EX-PRESIDENT TAFT TELLS WAYNE OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Greeted by a Magnificent Audience, The Man Who for Four Years was Our Chief Executive Told of Great Peace Move.

The reception of the Ex-President to Wayne was cordial and hearty. His stay here was short and busy, but not too busy to give a bit of his time to a student whose misfortune it was to be ill at the college dormitory. The school children appeared in a body at the station to greet him as the train stopped, and he was escorted to a waiting car between living walls of little folks carrying the national emblem. Taken at once to the home of President and Mrs. Conn, he dined there quietly with the family. Here it became known to him that a pupil suffering from appendicitis wished to be carried to a window that she might have a glimpse of the great man; and he said he would feel honored to visit one so anxious to see him and at his request he visited the young lady, much to her pleasure and satisfaction.

He then visited the college gymnasium where the pupils of the public schools who would not be able to find room at the auditorium greeted him and listened to a brief talk, after which he addressed the people on the "League to Enforce Peace" and the "League of Nations," as the two are now practically one and the same.

President Conn paid high tribute to the speaker in his introduction, and the great talk was on, amid hearty applause. It was not an eloquent appeal—but it was clear, concise, logical from start to finish and left to those who opposed the practical commonsense, civilized and christianized plans proposed to prevent war but two little place on which to stand. One was prejudice—the other German Kultur. Take your choice.

Eleven years as a judge had eminently fitted the speaker to accept the view that any trouble which might be settled by war could be better settled and more justly by an impartial tribunal. Some one must lose and one should be admitting the possibility of losing a case in either court or battle—or an election, he chuckled—and that the loss in battle was the most expensive, as well as being the most costly way to gain if one proved the stronger and more resourceful—and that did not prove him right—nor make one a better loser if that were the fate of war. "Learn to be a game loser."

He told of the treaties along the line of war prevention made during his administration with England and France, and how they came back from the senate so mutilated that even their father would not know them; and how he had not even presented the wreck to the other nations, but laid them away with the hope that the senate might some day change or be changed.

He told of the purpose of organizing the league to enforce peace, in 1914, and that it was in harmony with and for the same purpose as the present proposed League of Nations. He made plain that the object is to make war impossible, if that be possible and settle differences by arbitration before a tribunal which would enforce its just verdicts by the peaceful means of suasion if that were possible by effectually shutting the offending nation to itself with no commerce or negotiation with any other people. The great principles of justice were to be enacted into law for all, and peacefully enforced. He answered the talk against the constitutionality of the proposed league by showing that we have been in the same sort of a league with Britain so far as the borders and waters between us and Canada are concerned for more than one hundred years, and it has been a great peace promoter between England and the United States, and asked if this pact could be proven contrary to the spirit or letter of the constitution.

He summed up the great principles on which a league is forming in four main points: Agreement to submit justiceable questions to arbitration. Submit question not justiceable to a council of conciliation. Not to begin war until three months after other means of settlement were found to be impossible. Organization of a Congress of Nations to enact international law and its enforcement.

Among the questions for this congress would be the limitation of armaments by all. Methods of enforcing its laws, and

HIGH HOPES OF EARLY PEACE

Paris, April 14.—A statement by President Wilson in behalf of the council of four says that the questions of peace are so near complete solution that they will be quickly and finally drafted. This announcement was contained in an official bulletin, which added that the German plenipotentiaries had been invited to meet at Versailles on April 25.

Text of President's Statement
The text of President Wilson's statement follows:

"In view of the fact that the questions which must be settled in the peace with Germany have been brought so near a complete solution that they can now quickly be put through the final process of drafting, those who have been most constantly in conference about them have decided to advise that the German plenipotentiaries be invited to meet the representatives of the associated belligerent nations at Versailles on the 25th of April. This does not mean that the many questions connected with the general peace settlement will be interrupted or that their consideration which has long been under way will be retarded. On the contrary, it is expected that rapid progress will now be made with these questions so that they may also presently be expected to be ready for final settlement."

"It is hoped that the questions most directly affecting Italy, especially the Adriatic questions can now be brought to a speedy agreement. The Adriatic question will be given for the time precedence over other questions and pressed by continual study to its final stage.

"The settlements that belong especially to the treaty with Germany will in this way be got out of the way at the same time that all other settlements are being brought to a complete formulation. It is realized that though this process must be followed all the questions of the present great settlement are parts of a single whole."

A QUESTION OF TIME

There is a petition going about and quite generally signed asking that schools, churches and business houses here go back to the old time, in other words set the clock back. And now comes a report that we may not do that without violating the law of the land. Possibly that is true, but we may decide to have the school "take up" at 10 o'clock instead of nine, if we wish, and go to worship the same way, perhaps without fracturing the law. The fact that we are located well forward toward the west edge of the 60-minute zone in which we live, makes the new time here, about one hour and 45 minutes ahead of our real sun time. In other words, if we went to dinner at noon time by the sun, we would go about that much later than we do under the new time.

REMEMBER THE TANK APRIL 25

Next week Friday Wayne is to be visited by one of the great war tanks which invaded the German lines and helped win the war. It is said to be able to turn round on a flat car, and to get off and on the car by its own power. Speakers are to be here with the car, and men to man it as in war.

THEIS Friday, April 11, 1919, to Wm. Theis and wife, a daughter.

BRUMMOND Tuesday, April 8, 1919, to Wm. Brummond and wife, a daughter. The little one lived less than a day, and then was taken.

a peaceable settlement by arbitration if possible, the boycott if necessary, and open diplomacy.

These are the great reforms which thinking statesmen have been considering for years, and which the great war so needlessly precipitated on the world, has been the means of bringing the attention of all mankind to the importance of in the past four years.

Some of his good points tersely told were that the Article X, so bitterly objected to is the heart of the league.

That the present intolerable situation brought about by the secret diplomacy and competitive war preparation of the past was an intolerable condition which forced the league as a necessity.

That a peace pact without the league was worthless.

That prejudice and selfishness were the prime objectors. And lastly the great peace movement now going on is and will be the greatest forward step in the world history.

PUBLIC SERVICE CLUB ENTERTAINS

Wednesday a number of out-of-town men were Wayne visitors, coming here to seek cooperation of Wayne citizens and Wayne county commissioners in having a road designated as a county road between Wayne, Carroll, Sholes and Randolph; that the work on the route designated may be in accordance with federal and state specifications, so that when the time comes for it to be completed the preliminary work will be well advanced. At the suggestion of President Ahern of the Public Service club, those of the members who could find the time to do so, met with the delegates from these towns in a little supper at the Boyd where the matter was gone over and plans and routes discussed. It was a very pleasant hour. The visitors were: Messrs. Henry Rethwisch, Vaughn Williams, Dan Davis, Lute Carter, Geo. Holekamp, W. H. Thomas, Frank Francis of Carroll, Tietgen, Hansen and Fritzen of Sholes, and Bowles, Bacon and Howard Porter from Randolph.

