ESTABLISHED 1884

WAYNE, WAYNE COUNTY, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, MAY 6, 1920

$1.50 PER YEAR

WAYNE CITIZEN NAMED FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

The report of the nominations made at Grand Island Tuesday by the non-partisan league, the farmers union, and the central labor union, labor federations, railroad brotherhoods and progressive party named F. L. Bollen of this city as their candidate for attorney general. On the theory that in union there is strength, Mr. Bollen has ample strength back of him to insure an election. So it becomes a question of how real is the union.

The delegates at the same time named Judge Wray of York for governor and Robert Mousel from Cambridge for lieutenant governor. D. E. Wood was favored by a number of the delegates for either first or second place on the ticket.

Their candidate for governor is mayor of York, and has a record as a progressive, and a Roosevelt man. He is forty years of age, Mr. Bollen is reported as citizen of Knox county, from where he moved to Wayne less than a year ago.

Governor Frazier of North Dakota was one of the speakers, telling what the league had accomplished in his state.

The platform committee reported practically the same platform adopted by the league convention late in February with additions asked for by labor, calling for the retirement of all congressmen who had voted for the Cummins-Esch bill; opposition to the code bill; opposition to the constitutional draft providing for an industrial court and the division of counties into legislative districts.

THE PRINCESS OF POPPYLAND

No more popular and pleasing entertainment has been given by any department of the Wayne schools than that of last Friday, when the pupils of the grades presented that popular operetta "The Princess of Poppyland" to a house packed with lovers of the children and their music. The presentation of this fanciful operetta reflects creditably upon the work of the instructor in music of our school, Miss

In the cast of characters, appeared many stars, and while those with the leading parts had better opportunity to impress upon the audience their talent, others were no less efficient and deserving of mention. The list of those taking part appears below: King—Burr Davis; Fizzletop—Frank Peck; Dozey—Donald Taylor; Prince—Gerald Dennis; Baron—Horace Fetterolf; Pip-Pip—Arthur Hansen; Honk-Honk—Frederick Berry; Princess—Esther May Ingham; Moon-Daisy—Elmira Kadwell; Cornflower—Kathryn Davis; Columbia—Mary Alice Ley; North—Willie Sund; South—Clarence Kay; East—Lorenz Kay; West—Robert Johnson; Spanish Gipsies—Girls from Sixth and Seventh Grades; Accompanist, Miss Helen Blair.

OLD COUNCIL OUT AND NEW IN

Monday evening was the final session of the dying city council at the city hall, when the odds and ends of the city business were finished up and the decks cleared for action by the new council which would begin their duties the following morning. Tuesday morning the new council was gathered and a new city year started. Of course, the old and the new administration were the same, except that L. C. Gildersleeve, who has served on the council for the past ten years retired for L. M. Owen; and City Clerk L. W. Roe was succeeded by George Lamberson.

Mayor Kemp made the following appointments which were confirmed by the council: City Attorney, F. S. Berry; chief of police, A. A. Chance; assistant police, W. A. Stewart; physician, Dr. G. J. Hess; water commissioner, Geo. Lamberson; street commissioner, Eli Bohawitz.

The committees for the year are as follows, according to the mayor's appointment, the first named in each committee being the chairman:

WAYNE STATE NORMAL NOTES

Again the Wayne Normal and the city of Wayne have the honor of acting as host to the young athletics of northeast Nebraska. The thirtieth annual track and field meet of the Northeast Nebraska High School Athletic League will be held on the Normal grounds tomorrow beginning at 10 o'clock, and as thirty high schools will compete for honors, an notable occasion is anticipated and great preparations are in progress. 173 men are already entered and possibly 230 will take part in the track and field events. The people of this community will recall the fine basketball tournament conducted by these same schools in the gymnasium of the Normal last winter and may rest assured that equally interesting events will characterize this gathering.

The final struggle for the championship of the district in baseball and in girls' basketball will be attractive features. Elimination contests in each of these sports have been going on all over the district for the past month, and only the best teams will compete here. The baseball game will be played at 10 o'clock and will be between either Wakefield or South Sioux City on the one hand and Randolph, Bloomfield or Pierce on the other. The girls' basketball team of Hartington will meet either Oakland or Wisper at 1 o'clock.

At 2 o'clock the field events will be staged: 100 yard dash, 120 yard hurdle, 220 yard dash, 440 yard dash, half-mile run, half-mile relay race, four men; pole vault, discus, shotput, high and broad jump.

O. E. Lloyd of Norfolk, who proved so efficient as official in the basketball tournament, will act as referee and starter.

Unfortunately Coach Serfling of the Normal has been called away by a death in the family and will not be able to return in time for the occasion. In his absence, Professor E. J. Huntmer will have general charge of the arrangements. That his work will be thoroughly done all are assured who know how tireless Mr. Huntmer is in all school activities.

The attendance at the meet is certain to be large, as many high schools granting a holiday that all the students who desire to do so may attend.

The arrivals will be met by their former schoolmates now attending the Normal, and conducted to the grounds. Dinner and supper will be served to the participants in the dining room of the Baptist church.

Friends are urged to come and bring their dinners. If the day is pleasant, the campus will be a delightful place for a picnic feast.

As on all such occasions, the Normal is not a competitor but a friend and host to all the schools and visitors, and its only interest is to assist all to have an enjoyable time.

Miss Alta Burton of Chicago, sister of Miss Helen Burton, head of the department of domestic science in the Normal sang five numbers in chapel yesterday morning. Miss Burton has a fine mezzo-soprano voice, is a trained singer and delighted her hearers, who applauded to the echo.

Prospect for the largest attendance in the history of the institution is evidenced by correspondence received at the Normal office concerning the summer session, which begins June 7. It may be necessary for four hundred students to room in town, and President Conn and the entire office force are busy canvassing the situation to learn what families in Wayne are willing to room or to both board and room students during the summer term. Hitherto the people of the community have been ever ready to open their homes to students and confidence is felt that the large need will again be met.

With the opening of the summer term Professor Charles Elliott Fouser of Evanston, Illinois, will begin his work as instructor in music in place of Professor J. J. Coleman, who is going to California. Professor Fouser holds the degree of bachelor of music from Northwestern university. His specialty is public school and community music. He plays the piano, violin, viola, flute and organ. Professor Fouser has also had a successful career as teacher.

