drill by the class aroused much enthusiasm. It had all the dash and aplomb of a French charge at Verdun. In this scene Edna Thompson posed as the statue of Niobe protecting her young, with Charles Senter as the child. It was a beautiful picture.

The glory of England, "the most sophisticated of all nations," and her far-flung battle line were clearly delineated by Julius Young, and the folk dance by the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth grades of the Training School was one of the most popular performances. This was followed with the "Dance of Grace and Beauty" by eight young women. To view it, seemed like a peep into an old English manor house where knights and ladies were enjoying the hospitality of a fine old nobleman of a century ago.

Scotland's love of Freedom was embodied by Anna Wehenkel followed by the Dance of Freedom and Joy in which the Scottish airs rang out with glorious notes.

America as leader for World Union was elaborately presented. First came the Dance of the Red Men and their pipe of peace by children from the Training School, all of which was excellently done. An amazingly beautiful Dance of the Garlands by the young women of the class, in fact one of the most graceful, entrancing, delicious things this poor reporter ever saw; a Red Cross Drill by the children, one of the best things of the day; the solo dance,

The American Beauty, a thing of entrancing curves and color by Gertrude Tienken, and lastly the "Visible Image of World Peace" in which appeared the flags of all nations with the rainbow shining over all and the glorious strains of the "Star Spangled Banner" ringing through the hall, with the torch of "Liberty Enlightening the World" held in the hands of Thelma Barnly, wrought a thrilling close to an epic-making performance.

It was the general feeling that, for grace and beauty, power and inspiration, no better pageant would be seen here or elsewhere. It was educational, patriotic, thrilling, satisfying. Request was received for a repetition of the pageant in the interest of the Red Cross. Much to the regret of Miss Mack and the class, it was necessary to decline this invitation, as many of the cast were obliged to leave town.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

W. J. Geary is home from a visit and business trip to LeMars, Iowa.

J. H. Foster left for Colorado today to look after his son's land in that state.

Miss Dorothy Huse is home from Stuart, where she taught the last half of the school year.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Herten of Walt-hill were here last week to visit at the home of J. H. Fitch and wife.

Dr. A. D. Lewis was called to Newcastle Wednesday afternoon, and may be detained there a few days, which may be the reason his phone does not answer today.

C. M. Arrasmith, an experienced salesman from Iowa, is behind the counter at the store of Hurstad & Son, adding to their ability to handle the trade which is coming their way day by day.

Mrs. Welch of Baker, Montana, who has been here for a number of weeks visiting her sister, Mrs. C. M. Madden, left this morning for home. Their mother, Mrs. McCrea accompanied her to spend some time at her home in Montana.

Mrs. Curtis Hess was here this week on her way to Niobrara. When she attended Normal she was known as Lillian Smith. She has been teaching at Bellevue, and is offered a place there for next year. Mr. Hess is soon to enter the service for his Uncle Sam.

Dr. J. H. Linson, a First Lieutenant in the army, being engaged in the Public Health department, is here to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reynolds, the lady being his sister. He recently returned from the Philippines, where he was in government employ.

Geo. McEachen sold quite a family of his Poland China swine to an Oklahoma farmer and breeder and had them at the station to ship Wednesday. The shipment consisted of about six sows, two of them having litters of eight or ten pigs with them. The fame of Wayne county as a breeding center for good hogs, cattle and horses is spreading.

Otto Kremke arrived Tuesday from his home near Sidney to visit his parents until after decoration day, and be with other relatives and friends a few days. He tells us that the wheat crop there seems assured.

Hail being the only thing which might cut a field, and hail hits hard, but usually in a narrow trail. He says that he has 260 acres that is now knee-high, and every prospect of good yield.

Rev. J. R. McKenzie of Carroll, we are told, went to Norfolk Tuesday to make his "supreme sacrifice" on the altar of his country. That is, he accompanied his son, Gordon to Norfolk, where the lad applied for admission into some branch of the army of democracy. If the pastor of the Carroll flock still believes as optimistic as he spoke at a meeting at Wayne some months ago, it must indeed be a sacrifice to give the lad. We hope, however, that he has a brighter view of the prospect of the soldier doing his duty to humanity and returning safe to home and friends than he appeared to have had that day.

How Much Do You Know

About Your Body?

As we think of the afflictions that mankind is accidentally subjected to, we look at the smooth exterior of our body and wonder why. But the more we know about ourselves, the easier we can understand cause and effect.

In the first stages of life, the principal thing to be noticed is the brain. The brain, being first, must be the medium through which Nature builds a complete body. The baby is born with its organism working normally. As long as nature can continue her constructive energy, the baby will grow and remain normal in every respect until, like an old machine, it will finally wear out.

If we were once well and normal, why are we sick now?

Chiropractic

proves that dis-ease is due to interference with the constructive energy, partially or wholly, through pressure on the spinal nerves, causing dis-ease wherever those nerves extend.

By analyzing the backbone, the Chiropractor can detect any subluxation (displacement), and by simple adjustments can remove the cause of dis-ease. Good health follows naturally.

Look into Chiropractic—the new Health Science, and pass the word along to some suffering friend. Information costs nothing.

Reception For Miss Morrison

The ladies of the surgical dressing class and others attended a reception given in honor of Miss Ella Morrison, in the parlors of the Boyd hotel Wednesday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30. A profusion of flowers and the national colors were used as decorations. Many ladies were present, admirers of Miss Morrison.

In the receiving line were: Mrs. E. W. Huse, president of the Red Cross; Miss Ella Morrison and Mesdames Carhart and J. Woodward Jones.

Music added much to the occasion. Punch, wafers and mints were served.

Miss Morrison has endeared herself to Wayne people because of her loyalty and unselfishness in the great work she has accomplished here in the surgical dressings department of the Red Cross. She has been untiring, faithful, and in these times of stress such a girl is worth much to her country and to her associates. She will leave soon to go abroad in the service and the love and best wishes of all Wayne will go with her.

Last evening the Boy Scouts held a farewell reception at the Methodist church in honor of Albert MacGregor, one of their number who leaves Friday for training camp. His comrades presented him with a handsome shaving kit as a token of their regard for him. Among other talks was a most interesting one from Lieutenant Linson, who recently returned from the Philippines, and is now in service, here for a visit while enjoying a furlough. He told much of interest to the lads and showed many curios and relics gathered Plans were made to assist in the union meeting to be held that day at the Methodist church at 10 a.m. at the women planning to phone to every one listed in the phone book, reminding them of the day of prayer and requesting their presence at the morning service.

Adjourned to meet with Mrs. Gosard next Tuesday at the usual hour.

Mrs. Will Repnick gave a family supper last evening in honor of her brother, Albert MacGregor, who will leave tomorrow for training, at which their parents, Rev. and Mrs. D. W. MacGregor and Ralph were guests of honor. The national colors were used in decoration, the soldier brother's picture was conspicuous draped in national colors, and another star was added to the service flag of the family. It was a happy, yet serious time for them all.

The Bible Study Circle

The Bible Study Circle met with Miss Beek at the Mitchell home Tuesday afternoon where a fine session was enjoyed. After the lesson hour several interesting letters were read from various district points, also the President's proclamation for a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer to be observed on May 30th throughout the length and breadth of the land.