THE PREACHER AND THE FORD
The Pender Republic tells a story of the preacher—one of the local men of Thurston county, and the Ford which stuck in the mud and kept Rev. G. A. Bolas and his good wife waiting for daylight and help to get themselves and car from a "sea of mud." The story calls to mind an incident which happened when the writer was a lad in which a very devout Baptist preacher and a "buckskin" broncho made a bit of history. It may as well be known in advance that for whims about going or staying no Ford has anything on this broncho. He had been saddle broke as much as a real bronch may be taught the ways of man—and that is not much. Our good friend remembering always that the "merciful man is merciful to his dumb brutes" thought old Buck needed a drink as they came to a clear, shallow stream, and so elected to use the ford rather than the bridge. He had been trying to break his pet to harness as well as saddle, and this time was driving him to a buggy. Loosening the check rein they entered the stream, stopped to give the animal a drink when midstream with perhaps twenty feet of water behind the buggy and ahead of the horse.

When the animal had taken sufficient water to satisfy even a Baptist horse the preacher spoke gently "get up, Buckskin." But no get up. Previous experience had made the man of God wise—he waited patiently, then asked again for a start. A shake of the head was his only answer. The preacher took a good look from his pocket and read a half hour—but no go. As it was getting late for a dinner with a good deacon, he became anxious, and again asked but with no better results. Knowing that his pet would sometimes go as a saddle horse when he would not act as a harness horse, he climbed carefully over the dashboard and onto the back of his steed. But the horse stuck to the water like a true disciple of John the Baptist, and when the dinner hour was well passed, decided to move on and take the man of cloth to dry land. Some would have sworn a bit and abused the animal—no such a thing would old Rev. Whiting do. He was a good man and a sincere christian, even though a Baptist preacher.

PIONEER WOMAN PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Sarah A. Davis died Monday, April 14, 1919, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Phipps, her daughter, in this city, at the age of 86 years, 5 months and 7 days, after several months of failing health. She was attended in her last hours by her three daughters, Mrs. Phipps of this place, Mrs. J. W. Smith of Pender and Mrs. L. E. Phipps of Tekamah. After a simple service at the Phipps home here, by Rev. S. X. Cross, Wednesday morning, the body was taken to her old home at Craig for burial.

Sarah Murphy was a native of the state of Ohio, but came to Nebraska with the early settlers in 1861, and this state has been her home since. They settled in Washington county, and that she has since called home, and it is there that the body was laid away.

EASTER BAZAAR AND SUPPER

A TRAVELING MAN TALKS GARDEN AND CHICKENS

A "knight of the grip," not the flu grip—invaded the Democrat office one day this week and in conversation volunteered a bit of information which may prove beneficial to the little folks who are going to make garden or raise chickens this season. All know what a nuisance it is to try to fight the bugs which attack the cucumber vines and what a fight it is to get them to running and growing faster than the bugs can eat them. Here is his remedy, a simple one if effective. With each hill of cucumbers plant a dwarf nasturtium. There is an odor about the plant which is repulsive to the little yellow pests, and they will not bother.

His remedy for the chicken mites is to secure from your grocer the stem on which a bunch of bananas is delivered, and leave it in the hen house. This it is said attracts the mites, and they gather there, and while it is attractive to them, it is also a poison, and they are soon past doing damage to the poultry.

We cannot vouch for the effectiveness of those remedies, but it is easy to try it once.

LEO MACHMUELLER ARRIVES IN U. S. A.

This writer was informed that Mr. and Mrs. Gust Machmueller who reside in Norfolk received a telegram on Tuesday of this week from their son, Leo, informing them that he had arrived safely in New York. Leo is with the Rainbow division and has seen more than a year of active service at the front in France. He has been wounded once but from the latest information he has recovered from his wounds. Leo is a former Hoskins boy having enlisted at Avoca, Iowa, where he was employed as a barber at the time war was declared. His many Hoskins friends will be glad to learn of his safe arrival back to the states and will give him a warm welcome when he returns to Hoskins.—Headlight.

Woman's Club Meet

The Woman's Club will hold its regular meeting at the city hall Saturday, April 19, at 3 p. m. Mrs. E. W. Huse will lead in a discussion of the League of Nations and several others will give their impressions of Mr. Taft's position on this great question, as gathered from his lecture. All women of Wayne or living in the county are invited to attend and are urged to become members of the organization. Let this be an association of mutual helpfulness.

The members of the board of directors are asked to meet promptly at 2:40 to hear the report of the committee which was appointed to investigate various properties, which might be suitable as a site for a public building.

NOTICE CHANGE OF DATE

The social announced last week of the Royal Neighbors was figured wrong as to date, and the correct date is a week earlier than announced, and the big time will be Tuesday, April 22, and every one who misses it will have a lasting regret, once he knows what he has failed to see and hear. The Wayne Neighbors always go one better than you expect. Remember the earlier date.—1

GOVERNMENT ROAD CONTRACT LET WAYNE TO HARTINGTON

A Great Step Taken in Road Development in this and Cedar Counties. Part of Great Road Project.

The State Engineer, George Johnson together with the commissioners of Wayne and Cedar counties met at the court house Wednesday and let the contract for that part of the State and Federal Highway extending from Wayne to Hartington. Fifteen bidders were present, the successful ones being A. E. Culver of Hartington, who gets the road work from Laurel to Hartington, the Peterson Co., of Omaha, who get the road work from Wayne to Laurel and the Skiles Co., who get the concrete culvert and bridge work.

Some idea of the big condition in which this road will be built can be had from the cost of the work which will be about $3,000 per mile.

It is the opinion of Mr. Johnson that with a cheap source of material supply at Hartington it will only be a question of a few years until this road will be graveled its entire length.

The completed road of which the aforementioned section is one project, will extend from the river at Yankton to Fremont and be a connecting link between the Washington and Lincoln highway. In addition to bringing through Wayne county a great deal of the tourist travel from the states northwest of us which now has to take a longer route via Sioux City and Omaha on their western trip this road will be a great benefit to our farming community north of us and to our town.

AS many will want to know why the building of the road does not extend clear through Wayne county at this time a few words of explanation may be welcome.

When the federal and state governments set aside the money for the building of highways in Nebraska they stipulated that these roads must be through routes through several counties connecting important lines of travel. It became necessary for several counties to agree upon a route and we joined with Cedar, Cuming and Dodge counties in petitioning for a road from Yankton to Fremont. This petition was finally approved and the engineers divided the route up into projects in order to make it possible to commence the work at once as no county had money enough coming to build the entire road at the present time. Wayne county now has due her about $26,000 which has accumulated during the past four years from federal and state funds. This sum will build the road for ten miles north of us, so that part of our highway was put in a project with the piece of road Cedar county can build and the work will commence at once and be completed by November 1.

Mr. Johnson expects to put the south end of our road in a project with Cuming county and it is his opinion bids will be asked on this stretch in August so that we can look for a completion of the Wayne county part of the highway not later than next year.

The specifications for the south road call for a concrete roadway from the Logan bridge to the corner one mile south which is another indication of the quality of the road we are to have.

It is estimated that $30,000 will be available yearly from the automobile and other funds for the maintenance of the state and federal roads in Wayne county so we can feel assured of this road being kept up and improved in splendid shape.

A party of boosters from Carroll, Sholes and Randolph have been to Lincoln and were here Wednesday to ask our cooperation in helping them secure state and federal approval of a highway from Randolph to Wayne which will connect our highway with the one running from O'Neill to Sioux City. They have State Engineer Johnson's assurance that he will approve this road when some requirements have been met, and this will eventually give us another fine improved permanent road of great importance to our town and the farming community west of us.