The program of the Apollo Concert Company which was given last Saturday night in the auditorium of the Normal was very acceptable. If Mr. Bryan is able to fulfill his engagement it is felt that the entertainment course will have been peculiarly successful.

The Queen Esthers will have a food sale at the Central Market Saturday afternoon—adv

COLLEGE VIEW ADDITION TO WAYNE

About seven years ago the editor walked out to a cornfield to the north of Wayne, as she was then, as did many other people and viewed what the surveyors had staked out as Spahr's addition, a tract of perhaps ten acres of rather unpromising looking corn stalks with a depression running diagonally through it, making many of the lots appear low and undesirable. But people who had known Wayne longer and better than the writer did at that time set a pace on the bidding and bought them to the last lot, at what the high bidder believed them worth at that time. It was a fine thing for Wayne and Wayne people.

Sunday evening it happened that we went out Main street to see what the grader had done in the way of making ready for paving, and standing on the high ground west of the college grounds had a fine view of the Spahr addition, and what had been a barren field of corn stalks was well covered with neat dwellings and pretty lawns, with a sprinkling of shade trees—a group of perhaps thirty new homes where there had not been a stick or a tree at the time of the lot sale. We commented while looking on the change that had been made. These homes are all in water and sewer district, and modern, some of them being among the best in this city of excellent homes.

Friday another chance will come to other people, for a tract large enough to be cut into thirty lots, just east of the Spahr addition is to be sold lot by lot to the citizens and those who want to become citizens of this growing city, and we really know of no more desirable part of the town in which to plan to build a home. Not far out from the business places, and near the college, with the Spahr plot to show what has been done, we predict that those who secure home sites in College View addition tomorrow make a wise investment.—1

WAYNE CITIZENS WILL BE LOYAL

The indications are that the attendance during the coming summer session at the State Normal school will far exceed anything we have ever had. The matter of housing and boarding the students is going to be a very serious problem. The people of Wayne have always come to the assistance of the Normal school when it has been necessary and I have confidence that they will do so again.

In order that we may accommodate the students it will be necessary for many who do not ordinarily rent rooms to do so this summer. We must find rooms for three or four hundred students. If you have a room which you can spare call the State Normal office. If you do not have a room of your own possibly some of your neighbors may have, whom you can tell us about. Two or three hundred will want private board. This should be attended to as soon as possible.—U. S. Conn.

PAVING AND DRAINAGE

Weather conditions have not been favorable for the maximum of progress in these two works now under way at Wayne. The grading is being advanced a little each day that it does not rain, but the concrete mixer has not yet started, though form are set for considerable curb and gutter. It was planned to start the mixer two weeks ago, but without consulting the weather man, and cement and asphalt continue to come, and are being distributed so as to be convenient when needed.

The drainage outlet is not yet complete, and there also appears to be a delay in laying the intake tile at a number of the street intersections, and we still have the surface drainage, but somewhat obstructed.

ELECTION RETURNS OF WAYNE COUNTY

There are few changes from the unofficial report given two weeks ago, except in this report we have the result as to delegates to county convention, committeemen and some minor offices. No county in the state we believe, had a more complete preliminary report than the county clerk and election boards of this county provided.

The first question is answered as to the democratic vote by saying that 310 men voted that ballot and 126 women. In the republican column we find 1,055 men and 184 women. It is understood that a large number of the absent democratic voters cast their lot with the republicans to vote according to the wishes of the non-partisan league sentiment, they endorsing or filing candidates as republicans.

THE SENIOR DAY

Wednesday was given to the class of high school seniors, free from school duties and twenty-seven of the twenty-nine who make up the class, went to spend the day at Sioux City, and enjoyed every minute of the day; for the carnival was the attraction after they reached home at 6:30. Mrs. F. G. Philles and Mrs. E. W. Huse volunteered to chaperon the bunch, and they report that it was indeed a pleasant task to be with such an orderly, enthusiastic bunch of young folks. The high school yell and their songs broke the monotony for other passengers, and waked the echoes at every station.

At Sioux City a bit of shopping was done by a few, then at noon all assembled at the Mandarin cafe and partook of a most excellent three-course dinner, all being seated at one table. While they feasted an orchestra furnished most excellent music. Following the dinner the jolly crowd went for a street car ride, and visited Riverside park where they found roller skates and bowling allies to amuse. As they returned to the city, they were met by Rollie W. Ley, now president of the school board, who certainly made himself popular with the class—for he said, come in and all eat ice cream with me. Then it was time for the train home, where all gathered for one more good class yell—as happy a bunch as one often sees.

CRYSTAL CLOSED FOR WEEK

This week we have no movies—and all can take a rest and go to the carnival. Father yoused to have the writer pull on the old crosscut saw when a lad, until well wearied then hand out an axe and say we'll chop a while now, for a change of work is good as a rest—and then reverse it when we took the saw again. So this week, we have a change of amusements, and the change will be good as well as the change back again.

Manager Galley is taking advantage of the idle week to renovate his place and brighten it up with paint. He is clanging his motor from the old to the new street, and also installing a new and better system of ventilation. With his new fans no one need get hot while at the movie when the warm weather comes—this summer or perhaps next summer. Crystal doors will be open again next week.

A BUSINESS CHANGE

A deal has been completed by which L. W. Ellis, who has for a year past been a member of the Wayne County Abstract Company, and W. R. Ellis take over the interest of Forrest L. Hughes in that concern; Mr. Hughes having purchased an interest in the First State bank at Harraid, South Dakota, where he expects to move to take an active part in the work about June 1. Mr. Hughes, if not a native of this county, has spent most of his life here, and he has been a resident of Wayne for Miss Emma Richardson from Norfolk spent Saturday morning here while on her way to Carroll. She tells us that her father, formerly of this place, but now living at Bloomfield is in poor health.

Mrs. Frank Gaertner and daughter, Florence, and sons, Paul and Gilbert, who are stopping at and near Fairbault, Minnesota, came Saturday to spend a few weeks perhaps of the spring weather at their Wayne home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Prince died at the home of her son, Ed Prince, near Winside, April 17, at the age of 93 years. She was born in England, and came to America with her husband and family of twelve children in 1872, and came to this county in 1904.