The building of our north and south road is one of the first projects being carried out by the state and the securing of this improvement is one of the most important accomplishments of our Public Service club in past years. They are sincerely grateful to the county commissioners for the splendid support and interest they took in carrying the work through and also to our State Engi-

WAYNE STATE NORMAL NOTES

Dr. Montraville Wood lectured to a large audience in the Normal auditorium last Monday evening. He is a scientist and inventor of note and his lecture and demonstrations were exceedingly entertaining and instructive. He discussed the ultra-violet ray and its action on radio-active substances, the gyroscope, the diagraph, and the torpedo with ears, and gave demonstrations which proved the great value of each in the scientific world and applications which are made. His hearers were all of the opinion that this lecture was the best that has been given in Wayne on scientific topics.

The Song of Hugh Glass by John G. Nehardt, graduate of the Nebraska normal college and a long time resident of Wayne, is about to be published in a school edition by the Macmillan Company. The first edition appeared in 1914 and won much favor among literary critics. As it deals with events of historical importance in the development of the Mississippi valley, a demand arose among educators that it be placed in the hands of young people in our high schools. As Dr. House had been using the poem in his classes for the past three years, it was natural that he should prepare the notes for the school edition. These notes were accepted by the Macmillan Company three weeks ago and the book will be on the market by the first of June. It is believed that Nebraska, Dakota, Wyoming and other western states will be quick to make use of the edition and that other parts of the country will fall into line.

Saturday evening in the recreation hall of the industrial building occurred the annual Senior-Junior banquet of the Wayne State Normal. The room was artistically decorated in gold and purple streamers, and Junior colors, and this color scheme was carried out in the decorations of the table, purple sweetpeas and yellow and purple pansies being used. A three-course dinner was served, the young ladies of the Sophomore class assisting. After the dinner the following toasts were given:

Toastmaster—Julius Young, '19.
Peace Conference—President Conn. "Impossible is Un-American"—Gertrude Satorius, '19.
"Four Speeds Forward, None Reverse"—Charles Daley, '20.
Front Seats in Chapel—Alice Pearson, '19.

Caps and Gowns—Jane Randolph, '20.
The Juniors—Luther Fetterolf, '19.
What the Seniors Leave Us—Ruby Reed, '20.

The Horseshoe—Miss Piper.
The Key—Professor Huntermer.
Places were laid for ninety. Besides the two classes, President and Mrs. Conn, and the sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Huntermer and Miss Elsie Ford Piper were present.

The Chadron state normal school and our own institution will hold a debate at Chadron the week before commencement. The subject will be that of government ownership of the railroads. This is the first time that these two institutions have met in intellectual contest, and it is hoped that this is just the beginning of social relationships.

Dr. J. T. House went to Omaha today to act as one of the judges on the debate between the Omaha and Council Bluffs high school teams.

Prof. A. V. Teed spoke at a consolidation meeting near Pierce last Friday evening.

The meeting of the board of education which was to have been held at Lincoln April 18 has been postponed a week.

Friends of Miss Sarah Saunders, a graduate of last year, are grieved to hear of the death of her father which occurred last week from complications resulting from influenza.

nee, Mr. Geo. Johnson, who has been here several times and given us his best advice and attention and help in all matters pertaining to the road. Wayne county is fortunate in having a set of commissioners who are so keenly alive to the necessity of good roads and a state engineer who impresses us as being a thoroughly capable man in his work and very particular in caring for the interests of the state and counties in all matters under his jurisdiction.

Your Rent Receipts are Worthless

Are you a renter, complaining, dissatisfied, a slave to the landlord? Or are you a happy, contented, independent homeowner?

Have you realized that you pay for the house you live in whether you own it or rent it? Your rent receipts are worthless. Then why not own your home?

Here is a four-room bungalow planned and designed to meet the needs of the man of small income who wants a home all his own. It is a compact, well-planned house and is finished throughout with CURTIS WOODWORK.

Notice the comfortable little porch and big living room—long enough to use one end as a dining room. The entrance to the basement stairs is accessible from the kitchen. There are two bed rooms, both well lighted and ventilated from two sides. The bath room is between them, and is also handy to the living room.

This is design No. 2030—only one of many homes of all sizes and types for which we can furnish plans.

Come in and talk over your homebuilding plans.

Mr. Williamson tells us that their first work here will be remodeling their store front, and the salesroom. A new front is to be put in, the room newly papered and painted, a linoleum floor laid, making the room both light, cheerful and sanitary. With their ambition to have a place second to none the new firm will succeed.

H. C. Lyons and daughter, Laura, who have been spending the winter—or at least a part of it, in southern California, returned home Saturday. They report a very fine winter amid the flowers and good roads of that fair land. They had a feeling that they had returned home too early if not by the day of the month by the kind of weather. They had been looking out on fields of snow most of the way from the mountains to Wayne, and alighted here in fields of mud. Perhaps our mud was little if any worse than some other times, but it certainly had a bad appearance to these people just in from the dry climate and hard roads of southern California. They were wondering if they would pull through the nine miles between Wayne and the home place.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ley returned home Saturday night from their trip to southern California, where they spent several months—and when they saw weather conditions they came back to it, it is safe to say that they wished they had tarried a few weeks longer.

Douglas Sutherland, editor of the Bart County Herald, came over to visit with the MacGregor family Saturday and Sunday, returning Monday morning. Mr. Sutherland is a member of the Tekamah Business Mens' club who are boosters for their town and county.

B. I. Tripp, accompanied by his brother-in-law, E. B. Forsyth and wife, from Lester, Iowa, came last week by car to visit at the E. B. Michael home, Mr. Tripp's daughter, on account of unfavorable roads, Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth returned home by train Monday afternoon, and Mr. Tripp remained to go home in the car—or a boat, according to the trend of the weather.

A geological survey made by the government indicates that oil may be found on the plains of northwestern Montana, Teton and Lewis and Clark counties being the most promising fields the government has yet explored. As each of these two counties are large, the indicated oil era is several hundred miles in extent. Some wells have been drilled in the Mussellsell valley in the south central part of the state, but no oil found.

John Laurie of Carroll, who has been for the past twenty months or more on duty in the navy, having been for six round trips on the S. S. South Dakota, was home for the past two weeks on a furlough. He is now stationed at a training station near New York, and like a lot of the other lads is hoping for an early discharge. On his way back to duty, he was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Alex Laurie, and together they went to Albert Lea, Minnesota, to visit his sister. From there he is to return to duty.

Walter Savidge went to Kansas City Friday for new carnival equipment, and says that he hopes to have his new swing started this way without delay. He plans to open the season here May 6.

Mr. and Mrs. V. H. McChesney went to Omaha Monday to visit relatives and friends, and while there Mrs. McChesney will consult some specialists as to her health, and seek help if possible.

The Ex-President made an impression that would strengthen him with this people should he wish to become the next president.

That little Taft chuckle always was followed by a telling point—it was a warning to look out, for something was going to drop.

When you accuse a man of something he is not innocent of, even in a joke, that's just when he gets mad. We found that out the other day.

The legislature will adjourn soon, if they have not done so by the time this reaches you, gentle reader. Their pay stopped some days ago, and the h. c. of l. will soon stop debate and force an early adjournment.

The three big road bills passed the senate. They provide for the construction of 4,200 miles of good road which will be paid for from the new automobile taxes, the one mill levy ($3,000,000), and the aid from the federal government of $9,000,000.

One of the things the Nebraska farmer should learn from the farmers of Holland, Denmark and some parts of France and England, is co-operation. Co-operate in producing, marketing and the buying of improved farm animals. It will prove profitable.

The automobile tax is boosted—or is to be very shortly. We mean their annual license fee. That is all right if they put it all into honest work for better roads. The man who has an automobile, and gets good roads can well afford to pay more for better roads. It saves time and gas.

Another issue we hope to give a more complete review of the splendid talk given last evening by Ex-President William Howard Taft at this city. It is worthy of a place in every home, for it was educational, broad, liberal, nonpartisan and truly American.

The farmers' union is permitted to buck the board of trade—no, we mean the Omaha Grain Exchange, and return profits, if any to the members. That was not what the exchange wanted. They should be thankful they do not have to contend here in Nebraska with a legislature like the one in North Dakota, where the state is depriving the speculators of such a complete monopoly of produce as the middle men, terminals, elevators and railroads have had in the past.

SOCIETY NOTES

The P. E. O. chapter A. Z. met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. C. Shulteis. The state organizer, Mrs. J. H. Kemp, of Fullerton, was present and the meeting had been called for the purpose of inspection. Mrs. Kemp gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the work of the sisterhood. A committee composed of Mesdames J. W. Jones, D. H. Cunningham, R. W. Ley, W. H. Morris and Wm. Mellor served a delicious two-course luncheon. There will be a regular business meeting Monday evening, April 21, at the home of Mrs. W. H. Morris.

The next meeting will be the annual picnic dinner at 6:30 at the home of Mrs. A. H. Ellis, next Monday.

A very complete surprise was perpetrated on Mrs. J. H. Rimel last Tuesday when a score of her lady friends dropped in quite unexpectedly to the good lady and reminded her that she had a birthday to celebrate. TUBERCULOSIS OF HOG HERD Sanitary Lot and Clean Feed Are Enemies of This Disease—Slow in Its Development.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

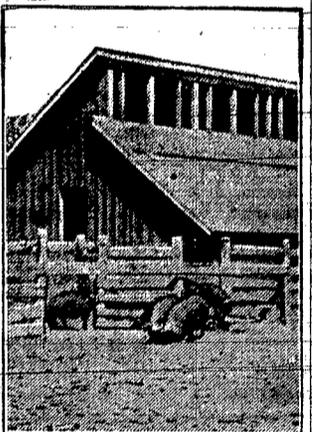

Tuberculosis is rapidly increasing among hogs in the United States, and every owner of swine should be on his guard against the introduction of this serious malady upon his premises. Unlike hog cholera this disease is insidious in its attack and slow in its development, so that it may be present for months in a herd without exciting the least suspicion of the owner, and will be revealed to him only at the time of slaughter. Until recent years tuberculosis has been looked upon as of uncommon occurrence and only of importance from a meat-inspection standpoint; but today it must be recognized as a serious menace to the owner of hogs, and especially to the one who allows his hogs to run with cattle that have not been proved to be free of tuberculosis, or who feeds them upon nonsterilized products as part of their ration. As tuberculosis of hogs is chiefly contracted through eating infected feed, the importance of this statement is obvious.

Tuberculosis of hogs is closely associated with the same disease in cattle, the reason being apparent when one considers the close relations of these two species of animals upon nearly every farm. Tuberculous cattle may scatter great numbers of tubercle bacilli with their excrement; cows that are tuberculous may produce contaminated milk that is subsequently fed to pigs; and carcasses of cattle that have died from tuberculosis are sometimes eaten by hogs.

The feeding of hogs upon creamery refuse is also a very frequent source of infection. In this way the milk of a single cow with a tuberculous udder, if sent to a public creamery, may spread the disease to a number of hogs, and may also infect many farms that have never previously been contaminated with tuberculosis.

An equally dangerous source of infection is likewise observed in the methods which obtain among some of the small country slaughter houses. It is not unusual for these houses to get rid of their blood, intestines, viscera, and other inedible parts by feeding them to hogs, a herd of which is usually kept on the premises. This custom is pregnant with danger and serves to perpetuate the infectious principle of various contagious and parasitic diseases, particularly tuberculosis.

Hogs are also susceptible to tuberculous infection from infected persons and poultry, but these sources are undoubtedly of far less moment to the hog owner than those existing in a herd of tuberculous cattle.

Intestinal worms, lung worms, and skin parasites also levy a burdensome tax upon the profits of hog raising. Absolute cleanliness will be found valuable in preventing and controlling these parasitic troubles, as well as the more serious diseases—hog cholera and tuberculosis.

LABOR REQUIRED BY SHEEP

While Continuous It is Not Heavy—Can Well Be Performed by Boy Incapable of Hard Work.

While the labor required by sheep raising is continuous, it is not heavy, and if properly supervised and made interesting by financial return can well be performed by boys incapable of other kinds of farm work. This fact should be given consideration in many sections where farm labor is scarce.

IMPORTANCE OF FARM TEAMS

Unless Animals Are Properly Cared For and Fed They Are Unfit for Hard Work.

The teams are far more important in war farming than is generally believed. Unless the teams are properly fed and cared for they will not be able to do good work. Every farmer should take pains to care for his teams and get them in the best possible condition.

BARTERING SOVEREIGNTY (Chicago News)

There are senators who affirm that, while they favor any proper international agreement which would tend to prevent war, they are "utterly opposed to any agreement to barter away the sovereignty of the United States." Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania uses these words, but Senator Reed and Poindexter have expressed the same sentiment, implying that the proposed constitution of the league of nations would barter away American sovereignty.

Let us examine this objection. The United States barter away neither more nor less of "sovereignty" than any other nation. No nation would barter away sovereignty, gratuitously. The proposed constitution is an agreement among nations equally sovereign. What any one barter away, all barter away. If sovereignty is limited, all limit it. If France, England, Italy, Japan and the other nations represented at Paris can afford to sign the proposed instrument, the implication is pretty clear that they do not think they are bartering away sovereignty. In the matter of sovereignty we are asked to do nothing they are not asked to do. Why the invidious distinction, the misleading charge, that we alone would barter away sovereignty?

Every treaty is a limitation. A sovereign nation makes treaties for its own benefit. It accepts limitations for the sake of larger gains. We limited our sovereignty by agreeing to refrain from keeping warships on the great lakes. We limited our sovereignty by agreeing to refrain from discriminating in favor of American ships using the Panama canal. We limited our sovereignty by agreeing to arbitrate certain questions or to wait a year before making war. We limited our sovereignty by entering into international postal agreements. But all other civilized nations have limited their sovereignty in the same manner and in the same sense. A nation that makes agreements is like an outlaw or anarchist. Co-operation means mutual limitation. Sovereigns sign agreements voluntarily and thus exercise their very sovereignty.

The "sovereignty" argument is fallacious and thoughtless. Whether we are asked to give up other things, and without consideration or mutualism, is another question on which intelligent men may differ at this stage of the discussion.