J. A. Campbell from Ainsworth came to Wayne Sunday to visit his daughter, Miss Marguerite, at the Normal, while on his way to look after some interests at Wausa. He has some sons in the Newspaper game in Montana, and so took a look in at the Democrat while passing.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Doe, from Adrian, Minnesota, who have been stopping at Wayne several weeks, he finding employment at the Piepenstock harness shop, left by automobile Monday morning, expecting to hand back in their home town soon, and hoping to visit a bit on the way.

Rev. D. D. Proper of Omaha spoke at the Baptist church Sunday in the interest of the Baptist Home Missionary work. He was formerly a state secretary of Iowa, and the editor's old home had been frequently visited by him, and we chatted a few moments about men of other days—who had gone on.

V. A. Senter was a passenger to Sioux City Sunday, going to meet his daughter, Miss Faunfel, who had been at Ames, Iowa to visit Miss Blair who is attending that great college, and is present at one of their annual social functions. It is needless to say that Miss Senter enjoyed her trip greatly.

Mrs. Albert Bastian was called to Denver Monday, by the illness of Mrs. Martin Bastian, who recently moved to a town near Denver, and is now ill in a hospital at that place. Mrs. Albert Bastian has gone expecting to bring their baby home and care for it until the mother is able to be home and care for it.

Mrs. P. B. Rowe of Minneapolis, stopped here last week Wednesday to visit a few days with her daughter, who is one of the city teachers. Mrs. Rowe had been visiting in Idaho, and was on her way home. She knows that we have a good soil here from the quality of mud it makes in such weather as we have been having.

Economical Buying Leads to Wealth

Price and Quality Combine for Right Buying

On these two great truths we wish to build a business structure that will endure while people buy and sell, and with that in mind, we talk to you this week, we tell of some real bargains.

YOU CAN'T BUY THIS IN THE OPEN MARKET

Anybody with the price can buy tire machinery or material and make fair tires.

But they can't buy the family conscience that safeguards every last detail of a GRIPWELL TIRE.

That's why I picked this "honor-built" tire out of the 227 that clutter up the market. I know my business reputation is safe when backed by the GRIPWELL conscience that isn't for sale.

Cord and fabric tires and tubes. Casings have advanced from 20 to 30 per cent, but we bought so that we can and do sell at old prices. With a quality high and a price low, can you afford to buy elsewhere?

HOW ABOUT CHICK FEED?

We are prepared to supply your needs, whether it be a 25-pound sack or one or more 100-pound sacks. Remember we are in position to make price and quality right.

BUY YOUR COAL EARLY—ORDER NOW

We have read the warnings to buy your coal early and avoid the rush, and the certain raise in price. It is a condition that confronts us—not a theory. It is as well known now as it is possible to know things in advance that coal of all kinds will be scarce and high—in fact it is so now, compared with other years. Hard coal is selling at not less than $16 per ton, and it will go higher—it will also be hard to get out here, on account of transportation conditions. Therefore we have selected a line of the very best of western soft coals, and urge all who can use a soft coal for furnace or heater to now place an order here, for we have a coal guaranteed not to slack in the bin during the summer months—a coal superior in many ways to any soft coal that may be had from the east—clean, clinkerless, comparatively sootless, and low in ash. We cannot store this or other coal in quantity sufficient for the winter demand—and we cannot buy it for the same low price then as now, so we ask you to help us to help you. Order now for delivery to your bin as it comes and be sure of a good coal at least possible cost.

Mrs. Emma I. Wilson was a passenger to Winside Sunday.

Mrs. Grace B. Jones of Carroll was a visitor at Sioux City Monday.

Mrs. U. S. Conn went to Omaha Monday for a visit of a few days.

Mrs. Robert Pritchard of Carroll was a Wayne visitor Monday afternoon.

Mrs. James Miller and Miss Mary Mason were visitors at Sioux City Monday, going over on the morning train.

Mrs. Walling of Laurel, who has been here for medical treatment, and is improving, went to visit home folks Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jones, and Mrs. Jones' sister, Miss Ella Morrison, were visitors at Sioux City this week, going there Monday afternoon.

Miss Edna Cobb from Carroll was at Sioux City last week staying with her mother at a hospital there, and came home Monday evening. She reports that Mrs. Cobb will soon be able to return home, according to her present rate of improvement.

Miss Kate Wiedenfeldt of Norfolk was here Monday afternoon waiting a train to take her to Sholes, near which place she is teaching. She had gone home for a Sunday visit, expecting to get back to her school duties Sunday evening on the freight, which used to be known as the "School Ma'am's Special" last year, but with the new time card that train is discontinued Sunday evening, and when business warrants, an extra is put on, and does not advertise to carry passengers, because it is never known when they will need the train.

Some few people have failed to notice that since the train comes earlier the postoffice window closes earlier; also that the lobby is closed at 8 o'clock instead of 9, as when train came later. We all remember when we get there too late. The lobby now opens at 7 o'clock in the morning, a half hour late, because the morning train goes later. Thus one can see how the railroad regulates business hours in a community. When we have to get out earlier to catch a train we can and do—when we can sleep a little longer in the morning we are glad of the chance. As a community we are glad that we did not have to push the clock ahead an hour a month ago. Think what it would have meant to lose that extra hour in bad such weather as we have had the past month.

Paul Harrington was a passenger to Sioux City Monday afternoon.

A. E. Serfling was called to Ransom Lake, Wisconsin, by news of the death of his wife's brother. Mrs. Serfling has been there with home folks several weeks during his illness.

Miss Alice Holmes has returned to her home at Sioux City, she was employed at the J. M. Peterson home.

For Sale—Furniture, stoves and some dishes. Enquire at the Burson house on Pearl street, first house north of the railroad. Cheap for cash.

Who Wants an Imitation?

WOULD you call on your local merchant and ask him for "imitation" sugar, or raisins, or coffee? Would you ask him to sell you a pair of shoes made of something "just as good" as leather? Or a suit of clothes "made for" a man, whether or not it fits you?

Inside Facts

It's what's inside your battery that makes it live long or wear out quickly.

Inferior insulation wears out before the plates do, and re-insulation is necessary.

Threaded Rubber Insulation eliminates the need of re-insulation, makes a battery last much longer under equal conditions, and reduces the liability to any other kind of repairs.

It's the one biggest battery improvement in ten years—demonstrated now by four years of use.

You can't afford not to know about it, for some day you'll need a new battery.