Greater Telephone Revenues Are Required

High Costs Have Increased Operating Expenses

Since the European war began there has been a steady increase in the price of nearly everything we use. There has not been a corresponding increase in telephone rates.

In order to meet the high cost of telephone operation, a revenue in just proportion to the expense must be obtained.

The necessity for more telephone revenue is easily understood.

The cost of telephone operation has steadily advanced both because of the increased cost of material to the telephone company and the increased living expenses of employees.

The consumer has realized the necessity of paying more for rent, for food, for clothing and for transportation. The telephone industry has been affected by the same conditions which have produced higher prices in all of the necessities of life.

If this Company is to continue to furnish telephone service to the public it must obtain such rates as will produce a revenue to cover the cost of providing the service.

DID AMERICA WIN THE WAR?

What must be the thoughts of our soldiers and sailors when they return from the din of fighting and hear the hubbub in congress about "American failures in the war?" These men who drove the Huns from France and Belgium; who saw the German military machine wrecked and shattered; who beheld the collapse of the greatest military power in history; who marched into Metz and Coblenz, regarded as impregnable strongholds—what must they think when they hear America's efforts, and their own endeavors described by senators and representatives as failures?

Did America win the war? Ask the Germans—they appear to be experiencing some sensations of defeat. Was there a breakdown of the American army? Put the question to the French and the English, who know what reverses and handicaps really are. Did alleged American shortcomings endanger the success of the allied arms? Read the terms of the armistice. Did alleged American mismanagement cause an American retreat? Ask a soldier or sailor—and then run before you get the answer.

WASTED TALENT

Mankind seems divided in groups of people of various types and inclinations. Some are talented for one thing and some for another and some for nothing. In every large group of people we find many of these types represented.

One of the types represented in this school which is the inspiration of this writing, is the group which might be called the "Ancient Order of Cheap Humorists" or the "Antique Army of Bulletin Board Decorators." These highly ambitious specimens of anthropoid physiognomy (but not mentality) spend most of their waking hours superfluously decorating the W. S. N. bulletin board with their marvels of wit and humor. It takes brains to be able to mark up the posters and inscribe thereon the ancient, supposedly witty, stuff. It takes a high minded individual to ascend to the height of a "Corridor Courier" and from that to a decorator of the public works, such as bulletin boards, walls, walks, etc.

Those whose mental capacity only permits them to have occasion to post notices with a genuine "O. K." on them are far inferior to these "Knights and Ladies of Leisure" and they will always be minor forces. Such rare talent of these "K. of L. of L." have, should find a still broader field and not waste their efforts on bulletin boards.

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION OF THE U. S.

March 4, 1919
Subject: Teachers' Salaries
To Superintendents and Boards of Education.

The time is approaching for the election of teachers and the fixing of their salaries for the ensuing school year. The recommendation of the superintendent and the action of the board on this important subject will, in every case, effect not only the welfare of the children, and, in a broad sense, the cause of education generally. Permit us to call your attention to a few facts which bear upon this subject.

The National Education association is deeply interested in teachers' salaries because of the vital relation of this subject to the welfare of the schools. The N. E. A. Committee on Teachers' Salaries, Tenure and Pensions, under the Chairmanship of President Joseph Swain, made a valuable report on this subject which was published last July. The association has continued its investigations, and from the latest data obtained, supplementing the reports of the Railroad Wage Commission, the War Labor Board, the Bureau of Education, and other authorities, it can be shown conclusively that under existing economic conditions teachers' salaries are entirely too low.

From the Bureau of Education Bulletin No. 4, 1919, we quote the following: "Salaries of teachers are so low that they offer neither incentive to professional preparation nor encouragement to long tenure. Moreover, the new and more lucrative opportunities which the war has made available to teachers have made serious inroads on the profession. It cannot now be expected that qualified persons will continue to teach, or that capable ones will prepare for teaching, unless radical and sweeping changes are forthcoming in the salary scale."

The Bureau of Education has made an estimate, based on a nation-wide investigation, that there were at least 50,000 vacancies in the public schools of the country at the opening of school last fall. One county in Pennsylvania reported fifty-three rural schools without teachers. In addition to these vacancies the Bureau further estimates that there were no less than 120,000 untrained and inexperienced persons placed in teaching positions in order to keep the schools open.

Authorities differ as to the increase in the cost of living. Bradstreet places it at 119 per cent since the beginning of the war, Dunn at 94 per cent. The Labor Bureau at 103 per cent. Admittedly some items were not considered in making the above estimates, but from a study and comparison of available reports on the subject, an increase of 75 per cent since 1915 might be considered a conservative estimate. The necessity of increasing salaries and wages to meet this increase in living expenses has been officially recognized by the highest authorities.

By general order of the Director, General of Railroads, issued May 25, 1918, and based on the investigations and report of the Railroad Wage Commission, the wages of all railroad employees receiving less than $250 a month were increased. The Commission stated in its report that a man receiving $85 per month on January 1, 1916, should receive an increase of 40 per cent, making his wages $119 a month on May 1918, in order to give him the same living he previously had. This conclusion was approved and taken as the basis of the increases allowed. Those receiving less than $85 a month were given a higher per cent of increase, and those receiving more, a lower per cent, gradually decreasing as applied to higher salaries. This action of the Government was accepted as fair and equitable, but what about teachers' salaries which average, at the present time, much lower than the average wage received by railroad employees before their wages were increased?

Statistics obtained by R. C. Moore, Secretary of the Illinois State Teachers' association, and published in the February, 1919, issue of the "Illinois Teacher," shows that the average monthly wage of fifteen miners for a certain month, taken from the payroll at the mine, was $217.78, while the average monthly salary of the fifteen teachers in the same town was $55. In another town a certain miner, who, by the way, was an Austrian alien, drew more than $2,700 in wages last year, while the high school principal in that town, an American girl, trained for her work in a university, drew a salary of $705.

Congress has repeatedly recognized the necessity of increasing wages and salaries in order to meet present economic and industrial conditions. The Johnson-Nolan bill, H. R. 152, providing that the minimum wage of all civil employees of the United States shall be $90 a month, or $1080 a year, has already passed the House of Representatives and is now under consideration in the Committee on Education and Labor in the Senate. Please note that this is a minimum wage and applies to all employees including watchmen, janitors and char-women. W. F. Ogburn, statistical expert of the National War Labor Board, testified at the Senate Committee hearing on this bill on January 28, 1919, that after a study of some six hundred families in New York last summer, he reached the conclusion that the minimum cost of living of a family consisting of a husband, wife and three children, was between $1,350 and $1,400 a year. Continuing he stated: "Since that time the cost of living has increased in such a way that it could be maintained by both the friends and enemies of this bill that today, in the large eastern cities, the minimum level of subsistence must be about

At this same hearing a petition was presented and placed on record, signed by Judge Landis, Judge Carpenter, and more than a score of other United States officials, praying that the wages of elevator men and watchmen in the Federal Building at Chicago who receive $60 a month, and also the wages of charwomen, be increased $1 a day "in order to meet in part the very great increase in the cost of necessities and that Federal employees may enjoy at least a living wage."