THE NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE COMING TO NEBRASKA

It is very evident that whether people like it or not, the non-partisan is in this state, and here to remain until some of the worst of the evils they profess to fight are eliminated. The elimination may come as in North Dakota by the league winning power to do the work; or by one or both of the old parties stealing the league thunder, as they did with the populists thirty or forty years ago, and granting some of the most needed reforms. The rank and file of the new party want the reforms they are contending for—or at least want some relief from conditions they now see them. They do not want bad government; they do not want an expensive government and consequent high taxes; they may be fooled about what they think they want; and like the lad who imagined he wanted a great big supper when he had been eating fruit and lunches all day, decided when he tried to eat, that he didn't want it before he got it. But he thought he wanted it—and that was just as real for the time as an actual need.

We well know that the North Dakota situation under the rule of the non-partisan league has been misrepresented, at least to the extent of giving but half the truth. The Democrat wants to help its readers get the facts on any and all economic questions, and one of the members of the new party in this county who hates to pay high taxes as well as the next one, asks us to give figures as to taxes in North Dakota compared to other states, and we are submitting. It is true that in North Dakota they have changed the tax laws. They exempt taxes on farm improvements and farm machinery and place more on land. This has made the speculator holding land out of use there pay more taxes than under the old law, and he is kicking—but why should he not pay his full share? He is standing back and waiting for the people to improve the country and make his holdings more valuable, and a part of the cost of that work should be paid by him.

Here Are the Figures

Taxes in North Dakota increased in 1919 over those of 1918, $1,222,011. In Minnesota the increase in the same time was $5,182,465. In our own state of Nebraska the increase was twice as much as in North Dakota, and is given at $2,619,360. Colorado's increase was $1,110,277; South Dakota, $818,373; Kansas, $2,615,702; Oklahoma, $2,226,614; Wisconsin, $2,038,418; Washington, $1,822,309.

Of these states, three North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin laid taxes to make payment to their soldiers—but North Dakota the most of any of them, and their per cent of increase over 1918 was as follows: North Dakota, 117; Minnesota, 136; Wisconsin, 176.

Now comes the figures as to per capita payment and we find the following cost per head for the states compared above: North Dakota, $2.56; Minnesota, $4.74; Nebraska, $5.63; Colorado, $4.35; South Dakota, $4.90.

Kansas, $3.17; Oklahoma, $3.27; Wisconsin, $2.77; Washington, $6.32.

The article furnished us tells that the slight increase in South Dakota over the previous year was due to the fact that in that state they had seen inevitable increase needed, and had made a big increase the previous year. Some states not given in the list have still higher taxes and greater increase than those given, and some less; but the states named are those in which taxes and tax increases might be considered as about the same considering the natural conditions.

In Minnesota there is a great fight being waged against the league by the great mining industries—for the league proposed plan of taxation would exact from these great natural resources a more just share of the expense of maintaining the government which protects them. They are leading the fight to escape what many think but just taxation. These interests have gathered in these great mineral deposits, and are not willing to pay a tonnage tax on what they take out and ship to other states. This last paragraph is not referred to in the article from which the figures are taken, but came from another source. The Democrat will be glad to devote a share of its space to the discussion of economic questions, and invites communications on these questions. Let's study questions.

INCOME TAXES

These attacks on the government's excess profits taxes are as interesting for what they prove indirectly as for what they are intended to prove.

There is the assertion that concerns paying taxes on excess profits pass the tax on to the consumer. This is intended to mean that the consumer gets no advantage from the tax and should therefore not oppose its repeal. But it means more.

If any business can pass its excess profits tax on to the consumer, that means that it has power to fix prices. It is an admission that prices are fixed in a measure at the will of the seller. This argument proves its point against the tax at the expense of confession of monopoly.

One hears, again, that this or that business is having its income taken in profit taxes. The result is that the business wastes its money. It can better afford to spend a dollar in extravagant management than pay half a dollar in taxes.

This contains an admission that businesses can be run extravagantly and yet succeed. If true, this discloses an unhealthy situation. But the incidental disclosures as to profits are more important still.

There is no excess profits tax on profits up to eight per cent of invested capital. Eight per cent used to be considered a good rate of profit. That is more than we concede to railroad and public utilities. On that reasonable profit, be it remembered, there is no tax.

On the next 12 per cent, the tax is 30 per cent. That is to say, a concern paying its stockholders 20 per cent has to pay in taxes 30 per cent of the last 12 per cent. That makes a net profits tax of 18 per cent on the first 20 per cent of profits.

Any concern which is paying more than 18 per cent on its net profits, accordingly, must be earning more than 20 per cent on its capital. When a concern claims to be paying half its earnings in taxes, it admits making profits far above 20 per cent. When profits get above 20 per cent the public naturally thinks of profiteering. The 50 per cent argument proves too much.—State Journal.

SPRING RAINS—THIS SPRING

"Uncle Dud" writes what he calls prose poems for the Bloomfield Journal, in which he is interested as part owner, and he also offers them for sale to the fraternity. But we have not bought the following—we just take it, because it contains so much truth, regardless of its merit as a poem:

"The dern spring rains are wet and cold, they make a man feel lorn and old and mighty bleak and blue. Merhaps they're needed for the oats and transportation for the boats and for the cisterns, too. But certainly they do raise heck and as I wade mud to my neck my language sure is raw; I cuss in forty-seven ways—in this I'm joined by other jays—and at my hair I claw. Out in my garden I would be a-planting spuds and colery and umpteen other things; but I must sit and fume and fret because the weather is too wet to do a tap, b'jings. For days we haven't seen the sun, the rains come drifting one by one and slop down with a splash; the farmers cannot do their chores for if they venture out of doors 'twill surely spill their hash. And so I sit and punch my lyre until I bust its strings of wire and smash it on my legs; it gives forth discords raw and rank like pulling a be-resined plank across an empty keg. Oh, weather man, pray have a heart and give to us the better part—the good old sunshine bright, dry up the dog-nabbed sticky mud, so we can plant the corn and spud and piece'll be white. If you but knew what rank distress you're giving us I rather guess you'd change your program quite; for we are deep in darkest gloom, a real-reminder of the tomb—a dank and doleful sight.

I Put Soles and Heels Under You While You Wait

Why waste unnecessary time waiting for needed shoe repair? With my new machine for sewing on soles, and a still newer one for nailing on soles, I claim to be the best equipped repair shop in this corner of the state for quick work.

With the prices of new footwear going still higher, it will pay you well to hunt out shoes that may have been discarded several years ago, perhaps, and have them softened with oil and put in perfect repair. It costs comparatively little and give much service as a new pair.