Throughout the country teachers are leaving the profession which, on account of the low salaries paid, is becoming less attractive to capable young men and women. Normal school and teachers' training schools have fallen off alarmingly in attendance. The situation is particularly serious in rural communities where the salaries of many county superintendents and teachers are appallingly inadequate. One of the ablest county superintendents of Indiana writes: "When a teacher becomes efficient the city pays her more money and naturally she leaves." Continuing, with reference to low salaries, this superintendent declares: "There is one thing certain; the more progressive will not further sacrifice their time and energy, regardless of the fact that they like their work better than anything else and have prepared themselves for it."

Dr. P. P. Claxon, United States Commissioner of Education, in a recently published article, states: "It is only by very large increases in pay of teachers that we may hope to improve our schools appreciably. Small increases of 5, 10 or 20 per cent will not avail, for they will not be sufficient to hold in the schools men and women of superior ability. Teachers are now paid less for their work than any other class of workers, and the increase in their pay in the last few years has in no wise been in keeping with the increase in pay of other workers, or with the increase in the cost of living. Many of the better teachers are leaving the schools and their places are taken by men and women of less native ability, less education, and culture, and less training and experience. As an inevitable result the character of the schools is being lowered just at a time when it ought to be raised to a much higher standard." Continuing, Dr. Claxon declares that the remedy is to increase teachers' salaries until they shall average at least $1,500 a year.

The right kind of education is absolutely essential to the preservation of our democratic ideals. The recent war, with its terrible cost in money and human lives, was largely the result of the false philosophy of the Germans as taught in their autocratically controlled schools, and the chaotic condition in Russia today is due, in a large measure, to the illiteracy of her people. The Commission on Industrial Relations in the conclusion of its final report declares: "Real social service is the highest attainment the individual can aspire to reach. The State should properly be held responsible for the education of her children, in order that the best possible use shall be made by the greatest possible number of the opportunities of life as they present themselves from year to year."

This very grave situation demands immediate attention. The problem must be solved by those who are responsible for the support and administration of our public schools. State legislatures should furnish the needed revenues, or make it possible to raise the necessary funds by taxation. Because of the importance of the subject from the national standpoint Congress should give Federal aid. The responsibility of giving adequate salaries to all teachers rests, in the last analysis on Boards of Education by whom teachers are employed. They will be sustained in their efforts to meet this situation by public sentiment which has become aroused to an appreciation of the crisis confronting us.

Immediate action should be taken, not only as a matter of simple justice to the teachers, but for the highest good of the children of our country, and with the purpose of sustaining and strengthening our public school system, so essential to the welfare of our free institutions and all that we as a nation hold most dear.

Very truly yours,
National Education Association,
Hugh S. Magill, Field Secretary.

POLARINE

Remember When You Bought Your Car?

Remember how the salesman stressed the necessity of proper lubrication?

Remember his telling you how much proper lubrication meant in added power, added life, added smoothness?

What's the answer?

Simply this—Polarine Oil and proper lubrication are synonymous. Ask any motorist who uses Polarine Oil—he's seen the proof.

Next time you're ready to fill the crankcase, look for the Polarine sign. (And don't forget the password for greater mileage per gallon—its Red Crown gasoline).

FARMER AND BUSINESS MAN MUST WORK TOGETHER

(By G. M. Norby)

In traveling over the country, we notice that farm land is more valuable if near a good town, which goes to show that it is necessary for the farmers and the town people to cooperate in order to build up the country. If the farmers look on the future success of the local business men as a menace to him and keep knocking, or does all his business with catalogue houses, he is destroying the future prosperity of the town and working against his own interest.

On the other hand, the welfare of the farmer depends to a large extent upon the business men in town.

Therefore, it is necessary that they cooperate and work together in order to build up a good town and the farming community surrounding it.

Speaking at a political gathering, Senator George Sutherland of Utah smilingly remarked that there are times when we mean well, but express ourselves badly, and told this little story as an illustration:

Recently a certain pastor was called to a new charge in the west, and during the first few weeks of his incumbency he preached several very clever sermons.

One Sunday morning his discourse was particularly pleasing, and as he stepped into the aisle at the conclusion of the service the congregation gathered around with many congratulatory words.

"Doctor," said one of the congregation, seizing the pastor's hand, "I want to tell you how much I enjoyed your sermon this morning. What a wonderful knowledge you have of your subjects, and how inspiringly you preach them!"

"He does, indeed" enthusiastically exclaimed another brother, taking the preacher's hand in turn. "Why doctor, we never knew what sin was until you came among us."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

A physician a few days since gave us an account of the decline of a church in his town, and said it had died of the foot and mouth disease. Being asked what he meant, he said the people spent their time running around talking about each other.

Farm tractors present a special problem in lubrication. Their operating heat is normally somewhat higher than automobiles—considerably higher where kerosene is the fuel.

Bert Juhlin from Kansas City, who has been spending the past two weeks here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Juhlin, and his Wayne friends, left for home Wednesday morning.

Every fellow who can is skurrying to cover with his money for an auto license. The price is going up as soon as the governor signs the new bill, and that will make more road money for better roads, so why hurry.

Hans Tietgen of Sholes heard last week from his brother, Emil, who is in a hospital in Germany recovering from wounds and German gas. His voice is affected by the gassing, we understand, and his speech is scarcely above a whisper.

Pender has been hoping for a new, modern depot this year, but they give up hope as the spring time comes. They say that Thurston county has plenty of barns and hoghouses that are better than the depot shack. Why not move a barn up and use it—or the stock sheds, perhaps.

Perry Francis, who came here nearly two weeks ago from Chadron, left for that place Friday evening, to meet people there whom he hoped to sell his restaurant business to, he having been obliged to close the house on account of the flu putting himself and wife and child to bed.

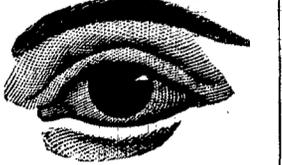

Wednesday morning, and the sunshines again in Nebraska, after a week of almost sunless skies. The slight frost of the night before soon disappeared, and the mud is drying, and all are hopeful of having weather which will permit the belated farmer to get busy in the fields.

Carroll is considering the matter of paving their main street. So are we at Wayne, but to date we have not got beyond the stage of consideration. It takes money to pave and it will take money to drain, and there's the rub with some; yet the money is no good unless you spend it for that which you need or desire.

While the life insurance companies were watching the war, and expecting that to near break them, and raising rates and charging extra war risks, the flu stole silently in at the back door and carried away far more victims than war. The world war losses have been staggering in these last few years, but the great plague took far more than the sword.

Edgar Howard of the Oklahoma Telegram is journeying in the southland, to the west, and at last accounts was out on the plains of southwestern Kansas and eastern Colorado. He hopes to visit old Mexico before he winds his way back to his home at Columbus, sometime after the spring snows have ceased to fall and the flowers are blooming on the Nebraska prairies.

Some of the neighboring towns have adopted a plan of keeping a general store open Wednesday evenings beginning now and continuing during the busy farming season for the benefit of their patrons who can better spare evening time for trade than day time. One man told us that in his neighborhood no one thing had helped the catalogue houses as much as the closing of the store early every evening in the summer time. A lot of men are inconsistent. They want a local merchant kept on the job for their benefit that they may have the goods just as they need them, but they will order away from home, send their money and wait a month for the goods to come from the city house. The local merchant should get wise, and offer to sell them goods by mail and deliver by parcel post.