Our new nailing machine is a wonder—it drives as many as 450 nails a minute, so you can count the nails in a half-sole and estimate how long it took to nail it on after it was in the machine. If we don't watch out and turn the shoe at the right time, it will run off the edge or the end of the shoe and drive the air full of nails.

Let us help you with your shoe troubles.

J. C. Forbes writes us from California that he will be here to read his Democrat this week, as they planned to leave Hollywood, where they had been spending the winter, before the paper of this week could reach them and he seemed glad to think they are coming back to good old Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. James Baird were called to Topeka, Kansas, Wednesday by news of the death of their sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary E. Reed, formerly of Pilger. Mr. Reed died several years ago, and the body was brought to Wayne for burial, and they did not know when they left whether the body is to be brought here or not. Mrs. Reed formerly had many acquaintances at Wayne and in this vicinity.

No matter whether Wood or Johnson won in Indiana at Tuesdays primary, the ladies of Wayne and vicinity win hands down, Friday and Saturday if they go to the Mrs. Jeffries' store on either or both of those days for the great discount sale on suits, skirts, waists, dresses, blouses and millinery, for on those days the price is divided into five parts, and you keep one-fifth purchase price and get the goods at only four-fifths regular price. It is worth investigating.—adv

Adolph Kleper and wife, who recently purchased the Prof. J. J. Coleman residence, to have possession May 1, have moved to the city from their farm northwest of Wayne. Mr. Kleper is now on the retired list, and expects to enjoy life here in the city. To keep his appetite good and assure himself good standing in society he should apply for membership in the horseshoe club, if he can pitch 'em good enough to pass the ballot; otherwise he may have to remain at home most of the time and help his good wife make garden and keep the lawn looking trim.

David Herber from Leslie precinct was a Wayne visitor Tuesday. His good right arm is working quite freely again since he has been made the nominee of the democrats of the county for representative. Mr. Herber is a representative citizen, too—loyal, honest, intelligent—and one of our pioneers. Those who solicited him to file for the nomination will most gladly stand by him in the coming campaign.

The Central Meat Market had a splendid window display the first of the week of robes, tanned hides, and pelts and some caps and mittens made from furs sent by them to the Edes Robe and Tanning Co. two caps were made from muskrat sent in by Martin and Carl Lage from their catch, and were beauties. The furs would have brought the boys a neat sum, and if sold in present form would bring much more. Art Dempsey had provided a part of the showing, having four coyotes and an opossum and coon. Besides this were several robes from horse, calves and grown cattle. It might save in the cost of robes to have a hide that you planned to sell treated by these tanners.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S CLUBS MEET AT WISNER

(Wisner Chronicle)
 The seventeenth annual convention of the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs of the Third District opened in the Congregational Church Tuesday evening and closed Thursday noon.

Despite the fact that floods and demoralized train service reduced the attendance and delayed the arrival of speakers, it proved a successful gathering of enthusiastic club women. The total enrollment was 129, including a number of the most prominent workers of the state and district. Among these were the state president, Mrs. John Slater, state vice president, Mrs. E. B. Penney, past state president, Mrs. Harry Keefe, four state chairmen, nine district chairmen, the editor of the Club Bulletin, sixteen club presidents, thirty delegates and sixty visitors. Twenty-seven clubs in the district were represented and four outside of the district, while twenty-three clubs were not represented by delegates, but sent their credentials and reports.

The convention was called to order Tuesday evening by the district president, Mrs. W. E. Miner of Oakland. After an invocation by Rev. A. E. McKeith, greetings were extended by Mrs. Bertha Johnson on behalf of the Wisner Woman's club, by Mrs. H. A. McDonald on behalf of the Home Economics club and by H. A. McDonald on behalf of the city. These were cordially responded to by Mrs. O. C. Anderson of West Point. Mrs. Slater of Hastings delivered the state president's address, entitled "Club Ethics," which was a message of inspiration and wise counsel for the women of the clubs. The programs were especially practical in the nature of the themes presented, indicating that the club women are earnest and ambitious in their work. The subject of Americanization was presented by Miss Katherine Worley of Omaha, and Civics and Citizenship were prominent subjects, interestingly discussed by Mrs. H. H. Wheeler of Lincoln, Mrs. Bertha Millar of North Bend, Mrs. D. V. Stephens of Fremont, and Mrs. Harry Keefe of Walthill. Child Welfare was the subject of a talk by H. H. Antles of Lincoln, secretary of the state department of Public Welfare, and Miss Elizabeth Marshall of West Point, told of her work as county public school nurse. Conservation, by Miss Fannie DeBow of Coleridge, and Home Economics, by Miss Alice Loomis of Lincoln, were also among the practical topics treated, as was Library Extension by Mrs. Herman Heitzmann of West Point.

The reports from the clubs of the district were listened to with great interest, detailing as they did a story of activity, zealous effort and achievement.

The programs were rendered varied and pleasing by the musical numbers consisting of a vocal duet by Mrs. J. I. Ray and R. M. Emley; the women's double quartet; solos by Mrs. Lillian Kotler of West Point and Mrs. J. I. Ray; the Wisner high school orchestra and the glee club; piano duet by Misses Irene Arbuckle and Dorothy Morse; songs by children of the second grade, and a reading by Miss Martha Dewey of the Wayne Normal.

Father John Palubiski of Stanton campaigned at Hartington and Randolph against the politically organized farmers and undoubtedly his eloquence, his priestly station and the fact that he had worn his country's uniform during the war helped very materially in putting over his opposition to the farmers' movement. But why should he wish to do so? What is there about this political awakening of the farmers of Nebraska that should cause the men of the cloth to forsake their altars and pulpits to take part in the political forums? Long years ago Nebraska farmers joined in what was known as the grange movement—that, too, was opposed by the churches! At every hand we may see priests and ministers joining hands with representatives of the big interests—why should they always oppose the efforts of the unorganized? Why is it class hatred for the farmers to ask representation in the legislative halls at Lincoln and Washington? If we mistake not the people of Nebraska will not take kindly to pulpits intervention in politics. Why should the church use its power to keep down the masses—why should it always cater to the rich and powerful?—Norfolk Press.

MECCA FOR SICK

That is what the people here and in the neighboring territory regard the Chiropractors at Wayne. People from neighboring towns who have failed to secure relief from ailments by other methods, are pronounced in their praise of the results secured through Chiropractic adjustments in Wayne.