Wakefield people are beginning to agitate the band question for the coming summer. Wayne should have a band, but seems unable to make it go—too busy—too little music in our souls.

Mrs. E. J. Huntemer returned Saturday morning from Kearney where she has been helping care for her sister, Mrs. Lantz and children. Two of the children were down with the flu. Mrs. Moran is there at present.

Dakota county seems to be a popular resort for Sioux City couples who wish to wed. It frequently happens that the city furnishes more victims at the hymenial altar than all of the county in which the licenses to wed are issued.

Fred Carl Voss of Hoskins died of paralysis, April 8, at the age of 65 years, lacking a few days. He was born in Germany, and came to America in 1882, and lived in this county since 1894. A wife and eight sons and daughters survive him.

Mrs. Augusta Strate, aged 82 years died at Hoskins April 9, and the funeral and burial were Saturday following. Mrs. Strate came to this county in 1870, settling on a homestead near Hoskins. She leaves four sons, all residing in the vicinity of Hoskins.

An invitation from Camp Dodge to Rev. F. Williams from the religious director of the Y. M. C. A., is for Rev. Williams of Wakefield to spend a week, beginning May 8th, with our soldiers in the camp. The invitation has been accepted, and among other duties Mr. Williams will deliver two religious addresses each evening in the "Y" huts, will preach several times on the Sunday, and will also hold a number of special services for wounded soldiers in the wards of the base hospital. He can put it over.

J. R. Almond is soon to move to the Griffith house, the place he now occupies having been purchased by J. H. Boyce, who wishes to make some improvements there with paint, paper and new floors, and then make his home there. Mr. Boyce has been waiting for some time until the move came right for Mr. and Mrs. Almond to get a place in which to live. This is one of the incidents constantly occurring here, which caused a traveling man familiar with Wayne and its advantages as a place for a home, to say to the Democrat this week, that if Wayne would build seventy-five homes they would all be filled with new people as fast as they could be completed. We take it that he knows.

The United States is the only government, except Canada, that has taken official cognizance of the nation's supreme duty to rehabilitate its soldiers. In other countries, rehabilitation has been a matter of private voluntary enterprise. But in the belief that the nation's honor is pledged to the crippled soldiers who come back that they would be retained and re-educated for a place in economic life, the United States after caring for their disabilities through the bureau of compensation and war risk bureau, turns them over to the Federal board for vocational education. This board has been chosen by congress to assume the entire task of the re-education and placing in employment the wounded soldier, sailor or marine who has been so disabled that he is entitled to compensation from the War Risk bureau and needs the help of re-education to "carry on" successfully. When you buy Victory Notes you help materially with this splendid work. You would gladly loan money to help a friend attend this splendid college. A. V. Teed of the Normal was at Pierce Friday, going out to talk before a meeting called to consider the question of forming a consolidated rural school in Pierce county. He tells us that the legislature has made some new provisions for the forming of consolidated schools, but that it is optional with the communities whether or not they are formed. Under the new law, provision will be for the counties to be grouped for districts about five miles square; and upon the petition of 25 per cent of the voters, an election may be called to vote on the question of consolidation or not; and then follows the necessary regulations as to the forming of the district, and the disposal of the old school property of the new district, and the taxation, etc.; officers and the steps necessary to get the consolidated school moving off right.

P. S. We see by an exchange since the above was written that this measure failed of passage by one vote, though it was stated to become a law.

SOLDIER LAD'S VIEWS OF WAR AND SOLDIER LIFE

Below we give parts of the talk made at Laurel by Chas. Meeker at a soldier boy reception in honor of himself and two or three others, at Laurel two weeks ago, as reported in the Advocate of that place:

Every word that the boys uttered was listened to with great interest by the large audience. Sgt. Meeker took us with him on the long journey from this country to the front line trenches and return and made every step of the way interesting. He told how they felt when their feet first struck foreign soil, how they disliked the British rations—marmalade, cheese and tea (with emphasis on the at); how, after crossing the English Channel they were fed by Uncle Sam again, and "Believe me," he said, "when Uncle Sam feeds his soldiers he feeds 'em." How, after being assigned to the best billet in the small town in which they were quartered his men were obliged to clean for two days and nights before it was habitable—and, at that, they were next door to the animals and fowls. Sgt. Meeker did not fail, in passing, to add his tribute to the many already paid by returned soldiers to the toy railway cars of France. He said 33 men were crowded into one of these little coaches—all fighting for places by the door that they might see out. That half of them stood up while the other half slept, etc.—He said that the first rest camp they struck (in England, I believe) they decided was intended to rest their stomachs. That was where they were issued the despised English rations. More than once, later, the men were really hungry, he said, so hungry that raw cabbage and turnips were food for the Gods, in their estimation and would not be exchanged by those fortunate enough to possess them for any amount of money. Sgt. Meeker told how he felt when an idle request he had made of his lieutenant while yet at Camp Funston, that he might be first to go out on patrol with him was unexpectedly granted; how he went out into No Man's Land with fear and trembling and how he got back safely—only a good deal scared—and was called upon to go again, when it was not such smooth going and he had to kill a German or more to insure his own safety; said German appearing to him in the darkness of No Man's Land to be a giant 12 feet tall and himself the smallest of pygmies. He told of several gas scares—not so real as they might have been but sufficiently exciting to leave with him a vivid memory for life. And how it felt to lie low, with the machine gun bullets whizzing over one and not even daring to move sufficiently to make use of the intrenching tools on his back; what is meant to "dig in" and how it was done under fire. He said in some of the billets in France the rats were very sociable. You would wake up in the night and find a big fellow nibbling at one end of your hard tack and in the morning you would eat ravenously from the other end. Some days, through no fault of Uncle Sam, you were bound to be hungry. They would try to get a hot meal to the boys and along would come a gas barrage and spoil the food. He said one of the hardest things they had to bear was to pass their comrades who had been wounded without giving them aid. But there were men assigned to that particular duty and sometimes your duty was elsewhere and you just had to be about it—orders being orders and having always to be obeyed. He said the Germans were up to all kinds of tricks, that even the tales we hear about German soldiers being chained to machine guns were all a hoax. He said Fritz merely had the chain handy and put it on when he saw the enemy coming; he was not chained to his post at all. The "Kamerad" stuff didn't go with Sergeant Meeker and his men, as some of the German soldiery found out to their cost.

Sergeant Meeker did not forget to pay his tribute to the work of the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. He and the French brethren of the men with many luxuries while in the hospitals and the latter did everything possible to make their stay in a foreign land as comfortable and pleasant as possible. He said that undoubtedly, there were some instances of wrong doing on the part of Y. M. C. A. workers he saw nothing of the kind where he was stationed and thought that the boys who complained of the work of that organization did not take into account the greatness of their task and the haste with which their force of workers was necessarily organized. He also paid tribute to the Salvation Army, the K. C. and other similar organizations; all of which he thought did their utmost for the boys. He said that on the transport coming home the wounded were made as comfortable as possible; that their wounds were dressed whenever necessary and no detail pertaining to their comfort neglected.