The highest and best testimonies of benefits received from Chiropractic Adjustments come from those who have enjoyed restoration of health by such means.

Those who would criticise, are the ones who do not understand the methods employed, and are not familiar with the results secured. An investigation is courted, and will convince the most skeptical.

One of the remarkable things of this period is the number of persons that will assume to tell you what Chiropractic is.

The greater number of persons that are ready at all times, not only to tell what Chiropractic is, but to fix its relations to all other systems and its value to society, disclose in their attempt to do so, their utter lack of qualification for the task.

There is a conception abroad that Chiropractic is a very simple and limited thing, and consists of a peculiar method of manipulation and that, therefore, anyone that has had a little smattering of what is indifferently called "moves" is competent to dissertate learnedly at least, comprehensively on Chiropractic.

The general conception that Chiropractic is a simple manipulation and is limited in its scope of application exists because of specific intention, primarily of the medical profession but generally by many other systems, the practitioners of which have conceived unwisely, that they are in competition with Chiropractors.

If an individual wished to know what the law is on any subject, he would go to a lawyer and if he wished to be absolutely certain about what the law is, he would go to a good lawyer. The same rule would apply to Chiropractic.

If an individual wishes to know what Chiropractic is, he should go to a Chiropractor, not to an individual that professes to be every kind of a doctor, but to one who devotes his entire attention and thought to Chiropractic, and then, if he wishes to be absolutely certain what Chiropractic is, he will go to a good Chiropractor.

If those desiring to find out what Chiropractic is will follow the suggestions so far given, they will learn that Chiropractic was named in 1915 and that the name was composed of two Greek words, the first meaning "hand" and the second meaning "done" or "performed" so that Chiropractic in its original significance means simply—done or performed with the hand.

It must not be supposed that the name is expressive of the qualities that go with it any more than the name of an individual represents his qualifications. It is within the experience of all that men bearing very common names have nevertheless presented very uncommon qualities, and the investigator must expect that very result with regard to Chiropractic. Investigate through one who knows.

AFTER PRIMARY NOTES

Some attribute the running qualities to his opposition to the league and treaty; others say it was the wet republicans who gave him his big vote. It looks to the writer like a manifestation of the spirit of unrest which possesses the people, and voters of both of the great political parties who are tired of being chained to the conservative machine manifested a spirit of revolt. Johnson appealed to the discontented—and they are everywhere these days—and his vote is as wide-scattered as the east from the west.

In Madison county democratic primary, Mrs. Weekes, candidate for delegate to the national convention, was "high man." Had she been known over the entire district as she is at home, she would have won, hands down. But the honor of a home endorsement in the face of a bitter fight by the machine against her should be a more satisfactory victory than to have lost at home and won the rest of the district.

We notice that in many precincts over the state Ross ran close to and ahead of Hitchcock. Ross is a crank, is the report of those who know him best.

If the fellows who have for many years posed as democrats had remained in the party for the primary instead of sliding into the republican ranks as n-p. l. republicans, they might have saved the party machine. It was desertions of many of this class to the republicans which caused some of their friends to fail of nomination this year as well as in 1918. But we should worry less over their going than the republicans over their coming.

Nebraska primary returns show that militarism is not much desired by the people. Neither Pershing as favorite son, nor Wood could compete with Johnson.

Of course Morehead can come to the voters as a majority nominee of his party; while McKelvie with the minority candidate of his party. Morehead had opposition nearly as badly divided by different candidates as did McKelvie; only they did not poll a majority of the votes, combined as did the ex-governor.

Platte county, largely German went for Johnson by a big majority. Many of the professed democrats going to the republican camp to vote for the man who opposes the league.

As the primary campaigns come and pass, Hoover stock as a dark horse seems to advance.

Army authorities went up in a balloon near New York the other night to watch the eclipse of the moon. The eclipse was scarcely visible here or we would have watched it, too.

THE STORM

By ELEANOR R. JOHNSON.

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

It had been a hot, sultry day, almost unbearable to even the most devout lover of summer weather, and the late afternoon had approached without even a breath of wind.

Barbara Savoy, a pretty, fair-haired girl, moved restlessly about on the porch of one of the north shore's most famous hotels. Her father was seated in a shaded corner, eagerly devouring the headlines and columns of the daily paper. Barbara approached him.

"Father, I guess this is the 43rd time I have asked, but won't you please come out rowing for just a little while? It's so much cooler in the bay!"

So for the 43rd time Mr. Savoy tried to refuse, but it was impossible. Barbara had really been rather patient, therefore it was only just that she should be rewarded.

"Well, for only a little while, but mind you, don't bring that young fellow along that you were talking with this morning. He doesn't seem to have any gumption, whatsoever."

Barbara was too happy to have this testy little remark spoil her fun, and snatching up a pair of oars from the landing, she ran down to one of the boats.

While they were bounding merrily over the waves the clouds in the sky were keeping apace. Heavy black clouds covered the heavens like a blanket. It was unmistakable that a storm was coming up.

"Row, Barby! Perhaps we can get to the shore before the storm breaks," and Mr. Savoy pulled furiously on the oars, while Barbara, feeling how dangerous their position was, added her strength to the race.

Suddenly the storm broke, and the wind seemed to vent his wrath on the light craft. The two mere human beings fought bravely, but without avail. The boat began to fill with the down-pour of rain, and the waves which washed over the sides.

Laying down the useless oars, Mr. Savoy dropped on his knees in the bottom of the boat, and baled; baled as fast as he could fill his straw hat and dump its contents over the edge of the boat.

"Father, it's almost hopeless," Barbara shouted between the deafening claps of thunder. "Let's just float as long as we can, and then do the next best thing—try to swim."

It seemed as if nature heard her words. The boat gave a lurch and then sank beneath the surface with a sickening groan. Barbara heard her father shout and then the water bubbled unpleasantly in her ears.

When Barbara became conscious several hours later she found herself lying on her bed at the hotel. Foot-steps sounded in the hallway and Mr. Savoy entered. He looked pale and worn, but his face lighted up as Barbara turned toward him.

"A little adventure, Barby! How do you feel now?"

"Fine, daddy; but tell me, how did we come out so safely?"

"Wonderful luck is all I can say, Barby. But at any rate that fellow, Robert Garrick, that you were talking with this morning, is all right! He was running along the shore and I saw him and shouted and, while I held on to you with one hand and kept up with the other, he rushed in and helped us."

A week passed before either Barbara or her father saw Robert Garrick again. Then it all happened when Barbara was at the post office for mail. As she was looking over the pile of envelopes, Garrick stepped up.

"Would you like to ride back to the hotel with me?" he inquired. "I am going past there."

Barbara looked up and, greatly pleased, she exclaimed, "Oh, it is you! I do so want to thank you for what—"

"Never mind that now," he interposed genially. "Jump into the car and maybe we can talk about that later!"

They did stop at the hotel, but it was only while Barbara left her father's mail. For after that she took the first of many enjoyable rides that summer, and when she returned home in the fall Robert Garrick felt that next summer and Barbara were the only things to live for.

Honor Due Magellan.
Although Magellan did not live to complete his particular voyage, he did circumnavigate the globe, and was the first man to do so. Previously on his longest voyage eastward from Portugal he had reached Banda Island at longitude 130 degrees east of Greenwich, and when he left at Mactan Island he had sailed westward to longitude 124 degrees east of Greenwich, thus by six degrees more than completing the circumnavigation. This feat has never been recognized at its full value, which it is held, would place it among the four leading achievements in discovery and exploration.

Enormous Lead-Pencil Output.
Some idea of the tremendous magnitude of the pencil industry of America can be obtained when it is realized that the largest factory alone turns out more than 50,000,000 pencils every year. They are of more than 700 kinds, grades, shapes and colors. If the pencils from the factory were placed in a row and the ends they would reach from Washington to San Francisco and back to New York.

THE POLITICAL IMMORTALITY OF MR. BRYAN

(From the Goldenrod)
After the recent visit of Mr. Bryan to our city, we were discussing in the history class the reasons why, in spite of defeat after defeat, he has not only retained his hold on the affections of the American people but has wonderfully strengthened it.

For let it be recalled that he has led one of the great American political parties three times in a national campaign, and each time that party has gone down in dismal defeat. The boys say: "Three strikes and out" but the rule does not seem to apply to Mr. Bryan. Not only has he had these conspicuous defeats of national magnitude, but he has been worsted in many skirmishes of varying degrees of lesser magnitude. It is doubtful if any other American statesman has been as many times the aggressor and the one attacked. According to our text books, it was only a few years ago when such paper as the Louisville Courier Journal denounced him as a "dishonest dodger," a "daring adventurer" a "political faker" and the New York Tribune reviled him as a "willing puppet in the blood-imbued hands of revolutionists—apt at lies and forgeries and blasphemies, the rival of Benedict Arnold and Jefferson Davis in treason to the Republic." Later such newspapers tried to regard him as a jest. "But," says the historian, "a new force had come into American life. William J. Bryan, defeated three times for the presidency, still molded public opinion during the years as only one or two presidents have ever done, until by 1912 his principles, outside of the free silver heresy, had become the common property of every political platform."

Even along the line of free silver, it may be that we shall yet go rather in the direction of Mr. Bryan's ideas than in any other. In his free silver advocacy, Mr. Bryan was seeking to have a monetary standard based upon two things of value—gold and silver, so that the standard would be less liable to change and manipulation than if based on one thing—gold alone. Now comes a learned economist and recommends a standard of value based not on two things of value but upon many things. Certain it is that Mr. Bryan, though "politically dead" many times, yet lives and commands the attention and respect of probably more people and has a greater weight in political councils than does any other living American.

Most men when associated once or twice with overwhelming political defeat are cast overboard by their political fellows as was Jonah of old. What has been the secret of the political immortality of Mr. Bryan?

The history class, before mentioned, seemed to find the secret in several of Mr. Bryan's qualities or characteristics. First of all, of course, Mr. Bryan seems to have been gifted with a keen, observing, analytical mind. It is this which seems to aid him greatly in making himself understood. When he tried to explain something, often by mere analysis or homely illustration, his explanation explains. Not so, often times with many others.

Mr. Bryan has a remarkable physique. He seems to fare well in strenuous campaigns. He looks more fit physically after the recent campaign than he did before. And added to his power of endurance is the possession of a voice remarkable for its carrying power when not forced. Indeed, it may be that the secret of his voice is that he does not force it, but distributes the effort to all the voice producing mechanism.

Yet other men have had all of the qualities and have suffered complete political extinction, after a few defeats. Why has Mr. Bryan survived so remarkably?

The conclusion of the members of the history class was that Mr. Bryan's political immortality is due chiefly to the strongly moral-religious turn of his political thinking. He says he thinks the secret of success in politics is just being honest and having the courage of one's convictions. He reminds us sometimes of the Prophets of old, oftentimes of his counterpart in many ways—the grand old man of England, often of the sayings about that great character whom the people heard gladly nearly nineteen hundred years ago.

He who listens to one of Mr. Bryan's speeches is not left in doubt as to the great source of his ideals. It is the Bible. It is the Bible, interpreted more literally perhaps than many of us are willing to interpret it. He has read and re-read and applied almost literally, such sayings as: "If thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out . . . if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off." He has read the story of the "wise man which built his house upon a rock; he has read about Daniel who 'purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat' and also remained true to his purpose; he has read and applied the stories and the philosophy of the men and super-men who were before us in that great act of patriotism of human conduct—that great est compendium of applied history—the Bible.

One can imagine no other saying more applicable to Mr. Bryan's political career from the time of "The First Battle" in 1896 to the present, than the victorious words of Paul: "I have fought a good fight; I have kept the faith."
—J. G. W. Lewis.

FOUR KINDS OF WORKERS

Does this apply to teachers? "There are only four kinds of employees," says Harry L. Fogleman, everywhere known as "Galling Gun Fogleman," and in your experience you have found this to be true. First, those who must be told what to do, and then checked up afterwards. Second, those who must be told what to do and how to do it and you need not check them up. Third, those who must be told what to do, but you need not tell them how to do it. Fourth, those who need not be told what to do or how to do it, but simply give them a general policy and they will know what to do.

CHAPEL EXERCISES

Friday: "It is important that the prospective teacher should consider some things very carefully. She is about to take on many obligations not stated in the contract. Teaching means more than carrying out the program of the course of study."