Albert Thompson, who was also in France, spoke very briefly, but his

Wayne County and Western Lands

I am agent for lands in Western Nebraska and Eastern Colorado. I have spent a season selecting lands for sale in what is acknowledged to be the very best parts of western Nebraska and eastern Colorado. The development of these sections is assured, and there is every indication that the early purchasers will be the ones who buy for least money. Good lands are becoming scarce, and constantly advancing in price, and judged from all views I can give bargains to the early buyer. These lands are not merely speculative propositions, but have the virtue of fertility which assures a real value.

As to the Wayne county lands, all know their worth, and that each year sees an added recognition of their value reflected in the constantly advancing prices, so if you contemplate procuring a farm in this good county of Wayne it may be bought for less money this spring than next.

short talk showed, that he really could tell a great deal of interest, and we understand that he did do this recently before an audience in Logan Center church. We should certainly have enjoyed hearing him, as the little he said Monday evening filled us with a desire to hear more. Mr. Thompson said he had often been asked since returning home if the soldiers became hardened to the sights they saw in the service. He answered this question in the affirmative and gave several examples to illustrate his point. How an officer fired into a bunch of men to stop an escaping prisoner and killed an innocent by-stander. He said the boys talked of the incident the next day and then it was apparently forgotten—nobody ever alluding to it again. That, at Brest, when they were going on board the transport to come home, a gang plank broke, precipitating a soldier, burdened with his pack, into the water. He sank at once and nobody seemed to give the incident more than a passing thought.

About twenty-five from Wayne homestead and their friends were present and report a splendid time. The sale of boxes brought $91.30, and with expenses of the program $23, there is a surplus of $68.30 which is to be divided between the Wayne and the new Carroll homestead equally.

The Carroll homestead is to meet to organize this week, when they will elect their officers and ask for a charter.

All members of the order at Wayne are asked to attend the meeting Friday night, the 18th, a regular meeting when business of importance is to be considered. Bring the names of those you desire to see become members, for there are not yet many days left of the campaign, though there is opportunity to win the grand prizes.

THESE MUDDY DAYS

READ AND HEED THIS

The attention of several million farm families interested in clean footwear is called by the United States department of agriculture to an inexpensive three-way porch brush which can be made at home from three scrubbing or cleaning brushes or purchased from most supply houses. It consists of three foot brooms which are arranged, one at the bottom and the other two at the sides, in such a way that the foot can be drawn backward and forward through the device so that the dirt and mud will be removed. A strong box of the desired size, with its ends removed, makes a good foundation onto the sides of which the side brushes and one on the bottom may be nailed. Obviously no dimensions which could be given would be very useful because the size must suit that of the shoes to be cleaned. Since they are so easily constructed one could be made for the men and one for the children, the chief caution being that the side brushes should be close enough together to cause good friction on the shoe as it is drawn between them. Because of the friction taking place the device should be fastened securely to the doorstep or other firm foundation. If an old fashioned foot scraper, consisting of a piece of metal, were placed beside the broom device it would prove a valuable adjunct.

For use on dairy farms, where considerable work in washing milk cans and other dairy utensils is necessary the wooden or steel soled shoe is recommended, and is inexpensive enough so that the average farmer can put it to good use.

Miss Nora Gilbert is visiting at Sioux City today.

Mrs. C. A. Chace arrived home from California this morning.

Don't forget to plant some red poppies in memory of the boys who are sleeping in Flanders.

Mrs. Brittain returned from her visit in California Wednesday, where she spent the winter.

The Queen Esthers will have a food sale at the Central Market Saturday, beginning at 10 o'clock.—1

Lieut. V. F. Wilson, of Hartington, who returned from across some time ago, visited among his college friends here yesterday and today.

Earl Butterfield, Robert Closson, Irvin Williams and Orville Meink of the Sholes school visited at Wayne Saturday, and were guests of their teacher, Miss Florence Gardner.

Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Phillips, formerly of Carroll, but the doctor later from France, are looking for a home in Wayne, and has engaged an office in the rear rooms of the F. S. Berry building. They will be welcome here, and we only wish that a home was waiting for them to purchase.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Lewis came from Chicago Monday, where Mr. Lewis had gone a few days before to meet and accompany her home. They are now living at his official residence near the court house, Mr. and Mrs. Porter having moved out the week before. Mrs. Lewis will receive a hearty welcome to Wayne.

Geo. Nuss and family from Winner, South Dakota, came Wednesday to visit at the home of his brother, J. C. Nuss and family. From here they go to visit their old home in Pennsylvania.

I. C. Trumbauer, the oil man, and Jack Liveringhouse, the electrician, are not where they were before, as a friend said: When you want to see them you must go to the basement of the old national bank building, under the Berry office. Barber Norman is to occupy all of the Lewis building and will take the partition out and use the entire room.

Most of our stores have pretty show windows about this time of the year as the opportunity is ripe for pretty things at Easter time. Orr & Orr goes one better with a dozen little live chickens dusted with varied colors of the rainbow. Hvely little fellows happy within a fence of flowers. Passers by have enjoyed the display immensely and credit for the idea goes to Mrs. E. Kostomiatzky.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Thompson went to Camp Dodge this morning to visit that lady's brother, Carl Madsen, who is that far toward home from the front, where he was severely wounded in action last summer. Mr. and Mrs. Madsen went last week to visit him, and it was hoped that he might come home this week, but unfavorable weather conditions made it seem best to keep him there for a time yet, so the sister and her husband make the visit.

Not long since the Democrat at West Point was printing four pages at home and four patent. A week or two later they cut out two pages of the patent, and made room for six home pages. Last week they ditched all of the patent and appeared with twelve pages of home paper. West Point should have all-home papers, and cease to distribute the patent side to their people. It makes the papers look as if from a one-horse town to be half made up of out-of-town printed matter. Brother Stahl should easily fill eight pages at home, and what more do they want?

The Easter meeting of the Bible Study Circle was entertained by Mrs. E. Ferrell Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. C. Clasen presenting the international Sunday school lesson using the inspiring Easter topic, and Mrs. Young leading the special course of study on "Practical Christian Work." Some of the Easter thoughts suggested were: "To women was committed the first Easter message, not because they were women, but because they were early hour worshippers and first at the tomb." "The great stone was rolled away from the tomb not to enable Christ to come out, but rather, to let the women go in and prove its emptiness." "Fear not ye," were the quieting words of the mighty angel and the all powerful Christ and that note of victory is still in tune in 1919. Mrs. A. P. Gossard will be hostess next week. Mrs. Jacobsen and Miss Ziegler, leaders.

TO SAVE HORSE, PIERCES HIS FOOT WITH SPIKE

John Lutt is wearing one foot in a bandage, and the attending physician tells us that he is getting along well so far. Mr. Lutt saw a big spike sticking up through a board, and thought how dangerous it would be for a horse coming that way, and put his foot out intending to bend the offending spike down, but did not push from the right angle, and his foot was pierced clear through. A very painful wound.

Your Summer Suit Should be a Comfort Suit

TIME was when a man thought any old kind of a light weight suit would do for summer wear, but nowadays, he realizes that if ever a suit should be comfortable, well-fitting and shape-retaining, it is that designed for summer wear.