"Information gathered from books is incidental. The fundamental necessity is to inspire the pupils with ideals and aid the formation of good habits. These things grow out of teaching ability and personality. In vain may the teacher set the ideals of her pupils above those which she, herself, has attained. This fact should serve as a check to many things the teacher may have an impulse to do.

"The teacher who enters a community with the idea of reforming social life there will succeed only in making herself unpopular. She must be an example of the best. Neither is a teacher able to be a so-called social-flyer."

"Restrictions are thrown around the teacher. These restraints are worthy and such as make a teacher fit for imitation. The teacher must have the attitude of a student, must be cooperative in spirit, tactful, and the happy possessor of ability to give up some of her own positive ideals for those of others. It is the destination of all those who attempt to do that for which they have no aptitude, to fail. A person having no desire for self-education should not be a teacher. The teacher is placed in a school for inspiration. The right view of her success should be measured by the boys and girls she has been instrumental in guiding to splendid manhood and womanhood." The foregoing is a resume of President Conn's address to those who are going out to teach next fall.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

The quarterly grades are out! Some students are grumbling! "What's the matter with the members of our faculty?" they ask.

There's nothing wrong with the faculty as a body or with any one of them individually. The key to the whole situation is this: When a student enters upon a course of study in a secondary school he is too often accustomed to being driven to do his work or closely supervised. He continues to expect this and unless he is coached for an examination, and often in spite of good thorough coaching, he fails or falls below his former standard. The thing for him to do when he realizes this condition exists, is to lecture himself instead of his instructors.

There is another interesting point in this field which will bear inspection and further discussion. When an instructor conducts a course does he give credit for opinions that can be proved to have foundation if they do not coincide with the text or with his own ideas? If he does not, are not these some of the reasons?

He seeks to gain adherents to his school because he believes he has the truth in this matter. He acts upon the presumption that his interpretation has been clear and he has never been misleading in his explanation, and further, he being a specialist does not allow for the ac-

The World Is Now Being Revised

Revision, Rehabilitation and Reconstruction are going forward in every Industrial, Professional, Social and Political field—in every Art and in every Science. The World has a new vision of Democracy. Thoughts that we thought up to mid-summer of 1914 we can think no more. The very facts on which our thinking was based are altered.

Perpetual Loose-Leaf

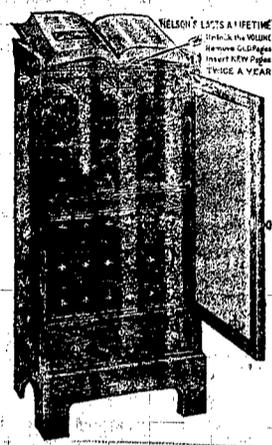

ENCYCLOPAEDIA

& Research Bureau for Special Information

Down to Date

In these unusual times, teeming with stirring events, an Extraordinary Encyclopaedia is an absolute necessity.

American enterprise has solved the problem by making a loose-leaf Encyclopaedia that is perpetually new, containing material that is found in no other Reference Work, as, for example, the splendid new article on Aeronautics prepared under the direction of the Aero Club of America and including details of the record-making feats of the NC-4, Vickers-Vimy and R-34.

Down to Date

The war is now history. Nations are being remade. You must keep in step with the world today. All old fashioned reference works have been simply marking time during the greatest years in history. Nelson's changes with the changing world.

ALWAYS NEW—Every six months all subscribers to NELSON'S receive their renewal pages—250 or more—between 500 and 700 pages each year. These include over 2,000 changes and keep NELSON'S perpetually accurate and up-to-date.

Nelson's Loose-Leaf—the One Encyclopaedia of Today

Nelson's Reading and Study Courses in United States History, The World War, Business Economics, Nature Study, Agriculture, and Home Economics are declared by educational authorities to be equal to a college course and training in each of these departments. By their use a boy can remain on the farm and yet receive all the advantages of a college course in Scientific Farming; a girl may have the services of the leading authorities on household economics without leaving her home; while the professional and business man may receive a business training superior to that which can be obtained from any of the widely advertised business institutes.

Y. W. C. A. ELECTS OFFICERS

The Y. W. C. A. held an officer election in the music room Thursday evening. The meeting was unusually well attended and was greatly enjoyed by everyone. Preceding the election, an excellent program was given by several of the members, which consisted of the following numbers: Piano Solo—Agnes Graham. Vocal Solo—Velma Burnham. Reading, "Your World"—Louise Sprague. Vocal Solo, "I'm a Pilgrim"—Leona Dietrich.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: Bernice Clayton, President. Mabel Brinker, Vice President. Ruby Schwerin, Secretary. Lulu Larson, Treasurer. Misses Kingsbury, Burton, Dewey, and Beechel, Y. W. Advisors.

The newly elected officers will take charge of affairs at once. It will be on the training school plan. They will have the advantage of having the advice of the older officers and will be able to start off the new year without difficulties. The Y. W. is certainly promoting the right kind of spirit in this school. We cannot imagine a real "live wire" school without its Y. W. or Y. M.

She entered the department store and complained about a lamp she had purchased, demanding that it be taken back. "What's the matter with it, madam?"

"It has all the faults of my husband, with none of his virtues." "Please explain yourself." "Well, it has a good deal of brass about it, it is not remarkably brilliant, requires a great deal of attention, is unsteady on its legs, flares up occasionally, is always out at bedtime, and is bound to smoke."—Ex.

RURAL CLUB

(From the Goldenrod)
A most interesting meeting of the Rural Club was held Monday evening at the callistheneum. In the absence of the president Esther Lundahl took charge of the meeting. Ida Farnsworth gave an unusually good report on "Rural Denmark and Its Schools." Florence Noe gave a talk on "Rural School Fairs." Miss Noe has taken part in several of these fairs.

Instead of the usual active games the following guessing games, amusing as well as instructive, were played: "Penny Wise," "Poems of Long-fellow," "Recognition."

IS THERE A TEACHER CRISIS?

(From Nebraska Teacher)
So many teachers are leaving the schoolrooms and so few young men and young women are entering the training schools that there seems to be a really alarming situation confronting us. How shall we find teachers for our schools, even at the higher salaries now being offered? Can we expect to have teachers if we do not have students in the high school training classes and in the Normal schools and Teachers' Colleges? Since the public is at last aroused and is willing that fair salaries be paid, the problem seems to be up to the school folks themselves. They must urge young men and young women to prepare to teach. The schools offer a field for public service that should make a strong appeal now that salaries have reached a fair figure.
